A very successful tea was held yesterday afternoon in the green room and library of the Young Women's Christian Association, under auspices of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham. The funds are to be used to employ a man next summer on the beautiful Memomrial Hill in Ashburnham which is the special project of the League. The guests were received by the president, Mrs. R. H. Parsons and Miss Elizabeth Scott, and were ushered by Mrs. J. Smith. Tea was poured by Mrs. T. H. Adams and Mrs. J. S. McGiffin, assisted by Mrs. J. F. Reed, Mrs. F. Jobbitt, Mrs. J. O. Sparling, Mrs. W. Whitton of Campbellford, Mrs. E. L. Sackville, Mrs. T. N. D. Kelly, Miss Lahring Parsons, and group of young girls, including the Misses Margaret Morgan, Linden Reed, Florence Trebilcock, Sophie Yeotes and Mary McPherson. Mrs. T. H. Glover and Mrs. L. Yeotes supervised the replenishing of refreshments. The table was very prettily done with two long lace cloths, banquet fashion, silver baskets filled with mauve chrysanthemums, silver bud vases with the same pretty flowers, and green candles in individual silver holders and a large central branching candelabrum A sale of home-made cooking was looked after by Mrs. W. J. Mein and Mrs. H. Morgan, and treasurers were Mrs. J. Bryce and Mrs. John Kerr. During the afternoon, tickets for a cake were sold by Mrs. M. McNabb and the draw took place, with Mr. E. A. Peck, K.C., M.P., officiating. The lucky ticket twas held by Miss Leta Brownscombe.

Mrs. E. Wand of Burnham street lent her home yesterday afternoon for a tea held under the auspices of the King George Home and School Assocoiation. The event took the form of a cup and saucer shower for the Association gatherings at the school, and was quite successful. The guests were received by the hostess and the president of the society, Mrs. G. Groombridge. Tea was poured by Mrs. G. C. Northey, assisted by Mesdames T. Hendry, A. Chartren, J. W. Ebbs, J. W. Sadler. The table was prettily arranged with yellow 'mums in silver bud vases and yellow candles, while the tea room was decorated with 'mums in shades of yellow and mulberry. A pleasing program, in charge of Mrs. W. Hepburn, included vocal solos by Mrs. A. Andrus, Mrs. Hepburn and Mrs. C. Telford, who also played the piano, and a recitation by Doreen Groombridge.

Those who remember with pleasure the visit here some years ago of the noted Chinese lecturer and author, Dr. Tehyi Hsieh of Boston, Massachusetts, when he spoke on the summer Chautauqua platform, will be interested in learning that he is scheduled for an Autumn Chautauqua appearance in Lakefield on Tuesday next, October 30th. Dr. Hsieh, who is a native of China, and received his education in the universities of England and Scotland, has given his life to the advancement of friendly relations between the Oriental and Occidental peoples and his visit to the district is anticipated with much interest. He is a speaker of rare charm and ability.

"SELF-HELP" PLAYSUIT

It's designed for real comfort, permitting plenty of freedom and natural movement of the body.

Zipper (sliding fastener bought already to sew to the garment) front closing keeps the abdomen warm and lessens the chance of snow and rain getting in through opening. It also makes it possible for a child to slip into it without help from mother or nurse, which develops self-confidence.

The ankles and wrists are snugly fitted with elastic knit woolen bands which keeps out snow and cold air.

Select soft woolen, as light in weight as possible, as too heavy clothing hampers play and play may cause posture defects. The most desirable fabrics are closely women and moisture proof.

It's made in a jiffy and at small outlay.

Style No. 3088 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. The 4-year size takes only 2½ yards of 39-inch material with ¼ yard of 39-inch lining.

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Searching for the Witch's Money Bags is a novel game to start Hallowe'en festivities. The hostess has cut witches caps from black cardboard or white cardboard painted or inked black. On each is a number in white pink, paint or chalk. These she passes to guests on their arrival but does not mention what they are for. When the company has assembled she tells them that it was rumored that a Hallowe'en witch had left numbered money bags around. The premises must be searched to find, and each player must find the one having his or her number on it. No one should reveal where other bags are seen. The search continues until all have their money bags.

* * * * * *

Money bags are squares or circles of yellow crepe paper tied with black tape about twenty dry pumpkin seeds. The effect of these wee bags is similar to money bags. The seeds are from the pumpkin hobgoblins used in the decoration. In the next game the pumpkin seed witch money is used for purchasing articles at the witch's rummage auction.

* * * * * *

For this there should be more than as many parcels as there are players. Packages should not suggest contents. For example small trifles should be in large wrappings. The hostess can supply everything or guests can be asked to bring wrapped articles which they want to get rid of, or should they have none, substitutes not costing over five cents. The hostess provides extras. A yellow lead pencil, a few clips in a yellow box, elastic bands in white envelope tied with yellow paper, three yellow blotters (small size) one sheet will make many sets, a very small pad of paper (yellow papers comes on some pads). These are suggestions for articles, and show how cheap they may be, just a penny or two apiece.

* * * * * *

The hostess or one of the players dons a witch's cap and holds a wand (yardstick or ruler will do). She points to one of the packages and says, "How much am I offered for this valuabe parcel, etc." If the auctioneer is witty he (or she) will get many a laugh. Players pay with witch-money, using as little as possible to secure parcels wanted, until money bag is empty. The player who gets the most for his money is given a small pumpkin as a prize. Opening parcels is a source of amusement.

* * * * * *

As this takes time, refreshments will be in order. Those suggested yesterday would be very appropriate and delicious.

* * * * * *

Filling the Witch's Cauldron is suggested after this. The piled up pumpkin seed money can be used, but better still are sunflower seeds, as they shoot excellently when hit on the tip with the forefinger. A yellow plate or very shallow yellow bowl, or the scooped out shell of a pumpkin, cut down so that the rim is low, forms the cauldron. Each player in turn shoots three seeds. Each one landed in the cauldron scores five. There may be several rounds. The player scoring highest wins a prize. A pumpkin pie or tarts is suggested.

RAYNOR COMPANY SOON BE FINISHED

Construction Work on Highway West of Norwood Nearing Completion.

The Raynor Construction Company have held the contract and since early in May it has provided badly needed work for several large gangs of men from Norwood and district and other parts of the county.

Commencing west of Palin's Corners the road has been widened and straightened right through to Norwood, with many sharp curves eliminated. Two quite dangerous right angled jogs at Daisy Dee corner about a mile from Norwood, and another at Finn's Corner, about six miles from Norwood, have been cut off and the road diverted. Hills and grades have also been cut down extensively and filed in to gradual grades, "Cameron's Hill" and Harrison's Hill" presenting a somewhat different appearance. A stone crusher is at work in a field near Finn's Corner and the road is being given a generous surfacing of crushed rock.

East of Havelock, highway construction is also nearly completed by the Billie Construction Company. The road is reported to be splendid through to Marmora over the new bridge spanning the Crowe River.

FINDING DECLARER'S WEAK SPOT

Hundreds of times I have run over duplicate score cards. Perhaps there may be two or three interesting differences in scores, when only a single reasonable call may exist. Scanning these hands systematicaly will be found most interesting and instructive. Here is a hand of that sort. It came in a 13 table game.

At each table South made an opening bid of 1-heart which partner shifted to no trumps. Eight tables played the final call of 2-no trumps. Five tables went 3-no trumps. Irrespective of the amount of the final contract, 12 North players made 3-odd. A single table bid 3-no trumps and went down a trick. Only a few of the East players could be reached to inquire what opening lead was made. The majority of those led the 2 of diamonds, as thta suit was a bit stronger than clubs. A smaller number of East players led the 2 of clubs. There was no real choice between the two natural opening leads. In each case the declarer at once started establishing spades, ending by winning 2 spade tricks, 2 heart tricks, 3 diamond tricks and 2 club tricks. Each declarer made 3-odd against a minor suit opening.

The East player who held the declarer to 2-odd made an opening lead of the Q of hearts. That was interesting. I asked why he led hearts. He calculated that South's opening bid was made on a 4-4-3-2 hand, with the second 4-card suit not biddable, and probably that suit was spades. He calculated that West might hold 4 hearts, with a spade stop. Two hearts, 2 spades and a single trick in one minor suit would defeat the contract, while any other lead might give North a game. If East really figured all that out before seeing dummy he did well. Certainly he believed that he had done so, and his lead of the Q of hearts makes it appear as if he had calculated correctly.

North passed the first heart trick, then he won the next lead with the K. In establishing spades North lost to both ace and K, also he lost another heart trick. North won 2 tricks in spades, 2 tricks in hearts, 3 in diamonds, but opponents had to win a trick with the K of clubs, giving East and West a fifth trick. This caused North to go down a single trick, and take bottom score on the hand. The heart opening lead was deadly for him. I do not believe that one player in ten thousand would have made the lead.

Household Hints

Dredge meat and fish in flour before rolling in egg and crumbs for frying. A much better crust will result.

Menu Hint
Roast Beef
Browned Sweet Potatoes
Creamed Turnips
Cheese Stuffed Salad
Rolls Jam
Apple Pie Coffee

This is a typical Sunday dinner menu. And does it taste good on a cool day! Put the roast in a hot oven, say 475 degrees. Leave it uncovered for the first half hour or so. Put a small onion in each end of the roaster. Add a seasoning of pepper and salt and a couple of bay leaves, with a little water, when the cover is put on. Lower the heat to about 350 and let roast, allowing about twenty minutes for each pound of beef.

Today's Recipes

Cheese Stuffed Salad. — Four firm tomatoes, one-half cup cottage cheese, one-third cup diced celery, one-fourth cup diced cucumbers, one tablespoon chopped onion, one tablespoon chopped green pepper, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-half cup mayonnaise. Wash and peel tomatoes. Remove centers. Mix two tablespoons mayonnaise with rest of ingredients. Stuff tomatoes. Chill. Serve on lettuce and surround with remaining mayonnaise.

FACTS AND FANCIES

It Helps

During the winter months when the windshield wiper refuses to work, rub the outside of the glass with half a raw potato. The juice will prevent the raindrops from clinging to the glass, yet the glass will not be clouded in the slightest.

Deep-Fat Fried Yellow Perch

Dry fish thoroughly after cleaning. Then dip in well-beaten egg and roll in dry bread crumbs to which seasonings, salt and pepper, have been added. Have the deep fat heated to a temperature of 350 degrees-370 degrees F., using a saucepan large enough to hold the fish and frying oil, but still be only half filled. This avoids any danger of the oil catching fire. Drop prepared fish into the deep fat and cook until the fish becomes a golden brown on all sides—three to six minutes. (Keep turning fish with a fork while it is in the fat. This assures an even browning.) Remove from fat and place on an absorbent paper to drain. Serve at once.

Wife Preservers

To make an ordinary candle serve as a night light, pack salt around the wick as far up as the blackened part. In this way a mild, steady light may be obtained all night.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

WORD COMES from Ellis Island that Patrick Barrie of horse painting fame, is there awaiting deportation to England. He was picked up at Saratoga last August by the Pinkerton detectives on a charge of stealing a horse. He has been waging a stiff legal battle with the authorities ever since but now it looks as if he goes back to England. Paddy can paint a horse so slick that even his owner can't recognize him, and has put over numerous paint jobs in the last few years, and the times that he has been even suspected, have been very infrequent, on account of his cleverness.

× × ×

The one he pulled a little over two years ago at Fort Erie when he took the high class sprinter Volta Green and painted her to resemble a maiden by the name of Janie G was a masterpiece. The race was over and all bets paid and it was the next day before anything was suspected. Horsemen got wondering how a horse like Janie G. could defeat the horses of such calibre as post favorites. They made inquiries at the mutuel windows and found that a man resembling Barrie had bet $800 on Janie G. and that was practically all that was on her. They then got the stewards to ask to see the horse and when they got to the stables they found out she was stabled about a mile away at a farm. They hurried there and confiscated her, and even then they could not identify her, so cleverly was the paint put on. They held her for a week and with no sign of the paint wearing off they desided to try to wash it off with gasoline and only then did the paint start to come off.

IF HE HAD taken the horseover to Buffalo right after the race that would have been end of it, but he figured all was well and would probably have started her again within the next few days. He got over ten to one for his $800 which he wagered at the track and he also had money bet with bookmakers in all the large American cities, so there is really no way of telling just how much he actually won on this one race but we are safe in saying it was plenty. He has been suspected of putting over the same stunt on the English tracks in the past, so we may hear of him again when he gets back there. He admits he is crooked but says he finds plenty of company around the stables at the different race tracks.

Conny Smythe intends to shoot his pair of good two-year olds Direct Hit and Shoeless Joe, at the Walden Handicap Stakes during the fall meeting at Pimlico. The former in three starts to date has not been out of the money, but Shoeless Joe is still a maiden after ten tries. But always remember Conny has a habit of dropping them from the skies when least expected and generally when important money is at stake. Direct Hit claims the famous Display as his daddy and any horse with that parentage can hold his own in any sort of company. It will be interesting to watch this pair's career as Conny has nominated them for all the important stake races and has great confidence that they will not disappoint him. It takes real money to even enter a horse in these handicaps, and you know Conny has always been considered a good business man.

Imports of agricultural machinery into Egypt in the first half of this year were nearly four times those of the corresponding period of 1933.

RUMORED RUTH MANAGE MACKS IN 1935 RACE

Writers Helping the Babe.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Babe Ruth's uncertain status with the New York Yankees apparently is going to furnish the "Hot Stove" League with its principal item of conversation this winter.

Since the Babe made his famous pronouncement at Detroit during the World Series that he would not remain with the Yankees simply as a pinch-hitter, rumors have come thick and fast, connecting his name with verious managerial berths.

The latest one, widely circulated yesterday, said Ruth would succeed Connie Mack as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics next season. Just what basis in fact, if any, this yarn might have still was to be learned to-day, for the story came when the two principals, Mack and Ruth, were on shipboard halfway out on the Pacific, on their way to Japan for a baseball barnstorming tour.

Even so, there were plenty of denials. Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees said that so far as he knew there was no truth to the story.

Still on Reserve List

"One things is sure," he went on. "Ruth is still on the reserve list of the Yankees and no request has been made to us for his release or his transfer to another club."

"All bunk," said John Shibe, vice-president of the Athletics.

"You know the New York writers have been trying to find a job for Ruth for years. There's apparently none open, so they decided to make him manager of the Athletics."

Mack's son, Cornelius McGillicuddy, Jr., said, "Father has no intention of retiring, and I can assure you that he will not retire before the next season."

What really led to the rumor, evidently, was the fact that Ruth was named field leader of Mack's barnstorming team in the Orient. The New York Daily News, which printed the story, said Mack, who will be 72 in December, would announce his retirement upon his return to this country in January, and that Ruth then would be named manager.

"Just what terms were offered the Babe is uncertain," the newspaper said. "But it was indicated that in addition to a salary comparable to the one the Babe would have accepted had he renewed his contract with the Yankees, Ruth will be given a small block of Athletic stock."

Regardless of the authenticity of the latest rumor, there is strong reason to believe that if and when Ruth is offered a managerial post, the Yankee Management will not stand in his way.

Should such a job be offered, whether in the American or the National League, it is understood that Col. Jacob Ruppert, Yankee owner, would give the big fellow his release.

New Redshirt Combination To Cloud Morenz Memory

GEHRINGER SALE TO INDIANS IS REPORTED IN BORDER CITY

DETROIT, Oct. 26.—Negotiations are on for the sale of Charlie Gehringer, Detroit second baseman, voted the best in the American League, to the Cleveland Indians, apparently authentic reports indicated yesterday.

Gehringer not only would play second base for the Indians in their 1935 drive for the American League pennant, but would become manager of the Cleveland team in that campaign, the same source of information insists.

Player Deal Possible

If no Cleveland players are involved in the deal, the purchase price may be about $100,000, it is stated.

If players are considered, the Tigers may get some cash and perhaps gain Bill Knickerbocker or Lyn Lary to play second base.

The latter is no such hitter as Gehringer, but as the Tigers expect to have Al Simmons, now of the Chicago White Sox, in the outfield and adding to their slugging ability, the Tiger management is said to feel that good use could be made of Lary, who is a star infielder although not a heavy hitter.

The deal indicates that the Indians are through with Walter Johnson as manager, even though announcement was made during the latter part of the last campaign that he had been signed for another year to head that club.

Target of Criticism

Johnson would get out on short notice, it is declared, the idea being that the story of his being signed again was designed to cut off a storm of criticism which had been aimed at him for the management of the Indians, and at the Indian owners for their continuing him as manager.

The deals which hinge around Gehringer have not been completed, but are said to be in shape for carrying out successfully at the December meeting of the baseball moguls in New York city.

Frank Navin, Tiger owner, is expected to deny a willingness to dispose of Gehringer because of his many years in Detroit and his position as a favorite with the fans.

Cleveland has tried for some time to get the Detroit second sacker.

Unemployment throughout the world is estimated to have dropped from 29,000,000 to 22,000,000 in the last two years.

OSHAWA TAKES GAUTT TROPHY

FINAL SCORE 7-4.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 26 (Examiner Correspondence). — After defeating Peterborough 17-4 in the afternoon game in the second annual Millbrook tourney for the Gautt Trophy, the leg-weary Millbrook team lost the evening game to the husky Oshawa squad 7-4. The victory of the Oshawa team gives them poseession of the Gautt Trophy, won last year by Millbrook, for the next year.

The two games were played in the Cosmos rink and attracted a large crowd of spectators. At the conclusion of the night game, Reeve Percy Stinson congratulated the victorious Oshawa team and introduced Robert Gautt, of Toronto, donor of the cup in memory of his brother, the late Alfred Gautt, who did so much to encourage sports in Millbrook.

In the first game the Petes started off strong scoring three goals in the first period to lead at its close 3-2. In the second stanza Millbrook forced the play on smart combination and ran in four counters, while blanking the Petes. The Millbrook squad showed great form in the third and final period to run in eleven goals in quick succession, while the visitors secured but one.

Slippery Field

The rink in which the tourney was held became something of a quagmire due to the rain that fell in the late afternoon. The ground was very slippery and the players soon became covered with mud, while the uncertain footing made play even more difficult for the Millbrook squad, who were tired after their afternoon game.

Oshawa won the game by reason of their great strength in substitutes, while the home squad were short-handed in alternates. Time after time the Oshawa manager put out a whole new squad on the field, while the homesters had to battle along as best they might.

Even with his disadvantage Millbrook gave the Motor City team a real battle. At the end of the first period it was 2-1 for the visitors, but Millbrook spurted in the second period and tied the score 3-3. Oshawa forged to the front in the third period, as Millbrook tired under the hard pace, and at its finish were leading 6-4. In the last period Oshawa added another goal.

F. C. Waghorne, ex-president of the O.A.L.A., refereed both games.

The Teams

Millbrook — Goal, Larmer; defence, Red Creighton, Freelove; rover, Edmunds; centre, R. J. Scott; wings, Gray, Ingram; subs, Edmunds, Raper, Sloan, Nattress.

Oshawa—Goal, Moffat; defence, Hooper, Sevil; rover, Armitage; centre, Leroy; wings, Cook, Sandford; subs, Heron, McMaster, Fleming, Campbell, Luke, Cook.

BERT CONNELLY TO PLAY SEASON WITH RANGERS

JOHNSON MAY RETIRE.

Bill Cook May Play Defence for New Yorkers in Coming Schedule.

(By The Canadian Press)

Performing on an Allan Cup team, it seems, is as good a method as any in which to make the long hop from amateur hockey to the National League. Three of last year's Moncton Hawks have been signed to contracts after standing the pace in big time training camps.

Bert Connolly is going to New York Rangers and Sammy McManus and Aubrey Webster will line up with Tommy Gorman's Montreal Maroons. All three will make their professional debuts Saturday night when Maroons and Rangers meet in an exhibition tilt at Winnipeg.

Lester Patrick will pit his revamped Rangers against Gorman's team without Ching Johnson and Earl Seibert, his regular defence. Holdouts both, they have not joined the New Yorkers in training.

Johnson may enter business in New York, he says, and give up the game. If he does, it probably will mean Bill Cook, one of the greatest wingmen the game has seen, will drop back to a defence post.

Cook is to be used on the rear defence in the exhibition tilt, and if neither Johnson nor Seibert come to terms it is altogether likely he will stay there. Besides the big winger, Patrick has Ott Heller and Alex Levinsky for defence duty.

In practice Patrick has moved Cecil Dillon up to Cook's spot where he works with Bun Cook and Frank Boucher. "Butch" Keeling is taking Dillon's place on the second line with Murray Murdoch and Vic Ripley.

Ace Baily may be through as a hockey player due to the injury he suffered in Boston last Fall but he demonstrated at Galt yesterday he can win golf prizes. Given a handicap of 21 he led the Toronto Leafs in a clash with professional golfers and collected a golf bag.

The golfing followed a workout in which some of the players concentrated on the penalty shot. King Clancy and Busher Jackson shone at beating the goalies with the innovation.

President Frank Calder discussed the new shot at Toronto yesterday and pointed out it will be awarded ony when the tripping player is the last one between the puck carrier and the goalie. He sail the offending player would be also penalized with the usual minor.

Newsy Lalonde started weeding out his squad at Saint John yesterday, sending Jacques Toupin and Wilfred Ranger (former Peterborough O. H. A. champmion) to Montreal Canadiens' farm at Quebec. Leo Bourcier probably will join them.

Lalonde has indicated in his practice lineups the players he expects to carry. Aurel Joliat, Pete Lepine and Wildor Larochelle will make up the first line, George Mantha, Jack Riley and Joe Lamb the second and Jack McGill, Nels Crutchfield and Armand Mondou the third.

Jack Portland and Sylvio Mantha will form one defence combination and Jerry Carson and Roger Jenkins the other. Wilf Cude will play goal.

WORD COMES from Ellis Island that Patrick Barrie of horse painting fame, is there awaiting deportation to England. He was picked up at Saratoga last August by the Pinkerton detectives on a charge of stealing a horse. He has been waging a stiff legal battle with the authorities ever since but now it looks as if he goes back to England. Paddy can paint a horse so slick that even his owner can't recognize him, and has put over numerous paint jobs in the last few years, and the times that he has been even suspected, have been very infrequent, on account of his cleverness.

× × ×

The one he pulled a little over two years ago at Fort Erie when he took the high class sprinter Volta Green and painted her to resemble a maiden by the name of Janie G was a masterpiece. The race was over and all bets paid and it was the next day before anything was suspected. Horsemen got wondering how a horse like Janie G. could defeat the horses of such calibre as post favorites. They made inquiries at the mutuel windows and found that a man resembling Barrie had bet $800 on Janie G. and that was practically all that was on her. They then got the stewards to ask to see the horse and when they got to the stables they found out she was stabled about a mile away at a farm. They hurried there and confiscated her, and even then they could not identify her, so cleverly was the paint put on. They held her for a week and with no sign of the paint wearing off they desided to try to wash it off with gasoline and only then did the paint start to come off.

IF HE HAD taken the horseover to Buffalo right after the race that would have been end of it, but he figured all was well and would probably have started her again within the next few days. He got over ten to one for his $800 which he wagered at the track and he also had money bet with bookmakers in all the large American cities, so there is really no way of telling just how much he actually won on this one race but we are safe in saying it was plenty. He has been suspected of putting over the same stunt on the English tracks in the past, so we may hear of him again when he gets back there. He admits he is crooked but says he finds plenty of company around the stables at the different race tracks.

Conny Smythe intends to shoot his pair of good two-year olds Direct Hit and Shoeless Joe, at the Walden Handicap Stakes during the fall meeting at Pimlico. The former in three starts to date has not been out of the money, but Shoeless Joe is still a maiden after ten tries. But always remember Conny has a habit of dropping them from the skies when least expected and generally when important money is at stake. Direct Hit claims the famous Display as his daddy and any horse with that parentage can hold his own in any sort of company. It will be interesting to watch this pair's career as Conny has nominated them for all the important stake races and has great confidence that they will not disappoint him. It takes real money to even enter a horse in these handicaps, and you know Conny has always been considered a good business man.

Imports of agricultural machinery into Egypt in the first half of this year were nearly four times those of the corresponding period of 1933.

RUMORED RUTH MANAGE MACKS IN 1935 RACE

Writers Helping the Babe.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Babe Ruth's uncertain status with the New York Yankees apparently is going to furnish the "Hot Stove" League with its principal item of conversation this winter.

Since the Babe made his famous pronouncement at Detroit during the World Series that he would not remain with the Yankees simply as a pinch-hitter, rumors have come thick and fast, connecting his name with various managerial berths.

The latest one, widely circulated yesterday, said Ruth would succeed Connie Mack as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics next season. Just what basis in fact, if any, this yarn might have still was to be learned to-day, for the story came when the two principals, Mack and Ruth, were on shipboard halfway out on the Pacific, on their way to Japan for a baseball barnstorming tour.

Even so, there were plenty of denials. Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees said that so far as he knew there was no truth to the story.

Still on Reserve List

"One things is sure," he went on. "Ruth is still on the reserve list of the Yankees and no request has been made to us for his release or his transfer to another club."

"All bunk," said John Shibe, vice-president of the Athletics.

"You know the New York writers have been trying to find a job for Ruth for years. There's apparently none open, so they decided to make him manager of the Athletics."

Mack's son, Cornelius McGillicuddy, Jr., said, "Father has no intention of retiring, and I can assure you that he will not retire before the next season."

What really led to the rumor, evidently, was the fact that Ruth was named field leader of Mack's barnstorming team in the Orient. The New York Daily News, which printed the story, said Mack, who will be 72 in December, would announce his retirement upon his return to this country in January, and that Ruth then would be named manager.

"Just what terms were offered the Babe is uncertain," the newspaper said. "But it was indicated that in addition to a salary comparable to the one the Babe would have accepted had he renewed his contract with the Yankees, Ruth will be given a small block of Athletic stock."

Regardless of the authenticity of the latest rumor, there is strong reason to believe that if and when Ruth is offered a managerial post, the Yankee Management will not stand in his way.

Should such a job be offered, whether in the American or the National League, it is understood that Col. Jacob Ruppert, Yankee owner, would give the big fellow his release.

$100,000 CASH.

DETROIT, Oct. 26.—Negotiations are on for the sale of Charlie Gehringer, Detroit second baseman, voted the best in the American League, to the Cleveland Indians, apparently authentic reports indicated yesterday.

Gehringer not only would play second base for the Indians in their 1935 drive for the American League pennant, but would become manager of the Cleveland team in that campaign, the same source of information insists.

Player Deal Possible

If no Cleveland players are involved in the deal, the purchase price may be about $100,000, it is stated.

If players are considered, the Tigers may get some cash and perhaps gain Bill Knickerbocker or Lyn Lary to play second base.

The latter is no such hitter as Gehringer, but as the Tigers expect to have Al Simmons, now of the Chicago White Sox, in the outfield and adding to their slugging ability, the Tiger management is said to feel that good use could be made of Lary, who is a star infielder although not a heavy hitter.

The deal indicates that the Indians are through with Walter Johnson as manager, even though announcement was made during the latter part of the last campaign that he had been signed for another year to head that club.

Target of Criticism

Johnson would get out on short notice, it is declared, the idea being that the story of his being signed again was designed to cut off a storm of criticism which had been aimed at him for the management of the Indians, and at the Indian owners for their continuing him as manager.

The deals which hinge around Gehringer have not been completed, but are said to be in shape for carrying out successfully at the December meeting of the baseball moguls in New York city.

Frank Navin, Tiger owner, is expected to deny a willingness to dispose of Gehringer because of his many years in Detroit and his position as a favorite with the fans.

Cleveland has tried for some time to get the Detroit second sacker.

Unemployment throughout the world is estimated to have dropped from 29,000,000 to 22,000,000 in the last two years.

OSHAWA TAKES GAUTT TROPHY

MILLBROOK, Oct. 26 (Examiner Correspondence). — After defeating Peterborough 17-4 in the afternoon game in the second annual Millbrook tourney for the Gautt Trophy, the leg-weary Millbrook team lost the evening game to the husky Oshawa squad 7-4. The victory of the Oshawa team gives them posession of the Gautt Trophy, won last year by Millbrook, for the next year.

The two games were played in the Cosmos rink and attracted a large crowd of spectators. At the conclusion of the night game, Reeve Percy Stinson congratulated the victorious Oshawa team and introduced Robert Gautt, of Toronto, donor of the cup in memory of his brother, the late Alfred Gautt, who did so much to encourage sports in Millbrook.

In the first game the Petes started off strong scoring three goals in the first period to lead at its close 3-2. In the second stanza Millbrook forced the play on smart combination and ran in four counters, while blanking the Petes. The Millbrook squad showed great form in the third and final period to run in eleven goals in quick succession, while the visitors secured but one.

Slippery Field

The rink in which the tourney was held became something of a quagmire due to the rain that fell in the late afternoon. The ground was very slippery and the players soon became covered with mud, while the uncertain footing made play even more difficult for the Millbrook squad, who were tired after their afternoon game.

Oshawa won the game by reason of their great strength in substitutes, while the home squad were short-handed in alternates. Time after time the Oshawa manager put out a whole new squad on the field, while the homesters had to battle along as best they might.

Even with his disadvantage Millbrook gave the Motor City team a real battle. At the end of the first period it was 2-1 for the visitors, but Millbrook spurted in the second period and tied the score 3-3. Oshawa forged to the front in the third period, as Millbrook tired under the hard pace, and at its finish were leading 6-4. In the last period Oshawa added another goal.

F. C. Waghorne, ex-president of the O.A.L.A., refereed both games.

The Teams

Millbrook — Goal, Larmer; defence, Red Creighton, Freelove; rover, Edmunds; centre, R. J. Scott; wings, Gray, Ingram; subs, Edmunds, Raper, Sloan, Nattress.

Oshawa—Goal, Moffat; defence, Hooper, Sevil; rover, Armitage; centre, Leroy; wings, Cook, Sandford; subs, Heron, McMaster, Fleming, Campbell, Luke, Cook.

BERT CONNELLY TO PLAY SEASON WITH RANGERS

JOHNSON MAY RETIRE.

Bill Cook May Play Defence for New Yorkers in Coming Schedule.

(By The Canadian Press)

Performing on an Allan Cup team, it seems, is as good a method as any in which to make the long hop from amateur hockey to the National League. Three of last year's Moncton Hawks have been signed to contracts after standing the pace in big time training camps.

Bert Connolly is going to New York Rangers and Sammy McManus and Aubrey Webster will line up with Tommy Gorman's Montreal Maroons. All three will make their professional debuts Saturday night when Maroons and Rangers meet in an exhibition tilt at Winnipeg.

Lester Patrick will pit his revamped Rangers against Gorman's team without Ching Johnson and Earl Seibert, his regular defence. Holdouts both, they have not joined the New Yorkers in training.

Johnson may enter business in New York, he says, and give up the game. If he does, it probably will mean Bill Cook, one of the greatest wingmen the game has seen, will drop back to a defence post.

Cook is to be used on the rear defence in the exhibition tilt, and if neither Johnson nor Seibert come to terms it is altogether likely he will stay there. Besides the big winger, Patrick has Ott Heller and Alex Levinsky for defence duty.

In practice Patrick has moved Cecil Dillon up to Cook's spot where he works with Bun Cook and Frank Boucher. "Butch" Keeling is taking Dillon's place on the second line with Murray Murdoch and Vic Ripley.

Ace Baily may be through as a hockey player due to the injury he suffered in Boston last Fall but he demonstrated at Galt yesterday he can win golf prizes. Given a handicap of 21 he led the Toronto Leafs in a clash with professional golfers and collected a golf bag.

The golfing followed a workout in which some of the players concentrated on the penalty shot. King Clancy and Busher Jackson shone at beating the goalies with the innovation.

President Frank Calder discussed the new shot at Toronto yesterday and pointed out it will be awarded ony when the tripping player is the last one between the puck carrier and the goalie. He said the offending player would be also penalized with the usual minor.

Newsy Lalonde started weeding out his squad at Saint John yesterday, sending Jacques Toupin and Wilfred Ranger (former Peterborough O. H. A. champmion) to Montreal Canadiens' farm at Quebec. Leo Bourcier probably will join them.

Lalonde has indicated in his practice lineups the players he expects to carry. Aurel Joliat, Pete Lepine and Wildor Larochelle will make up the first line, George Mantha, Jack Riley and Joe Lamb the second and Jack McGill, Nels Crutchfield and Armand Mondou the third.

Jack Portland and Sylvio Mantha will form one defence combination and Jerry Carson and Roger Jenkins the other. Wilf Cude will play goal.

PETERBOROUGH O.R.F.U. SQUAD CONFIDENT OF BEATING QUINTE

PETES PRACTICE HARD.

It will be two determined squads of gridiron athletes who will battle on the green sward at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon when the Petes and Belleville clash in their intermediate O.R.F.U. rugby fixture.

Everything rests on the result of this game for both teams. The squad that loses will be on the ash heap of football endeavor for the remainder of the season, while the winning team will not only take the Central Ontario championship but also earn the right to continue on into the O.R.F.U. playdowns.

The Belleville team of stalwart gridiron titans will not be hampered by the over-confidence that aided the Petes to gain a two-point victory in the Quinte City last week. Their high opinion of their own superiority has been sadly shattered, and they will crash the Petes' line with new force in their zeal to redeem their drooping laurels. The Belleville squad has been practicing hard all week and are reported to be in top form for the contest. More speed has been added to their play by the addition of three stars from the Collegiate team. Rigby, Burdes, Whytock, White, Morgan and Holgate, their corps of line crashers will throw everything into their efforts to smash the lighter Peterborough line.

Petes Confident.

The Petes on the other hand are confident that they can overcome the admittedly superior weight and brawn of the invading team. Their plays are working perfectly and the dash and speed of their attack is expected to gain many yards. The team is composed of the best rugby talent in the city and every player is in the pink of condition.

"Mick" Magee and Jack Gardner will again be the spearhead of the drives that are expected to rip through the husky Belleville frontline. The Petes also have some husky ball carriers in Gerow, Kirkwood, Ashmore and Waddell. No better squad of tacklers have ever been grouped together on a local team than now are doing such excellent work with the Petes.

It is not known definitely whether Jack Hope or Gardner will do the punting for the homesters, but either one is expected to hold his own with Blaker, star kicker for Belleville Gordie Young will again direct the play of the squad, do the placement kicking and hurl forward passes. Young and Richardson are the Petes safety men on the kicks and they have teamed to reel off some sensational runs.

The game will get underway at 2.30 and should attract one of the greatest throngs of fans ever to thrill to a game between two strong well-coached teams on a local gridiron. Special arrangements are being made to handle the crowd.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Church Basketball League

Games to-morrow (Saturday), October 27:

6.00 p.m.—St. James Juveniles vs. St. Paul's.

6.35 p.m.—Knox Juveniles vs. Trinity.

7.15 p.m.—St. John's vs. Murray Street Juveniles.

The first game is between the two newcomers to the juvenile section. The winners of the second game will be perched up on top of the Juvenile A section. St. John's looks too strong for the young Murray Street juvenile team, but will know they have been in a game before the finish.

Murray Street and St. James open the junior series at 8 p.m. The former, last year's champs, have all but one of last year's crew in action. Holmes, Gailey Pammett, Miller, Welch, and Latimer form a strong team. St. James' have Smart, the Leggett brothers, Spencely, McGavin, Heal, and others to choose from.

OPEN FIRST NIGHT FOR LAWN BOWLERS

No Fee Will be Charged for First Events in Winter Activities.

In making a further announcement in regards to opening the Lawn Bowling Club House for the winter season the committee wishes us to make a correction.

We said before that there would be a small fee charged. We find this is not so; there will be no fee charged on the opening night. The idea is to get as many bowlers and their friends to come out on Tuesday night and be the guests of the club.

Everybody will be asked to take part in an open discussion as to just what would be the best means to carry on the carpet bowling for the season.

The draw will be made from the board; three eight-end games will be played, and real good prizes will be given the winning rinks.

It is how to get in touch with everybody, and the committee is taking this as one of the ways to reach all bowlers. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

MELBOURNE, October 26 (C.P.).—Clyde Pangborn, who with Colonel Roscoe Turner successfully found the way across three continents and trackless jungles and seas, became hopelessly lost in Melbourne last night.

LYN LARY PLAYS PROMINENT PART IN MAJOR TRADE

ONE OF THE FAMILY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. (AP). Joe Cronin, youthful manager of the Washington American League baseball team, was sold to-day to the Boston Red Sox, in one of the biggest major league deals of recent years.

The famous shortstop and manager was reported to have been sold for a huge cash payment and Lyn Lary, Boston infielder.

Sale of the San Francisco ball player came as a complete surprise to Washington fandom. He had been regarded as a fixture on the local club in view of his recent marriage to Miss June Robertson, adopted daughter of Clark Griffith, chief owner of the Senators.

There had been a widespread belief among Washington fans that Cronin was being groomed to succeed Griffith at some time in the future as president of the club.

Leading Shortstop

For several seasons Cronin has been recognized as the leading shortstop in the major leagues and has been voted the most valuable player in the American League. For the past two seasons he has been manager of the local club.

He established himself with local fans in his first year as manager by winning the American League pennant for the first time since the days of "Bucky" Harris as Washington manager. Cronin will now serve under Harris, the Boston manager.

Club Fell to Pieces

This year, however, faced with an almost unprecedented streak of injuries, Cronin's club fell to pieces and finished in seventh place.

Following the debacle, there had been widespread reports of a shake-up in the team, but through them all, Cronin had been regarded as a fixture. He and Griffith frequently discussed together the rebuilding of the club.

The final game of the Father Phelan soccer cup takes place on Saturday afternoon between the Canadian General, league champions, and Canada Packers, on King Edward Park. Kick-off at three o'clock. Referee Walter Harrington. J. Morgan and Albert Frick linesmen. The C.G.E. are present holders. The C. P. have not their name on the silverware, which is one of the best trophies in the city.

Next Saturday afternoon, Trenton, Bay of Quinte League champions, will be in the city to play the local champions in the return fixture for the Eastern championship. If the Petes win, a third game will be necessary on neutral ground.

3 REDWINGS RELEASED

DETROIT, Oct. 26. (CP).—Manager Jac Adams, Detroit Hockey Club, to-day announced the release of three players—Andy Goldie, Toronto and Walter Broda, Winnipeg, amateur goalies; Orville Drouillard, Windsor, a wing. This cuts the Red Wing squad to 14 and Olympics to 16. The teams open the city championship series Sunday night.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By E.A.O.

No effort is being spared by the management of the Belleville rugby team to further strengthen their already powerful aggregation for the crucial contest here tomorrow afternoon with the Petes. At the outset of the season Coach Shiels and Manager Bill Fry of the Quinte crew searched throughout the whole district adjacent to Belleville for football stalwarts They secured several experienced players from among the airmen at Trenton flying field and imported two other hefty stars from Madoc. They added these to the squad of strong-armed men they had on hand in Bellevflie. Then Coach Shiels got busy training them and after three weeks of hard drilling, the Belleville team and its backers were confident that they were well on their way to an O.R.F.U. championship.

• • • • • • •

They were grouped with Peterborough but, fully appreciative of the superior weight and brawn of their squad as compared with the Petes, they considered that the series with the locals would be merely splendid training to prepare their team for harder games ahead when they swung out in the larger arena of the playdowns. But the Petes rather upset their confident plans when the locals invaded Belleville on Thanksgiving Day and earned a 6-6 draw.

• • • • • • •

The Petes were rather fortunate in that first onslaught. Their plays were not working so smoothly and the breaks aided them materially. Belleville considered that it was just a flash in the pan and did not regard the tie score seriously. So when the Quinte tank corps went into action the following Saturday on Riverside Park, the Belleville management were again serenely confident that the Petes would be annihilated.

• • • • • • •

Again the Petes surprised them, but it was a much bigger shock this time. The Petes not only held that steam-roller offensive of the Belleville huskies, but also showed some dash in their own attack. Belleville won 7-6 on a remarkable streak of good fortune in the final minute of play. Their was little satisfaction in that slim victory to Belleville. It had not been earned by successive plunges of their powerful wingline, but on a last-minute break. The confidence of the Quinte management began to crumble away.

• • • • • • •

With feverish energy Belleville prepared for the game last Saturday on their home gridiron. The squad was spurred into new activity as they determined to defintely overleap those pesky Petes and move on into the path of the playdowns by handing their tormentors one last stinging defeat. The scene was ready but again their was a hitch in the drama.

• • • • • • •

The Petes proved the villain in the piece. Regular dynamos of concentrated driving force they flung themseves upon the Belleville line, riddled holes in it through which they flashed in repeated dashes to the amazement of Belleville fans. The Petes' frontline outplayed their towering opponents and opened the way for their fleet-footed ball-carriers to slash through for big gains. Belleville had the breaks, but despite such assistance lost the game by 11 to 9. And this tied the series and everything now depends on the result of the game here tomorrow.

• • • • • • •

Belleville will come here with all their early-season completely evaporated and grimly to unloose an onslaught of power that the Petes can not stem. To assist them in gaining final victory, the management of the squad has again been active in searching out new material. Three outstanding stars of the Belleville Collegiate team has been added to the intermediate squad. In an effort to secure the service of George Ostrom, star quarterback of Belleville's championship interscholastic squad of last season, Manager Fry made a trip to Kingston early this week. Ostrom is a student at Queen's and is playing with the university junior team. The management of the Queen's squad refused to heed Manager Fry's plea that Ostrom was badly needed by his home-town squad in the final clash with the Petes. Manager Fry is planning to take his request for Ostrom's services before the Queen's Athletic Board.

• • • • • • •

This evening the Petes will hold a light signal drill, but yesterday they worked through another strenuous practice. The Petes are optimistic that again their superior training, speed and condition will earn them victory. To make certain that the game will be properly refereed the services in that important capacity of H. A. Craig, a member of the Collegiate staff, have been secured. Mr. Craig formerly coached the intermediate P.C.I. team and is familiar with all the new rules of the game. Special arrangements are being made at Riverside Park to handle the big crowd of spectators which will be on hand to view the battle. The gridiron has been roped off so that the crowd can not get over the touchlines. It has always seemed mysterious that more fans have not discovered the advantage of watching rugby games from the grandstand. A splendid view of every every action in the game can be obtained from its seats.'

• • • • • • •

Millbrook was defeated in the final game in the lacrosse tourney for the Gautt Memorial Cup last evening by Oshawa Harmony team. In the afternoon the Millbrook team gave a pick-up Peterborough outfit a terrific shellacking. Oshawa secured their victory over the home team owing to their great reserve strength in substitutes. The Gautt Cup recalls the memory of a man who was most active for years in fostering athletics in the Millbrook district.

Field Championships At Montreal To-Day

MONTREAL, Oct. 26 (CP) — Track and field stars from three Eastern Canadian universities clash here to-day in the Intermediate Intercollegiate track championships, eastern section. PUBLIC SCHOOL FINAL.

possession of the Alex. Kay soccer trophy against the Prince of Wales' aggregation, at King Edward Park, before a large attendance of spectators yesterday afternoon, by the score of three to one, exactly the same score of the previous tussle, on Tuesday night. Murduff being the outstanding goal scorer, with four goals in the series. Csumrik getting the counters for the losers. Both teams displayed clever talent in combination and positional play. Williamson, Prince of Wales centre-half, being as clever with his head as well as his feet.

Move With Precision

Prince of Wales broke away into the goal area where Leggitt and Howden had difficulty in repulsing the effective dribbling of Hollingsworth, at centre, while Tarkington handled the shots with ease. The West-enders halves forced the pace, to confine their efforts upon Jones' charge, who had to admit defeat from Murduff in a scrimmage, in front of goal. Mid-field tactics prevailed until a Nokes and Mackness combination proved dangerous when they sent the ball across to the other wing. Anderson trapping the ball back to Murduff. His shot was stopped by the custodian, but the King Edward pivot touched the sphere into the net as the goalie was bouncing the ball. Prince of Wales travelled inside the opposing full backs to find a stalwart defence rendering their effort unproductive. Their left wing went right through to send a low grounder across the goal, where Csumrick missed by inches. Just before the interval, Mackness registered the third counter. King Edward, 3; Prince of Wales, 0.

Positional Play Perfect

On resuming, the pace continued at a terrific pace, with Hollingsworth evading the full backs cleverly to test Tarkington, in goal. King Edward replied with defensive tactics, but permitted their attack to introduce the triangle play in which Mackness and Nokes penetrated the defense; Campbell and Patterson inercepting Murduff in the nick of time. Williamson connected with a long punt. Csumrik meeting the ball with an overhead kick that sent his right winger away up the field. He passed the ball back to Csumrik who travelled into the goal area, where he sent a lightning drive that found Tarkington beat as the ball fell inside the upright. Thereafter, Prince of Wales dominated the issue, but Leggitt and Grose responded to the bombardment to hold the losers' front rank outside the goal zone. King Edward, 3; Prince of Wales, 1.

King Edward — N. Tarkington, goal. H. Leggitt and B. Howden, full backs; W. Harvey, M. Grose and H. Campbell, halves; A. Nokes, J. Mackness, S. Murduff, W. Anderson, and R. Post, forwards. Subs., S. Henwood and E. Jobe.

Prince of Wales—H. Jones, goal; A. Campbell and E. Patterson, full backs; D. Leal, S. Csumrik and G. Curtain, halves; R. Whatman, M. Williamson, J. Hollingsworth, B. Leal and A. Maldover, forwards. Subs., T. MacDonald, H. Cheel, T. Jackson and L. Boddison.

Terriers Game Up Vancouver Series

VANCOUVER, Oct. 26.—(C.P.)—Orillia Terriers were one game up on Vancouver St. Helen's to-day in their post-season best-three-out-of-five game exhibition series here. Last night the Ontario team eked out a 13-12 decision in the fourth encounter, giving them a 2-1 edge in the series.

Orillia won the opening game 14-13, tied the second 13-13, and the third match went to St. Helens 14-11. A win or a tie in the fifth game Saturday night will give the easterners the series.

Terriers carried just the necessary reserve power to turn back the determined coast squad last night. Trailing by two goals in the first quarter they drew up on even terms in the second. With the score tied 8-8 at the end of the third quarter the Terriers forced the pace and the willing homesters tired under the gruelling drive.

Each To His Own

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—Leading exponents of Irish and United States football met yesterday, exchanged weapons, and fired away, with the result a stand-off.

The Irish players, members of the Galway Gaelic football team touring Eastern United States, failed in several trials to kick an American football over the crossbar from thirty yards away.

Maritime Hockey Squads Find Many Far From Home

Eastern Teams Bristle With Stars From Ontario, Quebec and Western Canada—Underdogs Strengthen Against Moncton—Many Changes.

Reports from Halifax, N.S., to the effect that the Maritime Hockey League would open its 1934-35 schedule as an organized professional or semi-professional circuit, have been current in the east. Executives from each of the affiliated clubs, Moncton Hawks, Halifax Wolves, Charlottetown Abbies and St. John Beavers emphatically deny this possibility. Difficulty in securing C.A.H.A. approval of player transfers was reported responsible for the suggestion. With numerous player additions to maritime cubs this year, a ban on imported players it is felt would materially weaken eastern competition in amateur ranks.

By VICTOR SERVICE
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 26.—If the Charlottetown, P.E.I. Abbies do not oust Moncton Hawks from leadership in the Maritime Hockey league this winter, it will be a reflection on the quality of hockey played in Ontario and Quebec. All but one member of the Charlottetown 1934-35 ice edition hail from these provinces. The solitary exception is a permanent resident of Charlottetown.

Backers of the Abbies, who built an artificial ice rink and assembled a hockey machine four years ago, with the Allan Cup as the objective, have failed to attain that goal. Not only Moncton barred the way Halifax Wolves stood higher in the league percentage and in the playoff ratings each season than did the Abbies.

A wholly new defence has been collected for the current season's aggregation. Leo Sargent, of Ottawa, has replaced Kick McCann of Ottawa in the Abbie net. Sargent with Halifax for the past three seasons previously, was with the Truro, N.S. Bearcats for two seasons. He was the first goalie imported into the maritime provinces from central or western provinces, being a member of the original trio of imports. Chuck Jemmett, of Toronto, a centre, Reg. Shields, of Ottawa, a winger, and Sargeant, engaged for the Truro Bearcats six years ago.

Hard on Coaches

For the offence, the Abbies have Brenneman, Getliffe and Desilets, all of Stratford, Ont., where they formed a junior line last winter; Pete and Jimmy Kelly, of Montreal; Jackie Kane, of Hamilton, Ont.; Frank Currie, of Montreal and Ivan (Hickey) Nicholson, of Charlottetown. Pete Kelly was with Abbies last season, and was their most aggressive and consistent player. He is again pairing with his brother after a lapse of a season. Kane was with the Hamilton Tigers, when that team won the Allan Cup in 1929, and has been with the Abbies for three seasons. Last fall, he was reported as one of those to be discarded, but the Abbie backers must have experienced a change of attitude.

Graveyard for Coaches

Charlottetown has proved a graveyard for hockey coaches. First it was Jimmy Gardiner, of Montreal, once a star in the National Hockey League who was received with a brass band and then deposed within six weeks of starting on his coaching job. Chuck O'Connor, of Ottawa, came next on the casualty list. He had transferred the Ottawa Shamrocks, virtually en bloc from the capital to Dalhousie, N.B., and won the maritime title the first season at the scene of transplanting. Stan Jackson, of Fort Erie, Ont., for many years a player in the National Hockey League, Canadian-American and International hockey circuits, was the next fall by the wayside after some trumpet blaring. He was fired before the Abbies were half through last season. Chester Gregory, of Stellarton, N.S., went into the breach for Jackson, and finished the season. Gregory is an old-line puck-chaser.

St. John Strengthened

For last season the Abbies had a sizeable deficit as well as league elimination in the play-offs. Rumors say players this season will not get more than $50 weekly, at best.

Meanwhile, sick of taking it on the frontispiece from the league leaders, the St. John Beavers are also out this winter to present some formidable resistance. Last winter, the St. John entry in the Maritime Hockey League finished a hopeless basement occupant. The only game the Beavers took from the Moncton Hawks was handed them, but only after Hawks, in making the gift, were forced to look the part of philanthropists.

Not only did Hawks smear the ice with the St. John delegation, but Halifax Wolves, and Charlottetown Abbies were superior to the Beavers. The only team eliminated from play-offs in the maritime route is the tailender, and last spring that was the Beaver group. In assembling the team, economy, it is assured, had been a vital factor, and if so, results were on a par with outlay.

Acquired for this season's edition are Hawse Marsh and Red Farrell, of Hamilton, Ont.; Hugh O'Leary, of Toronto and Fort William, Ont.; Crosley Sherwood and Joe Shields, of Ottawa; Walter Monson, of Winnipeg, Man., and Bobby Beaton, of New Glasgow, N.S.

CLOSE EVIDENCE IN COLLINS CASE AT NIGHT SITTING

Argument is Postponed Until November 5 at Osgoode Hall.

DENY LIABILITY.

With an immense amount of evidence on the record, evidence-taking was completed and the case of Durham, Charles and Alexander Collins against E. H. D. Hall and Basil D. Hall went into its final stage at a night sitting of the Supreme Court here yesterday. Argument of the case will be heard by Mr. Justice Kingstone at Osgoode Hall in Toronto on November 5.

Evidence taken yesterday, as in the earlier days of the trial, held little of the spectacular, the examining lawyers, D. L. McCarthy, K. C., for the plaintiffs, and R. S. Robertson, K.C., for the defendants, pointing their questions to throw light on technical points of law on which the case hinges. Evidence to indicate liability of the defendants in the ill-fated purchases of bonds made through Basil Hall and, allegedly, the firm of Hall, Hall and Stevenson for the plaintiffs was met consistently with evidence evoked by the defendants to prove a lack of liability. With a view to the amount of evidence which has been taken since the hearing of the case began last December, the lawyers estimated last night that a full day or more will be required for the hearing of arguments.

Asked About Visit

As court reassembled yesterday afternoon, Mr. McCarthy asked B. D. Hall about a visit of Durham Collins before the first purchase of St. Clair bonds. Mr. Collins was interested in the bonds and asked about the position of the trustees in such purchases, Mr. Hall testified.

"What he was concerned with was whether the bonds were legal trustee bonds. Is that not so?"

"No. He was more concerned with how to get 7 per cent."

"Yes. I might say that."

"Did you tell him at that time that they had a right as trustees to buy the bonds?"

"I didn't tell him they had a right to buy them. I think I explained their position pretty clearly. I think he understood."

Mr. Hall said the purchase was not decided then. Durham Collins came back later and said he would "take a Steve Brodie" on $1,000 worth of the bonds, meaning he would take a chance, he related.

Brother Agreeable

Mr. Hall said he told Durham he had better get in touch with his brother, Alexander, but that Durham said his brother was quite agreeable to the purchase. "I told him 'I guess you know what you are doing'."

"Were you acting as solicitor or bond salesman at the time?"

"I guess I was acting as a bond salesman."

"As a member of the firm of Hall, Hall and Stevenson, did you countersign the check given for the bond?"

"Yes."

Cross-examining in connection with the purchase of about $56,000 of Clarendon Apartment and Clarendon Properties bonds in December, 1927, Mr. McCarthy asked the witness what induced the sale of $60,000 of Dominion of Canada bonds before the Clarendon purchases were made.

"They wanted more revenue."

"Why did they not wait until they had something in view? There was nothing in view but St. Clair and Clarendon bonds at that time."

"I don't know why they sold them."

"After they sold them, you had $60,000 in trust. You also had $12,500 Clarendon bonds to sell. You saw a grand opportunity to make some money."

"Yes, it was an opportunity to make some money."

"Were you acting as solicitor or bond salesman then?"

"Bond salesman."

Referring to records of the firm of Hall, Hall and Stevenson already entered as exhibits, Mr. McCarthy pointed out entries of charges made the Collins trust for professional services on certain days. He suggested that on those same days Mr. Hall acted also as a bond salesman in connection with the $56,000 deal.

"Those charges were for making the transfers," Mr. Hall explained.

"But on those same days you acted as a bond salesman," the examiner declared.

"No. We didn't discuss bonds."

Two Completed

The examiner declared that the York Apartments enterprise, bonds of which were also sold to the Collins trust, completed only one of three buildings planned. The witness said two have been completed and are occupied, work having been stopped on the third.

Concluding his cross-examination, Mr. McCarthy asked the witness if he was responsible for the entry of Durham Collins into the bond business.

"I don't think so."

Producing an advertisement for the firm of Hatton and Collins from the issue of The Examiner on February 1, 1926, Mr. McCarthy asked the witness if he had paid for it.

"Quite possibly I did."

During a re-examination by Mr. Robertson, Mr. Hall declared that he got no discount in addition to commissions on bonds he bought for the trust. Regarding commitments for the purchases of certain large blocks of the bonds sold to the trust on which Mr. Hall stood with Toronto brokers at the time of sales to the trust, he said they never followed up the commitments. They never insisted on the time limits of the commitments, he said.

Taking the box at Mr. Robertson's call, J. W. Stevenson testified that he had been a member of the firm of Hall, Hall and Stevenson since 1929. He said he knew that Basil Hall had been selling bonds but knew little else of the transactions. In one of several conversations with Durham Collins he asked the plaintiff if he would like to lend money on a mortgage which he knew to be available. Durham said he had no loose money and said, in effect, that bonds suited himself and the trust better than mortgages, mentioning something about the income, Mr. Stevenson related.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall was called to the stand during the evening sitting of the court. He testified that he had been practicing law since 1873 but that he has not been very active during the past 10 to 12 years. He had no part in the bond transactions carried out by his son and knew nothing of the dealings with the plaintiffs, he said. He said he was aware something was "in the air" in 1924 when the trust was formed but knew nothing beyond that. Since his eyesight has been too poor to permit reading the firm's books, he knew nothing of the bond business through that source of information.

Durham Re-called

As Durham Collins was re-called to the box in the plaintiff's reply, Mr. McCarthy said, "Mr. Hall said the choice of investments for the trust was left to you."

"It was not."

"Had you any experience in dealing with bonds or mortgages?"

"No, sir."

"Did Mr. Hall ever read a statute or an amendment to a statute dealing with the duties of trustees or the nature of trustee investments to you?"

"No."

In his examination of the witness, Mr. Robertson referred to a meeting which Durham Collins had with Mr. Hall before the first purchase of bonds was made for the trust.

"Whatever took place at the meeting you went away decided against the purchase, didn't you?"

"Yes."

V. J. McElderry, K.C., acted with Mr. McCarthy for the plaintiffs and R. R. Hall, K.C., for the defendants.

AUSTRIA MOVES TOWARD CRISIS

Fascist Guard and Catholic Storm Troop Clashes Increase.

SOCIALISTS ACTIVE.

BY ROBERT SCHILDBACH

VIENNA, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Events in Austria appeared to be heading toward a crisis today.

The political situation at present seems to be more dangerous and complicated, veteran observers said, even than it was before July 25, when Chancellor Dollfuss was assassinated.

Differences between the Heimwehr (Fascist Home Guard) and Catholic storm troops appeared to be increasing daily, despite official assurances to the contrary.

Open clashes between these two armed groups, on which the government depends almost entirely for its existence, were reported today from Innsbruck and Graz. In Innsbruck the fighting was so serious police had to be called out.

Renewed activities by the powerful but suppressed socialist and communist opposition, as indicated by raids last night and the arrest of more than 70 alleged propaganda agents, also are worrying the government.

MOUNT JULIAN.

Mrs. William Thompson left for New York on Monday, where she intends visiting with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Blackburn.

Miss Ethel Hughes who has been spending the past few months at Mount Julian returned to her home in New York on Monday.

Miss Madaline Northey of Young's Point is visiting with relatives in this district.

TALKIE PICTURES FOUND IN CHINA

Mrs. J. H. Bettes Gets Letter Describing Conditions in Tai-Yuan-Fu.

ARMY MISSIONARIES.

In this Western hemisphere, it seems strange to realize that 'talkies' are new to others parts of the world. From far-away China comes a letter telling of the introduction of speaking moving pictures to cinema theatres at Tai Yuan Fu, a city in the province of Shansi, Northern China. But the good missionary who sends the letter to Mrs. J. H. Bettes of Murray street, remarks: "But lurid pictures of a Western character posted at the doors make one groan that such a marvellous invention should be so used." It is in that far-away northern province of an alien land that Adjutant J. Clinton Eacott and his wife, with their small daughter Dorothy, labour in the cause of the Salvation Army. Mr. Eacott says: "Among this year's converts perhaps the most interesting is old Mrs. Doh. She was a christian many years ago, but persecutions were very bitter here and she fell away. She became a very devout worshipper of idols, and was looked upon as a woman of deep piety. Ashes from her incense burner, were credited with power to heal sickness. Now she has returne d to faith in Jesus, and cleared all the idols out. She mourns the long years she has forgotten the Savour, and often weeps aboct it. Very patiently she is learning texts and simple songs, and the thin sheets of paper these are written on for her are worn to shreds, with daily handling. She is nearly seventy." He says "We spent a week, with the girls and staff of the Baptist Mission middle school, in camp at an old Buddist Temple outside the east gate of this city. The monks there were very devout in their services, and as we were holding Bible classes several times during the day and a sing-song in the evening, the courts rang with their praises and ours in alternation. They even rose at midnight and the beating drums and monotone chants sounded most weird. One priest had a very ascetic appearance. His name, "Completely Empty," implies his utter yielding up of worldly vanity and desires. Years ago he attended some Christian services and he accepted a Bible the girls gave him when we left."

Mr. Eacott speaks of the strange object, the steam roller, for several streets newly paved. His street, he says, is "the main thoroughfare fore the heavy, springless carts and trains of camels. It is a quagmire on wet days and many inches deep in dust in dry weather."

Electric signs are increasing, he remarks, and one or two stores boast wireless sets whose loud screeching attracts the crowds. Most of the stores have noisy gramaphones going constantly.

Adjutant and Mrs. Eacott are entering their fifth year of service in Shansi Province.

Stabbed Prisoner In Fair Condition

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. (AP).—Joseph Fatigate, Welfare Island Penitentiary prisoner who chatted and smoked yesterday while prison doctors atempted to remove a knife which had been plunged four inches into his forehead by another prisoner, was reported to be in "fair condition" to-day.

Surgeons removed the blade by an operation late yesterday after efforts to pull the knife out had only resulted in the breaking off of the bone handle.

Doctors at the penitentiary, astonished that the wound had not proved fatal in the first place, attributed Fatigate's survival of the operation to the delay in performing it, which allowed time for congealment and prevented a hemorrhage. His chances for recovery are believed favorable.

Meanwhile detectives at the penitentiary conducted an investigation in an effort to learn the identity of Fatigate's assailant.

TEACHER TELLS KIDNAP STORY

Claims She Was Abducted by Three Men and Driven to New Orleans.

POLICE SKEPTICAL.

McHENRY, Miss., Oct. 26 (A.P.). — Virginia Switzer, 28-year-old country school teacher, returned to her home here to-day, leaving New Orleans police scratching their heads over her bizarre story of having been kidnapped for $30,000 ransom.

Despite frank skepticism of New Orleans police, who found the missing school teacher 13 hours after her strange disappearance yesterday, Miss Switzer persisted in her story that three men forced her to leave McHenry with them.

Detective Captains Harry Gregson and Henry Asset bluntly told Miss Switzer her story was "ridiculous."

Miss Switzer told police three men hailed her as she drove to school yesterday. She said she was forced into the trio's sedan, one driving her car, and they drove to a creek. There she said she was forced to provide paper for a ransom note demanding $30,000 by Friday night and warning the family not to notify authorities.

Gagged.

She was taken to New Orleans, she said, where a blonde woman joined the party. She said a ball of cotton was put into her mouth, a strip of adhesive tape pasted over her mouth and bandage gauze wound around the lower portion of her face. Her hands were also bound.

Her captors then took her to a movie theatre, where the three men sat just behind her with pistols at her back, she said.

She said she managed to elude them and reach the women's dressing-room. There she scribbled on a piece of cardboard the information that she had been kidnapped and wanted the police. The note was given to a theatre attache and police were promptly called.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Hollywood is likely to be overrun with movie-struck Indians and it is all on Mae West's head. Since the star's appeal for a brave to play a lead in her new picture, the Paramount studio has been receiving more than 200 letters a week and dozens of other applicants have presented themsewes in person.

The other day added two more contenders, Gene Standing Bear and William Provost, also known as Big Elk. The pair arrived at the studio after driving fro Pawhuska, Okla. Standing Bear is the son of a Sioux chief and is married to the daughter of an Osage chief, who is a rich oil heiress.

Both the new arrivals attended the Haskell institute and Big Elk was a basketball star. Standing more than six feet high, the would-be actors tip the scales at better than 200 pounds. Each is an aviator, with Standing Bear owning his private plane and with 900 hours in the air to his credit.

The Marx Brothers have turned the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot topsy turvy, even to taking over Thalberg's office on what was supposed to be a busy afternoon. For their permanent quarters, the terrible trio have been assigned to Adrian's former office, a room about 60 by 60 with one desk and 15 chairs lined against the wall.

Anna Sten is elated that she was able to wander about the Chicago World's fair for two weeks without being recognised by autograph seekers. But the Chicago fans needn't feel chagrin, for the Russian actress also escaped detection on her arrival here—and this really was a wonder, for the star's husband, Dr. Eugene Frenke, arranged an extraordinary reception.

Anna had written from Chicago suggesting that the good doctor bring "the menagerie", meaning her two dogs, to the station.

But when the star got off the train, there was a real surprise awaiting her. During her absence, the dogs had become parents of a litter of six pups. So Dr. Frenke hired a small truck, piled in all eight dogs and, for good measure, added seven chickens, eight baby chicks, a pet rabbit and two turtles.

The near cloudburst brought a narrow escape for Charles Furthmann and Peter Dorsay, one-time Cornell teacher of physics and now an official in a big electrical concern. The pair had gone into the Hollywood Hills to try out a short wave radio set in an automobile. At the sudden flood they started home, but the water washed the car off the road and into a ditch. It teetered but righted itself, and the men were able to climb up the bank and hail a ride from a truck....The Rudy Valee picture will feature a number with twelve 200-pound exfootball players disguised as fan dancers...And, Broadway, get your runners out. Talbotville Posses Hunt Girl's Attacker

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 26. — (C.P.)—All night search by police and residents of Talbotville district failed to reveal the whereabouts of a man about 26 years of age who attacked Miss May Gunning, 22, daughter of James R. Gunning, as she was on her way from her home to the village about nine o'clock on Thursday evening.

Miss Gunning was enticed off the highway by a story that there was a sick woman needing attention in the home of her uncle, William Hicks, and was attacked on the lawn by a young man whose intent, it is believed, was robbery.

She fought her assailant furiously and when he clapped his hand over her mouth to prevent her screaming, imbedded her teeth into his fingers with such force as to cause him to release his hold. Her cries brought immediate aid. Armed with clubs and farm implements, young men of the village aided police in their search for the attacker but without result.

Crow Adopts Shiny Carburetter Parts Ties Up Truck, "Gets in Dutch" With Owner

BARTONVILLE, Oct. 26 (C.P.)— W. J. Peace has a pet crow, and, like the proverbial goat, it is fond of bits of metal, buttons, coins, etc., and seems to thrive on this strange diet. The crow has its home in the top of a pine tree nearby, and has been seen to remove odd bits of junk to its eyrie. All this was very amusing until yesterday.

Mr. Peace was repairing the carburetter on his car. It was a complicated job, and he laid out the little parts in a row on a work bench. The crow, named 'Shadow,' watched from his feeding with grave interest. Mr. Peace had to leave for a few minutes. When he came back, 'Shadow' was still watching, but with a beady look of satisfaction in his eye. Mr. Peace resumed his work on the carburetter, but on reassembling the apparatus, discovered many of the essential parts were missing. He turned toward 'Shadow' and raised an accusing finger.

The crow departed to the top of the pine tree and sulked for the rest of the day. So did the truck, for the owner couldn't get parts in the village.

CHAPTER 14

Mrs. Greever settled back and folded her hands triumphantly in her lap. The inspector was looking at her sharply and Tim had dropped his newspaper to watch her.

"You realize, Mrs. Greever," said Lee crisply, "that to make a charge of untruthfulness against a witness in a murder case is very grave?"

She bridled. "I suppose you mean I might be mistaken. Well, I'm not. I live right below the Reeves' apartment and I was sitting at the front window last night trying to get a breath of air when they came out. And I was still there when she came back alone."

"You are sure of the time?"

"I am not in the habit of telling untruths"—frostily. "I got up and looked at the clock in the dining room both times. I wondered where she could have been without her husband at that hour of the night. And all the time the poor man was lying in his own blood at that house. Mind you, officer, I'm not saying she knew it but it looks mighty suspicious to me that she should go gallivanting around with another man the very same night. What's more, they were going toward University Row."

"Mrs. Greever, let me ask you a question. If you think Mrs. Reeves had anything to do with the death of her husband, do you think she would have left her apartment and returned openly, with you sitting in the window watching her?"

"For pity's sake, officer, she couldn't see me. I didn't have any light on and I was sitting in the shadow anyway. But that's not all. We have a party line, you know, the Reeves' 'phone is the W party on our line. Three days ago, I picked up the receiver to make a call and I heard Mrs. Reeves talking to a man she called Ralph. She said her husband had just 'phoned and said he'd be home for lunch and that he had a headache and was giving his afternoon class a cut. And then she said, 'So you'd better not come over this afternoon, Ralph.'"

Lee drew pencil and paper toward him and wrote down her name. "Your address then is the same as Mrs. Reeves?" She nodded.

"It was very kind of you to come to us with your information," he said, rising and going toward the door. Unwillingly Mrs. Greever followed. "I am sure you understand the importance of saying nothing whatever about this to anyone else?"

"Of course, officer, and you are quite welcome to use any of this information that may be of value to you," she said graciously. Lee opened the door for her and she went out murmuring something about "the duty of citizens."

When the detective returned to his desk, Tim was already there, going through the statements to find Jamieson's. With Lee looking over his shoulder, he flipped over the last page to the signature. The name which looked up at them in a rather shaky hand was "Ralph Jamieson."

"I guess that just about finishes Jamieson," said Lee as he put the statement back on the pile of papers.

Tim turned away with a shrug.

"Come out of it, Tim," snapped the older man. "We aren't story book detectives, you know. We're police and we have to arrest the man at whom most of the evidence points. You don't believe he's guilty. Give me another uspect then, or at least give me some proof of Jamieson's innocence."

"But good Lord," demanded the reporter, "you don't really believe the kid's guilty, do you?"

"I'm only a detective, not a human being, in this game, Tim. I have to believe what the evidence says." As an afterthought, he added, "Although I don't like to think we're helping to pin it on the kid through that busybody who just left."

Someone rapped at the door. "Come," called Lee. One of the office clerks entered, and handed Lee a sheaf of papers.

"Grimes' report, sir."

Lee sat down at the desk and skimmed the report hastily. He groaned and glanced at Tim. "A lot of help this is. The place is simply full of fingerprints. They must have had a convention or something in there."

"Isn't that what you expected? I did. You have to remember that everyone had a key which would unlock the office and they all seemed to be in the habit of wandering back and forth, either just visiting or on business."

"Well, let's consider it a minute, anyway," suggested Lee, taking out his pipe and packing tobacco in it. "Grimes has picked out the prints from papers in closed desk drawers that no one but the owner would be apt to touch. When that same print appeared in most abundance on the desk, it seemed to belong to the owner all right."

"Of course if the prints become important as evidence, we'll have to verify them, but we don't want to scare anyone yet. Grimes says that the prints of everybody except Walker can be found in Reeves' office—Wilson, Henderson, the girl, Miss Edwards and Jamieson. But Jamieson's are the most numerous and the freshest."

"Well, that's only natural," argued the reporter. "After all, it was his office too and he was in there yesterday. Why wouldn't his impressions appear all over the place? That would never stand as evidence even if he is guilty."

"It might," disagreed Lee. "With other evidence, it would help. Grimes says the third floor prints don't match any of the others. On the magazine there are a number of blurs. The only impression that's distinct is the one like the others up there."

"What about the doorknob in the washroom?"

Lee shook his head. "Whoever opened that door must have worn gloves, or wiped it clean afterwards. It's perfectly empty. And the knob of the door leading to the hall from the office is so confused you can't get a thing from it."

"That's all?"

"Right."

"Let's move along, then. It's almost three."

Lee struggled into his coat, eyeing Tim curiously. "Are you going to tell me where we're going to look for this gun or am I just trailing along to look pretty?"

"You're always that, my dear," Tim lilted. He dodged the hard heel of the detective's enormous hand and added seriously, "It's only a hunch, inspector. Let's see if it works first. I don't want you laughing at me."

NOTHING FOR AGED HE LIKES ORPHANS

Seventy-Year-Old Benefactor Says Many People Now Old Have Wasted Lives.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 26. (CP)—Millionaire "orphans' friend" J. D. O'Connell, recently visited Edmonton during his annual 50,000-mile tour of all America. He inspected the orphans' institution here which bears his name, and, as well, looked into some of his financial interests, including real estate and wheat lands.

Mr. O'Connell would not give anything to Homes for the Aged, he announced. He himself is a septuagenarian. "Well, they've had their opportunities, and their lives, and apparently wasted them. Oh, I have nothing against the old folks—I'm just a lot more interested in orphans: the boys and girls who, if given a chance to-day, will be the grown people who run this world next year. They've got to have their chance.

"That's my life work—that and fighting the booze traffic. You can't make that too strong; the language, I mean. That's the one thing that I'm more interest in that I am even in providing funds for orphans."

SKILL NOT SIZE FOR NEW POLICE

College Men and Trained Mechanics Among Rookie Constables in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26 (CP.)—Montreal's police force was once noted for its burly police officers, but size and strength enough to control a couple of drunken lumberjacks are no longer the prime requisites of a recruit's physical equipment here.

For some time now the police administration has been training a squad of 75 "rookies" who will commence their first tour of duty shortly. Among them are college and high school graduates as well as men who have been employed as machinists, electricians, cab drivers, chauffeurs and in other occupations.

These new recruits, who are known as the "$20-a-month" constables from the initial amount they are to receive as guardians of the peace, are being drilled in politeness and courtesy to the general public. They are required to speak both English and French fluently. They have also been taught the fundamentals of law.

To make room for 25 newcomers, 25 regulars will be promoted to the detective bureau, thus allowing the distribution of the new police force throughout the city.

For Saturday, October 27

A particularly pleasant, prosperous progressive day is predicted from a long chain of very interesting planetary configurations. It is a time for pushing toward high goals, ambitions and cherished hopes and wishes, with the assurance of the esteem, support and hearty indorsement of friends, employers and those in position of trust, power and authority in "big business".

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of great opportunity for the attainment of high ambitions and the fulfillment of their fondest hopes and desires. It is a time for applying for the preferment, substantial support and assistance of those in high places in employment.

A child born on this day should be capable, ambitious and should reach high station in life.

In preparation for the centenary of South Australia in 1936, the Government will complete the Parliament House, which was only partially finished when it was built in 1889.

"Now I Feel full of Pep"

That's what women say after they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It tones up the whole system—quiets quivering nerves—gives them the extra energy they need—makes trying times endurable. Read these letters.

"I have more pep since I took your Vegetable Compound. It has regulated me and decreased the pain. Backaches are practically gone. I sleep better and my nerves are improved. A friend of mine is taking it now."—SALLY BROWN, Box 352, Dundas, Ontario.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound just as the directions say. I am getting back my strength. My nerves are better, I eat well and have more pep."—MRS. WALSELYN MARKOWSKY, ROSTHERN, SASKATCHEWAN.

"Every month I suffered and I was nervous and weak. I bought one bottle of your Vegetable Compound and got relief right away. I feel much stronger now. I am better able to do my housework and I am not so nervous."—MRS. KARL SCHMULAND, Fenwood, Saskatchewan.

Bennett Is Mum After His Return From Rideau Hall

Prime Minister Bennett Pays Visit To Governor-General During Session Of Federal Cabinet—Has Nothing To Give To The Press.

RESIGNATION OF HON. HARRY STEVENS PRECIPITATED TWO CABINET MEETINGS

Rumors Around Parliament Hill Say That Split Has Taken Place In The Cabinet And Mr. Stevens May Carry Some Of The Ministers.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The expected statement which earlier in the day the prime minister said would be issued relative to the resignation of Hon. H. H. Stevens, former minister of Trade and Commerce, did not materialize early this afternoon.

Mr. Bennett proceeded to Government House shortly after one o'clock when he conferred with the Governor General. Returning at 1:30 the prime minister re-entered the Privy Council chamber. Meanwhile a number of ministers had left. Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes Minister of National Health, Murray MacLaren, Minister of the Interior, T. G. Murphy and Minister of Public Works H. A. Stewart vacated the Council Chamber in the premier's absence.

"I suppose you have all written your stories," he commented jocularly to newspapermen. He was assured that that was not so.

"Well, it's no use waiting," said the prime minister "I have nothing to give you at the moment."

Two Meetings

The resignation of Hon. H. H. Stevens precipitated two cabinet meetings, as well as the hurried visit of Mr. Bennett to Government House. Cabinet was summoned first at 10 o'clock in the morning, and sat for over an hour. Then the ministers left for their offices, only to be recalled at noon. It was from the second meeting that the Prime Minister emerged announcing that he must see the Governor General.

While Mr. Stevens issued statements outlining his position, the prime minister declined repeatedly to say anything. Rumors were thrown about parliament hill that a split had taken place in the cabinet, and that Mr. Stevens might carry some of the ministers with him. These rumors were without official foundation.

STEVENS WRONG MEMBER CLAIMS

As Chairman of Mass Buying He Was Not Impartial E. A. Peck Maintains.

NOT JOIN THE C.C.F.

"The Hon. Mr. Stevens was certainly in the wrong," E. A. Peck, K.C., Conservative Member of Parliament for West Peterborough, said to-lay in a comment on the forced resignation of the Minister of Trade and Commerce from the cabinet and the chairmanship of the Mass Buying and Price Spreads Commission.

"The chairman of such a commission must preserve the same impartiality and act with the same discretion as a judge on the bench," Mr Peck said. "In commenting on personalities and the evidenece involved in the investigation before the completion of the investigation, he did not act impartially."

The significance of the affair is simply that the Hon. Stshremfw—be dropped from the cabinet and the chairmanship of the commission, the member said. No action to force him out of the Conservative party is suggested and it is unlikely his differences with the party heads will extend that far, he commented.

Not Join C C F

Mr. Peck scouted the suggestion that the resigned minister will seek the leadership of the C.C.F. His views and policies have nothing in common with the C.C.F. platform, he remarked.

"Stevens has been too extreme on the employers during the investigations," Mr. Peck concluded. "He has overlooked the severe competition which the employers have been forced to meet. To meet the competition of Japanese goods made by workers willing to accept 50 cents a day, they are forced to pay low wages."

Vermilyea Remanded Week, Murder Charge

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 27 (C.P.).—Harold W. Vermilyea appeared before Magistrate Butler, K.C., to-day in the judges' chambers and was remanded one week on a charge of murder. The proceedings took about two minutes of the court's time. A large crowd gathered at the police station and also at the court house, but jail officials circumverted any commotion by holding the court in the chambers.

Shot Sister Says Lad Upon Father's Order

LAUREL, Miss., Oct. 27 (AP)—A 13-year-old boy's confession that his father made him take a shotgun and kill his 15-year-old sister, was under study by authorities today.

The boy, Kermie Jackson, was said by County Attorney J. L. Thompson, of Jasper County, to have confessed that he killed his sister, Hester Jackson, at the direction of his father and also wrote a "suicide" note which his father dictated.

"It's a lie!"

The father, son, mother and an older son are being held in different jails charged with murder in connection with the girl's death.

Australian General Lloyd George's Choice

LONDON, October 27 (C.P. Cable). — The late Sir John Monash, Australian General of Jewish descent, was the man who Lloyd-George was told was the only General on the British side who could have successfully replaced the late Field-Marshal Earl Haig as Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in 1918.

It was recalled that the late General Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian Corps, and General Jan Smuts of South Africa were both civilian soldiers at the outbreak of war.

Lloyd-George himself however, to-day revealed, after much inquiry, that the General he referred to was Sir John Monash.

LYNCHERS TAKE GRIM VENGEANCE ON NEGRO KILLER

LATER HANGED IN TOWN.

Throng of Thousands Wait in Vain to See Committee Perform Killing.

MARIANNA, Fla., Oct. 27 (AP)—The body of Claude Neal, negro, mutilated and shot, was brought into Marianna last night by a small crowd of men and strung from a tree on the courthouse lawn.

The group of men said the body had been found lying in front of the home of George Cannidy, father of Lola Cannidy, whom the negro was charged with having ravished and murdered.

The body indicating, observers said, that the negro had been dead since about 10 o'clock. It was believed he had been killed by a mob that spirited him away from a Brewton, Ala., jail, during the night and the body later placed near the Cannidy residence.

In addition to bullet holes and knife wounds the body appeared badly mutilated.

Crowd Waits at Home

A crowd, numbering at times into the thousands, had waited near the Cannidy home to see the negro lynched after word came from the mob that he would be turned over to the Cannidy family to do with as they wished and later be killed at a pig-pen where the girl was attacked and slain.

A group of men who said they were the "Lynch Committee of Six" earlier said that they feared someone would be injured if the negro was brought in front of the crowd and were awaiting for it to disperse.

The committee said the negro was alive and unharmed in a nearby woods, but the body indicated he had been slain before midnight.

Reports were said the negro was killed on the banks of the Chipola River. He was shot and mulated and then dragged behind an automobile several miles to the Cannidy home, where more shots were poured into the body and it was further mutilated.

RADIO OWNERS FACE CHARGES

Fourteen Local Owners Must Appear in Police Court.

INFORMATIONS SWORN.

Police Court proceedings were instituted this morning by an inspector of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, against fourteen local persons who are alleged to have operated radio receiving sets without a license.

Informations charging the offences were sworn before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C., by Inspector N. Nason of Toronto. John R. Corkery, is acting for the Department. Summonses were made returnable for November 2nd.

Pointing out that all operators of radio receiving sets are required to take out a $2 license issued by the Department, which may be obtained frotm the Post Office or from most radio dealers, the inspector told The Examiner that a number of canvassers working under authority of the Department were making a systematic check-up in this city.

While he alleged that the fourteen prosecutions in the present instance were against persons who had refused to take out licenses after having first been warned, the inspector stated that the check-up was still proceeding. Persons operating radios without license, he urged, would be well advised to take licenses out without delay. The penalty for failure to comply with the regulations in this respect he said, renders offenders liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars.

HON. HENRY ROBERT STEVENS

Had No Knowledge Famous Pamphlet Going To Public

Hon. H. H. Stevens Discusses "Famous Pamphlet" — Members Of Government Talked Freely To Press About Cabinet Meeting He Charges.

ABSOLUTELY DENIES PREJUDICING CASE NO PERSON OR FIRM FACING CHARGE.

Unable To Get Whole-Hearted Support From Government In Mass Buying Probe, Hence He Tendered His Resignation, Former Minister Claims.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—(CP)—Breaking silence for the first time on his position in the cabinet, Hon. H. H. Stevens stirred Canadian politics by announcing his resignation from the government.

His resignation not only is from his post as Minister of Trade and Commerce but also as chairman of the price spreads and Mass Buying probe. Mr. Stevens will retain his membership in the Conservative party and continue to sit in the Commons for East Kootenay, B.C.

Two statements were issued by the retiring minister. The first dealt specifically with his resignation. The second strikes out at criticisms of the conduct of the Price Spreads and Mass Buying inquiry.

His resignation was placed in the hands of Premier R. B. Bennett at noon yesterday. "Up to the moment I have heard nothing from him and therefore will not discuss the letter accompanying the resignation but content myself with a mere statement that I tendered my resignation as a minister of the Crown and as chairman of the Price Spreads and Mass Buying Commission," Mr. Stevens said.

Distorted View

A much distorted view of the situation and in a way which did not fairly interpret his position had been given freely to the press by "some other member of Mr. Bennett's government" of what had transpired at cabinet meeting this week, remarked Mr. Stevens.

He sets out the facts, regarding the now famous Price Spreads pamphlet dated July 27.

LAWYER RAISES KNOTTY POINT

Argues That Client Cannot Be Convicted as Third Offender.

AMENDED STATUTE.

Despite the fact that members of the police department were engaged overnight in staging a big social event, leaving the city to be policed by "specials"—or may be because of it, the cells remained empty at the lock-up this morning, and the magistrate found himself with a minimum of business to deal with.

The case against a local man, who appeared on remand charged as a third offender with driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated was further postponed for a week.

The defendant who was originally charged over a month ago has already pleaded guilty to the offence, but an interesting technical point was raised by his counsel Emmett F. Sheehy, which has required that the magistrate withhold sentence pending his consideration of the point raised.

Mr. Sheehy is contending that as the section under which his client was formerly twice convicted had been repealed, he could not be sentenced as a third offender under the amended statute to which the charge relates.

Battle-Royal Among Federal Cabinet Ministers Ousts Trade Department Head For Speeches On Mass Buying—Judicial Traditions Violated.

MINISTER COULD HAVE STAYED BUT DECLINED TO ACCEPT VIEW OF PRIME MINISTER BENNETT

Probe Chairman Said To Have Been Alone In His Stand Utterances Require No Apology—May Head New Radical Party Ottawa Hears.

OTTAWA, October 27 (C.P.). — Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and his Cabinet colleagues moved quickly to-day to clear up the situation resulting from the resignation of Minister of Trade and Commerce H. H. Stevens.

The Cabinet held a meeting this morning and dispersed. A second meeting was called for 12.30, and Mr. Bennett went off to Rideau Hall to confer with the Earl of Bessborough, the Governor-General, to whom all resignations must be submitted and who makes all appointments on the advice of the Prime Minister. Mr. Bennett promised a statement this afternoon.

Creating Canada's biggest political sensation since the Cabinet crisis of 1926, Mr. Stevens announced to-day he had tendered his resignation to Premier R. B. Bennett, but had had no reply. A flood of speculation at once arose over the consequences of this Act.

Difficulties Predicted.

Word that the position of Mr. Stevens was discussed at Cabinet meetings yesterday and the day before came as a surprise. Difficulties had been freely predicted following the publication of the now famous Stevens pamphlet on the disclosures in the price spreads investigation. But as the months passed by, no action was taken, and Mr. Stevens annouced the inquiry would proceed next week, some quarters took it for granted the storm had passed over.

A statement from the Prime Minister was eagerly awaited in political circles in the Capital, as all across Canada speculation arose as to the future of Mr Stevens, who announced he would retain his seat in the House of Commons. He also declared he would continue as a Conservative.

The intense public interest aroused by the disclosures at the Stevens probe as the thing that charged the not unusual incident of a minister resigning because of a cabinet disagreement with political dynamite. A wide publication of the famous pamphlet despite its official suppression had paved the way by bringing Mr. Stevens and his work forcibly before the public.

Only B. C. Cabinet Member

The question of who will succeed Mr. Stevens in the cabinet is one which must be settled shortly. His resignation deprives British Columbia of its representative and if possible a man from that province will be chosen. Grote Stirling, a member for Yale is mentioned as a likely minister but whether he would take over the Trade and Commerce department is more doubtful.

In the interval it is expected Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, will be acting minister. Dr. Manion has been absent from his office owing to illness but is returning to work on Monday.

In announcing his resignation Mr. Stevens complained bitterly about the disclosure of proceedings at cabinet meetings yesterday. He charged some unnamed members of the government with talking to the press but insisted he would still adhere to his oath of secrecy. While he claimed newspaper accounts of the cabinet meeting were distorted he declined to reveal what took pace.

Refuted Some Charge

He did, however, set out to refute some of the charges levelled against him. He had not, he said, prejudiced the inquiry by condemning certain firms and individuals. The inquiry was not into a charge against any firm or persons but an inquiry into a business system. The methods certain firms used in doing business were brought out and discussed but they were not condemned.

Without attempting to place responsibility for the circulation of the Steven's pamphlet of last July he insisted he intended it solely for the private use of members of the Conservative study club. He had refused a request from some members for copies for general circulation.

Until this week Mr. Stevens insisted he had not had a word or a line from the Prime Minister about the matter except a five-minute telephone conversation when he was in Winnipeg just after the pamphet came out. At that time, he said, Mr. Bennett seemed satisfied with his explanation.

Declaring his position had become intolerable the minister said no good could be served by his remaining on the Commission when he did not have the full support of the government.

The Stevens investigation was one of the issues in the recent by-elections when Mr. Stevens took one stump for the government. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the opposition, said Mr. Stevens should have resigned his opposition and that Mr. Bennett should have insisted on this. He charged Mr. Stevens with making an improper judgment on the inquiry before it was completed.

No Intention of Quitting

The announcement is held as evidence that Mr. Stevens had no intention of relinquishing the Commission chairmanship at that time. But until this week he had not seen Mr. Bennett since the pamphlet incident and there had been no cabinet meeting attended by both. The Prime Minister was in Europe and England for nearly two months, returning late last week.

Dated July 27, the Stevens pamphlet—containing the text of a speech delivered by the minister before the study club of Conservative Members of Parliament—was issued in 3,000 copies. A few days later copies were available in considerable numbers. Mr. Stevens was in the West at that time.

Prime Minister Bennett instructed that the pamphlet be suppressed and no more copies went out. But those already in circulation were reprinted and became available to the public. Exception was taken to the pamphlet on the grounds it contained remarks which should not have been made public by a member of a commission which had not completed its inquiry.

First Elected in 1911.

He was first elected to Parliament in the reciprocity election of 1911. He was returned in 1917 and at each succeeding general election until his temporary retirement Mr. Stevens was Minister of Trade and

Vermilyea Inquest Adjourned Until April, 1935

CROWN REQUEST MADE TO AVOID ANY PREJUDICE

Nine Witnesses Are Heard at Belleville Inquiry Into Hatchet Murder.

VERDICT IN APRIL.

Neighbor Tells of Hearing Groan and Discovering Victim's Body.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 27. — Concluding the hearing of evidence in the inquest last night into the death of Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea, who was killed by blows from a lather's hatchet on the night of October 4, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan requested and received an adjournment until the second week of April, 1935. The request came as a distinct surprise to the crowded court room and witnesses in the case.

Crown Attorney Donnan, explaining the rather unusual procedure of adjourning an inquest for such a length of time, stated the only reason for so doing was that the case against the accused man, Harold W. Vermilyea, son of the dead woman, might be prejudiced if the jury brought in its verdict now.

"It is the common practice to adjourn the inquest from week to week," he stated. "We are not doing that because it means a lot of trouble and bother, but by the middle of next April the murder trial should be over, and the coroner' jury will then be able to give an intelligent verdict without doing the accused man any harm."

Mrs. Vermilyea was found dying near the homeof her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Faulkner, wife of Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario minister of health. The hatchet was found near the scene of the crime by police.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN AND CROP

ORIGIN UNKNOWN.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—eHaring a muffled explosion in his barn, Fred G. Varty, a Belmont farmer eight miles east of Havelock on the Cordova road, ran to investigate and found the upper floor a mass of flames at 7.30 last night. The large frame structure, one of the finest barns in the township and valued at $4,000, was completely destroyed with an additional loss of three small pigs, 65 tons of hay and 600 bushels of grain.

How the fire originated is unknown. Mr. Varty and his son, Golden, were doing the dairy chores in the stable when the sound of the exposion came from above. They got out three horses, a valuable bull, a sow and three pigs, but could save nothing else. A small amount of insurance covered the building, but the crops and contents were uninsured.

The ill-fated barn was built in 1925 to replace one burned to the ground at that time. It had a close escape from destruction by fire on October 2 when sparks from a threshing mill set fire to the barn floor. On that occasion a farm hand noticed the danger and put the small blaze under control before damage was done.

Abitibi Power Report Is Laid Before Hepburn

Royal Commissioners Submit Henry And Senator Meighen Should Have Remained Aloof From Purchase.

INDEMNITY FOR LOSS CLAIMED INEFFECTUAL

$18,000,000.00 Paid For Assets Said Based On Consideration For Bondholders, Not On Value.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—(C. P.)—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn had before him today the report of the Royal Commissioners who conducted an exhaustive inquiry into purchase of the Ontario Power Service Corporation assets by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission and the Ontario government of the former Premier George S. Henry.

After submitting that Mr. Henry and Senator Arthur Meighen, resigned member of the Hydro Commission, should, because of their personal holding of O.P.S.C bonds, have remained aloof from all steps leading to acquisition of the Abitibi Power development, the report declares that idemnity given by the government to the Hydro Commission against loss in the purchase, was ineffectual.

"The indemnity relied on is ineffectual because it creates a liability on the province that cannot be created by order-in-council," says the report, submitted over the names of Mr. Chief Justice L. R. Latchford, of the Ontario Court of Appeal, and Mr. Justice Robert Smith, retired from the Supreme Court of Canada.

"Apart from certain prerogative matters, an Order-in-Council is not effective unless passed under an Act

Faster Way Found to Relieve Headaches

NOW PAIN OFTEN RELIEVED IN MINUTES!

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH — An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point: Wheat, 92c to 94c; oats, 30c to 33c; barley, 43c to 45c; corn, 73c to 75c; rye, 47c to 49c; buckwheat, 40c to 42c; malting barley, 63c to 65c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Violent late rallies that resulted from flurried buying in an oversold market led to gains yesterday for corn, and practically overcame sharp losses in wheat.

The recovery started after wheat and rye had reached a new low price record for the season, influenced by about 3c fall of wheat yesterday ot Liverpool. Augmented buying on downturns in Chicago was attributed largely to the fact that wheat here was off nearly 5c and corn 4c from figures current earlier this week.

Corn closed strong, ⅛c-⅞c above Thursday's finish, May 76¾-⅞c. Wheat irregular, ¼c off to ⅝c up, May 96¼-¼c, Oats at ¼c decline to ⅛c gain, and provisions varying from 7c setback to a rise of 10c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Cheese prices advanced on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday, while butter quotations were slightly easier.

With current receipts in active demand, cheese gained from ⅛ to ⅞ of a cent. No. 1 Ontario White sold at 9¾ cents, colored at 9⅞c, while No. 1 Quebec was 9⅜ cents and colored 9½c a dozen. Receipts were 3,720 boxes.

Fresh No. 1 butter in carlots or less eased ¼ cent at 19½c to 19¾c a pound. To retailers solids were 20½ cents and prints 21 cents a pound. Arrivals were 100 boxes.

Eggs were mainly steady with graded shipments in carlots or less being quoted at 40 to 42 cents for A-large, 37 to 39 cents for A-medium, 30 cents for A-pullets, 22 to 23 cents for B and 19½ to 20 cents a dozen for C Rail receipts were 1,729 cases.

Patatoes were unchanged at 35 to 40 cents for Quebec, 40 to 45c for New Brunswick and 45 to 50 cents for Prince Edward Island per 80-pound bag.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, October 27. — In one of the swiftest reversals of trends seen on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in weeks early losses were replaced by net gains yesterday, as wheat futures prices closed ⅛o to ⅝c higher, October at 76⅛c, December 76⅝c, and May 81⅜c.

The trading picture changed with startling suddenness in the final minutes as futures shot from the session's low points to close at the high for the day. Fifteen minutes before the close, October wheat was trading at 75⅛c; by the final bell that option had gained a full cent to close ⅛c higher.

In trading, a repetition of the past few days, high-grade wheats were again in demand in cash grains, but lightness of offerings restricted sales. Pit trade in coc grains was dull, futures rallying in the late trading.

TRUCK owners who keep cost records know that Chevrolet trucks are economical. Their figures show that Chevrolet trucks can be operated with big loads at a surprisingly low cost, using a minimum of gasoline and oil, and seldom needing repairs. Each year, Chevrolet endeavors to improve the efficiency, dependability and economy of its trucks for the benefit of its owners. As a result, the 1934 line of Chevrolet trucks has already won high praise from experienced operators who vouch for its low operating cost and hauling capacity. See these big, strongly built trucks at your first opportunity. They offer you the proved economy of six-cylinder, overhead-valve design, increased in efficiency by numerous improvements. Their low prices enable you to replace obsolete units at once, with substantial savings on your current hauling expense.

The House Was Filled With the Odour of the Ointment

(St. John 12:3.)

By REV. E. R. JAMES

St. John's Church, Peterborough.

A BEAUTIFUL story of a woman's love and devotion. Yet how many of you have read this story and stopped at this extraordinary yet natural statement of the writer, "The house was filled with the odour of the ointment." If you have done so, it is because your mind and spirit is something like that of St. John, who was a mystic and looked upon all life and its acts as sacramental, that is, having an inward and spiritual meaning. In striving to interpret this beautiful phrase we must remember the statement of that great Christian Father, Origen, that only those who have lain on the breast of the Lord Jesus can rightly interpret the writings of this Apostle of love.

It was in the upper room, the guest chamber, where Mary anointed the feet of the Lord with the ointment of spikenard, very costly, and wiped his feet with her hair. She sensed his death and knew that shortly His enemies would pour out upon His devoted Head the venom of their hatred and malice. She felt she was not worthy to anoint His Head with her precious ointment but only His feet. It was for Him she poured out her ointment, unbound her hair, a shameful act for a Hebrew woman, and wiped His feet with her hair. But she could not prevent the odour spreading till it filled the whole house.

I see a woman working in that kitchen washing the pots and pans amid the steam and odours of the cooking. Suddenly she lifts her head and inhaling with pleasure exclaims, "What a sweet smell? I have never smelt anything like it before." All the workers stopped and inhaled that sweet odour, for they will never smell anything like it again. Ordinary people do not waste precious ointment that the people downstairs may be refreshed by it.

It typifies the odour of a Christian character, its sweetness, its attractiveness, its fragrance. What does your maid think of your religion? Many a pastor's eyes would be opened if he heard the opinion of your maid who works in your home. The odour of a Christian character must fill the house, if it is of the right quality. What do your work people, the men and women who work for you in shop or office, think of your religion? Is it fragrant with honesty and right dealing with the weak ones of the earth? This is the acid test.

Again the odour filled the house because it was very costly, very precious. What a lesson for us. The Christian character in its essence is very costly, very precious, for it is the very life of Christ Himself, His body, His blood. It is no easy thing to reproduce that character, but it is worth all the pain, all the trouble, all the mistakes, all the tears of penitence to reveal something of His sweetness, His gentleness, His patience, His humility to our fellows.

Still more, the odour of the ointment fills the house very quietly. Your Christian character will make no noise. 'His voice shall not be heard in the street," saith an ancient prophet. It will impress others of its reality by its sweetness and its fragrance. What is your religion costing you? Mary had nothing to do with the ointment spreading through the whole house. It spread because of its quality and its lavish expenditure upon the Lord Christ. Even so when you offer yourself, your soul, mind and body to the Lord Christ and He dwells in you, then naturally there goes forth through you from Him the fragrance and the sweet smelling savour, which men recognize as very costly, very precious, and which you know is God in you, revealing Himself through you. It will make you very humble, you will be willing to take the lowest seat, to hide your face in your hands, because you have been privileged to look upon something of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Then when you go hence and are no more seen your friends will glorify God for your beautiful character and will say that your name is as ointment poured forth in as much as the house was filled with the odour of the ointment. "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift."

Prudence, frugality and good management are excellent artists for mending bad times.

FREE WILL

By DEAN O'SULLIVAN

A gentleman once remarked to the writer: "As I understand it, the trinity in man consists of the body, the soul and the mind; but I cannot see what difference there is between the soul and the mind." The speaker's conception of the trinity in man is an evidence of the vague ideas that are entertained on this subject. How man was made to the image of the Trinity was explained in a former paper. The latter part of the gentleman's remark, however, calls for a word of explanation.

The faculties of the soul, it is true, are distinct from its essence, but in popular parlance they are often identified with it. By a figure of speech known as metonymy, whereby one of the chief characteristics of an object is put for the object itself, the soul is often referred to as the mind or the intellect. Witness the expressions: "Good for mind and body," "a sane mind in a sound body." The other two higher powers of the soul are very closely allied with the intelligence. The intellectual memory is not a faculty distinct from the intellect, but is the intellect itself, conscious of ideas that it conceived in the past. The free will is called the rational appetite, for it reaches out after those things which the intellect discerns to be good. As it is the faculty which makes man a responsible being, accountable for his actions before God and his fellow-man, it presents a subject worthy of our serious consideration.

We are all aware that we have desires, desires for material things and immaterial things, for the things that are seen and those that are not seen. But a desire is not volition. We can say to a desire, "no" or "yes"; and the arbiter which decides is our free will. Every man desires happiness and all will to be happy, but all do not will the necessary means to happiness. The man who steals does not do so in order to injure his neighbor, but to enrich himself. Man does not drink to excess for the purpose of injuring his health and offending God, but for the passing pleasure he finds in the cup. There are those who contend that man's will is wholly subservient to environment and hereditary tendencies. There are, of course, various influences which sway the will one way or another, and, in the case of certain criminals and weak-minded persons, these influences may invariably determine the course of action that will be taken; but the same is not true of the normal people. We are each of us conscious that in a given case we are free to elect what we shall do, notwithstanding the considerations pro and con which are brought to bear upon us. Two examples will illustrate this.

While I am cudgelling my brains over this matter, a friend phones me an invitation to go out hunting. The allurements are very great, for he assures me that he actually knows where there is a covey of partridges, and I do enjoy tramping through the woods with their odor of Autumn leaves. On the other hand, there is work to be done which my judgment tells me I should not postpone. Who will say that I am not free to decide one way or the other?

Take another case of a different nature. A man sees another drop his purse. He picks it up and finds that there is one hundred dollars in it. His sense of duty and his fear of committing sin urge him to restore that purse to the owner, while on the other hand the evil spirit suggests to him that no one saw him take the purse and that that hundred dollars would purchase a lot of pleasure. He decides, we will say, to keep the purse. He thus uses his free will to commit a mortal sin by breaking a commandment in a grave matter and by choosing the lesser good in place of that which his conscience tells him would promote his real happiness here and hereafter.

The universal concensus of mankind proves that our wills are free; for the people praise us when we do good and condemn us when we do evil. This would be unreasonable if we were not free agents. The State punishes for infringement of its laws, which presupposes the responsibility of the law-breaker. For the Christian the fact that God has promised rewards and punishments is sufficient proof that we are free to make our acts worthy of the one or deserving of the other. Moreover, the fact that God foresees, or rather sees, for to God all things are present, what we shall do in a given case, in no way interferes with our free choice. It sometimes happens that by force or constraint we are prevented from doing what we will to do, or obliged to do the contrary of what our conscience tells us we should do, but so long as the will does not give consent no sin is reputed to us. Our wills are always free, albeit we may be impeded in the performance of what we will. As the Scripture puts it, there is placed before us life and death, and we are free to choose which we will.

Children before they come to the use of reason, do not exercise free will, though they possess it potentially. They are guided by impulses. These impulses should be restrained by the parents, by means of rewards and punishments. It is true that the child is incapable of sin; but it is also true that if it is not corrected these unrestrained impulses are apt to sway the will in later years against the dictates of faith and reason.

Once the child becomes responsible for its acts the grace of God, received through prayer and the sacraments, begins to operate in its soul, enlightening its intelligence and strengthening its will. How the economy of God's grace harmonizes with the upbuilding of the supernatural life within us, I will discuss next week.

Your Problems

Religious and Social Questions Answered By DR. WYLIE CLARK

How can one keep the command: "To pray without ceasing."

If a man prayed once or twice each day, it could be said of him that he prayed without ceasing — he would have the prayer habit.

Dr. Wylie Clark

There is, however, a deeper sense in which we can fulfil the command. If we pray as we ought, then all our living and working will be in harmony with the desire of our prayers and there will be a continuous connection making the one the outcome of the other. This is the secret of nearness to God.

The lack of moral fibre is the cause of most of us yielding to temptations. We fall short of turning away from what tempts us because we are not fortified in resisting powers. Choice of evil is often choosing the road of least resistance. We do not want to be vicious; we are simply yielders, having no firm grip on the good.

I am sorely afraid that the best that the best of us could do would be a poor effort in the eyes of the Almighty. The words of Psalmist would come true: "He that sits in the heavens will laugh."

Only an ignorant person can be flattered and we cannot charge God with ignorance.

Worship as offered by some may be the uttering of meaningless words or the assuming of an attitude, but neither of these is worship.

Is it a good definition of religion to say, it is an appendage to life?—P.G.

It is no definition at all. Religion is no appendage to life. It is life itself. There are forms of religion which seem appendages. We assume them at will, but real religion is part of ourselves. It is as much ourselves as our blood. It dominates our thinking and living. Any religion which does not do this is not a religion, but something which we mistake for religion.

BORN AGAIN.

Lakefield, Oct, 15, 1934.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Reading the question in "Your Problems" column, "What is your idea of being born again?" I beg to be allowed to give an explanation of that question which was given to me years ago.

Before there can be a birth in the physical world there must be a seed planted in receptive ground. In the spiritual world the seed is the word of God (Luke 8-11), and God's word tells us, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God" (I. John 5-1). Therefore, when we believe with a receptive and earnest heart and mind that "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life," and consecrate our lives to His service we are born again.

With all due apology to Dr. Clarke, I am

Yours respectfully,
A BELIEVER.

The Christian's Standard of Life — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Ephesians 4:17-5:21.

Copyright, 1934, by Central Press Association, Inc.

Sometime in the year 62, St. Paul wrote from his prison in Rome to the Christians in the church he had established at Ephesus some years before. In this letter he wrote first of the Christian doctrines or teachings and then of the kind of lives Christians should live.

Paul urges us to put off lying, anger, theft, filthy conversation and the like and to put on truthfulness, righteous anger, industry, benevolence, kindness. All this they were to learn from Christ, "if ye have heard him and were taught in him, even as truth is in Jesus".

These standards Paul urges will not rob our lives of joy but rather set us "speaking one to another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody with your heart to the Lord; giving thanks always for all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Paul urged the benefits of temperance saying, "Be ye not foolish but understand what the will of the Lord is." And be not drunken with wine, wherein is riot, but be filled with the Spirit."

ABUSING A GOOD THING.

A speech made by Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Provincial Minister of Health, recently on the indigent patient problem furnished much food for thought on the part of hospital managements, municipal authorities and the public generally.

Hospital care for those who cannot afford to pay for it has always been a problem even in prosperous times, and naturally its seriousness is aggrevated in days like these when thousands of citizens are without employment and regular incomes.

To furnish hospitalization for these victims of the depression is necessarily an expensive operation, and it is not surprising to learn from the lips of the Minister of Health that the annual cost to the municipalities of Ontario is $4,500,000 and to the Provincial Government.

It is startling, however, to learn from Dr. Faulkner that indigent patients are on the average being kept in general hospitals throughout the province twice as long as patients who pay their own way.

No one will quarrel with the expense involved in providing needed hospital care for those who cannot afford to pay for it, but if the condition mentioned by the Minister of Health is general the taxpayers of the province are being called upon to contribute far more than is really required to give the necessary hospital treatment for indigents.

If they are lingering in hospital long after they have become convalescent and much longer than they would stay if they had to pay the bill out of their own pockets, there is obvious need of dealing promptly with such a situation.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

Some time ago The Examiner referred to an experiment conducted early last spring by the Burgess Battery Company of Freeport, Ill., which paid its employees in silver dollars so that the ultimate destination of this money could be traced and spending habits checked.

The Standard Oil Company of Ohio has been carrying out a similar " flight of money" test on a much larger scale.

It paid its employees in nine Ohio towns with 70,000 silver "cart wheels", silver money being used because it could be most easily traced.

The aid of stores, banks and business organizations was solicited and the employees themselves were asked to list their silver dollar expenditures during a two week period.

The results are most interesting.

Figures from eight of the nine communities which run in size from Marion with 31,000 population to Toledo with 290,000 people show that nearly 26 per cent of the test payrolls went for food. Rent was the next highest item with 15.1 per cent. followed by 14.7 per cent. for insurance, savings, building and loan and finance company payments. Department came in for a 10.1 per cent. slice, utilities and fuel 7.4 per cent. and auto supplies and accessories 7 per cent. Furniture got a 3.5 per cent. portion, doctors and dairies 2.5 per cent., drug stores 1.5 per cent. and theatres 1 per cent.

There were wide variations. In Mansfield with a population of 33,000 only 18 per cent. of the purse went for food while in Portsmouth, 42,000 population showed 27 per cent. devoted to food. Rent ranged from 9.5 per cent. in Marion to 20.5 per cent. in Portsmouth.

Contrary to expectation expenses in the larger cities were not greater than in the smaller ones, in fact in the two biggest cities, savings including insurance and building and loan and finance companies were much above the average.

UP TO EACH MUNICIPALITY.

Premier Hepburn has made it clear that there will be no province-wide referendum on the sale of beer by the glass.

"That's that and that's final," was the emphatic declaration of the premier, and he added that critics of the new system may as well stop their agitating against the beverage rooms and start working to hold a plebiscite in their own municipality.

Those who are opposed to sale of beer by the glass —and their number is steadily increasing—know now where they stand.

Their activities should be directed to correcting the conditions in their own community rather than aimed at converting the Government to a change of heart in regard to a referendum on the question.

Each municipality will have to deal with the problem on its own account, and if there are enough people opposed to the system each municipality has the power to oust the beverage rooms.

Now would seem to be the time for this community to decide whether we care to continue a system that will divert that much money from the channels of ordinary trade and waste it on what, to use the most flattering term, can be described as a harmful luxury.

At present there are seven licensed beverage rooms in this city.

Whether all these authorities will be renewed at the end of this month is information that only the Liquor Control Commissioner possesses, but it is an open secret that plans are on foot for the establishment of a beverage room in Ashburnham and these places may be operating on a wider front than ever during the next fiscal year.

There is also likely to be a demand from the hotelkeepers for the privilege of selling wine by the glass in beverage rooms, a concession that if granted would send drunkenness to a new high.

These are facts that deserve the serious consideration of the whole community. If was are satisfied with present conditions and future prospects, nothing need to be done; on the other hand, if we are convinced that the beverage room is an institution that is serving no useful purpose, the remedy is in our own hands, and as a community we will have no right to complain if we take no steps to deal with the situation.

THERE IS A DIFFERENCE.

The impression that Hon. David Croll decided upon his plan of transferring the prisoners from the Victoria Industrial School at Mimico to the Bowmanville Training School for boys without giving the matter much thought is strengthened by the comments the Minister makes in regard to the new policy.

Mr. Croll is quoted as saying there is no difference between the boys at the two institutions except that sons of wealthy parents go to Bowmanville and poor boys to Mimico.

That statement shows that the Welfare Minister has only a very hazy notion of the purpose and status of the Bowmanville school, which was founded, as The Examiner has already pointed out, to keep boys from becoming juvenile delinquents, not to punish them after they have been convicted of offences against the law.

Judge H. S. Mott, of the Toronto Juvenile Court, and probably Canada's outstanding authority on juvenile problems, ridicules the idea that wealth or political influence plays any part in determining where boys are to be sent and sets the Min ister right as to the difference between the two schools.

"The Bowmanville S ...ol," says Judge Mott, "is not a penal institution, and a considerable number of boys go there voluntarilly for treatment who have done nothing wrong, but who require treatment to remedy defects of personality or character. In cases where boys have committed minor offences for the first time the magistrate may refer them to a clinic headed by a psychiatrist. If this clinic decides that the boy has a normal intelligence quotient and is in other ways suitable to the school, it may recommend that the boy be admitted. An application for admission under an indenture is made on request of service clubs, the parents or school officials.

"On the other hands, boys that are convicted of an offence are sent to the Mimico school by the magistrates. They are sent there for detention. There is a distinct difference between the two classes."

How, in the face of this expert testimony and of similar statements from every one who is familiar with the situation, Mr. Croll can maintain that the delinquents sent to Mimico for a jail term are on the same footing as the inmates of the Bowmanville Training School is indeed puzzling.

To completely alter the character of the Bowmanville institution by using it as part of the provincial prison system is, The Examiner submits, a breach of trust; the province accepted a gift of land from an individual Rotarian and large cash subscriptions from service clubs of the province on the understanding that the Bowmanville Training School would be operated for the benefit of wayward boys who could be reclaimed by the proper treatment.

The Government has no moral right to change the status of the school and make it a junior provincial jail unless it is prepared to refund to the service clubs the amount of their subscriptions, and to pay for the land donated on an understanding that is now being violated.

Of course, the Rotarians and Kiwanians are not desirous of getting their money back, but they are genuinely concerned with seeing that it is utilized for the purpose for which it was given.

Every Rotary Club and every Kiwanis Club in the province which made donations to the school have a right to make a vigorous protest to the Government and should exercise that right without delay.

RELIEF COSTS.

The Ontario Government does not intend to pay 100 per cent. of the cost of relief in Chatham. An intimation to this effect was received from Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Public Welfare.

In other words, Chatham is not on the list of preferred cities in this regard. Only in cities where councils have been wasteful and incompetent to such an extent that the municipality has had to declare itself in default will the Government extend this special privilege of relief from unemployment costs. Those cities in which councils have been careful and efficient during the recent period of stress will be compelled to pay a proportion of the cost of their own relief which unfortunately is still necessary owing to lack of employment—and moreover, they will also be required to pay for a proportionate cost of the relief in cities which are in default, as a result of the Government assuming all the cost in such instances.

In other words, there is apparently a penalty upon efficient government, careful administration and economy of management—under such conditions a municipality must expect less consideration from the Government than is shown towards municipalities which are wasteful, extravagant and incompetent.

It doesn't seem fair, but at present we don't see how much can be done about it. We should be thankful that we are not in default as are some other cities, it is true, but our good financial condition is due to real sacrifices made by the taxpayers and a system of municipal government which guards against incompetence in management. If we can establish such a record surely it can be done in other cities if common sense and good judgment is employed. We are admonished to help our neighbors, but when they have an equal chance with us to make good, and they fail, and are relieved of paying their bills while we have to pay ours and part of theirs, too, it is to say the least discouraging, especially when the fight towards prosperity is still something which has to be endured.—Chatham News.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

While hotelmen are complaining about the cost of beverage room licenses more than one community is about to decide that it does not want beverage rooms at any price.

With the hearing of old age pension applications added to their other duties, Ontario judges and magistrates will have no reason to complain of unemployment.

For a matter that was supposed to have been taken out of politics the beer question seems to be getting an undue amount of prominence.

Changes in the administration of the Old Age Pension Act will save money for both the province and the municipalities, and should be an improvement over the present arrangements.

There is this to be said to the credit of Premier Hepburn and his Cabinet: They are at least men of action who are not allowing the grass to grow under their feet.

Women are usually more interested in what a bride is married in than what she's married to.—Guelph Mercury.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHODO

JAPAN
WAR AS A CRIME AGAINST CIVILIZATION

In more than one civilized nation war has not been relegated to the criminal category. That is where it belongs. In Japan the founders of Protestant Christianity did not teach that war is a crime against civilization. Nor did they teach that war mindedness if not neutralized by the spirit of peace will bring the world tottering down to ruin.

Failing to protest, at the right time, against war as a crime, the church in Japan is now at a disadvantage. War, as a crime, is a Christian conviction. It is a religious conviction as truly as is the wrong of murder. Some convictions come in a flash. Training and growth in Christian experience have contributed to a sensitive and instant decision. When the Bible attitude to war has not been clearly taught to youth, resistance for a time is sure to be weak. To dwell upon the physical advantages to be acquired from military training, is the defence of its advocates. The moral feature must not be overlooked. In all moral issues convictions are always present. A moral conviction is final. Its decision about the abomination of military training in a nation's schools is a challenge. Convictions are without hesitation.

In Japan the church, the Christian churches affect only in a minor way the attitude of the people towards war. The wars of Japan in recent times have been glamorously spectacularly successful. To convince the Japs that poverty and ignorance, and disease are not the dangers that threaten the wefare of the nations but, that it is war and intense nationalism, will take long time. In Japan there is no mighty movement against war. This aspect indicates the war threat of the Sun-Rise kingdom.

RUSSIA

On November 15, 1917, immediately after the seizure of power the working class of the Soviet Union, led by the Bolshevik party, adopted the famous decree on the rights of nationalities. The decree was signed by Lenin. He was the chairman of the Council of People's Commissar of Nationalities. In the decree was this provision, "All that is living and vital in the Soviet Union has been freed from hateful bondage. Now there remain only the nationalities of Russia, who have suffered and still suffer oppression and tyranny. Their freedom must immediately be worked for and must be brought about resolutely and irrevocably. The hideous policy of rousing hatred among nationalities and races must not nor shall ever return. From now on, it shall be replaced by the policy of voluntary and honest unions of nations.

The fundamental principles with regard to national minorities laid down by the decree and consistently adhered to by the Soviet Union were:

First—The equality and sovereignity of all peoples in the Soviet Union.

Second—The right of the peoples in the Soviet Union to self determination, including separation and the formation and independent states.

Third—The removal of every and any national and national-religious privilege and restriction.

Fourth—The free development of the national minorities and ethnic groups living within the confines of Russia.

Seventeen years of Soviet rule have finally solved the eternal Jewish question. Let The Examiner reader make his own comment.

MASSES OF JAPANESE

In cultivating the peace sentiment in Japan the church has the masses against such procedure. The Nipponese have been a warlike people for hundreds of years. And modern Japan is in a fighting mood. Not because Japan has a grudge against any other nation. Economic conditions are the incentive. If Japan had the field and garden and mineral resources to meet the mounting population for a hundred years there would be little incentive to build up a strong army and navy. The wails of her empire are bursting from the inside. She simply must have more room. A large slice of China is her objective. If Europe should be torn by another war Japan would not be a party to it. What she wants she would fight for. China would be at her mercy.

No other nation in the world would find such instant response to the summons to take up arms as would Japan. The masses of the people are not awake to the futility of war as a method of solving the economic and other national problems of our modern world. Only in a lesser degree are the masses of people in any other nation. Many take the position that war is undesirable but inevitable. And because inevitable the wise policy is to get ready. Just as long as nations strain themselves to prepare for war there will be no settled peace. Neither will there be any stable economic conditions. The world market will be as uncertain as the peace sentiment.

To the modern church in our western nations must be traced the blame for the lethargic position, that we do not dwell in Utopia. Hence the indifferent attitude towards the whole war problem. For three years this writer has been attending church services in the various denominations in Peterborough and not even once have we heard a sermon, approaching the attitude of Jesus, towards taking up the sword.

A Thought

GLADNESS

To be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars; to be satisfied with your possessions but not contented with yourself until you have made the best of them; to despise nothing in the world except falsehood and meanness, and to fear nothing except cowardice; to be governed by your administrations rather than by your disgusts; to covet nothing that is your neighbor's except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manners; to think seldom of your enemies, often to your friend, and every day of Christ; and to spend as much time as you can with body and with spirit, in God's out-of-doors—these are the guideposts on the footpath to peace.—Henry Van Dyke.

Lakefield Member Gives Splendid Talk

YOUNG'S POINT, Oct. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Thursday evening, October 18th, the Young's Point Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Thomas Davis, with all the members present. Mrs. A. Davis of Lakefield was present and gave an interesting talk on different activities of the Institute, which was much enjoyed by the ladies. A paper on storing vegetables was given by Mrs. Max Kidd, also a very interesting paper on storing vegetables was given by Mrs. William Bullock. Mrs. Thomas Davis and Miss J. Kearney were appointed delegates to attend the convention in Toronto. Following the adjournment, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

FIRST WHITE CHILD ON P.E.I.

On this date (October 27) in 1764 the first white child was born on what is now Prince Edward Island, but which was then St. John's Island. He was John Frederick Holland, son of the famous Samuel Holland, soldier and surveyor. His parents' marriage was a romance in itself. Holland had fought beside Wolfe on the Plains of Abraham, and after a return to England had come back to Quebec, where his knowledge of French was of much value to the government. He met and loved Marie Josephte Rolette but the girl's father refused to permit her to marry any one who had fought against the French. They eloped. It is said that they were married by an obscure priest in a suburb of Quebec, who was a sort of a Gretna Green solemnizer of marriage. His marriage was probably perfectly legal, but years afterwards, when the Hollands had a big family, they were married a second time so as to leave no doubt as to the transaction. "St. John's Jack", as the father described the boy in a letter to General Haldimand, was born at Holland's Cove, four miles from Charlottetown, and spent nearly all his life on the island, though making occasional long visits to Quebec and doing his bit in the army. He died at Charlottetown with the rank of colonel. He had six children, three sons and three daughters. One of the boys, Samuel, was killed while fighting in the battle of Chrysler's Farm, near Morrisburg, in 1813. The others founded families which have done things for Canada, and are a credit to the eccentric but brilliant adventurer Samuel the first who was a true Loyalist in all things and in all places.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

WAS I CHEATED?

Just sitting here thinking.... Wondering about that old fellow. ....Trying to make up my mind whether to be angry or humiliated or philosophical about him...Whether to keep the books open for a while or to shut them tight and close the account.

A nice, old fellow came in to see me. Came in two or three times, in fact. Came in to tell me he liked what I wrote and he used to work on a neyspaper, too, and he still did a little corresponding now and then himself....Sort of sweet, old fellow, seemed kind and gentle, without a bit of contrivance or scheming in his heart....Told me about his sickness, told me about the life he'd lived....Pleasant to talk to, that old fellow, and he's the one I can't decide about.

Last time I saw him he told me he was in some temporary trouble. He was living on about 15 cents a day, and he'd had a little sudden expense and had run out of money. And hadn't been doing much eating or smoking. Could I....would it be possible....would I let him have just enough money to carry him until Wednesday? His small pension check as a Spanish-American war veteran would come then.... it always did, without fail....and he'd be on hand that afternoon to pay me back. I could trust him. He wouldn't fail me....I didn't hesitate. (Looking back, I know I didn't because letting him have a dollar seemed as certain as putting it in my own pocket and getting it back again.) I handed over the dollar—and I have not seen him since.

That Wednesday when he promised I'd see him SURE was eight days ago, and that sweet old fellow hasn't come yet....He didn't come and he didn't telephone and I didn't get my dollar back....I don't mind the dollar—well, not so very much—but I don't like the idea of being cheated....Somehow it humiliates me that I shouldn't know more about human nature than not to know he was just telling me a story to get a dollar out of me.... And, besides, he WAS such a nice old man and it seems a pity he should be using his sweetness to help him in cadging money out of people under false pretenses. It doesn't seem right, you know.... I've been cheated before and I didn't mind it so much, but this time I'll confess it hurts and I hate to make up my mind for once and all about it....Lenny, who was sitting at her desk and heard the whole conversation, says he'll be back, she's SURE he'll be back. Just wait and see!....I'm waiting—and I surely do hope she's right.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO MINING

TORONTO, Oct. 27. (CP). — A dull session wound up the week for the mining section of the Toronto exchange, prices ruling barely steady on slow turnover. The senior gold issues were neglected and Noranda gave the base metals poor leadership by sagging 50 cents to 32.50 on fair turnover. Silvers were steady with little trade passing.

McIntyre worked back 75 cents to 41.75, Bralorne weakened 15 cents to 11.85 and Wright Hargreaves eased back 15c to 8.70. Hollinger was unchanged at 19.25 and Pioneer gained 25 to 11.25.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—(CP)—The industrial share market of the Toronto Exchange dragged sluggishly today with the trade confined to a few issues, mainly the two distillery issues, Walker's common and Distillers Seagrams, both holding steady to strong. Imperial Oil was also active but at a slight loss.

Leadership from Wall Street was hardly cheerful and Nickel was about the only member of the interlisted group to hold its ground. Ford 'A' dropped below the 22 mark and C.P.R. dropped a small fraction.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (A.P.). — The fast liquidation of the past two days in the stock market came to a halt to-day and leading issues showed an inclination to dig in around the final levels of the previous session. Trading reverted to extreme dullness, however, the turnover approximating 220,000 shares. The close was slightly irregular.

JONES, WALLER ON DASH HOME

Timor Sea Storm Delays Fliers at Darwin in Race to London.

AIM TO BEAT SCOTT'S TIME.

MELBOURNE, Oct. 27. (AP).—Cathcart Jones and Kenneth Waller, after a speedy flight to Darwin in their return "solo race" to England, where weather-bound in the northern port to-night.

Storms over the dangerous Timor Sea made an immediate crossing too perilous. They expected to take advantage of the first lull, however, but decided to remain at Darwin until Sunday's dawn and the hope of better weather.

The fliers arrived at Darwin at 6.15 p.m. to-day (3:15 a.m. E.S.T.) to complete the second leg of their race flight to England.

They made the 1,1384-mile flight from Charleville in 6¾ hours, averaging 205 miles an hour in their attempt to cut the London to Melbourn time of C. W. A. Scott and T. Campbell Black, who covered the distance in 70 hours, 59 minutes and 50 seconds

Start at Fast Clip

Jones and Waller, who came in fourth in the derby took off from Melbourne at dawn and flew the 787 miles to Charleville at an equal rate of speed. After a 40 minute stop there, they took off for Darwin on the northern coast.

Squadron Leader Malcolm MacGregor of New England landed at Charleville at 3.26 p.m. (12.26 a.m. E.S.T.) on his way to Melbourne, thus the English racers on their trip toward England are passing the still-contending derbyists, going in the opposite direction. Some anxiety had been felt for MacGregor until he appeared at Cloncurry.

John H. Wright, and John Polando left Karachi, India, continuing in the derby. Squadron Leader D. E. Stodart arrived at Koepang. C. J. Melrose arrived at Rambang.

VICTORIA LIBERALS PLANNING RALLY

Premier Hepburn is Expected to Address Meeting on November 15.

Plans for the annual meeting of the Central Ontario Liberal Association at Lindsay, November 15, were discussed by the executive at Lindsay yesterday afternoon.

Hon. Nelson Parliament told The Examiner last night that the business of the convention was scheduled for the afternoon with a banquet in the armouries at night.

Jaes Cox of Trenton has been appointed secretary of the Association temporarily, succeeding Harold Holton of Belleville. It is expected that Premier Hepburn will be present in the evening and other speakers will be Colonel Ralston, W. H. Moore, M.P., and W. A. Fraser, M.P.

Other Liberal activities in the district within the next few weeks include a nominating convention for Durham county at Orono Wednesday, October 31, and a similar convention for Victoria County at Lindsay on November 1. Candidates for the next federal elections will be chosen at both thees meetings.

The executive of the Hastings-Peterborough Liberal Association met at Madoc yesterday to discuss a nominating convention in federal interest at an early date.

Peterborough Liberals are holding their annlad meeting here Monday night in the Canadian Legion hall. W. A. Fraser, M.P., and Nelson Parliament have been invited as speakers for the occasion. John Dewart, first vice-president, will be chairman of the meeting.

Resignation Second Stevens Tendered

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—(C.P.)—Minister of Trade and Commerce H. H. Stevens tendered his resignation last January and withdrew it, the Ottawa Citizen says in a newspage story to-day. It adds Mr. Stevens referred to this in his letter of resignation to Premier Bennett yesterday.

The story follows in part:

"Attached to the resignation of yesterday is one which was submitted to the Premier on January 19 and subsequently withdrawn. On that occasion the Premier had had objection from R. Y. Eaton and also objections to the speech before the Shoe Association having been made without consulting the Cabinet. Mr. Stevens defended his position at some length and incidentally expressed the fear that Mr. Bennett had become so "obessed with international affairs" as not to give proper regard to those of a domestic character."

Eskimo Flier

SEATTLE, October 27 (C.P.).—Three weeks ago John Dull, a 17-year-old Eskimo lad from Bethel, in Northern Alaska, had never talked over a telephone or seen a motion picture or ridden in an elevator. ... ...

Friday he made a solo flight in an airplane after only 1 hour and 26 minutes in the air. Leonard R. Peterson, his instructor, reported.

"He is a 'natural' flier," Peterson said. "His parents sent him down here to learn to fly, and he arrived here three weeks ago. Yesterday he flew alone in my plane. I regard his record as remarkable."

STRIKERS OUST PULP CUTTERS

Raid Bunk House, Chasing All But Three Before Contractor Appears.

FRIGHTEN WOMEN.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.).—With no hope of settlement, Abitibi pulpwood workers' strike was featured to-day by a report from Seline's camp at Magpie Junction that workers were pulled out of their bunks in the middle of the night by strikers and a declaration by Strike Leader G. D. McAdam that the company's statement issued yesterday was "an excuse" to refuse to hear workers.

Attack at Seline's camp, word of which reached the city only last night, is alleged to have taken place Monday night after a group of 20 strike pickets had driven all but three shackers from quarters in Magpie River.

Pickets visited the camp in the afternoon when cutters were all in the bush and frightened women and children and cookery help as they demanded food. They did not wait until the workers returned, but left late in the afternoon. That same night they returned, reinforced by 40 or 50 men from strikers gathered at Hawk Junction and rushed the bunk house at the main camp. The workers were pulled from the bunks and given 15 minutes to leave. Fifteen agreed to go out but the others remained, when the contractor himself appeared on the scene.

Interesting Talk Is Given At Social

Mrs. F. Merritt, Leslie Avenue, entertained twenty of her friends on Wednesday afternoon when she gave an informal address on the principles of the Ancient and Mystic Order of the Rosa Crucis.

Last summer she attended a convention of the order held in California and has become deeply enthused with the Amorc, which is its abbreviated name. As many of her acquaintances are interested, she is giving a series of brief talks.

This week she referred to the founding of the Rosacrutian Order in America by Dr. H. Spencer Lewis and the widespread interest being taken in A.M.O.R.C.. It now has a world membership of 7,000.

This is no religious or sectarian creed, all are working for one aim: the redemption of man from ignorance and for freedom from the enslaving obstables of ill health, misfortune and unhappiness. The symbol of the order is the rose and the cross.

At the conclusion of her talk Mrs. Merritt served dainty refreshments, assisted by Mrs. McFarlane, and a social hour was spent.

Plenty Of Produce On Farmers' Market

There was plenty of produce on the farmers' market this morning. Prices were at the usual range for most things.

Eggs were selling at 35 to 40 cents a dozen, butter was 20 to 22 cents a pound, potatoes 50 and 60 cents a bag, pears 50 cents a basket, Brussels sprouts 2 and 3 quarts for 25 cents, red cabbage 5 cents apiece.

McIntosh Red apples were 50 cents a peck.

Revenues of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway of China have increased 38 per cent in the last year.

Running a first-class football team in England this season costs about $5000 a week.

WHEAT MARKET SEEN IN STATES

Western Press Estimates U.S. Will Buy 25,000,000 Bushels This Year.

EXPORTS MOUNTING.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27.— (C.P.) — The Winnipeg Free Press in its news pages to-day says:

"It is conservatively estimated in grain trade circles here that Canada will dispose of about 25,000,000 bushels of wheat of all kinds in the United States this crop year. The importance of this is that it is a new market for grain that would otherwise remain in Canada.

"Continuance of healthy export trade in Canadian grains to the United States is shown in the September figures obtained from the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. These show that a total of 2,754,562 bushels of Canadian wheat valued at $2,829,994 entered during the month and paid a duty ofn 42 cents a bushel. This was for human consumption.

"A further quantity of 24,021 bushels of wheat unfit for human consumption but valued at $20,907 paid a duty of 10 cents a bushel, while wheat admitted duty free under bond for milling and export amounted to 921,823 bushels valued at $842,944, similarly, 164,991 bushels were admitted for milling and re-export to Cuba, making a total for re-export of 986,814 bushels valuel at $770,346.

"Figures furnished by the statistician to the Canadian Board of Grain Commissioners place the total importation of Canadian amber Durum wheat since August 1 at 4,717,865 bushels. Of this amount $3,822,769 bushels went to Duluth and 896,136 to Buffalo."

STEVENS CREATES GREATEST CRISIS

Commerce in the Meighen Cabinet of 1921 and held the portfolio of Customs and Excise in the short-lived Conservative administration of 1926.

The Mail and Empire made a prediction to-day regarding Mr. Stevens' political future. A report given credence, said the Toronto paper, is that once he has formally resigned he intended to seek his political future with the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

While Mr. Stevens was in the West, just following the publication of his pamphlet, he was reported to have conferred with J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, said The Mail and Empire. "At that time the Hon. T. A. Crerar, former Liberal Cabinet Minister, was also mentioned as a party to the conversations.

"Participation of the Minister of Trade and Commerce in an organized Radical Party is, accordingly, regarded by political observers here as a likely development of the immediate future."

Neustadt Heimwehr Repulsed In Attack

VIENNA, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Travellers arriving from Wiener Neustadt in Lower Australia, said to-day Heimwehr forces stationed there in a surprise attack yesterday afternoon occupied police barracks and imprisoned police officials.

The Federal army was called out and authorities succeeded in recapturing the barracks and freeing the officials. All Heimwehr troops participating in the raid were arrested.

Inquiries to the Wiener Neustadt Gendarmerie headquarters failed to elicit details from officials, who referred all questions to the Austrian Government's official news agency which, however, failed to report a raid.

MEISNER GETS SETBACK FIGHTING DEPORTATION

DETROIT, Oct 27 (C.P.).—David Meisner, wanted in Canada in connection with the kidnapping of John Labatt, London, Ont., brewer, suffered another setback to-day in his efforts to evade deportation. Meisner appeared before Federal Judge Ernest O'Brien and asked fo a writ compelling the Immigration Department should show cause why deportation proceedings should not be set aside. Judge O'Brien, however, dismissed his plea.

Meisner will now return to the county jail pending his attorney's appeal on to-day's dismissal.

HAD NO KNOWLEDGE FAMOUS PAMPHLET GOING TO PUBLIC

In the statement, Mr. Stevens says:

Up to the present, Saturday morning, I have declined to make any statement about my position in the cabinet or to comment in any way upon what happened at the cabinet meeting on Thursday last. Some other member of Mr. Bennett's government, however, has chosen to freely inform the public through the columns of the press of what occurred in that cabinet meeting giving, however, a much distorted view of the situation and in a way which does not fairly interpret my position.

Resigned On Friday At Noon

I still decline to discuss what happened on that occasion. I do, however, now feel that I am at liberty, in the light of the very dire public discussion of the matter and very general announcements that I have resigned, to state that on Friday midday, to be precise at a quarter to one, I despatched to the prime minister my resignation.

Up to the moment I have heard nothing from him and therefore will not discuss the letter accompanying the resignation but content myself with a mere statement that I tendered my resignation as a minister of the crown and as chairman of the Price Spreads and Mass Buying commission.

Facts Regarding Famous Pamphlet

It is represented in the columns of the press, obviously based upon authority of the government, that the issue was precipitated by a criticism of my utterances in the now famous pamphlet. I shall briefly state once again the facts regarding that pamphlet. First: It was a report of a speech delivered privately to a study club consisting of some fifty or more Conservative members of parliament. In speaking to them I spoke with absolute frankness but extemporaneously.

It is the regular practice of that club to take detailed notes of all speeches delivered before it which are invariably mimeographed and distributed to the members of the club. This practice precisely was followed in the case of my speech. However, certain members did me the honor of requesting a large number of copies for general distribution. This I declined to do. There was, however, submitted to me in the usual course a copy of the notes of the speech and I made certain eliminations and minor corrections, understanding that the speech would be then mimeographed for distribution among the members of the club.

I am making no complaint or seeking to place responsibility on anyone else when I say I had no knowledge that it was to be distributed publicly.

The next thing I heard was on my arrival in Winnipeg on Aug. 5, when I was called on the long distance telephone by the Prime Minister. This is no secret by the way because it was blazoned on the front pages of all the press of Canada. I shall not say at the moment precisely what the conversation was. I will, however, say that at its conclusion, and it lasted I think less than five minutes, the Prime Minister seeme to be perfectly satified with the explanation I made which was much along the lines I have above indicated.

From that hour until Thursday afternoon last I did not hear a single word from the Prime Minister, either verbally or in writing on the subject nor did any member of the government as far as I can recall discuss the subject with me. As to what happened on Thursday I am silent. I will, however, make a brief reply to certain statements that have been made in the public press purporting to emanate from the government.

(1). "That I have prejudged the case in many of my public utterances in connection with the price spreads and mass buying committee and commission." I absolutely repudiate this statement. Those who are making it fail to make this important discrimination: That this investigation is into an economic system, namely the merchandising system of this country. The order of reference is clear on that point and all the commission and the committee is concerned in is the practices, the trends and the methods in connection with the merchandising of goods in this country.

(2). No person or firm is brought before the committee charged with any offence, only for the purpose of giving information regarding the methods employed by them in the conduct of their business or to explain the capital structure of their institution.

When I spoke in Toronto on Jan. 15 I dealt in a broad, general way with the practices of departmental stores and mentioned no names. Immediately the T. Eaton Company and the Robert Simpson Company bitterly complained that I had not been fair in not making clear to whom I referred. Subsequently in a number of cases when I discussed the subject before prominent audiences of business men I did name firms whose case I used to illustrate the point I was dealing with and now they complain that this course is unfair.

The next point complained of as far as I can see is "that the firms that I have dealt with have not had the opportunity to state their case."

Opportunity to Present Case.

The unfairness is that the Robert Simpson Company in particular and the T. Eaton Campany had no opportunity to state their case before the committee of the. House. of Commons. This is absolutely false. I instructed the counsel to invite them to be heard before the committee rose, which he did verbally. I later, together with counsel for the committee, drafted a letter to one and a telegram to the other company, notifying, them that the committee would likely close within a week so that if they desired we would make full opportunity for them to state their case... In neither instance did either of these firms accept the invitation. .. ...

A further statement made is that by specifying certain firms and condemning the practices commonly followed by them I have "placed all business concerns in a bad light before the public." This again I absolutely deny. In nearly every speech I have made, certainly on many, many occasions, I have paid high tribute to the businessmen of Canada. I have said that on the whole they are highly reputable, honest and desirous of playing the game fairly with their employees and with the public.

Indifferent to Fate of Workers.

I have stated, however, that certain large institutions seem to be callously indifferent to the welfare and the fate of their employees or those employed in industaries affected by their mass buying practices and it has been on behalf of this class that I have sought by my public utterances to enlist public support to any action which the Government might ultimately choose to adopt to rectify and remedy these things.

To show the necessity of this I may say I have never addressed a meeting as far as I can recall on this subject that many people did not state to me that they were unaware of the conditions prevailing in certain industries in this country.

I am called in question because, as stated above, I have done an alleged injustice to certain large business concerns. I deny that any injustice has been done. If these firms do not address themselves to the correction of the economic and social abuses that arise out of their methods of business then they must take full responsibility for the results socially and economically which obtain.

Senseless Quibble.

I am further called in question for having declared as a Minister of the Crown that I would not rest until I had done my utmost to correct these economic and social abuses, and that in doing this I have been giving utterance to public policy. To my mind this is a senseless quibble. Surely anyone with a sense of responsibility has a perfect right to publicly state that they intend to finish a task which had been allotted to them, and that is all that I have done.

I recognize, however, that no man however willing he may be, can possibly carry on as chairman of a commission where the Government of which he is also a member does not give him whole-hearted support. When the proper time comes, when this matter is discussed in the House, I shall be prepared to go into these various questions in greater detail. In the neantime, however, I am still awaiting an answer from the Prime Minister to the resignation that I have placed in his hands, and this statement is made in answer to a public discussion by some members of the Government of what occurred in the Cabinet meeting on Thursday last.

Toronto Merchants Take Odd Way Of Making Protest

Residents of a Toronto shopping district became so incensed with the way in which fruit dealers displayed their wares on the sidewalks in front of their stores that all business dealers tried the same stunt in order to attract enough attention from the police to protest. The layout shows a man selling hats at ridiculous prices; a barber fulfilling his tonsorial duties on the street. BELOW, an undertaker also displays his wares. Meanwhile, with grim sense of humor of justice all offending storkeepers who go over the line designated by city by-laws are being summoned. They asked for it!

ANNUAL MEETING IS HELD BY BY BOY SCOUT'S ASSOCIATION

H. C. Sootheran Retires as President After 3 Successive Years of Office.

YEAR OF PROGESS.

After three successive years as head of Peterborough Boy Scouts Association—during which time the organization has made marked progress—H. C. Sootheran relinquished office at the annual meeting last night.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, long an ardent supporter of scouting, was installed as president for the ensuing year, while the following officers were also elected: Vice-presidents—Gordon R. Langley and Dr. J. F. O'Brien; secretary-treasurer, L. A. Grant; district commissioner, John T. Hornsby; assistant commissioner, Albert Hope; executive committee, H. C. Sootheran, Rev. J. C. Moloney and Claude H. Rogers, with three scoutmasters to be appointed.

The meeting, held in scout headquarters in the city hall building, was fully representative of each of the scout troops and wolf cub packs in the Association, and in addition to over one hundred boys present, along with the officers, there were some parents as interested spectators and also members of the various troop committees.

Encouraging Reports.

Reports presented indicated that the Association was in a healthy financial condition and that considerable expansion and progress had been attained. The big district jamboree at Nassau and the district camp at Young's Point during the past summer were cited as outstanding accomplishments of the year. As evidence of expansion, it was reported that the Rover Crew organized by Gordon R. Langley, was making rapid strides forward, and that in addition to formation of a new cub pack in connection with St. Andrew's Church, two new scout troops are now in course of organization at Sacred Heart and St. George's Churches.

During the course of his remarks, District Commissioner Hornsby paid tribute to the officers of the various troops in acknowledging "any success in scouting this year is entirely due to the hard work contributed by the scoutmasters. We have an admirable group of scout officers and I wish to express my appreciation and thanks to them."

Visit of Chief Scout.

He also urged that the local Association should plan to send a strong representation of scouts to Toronto in May next on the occasion of the visit to the provincial capital of Lord Robert Baden Powell, founder of the movement.

Reports were tendered by the following officers: Rover Leader Gordon Langley; Scoutmaster George Groombridge, 1st St. John's; S. M. Henry Nokes, 2nd Armour; Rev. J. L. Hughes 3rd St. George's; S. M. Michael Crough, 4th Sacred Heart; S. M. Everett Peters, 5th All Saints'; S. M. Ernest Wolff, 6th St. Peter's; S. M. Victor Millard, 8th St. Andrew's; Cubmaster William Coleman, 1st St. John's; Cubmaster Fred Williams, 5th All Saints'; and Cubmaster Jack McKone, 8th St. Andrew's.

Favour Another Camp.

In addition to presenting a report on the activities of his own troop, Scoutmaster Wolff commented on the district camp of which he had charge, and the meeting expressed not only its appreciation of his services in that regard, but voted solidly in favour of another camp next summer along the same lines.

Without exception the reports tendered by the troop and pack officers were both illuminating and business like, reflected a general spirit of growing enthusiasm that was commented upon by the Rev. Dr. V. J. Masterson.

Motions of thanks were extended to Mr. Sootheran for the able manner in which he conducted the affairs of the Association during his three years as president, and also to Mr. Langley for the splendid contribution he has made to local scouting.

Representing Canada.

The secretary was authorized on behalf of the association to send a letter of greeting to Rover Scout John Langley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon R. Langley, who is at present on his way to Australia as the sole representative of Canadian Scouts at the Jamboree being held at Melbourne in connection with the centennial celebrations of that city.

Prior to start of business, St. John's Wolf Cub Pack, under leadership of Cubmaster Coleman, staged a "going up" ceremony when Cub Castle, one of their number, was promoted to membership in the scout brotherhood. St. Andrew's Cubs showed the building of the Union Jack, while the combined scout troops held a knot-tying contest that was won by the 1st Troop.

Rover Scouts Henry Nokes and Peter Dominick discussed the habits of an oyster in an amusing comic dialogue.

BROODING MONTHS.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 27. — (A.P.).—Edward Hartl, 37, former German soldier in the Great War, who allegedly shot and wounded a former sweetheart and her chauffeur friend from Montreal, died at the Hartford Hospital early to-day of self-inflicted bullet wounds.

Hartl, a machinist in an aviation plant here, fired six shots at Miss Anna Kramer, 26, a maid, and her friend, Gaston Marshal, 31, in the kitchen of Mrs. George E. Kohn's home in West Hartford last night, and then put a bullet through his brain.

Miss Kramer's condition was described as still critical to-day at the Hartford Hospital, where all three victims were taken following the shooting. Marshal, wounded in the right hand and thigh, is least seriously injured.

4 Shots Effective.

Four of Hartl's bullets took effect, two of them entering Miss Kramer's neck and back, following an argument between the mechanic and Marshal, in which the latter arose from the kitchen table, where he was seated with the young woman, and struck Hartl in the face.

Hartl, who came to the house soon after the arrival of Mr. Marshal for a week's visit, fled immediately after the shooting, but two hours later he was found shot through the temple in the cellar of the home of Mrs. A. Peter Schaff, Hartford. Mrs. Schaff was a mutual friend of Hartl and Miss Kramer.

The shooting culminated two months or more of brooding by Hartl, police said, who was turned down by Miss Kramer after she met Marshal during a visit to Groton last summer.

The former war veteran was said to have served an ultimatum on his one time fiancee, threatening to shoot both her and himself, if she did not marry him.

In Hart's pocket, when he was found, was a note in German script: "Annie's other man punched my face."

Honor Memory Of Old Peterboro' Boy One Of The Greatest Eye Specialists

MONTREAL, Oct. 27 (Special to Examiner)—A former Peterborough grammar school boy who became one of the world's most famous eye specialists was commemorated when to-day a bust of the late Dr. Frank Buller, the first modern ophthalmologist to establish himself in Canada, was unveiled in the Royal Victoria Hospital. The bust is the work of Dr. Tait Mackenzie, eminent Canadian sculptor, Dr. W. Gordon M. Byers spoke on Dr. Buller's life and work.

Dr. Frank Buller was born on May 4, 1844, on a farm near Cobourg, Ontario, the fifth child of Charles George Buller and of Frances E. Boucher. At the age of 12 the boy moved with his family to Iowa. Four years later he was taken into the home of his mother's brother, Judge Boucher, at Peterboough, Ontario. Here he attended grammar school, and during the summer holidays learned dispensing and "made himself generally useful" in the offices of Dr. Burnham, a leading practitioner of his day. He graduated from Rolfe's Medical School, Toronto in 1868, and, after spending a year in general practice in Michigan to add to his funds, proceeded to Europe for special work in connection with the eye and ear. Altogether he spent about seven years abroad studying in Germany with the illustrious von Graefe, Virchow, Helmholtz and in England under Bowman, Critchett and Hutchinson. Having passed the examination for membership in the Royal College of Surgeons, Dr. Buller was appointed house-surgeon at the Royal London (Moorfield's) Ophthalmic Hospital.

In 1876 he began practice in Montreal. He established the first ophthalmic clinic at the Montreal General Hospital. The value of his clinical teaching and the important of ophthalmology as a branch of the medical curriculum were recognized by an appointment to the first chair of ophthalmology of McGill University, which was founded in 1883. In 1885, Dr. Buller resigned his position at the General Hospital to take charge of the ophthalmic clinic at the New Royal Victoria Hospital, and this post, with the appointment of the university and numerous charitable institutions, he held until his death, on October 1905, from pernicious anaemia.

Dr. Buller was not only the first modern ophthalmologist to establish himself in Canada but he had the whole country to himself, and soon acquired a practice and a reputation that could hardly again fall to the lot of any man in the Dominion.

URGES CYCLES BE LICENSED

POLICE COMMISSION.

"Sooner or later we will have to consider the licensing of bicycles in this city," Chief Constable Samuel Newhall told the Police Commission yesterday afternoon.

The Chief Constable, who has long advocated such a measure, pointed out that Peterborough was one of the last cities of any size in the province, that had not adopted some system of bicycle licensing. The matter, he said, was discussed at the recent police chiefs' convention, and it was generally considered that licensing was an effective means of checking bicycle thefts, as all machines without license plates would come under police surveillance. There would be a nominal fee of probably twenty-five cents a year, including cost of the license plate, he suggested.

Members of the Commission, who sat under the chairmanship of Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., did not apparently consider the bicycle licensing proposals as constituting an urgent question. There was no discussion of the matter, and no action taken. After the matter had been called to their notice, the members of the commission proceeded with other business.

A request from the Canadian Legion for permission to sell poppies on the streets on November 10, was unanimously granted.

No action was taken in regard to an application by Abraham Cherney for a second hand dealers license, the matter having been unfavourably reported upon by the chief constable.

New Typewriter.

The magistrate and chief were authorized to purchase a new typewriter for use by the police department, the old machine needing replacement after nineteen years of continuous use. One typewriter company in the city, submitted a proposal in which they undertook to supply a new typewriter for $150 taking into account the discount and allowance for the old machine.

Dr. J. M. O'Brien submitted an account for $150 for professional services, which was referred to the city solicitor and chief constable, who were requested to report on the matter at a subsequent meeting.

The doctor is claiming the amount for a trepanning operation performed in 1932 on a transient, who was injured in a brawl with some of his companions.

Magistrate Langley thought the matter opened up an important point as to the liability of the municipality, who find themselves with an injured man on their hands after he is arrested by the police authorities.

The secretary said he understood the doctor had first attended the injured man at the police station at the request of the police and that he had subsequently been ordered to hospital where an operation was performed. He pointed out that had the man been a resident of the city, there would have been no question as to the city's liability.

ROAD CAMPS CLOSED.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LINDSAY, Oct. 27.—E. E. McElwain, of Gelert, has been appointed Registrar of Deeds for the County of Haliburton. He will succeed D. C. Brown, of Minden, who held the office for five years. Mr. McElwain, who conducted a general store at Gelert, was a former school teacher. He is also a prominent Orangeman, having been County Orange Master and County Secretary for a number of years. He has been a frequent contributor to the Toronto press on the Separate School question.

In connection with the erection of the new skating rink, thirty-two members of the Kiwanis Club at the recent luncheon assumed the responsibility for the excavation of thirty-two pits for the cement piers which will carry the building. Yesterday morning an inspection was made of the site and every hole was dug and ready for the cement.

The road camps on the Minden-Dorset highway have been closed. There are miles of fine roads practically completed throughout the north country.

Provincial Constable Evans, of Madoc, has been appointed Provincial Constable for the County of Haliburton. He will have his headquarters at Minden.

E. Speers, town, appeared before Police Magistrate Gee yesterday and was charged with failure to pay alimony to his wife, from whom he had been separated for some time. Several years ago divorce was refused this couple, the mother receiving the custody of the child and the father being ordered to pay alimony for wife and child. The case was adjourned for one week. Stafford Teatro, town, was also fined $10.00 and costs for having liquor illegally.

75 BELOW ZERO JUST LAST KICK OF OLD WINTER

NO SOCIAL LIFE.

Cold? Boy-o-boy, was it cold! The occasional chill of approaching winter is in the Peterborough air these days but it doesn't worry Stuart Cotton, son of Alderman Bob Cotton. He just thinks of the months he spent up on Great Bear Lake—within a stone's throw of the Arctic Circle—this summer and feels grateful for the warm Ontario sun.

It was March 23 when he flew into the newly-founded sub-Arctic center, engaged to work for a silver mining company on the Camsell River. At McMurray, the hopping-off place 300 miles above Edmonton, the pilot told him winter was having its last kick up on Great Bear Lake. He figured it would still be a bit chilly up there but envisioned nothing worse than some brisk March winds.

"I'll never forget the night I landed there. The thermometer on the airplane said 75 degrees below zero and it felt twice as cold. There was no hotel or shelter of any kind to go to so I shoved my sleeping-bag into a hole in a snow bank for my first night's sleep. It was certainly not winter's last kick — it was a convulsion."

The long Arctic twilight still hovered over Great Bear Lake. The sun had not yet risen from its long sojourn below the southern horizon although, each day, it was now rising nearer the rim in its path through southern heavens and the twilight was brightening perceptibly. The break-up was to begin soon but there was no sign of it as yet. Ice on the Camsell river was eighteen feet thick!

Cold Very Intense

The cold before the break-up at Great Bear Lake is so intense that pilots flying in from McMurray and other points to the south do not dare stop their motors before heading back for the return trip, Stew declares. Once a motor is allowed to stop, the lubricating oil must be removed from the base in its semi-congealed form and heated over a fire in a large iron cauldron before being put back. The motor itself is warmed up by the application of blow torches. To get the heavy coatings of ice off the wings, two men swing a long, heavy rope in the manner of a skipping rope, allowing it to beat against the ice-coated surfaces. If this were not done, the machine would be too heavy to rise.

"I did you have any trouble getting in your sleep when the sun came up to stay?"

"I'll say I did. I couldn't get used to the bright daylight when I figured it should be dark in the middle of the night. But nobody sleeps as much during the daylight season up there. You don't need so much sleep. When the sun goes down and stays down in the Fall, however, you fell like sleeping all the time."

When the sun came up and the Spring break-up began in April and May, the snow went away very quickly, Stew said. Due to the dryness of the atmosphere the snow is of a powdery nature and disappears quickly with the first suggestion of warmth. However, the ice is more tardy. The lakes do not open up until well into July. After surface water will form over the immense thickness of ice on the lakes and freeze, leaving a mirror-smooth surface. It is then, believe it or not, that they have to put mocasains on the dogs' feet to prevent them being cut to pieces in their contact with the ice, he relates.

No Social Life

"How's the social life up there?"

"Social life?" Stew laughs at the suggestion of such a thing. "There are not more than 150 or 200 whites in the whole Cameron Bay ares. After work there's nothing to do but sit in the cabins and talk or play cards. There might be dancing if there were women but there were only two white women I knew of." The two women were wives of mining men, he explained.

He reported that Indians were in greater abundance than whites in the area. The Indians—Dog-ribs, Yellow Knifes, Slavyes and Bear Indians, he said. Their main sustenance is raw meat—generally caribou and moose.

Communication with the outside world is maintained through the frequent airplane connections with McMurray and Edmonton, he continued. There are no radio sets since it costs about $45 to charge a storage battery. Gasoline for the engines which run the generator sets costs $3 a gallon as it must be brought in by air.

"Prices of other commodities are plenty high, also," Stew reports. "Butter costs from $1.30 to $1.50 a pound, cigarettes three cents each, and so on."

And not the smallest expense is the passenger fare in and out of Great Bear Lake, he revealed. It cost him just about $500 on the return trip home. But, now that the winter darkness has once again descended over the northern region maybe he thinks it was worth it.

WOMAN FACING LIFE SENTENCE

May Escape With 5-15 Years If Only Held Accessory to Keating Kidnapping.

IN BUFFALO CASE.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 26 (AP)—Facing a penalty of from 20 years to life if convicted, Miss Alice Zimmerman, 35, of Lockport, to-day was under indictment for kidnapping and accessory to the kidnapping of Theodore B. Keating, prominent business man.

The indictments were returned by the October Grand Jury yesterday, the first time in Erie County the New York State version of the Lindbergh Kidnapping Law had been invoked.

Indicted with Miss Zimmerman were Bruno Salek and Stanley Pluzdriak, youths now in Sing Sing awaiting execution for the murder of Police Lieut. George L. Uhl, on August 30.

Accused of participating in the actual kidnapping of Keating, on August 31, Miss Zimmerman faces life imprisonment if convicted. On the other count, that of being an accessory, the penalty is 5 to 15 years.

Keating was allegedly kidnapped while driving his car by Salek and Pluzdriak as they sought to flee the city to escape capture as Uhl's slayers.

BACK IN HER CAGE.

CLARINDA, Ia., October 27 (C.P.). — Maggie was given the "welcome home" sign after five weeks of freedom during which she cut all sorts of monkey shines. She even prowled a house or two, helping herself to some choice pastries. Maggie was shaken out of a tree and returned to her owner, Bill Dalrymple. Yes, Maggie is a monkey.

STRICT CONTROL IS REQUIRED IN INSURANCE FOR UNEMPLOYED UNDERWRITER KIWANIS ARE TOLD

JOINT MEETING.

A warning to Canadians to avoid the mistakes which other countries have made in legislating systems of health and unemployment insurance was handed out by Hugh H. Wolfenden of Toronto, internationally-known actuary, in an address to the Kiwanis Club and the Peterborough Life Underwriters' Association at a banquet meeting last night. The mistakes can be avoided and highly practical schemes developed, he declared.

Brought to the city by the Kiwanis, more than forty members of the two organizations with additional guests, heard the talk. Mr. Wolfenden is distinguished as the holder of the highest qualification of his profession in Great Britain and North America. He is a fellow of the Institute of Actuaries in Great Britain, a fellow of the Actuarial Society of America and a fellow of the Royal Statistical Society as well as enjoying membership in the American Statistical Association and the American Mathematical Society. For a number of years he has served as a member of the Council of the Actuarial Society of America.

The high attainments of Mr. Wolfenden as an actuary and an independent investigator led to his being selected by the Canadian Life Insurance Officers a few years ago to make a comprehensive survey of social insurance. Since that experience, he has written two books: "The Real Meaning of Social Insurance" and "Unemployment Funds—A Survey and Proposal".

Strict Control.

"I am going to discuss health insurance as insurance and not as a blanket, uncontrolled system of protection," he said. "If a health insurance scheme is to be practical, it must be bound by the same strict regulations and delimitations which govern our other forms of insurance."

He pointed out that health insurance is a form of protection falling in the category of social insurance. As a general rule, what forms of social insurance exist to-day are government sponsored. Already Canada has a number of forms of social insurance, among which are such systems as the Old Age Pensions plan and the Workmen's Compensation scheme, he said.

"We could do no better than introduce in Canada Great Britain's health insurance system," he asserted. He explained, however, that the system was introduced in England with less difficulty than it would be introduced here. Already there were many long-established mutual societies giving health insurance service in England, but there are no comparable organizations here.

Speaking of a few of the problems involved in the setting up of health insurance, he mentioned the necessity of foreseeing accurately such developments as a gradually increasing rate-of-sickness claim in relation to the normal expectancy in regard to the rate-of-sickness. In creating the Old Age Pensions system certain natural eventualities were overlooked, he said. Government officials have been surprised and alarmed to observe an unexpected increase in the cost of the Pensions plan, whereas any competent actuary could, with Canada's unusually "young" population in mind, have forewarned the sponsors. The cost of the Old Age Pensions plan will continue to increase for some time to come, Mr. Wolfenden predicted.

Unemployment.

Turning to the matter of unemployment insurance, the speaker said the needs of three main types of unemployed must be met in the scheme—seasonal unemployment, technological unemployment and cyclical or depression unemployment.

The principal need in the insurance scheme covering seasonal unemployment is adjustment of rates to balance seasonal demands on the benefits. He said the extent of technological unemployment—unemployment caused by the displacing of men by machines—is highly exaggerated. The effect of increasing numbers of machines is more the shifting of activities than actual unemployment. This type of unemployment can be controlled somewhat by encouraging workers to maintain a flexibility in their occupational contacts and outlooks, he suggested.

Depression unemployment puts unemployment insurance to its greatest test, Mr. Wolfenden said. The insurance must be designed indefinitely long and heavy strains. No depression unemployment, however, can be a success before the public is educated to the realization that unemployment insurance will solve the depression, he said.

"My talk may contain a note of warning," he concluded. "But it is not a note of opposition. The practicability of health and unemployment insurance is simply a question of fair and reasonable regulation."

Introducing Mr. Wolfenden, Dr. F. C. Neal declared the matters of health and unemployment insurance to be of increasing importance and recommended the speaker as a high authority on the subject.

JOHN P. BOYD IS NOT GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Case Arose Out of the Death of William Warner of Haldimand Township.

BOYD TELLS HIS STORY.

COBOURG, Oct. 27.—John P. Boyd, Oakville bond salesman, was found not guilty by a jury last night of manslaughter and criminal negligence in the death of William Warner, 65, Haldimand township farmer, in a highway accident near Wicklow, east of Grafton, late in the afternoon of March 30.

The jury was out more than two hours, including their supper hour.

R. H. Greer, K.C., and J. Douglas Lucas of Toronto were counsel for the accused, and J. D. Peck of Gananoque was special Crown Prosecutor.

Warner died of internal injuries six hours after he and his two sons were thrown from a wagon in front of the lane at William Turpin's farm by an automobile driven by Mr. Boyd, whose defence was that his brakes failed to work when he applied them. Driving throughout the morning and afternoon on slushy roads and water in the hollow sections had caused the brakes to become wet, and he was unaware of their condition.

Both the wagon and automobile were travelling in a westerly direction up a long slope. Boyd was accompanied by his eight-year-old niece whom he was taking from Belleville to his home. He was about twenty-five feet behind the wagon, and going at a speed of 30 miles an hour, and the left wheels of the wagon were about a foot to the right of the centre tar line when he put on the brakes to swing past the wagon. He said he must have misjudged the distance between his automobile and the wagon at that instant when his brakes failed him.

The reach of the wagon broke, leaving the rear wheels undamaged on the pavement. The single horse ran away with the front wheels, but was quickly overtaken by one of the Warner boys and tied to a post.

Mr. Boyd's Story

Mr. Boyd was the only defence witness.

"I was returning from Gananoque after calling on farmers to sell government bonds. Some of the sideroads were very slushy. I visited my brother in Belleville and left there about 4 p.m.," he testified. On No. 2 Highway sections of the pavement were dry as at the place of this accident, but in the lower stretches there was considerable water. It was driving about 30 or 35 miles an hour. I saw this wagon in front of me and went to turn out. When I put on the brakes I discovered they wouldn't work. The right front fender caught the left rear wheel of the wagon. I stopped the car within a foot or two. The wagon seemed to collapse. The reach gave way and the rear wheels stood on the road while the horse ran off with the front wheels."

Witness said he had no occasion to use the brakes prior to the accident.

"After the traffic officer told me I could go on, I thought of the brakes again about a mile from the accident. I put my foot on but the brakes would not grip. I thought then the brakes must have got wet in low parts of the road east of the accident and on the side roads during the morning."

Mr. Boyd said there were only several small dents on his car after the accident. He frankly admitted that he saw the Warner wagon ahead of him as he approached it and started to turn out.

He stopped his car within a few feet.

Was Not Speeding

Mr. Greer, in addressing the jury, emphasized that there was no evidence of speed, no suggestion of liquor, and none of the elements that imported the background of gross and wanton negligence which required that Mr. Boyd should be punished.

Mr. Justice Jeffrey's charge to the jury explained that the indictment of manslaughter and its secondary alternative of criminal negligence comprehended a grave degree of negligence.

"As in other automobile cases, you are asked to determine whether the negligence by the accused man was of such a nature as to amount to a crime against the State. A mere mistake in judgment is not gross negligence. It is something which may be considered in a civil action where damages are claimed.

Assume, for example, that I know my brakes are out of order, that I drive the car with them in that condition and cause an accident. That would be an example of gross negligence; a man knowing that he is driving a dangerous machine on the highway; but in that case, too, only if the brakes or their operation are the cause of an accident. You have this man's story that his brakes of driving over slushy and wet roads did not operate in the emergency in the manner in which he might reasonably expect them to act.

When questioned by Traffic Officer Spencer at the scene of the accident, the accused, according to the officer, said that he did not apply his brakes hard enough. But, he did mention the brakes to the officer at that time. Mr. Spencer got in the car while it was standing still and pressed the brake pedal down about half way. Don't you think the officer should have put the car under its own motion and tested the brakes on the highway?

The evidence is that the accused relied on the brakes when he was going at 25 or 30 miles an hour and about twenty-five feet behind the wagon, and by his own statement the car's speed had been reduced to about fourteen miles an hour when it struck the rear left wheel.

You may find that he is guilty of manslaughter, or, in the alternative, of criminal negligence; but I must say that you should not find him guilty of criminal negligence unless his conduct in driving his car was wanton, gross and culpable in negligence."

The Jury's Verdict

When the jury came in His Lordship asked the foreman to stand up. "Will you please answer the questions I ask you 'Yes' or 'No'."

"Have you agreed upon your verdict?"

The Foreman—Yes.

"Do you find the accused guilty or not guilty of manslaughter?"

"Not guilty."

"Do you find the accused guilty or not guilty of criminal negligence?"

"Not guilty."

His Lordship—I am much obliged for the care and consideration you have given this case. If it is any consolation to you, and I know this is not the place where I should say anything, but I may say that if I had tried the case without the assistance of a jury I should have arrived at the same conclusion. On the facts as presented, you could not find this man guilty of wanton, gross and culpable negligence."

CROWN REQUEST MADE TO AVOID

At present the 79-year-old woman's son is in county jail here, charged with the murder. He was brought here from Ontario, Calif.

Maid Tells of Caller

Miss Minnie Kelso, maid at Mrs. J. J. Farley's home where Mrs. Vermilyea lived, was the first witness called, she told of a man coming to the door on the evening of Oct. 4 and Mrs. Vermilyea answering. She was unable to see who it was, except that it was a man wearing a light overcoat.

"They were upstairs for about 10 minutes," witness related, "and then they came down. Mrs. Vermilyea went to the living room and told Mrs. Farley she was going out for a few minutes. They went through the office door to the street, and she said nothing about who she was going out with. It was about 20 minutes to 10."

George Gorman, 116 Bridge Street east, had been at the theatre with his wife and was walking home when he saw a man and woman walking quickly on the south side of Bridge Street. He was on the north side.

"I noticed them first because of the way they was walking so fast; then noted the man was on the inside. As they got to Dr. Faulkner's residence, just about opposite us, they cut across the corner of the lawn and were lost to my view. I don't think I had gone another 20 feet before I heard a terrible groan, so terrible it made me stop dead.

"I crossed over the road and saw a car coming fast. I held up my hand, and it stopped. G. B. Smith and W. E. Burrows, both Belleville men, were in it. They got out and the three of us went in the deep shadows to investigate. About 10 or 12 feet from the door of Dr. Faulkner's surgery, we saw what looked like a bundle a few feet off the left side of the sidewalk. Someone lit a match, and we saw it was the body of a woman."

Neighbor Heard Words.

Prof. V. P. Hunt, organist and choirmaster of the Bridge Street Church, and next door neighbor of the Faulkners, told of standing on his lawn just before 10 o'clock on the night of the murder.

"I suddenly heard a sound of blows being struck. There was no light over the Faulkner office door, but naturally the sounds attracted my attention. There were repeated sounds, as though blows were being struck. I couldn't see what was going on, but thought it might have been some men who had come in there and were having a fist fight."

Crown Attorney Donnan: "Did you hear anything said?"

Witness: "Yes. I couldn't say for sure they were the exact words, but I thought I heard a man saying: 'Take that! Take that!' They were angry words."

Mr. Donnan: "Did they sound as though they were spoken by a man in a frenzy?"

Witness: "I couldn't say as to that; whoever was speaking was very angry, I know."

At this point, Mrs. J. A. Faulkner, daughter of the murdered woman, who was summoned as a witness, broke down and was escorted, weeping, from the court room.

When witness resumed his testimony, he declared he saw a man running down the alleyway between the Faulkner and Hunt homes, but he was unable to give any description other than he was sure it was a man.

Heard Something Drop.

"A few minutes later I heard a sound from the rear of the house as though something had been dropped." (It was at the rear that police found the hatchet which they believed was the instrument used by the murderer.)

"I plucked up my courage and went over to where the fight had taken place." Mr. Hunt resumed. "There I saw a body lying on the ground. I couldn't tell if it was a man or a woman. Ithought there wasn't anything I could do so I ran back to my home and telephoned the police. Then I went back outside, and found Mr. Gorman, Mr. Smith and Mr. Burrows already there. I waited until police came and told them what I had seen and heard, and Detective Izard went to the rear and found the hatchet. I presume the falling hatchet was the sound I heard when the man ran around to the rear of the Faulkner house."

Daughter Called

Mrs. (Dr.) J. A. Faulkner, daughter of the murdered woman, and wife of Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health for Ontario, was next called.

"I had been confined to the house through illness during the evening, and was lying in bed reading when I heard a noise, which I can't describe," she said. "I was not alarmed, as many people come to the doctor's office along that walk, but since he was out of town, there was no light on at the time. I opened the east window, which overlooks the lawn and the door of the office, and heard deep, choking breathing. I immediately thought it was just dogs outside the door, and went back to bed.

"A few seconds later I heard voices outside, and I again opened the window and asked what was the matter. They told me a woman was hurt on the lawn, so I went downstairs and opened the door. I could see it was a woman lying on the grass, and I told the men to lower her feet so that she wouldn't choke from the blood which was running down to her face," Mrs. Faulkner told the court.

It was inside the office that Mrs. Faulkner told of recognizing her mother. "Constable Arnott asked for scissors to loosen the bands about the woman's neck and waist," she said, "and I at once recognized mother from the band about her neck."

NOMAD HEALER DRAWS THRONGS TO MANITOBA

Over 10,000 Persons Have Visited "Miracle Man," Dr. Love, in Six Weeks.

CURE PROVES MYSTERY.

WINNIPEG, October 27 (C.P.).—Cold late-October winds rendering stubble-covered Prarlie fields bleak and forbidding have failed to chill the warm trust thousands of maimed and sick have placed in Manitoba's new-acclaimed "miracle man" John Love.

During the past six weeks more than 10,000 persons have journeyed over the rough country road to visit "Dr." Love in his whitewashed log farmhouse at Cloverdale, 25 miles north-west of here. Scores of the stricken people have sworn they were cured of their afflictions by "Dr." Love, whose method of healing remains a mystrey.

Straddling a cross road, the little cluster of houses known as Cloverdale is set down in a desolate stretch of flat country. In the unkempt yard of Dr. Love little knots of people huddled over bonfires yesterday. Sitting or lying on wet boards the crippled folk and their friends talked in subdued tones as the chilly winds whirled across the Prairie.

Anxiety spread over the faces of those waiting as the door of the house opened. None knew just who Mrs. Love would choose to take to her husband next. No order of precedence was recognized though some had been three days— some even spent nights waiting—all of them had hovered around the little farmhouse for hours, at least.

All Manner of Patients.

Her head covered with a bright shawl, an aged Indian woman sat upon an old box while a young lad of eight limped about with his leg in an ill-fitting splint. Presently, one more crippled than the rest was driven to the gateway, and led into the house.

The crowd of curious about the windows grew larger but they saw nothing. A screen shielded the cripple and eventually he came out —still slowly.

Rain poured dow non the waiting throng but no one moved. Several carried gifts for the "healer" with them. He accepts no payment but the offerings of the afflicted he has waited on have almost fileld the damp root house in the yard.

Where the Loves came from or how long they propose staying nobody knows. Reports from Saskatchewan say they lived a rather Nomadic existence there for a time. Other reports mentioned some connected with Toronto's newspaper field—"Dr." Love had been a reporter or something. No authentic report was forthcoming, however and "The Word," as Mr. Love calls himself, sees no reporters and faces no cameras.

Profiteers who sought to sell coffee for 10 cents a cup from a hastily erected stand nearby were quickly ousted by the "medicine man."

ABITIBI POWER REPORT IS LAID

expressly or by implication authorizing what the Order-in-Council prescribed," the report continues. Hence no Order-in-Council passed by the Governor-General in Council or by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council in this province, has any legal effect unless authorized by some statute, or falls within the category of prerogative Orders-in-Council."

Consideration For Bondholders.

The commissioners also charged that the $18,000,000 paid by the province for the power company's assets through an exchange of bonds, of which $20,000,000 par value company bonds were redeemed, was "based on consideration for the bondholders and not on value."

The part played by the then Premier in the negotiations is outlined in the report which says "there was manifestly no ground for Mr. Henry's fear that financial interests might outbid him" in the bond deal and declares Mr. Henry "out of consideration for the bondholders made an offer of 71 for the O.P.S.C. bonds when their value, as estimated by market quotations, before any intimation had been given as to Government intervention, was not higher than 40"

Of Mr. Meighen the Commissioners suggest the decision of the other two Hydro Commissioners probably would have favored purchase of the Abitibi property, but hold that it was improper for him to sit in at the Hydro meetings while the matter was being discussed in view of his personal holdings of $3,000 and holdings of companies in which he was interested, placed as collateral in New York, amounting to more than $170,000 par "

The purchase, however, ". . . was negotiated by Mr. Henry personally in behalf of the government . . . while he himself was holder of $25,000 of these bonds and the insurance company (The North American Life Assurance Company) of which he was a director held $200,000."

Suggestion is made by the report that Mr. Henry should have withdrawn from cabinet council while the matter was being discussed and says Hon. W. H. Price, then Attorney-General who served as acting Premier, "could have been trusted with the negotiations and the decision," with the other ministers.

Mr. Henry's defence that he refrained from disclosing the fact that he personally held bonds in the company whose assets the government was considering acquiring so the other ministers would be left "untrammelled in their judgment" is recalled in the report.

Judgment Liable to be Biased

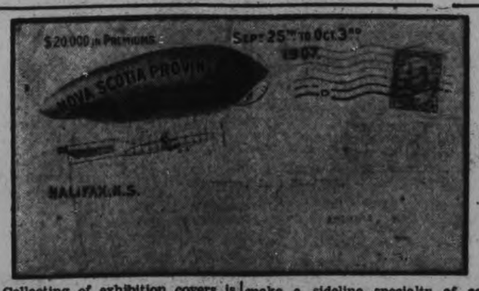
It states, however, he "was premier with the deciding voice in the negotiations and allowed his colleagues to suppose that he himself was exercising his untrammelled judgment. In fact, his judgmemt was liable to be biased in view of the non-disclosure of that interest. The position taken is untenable."

Through Senator Meighen's failure to disclose "to the other two commissioners, the government and the public, "his interest in the bonds, the report says, "he thus was placed in the position as a commissioner of being buyer of these bonds and being a seller of them in his individual capacity and as a director or manager of the company in which he was interested."

The long, involved history of the company, a subsidiary of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, with its subsequent acquisition by the province, are traced in detail in the report, as revealed in the volumnous evidence given during the hearing of the inquiry last July and August. The report makes no recommendations and generally emphasizes important features in a long summation of the evidence.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY



Collecting of exhibition covers is probably one branch of philately that has never occurred to you. The stamp itself is of secondary consideration, it is the cover that counts, the entire envelope, on which has been printed some picture or design with the object of advertising an exhibition, fair or carnival.

The stamp itself may be practically worthless, as is the case in the one illustrated, but many collectors have seen or have in their collections envelopes of this description. If we happen to receive or find among accumulated stamps and envelopes any of these printed covers, we would probably never give them a second glance, but merely rip off the stamp and consign the remainder of the envelope to the fire.

A recent interview with Mr. W. E. Marley, 98 Barton Ave., Toronto, Ont., opened my eyes to the possibilities of this specialized collecting. Covers of all descriptions and dates can be found, many of them beautifully printed in four or five colors.

There are always points of interest connected with them. In the above we find that at the exhibition at Halifax, Nova Scotia, in 1907, a successful flight was made by the blimp shown on the cover. This was the first actual flight ever made by a blimp in Canada.

Mr. Marley, a stamp collector of note, makes covers of this nature his specialty, and, we believe, has the most comprehensive specialized collection of illustrated covers in the country. His particular field is Canadian covers, but one may go far in this field.

If any readers of our column make a sideline specialty of collecting extraordinary specimens, we would be glad to hear from them with details of their collections.

Holiday Adventure On a Rabbit Hunt

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—Deciding to spend the last half holiday rabbit hunting, William Lucy, with his son, George Lucy, struck for the woods down near Percy Boom on Thursday, and had a thrilling adventure. Here is what happened: George went on ahead and aroused a big grey hawk who was quietly enjoying a lunch consisting of a nice plump partridge. He (George) was so surprised at such a sight that he did not fire, but his father, drawing up in the rear, let go at the hawk and dropped him; but this hawk was full of fight, and when Mr. Lucy, Sr., went to pick him up, thinking he was dead, the bird made one grand lunge at him, grabbing him by the arms with his big claws and still hanging on to the helpless partridge with his big hook beak. Hearing the commotion, George rushed to his father's rescue and grasping the big bird by the wind-pipe, made him release his hold, but says he never saw a bird put up such a fight before. The hunters brought home only one rabbit, but were quite satisfied with the afternoon's sport. The hawk had a wing-spread of 50 inches and will be mounted as a tribute to his gallant fight.

Omemee

Mr. and Mrs. L. Morcombe and daughters, Evelyn and Doreen; Mr. and Mrs. W. Everson and son Bobby; Mr. and Mrs. H. Eridicott; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. F. McPherson; Mr. L. McQuade, and Mr. D. Hayes were among those attending the play presented by the Kiwanis Club of Lindsay this week.

The October meeting of the Women's Association was held on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 25th at the home of Mrs. J. Eggleston.

Mrs. Rea, the president was in charge and as this was solely a business meeting all the program was dispensed with. Following the Scripture reading, Mrs. Vaughan offered prayer. Several members of the Women's Missionary Society were present and a hearty discussion took place as to ways and means of helping a needy family in the community. The ladies decided to sew and knit and each one was given their allotment.

A new program committee was appointed, namely, Messrs. Moncrief and Stinson.

Mrs. Poast closed the meeting with prayer and refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Lamb.

LYNCHERS TAKE GRIM VENGEANCE

body was still swinging by the neck on the Courthouse Square.

Robbed of First Shot.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press).

GREENWOOD, Fla., Oct. 27 (AP) — A bent, little old man to-day stood on the porch of his simple farm home and said a mob "done me wrong," because it killed the Negro accused of attacking and killing his 23-year-old daughter after he had been told it would let him "have the first shot."

George Cannidy, his red beard belying but his stooped frame attesting his 60-odd years, wept openly at every mention of "my girl" as he told how Miss Lola Cannidy, his daughter, left her farm home last week to be killed at a pigpen, half a mile away from the house in the midst of a cotton patch.

Claude Neal, young Negro who officers said confessed to the killing, was shot numerous times last night, his body mutilated with knives and taken to Marianna, the county seat, where it was strung by the neck from a tree limb in the court-house square.

"They done me wrong about the killing," said the aged father as he wept. "They promised me they would bring him up to my house before they killed him and let me have the first shot. That's what I wanted."

Coaxed Away by Negress

He cried again at every mention of "my girl" as he told how a negro woman came to the Cannidy home he charged, and induced his daughter to go to the pigpen on the plea the hogs were out.

A son, he said, saw a negro grab her by the throat. Her body, assaulted and the head beaten with a hammer, was found later under a covering of freshly cut pine boughs.

All night a crowd that at one time was estimated at several thousand persons milled about the Cannidy home, where, reports said, the negro would be brought before he would be lynched by a mob that took him from the Brewton, Ala., jail.

A "lynch committee of six" said they feared to bring him "from the woods" since several members of the crowd had been drinking and some carried high powered rifles. They feared some innocent person would be harmed.

But the crowd waited patiently —men, women, children and even babes in arms—expecting to catch a glimpse of the accused.

To while away the time political leaders—one identified himself as a member of the Florida legislature—made speeches, urged the crowd to be quiet and hurled quips intended to keep the mass in a good humor.

As the night brought cooler temperatures the more timid left for home and in the early morning there were few left when the shot-ridden and mutilated body of the negro was dragged in front of the Cannidy door.

U. S. Women Fliers Form Medical Corps for Swift Aid in Emergencies.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27 (CP).—First woman to be appointed medical examiner by the aeronautic division of the U. S. Department of Commerce, Dr. Emma Kittridge, arrived here by plane from California with four women pilots, members of the Women's Air Reserve of Los Angeles.

This organization is the first flying medical unit composed of women in the United States. Sixteen women fliers, six of them nurses, are members of the reserve. They aim to give medical care in times of disaster or distress—fire, flood or famine—using the advantages of air service. The flight from California was the first cross-country formation flight of U.S. women pilots.

"Any woman pilot," said Dr. Kittridge, "is eligible for membership in the Reserve. Of course, she has to prove that she is the fearless, daring type of person who is willing to take risks, and do really hard work."

Asked what women she regarded as important in the flying field, Dr. Kittridge named Amelia Earhart for her spectacular flight of the Atlantic, and Phoebe Fairgrave Omlie, special assistant for air intelligence at Washington, D.C. "From the point of view of technical knowledge Miss Omlie has done more to advance the place of women in aviation than any other woman in this country," Dr. Kittridge said.

In memory of King Albert of the Belgians, a large tract of land is to be planted as a forest in Palestine.

SKY SURVEYS MAP UNCHARTERED LANDS IN AEROPLANE PICTURES

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 (C.P.)—Surveys from the air are speeding the plotting out of Canada's 3,600,000 square miles, of which almost 75 per cent has never been accurately mapped. Fully half of this great area has never been viewed by white men.

Up to the end of 1924 the area mapped was 240,000 square miles. Then aerial mapping began and by the end of 1934 more than 480,000 square miles will have been surveyed from above. In other words twice as much country has been mapped in 10 years from the air as in 100 years by surveyors on land.

These figures, released by the topographical survey of the Dominion government, have been brought up to the minute as the field detachments reached Ottawa from the north driven out by the approaching winter. The maps are made from photographs taken from planes. This summer the four detachments in the operations with eight planes took 40,000 pictures. It is the greatest undertaking of its kind in the world.

The feverish activity of thousands of prospectors who find the maps and pictures of such great assistance in their search for gold is demonstrated in the apeals that come to the department. Every day wires are received asking for such help.

Not only is the mapping from the air much faster but it is more comprehensive and quite as accurate. This is particularly the case with heavily wooded or very rough land. A surveyor on foot might run his line through a forest a quarter of a mile from a lake and never know it was there. The aerial pictures overlook nothing. For the sake of accuracy the airmaps are all checked here and there by actual land measurements.

The aerial surveys are conducted by the topographical survey of which F. H. Peters is surveyor-general and A. M. Narraway chief aerial surveys engineer. The planes and pilots are supplied by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Much of the areas yet unmapped contains substantial timber and waterpower resources. No one can estimate what are their mineral resources. But for the aid of the airmen many generations would have passed before any real knowledge had been gained of the vast expanses of the north. The pictures have reached Ottawa where the maps will be developed during the winter.

To co-ordinate the work and to obtain the maximum benefits from aerial pictures, a permanent committee oversees the operations. Dr. Charles Camsell, deputy minister of mines is chairman. Group Captain G. M. Croll, senior air officer and A. M. Narraway complete the executive.

Air mapping is highly technical. As the plan flies over the country to be surveyed, three cameras take simultaneous exposures at frequent intervals. One of the tricks is to keep the altitude of the flight uniform so that the pictures when laid out for mapping will all have been taken at the same distance from the ground. Grids take cars of the varying scales of the picture. Half an inch at the top of a picture covers much more territory than in the foreground at the bottom. The grids correct this. With the tremendous demand for maps and pictures of areas on the Canada "shield" by prospectors, most of the work this summer was done along this formation.

It starts from Beaufort sea some 60 miles east of the mouth of the Mackenzie River, stretches down through the Great Bear Lake district, through the eastern sections of Manitoba, including God's Lake, goes into United States past the head of Lake Superior where the iron mines are and back into the mining districts of Ontario.

Many of the pictures this year were taken in the Athabaska Great Bear and Great Slave Lake district and in Northern Manitoba. Another large task was in the Nahanni River district near the Yukon border. This of course is not on the shield. The existing maps were found to be 52 miles in error as to the location of the Nahanni district.

Campbellford Lodge Visitors At Lindsay

CAMPBELLFORD, October 27 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Members of Loch Lomond Rebekah Lodge to the number of 22 journeyed to Lindsay on Thursday night to attend a get-together of the Rebekah Lodges of the Peterborough district, which included Cannington, Havelock, Lindsay, Peterborough, Millbrook, Toronto, and Smith's Falls. There were nearly 300 present at the gathering. Degree work was exemplified by the Lindsay Lodge, after which the visitors were entertained with a splendid musical program, including short plays, followed by a banquet.

Obituary

THOMAS MEDD

(Examiner Correspondence)

BETHANY, Oct. 27. — A well known pioneer and resident of the village and vicinity was removed by death in the person of Mr. Thomas Medd at the ripe old age of 81 years, during the week-end.

Mr. Medd was of a retiring disposition and very highly respected, as was attested by the large attendance at the home of his brother from who se residence the funeral proceeded to Omemee Cemetery on Friday afternoon.

Rev. Mr. Patton of the United Church assisted Rev. Mr. A. R. Holden at the service at the house.

Rev. Holden gave the address, based on the falling of the leaves, which was followed by singing of hymn "Abide With me."

Pall bearers were, Richard Mitchell, Wilfred Newman of Fenelon Falls and Mr. A. H. Monk, Calvin Reynolds, James Morten and Harry Smith of Bethany.

Mr. Medd spent part of his life at South Bend in the State of Indiana, and was a skilled harness maker by trade.

He is survived by two brothers, Wesley and Joseph of Bethany and one sister Mrs. Newman of Castleton and all who remain of a family of nine children.

Mr. Medd had been in failing health but his recent illness was only a few days duration. Among those who attended the funeral from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Belch and Mrs. Harry Bradley of Omemee, Mr. R. Mitchell and Mrs. Newman of Fenelon Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. Percy Edgar of Millbrook.

One company alone is operating 50,000 automatic machines in England.

Argentina expects a bumper cereal crop this season.

REV. H. BROWETT IS LEAVING CITY

For Past Three Years Ministered to Bethany Tabernacle Congregation.

SUCCESSOR NOT NAMED.

The Rev. Harold P. Browett, pastor of Bethany Tabernacle is this week-end conducting farewell services terminating a three-year ministry here. On Wednesday next he is leaving to take up deputational and evangelistic work in Guelph and other Western Ontario centres before returning to the United States.

While appointment of a successor to the Rev. Mr. Browett has not yet been made, it is probable that in the interim his pulpit will be filled by the Rev. J. H. Brabazon, district superintendent, who has recently returned from the mission field of the church in India.

The Rev. Mr. Browett graduated from Fort Wayne Bible Seminary in 1925, and held his first pastoral charge at Monroe, Michigan. He held subsequent pastorates at Fort Wayne and Montreal before coming here three years ago as successor to the Rev. G. H. Johnson.

While regretting his pending departure from Peterborough, the Rev. Mr. Browett stated he had been called into the work he was about to undertake, and had accepted, feeling that it opened up to him a wider field of opportunity as a minister of the gospel.

"I have enjoyed the co-operation of all the ministerial brethren in the city and I would like them to know how much I have appreciated their fellowship," he acknowledged. "I have found religious work in this city a delightful experience and it is not without some regret that I am leaving."

The Rev. Mr. Browett anticipates maintaining his home here for the next few weeks until he can complete arrangements for his wife and family to join him.

Old Time Orchestra For Kinsmen Carnival

Above is shown Grant Gordon's old time orchestra which will supply the music at the big Hallowe'en Carnival to be held on Wednesday night in the armouries. Proceeds of the carnival go to supplying glasses to underprivileged children. Special door prize of $10 is offered along with money prizes for clog dancing and the best costumes.

What is home without you, Mother?
What are all the joys we meet
When your loving smile no longer
Greets the coming of our feet?
You were very true and patient
Through the years you struggled on,
And those dear hands now resting
Made a home that now is gone.
No length of time, no lapse of years
Can dim our Mother's past;
For treasured memories hold her dear
And will, while memory lasts.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant sight.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall seek the common weal—
The good of all mankind.

MILLBROOK

The Standing Committee on Immigration, through its convenor, took the topic at a recent Women's Institute meeting in a Northern Ontario branch, some thought-provoking statements being made and discussed during the course of the afternoon.

The contributions which New Canadians make to the cultural and industrial life of the Dominion were set forth, the correction of wrong attitudes of children toward these new comers to our land, stressed as an integral part of the duty of parents, Sunday School and day school teachers, being strongly emphasized. How this may be done, it was pointed out, was by first of all having parents and teachers inform themselves thoroughly of the cultures of other nations and of what these have meant to Canada, and then, in the formative period, impress the facts on the young folks' minds.

"There is a nice distinction between culture and civilization which many Canadians choose to ignore," the leader stated; "in our own beloved land we have developed, thanks to science and to the wealth of our natural resources, a fairly high degree of civilization; but compared with at least some of the older countries of Europe, we hardly reach their standard of culture in all things, though their inhabitants enjoy fewer material blessings than we have here."

From personal experience the leader was able to speak authoritatively of some of the problems of immigrants having lived for some time at Halifax, an important port of entry, and she echoed the words of a Ukrainian minister: "While culture is assisted by a well-established civilization, it is not always dependent on it." The lack of understanding on the part of Canadians was blamed for the failure to solve the problem of helping the newcomers to fit into the national life of our Dominion, and it was here that the task of parents and teachers was specially stressed. "I realize that it is a big difficult undertaking, but if we are to have a contented and united nation it is absolutely necessary that we study the history and national characteristics of the lands and people from which they come, that we know their traditions, and that we do not expect that newcomers renounce these immediately on arrival here as citizens."

Discussion brought out the fact that is characteristic of all peoples, practically—the desire to remain amid the surroundings and the folk where one is born. A readiness to forget loyalty to the land left behind will hardly promise a true loyalty to the new homeland, was the general verdict, because it would indicate merely a determination to 'get on' without any real intention to learn and adopt the ideals of the country where the new home is to be established.

The leader felt she could hardly emphasize strongly enough careful talk in the home expressive of appreciation of the fine lands across the sea from which some fellow-pupils of the children of the household either on Sundays, or at week day school, might have come; of their long history and its outstanding features; of the literary and musical artists in whom they have a justifiable pride; a tactful preference to some of the reasons that impelled to the long journey to being a new life in a nwe land; and of what even boys and girls may do to make it easier for the young folk of the foreign families.

"We cannot build a great nation even here in our own beloved Canada," she insisted, "unless we 'grow' men and women who have within them a love and pride for things they have cherished from their youth up. The new Canadian must learn from us something more than the laws of our land, and our language; there must be a spirit behind all that that will enter their hearts, and help to found within them a love and respect for us as fellow-citizens of theirs, and for their adopted land as a place to which they may give whole-hearted loyalty and in which they delight to dwell."

WARSAW

Those who attended the open meeting of the Warsaw Women's Institute and heard Inspector of Peterborough Schools Mr. Copp's lecture were well repaid. The attention given showed the interest taken. The speaker noted that we do not always do what we set out to do and gave examples of some strange answers given by pupils which showed the teacher had not succeeded in teaching that which he had planned. He spoke of the depression probably being a good thing as it tends to set us back on our own resources. What we are doing does not matter so much as what we are. Depression has given us a chance to stop and take stock of what we are doing, time to stop and think of the use we are making of our money, our abilities, our time. Another question—What is happening in our schools? The country is stocked up with machinery—all sorts of labor-saving devices, and the "men who invented these machines for labor-saving were once school boys.

A few years ago people were content to hitch up a horse and go to some social event a neighbors home and go home. Since the advent of the motor car the whole scheme has changed. The nearby visit or meeting is not much considered. Something perhaps a hundred miles away attracts us. There is a new standard which must be met. Object in school and in life used to be, to be ahead of some one else, the boy or girl was expected to beat his classmates, nor necessarily to do his best, and the idea of getting ahead of some one else clung through life. When really that is no true aim. The only person we want to get ahead of is ourself. It is well to improve on ourselves. The whole school system is wrong. The machine has got ahead of us. Now a boy who has finished school is often unable to provide a living for himself. Boys and girls must be taught to meet the problems of life. Having plenty and labor saving devices had really made people afraid to struggle to make a living and that has landed us where we are to-day.

Health in all branches of life may bring us back to a healthy way of living. Health education from a different angle is needed. Not just education from a different angle is needed. Not just education in physical health.

Music makers for happiness and happiness aids health. An unhappy person cannot sing. An unhappy person is not physically well, not so able to work. The business of school is that of teaching and training health. Perhaps drop some subjects now on the curriculum and take on others. We must know what gives health and happiness and put that knowledge into practice.

We have been trying to buy happiness. We had money to go some place and pay some one to amuse or interest us. We must learn to provide our own pleaures.

Health teaching is no good unless it results in what is taught being put into practice. It is not necessarily the expenditure of money, but interest, co-operation and making use of what we have that brings results. Sometimes the poorest equipment is used to produce best results and again the best work may be done with poor equipment.

A common drinking cup is a menace, so are flies. These and many other menaces can be done away with.

Play should include all. Mr. Copp disapproved of swings. No real exercise sitting on a board and no team work. It is necessary to be mentally happy but what produces mental happiness is a question as the same conditions do not always produce same results.

We can make ourselves like other people then we will be liked and through that find health and happiness. We cannot be perfectly happy if we harbor hate or dislike towards anyone. If we try doing something for some one we do not like we will find ourselves liking them. Also we must not think of past pains and our dislikes both bring unhappiness and impair health.

School, children and teachers all need help and co-operation of trustees, parents and all organizations.

Dr. Munro

In Dr. Munro's address he spoke of the work which was necessary but nobody's business being done by the Institute. He said the real object of life is not to grow rich but to be unselfish and find pleasure and happiness in helping others. Speaking of hate, if one is very angry the appetite is gone and the whole system upset. The old Greeks were right so far as they went in training for a healthy mind in a healthy body. Speaking of medicine, preventative medicine is the all important. To prevent illness is of greater value than to cure ills after contracted. Much illness may be prevented, some by proper sanitary conditions, by proper modes of life and some by inoculations and some by one or both.

Typhoid, scarlet fever and diphtheria can be absolutely and safely prevented. The doctor had once before stated that as Medical Health Officer in this township he had to offer to inoculate the school children. He could not force it but he could and did advise it. So far only one school had had it done. He was disappointed but hoped more would soon fall in line.

Flat Furs Fashion Favorite Winter Coats

SLIM LINES, capes, interesting collars and sleeves and flat furs all are highlights of fur coats this season.

Here are three handsome models, and as the football season is again with us, and cold weather—if not zero—is just around the corner, it is well to bestir yourself to look for a warm coat, if you are planning on such a purchase this season.

A black Russian caracul is visioned left, above. It has an interesting collar, warranted to keep out the cool breezes, with very smart styling, and leg-o-mutton sleeves. Slim, wrapover lines distinguish the cut.

A cape adds to both the warmth and fashion of the coat centered, with high turnover collar and swagger lines. This style comes in brown or black Alaska Hudson seal. The chic little hat also is of seal.

The third model is ombre lamb with a soft and rippling collar which is very flattering to the wearer. The sleeves have fullness below the elbow, where they narrow to the wrist.

BE BEAUTIFUL

"Dear Miss Glad: I have very lovely teeth—the Anna Sten variety—and being pardonably proud of them, I always give them the best possible care. However, my toothbrushes never seem to last very well, and I suppose it's because I don't take proper care of them. Could you tell me the correct method of treating one's toothbrush each day? ARLINE."

First of all, it is wise always to have two toothbrushes on hand, and to use each one on alternate days. This makes thorough drying possible for each brush. After you use a toothbrush, always rinse it well in warm water, and then sprinkle a bit of common table salt over the bristles. This will keep the brush sterilized and sweet, and will help to keep the bristles stiff. After sprinkling on the salt, hang the brush up to dry. And be sure always to hang it so that all the water may drip off and none will remain to rot the bristles.

"Dear Miss Glad: I was so glad when nose veils became the style about a year ago, because they helped in hiding my terrible skin. I had such awful eye wrinkles, and blackheads and pimples. But I've been following the advice in your 'Beauty Culture' booklet since, and don't have to hide behind veils any longer. However, I'm out to thicken and lengthen my lashes at present. I once read of a formula for this purpose containing certain oils and vaseline. Could you possibly give me this formula in full PATRICIA."

I presume that the formula that you are referring to is the one composed of oil of rosemary, oil of lavender and plain vaseline. To prepare this eyelash tonic, you simply combine fifteen drops of the oil of rosemary and fifteen drops of the oil of lavender with two ounces of the plain vaseline. This preparation is indeed helpful in promoting eyelash growth. But personally, I think that a bit of tasteless castor oil applied to the lashes nightly is just about as effective for making the eyelashes thick and luxuriant.

"Dear Miss Glad: You've written in past instances of the effects of the lines and colors of frocks upon the figure, and it's aided me greatly. You've not, as yet, however, made much mention of necklines. My face is round and full. What sort of necklines do you think would be most suited to me? CAROLINE".

Necklines have almost the same effect upon the face and neck as neckaces. The girl with the round, full face should avoid rounded necklines. They will only accentuate the width of her face and the squatness of her neck. For her, oval or V-shaped necklines are more flattering, as they will make her neck appear longer and slenderer, and will help to reduce the apparent width of her face. Although wide, frilly collars do create an impression of daintiness and femininity, they, too, should be avoided by the full-faced woman. For they will only tend to exaggerate the breadth and fullness of her face.

Editor's Note: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

BELMONT W.I.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 27 (Examiner Correspondence)—"My One Superstitution" was the roll call at the regular meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute held in the town hall on Thursday afternoon. All members responded and the different superstitions proved most amusing.

A smaller attendance than usual was thought to have been caused by threshing activities in the district. It was disclosed that $32 had been realized from the booths at the Belmont School's fair.

In accordance with a movement on foot in some of the institute branches, on motion of Mesdames H. Tinney and C. Kennedy a committee was appointed to look after the cleaning up of the old Garrison cemetery. Work will be started early next week. A request for clothing and a layette will be dealt with later.

Continuing the branches plan of opening a bank account for every new born baby in the settlement, a motion by Mrs. H. Tinney and Mrs. L. Keene instructed the secretary-treasurer to open a new account for the latest arrival.

"First Dishes" was the title of a well prepared paper given by Mrs. Joseph Seabrook. Mrs. George Hartin gave a reading and a talk on a trip through Quebec by Sandy Fraser was much enjoyed. Community singing was followed by "Old Black Joe" by Mrs. C. Kennedy.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostesses for the day, Mesdames H. Tinney, G. Kennedy, R. Anderson and W. R. Aunger.

Mr. Nelson Chiles came home from the Nicholls' Hospital, Peterborough, on Wednesday, and is making good progress after his recent operation.

Mrs. P. C. Watt, wife of a prominent Winnipeg grain broker, and sister of Mrs. L. A. Gould, stopped off here on Wednesday from New York city.

Mr. William Vandervoort, of Smith's Falls and formerly of town, was a business visitor here on Thursday.

Exemplifying a rare description of his native Galilee, Stephen A. Haboush, (Estephanious Antonious Habboosh), formerly Chautauqua and Lyceum lecturer, held large audiences in rapt attention with his eloquent and comprehensive narrative on Sunday and Wednesday evenings in the United Church. Formerly known in Chautauqua circles as "The Shepherd Boy of Galilee," this highly educated and well informed traveller and author treated Havelock and district citizens to spiritual and educational food of the very highest calibre.

Mr. Rhinard Post of Smith's Falls, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Post, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ditchman of Dummer, and formerly of town, were visitors to the village Thursday.

Messrs. Donald and Stewart Miller spent the last week-end with friends and relatives in Toronto.

Miss Reta Leeson is spending this week-end with friends and relatives in Toronto.

The many friends of Miss Marguerite Roche, will regret to learn that she has been confined to bed this past week.

Mr. George Spencer of Brighton, a former Havelock business man, was in town on business on Thursday.

Cream the butter, add the sugar and cream together. Add the flour, sifted with the spices, baking powder and soda with the first alternately with the milk. Bake about thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

THE BOOK CORNER

Conducted by R. B. W.

The author of that eminently splendid 'Brazilian Adventure" has now given us an equally brilliant account of a trip through China. Although he claims always to have been a day too early or too late for any exciting actions yet his book is packed full of incidents and observations which certainly are extraordinary as far as we westerners are concerned.

Mr. Fleming acted as a "Times" correspondent while in China but in his book has confined himself chiefly to his unofficial side trips and adventures. After surviving a Russian train which on the way (pictures of which he had to smuggle through customs), he arrives in Manchukuo. His account of the bandit situation there makes it clear that Japanese control there is partly to blame and that so far little has been achieved in wiping them out.

There are many amusing events told in his engaging style—his description of the Chinese soldiers and Chinese methods of soldiery is both entertaining and explanatory of their frequent defeats and demoralization.

Mr. Fleming was the first Englishman to witness and write an account of the activities of the National Government against the Soviet community in Kiangsi in southern China. This community is set up on a purely communistic basis as to property and money is also so strongly armed that to date all efforts to subdue it have failed. Whether it on the other hand will succeed in spreading over a larger territory than at present remains to be seen.

We feel grateful to the author for including a map of his travels with all the places mentioned clearly marked. Because we have always felt a grievance against those who wrote a book of travel and then expected the reader to hold it in one hand and a Berthalemew's Atlas in the other in order to intelligently follow the former.

We have no idea just which part of the earth Mr. Fleming is going to tell us about next but we feel safe in predicting that wherever he goes his travels will be worth reading.

The Long Day Closes — By Beatrice Tunstall (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Toronto).

Miss Tunstall's first novel "The Shiny Night" immediately placed her among the first ranks of the recent novelists. We have just read her second novel "The Long Day Closes" and although it is an entertaining story we doubt if it will be the popular success its predecessor was.

This novel is a tale of the days of Bonnie Prince Charlie and his ill-fated attempts to gain the throne. The scene is the ancient House of Starmont. Of the three brothers Giles, Will and Harry, the first of these, being the eldest, has recently inherited the title of Squire from his father.

The story begins dramatically enough with the self-introduction of "Richard Turpin at your service" —the latter notorious highwayman, followed quickly by the midnight hold-up at which Giles meets a lovely lady already engaged to be married. More for adventure's sake than anything else as far as he is concerned he persuades her later to elope to Gretna Green with him. Thereafter the story lags a bit and notwithstanding smugglers, witches and a couple of murders, it lacks the qualities which catch and hold the interest of the reader.

The most likeable character is Christopher Church — the jack-of-all trades and general serving man to the Squire. It is he who tells the story and the reader feels a sense of relief when finally "the long day" of Starmonts closes and Chris is rewarded for his fidelity to a worthless master by being free to achieve his marriage with Rose-Mary.

The most realistic parts of the whole book are the extracts from the diary of the Squire's Lady. Referring to the House of Stormont she writes "the somberness is more intense, the grate neglect'd park with its dark and winding waters the wast house where the main apartments have been clos'l for soe long yeres,—the smell of mold the chill of Damp & Decay."

OTHER NEW BOOKS

Beggars Horses—by P. C. Wren (Longman's, Green and Co., Toronto) is an exciting tale with the British Indian Army as a background—a welcome change fom the Foreign Legion series.

The Ma nof the White Horse—by Warwick Deeping (McClelland and Stewart, Toronto. Here is a story with plenty of color and action in early Briton under Roman rule.

Zarharoff—High Priest of War—by Guiles Davenport (Longman's, Geen and Co., Toronto). A biography of this international character about whom comparatively little has hitherto been published.

Brassbound — by Mary Bickle (Longman's, Green and Co.). A novel continuing romance and tragedy which was awarded the "Liberty" $10,000 prize.

A Brief History of the World—by Prof. Norman De Witt of The University of Toronto (MacMillans). A surprisingly compact and readable work of history. It is the epic of mankind not the stories of different nations.

The Dark Island—by V. Sackville-West (Doubleday-Doran, Toronto). A combined novel and character-study of Shirlen C. Breton in an imaginary setting.

To the North—by Jeanette Mirsky (MacMillans). This is a history of Arctic exploration from the earliest attempts to the most recent air expeditions.

The Strange Boarders of Palace Crescent—by E. Phillips Oppenheim (McClelland and Stewart). Another of this author's mystery stories.

"Aren't you going to eat your ice-cream, dear? — Polly, I don't know what ails Tommy — He isn't a bit like himself. He won't eat, and he's lost all his pep!"

"Alice, I wouldn't worry about Tommy. Jack was the same way a month ago, and I found all he needed was a laxative. Give him some Castoria."

"You're just the person I wanted to see, Polly! Tommy's been out playing all morning. I gave him some Castoria last night, and it's certainly wonderful!"

"Yes, it certainly is, Alice. Castoria is the ideal laxative for children. It's pleasant to take, too — because it tastes awfully good. You know, it hasn't any of the harsh drugs in it that are in some grown-up laxatives. Don't forget that it's just the thing for colic in little babies, too!"

Although the citizens, as a whole, are not anxious at most times to enjoy the hospitality of the police force, they were all extremely ready to have a chance last night to be guests of the genial officers of the law, who threw formality and severity to the winds and tripped it with the best of them at the second annual Ball of the Peterborough Police Department, which proved to be fully as successful, if not more so, than last year's initial event of the same type. Over eight hundred people from the city and district filled the big hall of the Canadian Legion to overflowing last night, and every last one of them had a truly wonderful time that lasted well into the small hours of the morning. No effort was spared to make the affair bright, jolly and harmonious. Luigi Romanelli's orchestra from the King Edward Hotel made its bow to local dancers and captured the liking of every individual by its splendid music. It was smooth and languorous in the lilting waltzes and warmly syncopated in the faster steps. The musicians, good-looking players in evening dress, got a big hand at the conclusion of every number, and were mighty generous in their encores. Conducting in turn, the brothers, Leo and Donald, have a manner all their own which adds to the general impression of ease and finish that emanates from these skilful musicians and their expertly-handled instruments. The orchestra stand was fringed with many green ferns, and the hall was gay with streamers and hearts in the flag colors of red, white and blue. Overhead festoons of colored balloons added to the general festive effect of the decorative scheme, as did the pretty gowns of the ladies. A long list of novelty dance numbers kept the entertainment up to a high pitch of enjoyment from the first to the last minute, and favors were in colored paper hats. The Grand March that opened the Ball was an impressive affair, headed by Brigadier-General Chief of Police Draper from Toronto, and Mrs. Denne; followed in turn by Chief and Mrs. Newhall, Mayor Denne and Mrs. Draper, Magistrate and Mrs. Langley, ex-Chief Daniel Thompson and Mrs. Thompson, of Toronto, and Mr. V. J. McElderry and Miss Alice Price. In the receiving line were the Mayor and Mrs. Denne, Chief of Police Newhall and Mrs. Newhall, Magistrated O. A. Langley and Mrs. Langley, Alderman and Mrs. R. S. Cotton. Others included in the list of patrons and patronesses of the dance were His Honor, Judge and Mrs. Smoke, and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. Additional guests from out of town were Magistrate E. A. Gee and his daughter, Miss Dorothea Gee, of Lindsay; Chief Coulter and Mrs. Coulter, of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Henderson of Toronto; Mr. T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., and Mrs. Lancaster, of Havelock; Provincial Constable and Mrs. W. J. Carey, of Cobourg, and Mrs. George Green of Port Hope. Words of welcome to the guests of the evening were voiced by Chief Newhall and Mayor Denne. The committee in charge of arrangements were headed by Sergeant Arthur Thomas, with members in Inspector James Reid, secretary-treasurer; Detective-Sergeant William E. Meagher, and Constables Gordon Puffer, W. Piercy and J. Deannard. Constable Puffer was floor manager, assisted ably by Mr. Hugh Lush and Mr. Fred Scates. Arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the guests included supper, which was served in the upper hall, a canteen for soft drinks in the corner of the dance hall, and card games for the non-dancers. There was a gorgeous array of prizes, which included handsome gifts donated by many of the city's merchants. The feature of the prize-giving was the special award presented to Magistrate and Mrs. Langey, who responded nobly to the occasion and mounted the orchestra stand, to get a big hand from the crowd and listen to the singing, in their honor, of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Other prize-winners were as follows: Spot dance, Miss Dorothea Gee and Mr. George Sharpe, both of Lindsay (prizes, two-pound box of candy donated by Mr. Joe Dean, and a cigarette case donated by Mr. M. E. Knox); 2nd Spot dance, Miss Dorothy Allen and Mr. Ray LaPlante (prizes, lady's kid gloves donated by Mr. H. Kelso of the Smart Set Shop, and cards donated by Mr. Al Sharpe); 3rd Spot dance, Miss Flossie Brown of Peterborough and Mr. Harry Allen of Cobourg (prizes, two-pound box of candy donated by Mr. John Hill, and a woollen scarf donated by Mr. Bud Hickey); 4th Spot dance, Mrs. Myles Rundel and Mr. E. G. Jonnston (prizes, lady's negligee set, donated by Mr. R. A. Graf-stein, and a table lamp, donated by Mr. Florence of the Home Furnishing Company) 5th Spot dance, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lundy (prizes, lady's silk hose donated by Mr. A. Botnik, and a table lamp donated by Grant and Loucks); special award to Magistrate and Mrs. Langley, a walnut end table, donated by Mr. Walter Belleghem; balloon dance, Mrs. H. Abramson, Miss Ruth Chambers, Miss Jessie Irwin, Messrs. Joseph Sullivan, Ed Cairns, and Stewart Hayes (prizes, all tins of Ovaltine, donated by the A. Wander Company, Limited); prize waltz, Miss Ernestine McDonald and Mr. J. J. Duffus (prizes, lady's silk scarf, donated by Mr. H. Abramson, and a silk scarf donated by Mr. Ed Riley); special prize to the lady dancing with the Mysterious Mr. X, an electric toaster donated by Mr. P. Gosselin. (Mr. X., who was presented with a box of cigars donated by Lowe and Outram, prefers to remain mysterious still, and was found by Mrs. James Coursey); the special prize to the gentleman dancing with Miss X. cigars donated by J. W. Steinkrauss, went to Mayor Denne, who found the mysterious lady, Mrs. C. H. Stuart. (The lady's prize in this dance was fine soap donated by Mr. E. L. Payne). The prizes for cards were won by Mrs. James Reid, first (a radio lamp donated by McBride and Franks), and Mrs. E. Higgins, second (a jumbo sweater coat, donated by the Grafton Company, Limited.

An enjoyable Hallowe'en Dance was held last evening in the Woodmen of the World Hall, under the auspices of the Caledonian Club. Splendid music was supplied by Mr. Jack Marshall at the piano and Mr. Alex. Milne on the traps. Both round and square dances were engaged in, also reels for which Mr. Milne played the bagpipes. A fairly large number of Caledonians were present, considering the number of other attractions in the city. At eleven o'clock dainty refreshments were served, and dancing was resumed until after midnight. Mr. W. Petrie acted as master of ceremonies. Those wishing to bowl are requested to meet in the Duffus Bowling Academy at seven-fifteen to-night.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Refreshments for the Hallowe'en party given in yesterday's paper, while especially planned for it may be served equally well for other Hallowe'en entertainments. The menu is purposely inexpensive for entertaining is important to make lives gayer. The color scheme is yellow, black and white. A lighted pumpkin hobgoblin table decoration is no expense save the candle as the meat of the vegetable supplies the pie, and the seeds supply the money for the "Witch's Money Bags" featured yesterday.

* * * * * * *

Boston brown bread and white bread both are used for the round witch-face sandwiches. The former are filled with mashed baked beans mixed with mayonnaise, while the latter have minced broiled bacon and mashed hard boiled egg yolks, well seasoned, as the spread. Pumpkin seeds are pressed into the brown bread circles to form features, while coffee beans make those on the circles of white bread. With these serve celery stalks stuffed with cream cheese colored yellow. Shelled Brazil nuts supply the dark color and, although not actually black, give much the same impression. Ripe olives can be served also for this reason. Black coffee still further carries out his color scheme.

* * * * * * *

For dessert pumpkin pie is excellent with yellow cheese. It may be some more work to make round individual pie tart size, but when the filling has features made of whole cloves thrust into the pumpkin shortly before refreshments are served, they carry out the witch-face idea interestingly. If cloves are put in too soon they will flavor the pumpkin filling too much. Yellow cheese goes with these tarts.

* * * * * * *

If preferred, orange ice cream or vanilla colored yellow with or without a chocolate sauce is equally good. Serve chocolate and yellow colored frosted cup cakes with the ice cream. These cakes can have features in the icing. Use wee candies of yellow or white for the chocolate icing and chocolate candies on the yellow icing. Or if expert in using pastry bag, the features can be made with colored icing.

BUSINESS, PROFESSIONAL WOMEN PLANNING TO FORM CLUB IN CITY

F. E. Robson Addresses Organization Meeting Held in the Y.W.C.A.

Russia Land of Contrasts.

The formation of a Business and Professional Women's Club in Peterborough became an assured thing last evening in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., when a committee was formed to make arrangements for the organization of the new society, with members in Mrs Collins, wife of the manager of the R Neill Shoe Store, Miss Marian Jamieson, Miss E. Warren Kee, Miss Lois Stewart, Miss Esther Thornton, Miss Helen Anderson and Miss Cathleen McCarthy.

The meeting was featured by an address by F. E. Robson of Toronto, whose address was based on a scrutiny of Russian Developments, gleaned from a wide experience of Russia and its modes and the progress of its plan.

Mr. Robson is president of the F. E. Robson Company, Limited, Trade Consultants, is vice-president of Ridpaths, Limited, and was for three years president of Loblaws Stores, Limited, has a background of world travel and culture and his address was extremely interesting and worth while. He spoke from his own experience of the Russian scheme, and also answered questions at the close of his address. He is a native of Lindsay, Ontario.

Introduced by Miss Leta Brownscombe, Mr. Robson based his talk mainly on the affairs of women in the Soviet Union, stating that the "parity of women" under the present form of government had made a profound impression upon him during his stay in Russia.

"Women occupy not only important positions, such as those of ambassadors, judges and customs officials, but they also do a great deal of the manual labour, in digging drains and lifting heavy loads—they do practically everything that a man can do."

Land of Contrasts

Russia was described as a land occupying one-sixth of the total area of the globe, with people of many nationalities as neighbors and with one hundred and eighty-two different nationalities within its own confines, with one hundred and forty-nine languages spoken within its borders, a people rapidly changing from a condition that once meant seventy-five per cent. illiteracy, a people that believes in abortion and the practice of birth control and yet has a population increasing four times faster than any other nation in Europe, a country where a dialectic materialism is replacing religion.

"The word Communism originated in Scotland" declared the speaker, "Soviet means 'council' and Bolshevik means 'power'. In that land, with all its godlessness, they say, curiously enough, 'Thank you, God save us.' "

Speaking of a visit to a court where a woman judge presided, Mr. Robson said the court possessed no police officers, no jury and no lawyers. The judge decided according to the human side of the question, rather than the legal. In Russia, minor offenses include such things as the murder of a husband, for instance, while major offenses include a public speech about religion to more than five people, or the hoarding of kopeks up to the amount of two and one half dollars.

A sentence of six months to the "isolator" gives the offender fifteen free days to go home and arrange his affairs, and a free fortnight once annually to take his place in society again before returning to finish the sentence. He chooses his own guard and his own occupation while serving the sentence, and gets paid for his work.

In the opinion of the Soviet, there is too much 'mothering' of children, and their system of placing them under State supervision for most of the day makes the children very self-reliant and self-confident.

Speaking of a land where restrictions of strange types are laid on women in many of its sections, he said:

"You women who are so far above others of your sex in other lands should make more of your opportunities. The responsibility of the world's future progress rests on your shoulders."

The vote of thanks to the speaker was voiced by Miss Marion Jamieson and seconded by Miss Olive Armstrong.

A VERY IMPORTANT RULE

Some rules are important enough to embroider on some players' pyjamas, so that they may be read night and morning. Here is one such rule: With the same top honors, the shorter the suit the greater its probable defensive value. Disregard of this important rule alone enabled South's opponents to score game and rubber. Perhaps he will be more careful next time.

South's score stood at 80 points—the worst possible time to make a light opening bid. His opponents were vulnerable, with no score towards the second game. Bidding went: South, 1-diamond; west, doubled; East, 1-spade; South, 2-diamonds; West, 3-spades, to urge partner to bid game, provided he held 4 probable tricks; East, 4-spades, by slightly stretching his values, ending bidding.

As most players would have done, South led his K of diamonds, dummy's ace won the trick. Three rounds of trumps followed, leaving the lead in dummy. A low heart was led. South's Q won on a finesse of the J. South led his K of clubs. Dummy's ace won. The ace, K and a long heart in dummy won the next three tricks. The declarer discarded a losing club on dummy's long heart. Nine tricks had been played, of which the declaring side had won 8.

South was given a diamond trick. Then he took a club trick, giving him his third and last trick. Dummy's last trump ruffed the last diamond held by East and the declarer's last trump ruffed the third club held by dummy.

The average defensive value of 5 cards headed by K-Q-J is only 0.84 of a trick. The average defensive value of 3 cards consisting of K-Q-J is 1.34 tricks against a trump call, or just one-half probable trick greater than the same honors in the longer suit. It is proper to open the longer suit at no trumps, or against a trump call when you wish to weaken the declarer by constantly ruffing him. In this case South should have led his K of clubs, instead of the K of the longer suit.

The opening lead of the K of clubs will give the defenders 2 club tricks, 1 heart trick and 1 diamond trick. This will defeat the contract a single trick. If you must lead a K from K-Q, lead it from a long suit, but lead the K from K-Q-J from a shorter suit. These rules for making opening leads are of vital importance.

PLANS DISCUSSED REMEMBRANCE TEA

57th Regimental Chapter of I.O.D.E. Holds November Meeting.

The 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E. held their regular November meeting in the Armouries on Thursday afternoon, with a large attendance. The Regent, Mrs. T. W. H. Young, presided, and after the routine business several letters were read by the secretary on the work of the order.

A draw on a beautiful Hudson Bay reversible blanket was arranged for with Mrs. C. Newman acting as convenor; the draw for the lucky winner to be made in December and to be announced in the local paper.

Plans for a Remembrance Day Tea to be held at the home of Mrs. W. Gordon Hall on Friday, November 9th were discussed and arrangements made. Mrs. R. E. Clarke was appointed as general convenor with Mrs. R. G. Cottrel and Mrs. G. R. Melton as assistants. Mrs. Claire Stuart and Mrs. Sheehy to have charge of the home-made cooking.

It was also suggested that a military euchre be held in the Armouries some time in January. This met with the approval of the meeting. For February, it was decided that each member be responsible for making one dollar or more for the funds of the Chapter. This to take the place of any other party.

The Regent reported on the Community Bridge, held on Oct. 16. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent with 21 tables playing cards and many dropping in for tea, which was served at Miss I. Wesley's home.

Mrs. Sharpe, for the Sick and Visiting committee, reported 45 visits made during the past month and during the summer months 58 visits had been made with books, magazines and fresh fruit distributed. Mrs. Cottrell, convenor for Flowers, reported several bouquets sent to the ill and bereaved

Mrs. T. W. H. Young gave a report of the last meeting of the Womans Council, referring to the address given on "The League of Nations." She also thanked all those who had assisted with Tag Day for the Children's Shelter.

According to the usual custom, it was decided to place a wreath on the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day and all the members were urged to be present and attend in a body.

A resolution was passed that the Chapter continue to assist a blind student during the school year.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

Missionary Letter Is Read To Members

The regular meeting of Group F of the W.M.S. of George Street United Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. Douglas, Water street, with a large attendance. The leader, Mrs. W. H. Morton, presided. The Bible reading was given by Mrs. H. Girven from the 1st Chapter of St. Peter, beginning at the fifth verse. Letters from Miss Vera Boyd, a missionary in India, were read by Mrs. E. Brown, Mrs. J. A. Spencer, Mrs. J. M. Fanning, Mrs. C. Elliott and Mrs. Nichols. Miss Nellie Douglas gave a brilliant piano solo and Mrs. S. Wildman sang very sweetly a solo accompanied by Mrs. Nicholls. Mrs. J. M. Fanning invited the group to her home for their November meeting.

The Sick and Visiting committee reported six calls made. At the conclusion of the meeting dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Douglas and members of her section of the group and a social hour enjoyed. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the hostesses.

SHORE SIGNS $7,000 CONTRACT WITH BRUINS

EARL SEIBERT IS SATISFIED N.Y. CONTRACT

JOLIAT UNSIGNED.

(By The Canadian Press)

Exhibition games to-night in Winnipeg and Quebec probably will provide the best line so far on the 1934 editions of Boston Bruins, Montreal Maroons and New York Rangers.

Rangers and Maroons clash at Winnipeg, and Bruins will play their farm-team, Boston Cubs and Quebec Angle-Pulps, an amateur outfit. It will be the first real try-out for any of the National Hockey League teams.

Lester Patrick will have to do without Earl Seibert when he matches his coaching genius against Tommy Gorman, but the big Ranger defenceman has come to terms and soon will be practising with the rest of the New Yorkers.

He left Kitchener last night after holding out for a larger salary. His addition to the Ranger squad will relieve Patrick of a great deal of his defence worries, complicated by the reluctance of Ivan Johnson to work for the money offered. Ching is still in New York.

When Bruins play Cubs two periods and one against the amateur team, Eddie Shore, the veteran defence ace, will be in the lineup. He signed yesterday for $7,000, tops under the N.H.L. salary agreement.

Shore has been keeping in shape on his Alberta farm and stepped right into practice yesterday. Coach Frank Patrick will try out Archie Wilcox, Jean Pusie and Joe Jerwa with Shore. The probability is all will be regulars.

Brother Lester will work to-night with Bill Cook, Alex Levinsky and Ott Heller as defencemen. Even with Seibert signed, it is likely he will keep Cook on the defence this season, good rushing defencemen being as scarce as they are.

Lionel Conacher, the big Torontonian who followed Gorman from Chicago to Maroons, was not in uniform at the Montreal practises yesterday, but he probably will get in to-night's game. He has been resting in Winnipeg since his arrival and trying to shake off a cold he contracted during his professional football season in Toronto.

Leo Dandurant, Montreal Canadien manager, was in Saint John, N.B., to look over the result Coach Newsy Lalonde obtained in training. Before he leaves he will decide how the present squad of 23 is to be whittled down.

He also will clear up any salary differences there is with Aurel Joliat, Habitants' midget left winger. The Ottawa Swiss is reported to be dissatisfied with the terms offered him, but Dandurand never has had trouble reconciling their views and anticipates none now.

COACH WHO SANG DOXOLOGY LEADING ALBERTA CHAMPIONS

Enter Dominion Playdowns After Successful Season

(By G. Douglas Mackie, Central Press Canadian Sports Writer)

EDMONTON, Oct. 27.—Is Alan Wilson, Western Canada's "kid coach," about to get the last laugh on a host of scoffers?

That is the question several thousand Western Canadian rugby fans, who have watched the rise of the University of Alberta squad from comparative obscurity to its first Alberta championship in nine years, are asking.

Last year, Alan Wilson, fresh from two years coaching Moose Jaw Junior Maroons to western championships, went to the University of Alberta. His graduation to senior master-minding was accompanied by polite snickers from the football old boys. They doubted very much the ability of this youth who had just turned twenty-two. Their doubts seemed to be founded in fact when Varsity made a mediocre showing during the season. But Wilson was retained.

Would Sing Doxology

This year the judgment of the athletic directorate of the university was rewarded, for Varsity marched through the season without a loss and ended the five-year reign of the Calgary Altomahs. Four straight victories brought Varsity its first provincial title in nine years and earned them a place in the Western playdowns.

And Alan Wilson is getting his full share of credit.

When Wilson was twenty years old, he took over the Moose Jaw Maroons and lifted them from the doldrums to one of the most colorful rugby squads in Canada.

Before every game the squad would gather in the dressing room for their final instructions, then suddenly, as they prepared to take the field there would come a hush over the two dozen boys. The silence would be broken by the trembling note of a youthful tenor. The boys would sing, some a trifle misty-eyed, the Doxology.

It was part of the ritual and never once did they take the field without this brief ceremony.

Even when they went east to Woodstock, Ont., in 1931, to meet the Eastern Junior champs, they carried on this brief service, led by their youthful coach. They lost the Dominion championship by a single point margin.

They say that sporting writers at that time, seeking to interview the youthful coach, had more trouble than their share distinguishing him from his adolescent players.

Narrowly Missed Title

In the following year Maroons speeded through another successful season, brushing all western competition aside. They again travelled east, and this time in Toronto lost to the University of Toronto Juniors by a two-point margin.

Three points difference between east and west in two playoffs! No wonder rugby enthusiasts pricked up their ears and inquired concerning this lad, Wilson.

ALAN WILSON

Of course there were those who said he was just lucky; that he had been graced with a band of born ball-toters; and that after all Junior football was small stuff.

Well, last season Alberta Varsity didn't do so well, and the so-called experts said "We told you so" and decided to forget all about Wilson. But they weren't going to forget for long, because Wilson took his band of Senior gridders, many of them older than he is, taught them everything that was in the book, and some that the book didn't mention. So to-day Alberta Varsity is resting on top of the heap casting eager eye Vancouver way.

And meanwhile the Moose Jaw Maroons, minus the wily Wilson, have fallen into a slump. There may be some significance in that!

LONG JIM WORRALL AMONG STARS UNDER CONSIDERATION FOR CUP

THREE FROM MARITIMES

(By Elmer Dulmage, C.P. Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, October 27 (C.P.). — Still leaning toward the belief that the country's outstanding athlete each year must of necessity be a trackman, the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada will have little other material to choose from next month when it awards the Norton H. Crowe Memorial Trophy for 1934 achievement.

Four branches of the A.A.U. have named a total of eight athletes for consideration, and all but two of them are track stars. The others are Maxie Berger, Montreal flyweight boxer, who went to the British Empire Games, and Pete Jotkus, ace middle wing of Montreal senior football team.

The Quebec branch named three altogether, Jong Jim Worrall, national 440-yards hurdles champion, being the third, and ignored Marcel Rainville, the tiny giant of the courts who won the Canadian, Ontario and Eastern Canadian singles tennis championships in just three weeks of competition.

The Central Ontario branch nominated Sudbury's great Marathoner, Dave Komonen, and the Southwestern Ontario branch replied by putting up Harold Webster, 40-year-old Hamilton Marathoner who won the British Empire Games classic and humbled Komonen in the Canadian trials.

Three tracksters from the Maritimes have been nominated and one of them is a girl, Eileen Meagher, Halifax sprinter, which will bring up a pretty point for the selection committee. This is the first time since the trophy was donated four years ago that a feminine athlete has been mentioned as a contender.

The other Maritime selections are Frankie Nicks, a member of Canada's Empire Games spring team, and Roy Oliver who went to London as a six-miler.

Of the six Empire Games performers named, just one was a winner in White City Stadium, on Wembley— the veteran Webster. Had all the branches considered the eligibility of women athletes, Saskatchewan would undoubtedly have put forward Phyllis Dewar, the greatest girl swimmer in the British Empire, and British Columbia might have mentioned Caroline Deacon, the Vancouver redhead who won the Canadian women's singles tennis championship.

The Crowe Trophy was first awarded in 1934 to Percy Williams, three years after the Vancouver sprinter had put across his double Olympic triumph. In 1932 Alexander Wilson, Montreal middle-distance star, was the A.A.U. choice, and last year the trophy went to Jimmy Ball, veteran Winnipeg quarter-miler.

During the rebuilding of the Bank of England, in London, 800 human skeletons were unearthed.

Practically all motor trucks imported into China this year were from the United States.

Cronin's Successor Not Considered Yet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. — Clark Griffith, master trader of the big leagues, jingled money aplenty in his jeans yesterday—a result of baseball's biggest swap in years and looked for a pitcher and perhaps an infielder to buy with his surplus cash.

The gray-haired President of the Washington American League Club sold Manager Joseph Cronin to Boston Red Sox for a huge sum and arranged the deal so that Cronin, who recently married Griffith's adopted daughter, would be playing manager of Boston under a five-year contract.

The price Griffith got for Cronin was variously estimated here from $125,000 to $250,000. The Washington star said the price was twice as much as Colonel Jake Ruppert paid for Babe Ruth in 1919—$125,000. But to all questions Griffith would say only that Cronin brought more than any other player in the history of the game.

TRACK TITLES ARE TAKEN BY OTTAWA STARS

INTERMEDIATE MEET.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27 (CP)—McGill University holds the Eastern Canadian Intermediate Intercollegiate track and field title to-day, but only because Ottawa University had not made up its mind to officially contest the championship. In the meet held here yesterday, McGill nosed out Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., 69 to 65; but Ottawa, entered the event only to see what it could do if it decided to come in next year, far outshone both teams.

With only three members on their team, Ottawa captured six first places in the meet yesterday, establishing themselves as the class of the three colleges. With the success they had, it appeared probable Ottawa would enter the titular competition next year, converting the hitherto two-team meet into a three-cornered affair.

Two of Ottawa's three men team did all their winning. Wilbur Nixon and Jim Courtwright, former interscholastic stars with Glebe Collegiate, Ottawa, divided wins in six events. Nixon won the 120-yard and the 220-yard hurdles and the broad jump, while Courtwright came out in front in the javelin, discus and shot-put. Their other man, Jack Corcoran, failed to figure in the summary.

Brilliant Showing

The performance of the Ottawa youth in the javelin throw astounded observers. Holding something in reserve due to a wrenched back received while performing on the University football team, he tossed the spear 189 feet, 9 inches, to far outdistance the old mark. His throw also bettered the Senior mark set last week by Abe Zvonkin, of Queen's University, at 162 feet 10½ inches, and was not far behind the Dominion record for the event.

Wins in the sprint event aided in giving McGill the meet victory after R.M.C. had got away to an early lead. The Redmen captured the 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes, Bertant Denton winning in the shorter sprints and Elton Pounder capturing the quarter mile.

Art Wickson won both the half mile and the mile run for R.M.C., with Boswell second in the half, and Cooper in the mile.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 440

The seeming impossible happened the other day. I never thought a woman playing along with me could turn in the better score, yet Diana Fishwick, former British champion, turned in a 74 to my 75.

We played a mixed foursome over a full length championship course. The ground was soggy and wet so that no roll was to be had. Miss Fishwick's drives consistently carried more than 200 yards, straight on the pin. Her pitches up 100 yards stopped within six feet of the hole and she missed only two putts from this distance.

Her 74 beats the women's record for the course by four strokes. The course is 15 years old. I've never seen any golfer play an entire round with such poise.

From what she says about knowing little, if anything of how she swings, its obvious that most of worry over details while she's playing.

Canada Packers Win London Dairy Show

In the effort to re-capture the domestic British market from Danish and other foreign bacon interests, Canada has won signal triumph in competition with other Empire producing countries.

At the London (England) Dairy Show,—sponsored by the Empire Marketing Board,—Canada Packers with their Wiltshire Bacon have carried off first prize against determined competition from the whole Empire, including several entries from Canada. This success, which marks another forward step in the progressive effort of Canadian packers and livestock interests to re-capture Imperial markets, is of particular interest to Canadian housewives. Canada Packers' Maple Leaf "Dated Bacon," that is sold on the domestic market, is of precisely the same high quality as their Wiltshire Bacon that has won such distinction in the export field.

Inside Sportin' Dope— By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, last Sat's rugby program sure mixed up the dope, but anyway the Peterboro teams covered themselfs with glory, our collegiate seniors staying in the running by trimming Belleville in the Quinte town, while on the same grounds right afterward our intermediates tossed the Belleville gang for a 11 to 9 loss and thus put their selfs in a nice spot to cop the group honors. It will be all over by the time this gits out, and here's hoping our lads took the big end for they sure deserve credit for staying in there and fighting all the way.

The senior fixtures, Mac, sure went all screwey. Who ever give the crippled Queen's team a chance to trim Varsity which same they done, and who called the Tigers to hog tie the Argos right in Toronto, or the Hamilton Cubs to smother Balmy Beach, or the Ottawa Senators for that matter to win in Montreal. Form players would of pretty near lost their shirt on them results, Mac, and it all goes to show they aint nothing so uncertain as football. Why look at that Tiger-Argo fracas. Early in the 3rd period with the oarsmen leading 9 to 1 and them perched on Tigers 20-yd. line with the ball in their possession, Hamilton didn't look having no more chance than I did of winning the England to Australia air derby. And then look what happened. Argos tried a goal from the field; the kick went blooey; a Tiger wing picked up the loose ball and dashed the whole length of the field with the greatest of ease, like the bird on the flying trapeeze, and give the Bengal Cats a touchdown. Whereupon the Argos proceeded to beat the Piccards up into the stratosphere and they wasn't back to earth when the final whistle split the October air, losing 17 to 9 after the old game looked to be salted away.

Down in Montreal the Ottawa Senators which had already been read outa the party by all and sundry out lasted the Winged Wheelers and grabbed off a surprise win 6 to 4. In order to make the game more interesting, Montreal had consented to let this Mister Johnston play for Ottawa and did he make it interesting? The score board supplies the answer for his catching and running was a big factor in the overthrow of the Montreal gang.

This Sarnia outfit, Mac, may be the team to beat for the Canadian honors. They come close enough last year, and the team that beats them this fall will have to be free from the jitters the whole 60 mins. They ain't a better runner in the game than the veteran Mister Perry, and this here now Mister Bummer Sterling can sure make that old pigskin go places when he swings his educated toe. Now that they've added a battering ram in the person of this Mister Beach, from the U.S.A., the Oilers is plenty tough and I'm not fooling.

Well, Mac, the hookey season is looming up fast. It won't mean much here for a month or 2, but the pros will soon be going to town.

That's all for now. Take it away old-timer.

Sportfully yours,

A WISE CRACKER.

DECREASE IS SHOWN IN MUTUEL BETTING

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 (CP)—Parimutual betting in Canada this season was $20,976,400, a decrease of $4,161,100 from 1933, it was reported yesterday by the Department of Agriculture. This resulted from 295 days of racing, divided between 40 meetings.

The spring meeting at Thorncliffe Park, Toronto, recorded the biggest wagering, $1,305,300; the smallest was a two-day meeting at Red Deer, Alta., $592.

With four tracks and 56 days of racing, Toronto led the wagering with $8,965,500, almost $1,000,000 less than last year. Winnipeg was second with $2,408,000 from three tracks and 35 days of racing; Vancouver third, $2,252,000, three tracks, 42 days; Montreal fourth, $1,261,800, three tracks, 42 days, and Calgary fifth, $580,300, two tracks, 21 days.

FANS FEEL LOSS OF CRONIN VERY POPULAR IN WASHINGTON

Certain Lyn Lary Will Not Fill Ex-Manager's Shoes Either in Field or at Bat

$150,000 BASEBALL DEAL.

By DILLON GRAHAM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP).—Clark Griffith's problem today was to engineer some startling deal that would placate capital baseball fans hereabouts for the sudden sale of the popular young manager and star shortstopper, Joe Cronin.

Cronin, sold to the Boston Red Sox yesterday for an amount estimated variously at between $125,000 and $150,000—new top price for an athlete—was immensely popular with diamond followers here in his American League pennant winning season two years ago. He held the fans during the last campaign, even with his injury-stricken seventh-place club.

Washington fans were wondering whether Griffith had let them down apparently shattering hopes for a great club in 1935.

Inspiring Leader

Not only did the Cronin trade remove from the Senators one of the best infielders in the business but it also took away a battling young manager, with a bag of tricks and an inspirational leadership.

The local fans are certain that Lynford Lary, obtained in the deal from the Red Sox, will not successfully fill Cronin's shoes, either at field or at bat. Although Griffith says he plans to use Lary as a regular, many baseball experts here believe the shortstop will be sent elsewhere or tossed in on another trade.

Need Good Pitcher

The purchase of some star pitcher, such as Schoolboy Rowe, would aid the Senators immensely and might also swerve Washington fans from thoughts of Cronin's going. But as Griffith notes, the established good pitchers aren't for sale, not at prices any sane person would give for them.

The signing of the glamorous Babe Ruth to manage the Nationals would be welcomed in many quarters. It is known that Ruth would like to manage here but whether Griffith wants him or is willing to meet the likely stiff stipend the Babe probably would desire is another question.

Stanley (Bucky) Harris, on the loose now after the Cronin deal, is Griffith thinks highly of Harris, whom he let out in 1928, four years after Harris had led the Senators to world championship. Harris, a Washingtonian, has said he would like nothing better than to boss the home club.

"Hardly Fair" Is Opinion Of Patrick

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27 (CP)—Ruling of President E. A. Gilroy of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, that players who tried out with professional teams and failed to return to their own clubs would be considered pros, drew from Lester Patrick, boss of New York Rangers, the opinion that it was "hardly fair."

"These boys who are the target for the C.A.H.A. ruling were not ripe for professional hockey. They jumped at the chance to go to New York, where I can place them. Now if they fail to make good down there, they cannot come back here and play amateur hockey," he said. "Hardly seems fair, does it?"

Those offered positions in New York included Bert Gardiner, Saskatoon; Joe Cooper and Alex Shibicki, Winnipeg and Neil and Mac Colville, Edmonton; Ray Getliffe, Stratford, and "Babe" Pratt, Kenora, were offered the opportunity but declined. All attended Patrick's hockey school here last week.

Cubs Trade Malone For Young Catcher

CHICAGO, Oct. 27. — Charlie Grimm, manager of Chicago Cubs, and elected to a Vice-Presidency yesterday, made his first move to strengthen the team for 1935 by trading the veteran pitcher, Pat Malone, to St. Louis Cardinals for a promising young catcher, James O'Dae.

O'Dae is 21 years old, a six-footer, and weighs 180 pounds. He played with the Columbus club of the American Association last year, and batted 265 for 111 games.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Cubs yesterday the directors caused a surprise by electing Grimm a Vice-President, thus making him the only office-holding manager in the major league outside of Connie Mack. At the same time the directors elected Philip K. Wrigley, Principal stockholder, to the post of President, succeeding William M. Walker, who resigned last Tuesday after selling his stock to Wrigley.

SET 'EM UP! Bowling Notes and Comment

By Reg. McClavey

G. of C. Alleys expect to get away with their Monday night league this week and new teams should get in touch with the manager immediately. This league is usually one of the good leagues of the city and some high scores may be expected.

000

City League will swing into action next Thursday night at the Duffus Alleys and the boys are hot for a big year. Eight teams have signed up and if there are any others who wish to bowl in this classy aggregation they should get in touch with Bert Duffus as soon as possible.

000

A Mixed League from the Fractional Motors Department of the C.G.E. started last Monday night and some smart bowling featured the opening. Among the high scores for the evening Hall's single of 333 was a standout and for the ladies, G. O'Connell with a three game total of 562, singles of 217 and 224, show the calibre of the bowling to be expected from this league.

000

Y.M.C.A. Senior League had a big week. Scores were not available for the Monday night bowlers but some nice totals were thrown on Wednesday night. Chief George Gimblett holds the high three games for this league with a total of 804, also the high single with 310. High scores on Wednesday were Gimblett, 273, 263, 225—761; Armitage, 236, 217, 259—711. Rickey's Little Phoebes are a pretty smart aggregation in this league and no doubt will be in there when the prize money is distributed.

000

C.G.E. Shop League scores for this week were:

High three games:

Darling	185	338	260—783
Playford	296	186	241—723

High single game:

Darling..338 playford..296

000

Examiner League, as usual, was the scene of some hectic battles this week. Zeihr took the Dunkley boys—including hats—for a merry ride to the tune of a four point win. Roy Taylor took three from Cullen in the highest scoring engagement of the evening. Jerry Cullen bettered Baker's high singles by three pins with a total of 338. Swanston broke even with the Dugan crew and Gray did likewise with Max Glover's team.

High three games:

Gray, F.	226	210	249—685

"Peeney" Mills, catcher and more recently playing-manager of the Belleville Nationals, yesterday announced his definite retirement from baseball. One by one the players who starred in the Central League in those colorful days of the early 20's have withdrawn from the diamond pastime, and the Belleville star's retirement from active play was not unexpected. "Peeney" will not even serve as manage of the team, and if he sees any games in future it will be from the grandstand.

• • • • • •

Belleville's veteran diamond maestro stated that one reason for his decision to retire was his membership on the Ontario Athletic Commission. Besides this, he said, "there are other personal reasons." "Peeney" Mills has been almost a baseball institution in Belleville for two decades. As a youth he took naturally to the game and was playing in senior company as early as 1910. Overseas he played ball with the C.E.F., and on his return joined the old Belleville Grand Trunks in 1919, the first year of the Central League. Besides his outstanding ability as a player, he had much to do with the training of such great hurlers as Freddie Goyer, Jack Williams, Jack Oulette and "Hoot" Gibson. "Peeney" is married and has four children, two boys and two girls. Mrs. Mills stated that she was glad that her husband had decided to drop out of baseball, because he had been so active in the game that they had had no opportunity to have a holiday together.

• • • • • •

The absence of "Peeney" from the Belleville lineup will be keenly felt by local fans. He was just as popular here as he was in his hometown. The question now arises as to who will succeed him as pilot of the Nationals, and the rumor still persists that a new organization in Belleville is anxious to secure control of the club.

Plenty of action is promised fans in this boxing show that Dave Cowan, local ring enthusiast, has arranged for the Kinsmen Club's big Hallowe'en Frolic in the armouries next Wednesday evening. Included in the card are three boxing bouts and a wrestling performance. With a view to getting the fisticuff season off to a good start Promoter Cowan has taken extreme care in selecting the competitors and in matching them. He has chosen the best ring talent and paired them off so that they can display their best efforts.

• • • • • • •

The curtain raiser brings Fred Spencer and Peter Vitarelli, both at 132 pounds, together and this fistic combat promises to get the entertainment off to a great start. When this pair last met, in the "Y" gym in the Spring, Vitarelli had the judges' decision as the winner, but many of the spectators considered that Spencer had earned a draw at the worst. Both lads have been boxing for several years and have been well-trained. Len Minicola and Jack Heffernan, both husky sluggers at 145 pounds, will exchange blows in the second bout. Minicola is one of the hardest hitters in local fistic circles, while Heffernan is a rugged boxer who is staging a comeback after being away from the sport for several seasons.

• • • • • • •

There is a surprise package for fans in the final bout in the person of Harry Jennings, of Rochester, who will oppose Reg McMillan. Little is known of Jennings, but Promoter Cowan states that he has looked up his record and it proves fully that he is capable. McMillan will be remembered as the youth who trounced "Dutch" McIlmoyle last year, and that was but one of his nine successive victories. This flurry will go five two-minute rounds, while the others will be all three-round affairs. Gord Hunter, featherweight and lightweight of British Columbia, will referee the boxing.

• • • • • • •

As another feature attraction on the card Bill Gerow and Stan Peryer, both weighing 190 pounds, will stage a wrestling bout in professional style. The last time this pair put on their show at the "Y" it rolled the spectators right out of their seats with those kind of laughs that test vest buttons. Fred Scates will be the third man in the ring for this entertainment.

Today is an important one to Peterborough's two rugby teams. If the Petes fail to defeat Belleville at Riverside Park in their intermediate O.R.F.U. game they can put away their moleskins in mothballs until next season. If they win they will be Central Ontario champs, will continue on into the playdowns and rugby will enjoy the greatest revival in interest here that it has had since before the war. The Petes have left nothing to chance in preparing for this big fixture, and this column is calling them to win by at least five points.

In Lindsay this afternoon Coach Bamforth's P.C.I. seniors oppose the powerful Lindsay Collegiate team, which appears to be headed for the Central Ontario interscholastic league's championship. The only team that can stop Lindsay from realising its ambition is the light P.C.I. team. Coach Bamforth's squad will give their best but its almost too big a task to expect them to defeat the husky Scugog gridders.

In these days of depression it is well to think of employment before sports. Several local athletes in pursuing this laudable policy have recently accepted jobs at the Ford plant in Windsor. Among them is Doug Hatton, well-known hockey, lacrosse and ball player. It is doubtful if Doug will be back here in time to play with the Petes' intermediate hockey team this year.

• • • • • • •

At the annual meeting of Peterborough Boy Scouts last night, Scoutmaster Ernie Wolff of the 6th St. Peter's troop, urged that scouts be encouraged to take a greater activity in sports. He suggested that a hockey league for scouts be organized for the winter, and that an annual athletic meet be held each Spring. The executive will work on the plan, which was generally approved.

One of the biggest deals in baseball and one which is said to have set a new high money record was announced yesterday in which the Washington club sold Joe Cronin, manager of the Senators, to Boston Red Sox for a cash lump of $125,000 to $150,000 and Bucky Harris. Cronin will be given a five-year contract to manage the Red Sox and at a substantial increase over the salary he received last year from the Senators of $20,000. Red Sox management were not dissatisfied with Harris, who proved a capable manager, but they believe that with Cronin doing the team's short stopping and bringing his fiery leadership into its play that they will win a championship. The Washington management stated they had no desire to get rid of Cronin but they could just not resist the record offer made by Boston.

BABE RUTH MAY PILOT SENATORS

Rumor Has it Clark Griffith Offering Washington Berth to Bambino.

HARRIS AFTER JOB.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. (AP).—Clark Griffith, casting about for a new manager for the Washington Senators, conferred to-day with Bucky Harris, but the club owner was reported to have offered the job already to Babe Ruth.

The conference with Harris, Washington's first pennant winning manager, was a Griffith's instigation. Bucky, who lost his job at Boston through the same move which created the local vacancy—the sensational sale of Joe Cronin—was in a receptive mood.

"I'd give 18 handsprings right here now if Mr. Griffith offered me the job," Harris said.

Foxy old Griffith was reported, however, to have offered Babe Ruth $15,000 a year and a percentage of the game receipts to manage the Senators and play a few innings a day.

Ruth, according to the reports countered with a demand for $300,000 without a cut in the gate receipts, and Griffith was said to have promised to consider the proposal.

Harris has retained his friendship with Griffith since the days when he became the first "boy manager" of the club in 1924 and steered it to two successive pennants and one world championship.

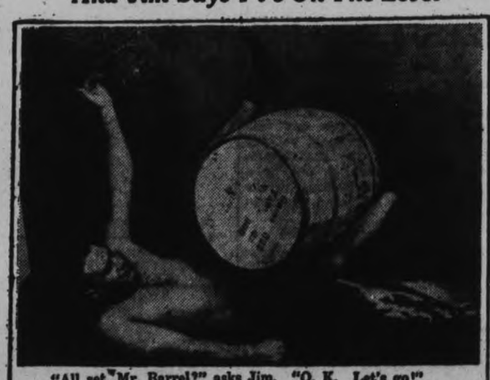
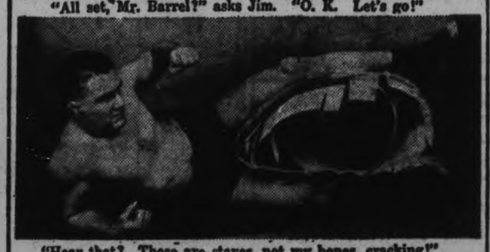
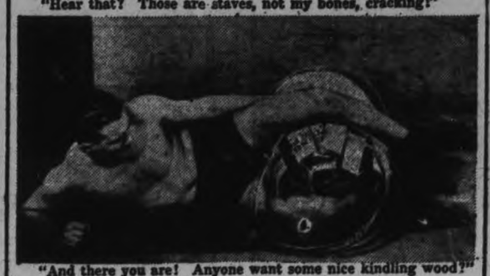
And Jim Says I t's On The Level



"All set, Mr. Barrel?" asks Jim. "O. K. Let's go!"



"Hear that? Those are staves, not my bones, cracking!"



"And there you are! Anyone want some nice kindling wood?"

CHAPTER 15

Tim and Lee took the elevator down to the garage in the basement and with Tim at the wheel swung the long, black detective car out into the street.

On the way Tim asked, "What about Mrs. Reeves' prints?"

"The only ones we've got are the sample we took on the notebook. No, as far as prints are concerned, she never was inside the English House," grunted the inspector.

After that they were silent again until Tim pulled the car up before the House.

University Row was still, lying under a blanket of heat. The sun was sending diagonal rays through the trees and the sidewalk at their feet was splotched with orange light and grotesque shadows. The few students who passed were walking swiftly and spoke almost in whispers.

As they went up to the porch, they heard from an open window above them the brisk tap-tap-tap of a typewriter, probably Ruth Turner's. Sergeant Brown, who had been lounging against a pillar of the porch, came briskly to attention.

"Anything new, sergeant?" asked Lee.

The sergeant grinned. "Nothing much, inspector. The kids have been snooping around most of the afternoon but I guess we've scared 'em away now. Two of 'em tried to sneak into the cellar when Jackson, on the back door, wasn't looking. He yelled and I went back to help him. When we caught 'em, we made believe like we thought they were the murderers and said we were going to arrest 'em. They were out to play some joke on the dumb cops but we fixed 'em. After we finally let 'em go, they must of spread the word around because none of 'em have been hanging around since."

Tim had started a little at the mention of the basement. "You're sure they were students, sergeant?"

"Yeah, they live in that fraternity house up on the corner."

The screen door behind them slammed shut and Miss Edwards walked out on the porch near them. She acknowledged the inspector's greeting absently and hurried in an engrossed manner towards the steps. Abruptly she stopped and turned about as if she had just then realized to whom she spoke. "Inspector," she called peremptorily.

Lee looked at her in surprise. "Inspector," she hurried on, "when are these policemen leaving?"

"I should think you'd be glad to have them here as protection, Miss Edwards," answered Lee quietly, watching her as he spoke.

"Protection? From what? Oh, of course. You mean the murderer. But I don't believe the rest of us are in any danger, inspector, and they make me nervous. They make me feel conspicuous and—and watched."

"I am sorry if they've annoyed you, Miss Edwards. We must keep them on today but I'll talk to Dr. Wilson and maybe we can remove them, tomorrow."

"Oh, they haven't annoyed me, inspector," the uneasy spinster said hastily. "They just—just make me nervous," she finished lamely.

Then as if she wished she had not spoken, she nodded at them all and set off down the steps.

"Now what have you done to her?" questioned Lee of the sergeant when she was out of hearing distance.

"If she's nervous, it ain't our fault." The sergeant spoke with conviction. "I never even saw her before except when she came back from lunch with that dark lookin' fella." That would be Walker, thought Tim.

Lee shrugged. "It doesn't matter. Tim and I are going inside, and we'll be busy so don't bother to tell anyone we're here. Where first, Tim?" he added to the newspaperman.

"Let's walk around back."

At the back door they found Jackson who told with more details and the same amustment the story of the students and the basement.

"Anybody else down there?" asked Tim.

"Just Dan, that caretaker," replied Jackson. "He's been down a couple of times, once for a lawnmower and afterwards for a rake."

"Hmmmm. I wonder. Suppose we go down too," the reporter suggested to Lee. Together they walked toward the basement door.

The cellar entrance, like the rest of the house, was old-fashioned—a double hatchway built over an outside flight of stairs. Tim bent and tugged heavily at the rough boards, throwing one door open. A breath of musty air swept past them as they started down the cracked cementsteps which Dan kept clean. There was the smell of cold, damp earth in the passageway and even when they had come into the cemented basement, the air was cool and still.

Small grated windows set high in the walls let in faint streams of light, enough to show them dark shadows of boxes and bundles.

Tim took a flashlight from his pocket and pressed its catch. The strong, glaring beam played over the ceiling until the reporter found not far ahead of them a large, unshaded electric bulb hanging from the ceiling by a single cord.

Guided by his torch, Tim reached the electric light and pulled it on. Together he and Lee looked about them. In one corner of the basement farthest from the door stood an old furnace, long unused, its pipes unattached and lying behind it. Near it, against the back wall, was a pile of packing boxes and several large bale-like bundles of scrap paper carefully roped.

Against the right wall under the windows stood two large wooden boxes, their lids secured with leather hinges so that they opened like trunks. Tim lifted the lids and peered inside. One held trash and the other unbaled scraps of paper. He shook his head and moved on. A rough worktable stood near the boxes with a small toolbox at one end.

Tim moved by with scarcely a glance, the inspector following curiously. Passing the cellar entrance, Tim stopped before two large cupboards built against the leftwall. The carpenter work was rough and probably Dan's own but both were sturdy, their serviceable doors padlocked shut.

"We haven't any keys," said Lee in a lowered voice, almost as if he feared someone might hear them.

Tim, walking back to the worktable, opened the tool box and searched hastily through its odds and ends until he found a screwdriver. With that he returned to the cupboards.

He set the tool firmly against a screw of the hasp on the lock of the first cupboard door. The screw began to turn slowly, making a slight biting sound as it moved in the wood. No other sound came to their ears except Jackson shuffling his feet as he changed his position on the back porch.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 28

Sunday's horoscope holds presage of a very active and satisfying day in all mystical, religious and cultural pursuits, with the inclinations strong in this direction. But there is a counteracting urge in the direction of romantic, unconventional or unorthodox enticements which may prove not only distracting but baneful and disintegrating.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an eventful and interesting year in which the irregular, unorthodox and curious may be uppermost in their aims and activities. All pertaining to writings and publishings, correspondence and promotion, may flourish but with angles of the intriguing or subtle. Tact, discretion and restraint may be needed to circumvent certain peculiar influences for frustrating and devastation in private affairs.

A child born on this day should be versatile, gay, brilliant, original and ingenious but unconventional tendencies may lead to surprising or harrowing results.

For Monday, October 29

Monday's astrological forecast holds auguries of some very definite menace to affairs in general, probably because of a defiance or challenge to the accepted codes or a breach of the conventional and orthodox laws of society, ethics or business. All may find reactions of a disruptive, disorganizing and disintegrating effect on both business and private life, unless the accepted methods be rigidly adhered to.

Those whose birthday it is are advised of the possibility of some peculiar distressing or surprising development in the affairs of the year, unless they adhere to the strict formulas of the business, social and ethical codes. Laxity or irregularity in this respect, although ncited by high ideals and motives may spell disaster as well as sensational denouements.

A child born on this day, although talented, idealistic and romantic, yet may be changeable, erratic and disposed to shatter all codes to its great detriment.

TRENT RIVER

Mr. William Fisher, township tax collector, distributed tax bills through here on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Archer, and family of Godolphin were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Garneau and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Christie and son Clarence of Toronto were Monday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Garneau and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Glenn and family were recent visitors with Mr and Mrs. William Waters of Donegal.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thain and Miss Helen were Sunday visitors in Trenton with Mrs. Thain's mother, Mrs. Bartley.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Glenn, were Sunday visitors, with friends at Norwood, accompanied home by Mrs. Sam Doupe (formerly of Trent River), who spent a few days with them.

Mrs. Sam Doupe of Norwood, is a visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Thos. W. Brown, West Seymour.

Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald and three children of Carrying Place, have leased Mr. Ward Glenn's farm (formerly owned by the late Mrs. Post) and are moving their household effects this week.

Road construction on the Campbellford-Havelock Highway is nearing completion. Employees are engaged putting in a large culvert south of the school house, while the work of placing guard wires down Nevan's Hill is under way.

The Tyranny of Nerves

Makes You Unhappy

When the nervous system becomes undermined,
You become a victim of many fears.
You are afraid to be alone, afraid to be in crowds.
You are afraid of what is going to happen,
And are consequently always worrying.
Soon you become irritable and unreasonable
And make life unpleasant to those around you.
Headaches, sleeplessness and digestive troubles
Add to your worries.
The clouds grow darker and the fears multiply
Until such time as you restore vigor to the nerves.
As you know this can readily be done
By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
As new strength and confidence are restored,
You regain control of yourself
And fears and worries disappear
To be replaced by good health and happiness.

To Address Meeting

WARD FRENCH

A meeting for the purpose of organizing a Peterborough Community Concert Association will be held at 7 o'clock on Monday evening at the Y.M.C.A. This meeting which will be attended by many local people interested in the project, will be addressed by Ward French, General Manager of the Community Concert Service of New York, with which the Canadian division is affiliated. Similar organizations are now successfully operating in Kitchener, St. Catharines, Hamilton, London and Stratford in Ontario, and in Saint John, Halifax, Moncton, Fredericton and Charlottetown in the Maritime Provinces. It is a no-profit, no-loss plan, which insures at least three major concerts at no financial risk to the community. All those interested are invited to be present at 7 o'clock on Monday evening.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

STATE CONTROLS SALE OF VODKA SOVIET RUSSIA

Mrs. F. E. Robson Addresses Lyceum Club of Art Association.

DESCRIBES RUSSIA.

Churches and Monasteries Are Now Anti-Religious Speaker Declares.

"The state in Russia controls the sale of vodka and they use the money to advertise against its use, showing for instance, how a worker can afford a better apartment if he refrains from drink. The old church and state were hand in hand, and the church controlled the sale of vodka. Banners now proclaim to the world: "Alcohol is the friend of religion," alluding in this way to the church-controlled sale of the liquor....

"Churches and monasteries now are anti-religious. They are plastered with banners bearing inscriptions such as: "Your God is a stupid fairy-tale, invented by the priests," or "The monks are the bloody enemies of the worker." It is forbidden to teach religion to children and no true Communist would risk the severe penalty imposed by his party on members who show any interest in religion."

Mrs. F. E. Robson, now staying for awhile in Toronto, was the very entertaining speaker at yesterday afternoon's initial meeting of the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association for this season, held in the green room and library of the Y.W.C.A., alluded to by the president, Mrs. W. Blackwell, as "very hospitable quarters until we are able to have a permanent home of our own."

Mrs. Robson, a lady of great cheerfulness and a charming manner of presenting an informal talk which centered mainly on experiences while with her husband on a trip to Russia, opened her address by explaining the workings of the Thackeray Weaver, an ingenious horizontal loom invented by the late Major Thackeray of the Indian Army and Elsing Hall, Dereham, Norfolk, England, to allow his wife to weave while she was confined to her bed for some years after very strenuous war endeavors. The loom, of unusual type, aroused the interest of many of the members who are interested in weaving, and Mrs. Robson brought with her many examples of fine woven materials and garments, demonstrating at the same time on her own person a trim suit of blue material, with matching hat and bag, woven on the very convenient loom.

Also accompanying the speaker, and hanging on the walls of the green room, were many pretty flower paintings from her own brush, notable among them a fine bouquet of delicately-shaded petunias.

Dolls of Many Lands

Confessing to a weakness for collecting, indulged in world-wide travel, and an especial fondness for costumed dolls, Mrs. Robson brought along also a nice collection of gaily-attired miniature ladies and gentlemen from other lands, in national dress. There was the fur-clad doll from Siberia, the blonde-haired beauty from Helsingfors, the Russian kulak with his red beard and long brown tunic, accompanied by a pretty Russian peasant girl; the strange doll lady from Java, wearing a queer face mask and gilded head-dress, her body of gilded wood having movable arms and legs, and her long gown of Javanese batik in glowing colors. This doll is one of the "wayang" figures that serve in the shadowgraph imitations of Punch and Judy shows, in far-away Java. There was the Laplander with hand-carved face, the wooden Kaffir doll from Bechuanaland, black and fierce; the rag doll from Benares, and the tiny Hawaiian complete with orange lei.

A very quaint collection comprised copies of the dolls dressed in her childhood by the late Queen Victoria, and now housed in the London Museum.

The enthusiasm of the young people for their land and its plans was referred to several times, and the manner in which, by voluntary labor, they are forwarding such projects as the new Moscow subway and the great Ford factory near Nijni-Novgorod.

Palaces of the Czar and the aristocrats of the old regime are now used for rest cure refuges and creches for children, where the mothers, factory workers for the most part, park their children during the daylight hours, under the supervision of State employees. There is much provision made for sports, amusement and culture, but, in answer to a query, Mrs. Robson said that the state forbids religious instruction and tries as far as possible to drive out the idea of God.

But the older people still worship in the few churches that remain open. One poor couple brought their child to rest in a church overnight while waiting for burial next morning, thus proving that the faith in the church and its sanctuary remains still in the hearts of an older generation.

Women are in charge at many places referred to; in the divorce bureau, where divorces are arranged with facility and ease; as street car conductors, as judges in legal matters.

An Itchy Land

The Russians adore processions and go so far as to organize them for such things as the extermination of fleas, of which, along with other insect pests, the land is full, according to Mrs. Robson's account.

And in Russia, you learn to wait. Hours may pass before food is served in the restaurants and hours pass also while you are waiting for a fresh car to be brought after the one in which you have been riding has broken down for the third or fourth time.

Mrs. Blackwell voiced the appreciation of the meeting to the speaker and also made a few announcements.

Commenting on the excellent program arranged for this season, the president spoke of an extra entertainment on November 8th, when a reception will be held for Miss Katherine E. Wallis of Paris, who is at present on a visit to Canada and her native Peterborough. An exhibition of Miss Wallis' work will be held at the same time, with a display of the etchings of Mr. and Mrs. Armington, Canadians living in Paris.

Mrs. Blackwell referred to the loss suffered by the society in the removal to Toronto of three of its valued members: Mrs. N. D. Seaton, who last year conducted the Literary Study Club; Mrs. N. H. Sutton, convenor of the Guild of Arts and Crafts, and Mrs. R. Gliddon, convenor of the Program committee. At the birthday party of the association, to be held on March 22nd next, Mrs. Gliddon will give a resume of some of the prominent activities of the society.

At the conclusion of the program, tea was served in the library. The first meeting was marked by a large attendance.

Bones Of Mammoth Uncovered In Cavan

Recently we have read about a farmer in Western Ontario plowing up the bones of a prehistoric creature in the shape of a mammoth. It may not be generally known that these had widespread range and some of them at least roamed in this section. An Examiner reader informs us that many years ago some bones of a mammoth were dug up in a gravel pit on the 11th concession of Cavan (about two miles west of Springville), at the turn-off to Fairmount school and church. Our informant says he remembers well as a boy handling a back molar of the mammoth; in perfect condition, but brownish in color. It weighed over a pound and was about three or four inches across the grinding surface.

These animals which are now extinct, were much larger than elephants of the present day, and are believed to have been wiped out by the last of the glacial period which, geologists claim, was at least 50,000 year ago. They are believed to have been co-existent with primitive man.—W.P.

COL. ACKERMAN RETURNED HEAD

REPORTS REVIEWED.

The annual meeting of the Cricket Club was held at the Chamber of Commerce on Friday evening, October 26, there being present Messrs. J. Lawrence, F. Dyer, R. N. Stuart, G. Langhorne, J. Gore, W. Binks, F. Smith, A. Hamilton, S. Lorne, and C. H. Ireson. In the absence of President Col. C. Ackerman, the chair was taken by Vice-President J. Lawrence. Secretary G. Langhorne presented a comprehensive report of the season's activities. Discussion followed on various matters raised in the report, particularly as to obtaining fixtures and the county championship. With reference to the latter, it was strongly felt that some changes should be made, and it was resolved to submit to the older club or clubs concerned that a selection committee of three non-players should be appointed.

Selection of officers followed and the executive for next year is:

President, Col. C. H. Ackerman.
Vice-President, J. Lawrence.
Hon. President, D. F. Hammond.
Hon. Vice-President, H. A. Morrow.
Captain, F. Dyer.
Vice-Captain, J. Gore.
Treasurer, R. N. Stuart.
Secretary, Miles Hamilton (provisionally), with an assistant to be appointed if available.
Ground man, S. Lorne.
Auditors, G. Langhorne and A. Hamilton.

The former secretary, G. Langhorne, wished to be relieved of his duties, and was heartily thanked for his work in that difficult office.

The following gentlemen also as subscribers are patrons of the club: Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, W. H. Bradburn, J. J. Duffus, J. Dutton, D. B. Faulkner, R. M. Glover, C. G. Graham, R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, F. Hills, C. Lacheur, F. D. Kerr, V. J. McElderry, D. G. Melton, E. A. Peck, M.P., E. Rigby, F. L. Roy, H. C. Sootheran, H. Steggles, J. J. Turner, and L. Yeates.

The financial statement of the treasurer, R. N. Stuart, disclosed a satisfactory balance on hand. Votes of thanks were tendered to the officials, to members who had provided cars, the press representative, the caretaker at Nicholls Oval, and particularly to The Examiner for the space and publicity given to the club matches during the past season. It was felt that with the old hands available some promising young players and possible newcomers, the club should have a successful season next year.

SMITH REAPPOINTED

BARRIE, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP) — Arthur W. Smith, Barrie Town Clerk and Treasurer, has been reappointed Justice of the Peace for Barrie, according to official notification received from the Attorney-General's Department.

Mr. Smith had been a Justice of the Peace for several years, and since the recent change in the magisterial system requiring the absence of Magistrate Compton Jeffs from town, he has acted as such.

REV. C. D. DANIEL IS CLUB SPEAKER

Mark Street Church Pastor Addresses Friday Night Supper Members.

"Choose a philosophy of life, regardless of who you are," was the appeal of Rev. C. D. Daniel, pastor of Mark Street United Church, in a talk to the young men of the Friday Night Supper Club at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

Taking a scene from Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice in which Portia, surrounded by her suitors, is trying to make a decision, the speaker contrasted the characteristics of the suitors with those of St. Paul the Apostle. Concluding, he said, "It is not what you like or what you deserve, but what you are willing to hazard that will make your life worth while."

Vice-chairman Al. Heideman introduced Mr. Daniels and a vote of thanks was extended by Tom Allen. Singing during the meeting was in charge of George Broadly and Marvin Hamilton. The attendance was large.

WILL TOUR UNITED STATES.

REGINA, Oct. 26 (C.P.).—Saskatchewan hockey fans will have to wait until after Christmas to see the 1934-35 edition of the Regina Junior Pats in action. The Pats have turned goodwill ambassadors and will leave around November 15 for a tour of the United States, provided the S.A.H.A. and C.A.H.A. will sanction the tour.

The team will make its first appearance at Chicago November 20.

WOMEN, CHILDREN DIED FIGHTING TROOPS IN SPANISH UPRISING

Pierre Van Passen Witneses Insane Struggle of Desperate Peasants.

HORRIBLE SCENE.

(By Pierre Van Paassen, Central Press Caandian Writer)

BARCELONA, Oct. 26.—No trains. No taxicabs. No vehicles of any kind. Restaurants closed. Telegraph office closed. Nothing to be had at the bakeries. The roads to Barcelona reported obstructed by barricades at half a dozen places. Rifle shots ringing out and echoing through the nearby hills as a vividly audible reminder that the land of Spain is seething with revolution from one end to the other. The station platform swarming with nervous and very suspicious custom officials, carabineers, civil guards, detectives, gendarmes, black police, infantry and machine - gunners. Everybody armed to the teeth. Rumors flying thick and fast about massacres in a score of cities. No newspapers to confirm or deny or to give but the slightest clue as to how matters really stand in the country. That is something, but not all, of the predicament in which I found myself three days ago upon being dumped from the Paris-Barcelona express at the Coldu frontier station.

"Better not go on," French officials had warned, a few miles back of the border. "You will never get to Barcelona so long as the general strike lasts. Moreover, you are liable to have your baggage confiscated . . . or lose your life. Lots of stray bullets flying around in Spain these days!"

Battled Whole Regiment

I have come through safely to Barcelona with life and baggage intact . . . but it has been a struggle. My hands are a mass of raw blisters. My shoulders feel as if I had been on the torture-wheel, and in the back of my head is a disturbing, never-to-be-forgotten picture of the barricade at Rosas, where I saw a crowd of half-famished farmers with their wives and children fight an obviously insane battle with the blind courage born of desperation against a whole regiment of infantry.

I walked the first thirty-five kilometers (seven miles), my two heavy grips strapped to my back with ropes, which cut grooves in my shoulders deep enough for a bobsleigh. I had a heavy cudgel by way of walkingstick. No arms of any kind, and fortunately so, for to have been found carrying a revolver would have meant being put up against the wall by one of the patrols who halted and searched me a dozen times. From Rosas I got a ride on a military-truck as far as Gerona. In Gerona I caught a freight and rode into Barcelona like a true hobo, perched on top of a box-car in the signal man's cubicle on the morning of the third day, black as the ace of spades, my eyes filled with soot and grit, having passed through a heavy fusillade by strikers shortly before dawn, having covered the last hundred kilometers in thirty-six hours and not having eaten a thing since leaving France, seventy-six hours before.

Accompanied by Priest

My companion on this perilous odyssey was a priest, one of the most famous scholars of the Catholic world, a member of the Benedictine monastery on Montserrat near Barcelona, whose name figures on the title page of the new translation of the Bible, the first volume of which was offered to the Pope recently. He was returning from the renowned Ecole des Chartes in Paris, where he had spent some months in studying and where he had discovered a process for washing off ancient vellum documents, thus making available the earlier writings underneath the mediaeval ink. We walked from six o'clock the first day till dawn when we were halted outside the town of Figueras by a group of men waving the black flag of anarchism. They searched us and wanted to keep the priest a prisoner, but he argued them out of it by proving that he was a Catalonian nationalist. The monastery of Montserrat, in fact, has always been a citadel of Catalonian nationalism. Books were printed by the monks in the Catalonian language in the days of Alfonso and Primo de Rivera, when it was a crime to be heard speaking in the language. It is not a difficult language, by the way, if you know French and remember a little of Caesar and Cicero.

Suspect Priest is Spy

We heard firing all the way. When we saw an automobile's headlights approach we ducked into the shade and waited till the car had passed. We met no pedestrians at all that first night, but we must have passed twenty or twenty-five trucks loaded with silent soldiers. In the hamlet near Rosas where we arrived about nine in the morning, we could see a barricade from the distance. Once we had seen it, there was no turning back, as a few warning shots rang out to show us that we, too, had been observed. We sat down behind some shrubbery at the side of the road and immediately the firing increased. We could see the bullets spurt up the dust on the road where we had walked a minute before. I knotted a white handkerchief to my stick and waved it above the shrubbery. Immediately the firing ceased and we went back to the road, the priest walking ahead toward the barricades, waving our flag and I following in the role of pack-mule with all the baggage. We were helped across the barrier of vats, ladders, heaps of manure and broken furniture, and then noticed that another barricade, facing south, stood about 100 yards further up the road. The space between the two parapets was swarmed with people, women and children. We were immediately surrounded by a crowd. It was clear from the beginning that the priest was going to have a hard time of it. They apparently took him for a spy. The peasants were in an ugly mood. We were led into a house by the side of the road, which seemed to be a sort of headquarters and where everything was upside down and utter confusion. A bearded man, dressed in rags, and like everybody else, barefooted, questioned us.

Bloody Battle Intervenes

Halfway through the questioning there was an alarm, and everybody ran out to fire off pistols and old rifles. We stayed indoors in that miserable hut where there was but a table and no chairs. Ten minutes later everybody was back and the questioning of the priest was resumed. It gradually assumed the character of a debate but the bitter hostility of the first few moments had begun to cool off, and I felt that in the end we would be allowed to go.

However a second alarm, and not a false one this time, broke up the deliberation for good. There were shouts and cries in the streets. The firing resumed and was now mixed with the crash of exploding hand grenades. Presently a machine gun began to rattle. I took a look outdoors. The whole population was on the barricade. A red flag swayed to and fro in the powder smoke and the dust.

I heard the shrill cry of women above the roar of voices. Men were falling to the ground, wounded and dying. Little children came running back, their eyes wide with horror. A little fellow staggered by, the blood streaming from his nostrils. Another man, a gray-haired peasant, came crawling along on all fours, with incredible rapidity. He was wounded in the abdomen, and left a trail of blood behind him. The priest and I ran out and lifted him into the house. The man wailed in terror and pain.

Fire into Fleeing Mob

I looked outside again. A woman her hair loose, and naked to the waist, was dragging an unconscious youth over the road. She was screaming like an insane person. From the barricade, now wholly wrapt in smoke, came the roar of men shouting something in unison —the flames steadily increased. Flames were shooting up through the pall of smoke. That was the end. The government troops were using "liquid fire." A moment later what was left of the defenders, came pouring back, trampling, elbowing, pushing, smashing each other. Men, women and children, old and young, a harrowing gruesome spectacle. The attackers kept on firing into the rear of that mass. Every shot was a hit. A man right in front of me turned around like a top and plopped down heavily at my feet. A naked little boy dragged a foot along that was an unrecognizable mass of raw, bleeding flesh. Still the firing went on.

I grabbed my stick with the white handkerchief tied to it and stepped out into the road. An old man snatched it out of my hands, flung it down and spat in my face. Then he sat down in a queer way against the wall and began to cough blood.

Past Dead and Dying

The first civil guards appeared with fixed bayonets. The priest ran out, hands in the air, and shouted at the top of his voice to cease firing. He was told to go back indoors. But he did not obey. He knelt by the side of the old man who had spat on me and gently held his head on his knees. Some of the peasants were now surrendering and the firing slackened.

A few minutes later we were questioned by the commander of the government troops. This man, on the strength of the priest's word, allowed us to continue our journey on one of the military trucks, and we started off for Gevona about six in the evening, after having helped to carry some of the wounded indoors.

The most astonishing thing about the whole affair was that neither in the houses, nor among the attacking troops, was there anything to eat.

Officers Installed For Lifford A.Y.P.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, October 27. — The semi-monthly meeting of the Lifford A.Y.P.A., was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ward on Wednesday evening, October 24th, when nineteen members were in attendance. The meeting which was of a devotional nature was in charge of the new president, Robt. Sisson, with Miss Teressa Holden, and Lawrence Staples, as a program committee. The initiation and installation of the newly elected officers occupied considerable time and created keen interest. Following installation the appropriate hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds," was sung. Mr. Karl Monk sang a much appreciated solo.

Miss Teressa Holden was in charge of a Bible picture contest, in which various Biblical scenes were presented for naming, among them being "The Ninety and Nine" and "The Prodigal Son."

Past President Lawrence Staples offered a hearty vote of thanks to the hostess' family for their warm hospitality during the evening, this being the initial visit of the Association to the Ward homestead.

Miss Stephenson, teacher of Lifford School, invited the Society to come to her home at Omemee for their next meeting on November 9.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Omemee Association Will Level Grounds

OMEMEE, Oct. 27. (Examiner Correspondence).—A special meeting of the Athletic Association was called in the council chamber Wednesday evening. A good attendance was present with L. M. Curtiss in the chair. The meeting was held for the purpose of considering the advisibility of having the athletic field levelled at the present time. L. M. Curtiss and R. Moon handed in a report after taking over 150 levels of the field, showing that much work could be done at a small cost. Much discussion took place between those present whether tenders would be let for the work or whether interested farmers would be asked to give a day's work. It was finally voted to spend as much as $100 on the work and that tenders be called for. Then the question of the skating rink was put before the members. Floors in the dressing rooms are urgently needed. The fence needs straightening and strengthening and the ground needs grading. All these improvements were voted, the work to start at once.

Little Stains That Causing Large Crashes

IT was something new for the Black family to go about the house on tiptoe and speak in whispers.

Clara, watching at the window for the nurse saw Ben Hennessee coming in and she hurried to the door to warn him against making a noise.

"Sh—Ben, be very quiet," she cautioned. "Mother is very sick. She was taken with pneumonia in the night and we had to send for a doctor."

"My, I was coming to ask her if she could come and help mother take care of father," Ben muttered. "He's been very sick, too, with pneumonia and mother has been up with him two nights and hasn't had a wink of sleep. She thought perhaps Mrs. Black could come for a little while until she got some sleep so she can hold out. The doctor says the crisis will probably come to-morrow."

For two days Clara stood guard at doors front and back, charged the ice-man not to whistle and the milkman not to rattle his bottles, watched over Jack, kept him supplied with playthings and every few minutes asked him if he wanted a drink, so he wouldn't forget and shout for it.

Alec made it more clear when he told her he had heard the doctor say, "She is safely past the crisis now, and if she has good care, she will get better soon."

"But," added Alec, "we must not tell her yet that Ben's father is gone."

"What!" exclaimed Clara. "Didn't Mrs. Sanders go and help take care of him?"

"Yes, she went and two or three other neighbours went. He had good care. Doctor Bushman said, but he couldn't stand it."

"Why, isn't it strange!" Clara queried with puzzled face. "He was a big, strong man and mother only a slender little woman and she has stood it and he couldn't."

"I guess it's the drink," Alec answered. "He's been a hard drinker and mother has never touched it."

"I'll ask Doctor Bushman," Clara declared, and she did the next time he came.

"Yes," the doctor said. "Pneumonia always goes hard with a drinker. I've had a good many such cases, and I've read about many others in reports from hospitals."

"Why is it?" asked Alec, who was old enough to want to know the reasons for things.

"Well, it's like this," the doctor explained. "Our bodies are made to last pretty nearly a hundred years. Some do last that time. But they must be well taken care of. They are like a delicate machine. Like Alec's watch for example. If he should leave the case open and let dust get in, it wouldn't continue to keep good time very long. Some of the things people take into their bodies are as bad as dust in a watch. Beer and wine and cider and whiskey are some of these things."

"Ben always said his father could drink a lot without its hurting him," Alec remarked.

"He probably meant without its making him drunk," responded Doctor Bushman, "but that is only a part of the harm. When a man is drunk it shows plainly, but that is no sign that the poison doesn't injure him when it doesn't make him drunk. The injury may not show until some big strain, like pneumonia, and then it tells."

"Isn't this an illustration, doctor?" joined in Mr. Black who had come into the room while the doctor was talking. "You remember the rock that fell on the train that was taking a picnic excursion to the lake up there? That rock had been gradually splitting off and no one suspected it because it didn't show any change. But every summer the sand sifted into the crack, which the frost opened further every winter. The crack extended underneath out of sight. That day, just before the excursion train came up, a big freight train went thundering down and the jar finished the split and off she went just as the excursion train was passing."

"A very good illustration," commented the doctor. "The damage had been going on gradually for a long time and none suspected it. That's the way it is with your habitual moderate drinker who doesn't always show the damage by getting drunk. Of course, he doesn't always die from pneumonia, but his drink increases his danger from the disease."

This is one field in particular where scientific investigation has proven that many popular beliefs are without basis. For many years it was believed that alcohol was a tonic and an aid to digestion. Doctors used it widely as a narcotic. Only recently has its usefulness been questioned and limited.

We have already seen that within certain limits alcohol may be considered as a food and as a drug. And so, in the case of sickness it may have these two actions. It may provide needed energy and deaden pain. It is helpful when the sick person cannot digest other foods. During convalescence, however, it has little value as food. In fact, it may lessen the desire of the patient for more nourishing food—food which would not only supply energy but also build up the body.

We have seen from our study of alcohol as a drug that it deceives a person as to his real condition. He feels that he is better. We know from experience that this feeling aids recovery. The appetite is sharpened. Hence alcohol gets its reputation as a tonic. On the other hand, the patient, thinking that he is strong, may over-exert himself.

Let us examine some specific cases in which alcohol is commonly regarded as a useful medicine, first of all, in bringing back to consciousness a person who has fainted. There is no basis in the popular belief that alcohol stimulates the heart. It may make the heart beat faster, but the force of the beats is lessened. Crile, in his experiments on dogs in case of shock, has shown that, according to whether the dose of alcohol was large or small, the result was harmful or ineffective. Any substance which would irritate the throat and mouth passages would do just as well in these cases.

Alcohol was formerly freely used in fighting against infection and in warding off colds and chills. We are told now that small doses of alcohol have no effect one way or the other, but we do know that alcohol does injury to the white coruscles of the blood which fight against disease germs. And since a cold or chill is often the beginning of a serious illness we should be careful not to take anything which would lower our bodily powers of resisting disease.

These are the facts regarding alcohol as a medicine. It use by doctors has greatly diminished in recent years. They have learned from scientific investigation that alcohol is harmful to the body-cells. It is more generally known now that so-called "medicated wines" contain a large percentage of alcohol and may encourage a desire for it. We have many foods prepared particularly for sick people; more modern, and more effective narcotics are used. Alcohol should never be used for medicinal purposes without the consent of a competent doctor.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

I SPEAK only for myself when I say that the more I can feel around me the atmosphere of omnipotence the less I am aware of fear. It is a matter, of course, that one should exclude the other. The sense of being myself, in a measure, the inheritor of omnipotence, as an heir of God and a co-heir with Christ, becomes, therefore, one to cultivate. This I can do only in proportion as I see that my Standard and Example cultivated it before me. In my capacity as a son of God I take as applying to myself the words reported by St. John: 'In most solemn truth I tell you that the Son can do nothing of Himself—He can only do what He sees the Father doing; for whatever He does, that the Son does in like manner.'

"While sayings like these, of which there are many in the New Testament, apply doubtless, in the first place, to Him who best exemplifies the Sonship of God, they must apply, in the second place, I suppose, to all who exemplify the Sonship to any degree whatever. Man is the Son of God; and it is worth noting that He who is specially termed the Son of God is also specially termed the Son of Man. 'Dear friends,' St. John writes elsewhere, 'we are now God's children, but what we are to be in the future has not been fully revealed to us.' I take it, therefore, as no presumption on my part to emphasize in my daily thought my place as a co-heir with Christ, feeling that not only is God's almightiness exercised on my behalf, but that AS MUCH OF IT AS I KNOW HOW TO USE is placed in my hands."—From "The Conquest of Fear," by Basil King (Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.).

Already the first to span the ocean by air from California to Australia—his 1928 feat which brought him International recognition and knighthood—Sir Charles added new laurels to-day by flying from Naselaid Beach, 20 miles from Suva, to this field in 25 hours five minutes—3,197 miles.

OLD MAN WINTER ENTERS ONTARIO OVER WEEK-END

3 FISHERMEN DROWN.

Vessels Rush For Shelter—Many Near Calls to Death.

(By the Canadian Press.)

Chill winds of winter visited Ontario and parts of the United States during the week-end, carrying the season's first real snowfall to practically every part of the province and lashing the lakes into huge waves that capsized two boats and claimed three lives. In some areas of Ontario the snow melted when it struck the earth but in others a white blanket covered the ground as the storm swept down from the north.

Winds whipped the Great Lakes, endangering shipping and sending fishing craft fleeing to port. Lake Erie bore the brunt of the blasts. Lloyd Easterwood, 43 year old fisherman of Lorain, O., was swept to his death in the chill water when a huge wave knocked over a 35-foot fishing tug. Two of the crew were washed ashore while another was rescued by coastguard. Other victims were John Polka, 45, and Mike Leidal, 32, of Detroit, drowned in the Detroit river when their boat upset.

Plane Loses Way.

At Napanee, Ont., an American Airlines plane, en route from New York to Boston, was forced to land because of the snow storm that drove the machine off its course, the pilot landing in a farmer's field without injury to the nine passengers, although the plane was damaged slightly as it came to a stop in a wire fence.

In the Lake Simcoe country around Barrie more than four inches of snow fell and at Ingersoll the fall ranged from two to three inches. The snow extended from North Bay into the Algoma country and Eastward to Ottawa district, where light flurries occurred. Driven by cold winds, the mercury slipped to below the freezing point along the storm's path, lowest reading at Toronto being 29 above zero.

Government Rests Case In Insull Trial

CHICAGO, October 29 (A.P.).—The United States Government to-day rested its case in the trial of Samuel Insull and his 16 co-defendants, accused of mail fraud in the collapse of the $150,000,000 Corporation Securities Company of Chicago.

The end of the Government's evidence came with dramatic suddenness as Dwight H. Green, United States District Attorney, completed reading to the jury the minutes of the last meeting of the Corporation Securities Company, in which it was unanimously voted not to fight the petition of Frank B. Schoenman for the appointment of a receiver for the company.

BACK TO GLORY OF THE CAESARS IS ITALY'S CRY

No Talk of Disarmament as Duce Starts Move to Make Nation Militaristic.

BOYS LATEST RECRUITS.

ROME, Oct. 29 (AP)—The last echo of disarmament talk died out here to-day when Premier Mussolini, resplendent in the uniform of a Fascist warrior, set in motion machinery to make Italy a "militaristic" nation.

Every male Italian between the age of eight and 33 will be trained in the use of arms under the supervision of an inspectorate of pre and post-military service which he inaugurate this afternoon.

"Back to the glory of the Caesars" and "a revival of Sparta" are phrases the press has used to describe the Italy Mussolini intends to forge. Disarmament, which only a few months ago filled columns in the Blackshirt newspapers, found no mention to-day.

Enthusiastic cheers greeted the Premier when he appeared at the Venezia Palace, headquarters of the new inspectorate. A large crowd, composed mostly of men and boys who now will be called upon to take up arms, was gathered outside.

Duce Outlines Reasons

The inauguration consisted chiefly of an address in which Mussolini outlined the reasons that had prompted him to so drastically militarize Italy.

Ranking in importance next to the army, navy and air ministries, the department inaugurated to-day will be the Fascist's government's fourth major military dependency. It will be under Mussolini's personal supervision, as are the ministries.

Its duties will be to put into force the cabinet decree of Sept. 18 which called for institution of compudsory military training extending over almost half the life-span of the average individual.

LAD SURVIVES 60 FOOT TUMBLE

Disappears Playing Football on Edge of Cliff—All Night Search Vain.

FOUND HALF FROZEN.

GLACE BAY, N. S., Oct. 29.—(C.P.).— Twelve hours of agony ended to-day for 13-year-old Daniel McDougall when searchers found him lying just out of reach of the Atlantic breakers at the foot of a cliff near here, half frozen and crippled by a 60-foot fall.

He fell over the cliff while playing football around dusk with some young companions. There was a scrimmage near the cliff's edge, and when they got up the other players say young McDougall was missing. Terror stricken they ran for home.

All night the boy's father, Hugh McDougall, searched for his son, but it was not until this morning that Mrs. Gordon Gillard saw his plight. Her husband jumped into a boat, rowed to the base of the cliff and picked up the half conscious lad.

He was taken to hospital, where he was found to have suffered a dangerous spine injury. His body, battered against the jagged rocks by the waves, was covered with bruises and he was suffering from intense shock and exposure. He was expected, however, to recover.

WIDER CONTROL GRAIN MARKET IS BEING URGED

McFarland Calls to Action in Regulating Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

PROTECTION TO PUBLIC.

Now Most Important Open Grain Futures Market in the World.

OTTAWA, Oct. 29. —(C.P.).— A statement calling for steps to restrict and regulate the operations of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange has been issued by John I. McFarland, head of the Central Selling Agency of the Wheat Pools. The statement was relased simultaneously in Winnipeg and Ottawa to-day.

The Winnipeg Grain Exchange was now the most important open grain futures market in the world Mr. McFarland stated, and it might become the target of "outside destructive speculative forces which are now controlled in their operations on the Chicago Board of Trade."

Protect the Producers.

"I claim,' he said, that as a protection to the public as well as to the producers of this country steps should be taken to restrict and control the operations of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Furthermore such a system of control will prevent a recurrence of the heavy sales of futures in the Winnipeg Exchange as occurred during the past few month.'

It was now evident, said Mr. McFarland, that without government support in the last few years the futures marketing system would have failed in its essential function. He added unprejudiced observers had estimated the benefit of the support of the price structure by the Bennett government to the people of Canada at

THREE DROWNED AS BOAT UPSETS

Mishap in St. Lawrence Occurs as Sailors Are Leaving Sinking Ship.

OWNER ONE OF VICTIMS.

QUEBEC, Oct. 9. —(C.P.).— Three men were believed to have drowned last night, when the small boat in which they were making their escape from the sinking schooner, "Marie Lydia," overturned and they were thrown into the storm-tossed waters of the St. Lawrence river.

Word of the accident was sent to Quebec by Captain F. X. Lavoie, master of the schooner which left Montreal yesterday bound for Levis, Que., with a general cargo.

All of the crew except the three missing men abandoned the boat when fears were held that it would sink in the heavy storm which swept the river Captain Lavoie said he and the remainder of the crew saw the boat containing Joseph Dumon, owner of the ship, his son, Maurice Dumond, and Napoleon Lemieux, a sailor, overturn after being lowered to the surface. He believed the men could not possibly have been saved. They rowed swiftly to the scene of the mishap but saw no sign of them.

Search was made for the missing men by the salvage vessel, Manoir and the Citadel was dispatched from Quebec to the scene immediately on receipt of word of the accident.

Condition of Mrs. C. Christie, Thorold, was reported favorable at St. Catharines hospital this morning. Miss Gladys Smith, Thorold and Miss B. Lonegran, St. Catharines were treated for cuts and bruises and taken to their homes.

Likely Be No Change In The Price Of Beer

Hotels in some other cities of the Province may be planning to raise the prices of their beer in order to meet the heavy license demands of the Commission but local beverage rooms will try to continue the present prices, a canvass this morning indicated. The prices general locally are 20 cents for pint bottles, 30 cents for quarts and 10 cents a draught.

While the hotelmen were not completely reconciled to the heavy scale of license fees and tariffs announced last week several said the scheme appears more reasonable now that it has been elucidated that when first announced. A couple of proprietors still held doubts that they make a profit on their operations with beer at any price.

In regard to the price of beer, the concensus of opinion seems to be that any increase in the price would cut into the volume of business so extensively as to defeat the object.

City Experiences Its First Snowfall

Peterborough experienced the first snowfall of the season over the week-end. The city awoke this morning to find the landscape blanketed with a patchwork of light snow, that followed in the wake of a strong wind that reached gale-like proportions late last night, when the thermometer dipped to a low of 26 degrees. Early this morning the mercury was up ten degrees with the probabilities indicating further snow, according to Walter Peters.

Snow was general throughout the province over the week-end, and at Barrie four inches of snow is reported to have fallen.

VERMILYEA CASE INQUEST DELAY IS PRECEDENT

Will be Followed in Ontario, Says Roebuck—Common in England.

FEAR PREJUDICE.

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (CP)—Admitting that even though such action might be precedent in Ontario, Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, said to-day "There was no particular significance" attached to the postponement of the inquest into the death of Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea until after the trial of her son, Harold, on a charge of murder.

The action, in keeping with provisions of the law which permit such postponements where there is a possibility of the evidence prejudicing the case of the accused, the Attorney-General said, was taken after consultation between the coroner and his department. Furthermore, he said, such a practice, which is common under English law, will be followed in Ontario in similar cases.

Hearing Shortly

"The preliminary hearing will be held shortly before a magistrate, when all necessary witnesses will be produced; when the accused will be present with his counsel and have opportunity of cross-examining these witnesses, which he would not have at a coroner's inquest. This may be precedent in so far as Ontario procedure is concerned, as being the first case of its kind that has ever arisen, yet I think the practice is a good practice to follow. This, however, answers the question asked me, whether this proceeding establishes a precedent or not and I have set out the reason for the procedure in this particular case.

"It is further asked whether the position of the Minister of Health (brother-in-law of the accused) in any way influenced the procedure in this case. The answer to this question is 'No.' The Minister of Health knew nothing whatever about it."

GANDHI RETIRES FROM CONGRESS

Bids Farewell to 80,000 Followers Gathered on Hillside.

STARTS WEEK OF SILENCE.

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 29. —(A.P.).—The Mahatma Gandhi officially retired at dawn to-day from Indian All-Nationalist congress politics.

In a farewell speech he told 80,000 persons crowded together on a hillside for a final session "God knows when I shall speak from this platform again."

The wiry little Ascetic marked the end of his leadership with an hour's speech in support of a scheme for reform of the Congress constitution. His plan was subsequently adopted by an overwhelming vote.

With the exception of one resolution dealing with the use of non-violent means to achieve the ends of the Nationalists, the Mahatma scored a victory all along the line with his programme, granting a few compromises on minor points.

When he left the hall he began observing a week of silence, which cut off eager questions as to his future plans. He is leaving tonight for Wardha, where he will make a tour of India campaigning for the propagation of village industries.

Gandhi said last week he was retiring because he was a dead weight on the Congress and "when the hands holding the reins are those of a sleeping person they are unfit to lead."

His disciple, Madeleine Slade, said in New York the Mahatma "feels he would be freer to act and serve the country officially connected with the Congress."

New Chairman Is Already Named By Government

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Former Minister Of Trade And Commerce, Will Stay With The Conservative Party And Act As Private Member Of Mass Buying Probe.

W. W. KENNEDY OF WINNIPEG APPOINTED AS NEW CHAIRMAN OF ROYAL COMMISSION.

Trouble Been Brewing Between Prime Minister And Mr. Stevens Since Last January; Then Sent In Resignation To Prime Minister.

OTTAWA, Oct. 29.—(CP)—William W. Kennedy, Conservative member for Winnipeg South-Centre, will succeed Hon. H. H. Stevens as head of the Royal Commission investigating mass buying and other business practices. His appointment was announced today by Premier R. B. Bennett, a few hours before the Commission was scheduled to organize.

The Commission will meet in executive session early this afternoon with the new chairman presiding. Public sittings will open tomorrow.

The new chairman was a member of the House of Commons committee that preceded the Commission and, along with all other members, was made a commissioner so the new board could function while parliament was not in session.

A change in the chairmanship was made necessary when Mr. Stevens resigned from the cabinet and the chairmanship of the commission when colleagues criticized him for publishing his famous pamphlet and for statements he made on the public platform.

The country was treated over the week-end to a deluge of lengthy documents which, released to the press, revealed the existence of a conflict between Mr. Bennett and his minister going back to last January. The correspondence was coldly polite, but on both sides it was uncompromising. The net result of it all is that Mr. Stevens, no longer a member of the cabinet, reverts to the status of a private member of the House of Commons. He will continue to sit on the Conservative benches and he retains his membership on the Mass Buying Commission, the chairmanship of which he also had relinquished.

His successor as Minister of Trade and Commerce has not yet been named, although indications are this will be given to Minister of Railways R. J. Manion.

Difficulties Started in January

The difficulties between Mr. Bennett and Mr. Stevens, which culminated in the latter's resignation on Saturday, had their genesis last January when, substituting for the Prime Minister, Mr. Stevens delivered a speech at Toronto in the course of which he vigorously denounced the merchandising practices of department stores. Exception to the speech was taken by the executives of the T. Eaton Co. of Toronto, who challenged his remarks and drew them to the attention of the prime minister.

It is now disclosed that, adhering to what he had said publicly, Mr. Stevens then proffered his resignation to Mr. Bennett. A conference between the two saw that difficulty ironed out. It had for another result the establishment of a parliamentary committee empowered to make a penetrating inquiry into the general conduct of business in Canada.

This was the "committee on Mass Buying and Price Spreads." It sat daily for several months ,summoning before it the responsible heads of many Canadian businesses.

Merchandizing practices and social conditions obtaining in many industries were laid bare, with evidence of a sensational character featuring almost every day's sitting. A vast accumulation of testimony was heaped up, and when Parliament prorogued all the committee reported was a recommendation that its work be continued during recess.

Royal Commission.

Since the members could not act as parliamenterians on a committee when the House was in recess, the committee was transformed into a royal commission, Mr. Stevens continuing as chairman.

Prior to this, however, Mr. Stevens had addressed a Conservative members' study club, in which he spoke on the work of the committee and commented on the disclosures made befort it. He made some strong observations critical of the business practices which had come under his notice. This speech was later embodied in a mimeographed pamphlet for distribution, says Mr. Stevens, among the members of the club. The nature of his remarks, however, leaked out and created a tempest.

On the Prime Minister's orders, the pamphlet was withdrawn following a long-distance telephone call between Mr. Bennett and Mr.

HOWLING GALES BATTER VESSELS ALONG COASTS

Snow Swoops Into Eastern States and Temperatures Fall.

SMALL BOATS MISSING.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (CP)—Blustering advance agents of Winter invaded sections of the United States east and south to-day.

At least six ships suffered in storms off the Atlantic coast; fears were felt for the safety of two men missing in an open boat off the Maine coast, and storm warnings told of high winds and gales from Boston to Hatteras.

Snow fell frequently early to-day in Eastern Pennsylvania, covering the Pocono Mountains with a coat of three to four inches. There were flurries yesterday in parts of New Jersey, New York and New England.

Temperatures dropped to freezing yesterday in Maine and as low as 26 in upstate New York. They reached 37 in New York City and the Weather Bureau predicted they would fall to 30 to-day—the first freezing weather of the season for the Metropolitan area.

Two Ships Collide

A schooner yacht, listing badly off the Virginia Capes, was towed to Newport News. The Buxton Line freighter Seminole and the Colonial oil tanker Haven Belle collided in Newport News harbor. The tanker, her side stove in, went aground but was refloated.

The fishing trawler Exeter wallowed in heavy seas, her rudder lost 90 miles east of Nantucket Lightship with Coastguard craft racing to her assistance. The schooner Theoline was disabled, but was taken in tow by the freighter Empire State and proceeded toward Cape Henry.

Walter Chandler, 30, and Lewis Chandler, 26, missing since Saturday morning in a 26-foot motor were sought off Vinalhaven, Maine.

Seven Bullet Trains Being Built In U.S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Seven more "bullet" trains will be zipping along the rails by next spring, powered by public works administration money.

(By the Canadian Press)

Six persons died through accidents in Ontario during the week-end, four of them in highway mishaps. Snow made travel hazardous on the highways and numerous collisions and other accidents occurred. Scores suffered injuries.

South of Waterford Thomas H. Legg, 48, of London was killed when his car left the road and hit a tree. Miss Melissa McGregor of Toronto was injured. Mrs. Lincoln Durst of Kitchener was killed in a head-on collision a mile and a half south of Mount Forest and six persons were injured. They were James Peacock of Owen Sound, driver of one car, Mrs. Peacock, Ethel Black, Harold Black, Arthur Black and Mr. Durst, driver of the other machine. Peacock was the most seriously injured.

While crossing the road in Toronto, Mrs. Jennie Lines, 37, was struck and killed by James Walls' car. Her granddaughter June Lines, aged eight, was injured, while another granddaughter, Georgine, aged six, jumped to safety. Walls faces a criminal negligence charge.

Fourth auto victim was William Kerr, 83-year-old pioneer of the New Liskeard district, who died when the car he was riding overturned in loose gravel, 10 miles north of New Liskeard. The other accident victims were John Washinsky, 72, who was injured fatally when he fell from a roof in Toronto, and Wilfred Arnold, 22, who died from Burns at London, suffered when gasoline caught fire in a garage at Glencoe.

Bennett Replies to Hon. H. H. Stevens

Premier Outlines in Full Reasons For Accepting His Minister's Resignation.

"I submitted your resignation as a member of the Government and Minister of Trade and Commerce to His Excellency the Governor-General as soon as possibe after its receipt, and am now in a position to advise you of its acceptance.

"In view of the terms of your communications, it is perhaps desirable that I should review the circumstances which resulted in such resignation being submitted and accepted.

"Early this year, the Retail Shoe Dealers' Association invited me to address them at their banquet at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto. As I was making a visit to Calgary I asked you to take my place at the banquet, and you kindly agreed to do so. It was not expected that you would make a declaration of policy on behalf of the Government as your proposed address had not been discussed with me or my colleagues. I informed you that, in my opinion, the press reports of your speech went further in formulating policy, without reference to the head of the Government or his colleagues, than a minister should go under constitutional practice.

"You thereupon wrote me a letter which, for the reasons hereafter mentioned, I do not propose to discuss at length, enclosing your resignation. But at my request you met me in my office and we discussed the whole situation very fully and in the most frank and friendly manner. You made it clear that the address had been prepared in the form in which it was delivered because of special information which you had received shortly before its delivery.

"At the conclusion of our conversation, I indicated that I thought the explanations you had given made it quite clear that it was desirable to deal with the conditions to which you referred and that I would invite the House of Commons at the approaching session to appoint a select committee to investigate the matters we had discussed.

"I invited you to send me a memorandum indicating your view as to what the powers of the select committee should be. As a result of our conversation I treated your letter as though it had not been written, and my understanding was that you were satisfied with that

Kingsford Smith Spends Bad Hour in Storm—Fitzmaurice Turns Back.

JONES PASSES CALCUTTA.

(By The Associated Press)

Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and his navigator neared Honolulu today on a trans-Pacific flight to the United States, while on the other side of the world Colonel James C. Fitzmaurice was turned back on a speed dash from England to Australia.

Sir Charles had covered more than two-thirds of the 3,150 miles from Suva, Fiji Islands, to Honolulu. He reported "a bad hour" this morning when his plane, Lady Southern Cross, passed through a storm. The first leg of his journey was from Brisbane, Australia, to Suva.

Fitzmaurice returned to Lympne Airdrome, England, three hours after he had hopped off from Melbourne when he lost the shield to the undercarriage of his plane.

Two British fliers, Cathcart Jones and Ken W. Waller, were sighted over Calcutta on a returned flight from Melbourne to England. They hoped to better the record of 70 hours, 50 minutes and 50 seconds established recently by C. W. A. Scott and T. Campbell Black on a flight to Melbourne.

Battered in Storm

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29 (AP) —Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith reported "We've just had a bad hour" at 5.15 a.m. (E.S.T.), to-day in which the Lady Southern Cross in which he is flying from Suva, Fiji, to Honolulu was buffeted about in a storm "we couldn't clear at 15,000 feet."

The Navy Radio and Globe Wireless reported.

The message from the plane was: "Just had a bad hour. Saw storm coming that we couldn't clear at 15,000 feet . . . in big rain the . . . air feed failed . . . and in fumbling around the cockpit I knocked the switch for the wing flaps on. Imagine the result. We stalled and spun, but after losing lots of height we got her under control and then found out about the flaps. All OK now and storm passed.'

Both the Navy and Globe failed to get several words in the message. Sir Charles did not give his position with this message.

Making Fast Time

LONDON, Oct. 29 (AP)—Cathcart Jones and Ken W. Waller were sighted over Calcutta to-day on their "boomerang" dash home in an attempt to establish a record for a flight from Melbourn to England.

The fliers reached Singapore nonstop from Port Darwin, Australia, yesterday, covering the 2,084 miles in less than 11 hours, averaging 201.7 miles an hour.

A delay of Port Darwin badly hurt their chance of beating the time of 70 hours, 50 minutes and 50 seconds made last week from England to Melbourne by C. W. A. Scott and T. Campbell Black.

WILLIAM INGRAM TAKES OWN LIFE

Peterborough Man Believed to Have Died From Poison in Stirling.

LEFT NOTE.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 29 (C.P.). — William Ingram, 352 Parkhill Road, Peterborough, died Saturday at Stirling from poison, leaving behind a note, found by Provincial Police, declaring he intended to end it all and disposing of his personal property to his wife.

Ingram, police said, took the poison at the home of Mrs. Fred Hulin, wife of the Stirling postmaster. He then left the Hulin place and died in the Paisley Hotel. Dr H. H. Alger, coroner, of Stirling, view the body, and said an inquest was unnecessary.

It is understood that Ingram has been working in Stirling for the past three months, and the job was nearly finished and he was about to return to his home in Peterborough. The body was taken to the undertaking parlors of Roy Duffin, where it was prepared for burial, and later shipped to Peterborough.

TROUBLE CLOSES A. AND P. STORES

3,200 EMPLOYEES HIT.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 29.—(A.P.) —The great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Compangy closed its 300 Cleveland and suburban stores to-day, automatically cancelling the job of some 2,200 persons.

"Labor trouble" was the explanation.

George L. Hartford, chairman of the company's board, left town with the observation that he believed the company's busines in Cuyahoga (Cleveland) county was "wrecked."

Seven local unions have called upon the grocery chain to agre to unionization. Picketing for A. and P. warehouses began last Thursday. This prevented delivery of goods, the company said. Cancellation of orders to wholesale firms for delivery of merchandise to A. and P. stores followed.

A statewide strike of butchers employed by the A and P. may be sought, an official of the Meat Cutters' Union said at Cincinnati. The union's convention occurs within a week at Columbus.

Petition Mayor.

Caught in the backwash of the wrangle between the A. & P. management and members of the seven unions over unionization and the closed shop, more than 700 managers and clerks employed by the company petitioned Mayor Harry L. Davis last night to use his good offices to return them to work.

The managers and clerks belong to no unions. The workers involved are bakers, meat cutters, engineers, auto mechanics, warehousemen, clerks and firemen. Their number has not been estimated.

LIVESTOCK PRODUCE AND CHEESE QUOTES

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Lower prices for wheat and for most othee grains Saturday in Chicago went hand in hand with disappointing action of foreign markets.

Liverpool wheat quotations made only a feeble response to recoveries Friday on this side of the Atlantic, and there were reports of persistent liberal sales of wheat from France to other Continental European countries. Serving as an additional bearish factor here was word of a Government deal pending whereby a big sale of feedstuffs from Alberta to the United States would be consummated.

Wheat closed easy, ¼c to ⅝c under Friday's finish; May 95⅝c to 95⅞c, corn ⅛c to ½c down, oats ⅜c to ⅝c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, October 29.—It took more than moderate export sales and strength at Liverpool to lift wheat futures prices on the short Saturday session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Selling emanating from Chicago, proved too much for the limited buying power, values closing ⅝ to ¾ cent lower.

Support given by sales of 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat for foreign shipment, best in days, and ⅝ to ¾ pence advances in the English market was unable to absorb the offerings. The October future finished at 75½ cents. December at 76⅛ cents, and May at 80⅞ to 81 cents.

Trading on the decline, however, was slow and volume of transactions small. Reflecting the decreasing country receipts of new-crop wheat, hedging pressure was light. Friday's deliveries at elevators totalled only 1,480,000 bushels. Nothing to influence a market trend was seen in outside news.

Demand again was keen for higher grades of wheat in the cash-grain section, No. 1 hard wheat maintaining a 3½-cent premium over the October future. Coarse grains futures prices held firm in slow trading.

45 NEEDY CASES BEEN CARED FOR BY THE KINSMEN

Sixteen Cases Are Pending at Present—Many Require Spectacles.

ALL EYE CLINIC WORK

Temporary Aid Also Given Number of Those on Relief in City.

Hallowe'en is the night of the big effort of the Kinsmen Club to raise additional funds for the Sunshine Committee treasury for the furtherance of the eye preventive clinic for underprivileged children.

On that night the club is sponsoring a monster program in the Armouries, taking the form of a masquerade carnival, boxing and wrestling bouts, a fashion display by the Canadian Department Stores, games, dancing and a novel clog dancing contest open to the entire district. Thirty-five dollars in cash is being offered in prizes for best fancy and comic costumes, for the lucky door ticket number, and for the clog dancing contest.

During its period of existence in this city, the Kinsmen Club has undertaken a great amount of service work, but until a year ago, the club had committed itself to no definite objective. Deciding upon eye preventive work, as a channel through which it might contribute a great amount of practical good the club enlisted the aid of the school medical officer and nurses, who have been the means of bringing needy cases to the attention of the club in order that they might receive the required attention through the club which would otherwise have gone unprovided for. From time to time the club has made appeals for funds to carry on this work and the response in the past has been as generous as that anticipated for the forthcoming effort.

16 Cases Pending

Since the beginning of the year the Sunshine Committee under chairmanship of Henry Toole, has handled 45 necessitous cases, including thirty protestant and 15 separate school children. In addition sixteen cases are pending.

Treatments were necessitated by eye strain and headache; defective vision, and cross eye, and in addition to the school medical staffs, teachers have also given fullest cooperation in bringing cases to the attention of the club, by reason of the inability of the children to see the blackboard.

Temporary aid has been given to many deserving relief cases, in the repairing of broken glasses and frames and in the changing of lenses where necessary. Several instances were revealed where glasses had not been changed for ten years or more. In all eleven temporary cases were dealt with in the period mentioned.

The total amount expended on behalf of underprivileged children in the providing of eye treatment and glasses, was $192.25, with an additional $50 for the temporary relief cases. The average cost was $4.30 per child, with the greatest single case amounting to $12 and the least being 75 cents. The average age of the children treated was ten years.

One of those who received treatment makes the following acknowledgment in a letter taken from the club files: "Thank you so much for the help you gave me recently. The eye test, getting the pair of rims to fit me, etc., took up quite a bit of your valuable time. These glasses suit me perfectly. It is good to be able to see long distances again without straining my eyes. I have no difficulty in seeing the blackboard at all now, thanks to the Kinsmen Club."

HASTINGS AND PRINCE EDWARD LAYMEN HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Bishop Lyons and Sir Henry Drayton Are Featured Speakers of Evening.

E. KETCHESON, PRESIDENT.

MARMORA, Oct. 29.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual banquet and meeting of the Laymen's Association of Hastings and Prince Edward Deaneries was held in Canterbury Hall, Trenton, on Friday evening, clergy and laymen present numbering about 200.

C. W. Lott, Trenton, retiring president, acted as toastmaster. After "The King" had been submitted an address of welcome was given by F. W. Sherbert, president of St. George's Men's Club, Trenton. "The Church and the Clergy" was ably proposed by Col. A. V. Yates, M.C., Deloro. Col. Yates compared the bishops and clergy to the different ranks of officers in the army and also made eulogistic reference to Sir Henry Drayton, guest speaker of the evening.

Bishop Lyons.

Response to the toast was made by the lord bishop of Ontario. Bishop Lyons touched upon certain impressions left by the recent General Synod. At the sessions those present had been possessed of the thought of the reality of the church and its achievements. When borne down in any parish by the thought of disappointments and the like, if churchmen would look up and have regard to their heritage, the thought would help them to triumph. The bishop also briefly referred to the contribution which the Church of England had made to Empire building and world leadership. "The achievements of the church without any boasting whatever reads like a romance," he continued. "It thrills one to think of her accomplishments under difficulties. This has been brought home to us lately in her efforts on behalf of the Restoration Fund. The church speaks for itself."

Referring to the clergy he said that the burdens of a bishop could not be borne without help of the clergy from the human standpoint. He bespoke the loyalty of the clergy in his own diocese. Speaking of laymen's work, Bishop Lyons remarked that there is the necessity for recognizing the corporate life of the church.

In a few well-chosen words Rural Dean C. C. Winters, of Picton, introduced the next toast, "The Laymen's Association." Response was made by Judge McLean, of Picton, who, following his usual humorous introductory remarks, declared he was proud of the church because he judged her by her works. He commended the practice of training the young to realize what a heritage the church was and left to Sir Henry Drayton the opportunity to more directly reply to the toast.

The Guest Speaker.

Sir Henry Drayton at the outset confessed that he had not deserved many of the tributes paid to him because for years he had led the life of an ordinary layman. "How many of us," he asked, "have shown we have religion? Witness we have made nowhere. Effort we have made nowhere. I was a conscript to the work of the church, pure and simple. I have found out, however, that you get more out of it than out of anything else you do."

Sir Henry then referred to his impressions of the General Synod and touched upon phases of the Restoration Fund campaign, and concluded by reciting a poem recently composed by Edgar Guest and addressed to laymen.

Between the addresses solos were given in pleasing style by Sergt.-Major J. Wibberley, R.C.A.F., and bagpipe selections by A. H. Foster and son.

At the business meeting the election of officers was first carried out. E. E. Ketcheson, Frankford, was elected president, with J. A. Maher, Picton, filling the vice-presidency. J. F. Baker, Bonarlaw, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Next year's meeting will be held either in Stirling or Frankford. Stirling and Bonarlaw reported the formation of new clubs, and Rev. T. H. H. Hall, of the Belleville mission, reported a new club being formed in his territory. The benediction was pronounced by Bishop Lyons.

MARMORA.

Mr. and Mrs. Manson Lee, of Yarker, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Woodhouse.

Miss Effie Knox is on a visit to relatives in New York State.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, of Toronto, spent the week-end with the latter's sister, Mrs. H. R. Haacke.

Mrs. Alex. Kennedy has closed her home for the winter and left this week to spend some time with her sons, Garnet, of Flesherton, and Carman, who is starting in business at Markham.

Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, Col. A. V. Yates, Dr. R. E. Lumsden and W. J. Cottrell attended the laymen's banquet in Trenton on Friday evening.

Warsaw

The Presbyterian W.M.S. meeting held at Mrs. David Rose's home was well attended. Mrs. R. Tedford presided. Mrs. Dunford read part of St. John's Gospel, chapted one. "Send Thou, O Lord, to every place" was sung. The invitation from the United Church to attend the special meeting on November 5 was read and accepted with thanks. The president thanked all who had helped in any way to make Tuesday evening's social a success. Two ladies led in the circle of prayer. Mrs. Munro took the study book lesson, Formost's Jubilee and Looking Forward. The meeting closed with "Hark, the song of jubilee," and benediction by the president.

In Mrs. H. Clements' enforced absence Mrs. T. H. Crowe presided at the Ladies' Aid. The sewing and knitting was finished and some small items of business considered.

The United Church Women's Association met in the S.S. Room on Thursday, and Mrs. George Weller presided. After the opening devotions and routine, reports of results of the annual supper were read, showing a good balance. It was decided to donate a certain amount to the board, and write a note of appreciation to Mr. Somers for his kindly aid whenever needed. No new business was undertaken, and the November meeting will be the annual business meeting. After the close of the meeting ten minutes were given for a berry contest, which proved quite interesting. Several had seven correct, the highest out of twelve. Mrs Fred Sharp, Mrs. McCauley, and Mrs. Robert Matthews served afternoon tea, and some friendly discussions were carried on regarding the work.

Jack Lillie, Toronto, came for Mrs. Lillie and their little son and took them home on Sunday.

James Hawthorne went to Toronto on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, Lindsay, are staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sargent.

Rev. Mr. Daniel of Mark Street United Church, Peterborough, will be at the United Church Y.P. on Tuesday evening next.

About forty members of the local Rebekah Lodge motored to Lindsay on Thursday evening, to celebrate a Get Together night held by the Lindsay Rebekah Lodge. Other lodges represented at the gathering were from Havelock, Campbellford, Millbrook, Smiths Falls and Toronto. The lodges rooms were crowded. The Past Grands' Degree staff of Lindsay, under Degree Captain Past Deputy Grand Master Fred Thomas, initiated three new members into the Order, in an impressive ceremony. The visitors received a hearty welcome and special welcome and place of honor was accorded also to the Assembly secretary, Miss Violet Pierce of Toronto, the Past President, Mrs. Mary Thomas of Lindsay, the District Deputy, Mrs. Hazel Heckman of Peterborough, and the District Deputy President, Mr. Charles Wylie of Peterborough. At the close of the regular session, a pleasing program was presented with Mrs. Heckman as chairman. Two comical sketches were presented, the first by Havelock Lodge members, the second by Campbellford Lodge. The service of dainty refreshments brought a pleasant evening to a finish. Those who motored from Peterborough were: Mr. and Mrs. C. Wylie, Mr. and Mrs. King, Mr. and Mrs. B. MacLean, Mr. and Mrs. B. Murduff, Mr. and Mrs. H. Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. E. Stanley, Mrs. W. H. A jolly Hallowe'en Masquerade party was held in St. Luke's parish hall on Thursday evening, the young people of Warsaw being guests of the local branch of the A.Y.P.A. The hall was tastefully decorated with Hallowe'en colors and novelties by members of the society, under the Misses Phyllis Starr and Jean McCauley. The program consisted of games, contests, a treasure hunt and dancing, well arranged by the president, Mr. Roland Krant. During intermissions, vocal solos were given by Mr. J. "Curly" Gibson, and were much appreciated. The costumes, many and varied, caused the judges considerable difficulty. The judges, the Rev. and Mrs. G. J. Bousfield, Mrs. S. McCauley, Mrs. H. Wickenden and Miss R. Wickenden, finally gave the prizes to the following: Mrs. F. Clifford of Warsaw, first, Miss Clemena Long, second; Mr. Robert Woodward, first for men, and the comic prize to Mr. Elmer Pearse. Music was supplied by Mr. B. Lacey. Among those present were the following: Mrs. F. Clifford (Grandma); Mrs. C. Cooper and Mrs. E. Cooper (Old Fashioned Ladies); Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. W. Thompson (Pumpkin); the Misses Dorothy Davis, Edith Wills, Daisy Tice, Ola McCauley and Jean McCauley (old-fashioned girls); Gwen Lough (Japanese lady), Dorothy Ellis, Audrey Williamson, Phyllis Starr, Dorothy Lipsett, Lottie Bolton and M. The Show Committee of the Peterborough Horticultural Society held the third of a series of euchre parties at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Harris of 207 Perry street. A very large gathering of members and friends enjoyed nine tables of euchre, with closely contested results. Ladies winning prizes were Mrs. A. Spenceley of the city and Mrs. W. G. Henderson of Keene, and men were Messrs. W. G. Henderson, W. G. P. Benton, H. Gabbutt and W. C. Wilks. A fine program of musical items was given by Messrs. J. Smith, F. Biddle, W. Gray, A. Spenceley and D. Grant, with repeated applause for their efforts. Instrumentalists of the evening were Messrs. J. A. Smith, piano; F. Clarke, guitar; W. G. P. Benton, banjo; H. McCannan, harmonica. The service of refreshments brought the evening to a close. A much-welcomed group of friends from Keene was present. Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Henderson of Keene extended an invitation to the committee to hold the next bridge party at their home and this was accepted with pleasure. The vote of thanks to the hosts was moved by Mr. Al Spenceley, seconded by Mr. D. Grant and supported by Mr. J. A. Smith, who acted as Master of Ceremonies for the evening.

A delightfully jolly Hallowe'en party was held on Friday evening, when Mrs. W. K. Sloane of Lock street, lent her home to the King's Own Bible Class of St. James' United Sunday School. The spirit of Hallowe'en, with pumpkins, black cats and witches as surely abroad, for more than fifty class members and friends, came in masquerade. The hostess and her committee welcomed and ushered the guests into the prettily decorated living rooms, through which they marched to music in grand parade and were viewed by the judges, Mrs. A. Wilson and Miss Margaret Kidd. The judging proved to be a real problem, but the trophies were carried away by Mrs. William Atkinson for best costume as a lady of the late Eighties, and Mrs. Gordon Adams, of the best comic, dressed as a gentleman. A series of Hallowe'en stunts, games and contests was carried out by the program committee, with Mrs. L. V. Wood as convenor. Among these was a jelly-bean guessing contest, won by Mrs. Rutherford and an "Imp" contest, won by Miss Kidd. There were also a "witches' flight," "fortunes" and "fairy winds," all greatly enjoyed, and everyone entering wholeheartedly into the fun. The dining table and buffet decorations, as well as the viands, were in keeping with the Hallowe'en spirit; a lighted cut-out pumpkin was the centrepiece, while the flowers in the large bowl of marigolds, larkspur and forget-me-nots were gathered that day, by Mrs. Sloane from her own garden. The buffet refreshments served by Mrs. Spurway and committee was a happy climax to the very successful evening.

The big event of this week will be the Hallowe'en Carnival in the Armouries on Wednesday night, under auspices of the Kinsmen Club. The program is ambitious and very entertaining, with something for everyone, in the way of entertianment. There will be square and round dancing, boxing bouts, the masquerade proper, with prizes for costumes in several classes, and a clog dancing contest which promises to be a unique attraction. Grant Gordon's Orchestra from Bancroft has been engaged to provide music for modern and old-time dancing.

Mrs. H. W. Morphet lent her home on Hunter Street West, on Friday afternoon, for a tea held under auspices of St. John's Church Women's Association. The ladies were received by the hostess and her daughter, Mrs. F. E. Hooper, who is president of the organization. They were ushered by Mrs. R. E. Clarke to the tea room, where arrangements were in charge of Mrs. George Wesley. Tea was poured by Mrs. E. W. Borbridge and Miss Margaret English, assisted by Mrs. Carl Campbell, Mrs. D. Melton, Mrs. E. J. Davies, and Mrs. C. H. Crowe. The table was prettily arranged with a lace cloth centered by a crystal vase filled with bronze chrysanthemums, and ivory candles. A "Touch and Take" tables was supervised by Miss Margaret Borbridge and Miss Mildred Morphet, while Mrs. W. M. Lang, Mrs. W. H. Ashby, and Miss Jane Layfield were in charge of a sale of home-made cooking. Mrs. W. J. Preston acted as treasurer.

The ladies of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held a very pleasant Hallowe'en tea on Friday afternoon in the kindergarten room of the school, arranged appropriately with seasonal colors and novelties. The guests were received by the president, Mrs. E. L. Telford, and Mrs. H. Tremain. Decorations of the rooms were looked after by Mrs. G. Kingdon, while Mrs. H. Tremain and Mrs. R. Ross were in charge of the arrangements of the head table, which was very prettily done with button 'mums and orange candles in black holders. Tea was poured by Mrs. R. Parnell and Miss Ellen Eagleson and ladies in charge of the six smaller tables, also decorated with bud vases of 'mums, were Mesdames Seal, Pidgeon, Foster, Patterson, Crompton, Smith, Wood, Morrow, Bateson, McIntyre, Browne and Miss L. Foote. Mrs. S. F. Touchburn was in charge of the small tables. A sale of home-made cooking was in charge of Mesdames Elliott and Bell, while the sale of candy was supervised by Mesdames Kingdon, Curtis, Rogers, and the fish-pond was looked after by Mesdames Nelson and Hales. The treasurer was Mrs. W. Rogers. A pleasant program included vocal duets by Mrs. L. H. Ingram and Mrs. H. R. Scott, accompanied by Mrs. W. Purdy, a vocal solo by Miss Mary Sedgewick, with piano accompaniment by Miss Emma Lou Chenhall, and incidental piano music by Mr. Cyril Rice.

On Saturday night, Miss Violet Davidson of Antrim Street entertained the Junior Mission Band of St. Paul's Church, of which she is president, at a jolly Hallowe'en masquerade. About thirty-five children were present, all dressed in costume for the occasion. Costumes were judged by Miss E. MacVannel. The prize for the fancy dress was won by June Pidgeon, dressed as a fairy. The most original costume was worn by Dorothy Ross, dressed as a Russian soldier. The prizes for the funniest costumes went to Charles Seal, dressed as a Chinaman, and Peter McNabb, dressed as a pirate. The bcntest prize was won by Joyce Powers. Assisting Miss Davidson were Miss "Pat" McClellan (who acted as a ghost for part of the evening), Miss Dorothy Morrow and Miss Margaret Morgan. Those present were: The Misses Dorothy Ross, June Pidgeon, Joan Magee, Margaret Flett, Shirley King, Betty Barr, Nancy Barr, Lenore Fleetwood, Frances Latimer, Helen Miller, Agnes Hele, Joyce Powers, Audrey Metcalfe, Joyce Ray, Norma Peters, June Peters, Audrey Purdy, Margery Pearse, Barbara Reid, Grace Ellison, Rose Fletcher, Mary Nesbitt, Margaret Vincent, Katherine Hall, Gloria Lowney, Florence Simmons, Marion Bateson, and Messrs. SIMPLE SCHOOL DRESS

Gay wool challis print in bright red ground printed in navy, made this smart little school dress. The belt and shoulder bow are navy blue grosgrain ribbon.

To make it! Just a simple collarless bodice with sleeves that cut in one with the shoulders. The skirt has a front and back section to be seamed and then it is joined to the bodice. It's so entirely simple, perhaps daughter can make it herself.

Plaided angora woolen, patterned or plain wool crepe, Scotch plaided gingham, Roman striped cotton print, etc., are other nice suggestions.

Stye No. 3447 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 35-inch material with ½ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

All Hallowe'en, the 31st of October, seems to be the night out of all the spirits. Witches are supposed to ride across the sky on their broomsticks with their black cats beside them. Tricky sprites and elves of all kinds are abroad to wreek mischief. The wise old owl sits in his tree and views the sights, wailing "Who-o-o! in the darkness—a very spooky sound.

* * * * * * *

Everybody should have a party for it is an old English custom to mark the night by cracking nuts, ducking for apples in a tub of water, and other harmless pranks which can make a party very enjoyable. The harvest is in, the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock. So Hallowe'en may also be celebrated as a harvest time festival.

* * * * * * *

All the fall colors may be used by the host and hostess in plannng their decorations for a Hallowe'en party. Autumn leaves and corn shocks make the house pretty, while pumpkins, preferably made into impish looking jack o' lanterns, witches and black cats, owls and ghosts, may peer at the guests from unexpected corners of dimly lighted rooms.

* * * * * * *

Here are a few suggestions for dressing up your home for the party: A big black umbrella may be inserted in the fireplace or other convenient place and eyes, nose, mouth, ears and whiskers pasted on it to make a huge cat's head. A victrola may be dressed up in a sheet, to look like a ghost, and turned on to talk or sing and startle and amuse.

* * * * * * *

If someone can tell fortunes or read palms or hand writing your guests will be delighted, for nothing is so popular a pastime as dipping into the future. Don't try to tell anyone harrowing stories, for even if your friends profess not to be in the least bit superstitious, the nervous one among them may be unpleasanty affected by too blood curdling yarns. And never tell them or allow them to be told to children.

* * * * * * *

And of course the refreshments of the party are by no means the least important part of it. The suggestions offered yesterday and the day before should work in very well. We hope everybody has a nice party and here's best wishes for a happy Hallowe'en.

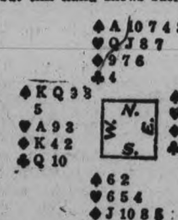
SHUTTING OUT AN ACE

It is not often that the declarer has an opportunity to force an adversary to lose an ace at no trumps, but this hand shows such a case.



Bidding went: West, 1-spade; East, 2-clubs; West, 2-spades; East, 4-no trumps; West, 5-no trumps; East, 6-no trumps, rather than 6-clubs, to obtain a higher score.

The opening lead was the 5 of diamonds. The declarer's ace won. He led his lone J of spades. North did not feel like putting his ace on the first lead of the suit. He played the 3. Dummy's Q of clubs won the next trick, and declarer's J of clubs overtook dummy's return lead of the same suit. Two added leads of clubs were made. Dummy discarded two small spades, and so did North.

The seventh and eighth tricks were run off by clearing out the two top diamonds. Both opponents followed suit. East still held 2 good clubs. He ran off one of them for his ninth straight trick. On it went dummy's lowest heart. North let go the 10 of spades. At the end of the ninth trick the holdings about the table were as shown. East began to see the possibility of a grand slam, provided North held the ace of spades and the Q-J of hearts.

East led his last club. South let

East led his last club. South let go his last spade. Dummy discarded the Q of spades. What will North do?

Evidently North must hold the ace of spades, with dummy's K showing plus the ace of hearts as a card of sure entry. North had to hold the ace of spades, he let go his lowest heart and trusted that South could stop hearts with one of the two missing honors, the K-10.

The ace of hearts won the next trick. The 9 of hearts was covered with North's Q. Declarer's K won the twelfth trick and his last 10 of hearts won the last trick for a grand slam.

QUEEN MARY

A very enjoyable and well-attended Hallowe'en party was held in the school hall on Friday evening.

The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada" and a few minutes were devoted to the hearing of reports and other items of business. The banner went to Miss Cairn's room.

This was followed by a very interesting showing of pictures on the "Ferguson Highway" which was much enjoyed by all.

A grand march of those in costume afforded much amusement. Many original and comic costumes were displayed and the judges found theirs a difficult task in awarding the prizes.

A treat of candy was much appreciated by the children and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

SPARE THE SQUIRREL

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 29 (CP).—The hunting season opens soon, and trainmen on the Huttonsville branch of the Western Maryland Railroad are asking hunters to spare a certain gray squirrel which lives in a tree beside the tracks.

For nearly a year, the trainmen say, the squirrel has come out of its nest daily as each train passes to wave a friendly greeting with its bushy tail.

Aged Man Combs Moncton For 4th Wife Still Hopeful After 2 "Regular Devils"

MONCTON, N.B., October 29 (C. P.). — An elderly man who has had three wives, two of whom were "regular devils," is in Moncton looking over the railway city girls in the hope of finding a fourth.

He stopped Police Officer Fred Randall.

"Can you find me a wife?" he asked.

Officer Randall smiled good-naturedly.

"I am quite in earnest," the visitor went on. "I have had three wives. The last two I had were kind of hard to manage; in fact, they were regular devils. I may appear to be old, but I have still got a lot of pep in me yet."

"Well, now," replied the policeman, "that is a pretty hard request to fill. Of course, there are lots of fine-looking girls and women hereabouts, and while you have come to the right place I would advise you to look around and see what you can find for yourself. Why not advertise in the newspaper? They bring results."

The greying searcher for a sharer of his joys and sorrows thought this good advice, but remarked:

"Well, I'm going to stay around for a while longer but I'm going to get one, by heck! I have been here four days looking them over."

IN AID OF A GOOD CAUSE.

The opportunity is afforded by the Kinsmen's Carnival in the Armouries on Wednesday night for a community celebration of Hallowe'en and at the same time for the co-operation of the public in a very fine piece of community service.

The Kinsmen's organization has been carrying on the decidedly necessary—but up to their assumption of the responsibility—very much neglected task of seeing to it that under-privileged children with defective vision are provided with the necessary glasses.

The importance of that work can be readily appreciated; there are numerous children who would be sadly handicapped at school by reason of bad vision if suitable glasses were not available, and in many cases, owing to the unusual economic conditions, the parents find it impossible to provide the money necessary for the purchase of glasses.

The Kinsmen's Club has been coming to the rescue in these cases, and as a result several score of children during the past year have been fitted out with glasses, and are better in health and more proficient in their school work as a result.

Incidentally this splendid service has not been confined to children, for the organization has been able to come to the help of a number of adults who were badly in need of glasses and without the means to purchase them.

There will be a big night's fun at this Hallowe'en Carnival, and with the proceeds all going to this most deserving cause the patronage should be worthy of the occasion.

IMPORTANT BROADCASTS.

In a recent message to Hon. Ernest Lapointe, president of the League of Nations Society in Canada, His Majesty the King expressed his earnest belief that "for the promotion of peace and co-operation between peoples public opinion in all countries should thoroughly understand and appreciate the activities of the League in the task of maintaining, through collective international action, peace and good order in the world."

Canadians should remember His Majesty's words in view of the fact that on Thursday night of this week at 9.15 o'clock Miss Winnifred Kydd, president of the National Council of Women and member of the National Council of the League of Nations Society in Canada, will give the first radio broadcast in a nation-wide series of weekly addresses under the auspices of the League of Nations Society on "The Collective System of Security and What It Means." This series is in connection with the second study project launched by the League on the subject, "A Collective System Policy for Canada."

Nov. 8—Professor F. H. Soward on "International Order in the Pacific."

Nov. 15—Principal W. H. Fyfe, "Education and Peace."

Nov. 22—Dean P. E. Corbett, "The Battle for International Organizations."

Nov. 29—Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., on "The World Court and the Collective System."

These addresses and others that will be announced later should be of interest and profit to Canadians generally, and it is to be hoped will have an air audience worthy of their importance.

KINGSTON FALLS IN LINE.

Kingston is joining the ranks of Ontario cities which have decided that raw milk shall not be allowed to be sold.

The Council in the Limestone City has appointed a special committee to revise Kingston's milk by-law and to prepare a compulsory pasteurization by-law, the early passing of which is assured.

There is no more important question from a health viewpoint than this matter of a safe milk supply, and probably no more valuable factor in ensuring such safety than compulsory pasteurization, so that Kingston is to be congratulated upon making the health of its citizens its first consideration.

While pasteurization still has its critics, the consensus of opinion is strongly in favor of this method of protection, and the vast majority of health authorities have no hesitation in declaring that it is both beneficial and necessary.

When it is realized that 15 per cent. of all cases of tuberculosis among children can be traced to milk infection and that the same source is responsible for the transmission of other diseases to human beings, and it is further understood that proper pasteurization removes all danger of infection, the adoption of such a safeguard becomes a matter of simple common sense.

For years it has been forbidden to feed unpasteurized whey to livestock, yet we go on allowing raw milk to be supplied to human beings without interference so far as the province is concerned; the responsibility for action being left to the municipalities, and many of them have been callously neglectful in this regard.

THE STEVENS SENSATION.

Although Mr. Stevens himself is quoted as saying that "a lot of foolish noise has been made about a trifling incident," the resignation of the Minister of Trade and Commerce from the Bennett Cabinet and from the chairmanship of the price spreads and mass buying investigation committee is one of the biggest political sensations in years.

To the man on the street there seems to be no other interpretation of the Cabinet criticism of Mr. Stevens than that the "big interests" have successfully used their influence on the Government and have forced the resignation of the man who was leading the fight for a new deal in business and industry.

That is what the average citizen seems to think of the affair, and because of that impression the withdrawal of the Minister of Trade and Commerce is regarded as a calamity.

A very large section of the Canadian people have looked upon Mr. Stevens as a statesman who has been fighting for the "under dog," who has brought to light conditions that call for redress, and who has not hesitated to go after big and influential firms in the interest of their employees and of the buying public.

That being the case, they are resentful of the developments of the last few days, and are of the opinion that even if Mr. Stevens had been ill-advised to comment upon some of the features of the investigation before the work of the committee was completed, this at its worst was a technical error, and in view of the importance of the issues under consideration and of the sincerity of purpose displayed by the probe chairman, could easily have been overlooked by the Government.

It is interesting to recall that Mr. King, the Liberal leader, made a great point of this angle of the question in the recent by-elections, attacking Mr. Stevens for impropriety in pre-judging a case over which he was presiding as a royal commissioner; the Bennett Cabinet has now accepted the view of the opposition leader and has condemned the probe chairman for the alleged offence stressed by Mr. King in his campaign speeches.

From the viewpoint of the general public, the thing that really matters now is the manner in which the investigation is completed. If there are indications that the lid is being shut down and that the same vigor in digging into the set-up of big business concerns is not in evidence, the feeling that the probe has been throttled will be, of course, confirmed.

From Premier Bennett there is a somewhat reassuring statement that Mr. Stevens has the right to remain as a member of the probe committee, to indicate what witnesses he wants called and to develop whatever evidence he desires to bring to light, so that the former Minister will still be in a position to set the pace for the investigation if he accepts the Prime Minister's view of the situation.

The future sessions of the probe commission, which resumes to-day, will be followed with the greatest interest by the whole country, and if there are any indications of soft-pedalling or of the application of the gag the public will be quick to detect the trend.

Outside of its effect upon the investigation the resignation of Mr. Stevens will be regretted by many Canadians. The feeling has been general that he was one of the strongest men in the Bennett administration, and these are times when the services of strong men in Government are most desirable and most necessary.

AID FOR THE FARMERS.

Farmers who have been complaining about the high interest rates they must pay on mortgages and on old debts at a time when they are receiving low prices for produce they must sell are likely to find some relief under amendments to the Canadian Farm Loan Act and the new Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act. Although the latter act was passed at the last session of Parliament, together with enabling amendments to the Farm Loan Act, the probable results and benefits are just now being appreciated.

The general effect is almost certain to be a gradual reduction in mortgage interest rates. While the provisions of the acts referred to apply to farmers only, yet almost all mortgage money is certain to feel the effect in time. Mortgage companies and private lenders who must accept a rate of five and one-half per cent. on farm property are not likely to demand or receive a greater percentage on urban property loans. The whole movement is directed by the lower interest rates which prevail to-day in all money markets.

In the case of the farmer with reasonable assets above all outstanding liabilities the new legislation will enable him to consolidate his indebtedness under one head, and at the same time he may write off considerable of the principal. This may be achieved by paying off with cash his notes and liens given for machinery, seeds, stock or fertilizers. Many companies holding such notes have standing offers of a substantial discount on principal where cash is received for the entire amount.

In the case of mortgages the farmer paying seven per cent., or more, can apply for a loan under the Canadian Farm Loan Act, and when he tenders payment on the original mortgage this payment must be accepted with only a threemonths-interest premium. Or the original mortgage may be renewed at the lesser interest rate. A more liberal valuation of assets for the purposes of second mortgages to buy new machinery, stock, seeds, fertilizers or other necessities, also is provided for in the amendments.

To help the farmers consolidate their debts and act as receivers between the farmers and their creditors Parliament instituted the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act. A local board is being set up in practically every county and to these the farmer faced with bankruptcy as a result of a mass of debts may apply, after he has failed to arrive at some compromise by his own efforts. The Farm Loan Board provides the means for his taking advantage of whatever arrangement may be worked out.

Both acts are now in operation in Quebec and some other provinces of the Dominion. Ontario has not passed legislation to come under the Farm Loan Act, but the Agricultural Development Board carries out much the same functions for the Ontario farmer.

The whole effect is likely to ease considerably the farmers' burden. Not only by reducing interest rates, but by making conditions of payment easier, giving him cash for repairs and new stock and relieving the worry resulting from a multitude of small debts.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If there is no difference between the boys at the Mimico and Bowmanville schools, as Mr. Croll says, the latter has been operating under false colors for years and the service clubs have been the goats.

The big question in baseball circles seems to be, "Where is Babe Ruth going next year?" Not to the poorhouse anyway, it is safe to assert.

Some person threatens to burn Mayor Stewart's home if coal is not supplied to Toronto families on relief. Positions of authority have been drawbacks in this day and age.

Mr. Barthou's death is thought now to have been due to a faulty tourniquet. Europe doesn't need eight-year-old soldiers; it needs Boy Scouts.—Detroit News.

Perhaps the reason why the Germans don't see anything ridiculous in Nazism is that everybody marches and nobody sees the parade.—Toronto Saturday Night.

An Omaha man says he heard a banker make the same speech 50 times. It's enough to make him abandon the idea of securing the loan.—Thomaston (Ga.) Times.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

WIARTON, ONTARIO

Local history is very vague concerning origin of the name of the town but it is presumed to have been taken from the birthplace of Sir Edmund Walker Head, who was governor-general at the time the town was surveyed. It will be remembered that Edmundston, N.B., was named for the governor-general, as well.

Sir Edmund was born at Wiarton Place, near Maidstone, Kent, England.

A Thought

THE SOUL OF MAN

"As the soul is the man, and the material body only his house while upon earth, a man is never really buried; no human being since the world began has ever yet been buried. Man is where his conscious being is—his memory, his love, his imagination; and since these cannot be put into the grave, the man is never put there; hence, the commotion notion of a burial is a gross material idea, unpoetic, unscriptural, a striking proof of the small amount of spirituality current in the popular religious creed. —Leo H. Grindon.

Sunday Teachers Honored By Members

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 29 (Examiner Correspondence)—An altogether informal and profitable time was spent last evening, when the officers and teachers of St. Andrew's Sunday School gathered in the church parlor to honor two of their most valued teachers, namely Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Robinson, who in the immediate future leave Campbellford to take up new duties in another charge.

The sincere regard of their friends was expressed in the language of the hymn "Blest be the Tie That Binds." Many other grand old hymns of the church were sung, accompanied by Miss Margaret McGregor. On behalf of the teachers, Mr. Harold Dunk, superintendent of the Sunday School then read an address of appreciation of the services of the honored guests, and Mrs. Connor presented to Mrs. Robinson an electric coffee percolator. It was particularly fitting that one who has rendered so many years of faithful service in the Beginner's Department of the Sunday School, should have been chosen to make the presentation. Mrs. Robinson, most suitably expressed her heartfelt thanks for the manifested good will of those present. Refreshments were then served, after which Mr. Robinson spoke of the work that had given him most joy during his ministry in Campbellford. Speaking of Mr. H. Dunk in terms of higest appreciation of the work that he is doing in the Sunday School, he besought the teachers to be steadfast in prayerful loyalty to their leader, and also to the man who should come as minister to St. Andrew's. After Rev. Robinson's impressive address, prayer was offered that God's abundant blessing might rest upon him and his helper in the new charge to which they are going. The benedictory prayer was made by Mr. Robinson, after which the teachers individually bade farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Robinson wishing them God's best for the future.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

AGITATORS IN AN ALE HOUSE

On this date, in 1767 the first demand for a house of assembly was made at Quebec. The fact that the meeting was held in a tavern gave Sir Guy Carleton and his officials opportunity to sneer at the "agitators in an ale house." Although Carleton's instructions had told him to "summon and call a general assembly of the freeholders" he had done nothing, not considering the time ripe and discountenancing any move therefor by the British merchants. Indeed, he felt quite bitter on the subject, writing to London the following January: "I imagined they had laid aside all thoughts of the kind till lately one John McCord, who wants neither sense nor honesty, and formerly kept a small ale house in the poor suburbs of a little country town in the north of Ireland, appearing zealous for the Presbyterian faith and having made a little money, has gained some credit among people of his sort. This person purchased some spots of ground and procured grants of more close to the barracks, where he run up sheds and placed poor people to sell his spirits to the soldiers. Finding that his lucrative trade has lately been checked by inclosing the barracks to prevent the soldiers getting drunk all hours of the day and night he has commenced Patriot and, with the assistance of the late Attorney General' (George Suckling) and three of four more, egged on by letters from home, are at work again for an assembly and purpose having it signed by all they can influence."

Carleton told London that "the better class of Canadians (meaning the French) fear nothing more than popular assemblies which would render the people refractory and insolent." In spite of that a petition to the king was signed by 81 persons asking for an assembly, but Carleton countered with another petition with over 50 signatures, including many seigniors, in opposition to any assembly. Carleton went to England in 1770, but on October 30, 1773, a meeting in the tavern of Miles Prentice by vote of 38 to 3, asked for an assembly, only to be met by the taunt of Cramahe, the administrator, that it was "the product of an ale house." These gubernatorial sneers were absurd since at that time and for many years afterwards there were no places where meetings could be held but the taverns.

WATERSPOUTS AT BUFFALO.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Five huge waterspouts swirled into Buffalo harbor from Lake Erie today and tumbled sea gulls about like confetti before crashing against the sea-wall and docks.

Heavy snow was falling at the time, but this did not prevent many persons from sighting the spouts 100 to 500 feet high.

MINING LIST HOLDS STEADY

Senior Gold Shares Again in Slow Demand in Toronto Trading.

SILVERS INACTIVE.

TORONTO, October 29 (C.P.).—The mining section of the Toronto Exchange jogged along at a quiet pace to-day with buying selective and the price tone over the board barely steady. All groups had their soft issues. Senior gold shares were again in slow trade and outside of Eldorado the silvers were out of the picture. In substantal turnover Eldorado took a loss of a few cents.

In the morning session Teck-Hughes sold back to $3.90, but recovered nearly all the loss before the close. Lake Shore closed 25 cents down at 53 25, while Hollinger and Pioneer had narrow gains, and the bid for Dome was raised slightly.

SHAFT SINKING AT BIRRELL MINES

Dr. S. J. Graham Returns From Visit to Birrell Gold Mines.

Birrell Gold Mines is rapidly shaping up as one of the prospective mines of the Quebec fields, according to Dr. S. J. Graham who, along with D. J. Hirst, the president and six others, just returned from Noranda this morning. Shaft-sinking is proceeding on schedule and the two-compartment shaft is now down 30 ft. The vein material extends the full width of the shaft with the north wall not determined. On surface at the shaft, mineralization extends north of the break for 43 feet. The mineralization increased with depth in the shaft and practically every round shows numerous samples of fine free gold. At a depth of 20 ft. a quartz vein showed in the foot of the shaft and at 30 ft. this has widened to 3 ft. It is believed to be the same vein as traced 400 ft. on surface further west and which the Dom. Dept. of Mines bulk sampling showed to run $25.90 to the ton. The full width of milling ore at the shaft head is known to be 12 ft. and it is believed this widens greatly at depth as the last drill core showed 90 ft. of mineralization with the bottom still in ore. Prominent engineers in the Noranda section look to Birrell Gold to develop into one of the very large mines of the Quebec field.

Growers Are Kicking About Tobacco Price

LEAMINGTON, Ont., Oct 29.—With one grower terming the price "rotten" general disappointment is felt among growers of flue-cured tobacco in this district at the average price of 24.77 cents per pound set for this year's crop.

"If the manufacturers were not making any more money than the farmers, there would be no kick," said a second man. "But when they can give bonuses like they have, it just doesn't go."

DOMINION PROVINCIAL PARLEY DATE UNDECIDED

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 (C.P.).—Difficulties are being encountered by the Dominion Government in fixing the date for the Dominion-Provincial conference to deal with suggested amendments to the British North America Act owing to the fact the Provincial governments have widely different ideas as to the most suitable time. The Saskatchewan Legislature, for instance, meets in November and a November conference, while favored by other provinces, would not be convenient for Saskatchewan.

No change has been made in the plans so far as the actual holding of the conference is concerned. Invitations were issued some time ago and some correspondence has been exchanged with the Provincial Premiers.

WILL NEVER KNOW DEFEAT

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 29 (CP)—Rev. A. Gordon A. Sisco of Sarnia, speaking at the Lincoln Road United Church here, said Hon. H. H. Stevens will never know defeat if he pursues the ideals which he has shown he possesses.

"It is true that he has been thwarted, but if he pursues the ideals which have prompted him to undertake his important work I known he shall never experience defeat," said Mr. Sisco.

NEW BEER REGULATIONS.

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—(C.P.)—New regulations governing sale of beer in Ontario beverage rooms will be announced to-night, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said to-day.

Members of the cabinet met with the Premier and Edmond G. Odette, Ontario Liquor Commissioner in private session to-day, and a tentative statement was submitted to the commissioner, the Premier said. Mr. Hepburn declined to discuss phases of the new regulations which will go into effect with the new selling authorities Nov 1.

Short-Handed Queen's Squad Gamely Battle Varsity

Invading Toronto determined to repeat their surprise win of the first meeting, Coach Teddy Reeve's grimly fighting Queen's University gridders threw the highly touted Varsity squad back on their heels in an Intercollegiate tilt, before losing the struggle by a 7 to 6 score. The result left Varsity and the Kingstonians tied for league leadership. Reeve's squad was faced with a shortage of material, but made up in gameness for their lack of numbers.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, October 29 (C.P.).—Dullness gripped the share market to-day and, except for a few specialties, prices ruled narrow. Transfers which approximated only 350,000 shares, were the smallest in nearly a month. Allied Chemical, Jewel Tea and Universal Leaf Tobacco were scattered firm spots. Pivotal issues like U.S. Steel, American Telephone, Santa Fe, General Motors, and Consolidated Gas were about even.

Dread Macedon Rebel Captured In Turkey

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 29. — (A.P.).—Ivan Mihailoff, leader of the dreaded Macedonian revolutionaries sought in connection with the slaying of King Alexander of Yugo Slavia, has been arrested in Turkey ,said advices reaching diplomatic circles to-day from Istanbul.

Both Mihailoff and his wife were taken into custory, according to the advices. They recently fled from Bulgaria to Turkey.

It was reported both Bulgaria and Yugoslavia are demanding Mihailoff's extradition for murder on charges that he prepared Alexander's assassination at Marseille.

QUEBEC MASS MURDER VICTIMS LAID TO REST

QUEBEC, Oct. 29.—(C.P.), — Funeral services for the six victims of Quebec's mass shooting tragedy for which Rosaire Bilodeau, a relative of five of the victims, is being held by the police, were held her to-day in different parts of the city.

Obsequies for the Misses Aurelia and Leonida Bilodeau, sisters of Rosaire Bilodeau, and for his two nephews and his niece, Gaston, Fernand and Yvette Gauvin, slain in the woods at St. Therese De Beauport, took the form of a joint service with requiem mass being chanted in Holy Spirit Church in Limiolou ward where the family were parish members.

CHEQUE TEN YEARS LATE WILL GET NEEDED CASH

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct. 29.—(C.P.) —In June 1919 Harry Collins, treasurer of the Canadian Patriotic Fund of Chatham, issued a cheque for $14 to Mrs. Jessie Lewis, a colored woman of Rondeau, whose husband enlisted for service in the World War. The cheque was mislaid and in September of this year Mrs. Lewis found it, and presented it at the bank for payment.

The Chatham fund was closed 10 years ago, but Mr. Collins forwarded the cheque to Ottawa, where it was decided to waive the statute of limitations and pay the money.

Mr. Lewis survived the war, but it is understood that as a result of his service he is in ill health, and the $14 is badly needed by the family.

WANTED IN WHITBY.

WINDSOR, —Wanted in Whitby on a charge of non-support, George Duncan, 45, was picked up by provincial police over the week-end and will be returned to that town.

FORD A LOSES GROUND TO-DAY

Early Morning Gains Lost as New York Board Shows No Sign of Firming.

BRAZILIAN DOWN.

TORONTO, Oct. 29. — (CP) — Prices worked lower in quiet trading on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange today. The board had substantial sprinkling of narrow gains at the end of the morning session but these evaporated in the afternoon as the New York market showed no signs of firming. Ford A, Walker's Common, Distillers Seagrams and Brazilian lost ground with the turnover around normal.

A morning statement of Walkers earnings suggested income of better than $4 net sent the common up to 24½ but selling in the afternoon cut the price to 23 for a loss of a full point. Distillers closed at 12⅜, down ⅝ and Industrial Alcohol dropped ⅛. Brewery shares showed little change. Nickel weakened ⅛ and Ford ¼.

LACK OF CASH MAY DELAY TRIAL OF MAC TEMPLES

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 29. — (CP)—Frank MacTemple, and his son Fred, may not go on trial at the Fall Assizes opening here today for the murder of Police Constable Colin McGregor, May 7 last.

Application will be made by the defence to Mr. Justice Henderson, who is presiding at the court to have the trial deferred.

W. M. Blain, St. Thomas and Fred R. Barnum, Aylmer, who were directed by the Crown to act as counsel for the MacTemples, maintain that they have not been able to prepare a proper defence, holding that no money had been made available for this purpose by the department until recently and the time given has not been sufficient to permit them to line up evidence which they claim is available and essential to guarantee a fair trial for the accused men.

BRANTFORDITES REGRET STEVENS' RESIGNATION

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 29. — (C.P.).—Telegrams expressing regret over the resignation of Hon. H. H. Stevens from the Cabinet and from the Mass Buying Inquiry Commission chairmanship have gone out from Brantford over the signature of Walter L. Wells, president of the Brantford branch of the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario.

In a telegram to Mr. Stevens, Mr. Wells voiced the regret of the association that he had resigned, particularly at this time, but expressing the hope that Mr. Stevens' service might still be retained on the commission.

To Prime Minister Bennett, in another telegram, it was suggested that Mr. Stevens' resignation be not accepted.

"We regret very much the circumstances that brought about the resignation of Mr Stevens. He was certainly the right man in the right place," Mr. Wells declared.

Russian scientists who were rescued recently from Wrangel Island, had intended to stay only two years but ice held them there for five.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (C.P.).—Hogs lost 10 cents on the Toronto livestock market this afternoon as salesmen failed to boost early levels which had opened the division. Cattle trading, while active on stockers, was almost at a standstill on killers, with no butchers sold up to mid-afternoon. Calves, sheep and lambs all sold steady.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion livestock branch were: Cattle 5,640, calves 1,580, hogs 1,260, sheep and lambs 3,850.

A few weighty steers sold to exporters at $4.60 to $5.25, while good heavy bulls also went to exporters at $2.25 to $2.75. Bologna bulls sold at $2. Cows held steady at $1.75 to $2 for butchers. Fed calves ranged from $4.75 to $7, according to quality. Good stockers and feeders went at $2.75 to $3.40, while others sold down to $2.75.

Hogs were 10 cents lower at $7.50 f.o.b. for bacons, $7.90 off truck and $8.25 off car.

The calf division remained unchanged at $6.50 to $7 for choice vealers and at $2.50 to $2.75 for grassers. Odd tops for choice went to $7.50. Heavy westerns were not selling.

Lambs held at last week's highs of $6.25 to $6.40 for good ewes and wethers. Bucks, culls and heavies brought $5 to $6. Sheep steadied to $1 to $2.75 cwt.

WHOLE WORKING LIFE OF ITALY NOW ON PARADE THROUGH ROME

Preparing for Nov. 10 When Duce Installs New System of Cooperative Government.

MANY NEW BOARDS.

BY JOHN LLOYD

Associated Press Foreign Staff

ROME, Oct. 29. —(AP)— Italy's working life, industrial, agricultural commercial and professional, is parading through Rome in preparation for the innovation of Nov. 10, when Il Duce is to install his new system of corporative government.

Workers and employers in every line of activity, from all points of the peninsula, are flying into the capital to set up the lesser organizations which will go into the making of the corporations. Almost every day there is at least one national congress—of workers or employers—to organize federations of confederations of industry and allied endeavors.

Six thousand concerns, employing 355,000 workers, were represented in the first national assembly of the Fascist federation of Metallurgic and Mechanical industries, recently held.

Nine Divisions

National industries, apart from agricultural and kindred activities, are divided into nine headings under the corporative system, with a separate corporation for each classification. These are:

1. The textile industry. 2, the metallurgic and mechanical industries. 3, The chemicial industries. 4, Clothing manufacture. 5, Paper and printing industries. 6, Building activities, including public works. 7, Water, gas and electricity. 8, Mining. 9, Glass and pottery manufacture.

In each of the industrial corporations there will be a board consisting of an equal number of employers and workers, two to five government - appointed technical experts and three representatives of the Fascist party. The largest board will be that of the Metallurgic and Mechanical corporation, which will have 28 representatives of capital and 28 of labor.

The industrial corporations will be represented by 344 of the 739 persons making up the general assembly of all 22 corporations. The assembly will hold its first meeting Nov. 10, when Il Duce will appear.

SEE CALAMITY IN STEVENS ACT

Letter to Bennett States Alarm of National Shoe Retailers.

PAINTED KEY TO NEW ERA.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 29. —(C.P.) —Rowland Hill, jr., president of the National Shoe Retailers Association in a telegram to Right Hon. R. B. Bennett, describes the retirement of Hon. T. H. Stevens as chairman of the price spreads commission as 'nothing short of a national calamity.

It was before the National Shoe Retailers Association Convention in Toronto last January, Mr. Stevens made his speech as the opening gun in the mass buying probe.

Mr. Hill's wire, on behalf of the association was as follows: "Newspaper reports of removal of Hon. H. H. Stevens as head of the price spreads inquiry creating considerable alarm among retail shoe men. On account of Mr. Stevens remarkable speech being made at the National Shoe Retailers Convention last January, Retail Shoe Men from coast to the coast have watched with intense interest and sincere admiration Mr. Stevens' efforts to help bring into being a new era of fair and ethical merchandising methods. We consider his removal at this time as chairman of the committee as nothing short of a national calamity."

86 CASES PARALYSIS

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (CP)—Dr. J. E. Laxton of the City's Department of Health, to-day reported four new cases of infantile paralysis, bringing the total number of cases reported since the beginning of August to 86.

Officials said they were confident cold weather would halt the disease.

Pastors In Germany See Dark Future

BY JOHN A. BOUMAN

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Insurgent Protestant pastors showed no inclination to rejoice today over apparent advances over the forces of their foe, Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller, but instead painted a dark picture of the future.

On the first Sunday since the resignation of Dr. August Jaeger as commissioner for Protestant churches in Prussia, manifestoes were read from many pulpits declaring independence from Mueller's German Christian church.

Jaeger's resignation was considered a victory for rebel church forces, as was the refusal of Chancellor Hitler last week to take the scheduled oath of fealty from Mueller and Bishops.

ESSEX LOSES PIONEER.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 29. —(C.P.)— Mrs. Catherine McCann, a resident of Essex county for more than 80 years, will be buried on Tuesday at Maidstone. A native of Tipperary County, Ireland, Mrs. McCann died on Saturday at St. Thomas at the age of 94 years.

Three sons, one daughter, 19 grand-children, 36 great grand-children and five great, great-grand children survive.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—For a college boy of 19, Alfred H. Brauer is a model husband. He does what his wife tells him, and refrains from doing what she tells him not to.

It may surprise you, then, that he was arrested here for thinking about stealing a $2,500 fur coat for Miss Selma Underwood 18, whom he had driven to Chicago in a stolen car from Purdue University at Lafayette, Ind. It shouldn't.

He followed her instructions to the letter when she told him to leave Duke University at Durham, N.C., for Purdue to escape the romantic Selma. Having no instructions to the contrary, however, he sent for Selma to come to Purdue.

Mrs. Brauer said nothing about stealing cars. Her obedient husband, therefore, can hardly be blamed for stealing one and bringing Selma to Chicago. Breaking fur shop windows for fur coats for romantic young ladies hadn't been forbidden, either. You see? It isn't surprising that police arrested the scrawny couple yesterday in front of the furrier's.

SPANISH REVOLUTION VIEWED AS REVOLT AGAINST FASCISM

African Mercenaries Wreak Vengeasce on Populace for Army's Cruelty.

WORSE THAN VIENNA.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

BARCELONA, Oct. 29.—A relative quiet prevails in Barcelona at last, after ten days of bitter fighting in the streets. The Fascists are marching up and down the main streets singing songs of victory. But the general strike goes on, and over in the province of the Asturias the miners are holding an army of 26,000 Arabs from Africa in check who are bombarding them with heavy artillery, bombing planes and poison gas. It is impossible to say whether the stillness in Barcelona is the end of the civil war, or merely a lull in the storm and, as such, the harbinger of a fiercer tempest to come.

"The revolution is liquidated," Premier Leroux announced from Madrid. "The revolution' has just begun," said Largo Caballero, the Socialist chief, to me yesterday, a few hours before he was arrested. One thing is certain, the official communiques which the Madrid government sends into the world do not reflect the real situation in the country. The assurance that all is peaceful and lovely are mere pious wishes. Even this afternoon a bridge was dynamited here and leaped into the air with a terrific crash at the moment when a Fascist procession marched across. The aeroplanes which bombed the working class districts a few hours every day are still overhead.

Over in Asturias a massacre is in progress. The Arab mercenaries and the first division of the Spanish Foreign Legion, which have been brought over from North Africa, are burning entire villages, chasing women and children into the flames. The roads are lined with bullet-riddled corpses.

Revolt Against Fascism

This is a hundred times worse than Vienna in February, but in the main it's the same story of the betrayal of democracy. There are really two revolts going on simultaneously. The Catalonians are fighting for secession, for national freedom. The Socialists are fighting to save the republic and democratic freedom. Both groups took alarm and revolted when Premier Leroux, upon assuming the administration of the country after the fall of the Samper cabinet on October 4, took several Fascists into his cabinet. These Fascists are leagued with the royalists and are outspoken enemies of the republic. Their first measure was to restore the payment of a state salary to the Catholic clergy, thereby winning the powerful Catholic party to their side.

The revolt was an attempt to prevent a triumph of Fascism in Spain. The triumph of Fascism would have been impossible without the aid of the government and the whole state apparatus. In the critical hour, moreover, the Liberals capitulated and deserted the banners of the people. What has happened in Germany, in Italy and in Austria has happened here in Spain; Fascism did not conquer power. But power was placed in its hands.

Yet the change to a Fascist government does not come as easily here as in those other countries. In the Basque provinces, near the French border on the west, the cannon is still thundering. Troops are cut off as the one railway bridge after the other goes up. The industrial workers in Elbar have occupied the munition factories and have captured seventeen batteries of artillery.

Arabs Seeking Revenge

Here in Catalonia the general strikes goes on. Even villages with 200 inhabitants are on strike. No food is coming into town at all. Long queues of people stand in front of the bakeries, but most of the time they are sent away without having obtained bread. Soldiers are now baking bread, but they are obviously growing tired. Several regiments have mutinied. They have been disarmed and are confined to barracks, guarded by colored troops from Africa. Pedestrians are forbidden to enter the neighborhoods where these barracks are located. Heavy artillery and machine guns are trained on the buildings in which the munition troops are held prisoner.

An inconceivably ghastly situation is developing wherever Arabs, Moors, Berbers and negroes are being used against the population. These troops are wreaking vengeance on the helpless working class districts for the cruelty the native populations in Africa have experienced at the hands of Spanish troops. The Spanish Foreign Legion has a sinister reputation in North Africa.

Soldiers are manning the post and the telegraph offices. But the wires are down everywhere. Today an attempt was made by the military to deliver mail. It cost fourteen soldiers their lives. In the skirmish that developed between striking postal employees and the military, two women who watched the scrap from an upstairs window were deliberately shot by the troops. Their bodies lay in the street this afternoon as I passed. By way of revenge, the district where the small engagement took place was raked with machine gun fire by a flock of combat aeroplanes.

Growing More Bitter

Shopkeepers are required to keep their places of business open. A fine of 20,000 pesetas is imposed if they don't. Electric window display must also function at full capacity, by order of the government, and automobile owners have been commanded to drive up and down the streets in order to give the appearance of normal times. But street cars, one about every hour, driven by soldiers, proceed at a snail's pace. They are completely empty and not one of them has yet made the trip from the one end of the town to the other without having its windows riddled with shot.

Facades of many buildings are damaged by gunfire. In the government buildings here and in Madrid not a window remains. All the jails are full to overcrowding, but also the hospitals and the morgues. Human life isn't worth a cent in Spain these days. Instead of growing calmer, I would say that the combat is growing more bitter. No quarter is given or expected.

Premier Leroux may say that the revolution is liquidated, but the workers are not returning to the factories. The thing is turning into a mass demonstration of passive resistance. If the strikers can maintain discipline and hold out, they may yet force the government to its knees. They can do so only by avoiding violence. Violence is what the government wants from them. This may be seen in the rural regions where the two million anarchist farm laborers whose organization permits and advocates indivdiual acts of violence, are being repressed, community after community, with a frocity unparalleled since the Commune in Paris in 1871.

British Members Rush Dying Session

By George Hambleton.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Oct. 9. —(C. P. Cable —Parliament re-assembles to-morrow for a three weeks' fight against time. As the Government is anxious to open the new parliament on Nov. 20 free use of the guillotine rule may be necessary to curtail eloquence in the last session of the dying parliament.

The sedition bill which faces strenuous opposition has passed the report and third reading stages in the Commons, and all stages in the Lords, but Liberal and Labour peers are scheming to defeat the bill by making speeches on hundreds of amendments.

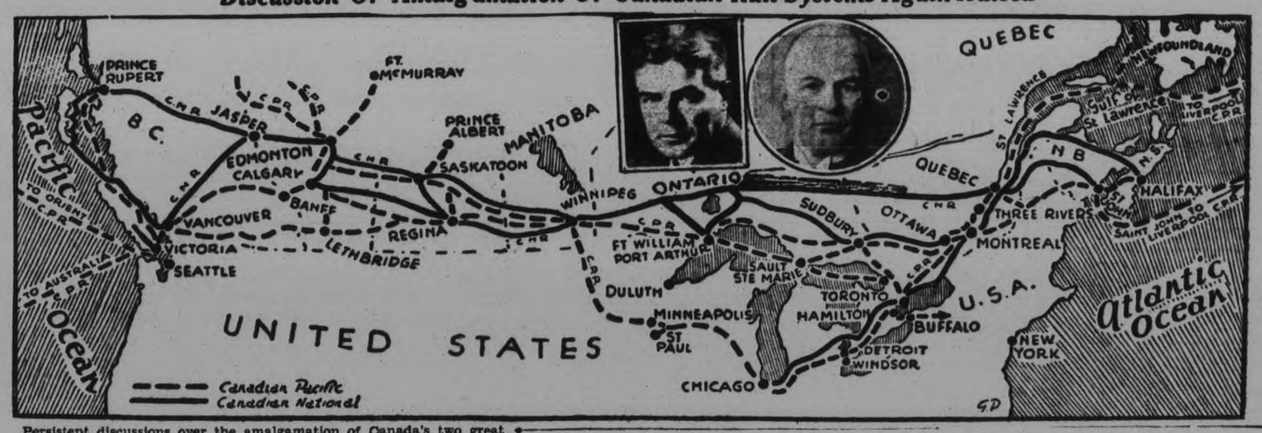
The betting bill is to be taken from the committee where it has made little progress and submitted to the whole house.

The bill giving a new constitution to India will be the main business of the new session opening November 20.

KILLED IN CRASH.

ALEXANDRIA, Ont., Oct. 29 (CP) — Louis Levas, 23, was instantly killed and his brother, Hermas, and Miss Anna Viau, were injured when an automobile Louis was driving got out of control and overturned near here last night. A fourth occupant, Real Lacombe, escaped injury.

Discussion Of Amalgamation Of Canadian Rail Systems Again Raised



Persistent discussions over the amalgamation of Canada's two great railway systems, the government-owned Canadian National and the privately-owned Canadian Pacific was given a new lease of life when E. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R., and Hon. C. P. Fullerton, chairman of the board of trustees of the C.N.R., entered into a short debate through newspaper columns as to the merits and demerits of amalgamation. President Beatty is strongly in favor of a merger, declaring that it would be a great saving to Canada. Mr. Fullerton replies that Mr. Beatty's claim of saving Canada fifty to seventy-five million dollars is greatly exaggerated, and criticizes Mr. Beatty's plan. The map ABOVE shows a part of the routes of the two great systems, largest in the world. E. W. Beatty is shown LEFT and Hon. C. P. Fullerton, K.C., RIGHT.

LOCAL MACHINE GUN COMPANY RETAINS CHALLENGE SHIELD

Col. Dewart Compliments Battalion in Presenting Shield to Local Company.

AT ANNUAL DINNER

Judged on their performance during the past training season, C Company under command of Major James Turnbull, were again declared winners for the second successive year of the Dewart Challenge Shield presented by Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., Officer Commanding the 4th Machine Gun Battalion, for annual inter-company competition.

The trophy was formally presented by Colonel Dewart, at the annual dinner of the local machine gunners held at the Armouries on Saturday and was accepted on behalf of the company by Major Turnbull.

Colonel Dewart remarked that his object in offering the shield had been attained in so much as it had promoted keen competition and rivalry between the Peterborough, Ottawa and Kingston companies of the battalion. The district officer commanding had charge of the competition and awarded the trophy on merit. The Ottawa company were the runners-up, being only two points behind the local company.

A Triple Win

In the inter-company competition for another shield offered by Colonel Dewart, the shield was retained for the third successive year by Lieut. Ralph C. Honey's gun team. Members of the winning team also included: Sergt. J. Ridyard, Corporal F. Lindsay and Gunners W. Ward, K. Ward, R. Drummond, E. Hope, R. Marsden and E. Marsden.

The dinner presided over by Major Turnbull, was attended not only by a full representation of the local machine gunners, but also by representatives of the Ottawa and Kingston companies of the battalion, and by guests from sister units of the local garrison.

The Toast List

The toast to "Our Guests" which immediately followed that to "The King," was proposed by Lieut. S. M. Ward, and was responded to by Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C., and Lieut.-Colonel W. Gordon Hall, V.D.

"Sister Units" was very ably proposed by Lieut. J. Morley and was replied to by Lieut.-Colonel G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., Officer Commanding, Peterborough Rangers, and Lieut.-Colonel Claire H. Stuart, Officer Commanding, 3rd Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons.

The final toast, that to "our Battalion" was voiced by Capt. H. J. Devey, and replies were made by Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., O.C., Battalion; Major A. G. Fisher, O.C., Ottawa Company; Major G. R. Scott, Battalion Medical Officer; and R. S. M. William Piercy.

Expresses Satisfaction

Colonel Dewart expressed entire satisfaction at the progress made by the battalion during the past year, and acknowledged the cooperation given him by all ranks.

He commented on the facilities at local headquarters as being "totally inadequate" for training such as would equip the unit to take its place in another war. Connaught Camp, he remarked, had been designed to offset that deficiency by giving a limited number of men a course of intensive training, and that was the reason why Connaught Camp was likely to continue even though it worked a hardship on certain members of the battalion who were unable to go to camp.

Among other representatives of the battalion present from outside points, were: C.S.M. William Brash and Staff Sergeant Ferguson, both of Ottawa; and C.S.M. Thomas Ponting of Kingston.

Contributions to the entertainment were made by Sergt. J. Cullen, Sergt. Spencer Hope and Pte. A. Thomas.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

After the third month the baby begins to get a mixed diet, which gradually becomes more varied, until at the end of the first year it should be eating, besides milk, cereals, vegetables, fruit juices, toast and butter, eggs, meat juices and green vegetables.

From one to two years there should be three or four feedings in the twenty-four hours, and by the beginning of the second year only three meals.

Milk remains the staple article of diet, at least a quart in twenty-four hours. Cereal—farina, cream of wheat, and oatmeal—well cooked, and at first, strained. Vegetables, such as spinach, peas, carrots, artichoke hearts, and string beans—well cooked and strained through a sieve. Scraped meat should be started at the age of fifteen months. Eggs, soft boiled, poached or coddled, come at about the same time, although the yolk can be given much earlier. Fruits in the form of orange juice, prune juice and tomato juice are necessary parts of the diet.

BREAKFAST: Orange. Farina with milk. Bread and butter. Glass of milk.

DINNER: Cream of potato soup. Coddled eggs. Bread and butter. Cup of milk. Gelatine.

SUPPER: String beans. Boiled hominy and milk. Whole wheat bread and butter. Cup of milk. Stewed fruit.

A typical day's menu for a four-year-old is as follows:

BREAKFAST: Apple sauce. A soft boiled egg. Toast and butter. Glass of milk.

DINNER: Chicken fricasse. Mashed potatoes. Asparagus tips. Bread and butter. Ice cream. Glass of milk.

A typical menu for a five-year-old is as follows:

DINNER: Broiled lamb chop. Baked potato. Spinach. Bread and butter. Bread pudding and jelly. Glass of milk.

SUPPER: Scramblek egg with milk. Toast and butter. Squash. Glass of milk. Baked apple.

A typical day's menu for a six-year-old is as follows:

BREAKFAST: Baked apple. Toasted cornflakes. Milk. Toast and butter. Cocoa.

DINNER: Roast beef. Roast potato. Carrots. Bread and butter. Glass of milk. Floating island.

Gigantic Congregation Gathers At Eucharistic Congress

An aerial view over Palermo park in Buenos Aires, October 10, as Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli (INSET), the secretary of state of the vatican and papal legate, opened the thirty-second Eucharistic Congress in the presence of about 500,000 Catholic pilgrims from all over the world. This was the first time such a high official of the holy see has acted as the papal legate. This greatest congregation in the history of Christendom gathered around a giant white cross in the park for the opening ceremony.

Be Beautiful

"Dear Miss Glad: I once heard that oatmeal can be used as a substitute for soap in cleansing the skin. Is this really a fact? And if so, how does one employ the oatmeal?

ELSIE."

It is indeed true that oatmeal can be used as a substitute for sopa in cleansing the skin. It is particularly beneficial for use on a dry skin, as it contains a percentage of solvent oils that will leave a dry, rough skin soft, smooth and supple. The excellent qualities of the oatmeal cleanser can be greatly enhanced by the addition to it of almond meal. Make a small cheesecloth bag and place in it one cup of ordinary rolled oats. Then add to this half a cup of almond meal, and sew the bag shut. Thereafter, whenever you wish to cleanse your skin, simply moisten the bag with tepid water, and use it on your face as you would an ordinary washcloth.

* * *

"Dear Miss Glad: I've been following the gaining weight course in that 'New Figure' booklet of yours, and have had excellent results. I'm finally beginning to get a bit of flesh on that flat-chested, angular figure of mine. However, mother suggests that I also take cod liver oil to supplement your course. Do you think that the cod liver oil would improve my health?

SKINNY."

I certainly do think that cod liver oil or one of its emulsions would help to improve your health and to increase your poundage, for it is very rich in vitamins. Cod liver oil really is a concentrated food substance, and is of great value in the diet. The consumption of this food substance increases the vitality of the body, improves the quality of the blood and builds up resistance to disease. The best time to take this oil is after your meals. And if you do not like the taste of the pure, unadulterated oil, you may take it in a bit of orange or lemon juice.

* * *

"Dear Miss Glad: I always do my best to keep my fingernails in good condition, as I greatly admire well-groomed nails. I do my own housework, however, and the tips of my nails always appear a dirty, grayish hue. How can I keep the tips of my nails clear and white? CONSTANCE."

Before you begin your housework insert an edging of bland white soap beneath your nails, to prevent any grime from accumulating there. When your housework has been finished, remove the soap and run a bit of cotton moistened with peroxide or lemon juice beneath the nailtips. Use either of these nail bleaches often during the day. Then, before retiring at night, insert a quantity of cold cream beneath each nail. This will not only help to whiten the nailtips, but will counteract any drying effects that the soap and bleaches may have had. If you follow this entire procedure each day the tips of your nails will remain the clear, white hue so essential to well-groomed fingertips.

NATIONAL GUARD IS CALLED OUT ON LYNCH MOB

Rescue Second Negro After One Had Been Shot and Mutilated.

GUNS RING COURTHOUSE.

MARIANNA, Fla., Oct. 29.—(AP) —All was quiet in West Florida today as mob spirit that flared to high pitch with the lynching of one Negro and threats against a white man who killed a deputy sheriff apparently had lulled.

One company of National Guardsmen picketed the court house and manned machine guns from the doorway, however, as a precaution against further outbreaks, Another company returned to Panama City last night.

Quietude enshrouded the city in contrast with the rumblings of a mob that vented its fury on a Negro, Claud Neal, who was hanged near Greenwood and mutilated with gunshot and knives after confessing he criminally assaulted and beat to death a young white girl.

Soon after the Negro's body had been swung from a tree on the lawn of the courthouse here, the mob tempo rose higher. A crowd surged upon another Negro, Bud Gannon, accused of striking a white man, Walter Cook, with a bottle.

Gannon was rescued from the crowd, taken to jail, and the National Guardsmen called out. One company was dispatched from Tallahassee and another from Panama City.

At the courthouse, guardsmen awaited the scheduled sentencing of Buford Mears and M. F. Dudley, two men convicted of the recent bank robbery at Malone. State's attorney Carter said the pair would be sentenced today.

FIREMEN GUARD PULPWOOD AS HUGE HAYPILE BURNS

THREE RIVERS, Que., Oct. 29.—(C.P.)— Firemen stood guard over thousands of cords of pulpwood today while flames continued to rage in 25 huge hay piles nearby.

Fear that wood, property of the Canadian Internatoinal Paper Company, Limited, would be destroyed by the fire as a light breeze fanned tre flames was dispelled early this morning when fire fighters got the blaze under control after a battle of several hours. The hay was the property of the Canada Iron and Foundries Company, Limited.

It was expected the fire would not be extinguished for two or three days, but danger that it would spread appeared to have been checked.

LINDSAY PASTOR GUEST PREACHER AT ANNIVRSARY

Rev. J. J. Black Preaches Anniversary Services at George Street.

"GLADNESS OF JESUS."

Large congregations attended both services of George Street United Church yesterday in celebration of the ninety-ninth anniversary of the church. In addition to the new milestone in the church's history the day marked the end of the 60th year in the present building.

Rev. J. J. Black, B.A., B.D., pastor of Cambridge Street Church in Lindsay, was a special preacher for the day. A special musical program was presented in the evening by the choir of Cambridge Street Church of Lindsay. Cliff. Hall, recently of the Dundas Street Choir, assisted in the morning music arranged and directed by Choirmaster David R. Howat.

Rev. Black spoke of the "gladness of Jesus" in the evening sermon. This is the characteristic of Him about which we know little, he said. We are apt to have the impression that Jesus was a character of sorrow, yet He was an individual of tremendous gladness, he declared.

"It is difficult for Christians today to look back without seeing Him as a man of sorrow, for He is seen in the shadow of a Roman cross. And the general impression left by artists who have represented Jesus has been one of sorrow. Yet, if I were an artist I should like to paint a picture of Jesus smiling."

References in the Bible to occasions when Jesus wept are more frequent than to occasions when he smiled, the speaker continued. The significance is not that He wept more than he smiled, but quite the opposite. It is the exceptional which is recorded, he pointed out. Jesus had a tremendous capacity for sorrow, but also a tremendous capacity for gladness.

"How did Jesus get His gladness? Jesus gladness was rooted in His faith. With such unwavering trust in God, Jesus was the great example. We have no idea what it is like to trust in God as Jesus did. That was the main source of joy for Jesus. And that is the only main source of joy for us—a belief and trust in God."

Another source of gladness He had was a consciousness of God's love and favor which He carried about with Him at all times, Rev. Black declared. He could face all that man and circumstances could do to Him, yet the sources of His joy remained untouched.

"He found joy also in His vocation-joy in doing good. Did you ever try it? Jesus found joy in doing His duty." The most joyful work in life is the saving of lost souls. All Christians can experience the joy of such work, he said.

Jesus enjoyed co-operating with His Father. His last cry on the cross was one of joy, in that He had achieved God's purposes, Rev. Black said, as he urged the congregation to seek the gladness of Jesus.

SECRET LETTER STIRS MEXICO

Contents Claim Catholics Seeking to Draw Roosevelt Into Church Mixup.

PROBE UNDER WAY.

MEXICO, D. F., Oct. 29. — (A. P.).—The Department of Interior conducted an investigation to-day into the authenticity of an alleged intercepted letter designed to prove Catholics in this country are attempting to draw President Roosevelt of the United States into the Mexican church controversy.

The newspaper El Nacional, official publication of the National Revolutionary (Government) party printed the letter, which it said had been received by a person called 'Sophie' in Washington.

"Sophie," El Nacional charged, conferred with Catholic leaders in the United States and sought their support to impress President Roosevelt against the cause of the people of Mexico."

The newspaper said high Catholic officials "besides directing anti-government agitation and preparing an armed revolt and possibly a political assassination are attempting to obtain foreign intervention, if not armed, at least moral and diplomatic." Catholic leaders emphatically denied the charges.

DONALD H. WILSON DIES IN PORT HOPE

Editor and Publisher of Port Hope Guide For Past 5 Years.

PORT HOPE, Oct. 29.—Donald H. Wilson, editor and publisher of the Port Hope Evening Guide, died suddenly at hospital here early Sunday morning.

Born in Port Hope in 1900, Mr. Wilson was educated at the local public and high school and then entered the printing business with his father, the late F. W. Wilson in the firm of George Wilson and Son. His father died five years ago this month, and since that time D. H. Wilson had taken sole charge of the newspaper which has served the community for 101 years. The death of the present editor marks the passing of a third generation of Wilsons.

Funeral services are to be held at the family residence tomorrow at 2.30 p.m.

TOYS NEEDED AT FIRE HALL

Firefighters Solicit Old Toys for Repair and Distribution.

A WORTHY OBJECT

The appeal recently made by the local firefighters for old toys that are to be renovated in "The Santa Claus Workshop" at the fire hall for distribution at Christmas-tide to the children of needy families, did not go unanswered.

But a great many more toys are still needed if the anticipated wants of the needy little folk are to be adequately met. And each day sees a closer approach to the festive season and a lessening of the time for preparation.

Members of the Firefighters' Federation again urge the co-operation of all who can find it possible to donate toys. It matters little how broken or battered the toys may be. The nimble fingers of the firemen, and the application of paint, has been known to effect wonderful transformations on discarded toys for which apparently no further use had existed.

Don't neglect the chance of maintaining the faith of some child, in the true spirit of the festive season. Look up the old, almost forgotten toys that you might have stowed away in attic or cellar. Do it now. Then phone 24 and the toys will be called for and will be added to the stock of old toys already donated and upon which the firemen are now at work in their odd moments.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THERE ARE plenty of tracks these days to keep the turf fans studying, and all are reporting business as good as ever. It will be good news to hear that the famous Equipoise is back in light training again after being on the shelf nearly all year. They are getting him ready for the Los Angeles $100,000, handicap to be decided next March and if he should win it, he will be the greatest all time money winner. It was like old times to hear of him breezing a mile the other day in slightly over 1.40 with his old pal Sonny Workman in the saddle.

× × ×

Our old friend Polyp is out at Arlington Downs and this is his home grounds and he is strictly, what they call a winter and late autumn horse. In his last effort he finished second so you can see he is ready. We notice where Jockey Nick Wall is again doing saddle duty after his injury of last July at Hamilton. It was feared for a while that he would never ride again and it is pleasing to note that he is once again in shape to do his stuff. Sun Archer down at Laurel is just raring to go and it won't be many days before he crashes the winner's circle. This one possesses a lot of class and it will take a mighty good horse to kick dust in his face. Wise Advocate at the same place is working up to a winning effort and the wise ones are saying it won't be long now.

× × ×

THE DEPARTMENT of Agriculture released the betting figures for the past season in Canada and showed that the spring meeting at Thorncliffe was the leader when $1,305,300 was wagered through the machines. The Pari-Mutuel betting for the whole of Canada amounted to $20,976,400 or a decrease of $4,161,100 from 1933. Even considering the decrease that is still a lot of money these hard times and shows clearly the hold that horse racing has on the Canadian public.

× × ×

Nothing has been done yet by the Ontario Government about appointing a Racing Commission but our guess is that one will be functioning before the Woodbine opens our season next May. Eddie Seagram things he has a good King's Plate prospect in Gay Sympathy and is giving him a lot of attention, but of course many things can happen between now and next May.

One of Maroon's goals resulted from the new penalty shot rule, Earl Robinson whipping the free shot past Andy Atkenhead. Northcot got the other from Hooley Smith.

Peterboro Wins Central O.R.F.U. Group Honors

BROOKS' FOOTBALLERS STAGE LAST QUARTER SCORING PUNCH TO DEFEAT BELLEVILLE 16-6

Gordie Young and "Rags" Reynolds Play Prominent Part in Local Victory—Jack Gardner Also Goes Great Guns —Win Right to Continue in Provincial Playdowns.

Staging a scoring punch in the final quarter that secured nine points, Peterborough defeated Belleville 16-6 in an intermediate O.R.F.U. game at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon to win group honors and the right to continue into the Provincial rugby playdowns.

Until the Petes swung into their winning stride in the final 15 minutes of play the tide of battle had been so even that the large crowd of spectators were keenly on edge. At half-time the teams were tied 6-6, and although the Petes notched a single point in the third the Belleville plungers were ripping through for yards as the teams swung into the final quarter.

Three forward passes were most important in the Petes' well-earned victory. Two of them thrown by Gordie Young to "Rags" Reynolds, speedy outside winger, led to the winners' two major scores. The other was a Belleville attempt which Francis intercepted on the visitors' 15-yard line, from where Young hoisted a smart placement kick between the posts for a field goal.

While fans were hugely pleased by the result which again puts Peterborough prominently on the football map, the game in itself was not spectacular. The teams failed to show the same smartness and power on the attack and defence that they exerted in the battle a week ago in the Quinte City. Looseness predominated in the play and there were many fumbles, but the Petes flashed something of their real ability in the last quarter to leave no doubts as to their general superiority over their weighty opponents.

Interference along the line by Belleville players on Gardner's starting kick-off gave Peterborough possession of the ball on the visitors' 30-yard line. Magee and Richardson knifed through the Belleville line for yards. On a fake kick, Young tossed a forward pass 20 yards to Reynolds who received it well inside the Belleville goal line. The touchdown was not converted, but it put the Petes five points ahead with the game less than three minutes old.

Belleville booted to Richardson on Peterborough's five-yard line. Hope's high punt went out of touch at Peterborough's 15-yard line. From there Johnson easily booted to the deadline for a Belleville point.

Play remained around midfield until Hope booted another short kick, which gave the Quinte outfit possession on Peterborough's 30-yard line. Rigby plowed through for ten yards on a buck. White and Hilton added a few more, bringing play nicely in front of the Petes's goal posts. Belleville elected to try for a placement but after leaving Johnson's foot the ball struck the cross bar. It fell out on the Peterborough five-yard line. Magee fumbled, and Andrews fell on the bounding ball Milton crashed through for a touch down on the next play. The attempt at a convert was blocked, but Belleville was in the lead 6-5.

The score was quickly tied, when Gardener booted the ball over the Belleville goal line on the kick-off and Hilton was grassed before he could wriggle out with it.

No Score in Second.

There was no score on the second quarter and play was marred by frequent fumbles and offsides. Belleville moved the sticks several times, but misplays cost them any advantage they gained. Hilton saved a rouge against his team when he caught one of Gardner's punts and raced out from behind the Belleville goal post 30 yards.

Magee opened the third quarter with a 20-yard run around the Belleville end. Neither team could advance the ball and a Belleville penalty for scragging enabled Gardner to boot from near centre for a rouge, putting the Petes one up.

Both teams attempted forward passes without success, although the Petes narrowly missed several. From their own 15-yard line, Belleville twice moved the sticks on crashing plunges by White, Burdes and Rigby.

Belleville gained yards again as the final quarter got underway, but an attempted forward pass on a third down, which failed, gave Petes' the ball at midfield. On another fake play which was nicely screened, Young tossed a forward pass to Reynolds for a 40-yard gain. Gardner hurtled through for ten yards and a touchdown on the next play. Young converted it to put Petes in front 13-6.

With play at midfield after an exchange of kicks, Belleville was offside and penalized 10 yards. Hilton was downed for a big loss on a fake kick. Ashmore and Gardner advanced the sticks and Gardner booted to Hilton who ran it out to Belleville's 15-yard line. Belleville attempted a forward pass but Francis intercepted it neatly. Young booted a field goal from placement for three points and the last score of the game. As play ended Richardson ran 35-yards to midfield after receiving a Belleville kick.

Gardner's punting was a nice feature of the Petes' play, as was the tackling of Dinesen, Reynolds, Weir and Mitchell. The work of Ashmore, Waddell, Kirkwood and Gerow was a great strength in the winners' line. Magee, Gardner, Richardson were best ball carriers.

Hilton, one of three Collegiate players in Belleville's line-up, proved to be the visitor's outstanding star. He made big gains not as a plunger but also on extension and was hard to grass in the open. Rigby again proved his ability as a plunger, along with White, Burdes and Morgan.

The teams:

..Belleville:—Flying wing, Whytock halves, Hilton, Johnson, Schreider, quarter, Andrews; snap, Cole; insides, Burdes, Morgan; middles, Rigby, White; outsides, Weller, McKee; subs, Weese, Convert, Temple, Clare, Hall.

..Peterborough—Flying wing, Hope halves, Gardner, Magee, Richardson; quarter, Young; snap, Sloan; insides, Ashmore, Waddell; middles Kirkwood, Gerow, outsides, Reynolds, Weir; subs, Soencely, Dinesen, Janeway, Mitchell, Broadley, Parnall, Newson, Francis.

Summary:

Boston Bruins got pretty used to being beaten last hockey season and they were wondering to-day whether it was going to be the same way this winter. In the first clash they have had under Frank Patrick's managership they lost 6-2 to Boston Cubs, their farm team in two periods Saturday night.

It was largely due to Frank Jerwa, the Pacific Coast product, who plays for Cubs now but may be moved up after his performance in the practice game. He scored three goals and assisted in a fourth.

New York Rangers and Montreal Maroons split a decision in Winnipeg 2-2 and Detroit Red Wings beat Detroit Olympics 8-3 in other pre-season clashes over the week-end. The Ranger-Maroon game was featured by the performance of two rookies, Bert Connolly, Moncton amateur making his professional debut, and Charlie Mason, formerly of Vancouver Lions.

New Kid Line For Toronto Maple Leafs

JOE CRONIN

Youthful manager of Washington Senators, and rated the best shortstop in the major leagues, reported sold to Boston Red Sox for a huge cash payment and the services of Lyn Lary, infielder. The sale was a huge surprise as Cronin was thought to have a steady job with Washington. He recently married Miss June Robertson, adopted daughter of Clark Griffiths, chief Senator owner. Though he pushed Washington into the World Series in his first managerial year, they dropped to seventh place this season riddled with injuries.

LOCALS TAKE 24-1 BEATING FROM LINDSAY

Petes Are Hopelessly Outclassed, Although They Put Up Game Struggle.

STAR PLAYERS HURT.

Young's Kick to Deadline in Fourth Only P.C.I. Score.

LINDSAY, Oct. 29. — A rally in the final minutes of the game failed to save the P.C.I. Senior rugby squad from a severe trouncing at the hands of the Lindsay Collegiate Seniors in Lindsay, Saturday afternoon. When the final whistle sounded on the one-sided encounter, the score stood 24-1.

Ambitious to even up the 7-1 defeat suffered in their first battle with Lindsay and tie themselves with the Scugog lads for leadership of the group, the Peterborough boys fought gamely. But they were handicapped by the incapacity of their star lineman, Harry Marsh, who sustained a knee injury two weeks ago. Marsh played the greater part of the game, but was ineffective. Giardino, powerful first-string flying wing, was taken out of the contest with a sprained ankle and a blow on the head resulted in the loss of Doug McPherson from the play.

On Even Terms.

The two squads battle on even terms during the opening of the first quarter. Drake Jopling got away for a 30-yard run in one of the P.C.I. drives for the Lindsay goal line, but at no time were the visitors able to get within scoring distance. In turn, however, they managed to stop Lindsay on several advances. Toward the end of the quarter, Ringland kicked a rouge for the L.C.I. team's first point. Tripp threw a long forward pass to Loucks, who ran 15 yards for a touch, neatly evading two Peterborough tacklers, a minute later and, from that point on, the game remained in Lindsay hands. The touchdown was converted by Campbell with a placement.

With the change of ends, the L.C.I. boys soon began a renewed march down the field, plunging effectively and gaining yards consistently against their weakening opposition. Morden went through the centre for a second touchdown on a goal-line play. A successful placement kick by Campbell brought the additional point. It looked like another touch just before half time when Loucks intercepted a Peterborough forward pass a couple of yards out from the P.C.I. line. He fumbled, and Jopling recovered.

Sensational Dash.

A sensational 60-yard dash by Tripp in the third quarter brought the Lindsay team their third touchdown. On a criss-cross play, Tripp took the ball from Campbell and went around the end. He warded off several tacklers and found a clear field in the last 20 yards. Shortly afterward, L.C.I. got another strong offensive under way. Tripp made another spectacular run for the goal line, but was stopped a yard out. Plunges for a major score failed, so Don McKee kicked to the deadline on a placement attempt.

The fourth touchdown came in the final quarter when a pass, a long run by Campbell and two first downs on line plunges brought the ball to the P.C.I. five-yard line. Campbell went over. In a few minutes, the visitors rallied and made their only serious threat of the day. Jopling, Archibald and Grant Clark contributed a number of gains in a hardy drive. Grant Clark almost got over on the last run of the drive but was tackled three yards out. In a kick over the deadline, Young then scored the P.C.I. team's only point.

Despite the score, the work of the P.C.I. tackling brigade was noteworthy. Game statistics showed Lindsay's definite superiority, however, with 16 first-downs against six first-downs of P.C.L. Having won five games without a loss, Lindsay is undisputed leader of the group. The local boys have won three and lost two.

New Kid Line For Toronto Maple Leafs

JOE CRONIN

Youthful manager of Washington Senators, and rated the best shortstop in the major leagues, reported sold to Boston Red Sox for a huge cash payment and the services of Lyn Lary, infielder. The sale was a huge surprise as Cronin was thought to have a steady job with Washington. He recently married Miss June Robertson, adopted daughter of Clark Griffiths, chief Senator owner. Though he pushed Washington into the World Series in his first managerial year, they dropped to seventh place this season riddled with injuries.

LOCALS TAKE 24-1 BEATING FROM LINDSAY

Petes Are Hopelessly Outclassed, Although They Put Up Game Struggle.

STAR PLAYERS HURT.

Young's Kick to Deadline in Fourth Only P.C.I. Score

LINDSAY, Oct. 29. — A rally in the final minutes of the game failed to save the P.C.I. Senior rugby squad from a severe trouncing at the hands of the Lindsay Collegiate Seniors in Lindsay, Saturday afternoon. When the final whistle sounded on the one-sided encounter, the score stood 24-1.

Ambitious to even up the 7-1 defeat suffered in their first battle with Lindsay and tie themselves with the Scugog lads for leadership of the group, the Peterborough boys fought gamely. But they were handicapped by the incapacity of their star lineman, Harry Marsh, who sustained a knee injury two weeks ago. Marsh played the greater part of the game, but was ineffective. Giardino, powerful first-string flying wing, was taken out of the contest with a sprained ankle and a blow on the head resulted in the loss of Doug McPherson from the play.

On Even Terms.

The two squads battle on even terms during the opening of the first quarter. Drake Jopling got away for a 30-yard run in one of the P.C.I. drives for the Lindsay goal line, but at no time were the visitors able to get within scoring distance. In turn, however, they managed to stop Lindsay on several advances. Toward the end of the quarter, Ringland kicked a rouge for the L.C.I. team's first point. Tripp threw a long forward pass to Loucks, who ran 15 yards for a touch, neatly evading two Peterborough tacklers, a minute later and, from that point on, the game remained in Lindsay hands. The touchdown was converted by Campbell with a placement.

With the change of ends, the L.C.I. boys soon began a renewed march down the field, plunging effectively and gaining yards consistently against their weakening opposition. Morden went through the centre for a second touchdown on a goal-line play. A successful placement kick by Campbell brought the additional point. It looked like another touch just before half time when Loucks intercepted a Peterborough forward pass a couple of yards out from the P.C.I. line. He fumbled, and Jopling recovered.

Sensational Dash.

A sensational 60-yard dash by Tripp in the third quarter brought the Lindsay team their third touchdown. On a criss-cross play, Tripp took the ball from Campbell and went around the end. He warded off several tacklers and found a clear field in the last 20 yards. Shortly afterward, L.C.I. got another strong offensive under way. Tripp made another spectacular run for the goal line, but was stopped a yard out. Plunges for a major score failed, so Don McKee kicked to the deadline on a placement attempt.

The fourth touchdown came in the final quarter when a pass, a long run by Campbell and two first downs on line plunges brought the ball to the P.C.I. five-yard line. Campbell went over. In a few minutes, the visitors rallied and made their only serious threat of the day. Jopling, Archibald and Grant Clark contributed a number of gains in a hardy drive. Grant Clark almost got over on the last run of the drive but was tackled three yards out. In a kick over the deadline, Young then scored the P.C.I. team's only point.

Despite the score, the work of the P.C.I. tackling brigade was noteworthy. Game statistics showed Lindsay's definite superiority, however, with 16 first-downs against six first-downs of P.C.I. Having won five games without a loss, Lindsay is undisputed leader of the group. The local boys have won three and lost two.

LIBERTY LEAGUE IS UNDER FIRE

"Bankers' Mouthpiece to Voice Cry For Preservation of Bonds."—Fr. Coughlin.

NO RETURN TO OLD DAYS.

DETROIT, Oct. 29.—(A.P.)— The Rev. Fr. Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, in an address yesterday attacked the American Libetry League as the "mouthpiece" of the bankers through which they voice the "cowardly cry for the preservatin of their bonds."

In making the first of his 1934 series of Sunday afternoon sermons the priest remarked that "five years ago last week came the Wall Street market crash."

"Five year ago," he said, "there was issued an order drafting millions of our men into the largest army in the history of this nation or of this world. It was the army of the unemployed who were summoned from their factories, from their foreclosed homes, from their desolate farms as they carried on their backs the knapsacks of mortgages and debts and unbearable taxes. They were sheep being led to the slaughter, thanks to the diplomacy of those who fostered and encouraged credit inflation."

"And you ask me," Fr. Coughlin continued, "would I turn back to those servile days when the bankers perverted the constitution of this country and now through such mouthpieces as the American Liberty League, cowardly cry for the preservation of their bonds, their mortgages, their assets and their rackets as they minimize the sanctity of human rights—the same Liberty League, one of whose officers profiteered on shells and munitions as his agents went about the world stirring up war in the name of peace and whose agents to-day are reported to be going about to the big adversesitrs of thi s nation to seek support in their attack on the new deal."

Chalchihuiti was a green mineral referred to by Spanish writers contemporary with Cortes. It was held in high repute by the ancient Mexicans, who valued it more than gold.

PLANE FORCED DOWN BY SNOW

Hits Fence in Landing Near Napanee—No One Injured.

DRIVEN OFF COURSE.

NAPANEE, Oct. 29.—(C.P.)—En route from New York to Buffalo, a plane of the American Airlines, carrying nine persons, was forced down here last night by snow. The plane came down on a field of W. H. Hunter's farm with no one suffering injury although the machine came to a stop in a wire fence, one wing being slightly torn as it struck a post.

Besides its nine passengers, the plane carried a crew of three. Pilot Deater employed by the Airlines for six and a half years, attempted to escape the snow and ice and got off his course. He ran into the storm shortly after leaving Albany at 5.40 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Running short of fuel, Pilot Deater and his co-pilot, A. Klem, decided to land and sent down flares, finally picking Hunter's farm after circling the town for half an hour. There was no light except from the flares and the field was recently plowed and was soft, but Pilot Deater managed to bring his charges to earth without injury.

Three women and six men were among the passengers, and they took the midnight train for Buffalo.

Pioneers Of West Mourn Dr. Elliott

WOLSELEY, Sask., Oct. 29.—(C.P.)—Pioneers of the west to-day mourned the death of Dr. William Elliott, 71, who succumbed following a heart attack Saturday.

Long prominenc in political life of the prairies, Dr. Elliott was Minister of Agriculture in the old Northwest Territories Government. He was first elected to the Territorial Legislature in 1898 and his appointment to the cabinet came five years lataer.

When Saskatchewan became a province in 1905, Dr. Elliott was elected a member and retained his seat until defeat in the election of 1912. Born at Mitchell, Ont., he was a resident of Wolseley for 41 years and earned a wide reputation as a skilled physician.

PACKERS-C.G.E. ONE GOAL EACH IN PHELAN CUP

Earle Gets Smart C.G.E. Goal —Evans Breasts Custodian Over Goal Line.

WITHHOLD TROPHY.

An unfortunate incident in the closing minutes of the Father Phelan Soccer Charity Cup tie, on Saturday afternoon, between Canadian General and Canada Packers terminated in the game ending in a draw—one goal each. A smart goal by Fred Earle, C.G.E., sent the Electrics into the lead, but with only a minute to finish, Buchan sent a shot into goal, where custodian grasped it as Evans bumped him over the line to get the equalizer.

The trophy was not presented, owing to the O.G.E. refusing to continue play, which will be decided by the executive of the soccer association.

Erratic Shooting

The C.G.E. started the game with nine men against ten of the Packers. After a break-away on the right by Colbran, the C.G.E. defence held the fast-moving attack outside the shooting zone. Evans missing an open goal, to be followed by McCracken driving over the bar from ten yards out. Pressure was relieved when a foul against Foster conceded a free kick that landed in goal where Chamberlain picked up the ball in the nick of time. Bolton returned the sphere, in below the bar, to witness the custodian draw it out of danger. At this point, Jones, C.G.E., forced the issue with his clever anticipation of the opposing attack to carry the ball into the Packers' territory, in which Darling, on the left wing, dribbled his way toward goal to finish with a splendid effort. Quickly the ball was at the other end, where George Downer sent a lightning grounder into the inside of the upright. Curtis fell upon the ball to concede a fruitless flag kick. Before the interval, Colbran and McCracken baffled the full backs as the latter, while on the run, connected with a direct shot that skimmed the crossbar. Half time—No scoring.

Curtis Brilliant

Exchanges continued even, on resuming, with an occasional raid led by McCracken caused the Mitchell brothers, on C.G.E., some anxiety, but they were emphatic in their punting, blocking the dangerous moves within the vicinity of the custodian, while transferring the ball upfield to permit Clark and Earl test Packers' goalie with long drives. Buchan altered his style of play to the long swinging combination to find it profitable to his front rank. They held the play inside the goal area until Newt. Downer met a loose ball, outside 20-yard line, with a terrific drive that sizzled past the corner of the upright. Curtis thereafter was a busy man between the sticks for the C.G.E. as he saved rocket drives from Colbran and Evans. Then George Downer started his teammates when he rattled a first-timer over the bar from ten yards out. Give-and-take tactis held sway with the defence controlling the issue. Jones trapped the ball from a Mitchell clearance, to send the ball right up the centre. Stan Clark dribbled his way inside the full backs, and with a feint move, left Earle in possession of the ball who beat Chamberlain with a snap low grounder. With only five minutes to be played, the Packers bombarded the C.G.E. citadel. Buchan landed the ball into the goal, Curtis, C.G.E. goalie, caught it in his arms as Evans breasted him over the line for the equalizer. The referee was right upon the play and decided upon the consultation of his efficient linesmen. They agreed with his interpretation that the custodian carried the sphere over the line and he adjuded accordingly. Consternation reigned in the C.G.E. ranks that ultimately ended in a player getting marching orders. The Packers lined up, but C.G.E. refused to continue. Canada Packers, 1; Canadian General 1.

Goal scorers — C.G.E., Earle; Packers, Evans.

Digging the Local Dirt With Odd Chuckle or Two

(By C. J. P.)

Vacation all over and back to work. Covered some seven thousand miles in an interesting trip and arrived home broke and ready for work—but not too much till we get rested up! We took in that rugby game at Riverside Saturday just to get back into harness. And the very first thing we felt in the small of the back was an icy wind that must have started around the North Pole and gathered velocity all the way down. Right then we knew we were a long way from the orange belt and back in the region where hockeyists grow. But we don't care much for oranges anyway.

Our O.R.F.U. team—let's call 'em the Orfuns—copped themselves their group title by stepping through Belleville, 16-6, Saturday in the deciding game and will now seek further honors along the Ontario trail. Not bad for a first-year squad in this company. They scored an early touchdown smartly and then played on even terms till the final quarter, when better conditions and class told and ye Quinte crew folded before the locals. 'Twas a nice game to watch and quite a gang of rooters braved the chill breeze to see it.

• • • • • • •

The Orfuns tried a few forward passes which didn't click. Cold hands that found it tough to hold the pigskin probably accounted for the misses, anyway several would-be forwards turned out as wet as a Venice street scene. However, a couple of beauties did click and were promptly turned into scores. Gardner's booting was nice to watch, and he didn't have a punt blocked all afternoon. At times in the second and third quarters it looked like the Belleville beef trusts were gradually ripping the home line to shreds, but before the shades of e'en were drawn there was ample evidence that it was the visiting linesmen who were taking the real beating. Quite a few reclined where they fell till the water-bucket doc had rendered first aid. Charlie Carson's crew will take a lot of licking, and are unlikely to meet a heavier team, man for man, than the Belleville huskies.

One thing we'd like to see is more officials, coaches and players who thoroughly understood the rules. There is too much bickering over fine points and holding up of the game in a cold autumn afternoon. The fans want to see action, not arguments. Where there is a thorough knowledges of rules, arguments can be sliced short. And games should be started on time, not half an hour late. Honestly, we doggone near froze to death. These northern breezes talk at this time of year, and the things they say sound suspiciously like "red flannels" and "Christmas shopping"—no fooling.

P.C.I. seniors bowed themselves out of the school rugby picture in Lindsay yesterday. They went down gamely, even though that 24-1 score might sound like a runaway. They fought hard but injuries, which have hampered Coach Bamforth's boys all fall, again stacked the cards against them. And you've got to have a good share of the breaks to knock off a team like the Scugog school has trotted out the past two years. Well, everyone can't win, and the Garnet and Grey colors have flown proudly at the masthead many seasons in the past, and will certainly do so again.

Wednesday is Hallowe'en and the Kinsmen Club is staging a big frolic in the Armouries. In addition to the other events listed for that p.m. is a rasslin' bout and three boxing melees. The three scraps sound like something pretty serious with a lot of leather likely to be parked on several sets of whiskers, and the rasslin' act sounds like a lot of fun. The merry tumblers are even liable to go in there in masquerade—we're never surprised at what the matmen do.

Scores at half-time don't mean a thing in basketball as was shown in the Church League cage games at the "Y" Saturday eve. Murray St. knocked off St. James, 20 to 9; St. John's juveniles got a 6-2 nod over Murray St.; Trinity 14-11'd Knox; and St. James failed to floor a full team and had to default to St. Paul's. There was some good and bad play mixed up, some slick baskets hooped and quite a few penalties passed around.

• • • • • • •

We were mighty sorry to hear on our return how our baseballers, the Petes, Cogs and Terriers, took the Thanksgiving hatchet in and around that date—none reaching the end of the rocky championship road. The biggest surprise was the Terriers' flop, as we would have parked the family silverware on Herb Ralph's juveniles. Tough luck all around. Next thing is the seniors' business meeting before the C.O.B.L. annual affair. And, we think, the Petes, champs of the loop, rate a feed for their work, at least.

Grab-bag: The new Lindsay rink ought to be completed early in December—17 men working on it now . . . . Mining World Eastsides won the T.R.U. over Oshawa Blue Devils on the round Sat-day and will likely meet the local Orfuns this week-end in the Provincial playdowns . . . . Chuck Henderson, husky and classy Cobourg junior puckster, will play for Port Hope this winter . . . . Wonder if it's true that Belleville is trying to cop a couple of our better ball players for next summer . . . . We were tickled to hear how last year's local hockey officers are back at the helm again—won't be long till we have plenty of dope for the puck fans.

C.A.L.A. Determined To Ban Orillia Club

VANCOUVER, Oct. 29. (C.P.)—Orillia Terriers left no doubt today that they head the list of Canadian Amateur Senior Lacrosse aggregations and that they are champions in fact if not in name.

After winning the Mann cup in the Dominion title series with New Westminster Salmonbellies, the Ontario squad added to their laurels by winning the fifth and deciding game on Saturday night of an exhibition series with Vancouver St. Helens.

But the steps to suspend all players in the post-season series were still underway and the players of both Terriers and St. Helens may be outside the pale of legal lacrosse next year.

In journeying to New Westminster to play St. Helens, the Terriers defied the edict of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, which ruled players of both teams would be banned from further competition if the series took place.

St. John's Juveniles Cop 6-2 Cage Battle

St. John's juveniles were too big and experienced for the young Murray Street team and took a decision in their church loop cage game Saturday. The score was 2-all in th first half but the Anglicans scored two baskets early is the next stanza. Murray street had much of the play but lacked a smooth flaish in close. Coleman, Chivas and Pammett played good games. The teams:

St. John: T. Hooper, Brown, Chivas, Castle, Coleman, Bowler, F. Hooper, Lewis. Crowter and Forsyth.

Murray Street: Robson, Pammett, Gillespie, Foster, Mortimer, Campbell, Hawkes and Partington.

Saskatchewan Team Plan Tour Of Japan

SASKATOON, Oct. 29. —(C. P.) —Another Saskatchewan hockey team is likely to embark on a good will tour this winter, this time to Japan.

According to announcement made here during the weekend by Johnny Walker, who last ye ar managed Saskatoon Quakers on their European trip, North Battleford millers, an intermediate outfit, are likely to leave Canada about November 15 and tour Japan for a month.

Walker has secuered permission of the Canadian Amateur Hockey authorities to lead a team across the Pacific and final details are now being arranged. Personal of the hockey team is not definitely known.

Trinity Juveniles Defeat Knox 14-11

Trinity Juveniles defeated Knox 14-11, Saturday in the biggest reversal of form in Church League Basketball contests so far this year. The scrappy Trinity gang came from behind a 7-0 lead in the second half with Knox apparently coasting home with a win and grabbed the verdict. Ward and Bannister were moved up from defence and the Knox squad were driven back the last session with the winners scoring all 14 points in a great finish. Davern was the best player on the floor, with LeClaire also good. The teams:

Knox: Andrews, Graham, LeClaire, Penrose and Laing.

Trinity: Bannister, Ward, Davern, Freeman and Vallery.

Referee—V. Holmes; scorer, D. Charlton.

Lopsided Cage Win For Murray St. Jrs.

Murray Street, last year's church leage Basketball junior champions, started off Saturday night in the "Y" with a 20 to 9 defeat over St. James in a rugged encounter. The Saints had their opponents backed up for a good portion of the game with four fouls and ten minutes to play, the Murray St. gang went to work and piled up the count. The losers led at halftime, 8 to 7. It was a fast, rough contest with twenty fouls called, with the losers being guilty eleven times, Holmes and Smart were the best players. The teams:

St James: B. Leggett, Spencely, Smart, S. Leggett and Heal.

Murray St:— Miller, Welch, Holmes, Galley, Pammett and Latimer.

Referee: R. Kitchen; scorer, D. Charlton.

Hamilton Tigers Remain Undefeated in Big Four; Varsity Downs Tricolor

Argos Tie Jungle Cats in Gruelling Struggle for 3-3 Decision.

GIFT FOR WHEELERS.

Coulter for Varsity Kicks Point in Closing Minute to Beat Queen's 7-6.

BY ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Much pushing and hoving on the football front has dislodged Toronto Argonauts from the Canadian championship, or practically dislodged them, and placed Sarnia Imperials in a position where they can't very well lose the O.R.F.U. title they have held for three years. T hat is almost the sum total of four weeks of jousting.

The Scullers lost their last real hope of retaining the Interprovincial Union title on Saturday by playing a 3-3 tie with Hamilton Tigers. Ottawa Roughriders went down and out on fumbles and blocked kicks, losing 18-15 to Montreal Wheelers.

So the Big Four crown rests between the Tigers and the Wheelers. Argos retaining a mathematical chance that isn't a bad thing to have in this sort of race after all. Anything is liable to happen and has been happening with alarming frequency.

Chance for McGill

Queen's, Toronto and McGill are in the thick of the Intercollegiate race, an affair that may yet fool everybody and put the big Red team from Montreal on top. Toronto rallied in the fourth quarter to beat Queen's by 7-6 Saturday on Bobby Coulter's last-minute kick to the deadline. McGill handed the Western Mustangs their fourth straight setback, 15-0.

Sarnia bashed in the last O.R.F.U. barrier, trouncing St. Michael's College 19-1 for their fourth straight triumph. The Imperials can only be tied for the lead now by losing to Hamilton Cubs and Balmy Beach, an unheard-of thing. The Cubs downed the Beach Saturday for the second time, 15-10.

The day's drama was cornered by Hamilton, Toronto and Ottawa where the big crowds gathered. Fourteen thousand saw Varsity deadlock the Intercollegiate race, 10,000 cheered a sensational Ottawa fourth quarter rally that didn't succeed and 9,000 sat in a steady downpour of rain to witness the gruelling Argo-Tiger duel.

Argos had to win to keep within striking distance and early in the fourth quarter they drilled their way downfield and made a chance. Tommy Burns set the ball down on Hamilton's 12-yard-line with the Tigers leading 3-2. Mike Chepesuik fell back for a placement kick that had no technical difficulties for a kicker of his repute.

However, the Tigers gave Big Mike no chance. They charged through the wingline supposed to be protecting him and blocked the kick. Argos recovered 15 yards back and Ab Box was able to make the count a tie by shooting a single. But a chance to win the national title went skidding with that blocked kick.

A great Ottawa offensive got started much too late to overtake Montreal, who scored three touchdowns in the first half Pete Jotkus ran 47 yards with a blocked kick to pave the way for the first and Ken Grant galloped 38 yards with a fumbled ball for the second Jotkus ran 40 yards with another loose ball for the third just before half-time.

The Roughriders, having thrown away the ball game, tried to win it back in the second half. Abe Ellowitz kicked a field goal to start the rush and figured in both last-session touchdowns. He scored the first himself and forward passed to Frank Quinn for the second. The Riders played like winners in the final stanza but the score was still against them.

Trailing 6-3 starting the fourth quarter, Varsity seemed about to succumb to another amazing performance by Queen's. They didn't because Bob Isbister shot three singles with a strong wind behind him to tie the score. Then Coulter caught a kick at the tricolor 40 and drove it to the deadline for the winning point.

Western had the satisfaction of keeping their goal line unviolated for the first time this season, but McGill's kicking forces scored points. Lou Ruschin kicked two field goals and Johnny Riddell a third. The Redmen will be back in the running in real earnest if they can overcome Queen's next Saturday in Kingston.

Norman Perry, Rocky Parsaca and Fat Parsons scored touchdowns for Sarnia as the Irish schoolboys from Toronto were unable to get an effective forward pass attack going in the rain. They completed seven out of 19 passes but the Imperials made big gains with a running attack and Hugh Stirling's punting.

Teaming with Art Somers, the pair formed a smooth-working line that took everything Maroon's first-string combination of Baldy Northcott, Hooley Smith and Jimmy Ward could offer and asked for more. Mason scored one of the Ranger goals and got an assist on the second, scored by Connelly.

Patrick blossomed out in a new role Sunday night when he occuped the pulpit of Crescent United church, Winnipeg, and told parents and their sons smoking was harmful in teen-age boys. Of the 22 amateurs who attended the Ranger hockey school, 19 were non-smokers, he said.

Patrick concluded his talk by reciting Drummond's "The Curs of the Calumet," using the habitant accent and all the gestures of the professional actor.

Leo Dandurand's arrival in Saint John, N.B., didn't produce the expected shake-up in the Canadien camp there. Dandurand liked so many of the rookies Neway Laland has developed he decided to see them in a few more practices before deciding which to keep and which to discard.

CHAPTER 16

As a matter of form, Lee, watching over Tim's shoulder, kept one eye turned toward the entrance. But the long oblong of light flung on the stairs by the opened cellarway remained clear and undisturbed.

By now Tim was working on the third screw, which was coming out easily. As it fell to the floor and the hasp hung loose, Tim pulled the door open and played his torch inside. A lawn mower with fresh grass clinging to its blades, probably the one Dan had been using that morning. A rake-like broom, the kind gardeners use to clean up the lawns in the fall. Some pruning shears and boxes of grass seed and fertilizer on a shelf on one side of the cupboard.

Tim's eyes listed the articles, and rejected them. He swung the door closed and set to work on the second hasp. Lee eyed him, astonished. "Dam it, Tim, you never even looked. It might have been in those boxes of seed or behind them."

The reporter shook his head stubbornly. "Let's play my hunch first," was all he would say.

Again Lee kept watch while the loosening screws fell to the floor with tiny metallic sounds, three of them. Tim flung the second door open. This cupboard was evidently for the tools of Dan's inside work. The shelf held furniture polish, oil for the floor, a neat pile of dust cloths. There were several brooms and pails turned upside down, and the mop Dan had been using that morning hung handle down on a hook under the shelf, its long thrum strands still damp.

Tim's eyes followed the light of his flash over the cupboard. "Maybe I'm wrong," he muttered. He knelt on one knee and turned up each of the three tin pails on the floor. All were empty and nothing was beneath any of them except a wet ring under the second, which proved it the one Dan had used with the mop.

He straightened up and ran his hands swiftly over the damp mop-head. Turning out his flash, he nodded briefly and lifted down the mop, parting the strands in the center so that they hung like a fringe over his hand.

The inspector leaned forward, at last interested. For the thing which gleamed dully, nestling in the mop-head, was a black and nickel thirty-two, tied in place by half a dozen of the heavy woolen strands.

Whipping out a pocket-knife, he cut the strands quickly and disengaged the gun. "No use watching out for prints," he said as he did so. "After it's been hanging in that mop for six hours, everything on it will be blurred to nothing. Hello, look at the initials!" Together the two men peered at the letters "R. J.", cut into the black handle.

"Those are Jamieson's initials." Lee's voice was impressed. "That's evidence for any jury."

"Yeah," replied the reporter, indifferently, "especially since you'll find it's the gun that killed Reeves." Once more his hands were moving searchingly in the mop-head and this time they found a key, perhaps three inches long, of a worn black metal, tied into its hiding place as the gun had been.

"Probably the washroom key," he said, loosening it. "We'll find out in a minute."

Lee nodded. "But what makes you so sure it was Dan? And that he hid it here?"

"You were going on the supposition that the murderer had swiped it," explained Tim. While he talked, he began screwing the hasps back on. "I presupposed it was somebody besides the murderer because he could have taken it last night if he'd wanted it. Unless there was a stranger in the case somewhere, the only people that knew about the gun were the murderer, Callaghan and Dan.

"The murderer was out and so was Callaghan, of course, which left only Dan. You searched him, so he could not have had it on him. I was sure this morning that he'd taken it, but I couldn't see what the devil he'd done with it. Then on my way to the office I remembered the mop and pail.

"I imagine he saw those initials when he took Callaghan in. When I talked to him this morning I found out that he had little use for Reeves and is pretty fond of Jamieson. He'd be sure he had to get rid of the gun. So he insists on mopping the floor. When he empties the pail, he probably lets the water run to rinse out the pail and mop since he's a very proper housekeeper. My mother used to do that, anyway.

"While the water's running in the pail to cover any noise he makes, he beats it in through that door, picks up the gun, beats it back and puts both key and gun in the pail wrapped in the mop. I figured they'd still be there because the guard was on the back door when Dan brought them down and he wouldn't dare risk hiding them anywhere else or walking out with them on him, either."

The padlocks on both doors were back in place and Tim stooped to the floor, rubbing his fingers loosely over the cement to collect a little dirt and then rubbing them over the screws and the wood around the hasps to disguise the tampering.

"But that doesn't explain the key," insisted Lee. "Where did Dan get it?"

"This is my guess," said Tim. "They move into the English house and find a door without a key. No one will want to use the door, anyway, and Wilson tells Dan just to let it alone, sealed up. Well, did you ever see a woman who'd have a door locked like that in her house? Not on your life. Dan's like a woman in the way he keeps this place and I'd guess he just had a key made, without saying anything about it because Wilson had ordered it to be left locked."

"That sounds all right, the way you tell it," admitted Lee. "Suppose we go up and see if the key really fits the door."

Stepping from that chilly, quiet place to the outside was like entering another world. Summer sounds of insects buzzed in the back yard. The sun was dropping and its light fell on the earth at a sharper angle. Jackson still leaned watchfully against the banister of the back porch.

"Anybody been around?" Lee asked him.

Jackson shook his head.

"O. K. We're going inside now."

They quietly mounted the back steps that led to the second floor. The door of the staircase opened almost opposite Henderson's office but the office door was open and the room empty. They heard the sound of voices from the front and the steady click of the typewriter. But no one heard them as they entered the washroom.

Lee took the key from his coat pocket where the revolver also lay. Silently he inserted it in the lock and turned. Without effort, quietly, the door swung open.

"Jamieson will have to face the grand jury now," he began to the reporter. "With this and the gun"—he stopped shortly.

Without thinking, they both had moved on into the murdered man's room. From over their heads, in the room which contained the mysterious cot, came the creak of old floor boards the sound of muffled footsteps.

SUMMER COLONY GROWS ON TRENT

Cottagers Now Number Nearly Eighty Located Along Otonabee.

IN GROUPS OF SEVEN.

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—The week-end saw the last of the summer homes closed for another season, which has been a most successful one, notwithstanding the depression, as far as the colony of cottagers, numbering upwards of 80, is concerned. Practically every one was occupied during the summer and a number remained open for September and part of October. Cottagers begin to arrive here as early as May.

Each year, another one is added to the list of summer homes and lots are disposed of with the anticipation of a new cottage before another year. A noticeable coincidence is that the number seven is the chosen one of cottages situated in groups at various points. There are seven summer homes along the Trent shores up the river at Harper's Point, owned by Ohio, Toronto and Havelock people. There is a group of seven along the south shores of the Trent on what was formerly known as the Doupe farm, now owned by Mr. Thos. J. Brown. Steven comprise the group of cottages along the south bank of the Trent canal in what is known as the "Grove".

There are also seven cottages in the group on the southern shore, west of the big bridge, and a group of seven summer homes is situated on the back channell on property purchased from Mr. John Sedgwick.

The saw mill will not operate again at Trent River. Mr. Craddock and sons, Harold, Clarence and Leonard, arrived Thursday from the Trenton Cooperage Plant with a truck, to dismantle the plant and remove all machinery to Trenton for the present time.

Mr. David Walker, who has taken up residence in Campbellford, has secured employment with the John Winston Co., Toronto, as travelling salesman for religious and educational books.

The October meeting of Stanwood Sewing Circle was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley Keller, Wednesday afternoon. A quilt was finished and arrangements made for the Hallowe'en social for the evening of October 31st in the Orange Hall. Pupils taking part in the public speaking contest will assist with the program. The annual Christmas tree and entertainment date was decided for Thursday, December 20. The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Lisle.

Commencing this week, the cheese factory will operate every other day for the remainder of the season.

Luke Bull, a retired chimney sweep, who died recently at Andover, England, left $38,125.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, October 30

According to the lunar activities on this day there may be a very lively and progressive as well as aggressive state of affairs, which should have favorable trends in the direction of mcreased business or finances but which hold a baneful reaction in employment or in the good graces of those in power and authority. Too ardent or agitated attack of such affairs may prove a negative force.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and progressive year with affairs generally flourishing and interesting excepting in the line of employments, which seems to harbor some disappointing or unhappy angles.

A child born on this day should be energetic, progressive, ambitious and practical as well.

NEW MEN'S CLUB AT BONARLAW

J. F. Baker Elected President —Open to All British Subjects Over 16 Years Old.

MEET TWICE MONTHLY.

BONARLAW, Oct. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Wednesday, October 24th, a meeting of the laymen of St. Mark's Church was held in the Sunday school rooms and a Men's Club was formed, membership to be open to all British subjects 16 years of age and over.

The Rector, Canon W. G. Swayne, opened the meeting with prayer and acted as chairman, explaining the objects and aims of the proposed club and the possibilities for service. The election of officers resulted as follows: Hon. Presidents—The Lord Bishop of Ontario, Canon W. G. Swayne; John Webb, Sr., John Eastwood, Samuel McComb, Jesse Barlow, S. S. McComb, and Mel. Fitzgerald. President, J. F. Baker; Vice-president, J. M. Barlow; Secretary-treasurer, Earnest Stiles; Assistant Secretary-treasurer, Chas. Lough. The following committees were named: Program—W. J. Barlow, M. Stocker, Allan McComb; refreshment—C. Lough, Geo. Haggerty, G. S. Eastwood, John E. Brown, John McKeown.

The dates of meeting were set for first and third Tuesday of each month and the annual meeting and election of officers for the first meeting in October of each year.

A short program was put on by various members present. Prospects are very bright for a large attendance at future meetings. About a dozen of those present signified their intention of attending the banquet of the Laymen's Association of the Deaneries of Hastings and Prince Edward to be held at Trenton on Friday, October 26th.

THIS STUDENT FOUND HER COMPLEXION TONED UP TO ITS NATURAL BEAUTY

A young girl was one of several persons who formed a clinic or test class recently held in a large Canadian city. She was thrilled with what happened. At the beginning of the treatment her blood was tested and found to be below normal in red corpuscles and haemoglobin, the red substance in the corpuscles. Her health was "indifferent". But after thirty days this student returned rosy with joyous health.

When the girl student's blood lacked vitality her complexion also lacked sparkle and colour and was uninteresting. But after a month's treatment with the tonic, which was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, her blood became fully charged or filled again with the proper amount of red corpuscles and haemoglobin. This toned up her complexion to its natural beauty and awakened the life and sparkle of her eyes with vibrant health. It was all so easy and results so delightful.

Would you, too, like to be better looking? And also have that vitality which lets you take a happy interest in work or play? It's no fun to be only half alive whether one is young or old, so turn to this tested tonic yourself. Try the same remedy this young student used—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Take as directed for 30 days or so and watch new colour flooding your cheeks, new flesh filling your hollows and new health vibrating in your body. Full size package is 50c.

MAY LOSE TITLES.

LONDON, October 29 (A.P.). — The 10,000,000 subjects of the King of Siam did not know to-day their ruler had threatened to quit, but his representatives here said the Government had asked His Majesty to reconsider.

While King Prajadhipok was on the Continent, it was revealed, the government at home amended some of his prerogatives, principally that of life and death over his subjects. Prajadhipok threatened to resign.

The monarch let it be known today he would withdraw this intention if his government abandons the measure limiting his powers.

Prajadhipok's private secretary said the government had asked the King to reconsider, but would drop his long list of Oriental titles, which include "The Supreme Arbiter of the Ebb and Flow of the Tides" and "The Professor of the 24 Umbrellas."

Despatches from Bangkok, which have been under strict censorship, say order exists, but the public does not know the King has threatened to abdicate.

Until his power was curbed two years ago the five-foot ruler was the world's only absolute monarch.

The King and Queen Rambai Barni left home several months ago and visited several European capitals in Europe and in England. Recently he underwent an operation for an eye cataract (similar to the one he underwent in the United States in 1931.)

BANDITS SCOURGE BRAZILIAN TOWNS

RECIFE, Brazil, Oct. 23 (C.P.).—A former lieutenant of the barbaric Lampaeo is rapidly becoming more terrible than his aging master in the eyes of the populace in the interior. The new bandit terror is called Corisco, which mean lightning. Lampaeo means lamp-post.

Rumor has it that Corisco, who raids fazendas and towns at the head of a band of 30 mounted men and two women, always hangs the victims of his raids.

A more trustworthy report of the robber's sallies in the interior of the State of Pernambuco is that he frequents highways, forces automobiles to stop and beats the occupants after robbing them.

One hair-raising story about Corisco is that when he catches a soldier in uniform he pulls his victim's tongue out with his bare hands, clamps it on the dying man's neck and exclaims, "Another trooper now wears a necktie."

Lampaeo himself recently emerged from his forest retreat to terrorize the north-eastern section of the country. Early in September he was reported encamped near Aguas Bellas, 186 miles west of here. Newspapers reflected the terror of the people. One newspaper said editorially: "Emergency measures must be taken to preserve the Pernambuco sectors from the tremendous peril."

Roseneath

A big time is anticipated here for Thursday, November 1, when the United Church Sunday School is holding their annual Hallowe'en party in the Orange Hall. The various committees are busy working to improve on previous years which will be hard to beat. Mrs. L. Turner, Mrs. A. Nill and Mrs. D. Brisbin, program committee; Mr. George Turner, Mr. O. J. Robins, Misses K. Barrie and Lois Talling, prize committee; Mrs. M. D. Brown, Mrs. G. Mouncey and J. Johnston will be responsible for the hall decorations, etc.

The Women's Institute will hold their regular meeting on Friday afternoon, November 2, instead of Thursday. Mr. N. A. MacColl, of Campbellford, will give an address and the president, Mrs. Frank Nichol, requests all members and friends to be present.

Mrs. Ella Brown and daughter, Miss Irene Brown, attended the funeral of their cousin, Donald Oliver, at Hastings, on Monday last.

Mrs. Reg. Crego and children, Rex and Frances, are holidaying with relatives at Kinmount.

A happy crowd of girls and boys, men and women went over to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Fitzgibbon (nee Jessie Mouncey) at Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mouncey's on Wednesday night. After considerable noise with the usual pots, pans and ploughshares, the crowd was invited into the house where they offered congratulations to the newlyweds.

Miss Claira Neiman, Rosella Taylor and Luella Timlin were representatives of the Young People's Society at Baltimore on Thursday afternoon.

Yes, Debs Must Really Work For a Living

Another illusion is shattered! All girls in the social register are not wealthy. Most of them do not work for the fun of it—but because they "need the dough." These discoveries were made through a consensus after New York society girls were accused by a models' association of using their social position to obtain jobs as mannequins. The association charged further that the blue-blooded young ladies worked for the "fun of it" and did the ordinary working girl out of a job

The three society models above were queried on the reasons they were working.

CENTRE—Mimi Richardson, is the 19-year-old debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Richardson. She says that society girls are chosen on their merits just as the ordinary working girls.

RIGHT—Bea Hudson, is the daughter of the socially-prominent Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Hudson. She is famous as the poster girl for a cigarette company. She said the complaint was "silly" and that she hoped the association wouldn't picket her, because she's been working just as hard as any other. She's been posing for three years. All three reiterated that it was no fun —and they did it because they needed the money.

WIDER CONTROL GRAIN MARKET

upwards of $200,000,000 although it was impossible to make an exact computation.

Make No Suggestions.

Mr. McFarland makes no suggestions as to the form of the restrictions he advocated. His statement contains a long analysis of the system of wheat futures trading, its history and its purpose. He hits out sharply at the professional speculator who he says, from time to time makes a drive on the price structure by pouring on the market millions of bushels of wheat which are not his own.

This hits the farmer and the general public among whom are many small private speculators. With Winnipeg the most important open market left in the world these attacks would naturally take place there and Canada's super wheat salesman thinks steps should be taken to prevent this.

He gave no details of how regulation should be effected but referred to the quantitative trading restrictions on the Chicago Board of Trade and the limits on price fluctutations in effect there.

The Winnipeg Grain Exchange, said Mr. McFarland, is now the most important open futures market in an export country in the world. This was calculated to make it the centre of the type of raid he regarded as dangerous.

After outlining the workings and objects of the futures trading between the time it leaves the farmer until it reaches the consumer. Normal hedging and futures trading takes care of this but the general public, the small traders who buy futures are at the mercy of the big fellow who can unload millions of bushels he does not own and thus break the market.

Keene

A very successful fowl supper was held on Wednesday evening, October 24, in the basement of the United Church, when over six hundred persons sat down to a bounteous supper. Many from the surrounding country motored to Keene to partake of the excellent supper served by the ladies of the congregation, who deserve much credit for the way it was served and the appetizing appearance of the tables. The evening was peasantly concluded by a play, entitled "Mary's Castles in the Air," which was ably presented by St. James' Young People of Peterborough, and had to be put on twice during the evening at 7 and 9 o'clock to enable all the crowd to see it. A ten-cent tea the following evening ,to which over two hundred returned to have supper, concluded the activities for another year, all satisfied the event had been a decided success.

QUEBEC WORRIED BY DOG THIEVES

Police and Humane Society Kept Busy With Newly Organized Racket.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.— (C.P.) — The latest racket to make its appearance in this city is that of dog-napping, or dog-kidnapping or what ever you call it.

Not only is this activity causing much consternation to the local police authorities, but it is also bringing sorrow to dog lovers, many of whom have been victimized. The individuals involved in this heartless traffic snatch the canines under the noses of their owners and either collect a reward for the animals' return or sell them to kennels. J. R. Innes, head of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Annals in Quebec, reports this racket as assuming large proportions.

The dog-snatchers are all expert in judging canine values, with the result that only the more expensive types of dogs are disappearing. They have also devised a process of dying the dog's hair so that recognition is almost impossible.

If the owner of some expensive type of dog refuses to pay the demanded reward, the canine is dyed and shipped to some other city and there sold at a profitable sum.

Trent River

The oil tanks, formerly operated by Mr. Stanley Carnrite have been removed.

A culvert has been placed on the concession road, rear of Mr. John Sedgwick's barn which will prove beneficial in the spring, as the road was flooded every year.

Today's Recipes

Dreams Delight—One-half cup butter, two tablespoons powdered sugar, one cup flour. Mix the above together like pie dough. Place in pan and bake one-half hour at 325 degrees. While this is baking mix the following: One and one-fourth cups brown sugar, two eggs, two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one cup coconut, one cup pecan nuts, one-half teaspoon almond extract. Place on top of first mixture and bake another half hour. When cool cut in squares.

FACTS AND FANCIES
Fruit Sherbet

Two cups pineapple juice, one cup orange juice, one cup canned fruit syrup, peach, apricot, raspberry or cherry; one-fourth cup sherry, one-half cup lemon juice, one and one-fourth cups sugar, one-half cup water, four egg whites, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Combine fruit, chill through. Freeze to a mush. Have meringue ready, fold it in and finish freezing. To make the meringue, cook one cup sugar and water to the long thread stage. Beat egg whites stiff, add one-fourth cup sugar and salt, beating them in also. Pour hot syrup over whites, beating constantly. Continue beating until almost cool. Fold into fruit and finish freezing.

Orange and Pineapple Ice Cream

One cup milk, one tablespoon flour, one-half cup sugar, one egg yolk, dash salt, one-half cup crushed pineapple, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-fourth cup orange juice, one tablespoon grated orange rind, one cup cream, whipped. Scald milk. Pour on to flour and sugar mixed together. Heat over hot water, stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Cook ten minutes. Pour a small amount of the hot mixture onto the beaten egg yolk. Return all to double boiler and cook one minute longer. Add salt and chill. Add fruit, fruit juices and grated rind. Fold in whipped cream. Freeze, using six parts ice to one of salt.

CAMPBELLFORD SOCIETY WINS MASON TROPHY

St. Andrew's Church Y. P. S. Also Awarded "Banner" For Attendance

RALLY AT COBOURG.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Young People's Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, attended the annual rally of the Y.P.S. of the Presbytery of Peterborough, held at Cobourg, on Friday evening last, and were successful in bringing home both the cup known as the E. F. Mason Trophy, and the banner. These awards were presented by E. F. Mason of Peterborough and James Dutton, also of Peterborough; the cup being donated to the society having the greatest number of points for general proficiency, attendance at meetings and contributions; the banner to the society having the largest number of members present and coming the greatest distance to the rally. After the banquet, which was called for 6.30, an excellent program, arranged by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr and the president, Howard Shackleton, followed: Devotions; Business; Roll Call (each society giving a brief report); Appointment of Nominating Committee; Musical numbers by the Warkworth Society; Report of Provincial Conference, Mr. Shackleton; "A Visit to Glen Mohr Camp" Miss Marion Armstrong and Les. Wilson; Piano solo, Miss Grace Johnston; "Highlights of a Student's Mission Field," James Young of Knox College, Toronto; Reading by Mrs. Percy Locke; Musical number by the Lakeport Society; Address by the Rev. Norman McEachern of Toronto; Presentation of Awards; Report of Nominating Committee; Installation of Officers by the Rev. Dr. Barr, Moderator of Presbytery; Short address by Mr. Ernest Moodie of Toronto, who outlined the work of the young people in connection with the Y.P.S.

The next rally will be held in Campbellford. The meeting closed with hymn and Benediction.

INDIAN ADZE FOUND ON FARM

IN LAKE TOWNSHIP.

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 29.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A relic of the early day was recently found by Mr. Hugh Innes while walking with Mr. Karl McMullen on the latter's farm in Lake Township, North Hastings. Mr. Innes picked up the object and found it to be made of metal so hard that a file made no impression. It was shaped like a chisel.

Mr. Innes communicated with the Royal Ontario Museum, with the result that a letter from Dr. Currelly of the Royal Ontario Museum of Archeology revealed that fact that the object was a native copper adze and that they were always anxious to get all they can when the area in which they are found is definitely known, as they hope slowly to find out whether metal is spread over the whole province or not.

BENNETT REPLIES TO HON. H. STEVENS

view and that no further action would be taken with respect to your preferred resignation, which I did not discuss with anyone.

"On the 2nd of February I moved the adoption by the House of Commons of a resolution, notice of which had been placed upon the order paper. It was agreed that the resolution was in very wide terms. My speech in explanation will be found at pages 211 and 212 of the Hansard of this year, and the report of my remarks in closing the debate at pages 242 to 247.

Purpose of Government

"You will perhaps recall, without reference to Hansard, that I then said that it was: "The purpose of the government to ask one of its members to act upon that committee, and I hope that in due course he will be elected as chairman,' and I assured the House that: 'Every effort that can be made towards securing evidence as to what the conditions are will be made.'

"In due course a committee of 11 was appointed and you were elected chairman. From that time the committee had an absolutely free hand and no effort of any kind, shape or form was made to in any way limit or restruct its activities, except that on more than one occasion we pointed out to you the danger of creating in the minds of those interested, especially in retail business, the impression that parliament could provide a remedy for the conditions of which they complained, in view of the decisions of the courts as to the jurisdiction of provincial legislatures over contracts and price-fixing.

"The committee examined a large number of witnesses, but, as the end of the session approached, it was apparent that, due to the voluminous character of the evidence and the limited time at its disposal, it would not be 'possible to complete the investigations and inquiry contemplated by the terms of the resolution and to report thereon before prorogation.'

"It was therefore recommended that the inquiry be continued as a commission, the members of the committee to be appointed commissioners under the Inquiries Act, to continue and complete their investigations and inquiry, and that the commissioners report their findings to the Minister of Trade and Commerce, the records, exhibits and evidence received and taken by the special committee to be made available to the commission. The commission was appointed in due course by order-in-council, you being named chairman, thereafter organized, and it has been convened by you to meet on the 29th instant.

"In the meantime, the secretary of the commission, who is a member of the staff of the Department of External Affairs, with three other gentlemen, have spent a large part of the Summer in preparing a precis of the evidence taken by the committee and in studying what effective action might be taken by parliament to provide appropriate and effective measures to remedy the conditions disclosed in the evidence taken by the committee.

"At the end of July or in the early part of August you left Ottawa to visit British Columbia. Before you reached Winnipeg I received a communication indicating that a pamphlet, alleged to be issued by you, had been sent to certain newspapers and others, containing statements which were regarded as unjust and unfair to certain Canadian enterprises.

"I called you on the telephone at Winnipeg and you informed me that the pamphlet was not intended for circulation but was the report of an address you had made to the Study Club referred to in your letter. On inquiry I ascertained that the pamplet had been revised by Mr. Muir of the Bureau of Statistics: submitted to and approved by you with slight alterations. You will observe that the language of the pamphlet refers to 'readers' and not to 'hearers' of the address.

Banning of Pamphlet.

"In consequence of my investigations and perusal of the pamphlet, I endeavoured to prevent its further circulation. I did so for two reasons:

"It is fundamentally unsound that the chairman of a select committee and of a royal commission, whether or not a member of the government, should publicly discuss the committee's proceedings before the evidence had been completed and a report thereon made by the Royal Commission, especially in view of the rule that prevents members of the House of Commons from discussing in the House proceedings before its committees until final report has been made, conclusions or judgments should not be pronounced until taking of evidence is completed and arguments heard there on.

"2. Representations were made to me that statements contained in the pamphlet were at variance with the evidence given before the select committee and were without any basis in fact. Circulation of such statements was injurious not only to individuals and business institutions aggrieved thereby but also to yourself, and prejudicial to the effective work of the commission and the cause you have so much at heart.

"I think you will agree that the circulation of a pamphlet containing untrue statements is contrary to every priciple of British justice, and to pillory your fellow-citizens in the court of public opinion on statements which are not supported by the evidence placed the commission, as well as yourself, and your colleagues, in a most difficult position.

"I do not propose to do more than direct your attention to the fact that it is now clear that the statements contained in your pamphlet with respect to several Canadian enterprises and individuals are untrue in whole or in part. About that, I think there can be not slightest doubt.

"It is one thing for a private individual to express his opinion with respect to the solvency or insolvency of companies or persons or with respect to the value or lack of value of property owned by others: but when a minister of the crown, with all the authority and powers of his position, makes statements which are at variance with the facts and which are not supported by the evidence taken by the committee of which he was chairman, it is calculated to be most injurious to those concerned and, as the minister is presumed to be speaking for the government, such action places upon the administration a grave and serious responsibility.

"It is impossible to justify the publication and circulation of untrue statements by a minister of the crown which are calculated to have the effect of destroying the reputation or property of any citizen of the country. I do not propose to refer in detail to the inaccurate statements in question, to which your attention has already been directed.

Stevens Asked for Views.

"Yesterday, in view of our previous discussions, I brought these matters to your attention as I deemed it desirable that you should indicate to me and to my colleagues what course you proposed to pursue when the Royal Commission should meet next week. You were asked to state your views in the light of complaints that had been made by those who claim to have been injured by mis-statements contained in the pamphlet.

"You will recall that your colleagues were unanimously of the opinion that in view of the inaccurate statements contained in the pamphlet, it was desirable, when the commission meets next week, that you should make a statement indicating the circumstances under which the pamphlet come into being, and expressing regret for any injury that such mis-statements had caused to the reputation of any individual or business and also indicating that the commission would afford complainants every opportunity to refute such mis-statements.

"The matter was discussed by your colleagues in what I thought was a most amicabe manner, and we concuded as I understood it, with your approval to adjourn until to-day for further discussion and consideration. Without such further discussion or considera tion you have tendered your resignation stating you find it impossible to accept the viewpoint of my colleagues and myself.

"Apart from the responsibility that rests upon members of the government, to which I have alluded, the question of ethics is undoubtedly involved and, as much has been said about business ethics, I cannot but think it is the duty of any member of a government who is responsibe for the publication and circulation of a pamphet containing inaccurate statements, to take the earliest opportunity to correct or to withdraw such statements, with an appropriate expression of regret.

"I have read your letter to my colleagues. You are under a misconception as to what was said yesterday regarding the duties of the chairman of a Royal Commission who is a member of the government of the day. My colleagues and I made it clear to you that a minister of the Crown, even though chairman, is presumed to be speaking for the government and that the principle of cabinet solidarity may not recklessly be departed from.

Advice to Minister.

"In dealing with questions of governmental policy, a minister of the Crown should take care that his public pronouncements represent the views of the government of which he is a member.

"I note you have tended your resignation as chairman of the commission, but such resignation will not preclude you from continuing as a member of the commission, nor from indicating the witnessee you desire to have called before the commission, nor from obtaining from them the evidence which you say is available.

"May I add that the government proposes that the investigation should be carried to a conclusion and that by every proper method all material evidence should be made available which may be required by the commission, to enable it to discharge its duties and make a report.

"I am glad to observe you apparently recognize that the government will do its duty in that regard, for you express the confident belief that parliament will implement at the next session any constructive measures based upon the findings of the commission.

"May I avail myself of this opportunity to pay a tribute to your industry and zeal as a minister. It is a matter of regret to me that you have chosen to resign rather than take the course that my colleagues have strengthened public confidence in the commission, maintained the principles of British justice and fair play, promoted the speedy and efficient conclusion of the work of the commission, and report an authority that would not lightly be questioned.

"Yours sincerely,
(Signed) "R. B. BENNETT."

Weddings

KELLY—DAWSON

BAILIEBORO, Oct. 29.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, October 17, at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, when Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dawson was united in marriage to Robert H. Kelly. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Cook.

The bridal party took their places in the parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. Cook. The bride looked lovely in a gown of blue silk crepe and carried a bouquet of pink roses, and was attended by Miss Audrey Box dressed in pink georgette and carried pink and white carnations. The groom was assisted by Mr. Reginald Atchinson.

After the service a wedding supper was served to thirty-five of the immediate friends and relatives of the young couple. The bride's travelling costume consisted of rose beige and accessories to match. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a ring to the pianist, a necklace with brilliants and to the groomsman gold cuff links.

Obituary

MRS. R. J. GALT.

NAPANEE, Oct. 29.—An old and highly respected resident of this community passed away recently in the person of Mrs. Almira Maria Galt, widow of the late Robert J. Galt, at the advanced age of 81 years, one month and ten days.

Deceased, who had not been in good health for the last few years, had been confined to her bed for the past nine weeks. She was the youngest daughter and the last surviving member of the late Hiram S Smith and Elizabeth Salisbury, who were both of U. E. L. parentage. Their fathers crossed in an open boat from Oswego to Kingston and made homes for themselves in this locality. Mrs. Galt's maternal ancestors settled on the homestead where she has resided for many years and from whence her funeral was conducted.

Mrs. Galt was of a very bright and lovable disposition, with a keen intellect, which she retained to the very last. An affectionate mother and good neighbor, she took a deep interest in her home, her church and the community. She was a former member of the McDowell Memorial Presbyterian Church, later uniting with the Hawley United Church. A member and former president of the Ladies' Aid Society, she was also a member of the W. M. S. and the Maple Leaf Women's Institute.

The funeral service, which was largely attended, took place from her late residence. The Rev. W. S Smart officiated and took for his text the second verse of the 14th chapter of the gospel according to St. John, "In my Father's House are many mansions." Mrs. G. Huycks sang a solo, "He Always Knows." Six grandsons of the deceased—James, Gerald and Everett Galt, Kenneth Miller, Maurice Galt of the Royal Bank staff, Warkworth, and R. J. Miller, Peterborough—acted as bearers. Interment was made in the family plot at the McDowell Memorial Church, Sandhurst.

Floral tributes, besides those from the family and relatives, included sheaves from the Ladies' Aid Society and the W. M. S. of Hawley United Church, from the Maple Leaf Institute and a spray from Peterborough Chapter No. 161, O. E. S.

She is survived by four children —(Florence) Mrs. F. Miller, of Peterborough; Finlay B., with whom she resided; Robert J., of Bath, and Arthur E., of Hawley. Also ten grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Her husband predeceased her many years ago.

MRS. ALEXANDER WILSON.

HASTINGS, October 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — The village of Hastings lost one of its most highly respected citizens when Mrs. Alexander Wilson passed away at her home on Saturday morning.

The death of Hastings' grand old lady came as a great shock to the entire district where she was a friend to everyone. The deceased had been in delicate health for some time and only a few weeks ago was able to come down to the village for the first in some time. She was seized with her fatal illness only a week ago.

A native of Percy Township, the late Mrs. Wilson, whose maiden name was Jane Ann Merrills, was born on November 23, 1856, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Merrills, one of the early pioneer families of Percy Township.

On June 30, 1879, she became the bride of Alexander Wilson, who today is Hastings' oldest business man.

Since coming to Hastings after her marriage, Mrs. Wilson had won her way into everyone's heart whose pleasure it was to meet her. From a small start in life the great help she has been to her surviving husband in his business and municips' career was crowned with a plentiful supply of this world's goods. Of a charitable disposition she could always be depended on for help in any good cause.

She leaves to mourn her loss besides her sorrowing husband, two sons, Harold B. and John C. both of Hastings and one brother, David Merrills of Percy Township.

Since Saturday afternoon hundreds of friends have called at the family home on Albert Street to take their last look at a departed loved one. The front room of the home she had lived in her entire married life and where her remains are resting, is banked with beautiful floral offerings.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon, with services at the home at two o'clock after which interment will be made in Trent Valley Cemetery.

DURHAM COUNTY LIBERAL RALLY

Session in Orono Wednesday Will See Candidate for Riding Chosen.

IN ORONO.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Liberal Association of Durham County will meet in convention at Orono, Wednesday, October 31, at 2 p.m., for the purpose of choosing a candidate to carry the Liberal standard in the riding at the next Dominion election.

A recent change in the constitution passed at the last meeting of the association leaves the selection of the candidate in the hands of a committee composed of five representatives from each polling subdivision in the county, who alone will have the privilege of voting at the convention. The general public, however, is cordially invited to attend. The number of official delegates from the various municipalities of the riding has been fixed as follows:

Bowmanville, 60; Cartwright, 25; Cavan, 25; Clarke, 45; Darlington 40; Hope, 30; Manvers, 35; Millbrook, 10; Newcastle, 10; Port Hope, 55.

Badges will be provided delegates, and key-men who are in charge of the appointment of the official representatives are:

RACES RUN OFF AT TOURNAMENT

Dance Climaxes Big Night in Lacrosse in Millbrook Armouries.

JUVENILES PROMISING.

MILLBROOK, October 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—Winners in the program of races held at the Cosmos rink on Thursday, in connection with the lacrosse tournament, and run off under the direction of B. B. Dawson, principal of the public school, were:

Boys, 8 and under: Brenton Dawson, Kenneth Foottit; boys, 10 and under: Ross Embley, Donald Kerr; Girls, 10 and under: Francis Ticknor, Mary Sanderson; boys, 13 and under: Jack Arundel, Harry McLeod; girls, 14 and under: Phyllis Lunn, Mary Smith; three-legged race, boys: Jack Arundel and Orval Wainman, H McLeod and Pat. Widdis.

The dance, held at night in the Armouries, as the concluding feature of the tournament, was well attended, music being supplied by Atchison's 6-piece orchestra, of Peterborough. Hector Whyte and Clifford Skinkel were in charge of the booth where hot dogs, coffee, etc. were dispensed, the proceeds helping to meet the expense involved in staging the tournament.

A juvenile lacrosse game at 7 p.m. entertained the spectators who arrived early for the later contest between Harmony team, of Oshawa, and Millbrook the number of players giving plenty of assurance that the community will not lack for a lacrosse club in the years ahead.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gautt, of Toronto, were guests afternoon and evening and when the former presented the "Gautt Memorial Cup", of which he was one of the donors, to the winning team at night, three rousing cheers and a tiger showed his popularity locally.

Miss Freidel Meedler, of Toronto, has been the guest this week of her uncle and aunt, Mr. A. A and Miss Henrietta Needler.

Miss Ruth Winchester, of Hamilton, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J P. Chalmers, and Mr. Chalmers, this week.

Mr. Albert Stevenson, who has been teller at the local branch of the Bank of Toronto for some time, has been moved to the South Porcupine branch, his brother from the latter point coming here as teller in the Millbrook branch. Mr. Stevenson won many friends in the community and will be missed from social and sports circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Errol Doxsee and three children, of Kirkland Lake, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Donnelly. Mrs. Doxsee and the children will make an extended stay here, Mr. Doxsee going to the Long Lac District, where he has secured a position in a hardware store.

Mr. Jack Lamprey, of Vancouver, B.C., spent the week-end with his grandmother, Mrs. T. B. Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gautt, of Toronto, motored to the village on Thursday and attended the lacrosse tournament, the former presenting the Gautt Memorial Cup to the winning team from Oshawa at the close of the night game. Mr. and Mrs. Gautt were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hutchison during their stay in Millbrook.

Mr. Dickson Hutchison is attending the Century of Progress Exhibition at Chiacgo.

Arnold Armstrong, of the Bank of Toronto staff at Copper Cliff is at present holidaying with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Armstrong. Mr. Armstrong has been moved to the head office of the bank at Toronto, and leaves shortly for his new duties.

Mr. H. Bigelow is opening an up-to-date dance and party room in the Waverly building with a Hallowe'en dance on Wednesday, October 31.

The Cavan and South Monaghan Sunday School Convention will be held in Grace Presbyterian Church on November 0, with Rev. C. D. Daniel, of Mark Street Church, Peterborough, giving addresses afternoon and evening, and local clergy taking charge of the devotional periods.

On Wednesday, October 31, the Liberals of Durham County will meet in convention at Orono at 2 p.m. standard time. H. A. Elson is in charge of the appointment of delegates from the village, ten being the allotted number of representatives who will have the privilege of voting. A candidate will be chosen for the next Dominion Election.

NEW CHAIRMAN TO BE NAMED BY CABINET

When Mr. Stevens returned to Ottawa, the Prime Minister was in Europe, and, beyond some press speculation as to what might happen on Mr. Bennett's return, nothing more was heard of the matter.

Fire Been Smouldering.

That the fire had, however, been smouldering was manifest when last Friday rumors, now established as having good foundation, began to circulate in the capital of dissension among Mr. Stevens' Cabinet colleagues. Friday's session was stormy. It transpires that Mr. Stevens was urged to retract his statements and couple the retraction with an expression of regret. This he declined to do. The inevitable happened. Mr. Stevens broke with the Government and tendered his resignation.

His letter was turned in to the Prime Minister around lunch-time on Friday. Saturday morning, commenting on the news despatches from Ottawa which portrayed the happenings at Friday's Cabinet meeting, Mr. Stevens said he had not yet heard of Mr. Bennett relative to the resignation.

Meanwhile, Cabinet again met on Saturday forenoon. While it was still in session the Prime Minister proceeded to Government House, presumably to place Mr. Stevens' resignation before the Governor-General. Returning, he informed newspapermen there would be no announcement from him "at the moment." The announcement came early in the evening, and with it copies of all the correspondence passing between Mr. Stevens and Mr. Bennett.

TRENT RIVER Y.P.S. ENJOYS DEBATE

"Resolved, Towns, Cities Hold Greater Opportunities Than Country" is Subject.

AFFIRMATIVE WINS.

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 29.—(Examiner Correspondence).—With a lively debate on the league programme Friday night at the United Church, an attendance of 65 was present, showing hearty cooperation in the Young Peoples' work and also encourageing the newly elected President Mr. George Armstrong.

The public speaking contest for the public school will be held on league night of this week. A letter was read regarding subscriptions to the Quinte Broadcast paper also asking for an editor from the league to report each week to this conference paper. Mr. Clifford Chaplin was appointed. A new book for the secretary was ordered.

The president announced that the judges for the debate were Rev. S. A. Kemp and Mr. N. L. Small, B.A., of Havelock, the latter also acting as critic.

The debate followed—"Resolved that cities and towns offered greater opportunities that the country." The affirmative was upheld by Messrs George Armstrong and Clifford Chaplin, while the negative was supported by Messrs R. W. Umphry and James Inkster.

The Affirmative.

Leader of the affirmative, Mr. George Armstrong spoke first referring to fighting one's way in life, higher education is not available in the country schools, cities and towns offer more sanitary conditions, baseball and hockey stars have to go to the city. Next came James Inkster on the negative upholding country life, giving greater opportunities for preserving health, country offers opportunities to bring up young people without evil influence. Mr. Clifford Chaplin gave a number of good points for the affirmative—no one ever comes from the cities or towns to the country, referred to a number of our local boys and girls who have gone to the cities to further their education.

The Negative.

Mr. R. W. Armstrong supporting the country advantages, spoke next opening his remarks, "Far away fields look green," and referred to the advantges of agriculture. The lumbering, mining and trapping industries offer great opportunities to especially the young men. Something concrete is what we need not what may come to pass. While the judges were arriving at their decision, Mr. Wesley Wildman led in community singing, with Miss Fiede Thompson at the piano.

Mr. Small gave the decision in favour of the affirmative side by a narrow margin.

Both sides scored 9 points in general delivery.

Miss Fleda Thompson was in charge of a flower contest for which the sides grouped, two sides die for first place. Devotional night will be Friday, November 9th when Mrs. John Scott will be in charge.

Norwood

Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Howson of Kalamazoo, Mich., spent a few days recently with Mr. Wellington Burgess and family.

The Norwood Presbyterian Guild was well represented at a rally held in Cobourg on Friday night.

Miss Lila Burgess spent a few days in Toronto, with Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Howson.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson Burgess and Ruth spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Beamish of Hastings.

Many friends called at the home of Mrs. R. H. Gardner, Queen street, on Friday afternoon, and evening when she received for the first time since her marriage. The dining room table was attractively decorated. Mrs. G. A. Barton, aunt of the bride, received in the afternoon the many callers with the hostess, who was formerly Dorothy Barton, the latter wore her graceful wedding gown of white satin. In the evening, Mr. R. H. Gardner received with Mrs. Gardner, Miss Nancy Gill attended the door; Mrs. E. Harper led the guests to the dining room where Mrs. R. Gardner and Mrs. G. Hamblin poured tea; they were assisted by Mrs. A. Hamblin, Mrs. M. Gardner, Mrs. J. Miles and Miss Olive Barton.

Fowl Supper Held By Westwood Church

WESTWOOD, Oct. 29.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The annual fowl supper and entertainment of St. Andrew's United Church, Westwood, held on Tuesday evening, was a decided success. There was a large crowd, many coming from a distance. Following the supper an excellent play, entitled "Her Step-Husband," was presented by the Young People's Society of Stewart's Hall. This play needs no introduction to Examiner readers and merited the same high praise.

Rev. F. W. Newall acted as chairman and filled in the short space between acts with various announcements and remarks.

A vote of thanks was extended by S. C. Warr to the young people of Stewart's Hall and to the ladies and all who had helped in making the supper a success.

CORDOVA MINES

Miss Estelle Peever of Toronto is guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Steenburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Van Volkenburg entertained a large number of friends on Wednesday evening.

Rev. Mr. Hollingsworth of Marmora spent the supper hour as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Buchanan.

On Wednesday evening a large number of people gathered at the United Church for the purpose of re-organizing a league. Next week another meeting will be held along a social order, after which lunch will be served by the ladies.

No Slang By Waiters Too Costly To Cafes

CHICAGO.—"It has been determined that bad English spoken by waiters cost the average hotel restaurant 2 per cent of its annual gross income through loss of customers". So says Charles Moser, maitre d'hotel at the Palmer House. (He didn't explain exactly how this figure was determined, and as a matter of fact there are some who believe that only 1% percent is lost in this manned. But there is no need for splitting hairs). Hereafter at the Palmer House, Mr. Moser will demand perfect English when it IS English—and perfect French when it IS French. Rules: Don't say "Wotcha want?" Say, "What would you like to have?" Don't say, "The pancakes are elegant." Say, "May I recommend the crepes suzettes?" And at the bar: Never say, "This is on the house." Say, "Two eighty-five."

Temperance Association Asks Vote

SEEK ABOLITION BEVERAGE ROOM NEW YEAR'S DAY

Peterborough Temperance Association Will Ask Council For Vote.

FOISTED ON PUBLIC.

A. B. Cunningham Declares Drain of $850 Per Day on Retail Trade.

Peterborough Temperance Association last night resolved to petition the City Council asking that the Council submit a vote at the next municipal election seeking abolition of beverage rooms in the city.

Called at short notice and held under chairmanship of A. B. Cunningham, in the Y.M.C.A., the meeting, though small, was fully representative and included a number of women.

Committee Named.

Mr. Cunningham, along with H. B. Cowan and the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, were named a committee to complete arrangements for the presentation of the petition before the Council on Monday evening next, while other members of the Association intimated their intention of being present in the Council Chamber to back up the request for a local option referendum.

Young people's societies of the churches are to be requested, through their respective ministers, to lend their support to the movement, and it was suggested that they might send in to the Council their own petitions in favor of a local option vote.

Motion Unanimous.

The motion by which the Association decided upon its immediate course of action was moved by E. F. Reid and seconded by R. S. Merrell, "that we petition the City Council to submit a vote on the abolition of beverage rooms at the next municipal election."

Following some discussion, the motion was carried unanimously by a standing vote.

In opening the question, Mr. Cunningham pointed out that the vote could be taken at little or no expense to the city if it was done in connection with the municipal elections. The question that would be asked on the ballot paper would be:

DORLAND PICKED BY BANK TELLER

Sure Accused is Man Who Carried Out Bag With $24,034 Day of Robbery.

RECOGNIZES ANOTHER.

TORONTO, October 30 (C.P.).—James H. Dunlop, teller in the Union Stock Yards branch of the Bank of Montreal, to-day told a General Sessions Court he believed Albert Dorland was the man who carried a white bag containing $24,034 stolen from the bank in an armed robbery last July.

Dorland, who has pleaded not guilty to the charge of armed robbery, is the first of three men standing trial in connection with the robbery. The others are Ray Alderman of Detroit and John Valkoff of Montreal.

Dunlop was more definite in his identification of Valkoff than of the other two men alleged to have taken part in the robbery. He gave as his reason that the man he believes was Valkoff "spoke with a foreign accent."

The teller described the robbery in which he said three men who had entered the bank made all the employees lie down on the floor and subsequently forced him to open a safe inside a vault. The thieves, he said, obtained about $8,000 or $9,000 from the teller's cage.

After the robbery had been completed, he added, the entire staff was forced to lie on the floor of the vault after being herded there at pistol point.

Heads Liberals

EVERETT L. SACKVILLE

who has been elected as president of the Liberal Association of Peterborough West.

LIBERALS ELECT E. L. SACKVILLE NEW PRESIDENT

Federal Riding of Peterborough Holds Organization Meeting.

W. A. FRASER SPEAKS.

Cannot Have Socialism Without a Dictator Speaker Declares.

Everett L. Sackville was elected president of the Liberal Association for the federal riding of Peterborough at its annual meeting in the Canadian Legion Hall.

Mr. Sackville succeeds Vincent Eastwood who resigned from the presidency some time ago.

The other officers elected last night were:

1st Vice-Pres.—John A. Dewart.

2nd Vice-Pres. — Howard Quinn, Douro.

Secretary—T. J. Carley.

Treasurer—Alex L. Elliott.

The Honorary Presidents are W. L. Mackenzie King, Premier M. H. Hepburn, R. R. Hall, K.C., G. N. Gordon, K.C., J. J. Duffus and Dr. J. J. Craig.

Arrangements for the election of the executive and drafting of a constitution was left to the new officers. The meeting expended considerable time on discussion of a proposal for the formation of a central executive last night, to be composed of seven members, four of them from the rural section of the riding, with the customary divisional and ward chairmen to be appointed later. The purpose of this plan was to obtain a comparatively small working executive to carry on the routine business of the association, the old form of executive being considered too large and cumbersome. It was also stated that many members of the executive did not regularly attend meetings because of the distance of their homes from the city.

When it came to the point of electing four members from the rural section of the constituency, the meeting realized that some townships would have representatives and the others might feel that they had been deliberately overlooked in forming the next executive. To avoid that possible reaction the members referred the question of executive appointments to the new officers, and also instructed them to arrange for an early nominating convention.

The Peterborough federal riding comprises the townships of Galway and Anstruther, Harvey, Ennismore, Smith, North and South Monaghan, Otonabee, Douro, Lakefield and the city.

A suggestion for the appointment of a nominating committee to submit a slate of officers was opposed in a motion by Alex L. El-

FISHERS PLIGHT SAID DESPERATE ALONG ATLANTIC

Average Earnings for 6 Month Season $210 Mass Buying Probe Told.

KENNEDY IN CHAIR.

May Request Powers Enlarged to Investigate Textile, Coal, Gasoline.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30 (CP)—A desperate picture of conditions among deep-sea fishermen in Nova Scotia was painted to-day before the Mass Buying Commission by Captain Rolland Knickle of Lunenburg.

Working 24 hours a day, often going three days without sleep, deep-sea fishemen in recent years averaged earnings of $210 for the six months' season. After deducting his expenses at sea, the man netted $150 in cash and credit for himself and family.

It was Capt. Knickle's opinion a combine existed among Nova Scotia merchants on fish prices. Practically never did one merchant offer a different price from another. He said the desperate plight of the industry was due almost entirely to low prices for fish.

Capt. Knickle praised the competitive fresh fish market in Boston which, he said, was in marked contrast to methods in Nova Scotia where a vessel owner was forced to accept a price from a company before he went to sea. Canadian vessels were excluded from the Bos-

City Share Of Beer Profits About $1,800

It was estimated here to-day that if the City Council decides to accept the promised 20 per cent. share in local beverage room profits, as announced by Premier Hepburn, the total amount received from this channel by the city exchequer would be approximately $1,800.

Statisticians here have estimated that the Government takes $30 a day from local beverage rooms with its levy of a 5 per cent. tax on purchases. The city's share would be 20 per cent. of this, or $6 a day, and estimating that the beverage rooms are open for 300 days each year the total for the year is easily calculated.

Prohibition leaders here expressed the opinion that the share in profits is being offered municipalities as a "sop" in an attempt to weaken the gathering opposition toward beverage rooms.

SIX BURN TO DEATH

7-DAY SERVICE TO AUSTRALIA

British Government Ready to Subsidize Air Line if Ship Built.

RESULT OF DERBY.

LONDON, Oct. 30 (C.P.-Havas).—A regular air passenger service linking London and Melbourne in seven days will be the most important result of the great aviation derby won by C. W. A. Scott and T. Campbell Black, it was said here to-day.

The "Daily Herald" reported this morning that the British Air Ministry is ready to subsidize air lines if they will place in immediate service a fleet of large passenger ships.

Despatches from Australia indicated that communications authorities in the Dominion had been convinced by the air derby that Melbourne could be linked with London in a maximum of 10 days' time, regular service. They were said to plan a request that all new planes placed in this service have a capacity of 50 miles an hour more than ships at present in use on the England-Australia service.

Aviation circles here predicted today that as a direct result of the air race there would be a regular seven-day service from London to Melbourne within a few months.

Driver Slightly Hurt Car Badly Wrecked

Although his car was completely wrecked, Charles Crowley, aged 30, employed at Mount St. Joseph, escaped with only minor bruises when the vehicle he was driving was struck by a C.N.R. freight train last evening at Park and McDonnell streets.

Crowley was driving east on McDonnel street about 7.10 and apparently failed to see the train moving north along the tracks until he was almost upon the crossing. He swung his car north, but its wheels became caught in the ties. The car slewed about and was facing west when the train struck it. Crowley was hurled from the vehicle which was badly damaged. He suffered a bruised ankle and a cut on the wrist and hand, but otherwise was uninjured.

Police investigated the crash.

Assuming Cost Of Provincial Highways Means Big Saving To County Of Peterboro'

Peterborough County will not escape paying its 20 percent share of the work which has been done on the Lakefield highway up to the present according to the local interpretation of Premier Hepburn's announcement that the Government is now abolishing the municipal share of highway construction costs. The County will receive a bill next Spring for the work done up to November 1, it is understood.

The amount which the county will be saved in future years, however, can be judged from bills paid in the past. Last year the bill for 20 percent of the costs amounted to $13,925.18 and, incidentally, has not yet been paid. County Treasurer Batten said this morning. In earlier years during the periods when No. 38 and No. 7 were under construction in the County limits the bills hovered in the region of $35,000. The final bill with which the County fathers will be faced next Spring will possibly be in the vicinity of $20,000 or $25,000.

For many years past the County Council has urged the assumption of all highway costs by the Government. It has originated and endorsed resolutions to that effect on several occasions.

The sum which the City of Peterborough will be saved is of considerably lesser magnitude. Last year the city's bill was $1,266 but the final bill for the work done on the highway approaches to the city up to November 1 may be somewhat larger on account of the work on the Lansdowne cut-off to No. 7.

In the past the city has shared in the costs on sections extending several mies out of the city on each highway. In years of particularly heavy bills, debentures were issued to meet them but the debentures have now all been paid off, Mr. Adams states.

BEER REVENUE, ROAD TAX CUT WELL RECEIVED

Soo Mayor Confident Move Will Not Increase Beverage Sales.

MAY REDUCE TAX RATES.

Finally Getting Concessions Advocated Years Says Kitchener Official.

(By The Canadian Press)

Municipal authorities throughout Ontario generally reacted favorably to-day to the announcement of Premier M. F. Hepburn that municipalities would share 20 percent of the proceeds from sale of beer and wine authorities, share the profits of beer and wine sales, and be relieved of the 20 percent highway tax.

It was expected, however, that remission of the highways tax would mean little to some municipalities where practically all highway paving has been completed, although they would derive a certain amount of benefit from being freed of the cost of highway repair and maintenance.

"It is only fair that the municipalities should derive revenue from such undertakings" declared Mayor Donald E. Lewis of Brockville. Under the old liquor systems the municipalities shared in the proceeds he said. Mayor Lewis' comment on the ethical implications of the question was the municipalities had it within their powers at any time to settle the matter by submitting local option by-laws to the ratepayers.

At Sault Ste. Marie, Mayor James Lyons stated "We'll be glad to get the revenue and I don't be-

TWO WOUNDED IN DENVER RIOT

Shots Are Fired as Police Charge Pickets at Federal Relief Camp.

ADVOCATING STRIKE.

DENVER, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Every available police reserve was called out today to quell a riot which followed an attempt by about 400 strike agitators, both men and women, some Communists, to halt federal employment relief work here by force.

DENVER, Oct. 30 (AP)—Shots were fired and police used riot sticks on a crowd of 300 or 400 men and women who attempted to picket a Federal work relief camp project to-day, agitating a strike.

There were about 300 workers on the project when a crowd of men and women advanced and demanded that they quit.

In the fight which followed, 30 shots were fired, one man was reported wounded and a patrolman was seriously injured.

The battle started when police started to arrest one of the strike leaders. The crowd attacked the eight officers as they reached the patrol wagon.

Struck By Bottle

Police Sgt. James Pitt, was struck by a woman armed with a beer bottle. A deep gash was inflicted on his lip. Patrolman Vernon Sapp went to Pitt's assistance and he was knocked down by one of the strike agitators.

Others jumped upon the officer, several kicking him.

The patrolmen drew revolvers and fired over the heads of the men and women.

One man fell, and Patrolman Marshall Stanton said he had shot a man in the stomach as he attacked an officer. The wounded man never was found and police believed he was rushed away by companions.

RIOT SQUAD OUT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Police emergency squad cars were rushed to the University of California, at Los Angeles, on a riot call today.

More Will Come Public Platform Floor Of House

Hon. H. H. Stevens Replies To Prime Minister R. B. Bennett's Letter In Which His Minister's Resignation From Cabinet Was Accepted.

Prized Liberty Of Action And Sense Of Duty To Public Of Canada More Than The Mere Retention Of Cabinet Office.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Constant criticism emanating almost exclusively from a small minority in the cabinet had been levelled against him since his January Toronto speech and this minority "together with yourself, now seize on the pamphlet as a culminating excuse for an unwarranted attack on me," Hon. H. H. Stevens told Premier R. B. Bennett in a letter today. The communication was a reply to the prime minister's letter accepting the resignation of Mr. Stevens.

"I have under my hand undubitable support for what I have said but I choose to reserve extended and detailed discussions for the public platform and the floor of parliament," Mr. Stevens states.

For him to have made the apology suggested for remarks in the pamphlet would have effectively destroyed his usefulness in the task he had set himself, and he would have been false to what he believed to be true and in the public interest, declares the retired minister of Trade and Commerce and chairman of the Mass Buying probe.

Complete Turn Over

"It would have been tantamount to a complete capitulation to those interests whose business practices are in my opinion responsible for untold suffering amongst the agricultural and industrial population of this country," he states.

"Making the apology you suggested would have been an easy way for me to have retained my seat in the cabinet but I prize my liberty of action and my sense of duty to the public of Canada more than the mere retention of office."

It was not the question of apology alone that caused his resignation, but the intolerable conditions which had developed in connection with his work by a cabinet minority who chose every opportunity to make irritating criticisms.

CROLL RUMORED FOR LABOR POST

Expected to Assume Portfolio Now Held by Overworked Roebuck.

CABINET IN SESSION.

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (C.P.).—Members of the Ontario Government went into Cabinet Council to-day to discuss among other matters what informed sources described as a change in the portfolio of Labor.

The report that Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare and Municipal Affairs, would be given the post could not be confirmed, but it was intimated by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn that Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, would relinquish the portfolio of Labor, held by him since the election of the Government.

The Attorney-General, himself, said there was some reorganization planned for the department, but declined to say if or when he would give up the post. For months he has been preparing Labor codes to be presented at the coming session of the Legislature, and it was described as doubtful that Mr. Croll would take over these matters not yet completed.

Mr. Hepburn, meanwhile, reiterated his desire not to go into the matter at present, though he said he thought Mr. Roebuck "has realized he has too much work." It was definite, he added, the Attorney-General was to remain on the Hydro Commission, and furthermore, he added, "the Labor Department is in the east block (where Mr. Croll's office is located), and Mr. Roebuck's office is away over here in the main building."

DUCE ORGANIZES GROUP FOR BOYS 6 TO 8 YEARS OLD

ROME, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini to-day carried the Fascist education of youth one step nearer to the cradle by creating the Balilla of Wolf organization for boys between the ages of six and eight years.

The present Balilla organization begins at the age of eight and runs to 14 years. The Balillas of Wolf wear black shirts and grey and green shorts.

Nothing has been said regarding the compulsory nature of the new group, but newspapers said it will embrace about 1,500,000 boys, which is approximately the number of Italian boys between those ages.

Your Evening Smile

CLOSE CALL

Repairs were being carried out on the roof of the asylum by a local builder, who had asked for an inmate to assist him.

All went well until lunch-time when the builder's assistant clutched him round the neck and, with a terrible laugh, said, "Come on, let's jump off!"

The builder was frightened almost out of his life, but suddenly he had an inspiration.

"Oh, rats!" he replied. "Anybody could do that. Come down and let's jump up!"

DUCKS ARRIVE AT RICE LAKE

WILD GEESE SEEN.

When the main flight of wild ducks arrives at Rice Lake, Enoch Merriam and other elders of Harwood know that cold weather is not far behind.

"There were about five hundred blue bills out in the bay a few days ago," Mr. Merriam said, "and some hunters brought down about thirty after staying out all night. I have often noticed that when the main flight comes we can expect cold weather in about three days. The northern ducks apparently know when their season is over. You hear them flying about over the village and the lake wondering whether to come down on the water, and in the morning you see thousands of them well out from shore. They stay for a while and then they are gone."

From Mr. Merriam's observation it is concluded that winter's outriders are still a few weeks' distant from this locality.

Fred Field recently told The Examiner that there were hundreds of ducks in the lake opposite Field Lodge Farm, and Tom Hooper who recently closed his cottage at Idle Wyld for the winter brought a similar report from Rice Lake.

Locally, flocks of wild geese flying south have been seen passing over the city this week, a seasonal indication as October merges into November.

STAGE ADONIS LOU TELLEGEN TAKES HIS LIFE

Idol on Stage for 20 Years, Now Cancer Victim, Stabs Self to Death.

WED FOUR TIMES.

HOLLYWOOD, October 30. — Lou Tellegen, who won world acclaim as a dashing stage and screen lover, then tasted the bitterness of misfortune and ill-health, committed suicide here yesterday.

His life despaired of by physicians, the 52-year-old actor staggered weakly into the bathroom of a wealthy friend's home and stabbed himself seven times in the breast with a pair of scissors.

Before inflicting the fatal wounds, Tellegen carefully shaved and powdered his face, the last gesture of an actor to his profession. As he fell he dropped the scissors into a wash bowl filled with water, and wrapped his dressing-gown around his bleeding body.

The suicide occured in the home of Mrs. J. P. Cudahy, member of the Chicago packing family. Mrs. Cudahy, who had befriended the once noted performer since his release from the Hollywood Hospital several months ago, said he was afflicted with cancer and was without funds.

With Bernhardt.

Lou Tellegen, born Isidor Louis Bernard Van Dammeler in Holland, was an outstanding matinee idol of the lush days of the drama. Known as "the perfect lover," for times a husband, he was the personification of the polished male for thousands of women theatre-goers for twenty years. His first stage success was in Paris, where he soon became a leading man for the then triumphant Sarah Bernhardt, queen of the drama.

He came to the United States with "The Divine Sarah's" company in 1910-11, appeared with her in London the next season, and in 1914 was back in America appearing as

Pioneer Mountie J. McKennan Dies

EDMONTON, Oct. 30.—(C.P.)—Third man to join the old Royal Northwest Mounted Police when it was formed in Ottawa in the early 70's, James McKernan, 83, is dead here.

Mr. McKernan, born in Richmond, Ont., came west in 1873 and was stationed first at Fort Macleod in the territory now in Southern Alberta. On Oct. 13 last, while thumbing through his leather-bound diary, the old-timer came across this entry written 60 years ago: "Mounted guard for the first time at Fort Macleod to-day .. Home, sweet home."

He settled near old Fort Edmonton in 1882. In 1885 Mrs. McKernan and their four year old child took refuge behind the palisades of the fort when fearing Indian attacks in the rebellion. Mr. McKernan rode 60 miles south to warn settlers the Indians might attack.

Promising that unless immediate reorganization of the Ontario Conservative party is made, Wilfred Heighington, Conservative M.P.P., threatens to "expose" the party's alleged "master-minds" on the floor of the House. Heighington made the threat addressing a meeting of the Toronto Junior Conservative Association.

ADVERSE WINDS DELAY FLIERS

Kingsford-Smith Advised Not to Start Hop to California.

WAITS IN HONOLULU.

(By William H. Ewing).

HONOLULU, Oct 30 (A.P.).—Adverse winds kept Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and Captain P. G. Taylor grounded to-day, awaiting a take off on the third and last leg of their perilous over-water flight from Australia to California.

Advised that a storm was moving southward along the western coast of the United States, the Australian flier and his navigator decided to remain here until conditions are more auspicious for the 2,400-mile hop to Oakland or Los Angeles.

"I am not out for a record," said Sir Charles. "It all depends on the weather."

Indications were that he would not have long to wait. Advices from the liner Lurline, 1,500 miles east of Honolulu, said that although the sky was overcast, the barometer was high, presaging favorable weather.

A final decision on the take-off probably awaited the word of Lieutenant E. W. Stephens, navy meteorologist at the fleet air base here. Lieutenant Stephens informed Sir Charles that if he left today, he would be forced to fight head winds most of the way to California.

The new highway connecting Gasgow and Inverness, Scotland, will cost $10,000,000.

NIXON SCORES ESSEX GUN CLUB

Apologizes to Partridge, Pheasant Hunters Who Were Banned.

BE NO REPETITION..

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—Condemning the tactics of one gun club in the Essex County shooting of last Friday and Saturday, Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Minister of Game and Fisheries, yesterday laid down the warning that unless he has satisfactory assurance that there will be no repetition of such tactics there never again will be any open season in Essex and no government distribution there of partridge, quail and pheasants and Hungarian partridge.

"I desire," said he, "to express my condemnation and contempt for the tactics of certain self-styled sportsmen in Essex County, who through devious ways secured a monopoly of the shooting over large areas in the recent open season for ground game in that county, and I apologize to those hunters who were put to trouble and expense and then given no opportunity to hunt because of selfish local interests"

While he refused to identify the particularly offending club, Mr. Nixon charged that its members had "marked down" many farms on which birds were to be found in comparative abundance, obtained full rights from the owners to hunt the properties, and then kept visitors from shooting unless they took out membership cards with their association.

INSULLS WISH TO TELL STORY

Both Father and Son Would Take Witness Stand at Court.

WOULD PROVE INNOCENCE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30 (AP)—Samuel Insull, Sr., and his son, Samuel, Jr., wish to take the witness stand in Federal Court to "tell their story to the world."

Their attorney, Floyd E. Thompson, defending the Insulls on a charge of using the mails to defraud the public in sales of the Corporation Securities Company of Chicago, made this announcement in disclosing that his clients would not ask for a directed verdict of acquittal.

"The Insulls," he said, "want this case to go to the jury so that their innocence may be proven to the world. They are not seeking any 'out' from the court, but desire instead a verdict of not guilty from the jury."

Attorney Thompson's announcement came yesterday after the government had closed its case against the Insulls and 15 other defendants on trial before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Pleas for directed verdict were made on behalf of Stanley Field, Charles R. Whitworth and Clarence H. Sills, directors of the Corporation Securities Company, but the court withheld ruling on them for the time being.

LIVESTOCK PRODUCE AND CHEESE QUOTES

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices, track shipping point: Wheat, 92c to 94c; oats, 30c to 33c; barley, 43c to 45c; corn, 73c to 75c; rye, 47c to 49c; buckwheat, 40c to 42c; malting barley, 69c to 66c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Cheese prices again moved upward on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday, while butter quotations were steady and unchanged.

A continuation of last week's demand caused cheese to gain about ¾ cent. No. 1 Ontario White was up to 10¼ to 10¼ cents, and the colored to 10 to 10¼ cents. Rail receipts were 482 boxes.

Fresh No. 1 butter was quoted at 19½ to 19¾ cents per pound for carlots or less. Small lots to the retail trade were sold at 20⅛ cents for solids and 21 to 21½ cents for prints.

Graded shipments of fresh eggs, in carlots or less, were quoted at 40 to 42 cents for A-large, 37 to 39 cents for A-medium, 30 to 32 cents for B, and 19¼ to 20 cents for C. The market was firm.

The potato market was also steady, with Quebec at 35 to 40 cents, New Brunswicks at 40 to 45 cents, and Prince Edward Islands at 45 to 50 cents per 80-pound bags.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, October 30. — Statement of John I. McFarland, general manager of the Wheet Pools' central selling agency, urging Government control of Winnipeg Grain Exchange operations, had no effect on price trends, as wheat futures prices closed ½c to ¾c lower yesterday.

Local futures declined in sympathy with lower prices at Chicago, where losses of nearly 2 cents were sustained, due to rumors Dominion Government control of the Winnipeg Exchange would be instituted. The text of Mr. McFarland's statement was not available here until after the close.

Evidence of some export business in Canadian wheat—estimates ranged from 250,000 to 500,000 bushels—failed to steady the market. And outside news contained little of a bullish nature, rumors of rosts in Argentina having no effect.

Offerings here were scarce in the cash grain division, despite continued good demand for high-grade wheats. Soreads closed about unchanged. Trading in coarse grains futures was slow, prices easing in sympathy with wheat.

Futures:

Dec.	.76⅝	.76⅝	.75⅛	.75⅛	.76¼

CHICAGO GRAIN

Wheat collapsed 2¾c a bushel maximum here yesterday, largely owing to news from Canada of the statement of John S. McFarland, relative to speculation on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Announcement of Mr. McFarland's stand came just before trading here was about ended for the day, and definite details were lacking, but the Chicago wheat market suffered an immediate fall to low price records heretofore unequalled this season. The tumble of values was accompanied by a general wave of liquidating sales on the part of holders of wheat future delivery contracts.

With many stop-loss orders being executed, wheat in Chicago closed weak at prices ranging all the way from 1c to 1⅞c under Saturday's finish, May 94¼ to 94⅝c; corn ⅝c to ¾c off, May, 75⅞ to 76c; oats ⅝c to ⅝c down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

URGED UNCLE SAM TO PREPAREDNESS

YORKTOWN, N.Y., Oct. 30 (CP).—Mrs. Josephine White Bates, chairman of the women's section in the Movement for National Preparedness in 1916, is dead. She was the widow of Lindon Wallace Bates, internationally known hydraulic engineer.

Mrs. Bates, a native of Canada, was married in 1881. She had written several books and poems, and in her younger days was active in social welfare work in New York City. When the preparedness campaign was started before the War she took an active part in it, making a dramatic appearance on the stage of Carnegie Hall at a rally in 1916, when she said, "The woman who didn't raise her boy to be a soldier has no right to expect protection from the son of a woman who did."

PROVINCE WILL REFUND 20 P.C. STARTING NOV. 1

Only Wet Centres to Profit—All Beverage Rooms Close 11 P.M.

HIGHWAY COSTS CUT.

20 Per Cent. Contribution to Maintenance and Cost Will Be Lifted Entirely.

TORONTO, October 30 (C. P.). — The Ontario Government will lend financial assistance to municipalities beginning November 1, by relieving them of the 20 per cent. contribution to cost of highway construction and maintenance, and by permitting them to share by 20 per cent. in revenue derived from authorities granted hotels and in profits from sale of beer and wines in hotels

In making known the new regulations to govern sale in beverage rooms as from the beginning of the Province's fiscal year Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said last night that all beer parlors would be forced to close at 11 p.m instead of midnight. Clubs and dining rooms however, will be permitted to continue sale to 12 p.m.

There was no suggestion of a bribe to the municipalities in the Government's policy of making cash contribution for the 20 per cent. share in the liquor profits, said the Premier. There was to be no departure from other phases of the present rules governing sale, he added, but he reiterated his invitation to all municipalities to make use of the local option provision.

The profit-sharing plan was to aid municipalities in their financial problems, said the Premier, and elimination of the 20 per cent. highway contribution was only granting the various centres "their just dues."

Previous Governments, he added had encroached on nearly all sources of revenue open to the municipalities, and "in fairness to them they should not have to pay a share for construction of Provincial highways because gasoline tax already is paid to the Government for the purpose of building and maintaining roads."

Cash Refund

"Commencing Nov. 1," continued the Premier, "the Government will refund to the mumnicipalities, by way of a cash contribution, 20 per cent. of the revenue derived from authority fees and profits on wine and beer. This will of course, be refunded only to those municipalities in which profits are created. We reaffirm the Government's policy of local option, and from this policy we shall not depart Any municipality is free to prevent beer-sale within its borders."

The Government's view on the distribution of profits, said Mr. Hepburn in reply to a question, was that the municipality had a right to a refund only if it permitted sale within its limits, since the money which created profits was being spent there, and, in the main, by its own citizens.

ELDERLY COUPLE HAVE NEAR CALL

Mr. and Mrs. J. Johnston Are Hurled From Buggy When Struck by Truck.

BOTH BADLY HURT.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—One of the village's oldest married couples had a narrow escape from death last evening while crossing No. 7 Highway to No. 30 at the level crossing on Concession street. Returning from a visit down town in their horse-drawn buggy Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnston were struck by a light truck driven by A. Cannon travelling eastward on No. 7 Highway.

Mrs. Johnston the younger, aged 77, was the more seriously hurt. Her body is badly bruised where she was thrown to the ground and her left arm was painfully injured. Mr. Johnston, one of the village councillors, was thrown clear of the buggy and landed on his head. A nasty injury was sustained. Dr. A. S. Thompson, who attended the injuries told The Examiner the aged couple were progressing as well as could be expected, the real seriousness not having been determined.

It was said Mrs. Johnston was carrying a lighted lantern at the time of the impact.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston previous to their moving to town a few years ago owned and worked farms in Belmont township and district. Mrs. Harry Buchanan, a daughter of the aged couple is attending her parents.

SEES WHEAT PRODUCTION LOWEST SINCE YEAR 1924

ROME, Oct. 30 (CP-AP)—A report of the International Institute of Agriculture to-day placed world wheat production in exporting countries for 1934-35, excluding Russia, at the lowest level since 1924.

At the same time the world import requirements were estimated to be 16,600,000 metric tons (about 607,560,000 bushels), compared with 14,900,000 metric tons (about 545,340,000 bushels) for the season of 1933-1934.

The Institute concluded it will be necessary the coming season to draw about 7,000 bushels from old crop stocks, thereby reducing these stocks to 10,000,000 bushels.

FALL PLOWING WELL ADVANCED

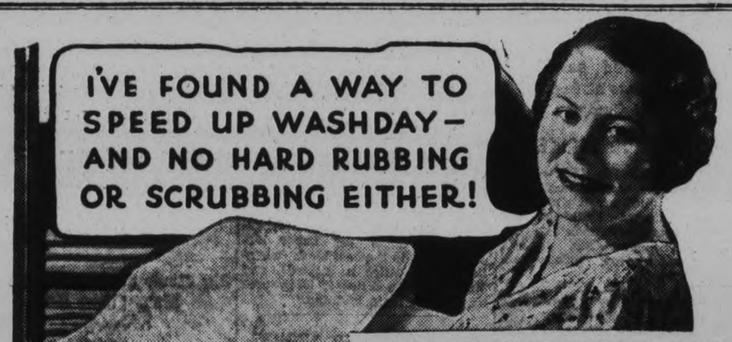
APPLES SCARCE.

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (C.P.).—Although rain and snow interfered Ontario farmers reported good progress in fall plowing operations for the last week, according to the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The report also announced good yields from root crops.

The potato harvest is about completed and favorable reports appear regarding the turnip crop. Prices offered for turnip shipments are low in Bruce County. Only a 30 per cent. apple crop was produced in Grey, where this harvest has been ended.

Scarcity of hay has appeared in several districts, with Brant County report farmers using millet and other crops instead, but crops on the whole in this area are good. Largest potato yields in a number of years were harvested by Middlesex farmers.

Shortage of hay in Northumberland is not regarded as serious as farmers have large corn crops along with mangels and straw. In this area also the apple crop was disappointing, being less than 25 per cent of normal.



Actual tests by housewives show why even the grimiest, ingrained dirt and grease yield speedily to Pearl White Naptha Soap. The rich, foamy suds are definitely quicker and more abundant. They draw out the dirt thoroughly without hard rubbing and scrubbing. Clothes come whiter and cleaner and smell sweeter. They last longer because there is no harsh washtub wear. These facts have been tested and proved. Pearl saves time. Pearl saves energy. Pearl saves the clothes.

"I've been housekeeping for over 20 years. I like to iron clothes washed with Pearl White Naptha because I can be proud of the results. They are so sparkling and white and undamaged by rough handling in the washtub."

"I used to despair at the rubbing and scrubbing needed to keep the children's clothes clean and smart. Since I found Pearl White Naptha I don't mind how many clothes they soil. The wash is so easily and quickly done."

"I've found that cheap bar soaps are expensive in the end. With Pearl White Naptha there's no damage from hard rubbing and scrubbing. It costs a fraction more than common makes but it's a real quality laundry soap."

There are many reasons why you will prefer Pearl White Naptha. It costs so little for a laundry soap of quality and its pure whiteness and clean, fresh smell will delight you. There's nothing like it to ensure a cleaner, sweeter wash in a shorter time.

NEW PRESIDENT IN ALBION CLUB

SOCIAL EVE NOV. 5.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 30. (Examiner Correspondence). — At a special meeting of the Havelock Albion club last evening in the Orange Hall, George Kennedy was unanimously elected to the office of president, following the resignation of Harold W. Ketchen, whose work called him away from the village.

Several very important matters were dealt with. Mr. Ketchen was present and said that while he certainly appreciated the boys' fine support, his work took him to live in Trenton. In the face of this, the club regretfully accepted his resignation and the meeting was thrown open for nominations to fill the vacancy.

Those nominated were: F. M. Voyer, C. Spencer, G. Kennedy, F. R. A. McLaughling, and F. L. McKenzie. All withdrew in favour of G. Kennedy, former president and one of the club's outstanding athletes as well as being an energetic member and interested committee man since the club's inception.

Nominations for the office of vice-president were then opened and resulted in those nominated withdrawing in favour of C. Spencer, who accepted the position and thanked the members for the honour conveyed.

The newly elected officers gave short addresses, asking thte support of the members and expressed faith in the club's object and advance.

Anticipating hockey negotiations with district leagues, a committee on hockey was appointed to avoid having to call another special meeting. G. Kennedy, K. D. Chiles and H. T. Mathison, manager is the personnel of the group appointed.

The most welcome news of the meeting was probably the members' action in planning a social evening for Monday, November 5. All arrangements for the big time were left in the hands of F. L. McKenzie, D. Miller and K. Kennedy.

Members and their wives or lady friends only will be invited to attend the social evening on November 5th, it was decided, when round dancing witht refreshments served in conclusion will be the order of the evening.

First of Marriages

His first marriage was to Comtesse Jeanne de Broncken, by whom he had a daughter, Diane. This marriage was dissolved. Then Tellegen married Geraldine Farrar, the famous opera singer.

The marriage, on February 8, 1916, ended in divorce in 1923. Six months later he had married Mrs. Isabel Craven Dilworth (Nina Romano). In 1929 she obtained a final decree of divorce in Los Angeles and custody of their five-year-old son, Rex. His fourth marriage was to Eve Casanova, who was his leading lady. Miss Cassnova, from whom friends believed Tellegen was separated but not divorced, is now in New York.

The actor was gladdened by a recent offer from Fox to work in its picture, 'Caravan', and came to Hollywood, only to be stricken seriously ill. He was in the hospital several weeks, and lost his chance for the part.

Emerging from the hospital, he won a part in "Call to Arms" at Columbia, with Esther Ralston, Ben Lyon and Willard Mack. He finished work in this only a few weeks ago, but since then had been confined to his bed most of the time.

Mrs. Cudahy befriended the actor when she found him ill and alone in the film colony. She was known for years as the friend and benefactress of Tod Sloan, once the world's most famous jockey. Sloan, down on his luck and embittered by the turn of his fortunes, died in her home—the same one in which Tellegen was a suicide—a year ago.

Not Interested

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. — (UP) — "Why should that interest me?" snapped Geraldine Farrar when informed of the suicide in Hollywood of her former husband, Lou Tellegen.

The former opera star was reached by telephone at her Ridgefield, Conn., home.

"It doesn't interest me in the least," she repeated, slamming the telephone receiver on the hook.

Why do Doctors Test Kidneys First?

Because they know that healthy Kidneys remove from the blood the waste matter formed by the ever-changing human body as it decays and rebuilds itself. But if the Kidneys fail — the system is poisoned and illness surely follows. As a health safeguard—as a wise precaution — flush your kidneys regularly every three weeks with Dodd's Kidney Pills — for over three generations the favorite Kidney tonic and remedy—non-habit forming—free from drugs. 33

LADS INJURED DURING FRACAS

JUVENILE ARRESTED.

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (CP)—Two boys were injured here last night, one seriously, victims of an alleged attack by a juvenile with a jackknife during an argument over bicycles.

John Worthington, 18, lies in hospital with his left lung penetrated by the knife-thrust. His brother George, 17, received an abrasion on his left breast above the heart and did not require hospital attention.

According to their story the two lads were visiting a friend and had left their bicycles on the lawn outside. When they came out an argument developed over the accusation the alleged knife-wielder had touched the bikes.

He is alleged to have whipped a pocket knife from his pocket and thrust it into George Worthington's breast. John is said to have started to run and the lad with the knife is alleged to have plunged the blade into him.

The juvenile was arrested.

KING IS WAITING BANGKOK REPLY

Prajadhipok Calmly Reads While Officials Debate on Abdication.

BREACH UNDECIDED.

LONDON, Oct. 30 (AP) — King Prajadhipok, a spokesman disclosed to-day, is calmly reading books while the government of Siam debates issues which may mean his abdication.

"Siamese people are philosophical," the spokesman said, "and the King is not less so than his subjects."

The King, in Surrey, as awaiting a reply from Bangkok to his latest communication. He has treatened to give up the throne if the government does not withdraw a measure limiting the monarch's power of life and death over his subjects.

Diplomatic circles here, however, discounted the possibility that Prajadhipok would abdicate. A dispatch from Bangkok said government circles expressed confidence he would remain on the throne.

The Secretary of the State Council, the dispatch added, said negotiations to heal the breach are well underway and gave assurances Prajadhipok would be persuaded to abandon his threat.

OMEMEE SCHOOL HOLDS BANQUET

Delightful Evening Spent by Pupils and Friends of High School.

PRIZES PRESENTED

OMEMEE, Oct. 30 (Examiner Correspondent) — The banquet of the Omemee High School was held Friday in the U.F.O. Hall. Because it was so near Hallowe'en the decoration committee chose a color scheme of orange and black instead of the school colors, blue and gold. The result was truly delightful.

At six-thirty o'clock all had congregated to enjoy the huge repast. Between the courses everyone joined in the community singing.

Norman McQuade, a competent toastmaster began the program by proposing a toast to King and Country. This was followed by the singing of God Save the King and O Canada.

Dr. Earle presented the shield to Phyllis Bigelow and Norman McQuade, congratulating them on their success. Mr. Curtis presented the medals to Helen Reddick and Arthur Jamieson.

The toast to the staff was proposed by Arthur Weir. Mr. Moon's reply was both adequate and interesting.

Clement Reeds favored the banqueters with a guitar selection which was immensely enjoyed and encored.

Richard Vaughan proposed the toast to the School Board. In reply the Rev. A. T. Weir thanked the teachers and pupils for their co-operation.

The toast to last years' graduating class was proposed by Frances MacPherson followed by William Earle's witty reply.

An instrumental solo was rendered by Gladys Laidley.

"The Clouds Will Soon Roll By" was sung by the girls' quartet.

Miss McQuade was called on to bring the program to a close. In her charming manner she congratulated the pupils on the work which they had done and told how she enjoyed teaching in the O.H.S.

H. Lamb moved a hearty vote of thanks to the hosts which was seconded by M. Sherin.

Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Reddick, Rev. A. T. Weir and Miss Audrey Weir, Mrs. Moon, Dr. and Mrs. Earle, Mr. and Mrs. Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan, Mr. and Mrs. Sherin, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, Miss M. Faulkner, Mr. and Mrs. Brockley and the members of 1934 graduating class.

TO BLAME OR NOT TO BLAME.

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 30.—(C.P.) — This is the way Furman O. Baldwin explained to a Supreme Court jury how he lost his studio:

A trolley feed wire fell on a sign in front of the studio. The contact caused a short circuit inside the building. The short circuit started a fire. The fire destroyed the studio.

The International Railway Company, from which he seeks $8,191 damages, entered a general denial of blame.

GIFTED PIANISTS IN 5-PIANO RECITAL

A Splendid Comeback of Which We Should Have More.

HEINTZMAN GRANDS

There are indications aplenty that the "novelty" of the radio having worn off the piano is coming into its own again as a musical instrument without which no home of any pretension is properly equipped. Of course, music lovers and critics have never lost recognition of the fact that the piano is the basic principle of all instrumental music and consequently, its supremacy has never been challenged. For versatility, beauty of tone and scope of rendition, the piano still stands alone as the world's masterpiece. This was strikingly marked at a recent recital in Toronto Varsity arena, where a tremendous audience was held thrilled and spell-bound while five Heintzman Ye Old Firme & Co.'s Concert Grands in ensemble played by five brilliant pianists, were heard in a lengthy program of classical music, which provoked stupendous applause and encore demands.

The program comprised: Bach D Minor, Toccata and Fugue; Mendelssohn-Liszt "On Wings of Song"; Mozart's "Turkish March"; Weber's "Invitation"; Grainger's "Spoon River"; Brahms-Grainger's "Cradle Song"; Chabrier's "Spanish Rhapsody"; Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata; Liszt's "Rakoczy" Rhapsody; Paganini-Liszt's "La Chasse" Liszt's D Flat Major Concert Etude; Paganini-Liszt's "Campanella" and encores.

Return of the Piano

This recital, says a critic, might be called the return of the piano. The glories of the instrument—its sweet singing persuasiveness, its rich sonorities and organ-like adagios, it zephyr whispers and rock-splitting staccato thunders, its homely chorded harmonies and its rippling scales and thrills and arpeggios—were revealed to perfection. They reasserted themselves afresh to multitudes that have been forgetting them these past years. It was a splendid "comeback"—and we must have more of it.

Glorified the Music

In Beethoven's Sonata "Moonlight" those five gifted pianists literally glorified the already glorious music. Those brooding G sharps—repeated again and again like the haunting voice of fate—floated through the arena on arpeggios of gossamer. Impossible to fix any note of the divided harmonies, whether it came from his, that or the other of the five instruments, and yet each piano had its own most perfect voice impossible to lose in the ensemble. It was as though the mighty spirit of the master brooded over those five pianos, giving an utterly authentic interpretation of his century-old message. And why? Because the music of these five pianos for all its marvellous beauty, brilliance, power and intensity, was detached, impersonal, innocent of the emotion that is common to strings. It was like the music of the everlasting sea; it had its secret undertone for every listening heart.

Heintzman pianos, whether for home or concert work, may be had at Heintzman Hall, George and Hunter streets, Peterborough.

Press Sees Naval Parley At Impasse

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(C.P.-Havas) —A gloomy and pessimistic London press today took the view that the present conversations preliminary to the naval conference were doomed to end in a complete impasse.

The Daily Herald said: "At the moment the intention of both the British and Americans is to wait patiently for some further suggestions. But if in the talks of the next few days the Japanese take the line that they have nothing more to say, then a break-down seems fairly unavoidable. It is, in fact, up to the Japanese and the next move must be theirs."

The Daily Telegraph remarked that having failed to reach an agreement on principles "the parties have adopted the Geneva device of side-tracking the principles while the experts seek a compromise on the details."

JANETVILLE CAR BADLY WRECKED

Jas. Bradburn, L. Hall and H. Lathan Escape With Shaking Up.

C. McGILL BREAKS ARM.

JANETVILLE, Oct. 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—James Bradburn was the victim of an unusual accident while driving on the River Road. His car struck a pile of loose gravel and overturned three times; at each turn, one of the three occupants of the car being thrown out. Leslie Hall and Harry Lathan, the other two youths, escaped with bruises and cuts, while the driver was uninjured.

Mr. Cyrus McGill, who was working at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Thornton on Saturday, was the victim of an accident when he fell through a trap-door in the barn, the bone protruding through the flesh. The unfortunate man was rushed by his brother, Fred McGill, to Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, where he received temporary treatment.

The initial meeting of the Janetville Y.P.S. of the United Church was held on Wednesday evening in the Sunday School room with the president, Victor Blatherwick, in the chair.

The topic for the meeting, which was a lesson taken from Scripture was given by Rev. H. C. Wolfraim, the pastor. A short program was then presented including a reading, "In the Usual Way," by Jean Stinson; piano solo by Miss Marjorie Armstrong, and a violin number by Frank Russel.

Obituary

MRS. MARY GLEN.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 30 (Examiner Correspondence).— The funeral of Mrs. Mary Glen, whose death occurred on Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. LeRoy Scott, Front Street, at the age of 64, took place on Tuesday afternoon, and was largely attended. Services were held in the Baptist Church, Rev. L. M. Smith officiating. Mrs. Glen is survived by three daughters: Mrs. E. L. Scott, Mrs. M. McKenzie of Toronto, Mrs. J Hooper of Seymour, and one son, Mr. R. Glen of town. Interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

MRS. ELLIS DARLING.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—Word received from Kingston tells of the death of Mrs. Ellis Darling, which occurred in that city on Monday morning. Mr. Darling, who is a member of the High School teaching staff, has the sympathy of the entire community. Funeral arrangements have not as yet been completed.

STANLEY WILLIAMSON.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—News of the death of Stanley Williamson, which occurred at Toronto, came as a great shock to his many friends here. Mr. Williamson who was in his 44th year, was a member of the firm of the Williamson Lumber Co., and had been an annual visitor here for the past 8 years, having a summer cottage at Crow Bay.

MRS. JAMES CALBERRY.

HASTINGS, October 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — Death on Sunday night removed another highly respected citizen of the village in the passing of Mrs. James Calberry. The deceased had not been in good health for some time.

The late Mrs. Calberry, who was born in Hastings on April 20, 1873, was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sharpe. About forty years ago she became the bride of Mr. Calberry, and has resided in Hastings all her life.

There is left to mourn her loss her sorrowing husband, one son and two daughters, Constable J. H. Calberry of Hastings, Mrs. W. McGrayne of Percy Township, and Mrs. William Heenan of Campbellford.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon, with private services at the family residence, after which a public service will be held at two o'clock in St. George's Anglican Church. Interment will be made in Trent Valley Cemetery.

WARSAW.

Mrs. Luther Payne spent a week visiting old friends in Harwood, returning in time for the Wilson-Payne wedding.

Mrs. G. H. Crowe is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Stark were at the Wilson-Payne wedding.

Mrs. James Greystock spoke on the temperance work in the Baptist Church, Norwood, on Sunday; Mr. Elmer Clark, from Elgin S.S., spoke in the Warsaw Presbyterian S.S.; Mr. Ernest McDonald, Cottesloe, in Warsaw United; Rev. Mr. Downing of Norwood Baptist, in Cottesloe United; Mr. James Hawthorne at Bethel; and Rev. Mr. Walker pastor, preached on temperance in the Baptist Church.

SEEK ABOLITION BEVERAGE ROOM

"Are you in favor of the continuance of authorities for standard hotels and other premises where beer or wines may be sold under the Liquor Control Act?"

Editorial Challenges.

Remarking that he felt the time for a vote to be particularly opportune, Mr Cunningham stated, "the whole country is aroused. There have been a series of dry victories, and the editorials of the Globe, Star and The Examiner have paved the way for us. In fact, those editorials have provided us with a challenge."

Urging the need of local option and expressing the conviction that there was a general feeling in favor of such a measure, the chairman mentioned the prevalence of drunkenness on the streets since the advent of the beverage room and claimed that the daily drain on the retail trade alone was $850 per day.

A Steady Drain.

"There is a drain on the retail trade of $850 a day that the community cannot stand indefinitely," he stated.

Of that sum, he added, it had been computed that the brewer got $600, the Government $30 and the hotelkeeper $220. In other words, $630 of the total amount each day went out of the city and the city received no benefit from it.

Foisted on Public.

There was a growing feeling, he felt, that the beverage rooms were foisted on the public; then there was the demoralizing effect of the beer and wine room that allowed of the free intermingling of the sexes.

Commenting on another angle of the situation, the chairman alleged that "the element of control has been lost." He referred particularly to the inability of relief officials to keep a check on the drinking by those on relief, with the result that it was exerting an unnecessary load on relief costs.

W. G. Shiner said he had sounded out quite a number of men and had reached the conclusion "that this is the strategic time to bring on the vote." If the Council should turn the Association down, he said, it would be the responsibility of the Council if the city was to be saddled with beverage rooms for another year.

Not Wholly to Blame.

Thomas Sargent was not certain that the present time was so opportune for bringing about a vote and said he would hate to see the measure defeated just because it might be brought on at the wrong time. "We can't blame the beverage rooms for all the drinking that is going on to-day. They have merely been the means of revealing the situation," he exclaimed.

H. G. Walker believed with Mr. Shiner and the chairman that the time was ripe. "It is never too early to kill a snake. Let's strike now and kill as many as we can."

Time Opportune.

The Rev. A. E. Moorhouse said that if he must judge by the number of people who had expressed opinions on the subject to him, both inside the church and outside of its membership, he believed the time was opportune.

Miss Leta Brownscombe, general secretary of the Y.W.C.A., assured the meeting, "you will find the women are ready to do their part."

The Rev. G. K. Tyler referred to the Young People's Temperance Union in connection with Park Street Baptist and St. James' United Churches which embraced a membership of sixty-seven young men and women who had taken the pledge. "They are behind this Association in the action we have taken to-night."

A traveler who invaded the Belgian Congo jungle reports that he came across a band of natives in a wild banana grove listening to an old phonograph wheezing out "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

Dreams Fulfilled

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—(CP). The wish of perhaps every youngster who ever sat in a chair came true Monday for five children.

The buzz of the drill had started in a school clinic.

Then—the lights went out. The drill quit running and the sterilizer wouldn't sterilize.

Five children who had come to have their teeth worked on trooped merrily back to their classes while an electrician was summoned to fix a short circuit.

GEORGE BIGGAR BROKER PASSES

EX-NEWSPAPER MAN.

TORONTO, Oct. 30—George Coltman Biggar, 77 Charles Street East, senior partner in the firm of Biggar and Crawford, stockbrokers, King Street East, died yesterday in his 68th year.

Born near Belleville, Ont., he was educated at Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto. He studied law at Osgoode Hall, and after being called to the Ontario Bar, practised in Toronto for a few years. He relinquished legal work to enter the newspaper work. Early in the present century he was city and financial editor in turn of the Globe. In 1904 he joined the firm of Jaffray and Cassels, members of the Toronto Exchange, and since then had devoted his whole time to finance and brokerage affairs. He was a member of St. Simon's Anglican Church.

Surviving are his wife, Ethel Boswell Tate Biggar; two daughters, Mrs. J. Knox Crawford and Miss Margaret Biggar; three sons, G. Fielding Biggar, James H. Biggar, now in England, and F. L. Biggar, all of Toronto; two sisters, Mrs. G. F Burton, Toronto, and Mrs. R. A. Ball, Belleville, and a brother, H. P. Biggar, in England.

PROVINCE WILL REFUND 20 P. C.

Commenting on the violent anti-beer campaigns conducted by some sections of the press, the Premier continued: "We are quite satisfied with the operation of the act up to the present, notwithstanding the propaganda appearing in a part of the Toronto press. From reports received from responsible officials we believe the act is being administered in a way satisfactory to the general public throughout the Province.

Cash Contribution

Asked whether the refund to the municipalities would be earmarked for any special purpose, the Premier replied: "No, it will be a direct cash contribution."

"Can this be regarded as a 'bribe' to the municipalities?" a newspaperman asked.

"No," answered the Premier. "It is in line with the policy of the Government to assist municipalities with their financial problems. It is our further intention to abolish the 20 per cent. levy against the municipalities for Provincial highway construction and maintenance. Until now there has been too great a tendency to hand all taxes over to the Province—gasoline and auto taxes, succession duties, and so on. A truck driver may never leave Toronto, but no portion of the tax he pays goes to the city. The tendency has been gradually to deprive the municipalities of all sources of revenue. Once they got a part of the license fees for liquor sale, and this, in a measure, is being restored."

Lauds Odette.

Mr. Hepburn spoke highly of the manner in which Commissioner Edmond G. Odette was administering the beer law. "He's doing a mighty fine job," said the Premier, "and he's doing it under a big handicap. Such a law as this is not the easiest thing to put into effect in a few weeks. He deserves the gratitude of the province."

Virtually every Province in Canada had a wine and beer measure comparable with Ontario's, commented Mr. Hepburn, "but, in comparison with the others, ours is actually a temperance measure." In final reference to the municipalities' need for new sources of revenue, he commented that thirty-nine municipalities actually were bankrupt to-day.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1934

NOT VERY LOCAL AT THAT.

The Sault Ste. Marie Star, which is much closer to the scene of trouble than is the Attorney-General, does not think much of Mr. Roebuck's remarks as to the "Government's policy of interfering as little as possible into matters considered purely local."

The reference was to the bushmen's strike, and the Sault paper reminds the Attorney-General that the Abitibi trouble is "local" from Cochrane to Sault Ste. Marie, a territory as big as old Ontario.

Nor has the northern journal any more admiration for the Attorney-General's statement that the Government "will not allow one man to bash the head of another and get away with it."

"Violence," says the Star, "seems to be defined as bashing a man's head. Driving men out of a camp or threatening them is just a joke, apparently."

Undoubtedly Mr. Roebuck's attitude toward this strike is encouraging the agitators, who are in command of the strikers, to take the law into their own hands.

When railway stations and roads are patrolled by [illegible]ers, most of them of foregn origin, when men who desire to work are pulled out of their bunks and ordered out of camp, when settlers are afraid to work in the woods because of intimidation, a situation is created that calls for intervention by the state.

It is all very nice to talk about neutrality in industrial troubles, but when one side of the dispute flouts law and order and interferes with the rights of Canadian citizens, the latter have a right to look to the authorities for protection.

CANADA'S MAPLE PRODUCTS.

In addition to furnishing the inspiration for a national song and serving as a national symbol, Canada's maple tree makes a noteworthy addition to the country's national wealth.

It is of interest then to learn that Canada's maple products industry has taken a distinct upward turn for the current year.

The value of production, as estimated from preliminary returns, is higher than in either of the last two years, as is also the output of syrup, although there is a decline in the less valuable product of maple sugar.

The price of both sugar and syrup has been higher than in either 1933 or 1932, with a moderate flow of sap in Quebec and Nova Scotia, a good crop in Ontario, although there were wide variations, and a greatly restricted supply in New Brunswick.

The total value of the syrup and sugar for 1934 is estimated at $3,046,650, as against $2,059,341 in 1933 and $2,706,183 in 1932. The values for the 1934 crop are merely preliminary as the full production, of course, has not yet been sold.

Production of sugar during the current year totalled 4,954,400 pounds, with a value of $577,850, while the output of syrup was 1,842,500 gallons, valued at $2,468,800. The estimated average price for sugar then was 12 cents a pound, compared with 9 cents in 1933 and 10 cents in 1932, while syrup averaged $1.34 a gallon, as against $1.24 last year and $1.17 two years ago.

Quebec is the leading maple products province, accounting for over 86 per cent. of the total production of maple sugar and nearly 70 per cent. of the maple syrup, while Ontario was next in line. The other provinces in which maple products have been developed on a commercial basis are Nova Scotia and New Brunswick where the production is small.

MR. STEVENS' POSITION.

The Border Cities Star voices a thought that has been in a good many minds since Saturday when it declares that Mr. Stevens "has an excellent chance at this time to lead a brand new group in the House of Commons and the country—if he so desires."

"Thousands of Canadians," says the Windsor paper, "are 'fed up' with both old parties and would welcome a leadership with a different viewpoint. Mr. King has not been friendly to the Stevens investigation, and now it is made clear that the Prime Minister and the leader of the Opposition have much the same point of view."

The man on the street rather questions the sincerity of the two old parties in this matter.

It is true that Liberal spokesmen are just now loud in their praise of Mr. Stevens and are strongly condemning the Government for forcing his resignation, but the public memory is not so short that it will fail to recall that during the by-elections last month Mr. Mackenzie King assailed the then chairman of the mass buying committee for doing the very thing for which he has now been condemned by his Cabinet colleagues.

The average citizen would as a matter of fact welcome a decision on the part of the former Minister of Trade and Commerce to lead an independent party—and he would soon command an imposing army of recruits—but Mr. Stevens has definitely announced that he has no intention of leaving the Conservative party, even although he has relinquished his portfolio and his chairmanship.

He will remain as a private member supporter of the Government and as a member of the Royal Commission, and in either capacities he is not likely to show any indication of being the "forgotten man."

UPTON SINCLAIR FOR GOVERNOR.

The Argonaut, an excellent weekly published in San Francisco, puts this heading in large type over a front-page editorial: "Is California Going Insane?" Under that caption it discusses the election of November 6, when California chooses as governor either Upton Sinclair, radical author running as a Democrat, or Frank Finley Merriam, Republican. The choice, declares the Argonaut in ringing tones, is between "safety and disaster, between program and panacea, between sound growth and fanaticism, between experimentation and tradition"—it sees civilization itself on the scales with Merriam, chaos and catastrophe right behind the figure of Sinclair.

Fear of the unknown has caused what is known as a "flight of capital" from California. Within a few weeks state, county, district and city bonds have shrunk in market value by some $50,000,000, showing a six per cent. decline in a period when Missouri bonds dropped 1½ per cent., Illinois bonds less than one per cent.

It may be interesting to look at the background of a situation so extraordinary.

* * * *

Sinclair is 56, born in Baltimore. Since youth he has been a writer and a radical. He was unknown until he wrote "The Jungle," which purported to expose the Chicago packing industry, made $30,000 out of it. Other books followed in a long succession, provided funds from which he indulged in a series of social experiments almost equally long—Utopian ventures which started with the Helicon Hall colony, included a couple of single tax colonies and a physical culture settlement at Battle Creek, Michigan. None of them created much stir in the world.

Eventually Sinclair settled in California, and nobody minded until his political ambitions became evident. Then his enemies denounced him as socialist, a muckraker, atheist, advocate of "free love," an I. W. W. sympathizer, and so on. But the radicalism which made him enemies made him friends also.

A year ago Sinclair wrote a book to present what he called his EPIC plan—End Poverty in California. The idea was an appealing one, particularly to the state's 425,000 unemployed and their 800,000 dependents. EPIC clubs came into being—there are a thousand of them now—and when the primaries came along Sinclair was a candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket. He beat George Creel by 150,000, polled the largest Democratic primary vote of any candidate in the history of the state.

Merriam meanwhile was winning the Republican nomination and the battle was on. Merriam is a native of Iowa, was elected lieutenant-governor in 1930, and has been acting governor since the death last summer of Governor Rolph. He seems hardly the man to meet the Sinclair emergency.

* * * *

What of EPIC?

The Sinclair plan, as given to the world in his book, had these items:

Appropriation of all idle or foreclosed land for cultivation by colonies of unemployed;

The issue of script to facilitate barter between unemployed in confiscated factories and unemployed on confiscated land;

Abolition of sales tax, taxes on homes and ranches occupied by their owners and assessed at less than $5,000;

Heavy taxes by the state on inheritances, incomes, public utilities, banks, unimproved land;

State pension of $50 a month to widows with dependent children, invalids, indigent persons over 60 years who had lived in California three years.

After the primaries the California Democrats held a convention, adopted a platform mildly advanced, made no mention in it of the EPIC scheme. Then they left Sinclair pretty much alone, and immediately he brought out another book, entitled "Immediate EPIC," which retained the original EPIC as an ideal. He proposed to raise five to ten millions by a levy on industries and utilities with which to go with his scheme. He would take over idle factories, would ask farmers to trade their surplus crops for warehouse receipts good for the articles turned out in the state factories, would go ahead with his land colonies, and after a three-year trial the state would vote on permanent retention of the plan.

Furthermore, there could be no assurance that Sinclair, if elected, would be kept under control by a hostile legislature. Californian law has the "initiative and referendum" system. To initiate any bill all that is needed is the mandate of eight per cent. of the voters in the last previous election, and a referendum in due course becomes compulsory. It is simple logic that if a majority of the voters send Sinclair to the governor's chair the same majority will support his EPIC by the means thus at hand.

Thus there is genuine cause for alarm. Unemployed and destitute persons are flocking into California, thrilled at the Sinclair promises. The faddists and cultists, the Middle West natives enjoying the Californian climate on small incomes, all are excited at the prospects. But there is alarm among those who believe in property rights and individual effort, alarm and extreme concern over the outcome. California, says the Argonaut, is a battleground for the nation.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

One of the features of the Stevens incident is the sudden admiration for the former Minister of Trade and Commerce that has sprung up in Liberal ranks.

From the viewpoint of political strategy, the action of the Government in forcing the resignation of Hon. H. H. Stevens must be regarded as a major error.

The mass murder in Quebec last week can be explained by the ease with which anybody who wants to kill can secure a revolver to do his deadly work.

It is to be imagined that when Tommy Church, M.P., swings into action at the coming session of Parliament there will be many things said by the member for Toronto East about unethical trade practices. And Mr. Church will call a spade a spade.

ONE REASON FOR PEACE

Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—There appears in a recent issue of The New Commonwealth an article on the Cost of War. It claims the Great War cost in property $400,000,000,000. Had this been used for the uplifting of humanity instead of destructive purposes The New Commonwealth claims we could of built houses worth $2,500 and furnished each house to the amount of $1,000, placed it in five acres worth $100 an acre and given all this to each and every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, Great Britain and Ireland, France, Belgium, Germany and Russia. After doing this enough money would be left to give each city of 200,000 inhabitants in all countries named a five million dollar library, a five million dollar hospital and a ten million dollar university. Out of the balance enough money would be left to set aside a sum which at five per cent interest would pay for all time at one thousand dollars a year, salary for each of an army 125,000 teachers and in addition to this to pay the same salary to an army of 125,000 nurses. After having done all this we could have enough left out of the four hundred billion dollars to buy up all France and Belgium and everything that France and Belgium contains; that is every farm, house, factory, church, railroad, street car.

With these facts in front of us we can better appreciate the suggestion made by the National Council of Women at their annual convention who declared that November 11 should be observed as a public holiday and that instead of a military display, all citizens should unite in pleas for universal peace.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

ARICHAT, NOVA SCOTIA

Settlement of this quaint seaside town, which is the county seat of Richmond county, Cape Breton, dates back beyond 1776, when Philip Robin began business here, only to be wiped out by John Paul Jones, the privateer, during the revolutionary war. The majority of citizens are descendants of citizens of ancient Louisburg.

The name "Arichat" comes from the Mic-Mac Indian name for the place, meaning "Nerichat," meaning "a split rock."

A Thought

LIBERTY THROUGH OBEDIENCE

Pilots who disobey the air-traffic rules during flights have only two chances in five of returning to earth without an accident. In other words, the hazard of flying is materially increased by violating the rules.

Rules and regulations seem to take away our liberty, to confine our activities to narrow limits. We rebel sometimes because we are forced to renounce the exercise of our own free endeavors in being held to a strict conformity to an imposed discipline. But only as we choose to obey the rules can we gain enrichment of life. Are we willing to submit to a higher will? If we are, then we may expect to achieve freedom. The prodigal son left home to seek escape, but, disappointed, he returned and found everything that he desired.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

JAPAN

Youth in too many of our modern nations is being militarized. If not by discipline, they are by teaching. The nations gloat over their won and glorious battles. Their Generals are lauded over, those whom they have defeated. No religious leader has ever received the praise given the military leader. In many schools students hear more about the great general than about Jesus Christ. In the face of all this Jesus is silently coming to the mastery of the mind and heart and will of mankind. His great day is coming and is sure. In his hand there is no sword. The touch of that hand is what the world needs most.

The militarization of youth in any nation, you may mention, is not based upon the belief that war is desirable, or right, or even practicable, but upon the belief that it is inevitable. The logic is not that might makes right, it is that inevitability makes right. The advocates hold that what must be, lies beyond the control of the moral will. Hence the moral will has as little to do with morals as does the splitting of a rock by the penetration of the root of a tree.

Then, there is the deep seated conviction that self-preservation is the first law of life, and that national self-preservation is impossible apart from a formidable army and navy, and is most likely not to be preserved without war. This it is claimed is a bandit world, and that one must carry arms and know how to use them.

Let it be clear that until Japan and all other nations are convinced that war is not inevitable in the modern world, and that modern wars do not preserve but destroy Japan and elsewhere will remain anemic.

RUSSIA—ONCE THE LAND OF PERSECUTION

In no other part of the world have the Jews suffered more than in Russia. Russia was once the land of savage persecution. That era has passed. Let us hope that the serenity of the Jews, in a Republic to be all their own, shall never be disturbed by persecution.

Economic, social and political equality of all nationalities and races in the workers' Republic, and full national determination has removed the very basis for national oppression and discrimination. The last vestiges of Anti-semitism are being uprooted in an area extending over one-sixth of the land surface of the earth.

Whenever mentioned the Communists get plenty of criticism. They ought to. But Communism is not all bad. Under the direction of the Communist Party, the Jewish people in the Soviet Union have gone through an amazing social, and political, and cultural metamorphosis.

Progroms were perennial. Legal disabilities oppressed them. Narrow limits shut them in. Think of the "infamous pale." The Jew was forbidden to enter any Russian village. From the great commercial and metropolitan centers he was excluded. From agriculture he was barred. And was not permitted a place in the industries. A few crafts were open to him. That was his all. Fifty-five per cent of the Jews were not engaged in productive occupations. They were peddlers, middle-men, petty traders, petty speculators. They were dubbed lutmenschen. That meant they were folks that obtained a livelihood from the air. Such a livelihood was precarious, savagely competitive, where opportunities were so few, and so miserable. Only four per cent were workers, and only two per cent were peasants. All hail the new day!

HOW IS JAPAN TO LEARN PEACE?

Japan was taught the arts of modern war by the Western nations. Upon the Western nations rests the responsibility of leavening the life of Japan with the spirit of peace. What they have done they must in honor undo. How proceed? Not by word of mouth, but by example. Not before Europe and America disarm, and thus promote peace, is Japan likely to give heed to the Christian ideals of the missionary. The arts of peace must be learned and lived before the Orientals will give peace a place in their vocabulary. Have the Christian nations waited too long? Will centuries be required to accomplish the task of a decade? That remains to be seen.

To get a glimpse at the soul of the Japanese is like the flash of light in a dark place. In the articles already appearing in The Examiner from my pen a rather gloomy outlook has been portrayed. Japanese youth militarized is a threat to the peace of the Far East. To forecast the future of a restless people another view must be studied.

Fred T. Gealy is a teacher in one of the Japanese schools. It can be said, that he knows Japan. He has an eye for character. Behind racial blood, and racial cultures, there is a comman humanity. It is deeper than any culture. Out of this deeper humanity all cultures have come. To sense in the Japanese that which is common in our own humanity is to find the way to peace.

Professor George Santayana wrote, "Character and Opinion in the United States." It was written in 1921. Here is a sentence from that book. "Never was the human mind master of so many facts and sure of so few principles." Japan is crammed with Western facts, but uncertain about Christian peace ideals.

Lakefield Resident Holds 92nd Birthday

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 29.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — Lakefield's oldest resident, Mrs. J. W. Martyn, of Ermitinger street, passed another milestone in her life when on Monday, October 29th she celebrated her ninety-second birthday. Alert and clear-eyed with the clear complexion of health, Mrs. Martyn's appearance belies her years. She retains to a remarkable degree her interest in world affairs and is well informed in a way not usual among women, regarding social and economic conditions in our own and other countries.

She was born in Smith, near Selwyn, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Manning. The family homestead is now occupied by Mr. H. L. McIlmoyl. After her marriage she lived for years near Port Hope, where she made a wide circle of friends. For the past few years she has resided in the village with her grand niece, Mrs. Stanley Windsor.

It is a remarkable fact that Lakefield's oldest man and oldest woman were both born in the township of Smith and these two nonogenarians are very remarkable personalities, interesting and well worth knowing. Mr. Fairbairn is the oldest man and to see him walking briskly on the streets belies his ninety-one years.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

FIRST NATIVE PRIME MINISTER

On this date (October 30) in 1893 there died the first native born prime minister of Canada, Sir John Joseph Caldwell Abbott, that is if we consider Canada as having begun with the birth of the Dominion, for in both Lower and Upper Canada and in the Province of Canada, native sons were the rule rather than the exception as leaders so that it was noticeable that the first and second Prime Ministers of the Dominion John A. Macdonald and Alexander Mackenzie were Scots by birth, and not Canadians.

Sir John Abbott was a compromise prime minister. When the death of Sir John A. Macdonald left the Conservative party leaderless there was no strong man in sight save Sir Charles Tupper and he was unacceptable to some influential members of the party. Time was needed in such an emergency and so poor old Sir John Abbott (he was 70) was persuaded against his will to become Prime Minister. It is no secret that he himself favored Sir John Thompson, but that Sir John was a Roman Catholic (a convert) and the Orangemen had much to say in those days. So Abbott took the head of the table. He was never a popular figure. He was too old; he was a senator; he was little known outside the Province of Quebec except as solicitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway; he had no personal appeal and it was not surprising that, fine gentleman that he was, a son of an Anglican rector in St. Andrew's on the Ottawa River; in little less than a year, he declined to carry on. He was a sick man and was glad to retire to his old home where he died.

Then the Conservative party had to accept the third Sir John Thompson this time, a giant in intellect, a diplomat with a steel wrist under his soft glove, a worthy son of Nova Scotia, which, as our province of first things, has a logical right to provide the Dominion with its first prime minister from the Maritimes, the other three being Tupper, Borden and Bennett. Sir John Thompson's sudden death in 1894 was a sad blow to the Conservative Party. I have often conjectured whether if he had lived Laurier would have won in 1896.

THE BROWSER

If the Browser were really a reviewer instead of the sort of literary guinea pig that he is, he'd have read Albert Halper's "The Foundry" several weeks ago and reported at once....But somehow or other he let it stand on his desk without reading it and read other readers' enthusiastic reviews somewhat skeptically and let it pass half-curious, half-reluctant, half-dreading it as a heavy tome that would weigh his soul down and diminish his spirits....But he was mistaken. It is a good book and he recommends it as a good job.

Its about working people in a union electrotype foundry. Working people, to be sure, will not read it—and why should they? They know their own side of life and some of it would annoy them.

But Halper knows what he writes about. He has been office worker, salesman, factory hand, shipping clerk and postal sorter in his 30 years, and he knows how he felt and how other workers feel....If you, too, desire to know, read "The Foundry."

During the first pages of the book, the Browser was frequently reminded of Theodore Dreiser's way of introducing character and getting his plot out of low gear. Afterwards he was reminded of Knut Hamsun and now he's willing to bet that Albert Halper has read every book by Knut Hamsun and absorbed, conscious or not, Hamsun's trick of thinking about and commenting on his characters....That isn't criticism. It is merely and observation...No other "reviewer" seems to have noticed that fact; which merely shows how clever the Browser is. He's uncanny, as you, too, may have noticed.

* * *

After reading "The Foundry" the Browser read S. S. Van Dine's "Casino Murder Case" and liked that, too. Liked the intelligence of it, liked the languid, polished way of it. S. S. Van Dine is the Adolph Menjou of the mystery-mongers or perhaps Menjou is the Van Dine of the screen. Two quotations from the book: (1) "Life goes on. But why?" (2) "Any woman can master bridge, but only a man can play good poker."

* * *

Freida Lawrence's book about her husband, D. H. Lawrence, is out at last. It's the best book any woman has written about him yet. She frankly says that she wrote it because she wanted to blow her OWN horn, too.

One publication says that Mrs. Lawrence will bring Lawrence's body from Italy for reburial in America where he wished to be. The Browser doesn't believe it; he hated America as much as he hated every other country where he lived. He wasn't at home anywhere in life.

* * *

Mary Kidder Rak's "A Cowman's Wife" is a good book. Once upon a time she was superintendent of Associated Charities in San Francisco, her publishers say, but for many years she has been playing "second fiddle to a cow," married to a man who claims he was "born on a horse, looking at a cow," living on a ranch south of the Painted Desert. "We and the cows," says Mary, "must stick together." She says cow know more than you think they do, and the Browser doesn't doubt it; he used to know a cow very well.

* * *

And everybody who has read Nordhoff and Hall's "Mutiny of Sea" or any part of their "Pitcairn's Island" will like James Norman Hall's "The Tale of a Shipwreck." It's his personal account of a trip he took to Pitcairn Island and how he was shipwrecked on his way back to Tahiti....Strange fellows, Hall and Nordhoff but strange only because they did what they wished, after the war, in which they were aviators, and left our civilization to itself.

Hall would like to try the experiment, some day, of living in complete solitude. He does not mean "alone," as Thoreau did at Walden, or as a man might in a busy city, but in real solitude. He doubts that he'd take any books with him and believes "we have become too dependent upon books in these days," but thinks that perhaps they are necessary "considering how few places there are left in the world where one may enjoy the refreshment which Nature, unprofaned by human hands, can give."

Isn't this about enough from

JOBLESS RANKS MOUNT IN U. S.

Up 843,000 Over 1933 Says Green—Will Probe A. and P. Labor Trouble.

STRIKE FRONT HOLDS.

WASHINGTON, October 30 (C. P.). — Three hundred grocery stores—all that the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company operates in Cleveland—were under orders to remain closed to-day. They will be abandoned because of labor troubles, the company says.

The chain's unionized butchers were called out in Milwaukee, where meat departments have been closed in 26 of 38 stores. The company says they were unprofitable; the union blames labor trouble. Butchers of two small chains also were ordered to strike by the union. Commission merchants planned to move produce despite a truck drivers' strike.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said he would begin an inquiry into labor's differences with the A. and P.

Green, in a statement last night, fixed the number of unemployed in September as 843,000 greater than a year ago, and stressed "the urgency of an immediate Federal program to put men back to work in industry." He urged production by industry be lifted 30 per cent.

State-wide Walkout.

Michael Schuld, state chairman of the Ohio Meat Cutters' Union, said its convention beginning on Saturday might be asked to authorize a state-wide walkout of A. and P. butchers.

Delegates at the convention of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers of America, in Pittsburgh, talked of a "nation-wide strike" after rejecting the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company's answer to labor demands.

Deadlocked employers and representatives of 20,000 striking silk and rayon dyers in the East planned to renew their conferences to-day. The Union ordered picket lines established to prevent any resumption of work at the plants.

A two-month strike at Millville, N.J., ended with textile workers accepting the Millville Manufacturing Company's agreement to arbitrate.

In Beaumont, Texas, 98 street car and bus operators went on strike halting service.

Surprising Terms Offered By Singer

An opportunity that should appeal immensely to music-lovers of the city has been offered to the 57th Regiment of the I.O.D.E., in a letter received this week saying that Amelita Galli-Curci, the world-famous soprano singer, is open for an engagement in several Canadian cities, on her way home from a South American concert tour.

The terms offered are surprising. No guarantee is required. All that the local organization has to do is to furnish the hall, piano, advertising, etcetera, for which they will receive twenty-five per cent. of the gross receipts. They are under no financial obligation.

The suggested price scale is from 75 cents to $1.50. The visit here would take place some time next spring. This appears to be a wonderful opportunity for local and district people, many of whom would doubtless attend, to hear one of the world's greatest singers, on easy terms.

STRONEGR PRICE SILVER ISSUES

PENNY STOCKS STEADY.

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (CP)—Silver stocks developed a firmer price tone to-day on the mining section of the Toronto Exchange, but the gold and base metal groups maintained their grounds generally. Senior golds trade in very small volume on the whole, with Teck Hughes and Hollinger showing better turnover than the others. Penny gold stocks were barely steady and the cheap oils lost ground.

SPOTTY TONE IN BEVERAGES

Walkers Common Advances Point to 24 While Brewing Corporation Off.

GENERAL LIST STRONG.

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—(CP)— The industrial section of the Toronto exchange had its strong and weak spots all within the beverage group today while the general tone of the market was firm to strong with volume however only moderate. Walkers common advanced a point to 24 on good buying while weakness centred in the Brewing Corporation shares, which were off fractions to 1⅛.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Inertia ruled in the stock market today. The general list was narrow, with moderate gains prevailing among specialties. American Telephone, U.S. Steel, N.Y. Central and American Can were steady. Johns-Manville, Universal Leaf Tobacco and McCrory Store shares were firm. U.S. Smelting dipped around a point. Transfers approximated 400,000 shares.

Small Motor Car Is Ninety Inches Long

Pedestrians on George street this afternoon heard the chug-chug-of a small motor and looked around to see the smallest automobile they had ever laid their eyes on. Ninety inches in length and 22 inches wide, the little red machine scooted along under its own power at the hands of a 12-year-old youngster.

The miniature car was made by the National Motor Sales Manufacturing Company in Des Moines, Iowa, and was brought here by C. W. Bennett and W. F. Bennett of the Canadian Premium Distributors in Toronto. It will be given away in a contest shortly to be announced by the Regent Theatre.

The automobile with a seat large enough to sat the average youngsters is powered by an air-cooled, single cylinder 4-cycle motor. It will travel 10 miles per hour and make 60 miles on the gallon. Two speeds forward and a reverse are afforded by its drive.

Several youngsters—and one adult—volunteered eagerly to drive the machine as the Bennett brothers demonstrated it on the main street.

Taking Beer Profit Not To Be Compulsory

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (CP)—Any municipality unwilling to take advantage of the Ontario government's offer to share by 20 per cent in money derived from sale of licenses and from profits from beer and wine sold in hotels, will not be forced to accept the money, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said to-day.

The Premier said he wanted to make it clear to municipalities the government was not going to give municipalities any money they don't want. "All they have to do," he said, "is to pass a resolution to that effect, and we'll keep the money for the government."

QUESTION WARDEN.

CROWN POINT, Ind., October 30 (A.P.). — Lewis Baker, Warden at the Crown Point Jail and Ernest Blunk, finger print expert, were taken into custody early this morning by Deputy-Attorney-General Ray Edward Barce for questioning in connection with the escape of the late John Dillinger from the jail last month.

PLANE REPAIRED.

NAPANEE, Ont., October 30 (C.P.). — The American Air Lines plane forced to land at Napanee on Sunday night took off this morning at 11.40.

The plane, in charge of Pilot Dester and co-Pilot A. Kiem, headed for Albany, N.Y., the nearest American airport.

Scotia Ghost City May Flourish Again

GLACE BAY, N.S., Oct. 30.— (C.P.)—Cape Breton's "ghost city" will rise again if Sydney financiers carry out their plans to re-open the coal mines at deserted Broughton, about 20 miles from here.

While their identity had not been disclosed, it had been learned today they had secured some leases in the area and were negotiating for others.

Many years ago Broughton was a flourishing colliery town with a population of over 2,000. English capitalists invested $5,000,000 in it, built row after row of houses and streets and laid the foundations of what was to be a city. In the centre they erected Broughton Arms, a hotel costing $100,000.

BRITISH HOUSE OPENING FINDS LABOR FUMING

Demand More Than Two Days For Discussion of Sedition Bill.

LANSBURY BACK IN SEAT.

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

LONDON, Oct. 30 (C.P. Cable).—The House of Commons reassembled to-day with the Labor opposition in a fighting mood.

Members on both sides cheered as George Lansbury, the septuagenarian Labor leader, with one leg in a supporting appliance and leaning heavily on a stick, hobbled to the front Opposition bench.

Labor shouted itself hoarse as the Labor victors in recent by-elections in North Lambeth and Swindon were introduced and took their seats.

The battling mood was evident when Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald announced two days were allotted for discussion of the Sedition Bill. Lansbury pressed for more time, but the Prime Minister declined.

"The House sits all night," pointedly questioned Isaac Foote from the Liberal benches. "Will the Prime Minister be prepared to reconsider the position?" The Prime Minister made no reply.

Maxton Leads Support.

James Maxton, leftwinger, joined with official Labor in pressing for more time. From the Conservative back benches came the query whether the Government realized the unpopularity of the Sedition Bill with the masses.

Possibly no measure of recent years has aroused more comment than the Sedition Bill. It purports to check the distribution of seditious literature among the orces of the Crown. The critics' main objections are that possession of seditious literature without lawful excuse is made an offence and a justice of the peace may issue a search warrant if there is reasonable ground for suspicion that an offence has been committed.

Fight On To Save U.S. Industrial Truce

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—A strenuous effort to save President Roosevelt's industrial truce from going to smash started to-day.

The National Labor Relations Board dropped everything to confer with both sides in the row involving the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company in Cleveland. Other agencies kept sharp watch on half a dozen industrial sore spots in the United States.

The controversy that led the A. & P. to close its 300 stores in Cleveland, throwing more than 2,000 persons out of work, apparently gave the Labor Board one of its hardest nuts to crack.

Taking Inventory At General Electric

The wheels of production will come to a halt and an army of clerks will begin work on the annual inventory at the Canadian General Electric Company here on Thursday morning. The entire plant will be shut down the remainder of the week.

Normally three working days are set aside for the task, but this year advantage is being taken of the regular Saturday shutdown which has been in effect under the shorter working week program of the company. Local employees of the company will make the inventory. It is necessary that all production must remain at a standstill during the process.

Hamilton Agitators To Be Cut Off Relief

HAMILTON, Oct. 30 (CP)—The relief work strike which is paralysing Hamilton's program of civic enterprises grew in proportions yesterday when 15 ment refused to take up shovels and labor on the construction of the King William street storm sewer.

"Some of the men came in here and said they wanted work but were afraid to, having been threatened by Reds if they started on the job," Mayor Wilton said. "This thing calls for immediate and drastic action. What we must do is to pick out these agitators and cut them off relief. The city would be a lot better off if some of the persons in it were shipped to Moscow. That's what we may have to do with them.

RELIEF CRISIS

SANDWICH, Ont., Oct. 30 (CP)—Refusal of the Board of Supervisors to authorize the providing of stoves, eyeglasses and other such necessities for those on relief has precipitated a crisis here. The council has delegated Mayor A. Resaume to get in touch with Hon. David Croll, Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs, and if the latter refuses to act in the matter, the Council will hold a tag day to raise the necessary funds.

An Ultimatum

QUINCY, Mass., Oct. 30, (CP) If any members of the Central Baptist Church decan't vote against liquor license in Quincy he can find another church to join, the Rev Frank T. Litterin stipulated to-day.

Litterin "laid down the law" to his parishioners with the statement that "anyone who doesn't vote against liquor license in Quincy is not a Christian."

The minister insisted that every member of his church who can vote must do so, and must vote against liquor.

SEEK TO CANCEL HOTEL LICENSE

Protests Made Against Beverage Room in Montreal House.

TOO NEAR CHURCH.

Cancellation of the authority under which the Montreal House beverage room is operating, is asked of the Liquor Control Board, in a triple protest from the Free Methodist Church, Trinity United Church and Peterborough Temperance Association.

The three organizations seek to have the Montreal House beverage room license revoked, mainly on the ground that the hotel is immediately adjacent to the Free Methodist church.

Bringing the matter forward as chairman at the Temperance Association meeting last evening, A. B. Cunningham referred to the fact that the Free Methodist and Trinity United Church boards had lodged protests with the Liquor Control Board, objecting strongly to the location of a beverage room adjacent to church property.

He was of the opinion that matters would be further helped if the Temperance Association would endorse the action taken by the churches, in backing up the protest.

"It has a bad record," were the type of comments voiced in the meeting.

The Rev. G. K. Tyler, pastor of Park Street Baptist Church moved that, "this Association join with the Free Methodist and Trinity United Churches in sending a protest to the Liquor Control Board." The motion was declared carried.

MEASLES RAGE AT GLACE BAY

Two Children Die Among 100 Cases Reported in Last Few Days.

MAY CLOSE SCHOOLS.

GLACE BAY, N.S., Oct. 30 (CP) —With two children dead in the past 24 hours, Glace Bay health authorities warned to-day that all places of assembly would be closed to children unless the spread of a measles epidemic were curbed.

More than 100 cases of the disease have been reported in the last few days, and officials believe many more cases have not come to their attention. In some instances, whole families have been stricken.

Latest death attributed to measles occurred to-day. Her resistance weakened by the disease, the nine-year-old daughter of George Hines died in hospital after an operation for appendicitis. Yesterday, John Penson's four-months-old son died of measles.

Rush Point School Opens Lit. Meetings

RUSH POINT, Oct. 30. (Examiner Correspondence).—The children of the local public school under the leadership of their teacher, Mr. Gerald Buchanan, have resumed their Literary Society meetings. These meetings are held in the school fortnightly on Friday afternoons.

Miss Jean Blakely took the chair and the following program was given at the first meeting of this season: Reading, Edith Wright; song, Randal Ellis; reading, Birdie Menzies; song, June Blakely and Madeline Toms; reading, Don Menzies; song, Betty and Leland Petherick; riddles, Lois Blakely, recitation, Betty Petherick; reading, Grace Johnston; God Save the King.

HOSPITALS COST $240,000.

TORONTO, Oct. 30. (CP).—Operation of hospitals in Ontario has cost the provincial government $240,000 since taking office last July 11, Hon. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health, said to-day. The Minister said he recommended to the cabinet the voting of $113,000 for maintenance purposes, which, coupled with $137,000 voted some weeks ago, would bring the total to $240,000 up to the end of the month.

CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATIONS AMALGAMATE INTO ONE BODY

North and South Victoria to Operate in Future Under One Head.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

LINDSAY, Oct. 30 (Special to The Examiner).—At a largely-attended and very representative gathering of Conservatives in the Town Hall yesterday afternoon the old organizations which have for years been functioning in North and South Victoria were amalgamated into one organization which will in the future conduct the business of the party and do executive work for both Provincial and Federal politics.

Officers were elected Oas follows: President, Charles D. Logan, Bobcaygeon; 1st Vice-President, Chas. Jenkins, Little Britain; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. George Earle, Haliburton; 3rd Vice-President, George Perdue, Fenelon Falls; 4th Vice-President, C. G. Frost, Lindsay; Secretary, J. W. Deyell, Lindsay; Treasurer, A. D. McIntyre, Woodville.

J. R. MacNichol, M.P., of Toronto, was the chief speaker and ably outlined the accomplishments of the Bennett Government, claiming that much of the trouble of today and the cause of price probes, etc., could be laid directly at the door of the King Government when a large number of amalgamations and mergers took place.

Resolutions were passed commending the Bennett Government for its work in securing larger markets and developing trade within the Empire. Also commending the Price Probe Commission and the attitude of the government in deciding to continue the probe, and commendation to Hon. H. H. Stevens for his courageous stand, also a resolution condemning the savagery of the Hepburn Government in dismissing efficient non-partisian civil servants.

DUCK HUNTERS FOUND IN MIRE

Sucked to Death In Ooze—Water Only 2 Feet Deep.

WERE STANDING UPRIGHT.

FRANKFORT, Mich., October 30 (A.P.).—The bodies of two Frankfort duck hunters, missing since Sunday night, were found late yesterday in Little Platte Lake where they had met death in one of the strangest mishaps of the hunting season.

The victims, identified as Helmer Erickson, 29, and Gale Robinson, 28, were caught in the heavy mud near the shore of the lake, and pulled down to their deaths by the terrific suction.

They died in about two feet of water only a few yards from the shore. Their bodies were found standing upright in the mire with little more than their heads above the surface of the mud. The two feet of water near the shore had barely covered the tops of their heads. It is believed Erickson and Robinson accidentally ran their canoe aground, jumped out into the knee-deep water, and sank into the mire.

Judge Ross To Head "Toll Gate" Probe

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (CP.).—The Ontario Government announced today Judge D. C. Ross of St. Thomas has been appointed Royal Commissioner to inquire into liquor "toll gate" charges made during the last Ontario election campaign. Arthur G. Slaght, Toronto lawyer, will be commission counsel and will serve without fee.

Liberal campaigners charged before the Ontario election that British liquor exporters were forced to pay the Conservative Party before their liquors were listed by the Ontario Liquor Control Board.

Sees Stevens' Action Blow To Politics

LONDON, October 30 (C.P. Cable). — The Times, in a long leading article to-day, says the breach of H. H. Stevens with the Government of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett is likely to affect Canadian politics for a long time. Mr. Stevens resigned as chairman of the Mass Buying-Price Spreads Committee, and also as Minister of Trade and Commerce.

The breach may also influence the result of the next Canadian general election, says The Times. The editorial contains a history of the circumstances leading up to Mr. Stevens' resignation. It goes on to say that it was inevitable that the Cabinet should rid itself of a member whose action, whether deliberate or inadvertent, had caused so much embarrassment.

Executive Clemency Is Sought For Negro Youth

CHATHAM. — Appeal that executive clemency be extended Frederick Turner, 19-year-old Negro, sentenced to hang here on Dec. 3 on a charge of murdering John Bresina, is contained in a petition bearing more than 2,000 signatures sent to Hon Hugh Guthrie, Federal Minister of Justice. The petition was forwarded by Ald. W. B. Beardall with a formal plea for mercy.

Posses Comb Bush For Lost Clergyman

WINDSOR, N. S., Oct. 30.—(CP) —Two hundred men went into the Chester Road woods today in search of Rev. Henry A. Harley, aged Anglican clergyman who disappeared on a hunting trip.

The retired cleric left his home here yesterday morning, and fears for his safety were aroused last night when he failed to arrive at the home of William Palmer, deep in the woods, with whom he was to have had supper.

Bands of men were hastily gathered together as his absence continued early today, and they set out toward Palmer's Lake, toward which Mr. Harley was believed to have headed in search of partridge. A guide who had accompanied him part of the way trailed him some distance toward the lake, but the searchers caught no sight of him.

FISHERS PLIGHT SAID DESPERATE ton market by union labor organizations, he said.

The Lunenburg captain made one definite charge against fish companies. He said they bought pollock for one-quarter cent a pound as fishmeal and sold it as edible fillets for five to ten cents a pound to wholesalers, with consumers paying as high as 18 cents a pound.

The commission will investigate later price spreads in the fishing industry.

Kennedy Presides.

The first public hearing of the mass buying Royal Commission opened under the chairmanship of William W. Kennedy, Conservative member for Winnipeg South Centre. He succeeded Hon. H.H. Stevens, former Minister of Trade and Commerce, who resigned the chairmanship over the week-end, but continued as a private member of the commission.

It was announced the commission was considering recommending to the government the enlargement of its powers so the textile, coal and gasoline industries could be investigated. A decision on this point is not expected for some days. In the meantime, the commission to-day continued with its probe of Maritime fisheries.

Chairman Kennedy, in a brief statement before evidence started to-day, said the scope of the commission was wide enough to permit any company or individual, whose affairs were investigated by the former House of Commons committee, to appear before the commission and make any representations.

Because the investigation was being carried on by a Royal commission and not a Parliamentary committee, changes were necessary regarding counsel the chairman said. Any person who appeared before the commission and again when a charge was made, had the right to be represented by counsel. The commission might allow any person or company whose affairs were being investigated to be represented by counsel.

COMMUNITY CONCERT PLAN IS OUTLINED TO MUSIC LOVERS

Association is Formed in City With Lt.-Col. Charles Ackerman as Head.

SERIES OF CONCERTS

"Organize first and book your artists afterwards," was the main idea of the talk given by Ward French, General Manager of the Community Concert Service of New York, at an organization meeting held last evening at the Y.M.C.A., for the purpose of forming a Peterborough Community Concert Association.

The purpose of the Community Concert plan is to make possible a series of concerts on a basis which eliminates all financial risk on the part of any person, group or organization. It is organized on a membership basis, each member paying annual dues of five dollars, the membership entitling one to attend all the concerts which are presented by the association each season.

The number of concerts presented depends upon the total of membership and the amount that the association can expend on "buying artists," as Mr. French expressed it. At the close of the campaign, the membership is closed and no one can join for another year. No single admission tickets can be sold after the close of the week's campaign, thus finally making the organization, which starts out on broadly democratic lines, an absolutely closed society. A minimum of three major concerts is assured each season. Artists are selected by the local committee after the membership week is over.

As Mr. French explained it, the old idea of getting the artist first and then suffering greatly in trying to get the audience was really putting the cart before the horse. In this new fashion, the audience is secured first, and the choice of the artist follows later, with no financial difficulties looming in the background.

The idea has caught on all over the continent, with many Canadian cities entering upon their third or fourth successful musical season under this plan.

"The difference between Americans and Canadians is noticeable when working up a plan like this," said Mr. French. "The Americans are quick on the trigger in getting started, but they tire soon, whereas you Canadians are terribly hard to enthuse, but, once you get going, nothing can stop you."

Representative Musically

Representatives of music-lovers of the city were present, with the major portion of the gathering recruited from the Madrigal Singers. Several choir leaders and organists, also members of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, the Male Voice Choir and the Canadian Legion, as well as the I.O.D.E. were at the meeting, which was held early in the evening, and had a number of aspects not met with at the ordinary session of this type.

A very warm room and a dislike of open windows on the part of several made the first portion a languid session, then a move was necessary to another room and here bursts of song from a supper gathering in an adjoining hall punctuated the remarks of the speakers. At one period, the whole gathering rose to stand during the singing of the National Anthem next door, and the "Road to Mandalay" colored the opinions of several of the speakers, as it echoed from the neighboring gathering.

M. H. Park acted as chairman pro tem, and, after considerable discussion of the question, a nominating committee was appointed and withdrew, to form a list of possible officers of the new organization. The nominating committee was comprised of R. Haddow, Miss Mary Harstone and Miss May Jory, and their report was adopted, as follows: Lt.-Col. Charles Ackerman, president; Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, first vice president; Miss Mabel Clarry, second vice president; Miss Mary Harstone, third vice president; I. P. McNabb, fourth vice president; Mrs. Jas. Matthews, fifth vice president; Mrs. D. R. Howat, secretary; Mrs. Agnes Logan Green, assistant secretary; T. A. Mackay, treasurer.

With the exception of the tentative president and first and fourth vice presidents, who were not present at the time of bringing in the slate of officers, the organization was assured of acceptance on the part of those nominated.

Mr. French explained that the objective of most cities where the plan is in operation is to secure twenty captains with five workers apiece, to conduct a campaign for membership, which will take place in Peterborough during the week beginning Monday, November 12th, and ending on November 17th.

Miss Katherine Whetham of Toronto, who is organizer for the Canadian Division of the Community Concert Service, has been in the city for some time, calling on various interested people.

It was announced that one of the concerts which would be presented in the projected series would be the annual large concert of the Madrigal Singers, who will take an active part in furthering the sale of membership tickets, working as a unit, as their director, Mrs. Park, promised last evening.

lott and Alderman James Ellis on the ground that it was foreign to Liberal principles.

Mr. Elliott said that officers should be elected from the floor of the house by the general membership present. This method was accordingly adopted.

A resolution by W. F. Huycke affirmed the confidence of the Association in the leadership of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Premier M. F. Hepburn.

W. A. Fraser, M.P.

The invited speakers for the meeting were Hon. Nelson Parliament and W. A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland, both of whom spoke briefly in the short time that was left after the business of the evening was completed.

Mr. Fraser paid a warm tribute to J. J. Duffus for the successful leadership which he has given to the Central Ontario Liberal Association whose annual meeting, he said, was to be held at Lindsay on Thursday, November 15.

"There was never a time in the history of Canada when the people were giving more thought to politics than they are to-day," Mr. Fraser said. "There are more Liberals of one kind or another today than ever. The tide of Liberalism is not ebbing. It is rising as we have never known it in the past. They are sick of the doctrines and policies that have been carried into effect by Premier Bennett and his followers. They have even drifted from the old policies of the Tory party, and it is the duty of every citizen who believes in the principles of Liberalism to realize the drift toward socialism and to do their part in stemming that tide.

In your last election you had a third candidate. I have nothing to say about the sincerity of the C.C.F. candidate and the leaders of that party. I have heard them all from Mr. Woodsworth down, and I say that the things they stand for are opposed to the democracy which you and I know. You can't have socialism without a dictator, bayonets and police batons, and I don't think the people of this country want their affairs directed by a dictator. You can't have democracy and a dictatorship together, and the C.C.F. is an attempt to put socialism into effect into Canada. I am not calling any persons Reds, and I am not casting any doubts on their sincerity, but I do say that socialism is opposed to your own interest. Speaking on economic grounds I say that the C.C.F. is wrong."

Mr. Fraser denied rumors that Mackenzie King was not in good health. "I have seen him within the last two weeks, and I can assure you that when the next election takes place he will be better physically and mentally than ever."

The Bennett government would go to the people on four major issues, Mr. Fraser continued. They would be the Imperial Agreements, the Natural Products Bargaining Act, the Bank of Canada Act and the Stevens Prince enquiry.

"The question will naturally be asked, where does the Liberal party stand. The question will be fully answered, but I haven't time in the few minutes at my disposal to go into the subject thoroughly. As Liberals we are not free traders on the one hand, and on the other we do not believe in prohibitive tariffs. We believe in a reasoned tariff, in a tariff that is thought out and applied in the same way as any business concern thinks out its policies and applies them.

We do not believe in a tariff that puts a duty on working men's socks and lets ladies' long gloves into this country free. We do not believe in a heavy duty on oranges, and letting diamonds in free. We believe in economic liberalism. We believe in a reasoned measure of government regulation, but we do not believe in government control that is simply carrying the country into socialism as Mr. Bennett is doing."

Mr. Fraser said that the Natural Products Marketing Act placed in the hands of the Minister of Agriculture and his appointees the business interests of more than fifty per cent of the Canadian people, that it was economically wrong and would tend to place Canada in a wrong position with the Motherland. He condemned the Bank of Canada Act which concentrated the control of Canadian credit in the hands of a governor who had been Sir Herbert Holt's "right bower."

In regard to the Stevens enquiry into price spreads, Mr. Fraser declared that the Hon. H. H. Stevens was a political hypocrite.

"I say that because I know that Mr. Stevens stood in his place in the House of Commons in 1930-31 and '32 and voted for increased tariffs and higher money rates, the two things which brought about the conditions which the Price Spreads committee was authorized to investigate. If there is anything that should be investigated surely it is what we may call the 'price spread' by the chartered banks that pay you 1¾ per cent. on your deposits and charge you 7 and 8 per cent. on any money you borrow.

High tariffs and high money rates are the most vicious causes of the industrial conditions which we have read so much about in the press, and the Bennett government stands for both high tariffs and high money rates. The cost of raw materials in the needle trades has increased until the only place the manufacturers could turn to was to take it out of labor. Mr. Stevens shed crocodile tears in the South Oxford by-elections about the conditions of the tobacco growers. All Mr. Stevens had to say was to threaten the tobacco manufacturers that the tariff on tobacco imports would be reduced unless they paid the producers of this country a fair price for their raw tobacco. The Stevens investigation is the most superficial smoke screen that was ever offered the Canadian people."

Mr. Fraser said there had been some benefits from the Imperial Agreements, but they had been wrung from the Motherland at the price of economic bondage and were already having repercussions.

"No man can drive a hard bargain without having it slap back at him. And you will find that the slapbacks from the Imperial Agreements will be so detrimental to us that they won't be an important factor in the 1935 elections.

Since 1930 the export of flour from this country has declined from ten million barrels to five million. Ask the management of the Quaker Oats in your own city. The agreements Mr. Bennett wrung from the Motherland have driven the British Minister of Agriculture to a policy of producng in Great Britain all the natural products they can. Under the Natural Products Marketing Act Britain can now say to us "ship your apples as we tell you, or we'll embargo you."

Mr. Fraser concluded by congratulating the Liberals of Peterborough in their election of a young man of the apparent energy and enthusiasm shown by Mr. Sackville, and urged that he be given the united support which he sought.

A resolution of appreciation was extended to the visiting speakers in a motion by Mr. Cyril Rice, who on behalf of the young Liberals of the city and country promised the senior organization the cooperation of the junior group whose membership, he said, had already reached three hundred and fifty.

Cavan

Mr. Chenhall is commencing his choral class on Wednesday evening in the basement of the church, Cavanville. Tuesday was at first decided on, but on account of the young people holding their meeting twice a month on that evening, it was changed to Wednesday evening. Everybody interested is invited to attend.

Miss Norma Staples, Toronto, spent the week-end at her home in Cavan.

Mrs. H. Fallis spent the week-end with friends in Millbrook.

Mr. Arnold Attwold, Toronto, was a week-end visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Staples.

The Rev. Mr. Trumpour of Cavan conducted the services at Springville and Fairmount on Sunday, while the Rev. Mr. Seymour of Springville preached at Mount Pleasant, morning and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James McKinnon, the Misses Francis and Evelyn McKinnon of Bethany and Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Staples, Springville, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Staples on Friday evening.

Weddings

MOESER—CHAPMAN.

A picturesque wedding had its setting in Eglinton United Church, Toronto, Saturday evening when Miriam Fern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Chapman, was married to Karl S. Moeser, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Moeser, of Toronto, and grandson of Mrs. J. Stanger, Stewart street, Peterborough. Rev. W. J. Johnston officiated at the ceremony, and Mr. F. E. Goodwin played the wedding music. During the signing of the register, Mrs. F. E. Goodwin sang. Bronze 'mums, palms and ferns made an attractive setting for the bridal party. The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a lovely gown of rose-white satin, made on long moulded lines, with white tulle veil arranged in cap effect with seed pearls and carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses and lily-of-the-valley. Miss Helen Chapman, as her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Dorothy Moeser, sister of the groom, as her bridesmaid, were dressed alike in frocks of Rhone green velvet, trimmed with silver, and hats to correspond, with bouquets of Talisman roses and bouvardia. Mr. Alton P. Morton was groomsman, and the ushers Mr. Bill Chapman, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ted Moesher, brother of the groom. At the reception, the bride's mother, in a gown of black velvet with matching hat and Mrs. Moeser, mother of the groom, in grey lace trimmed with brown velvet and brown belvet hat, received with the bridal party. Leaving later on the wedding trip the bride wore a brown ensemble, with cocoa brown broadtail coat and matching accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Moeser will live in Toronto.

WILSON—PAYNE.

WARSAW, Oct. 30.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Bethel United Church, beautifully decorated with evergreens, fall flowers and ferns, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, October 27, when Velma Eliese, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Payne, became the bride of William Harold Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson, of Keene. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson performed the ceremony and Mrs. Wesley Stark, of Toronto, sister of the bride, played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, made a charming picture, wearing a dress of white suede lace cut on princess lines, with a two-point veil of white net caught with orange blossoms, and carrying a bouquet of Johannahill roses in peach shade with lilies of the valley. She wore a little gold broach, given her by her uncle, William G. Gow, when she was flower girl at his wedding.

Miss Viola Wilson, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and wore autumn rust French crepe with brown accessories and carried Talisman roses shading from peach to deep copper.

Sherwood Payne, brother of the bride, was best man, and the ushers were Ernest Wilson, brother of the groom, and Garbutt, Jory, of Lakefield. Other attendants were Miss Della Tucker, of Warsaw, and Harry McIntyre, of Keene.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, after which the happy young couple left amidst good wishes and showers of confetti for a trip to Cleveland. The bride travelled in a matelot blue ensemble.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will reside in a newly built home at Keene, Ontario.

ELDERS OF ZION PROTOCALS ALL WERE FORGED

Drawn by Russian Agents to Hold Jews to Blame for Soviet Situation.

BASIS, NAZI REGIME.

(By Joseph E. Sharkey)

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 30 (AP)—Sergius Swatikow, who served as the Vice-Governor of St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), under the Kerensky regime, declared in court to-day that the so-called "protocols of the Elders of Zion" were fabricated by secret Russian agents at the French National Library.

It was on these "protocols" that the Nazi regime in Germany, according to the testimony of G. Haller, one of Nazi witnesses for the defence, was largely based.

Swatikow said that when he began to disband the Czar's Secret Police, Henri Bind, a Frenchman and one of Russia's Secret Police agents, told him the protocols were prepared by General Rachowsky, supposed to be the head of the Czar's Secret Police in Paris, with the aid of a man named Golowyinsky, an agent, provacateur and expert librarian.

Written From Essay

"I am convinced from my talk with Bind," said Swatikow, "that Golowynsky wrote the protocols at the National Library from the essay 'A Dialogue in Hades Between Michiavelli and Montesquieu' by Maurice Joly (1864), and their object was to hold the Jews responsible for the situation in Russia.

Swatikow added that he believed it was Rachowsky who, in 1866, ordered the pillage and destruction at Geneva of the printing establishment of the Russian revolutionaries who had taken refuge in the Swiss city.

This testimony was given before the Criminal libel action of a lawsuit in which Jewry is attempting to show it did not lay plans to rule the world. Jewish leaders are attempting to prove these documents known as the "protocols" are forged and false.

Count Chalya testified that the Russian revolution which ended with Soviet domination was largely due to these "protocols."

QUEBEC FAVORS COMPACTTHEORY CONFEDERATION

Provinces Must be Unanimous in Support of Change in B. N. A.

ACT WAS A COMPROMISE.

Hon. Alfred Duranleau Addresses Toronto Liberal-Conservative Club.

TORONTO, Oct. 30. (CP).—Quebec province unanimously supported the compact theory of Confederation, Hon. Alfred Duranleau declared here to-day on the question of amending the British North America Act which is to come before the Dominion-Provincial conference.

"This compact theory of Confederation" the Minister of Marine told the Liberal-Conservative business men's club in a luncheon address, "has been assailed from all sides, but I do think it is built on solid foundations." First, the B.N.A. Act was the constitution of the provinces as well as the constitution of the Dominion Government and therefore the provinces should have their say when it was amended. Second there were not a few precedents to support that contention.

"There are some," he continued, "who contend that this compact theory of the unanimous consent of the province is an effective brake on the development of our national institutions and that a single province might be in a position to block a reform against the desires of the overwhelming majority of Canadians. That may be but on the other hand, if an amendment is passed despite the opposition of the government of a province backed by public opinion, it may lead to a very serious consequence and possibly to secession.

Unanimous Support

"I may say that this compact theory of Confederation has met with unanimous support in my own province of Quebec.

The recognition of this principle would clear all the misapprehensions and fears the Quebec people may entertain with regard to this overhauling of our constitution and amply safeguard what they hold as their sacred rights. It would enable them to co-operate wholeheartedly with their fellow citizens from other provinces in the task of modifying our constitution to meet present-day requirements."

The well-known ideals and ambitions of his French-Canadian patriots had been made clear when they greeted the visitors from France during the Jacques Cartier celebrations. "We told them," he said, "We had no political or economical aims other than those of our English-speaking associates. We also told them we were eager as you are to remain a part of the Commonwealth of British Nations and enjoy the full benefits of our association with Great Britain and our sister Dominions." These statements he wished to emphasize.

Position Unique.

The position of Quebec was somewhat unique. The people of Quebec had inherited from their forefathers the Roman Catholic religion, the language and civil laws of old France. "We intend to preserve our individuality and stand for a measure of provincial autonomy which will allow us to safeguard that treasured heritage. Otherwise the people of Quebec have absolutely no Separatist leanings, and they see this question of constitutional reform in the same light as their fellow-citizens from the other Provinces."

He knew Quebec was held as the uncompromising champion of provincial rights and autonomy. "But this is due in no small measure to the policy of the present provincial administration which has persistently attacked what it calls Federal encroachments, and has mainly done so for consideration of patronage and political expediency, and it has secured the support of the press which is overwhelmingly Liberal. I venture to state that the Quebec Government is not the only provincial administration to be swayed from time to time by similar considerations."

Result of a Compromise.

The B.N.A. Act was the result of compromise and could only be amended by compromise. That meant concessions and possibly sacrifices, but the reward would be Canadian unity and the rise of a great Canadian nation. It was an acknowledged fact the constitution stood in need of revision; a general demand for its thorough revision existed and it had been frequently advocated in the past years both in the press and in Parliament.

On social legislation, it seemed to be common ground, he said, that, for instance, working conditions and standard wages, unemployment insurance, and old-age pensions may receive better treatment and achieve more satisfactory results at the hands of central power and direction.

Economy demanded unnecessary duplication in agriculture and health services should be amended as far as possible.

MINSTREL SHOW IS REAL DELIGHT

PLENTY OF SNAP

The ball season may have ended a month or two ago, but Deck's softball club—recently Johnston's tires to you—had one more hit to chalk up. The hit was put over in the form of Darky Daze, a mixture of lively black-face chatter, tuneful singing, outrageous punning, comedy dancing and general skylarking stirred up and brewed to make a merry minstrel show. The place was the East City Community Hall last night.

"Plenty on the Ball."

Yes, it was amateur. But as an amateur show it was a bit out of the ordinary. The boys—the cast was femaleless—had plenty on the ball. Their singing was entertaining, both solo and chorus, and their minstrel dialogues, while quite conventional, lacked none of the traditional minstrel peppy wit. The musical and comedy stunts which made up the second part of the show kept the capacity audience in an uproar. Yes, the score was 1-0 for Deck's with one fine hit and no errors.

Dan Leonard did his part well as the No. 1 boss of the first part—the interlocutor. With faces so dark that the darkest darkie would look down on them as "culu'd men," the lads on the ends of the line were Max Peters, Ed. Leonard, Jim McCormick and Hosanna (Hose) Vinette. The four will be seen slinking down dark alleys the next couple of days dodging the citizens of the city of Peterborough whom they made the butts of a number of their swifties. Arnold Smith and Chuck Evans scored undisputed successes as soloists. James Halsey, the maker of funny faces to whom local citizens were introduced in the movie, "Peterborough Speaks," and Ab. Vinette, were headline contributors in the second half of the show. Harry McDonald and Alf. Clark officiated at the violin and piano throughout the evening.

While Bert Deck was the sponsor, posies go also to Hose Vinette, the energetic director.

The curtain went up on the chorus, "Carolina, Here I Come." Seven solo offerings of the minstrel session, sandwiched by the minstrel carrying-on, were "Yours and Mine," Arnold Smith; "Black-eyed Susan Brown," Jim McCormick; "Little Old Church in the Valley," Dan Leonard; "If You Knew Susie," Hose Vinette; "Dinah," Chuck Evans; and "Tucky Home," Ed. Leonard and the company.

A step dance by Ed. Leonard in blackface was followed by a ukelele solo by Chuck Evans. A recitation of "Kelly's Dream" by Max Peters and then McDonald, Smith and McCormick joined the Vinette boys in a variety number representing a radio broadcast. Ed. Leonard was good in a Jewish monologue and Ab. Vinette and Harry McDonald did interesting things with a guitar and a violin. The Leonards with Evans and McCormick made a quartette of no mean ability, and Halsey with Smith and Hose Vinette did an amazing bit of mad-house buffoonery in a number entitled "Silly Symphony." "Highways Are Happy Days" was the finale chorus number.

And the audience liked it. At least no shrieks of "Money back!" were heard.

St. Thomas Jersey Heads Butter Test

ST. THOMAS, Ont., October 30 (C.P.). — E. A. Smith's Jersey cow, "Rower's Olive Dora," leads the Dominion for butter fat production for the three months' period of July, August and September, the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club reported yesterday.

Dora, at Mr. Smith's Sparta farm, produced 13,431 pounds of milk, containing 751 pounds of butter fat, with an average test of 5.59 per cent. Her nearest competitor for first place was the three-year-old cow "Bessie Butler," owned by Hon. Vincent Massey at Canton Ont. Bessie's record was 11,729 pounds of milk, 696 pounds of fat, with an average test of 5.93 per cent.

DEER REPORTED MORE PLENTIFUL IN NORTHERN SECTION OF COUNTY

Ban on Dogs Has Resulted in Deer Becoming More Numerous.

BAN PROVEN WORTH WHILE

With indications that deer will be more plentiful this season in the hunting districts north of Peterborough than in years past, a great number of the guides, settlers and huntsmen who opposed vehemently the banning of dogs in deer hunting in 1931 have completely reversed their views on the issue, Fred Roy, prominent local hunter, said to-day. Although the ban has been in effect only three years, it has already proved its merits, he said.

Mr. Roy took a trip through the deer district east of Gull Lake Sunday. He saw no deer, but noticed several deer tracks—an encouraging indication in view of the fact that more than one Peterborough hunter beat through the district without even that much luck in recent seasons. He was in conversation with several guides and settlers who confirmed the indications of an increased number of the animals.

"At the time the ban was under consideration for this district, deer were so scarce that it was almost impossible to get them without the use of dogs," Mr. Roy said. "With this in mind, hunters overlooked the possibility that the banning of dogs would remedy the situation in the way it has.

It appears now that there will be enough deer in the district that they can be secured without using dogs and the men are now strongly in favor of the ban.

Mr. Roy said that he, himself, was one of the local men who voiced strong opposition to the ban at the time it was enacted. He said he has now changed his opinion entirely and that he has noted with regret the intention of the new Government to remove it next year.

Before the ban, the dogs which settlers in the deer districts kept for hunting did a great part of the damage, Mr. Roy said. Allowed to run loose, they worried and killed the deer both in and out of season. Wolves, however, were also responsible for extensive destruction of deer in this district but they seem to have moved out during the past year, reported.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyst for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Thomas Rowland,
R. R. No. 2, Hamilton, Ont.

Your handwriting portrays many interesting characteristics. It illustrates an interest in art, perhaps engraving as in show-card writing, or making cards as in advertising.

Your personality is what one might term 'vivacious' because it is so thoroughly lively and entertaining. Your mind is deeply mental, keen and penetrating. You should possess the power to visualize plans for work or play, and do so much more rapidly than most people can; this is an excellent trait and is a merit upon which you may depend in the future.

You are perhaps rather sensitive as regards expressing your views at times, and then you wish that you could have been more bold and outspoken, but it is much better to possess this characteristic than to appear defiant. You may be sometimes afraid of what people will think of you, and this prevents you from speaking your mind 'as it were', but I think that you are very emphatic when you do give way. Sometimes you like things, and very often for no reason at all you change your mind and feel quite sure that you never did like them. That is a characteristic which I find very frequently in handwriting, but after all, life would be most uninteresting without the changeable type of people to liven things up. Wouldn't it?

The main outline as reflected in your signature delineates you as generous, kindly, thoughtful, intelligent and quite inspirational, fond of fun and gifted with a genuine sense of good humor. The downstrokes denote determination and very good will-power. You seem to delight in entering into arguments just for the fun of having an opportunity to use your splendid brain-power, and to express your genuine opinions, which really are very clever.

Your capital letters suggest a certain amount of imagination and romantic tendencies. The uneven shape and size of the smaller letters reveals a propensity to become easily upset over matters of little importance, when really big ones would make you 'fighting mad', but I think you would welcome these spasmodic occurrences as a relief from the every-day grind. You see you do love to fight things out for yourself.

Your governing birthsign is Scorpio, The Scorpion, and this rules people who are born between October 24th and November 22nd. You are ruled by Mars, which creates a fighting spirit. Tuesday should be your most fortunate day. January and July the best months in which to commence important undertakings. Your life mate should be sought under either: Gemini, May 22nd to June 21st; Cancer, June 22nd to July 22nd; Sagittarius, November 23rd to December 22nd; Capricorn, December 23rd to January 20th. Your lucky number is 5.

Audry Lorene Woolley,
North Oshawa, Ont. (R. R. No. 1).

Your handwriting illustrates friendliness and many interesting qualifications. It portrays the fact that if you are hurt through a misunderstanding, you can and do keep your feelings hidden, and by so doing you find a way to work out your own solution to the problem and to look with intelligent saneness on every side of the question. Resourcefulness is really the term for this attribute of yours, and I hope that you will always make the very most of this characteristic from now on, because it is one that cannot be acquired in a lifetime if one is not to the manner born.

Some of your letter formations depict a willingness to lead, but I am rather afraid that nervousness prevents you from doing quite your share in this line. There is a natural artistic tendency portrayed in your writing, which I believe could be developed in time, for you do not seem to be quite old enough or set in your ways yet to determine definitely what you would like to do best of all. I might suggest household science, or commercial art or even just a plain every-day commercial training with a view to stenography later on. Your mind is keen and retentive. You are rather too active physically, and very, very attractive to the opposite sex. However, you are quite sensible and do not demand too much attention from any one. Do you? You are demure as to clothing, but have excellent taste. Colors effect you mentally and care should be exercised not to wear any but those which appeal to your genuine sense of propriety. Your health does not appear to be of the robust type, but can be made much more so, through your study of rules of health and physical culture.

Muriel H. Leslie,
82 Westminster Ave.,
Toronto 3, Ont.

Your handwriting delineates you as lovable, kindly and far too sympathetic for your own good. You are not at all severe, and it would be much better for you if you could let yourself become temperamental some times, especially when it is necessary for you to make some other person perform a task for you, because you seem to have a natural propensity to force yourself to undertake more than your share, many times when you are mentally and physically tired. You work very well under kind supervision, because you have trained yourself to obey commands and also because your hands and brain work in splendid coordination. You think first and with trained mind follow routine or detail to perfection. I might suggest here, that your type make excellent secretaries, because they know how to keep the business affairs to themselves and never divulge a firm's secrets.

Your letters reveal mental energy, and rather good will-power, but your will-power is not of the dominating type at all, though it stands you in good stead as regards work. You seem to be a rather restless person, but this is quite natural, as most mental people are. You are intelligent and very enthusiastic when planning ahead for something, be it work or pleasure. You are quick in manner of speech and in your actions, but I am sure that you are never unkind. Music should create a soothing influence in your life. Soft toned colors should reveal you in all your charming loveliness.

Jennie Marie Grisdale,
152 Dufferin Street, City.

Your handwriting shows that you are a very youthful person, and that your main characteristics are not really formed yet, but you seem to be quite well able to form opinions for yourself even at this early age. You appear to have a habit of comparing things, weighing the pro and con, as it were, because you want to be truly honest in all your dealings. Don't you? Your type as a rule have a very charitable and friendly spirit, and this enables them to make and keep real, worthwhile friends throughout their life.

When you are older, you should experience no difficulty in gaining and holding a position of trust. You see, your mind will then be more mature and more evenly balanced than it is now, and you should have acquired some knowledge through constant study in a definite field for future work. You should then have excellent judgment, be very intuitive and enthusiastic, but would have to guard against impulsiveness which is noted in the forward slant of most of your writing. Some letter formations show nervousness, but this, too, can be overcome when you have learned to stand upon your own feet in the business world. Business (and I want to stress that word), in either line you care to choose, must be well thought out, for it is your goal and must of necessity come before the more carefree and entertaining side of your nature because you will find as you grow older that you will be very attractive to the opposite sex, and if this side predominates, there will be no business career. Your lucky number is seven. You are born under the sign of Libra the Balance. August and December are your most fortunate months. Friday is your best day.

AMATEURS LEAVE CANADIENS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., October 30. — Four amateur hockeyists who have been trying for positions with Montreal Canadiens will leave the professional training camp here to-day and rejoin their amateur clubs, Coach Newsy Lalonde said last night. They are Pete Kelly and Joffre Desilets, Charlottetown Amegweits; Max Bennett, Hamilton Tigers; and Paul Arcand, of the Montreal Canadien amateurs.

The text of Mr. Stevens' reply follows:

Dear Prime Minister,

Your letter dated October 26 accepting my resignation was delivered to me at my home by your special messenger at four-thirty on Saturday afternoon, October 27.

In your letter you seek to establish that in my work as chairman of the "Price Spreads and Mass Buying Committee" I had enjoyed the full support of my colleagues of the Government. This, sir, you know is not true.

From the moment of the organization of the committee following my speech in Toronto of January 15 last, almost daily throughout the long period of the last session I was subjected to irritating criticisms. One day it would be regarding my manner as chairman, the next the treatment of witnesses, particularly that of Stanley McLean of Canada Packers, and of the heads of the Imperial Tobacco.

Then the question of cost was constantly thrown in my face, and through it all from one of our senior members ran the constant refrain of a minor key, "What can you do about it anyway?"

Constant Criticism.

The fact that I refused to be influenced by these mischievous interferences is now advanced by you as evidence that I had had an "absolutely free hand." In the interests of simple truth I must protest your claim in that respect, for, on the contrary, there has been constant criticism emanating almost exclusively from a small minority of the Cabinet who together with yourself, now seise on the "pamphlet" as a culminating excuse for an unwarranted attack on me as chairman of the Commission and as a Minister of the Crown.

You express regret that I did not take the course suggested by you and your colleagues. It is always proper to make amends for any injustice done and none would be more ready to do this than I would be. For me, however, to have acted on your suggestion would have effectively destroyed my usefullness in the task I had set myself, and I would have been false to what I believed to be true and in the public interest. It would have been tantamount to a complete capitulation to those interests whose business practices are in my opinion responsible for untold suffering amongst the agricultural population of this country.

Making the apology you suggested would have been an easy way for me to have retained my seat in the Cabinet, but I prize my liberty of action and my sense of duty to the public of Canada more than the mere retention of office.

It was not this only that caused me to tender my resignation; but rather the intolerable conditions which had developed in connection with my work as chairman of the commisson and as a minister of the Crown.

Deeply Resents Insinuation

I deeply resent your thinly-veiled insinuation that I have been deliberately untruthful. In this respect you base your judgment on representations from one whom you fail to name in your communication, nor have you offered a scintilla of evidence to support your innuendo. In conversation, but not in your letter, you told me that you rest your case on representations made to you in the early part of August last by C. L. Burton, head of the Simpson Company, Limited. You further stated that he had submitted you documentary support for his allegtaions. Would it not have been an act of courtesy to have submitted these documents to me for answer?

Furthermore, you did not speak to me about this matter from Aug. 4 until Thursday afternoon last, which again, I suggest, is a singular course of action to adopt towards a colleague.

Informing People

My public utterances have been made for the purpose of informing the people of Canada of grave social and economic wrongs which, as a result of my study of their causes, I believe were due largely to certain practices indulged in by large merchandizing concerns.

I have under my hand indubitable support for what I have said, but I choose to reserve extended and detailed discussions for the public platform and the floor of Parliament.

As to the propriety of my actions as chairman of the Price Spreads Committee last season I prefer to leave this to the judgment of the public for whose opinion I still entertain great respect. But, sir, why all the reticence about discussing these subjects? As a matter of fact, full account of the evidence had already been exhaustively reported and reviewed in the public press. The front page of every large daily in Canada had from week to week carried the story, and all of this months before the "pamphlet" was ever heard of.

In your letter to me you were good enough to express some words of appreciation of my work as a minister. These words I acknowledge with thanks. But, sir, when you refer in your closing words to "British justice and fair play" I cannot but bring to my mind the countless thousands of citizens of Canada who are patiently suffering while others whom you champion in such eloquent terms have been reaping rewards far beyond that which any citizen might reasonably expect to win. It is for those inarticulate sufferers that I have been striving with the hope that remedial measures might be found.

Yours truly,
(Signed) H. H. Stevens.

WOMAN STORE CLERK OUSTS MASKED BANDIT

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 30.—(C.P.)—Police here were searching today for the youthful bandit Mrs. G. Bruce frightened from her store after he attempted to rob the place.

Entering the store last night with his face hid by a handkerchief, he demanded money. Told she had none he threatened to shoot.

"Go ahead," advised Mrs. Bruce as she dashed around the counter to battle the invader. That caused him to flee and he rushed out the door, grabbing a can of peas on the way.

The storekeeper chased the would-be hold-up artist until he disappeared in a maze of backyards.

UNITED STATES' CHAMPS WILL NOT DEFEND TITLE

DETROIT, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Lack of a sponsor will prevent the White Star Athletic Club of Detroit from defending its United States A.A.U. hockey championship this winter, it developed to-day.

The White Star Club won the 134 title by beating fast skating amateur clubs from Boston, Baltimore and New York. Members of the club may continue to play, but they will not be under the White Star colors. The Stars, after winning the national title, lost to the Moncton Hawks, Canadian Alton Cup champions for the North American amateur championship.

Perfume Cocktail Bars They'll Mix The Scents

CHICAGO—The 'perfume cocktail bar'—something new in the way of supplying feminine wants with individuality in scents—has been installed in several Chicago stores. At these 'bars' Chicago women may have their perfumes mixed according to their own recipes or they may leave the blending to the 'barmaids.' The specially concocted 'perfume cocktail' is designed first of all to achieve a distinctive scent combined with a fleeting, perhaps intoxicating, odor.

CAPTIVE ADMITS ROBBING BANK

Companion Reserves Election on Charge of Bank Looting and Taxi Stealing.

REMANDED WEEK.

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct. 30 (C.P.)—Albert Goodrich, aged 23, has admitted participating in the hold-up of the St. Clement's branch of the Bank of Commerce, pleading guilty to a charge of armed robbery in police court here to-day.

His companion, Alfred Baker, age 47, reserved election on two charges, one of stealing a taxicab and the other of armed robbery of the St. Clement's branch. Both are remanded until Friday for further hearing. The two men were arrested in Montreal last week.

The taxi theft charge against Baker arises from a robbery which occurred near the village of Petersburg some time previous to the St. Clement's Bank holdup. A Hamilton taxi driver was the victim, driving his fare from that city to near Petersburg, where he was forced out of his car at the point of a gun. Two men got $1,750 in the bank robbery at St. Clement's.

BEER REVENUE, ROAD TAX CUT WELL RECEIVED

lieve it will have a tendency to increase the sale of beer and wine." Municipalities in the Sault district are not affected by the government assumption of the 20 percent of road cost because roads there are built by the Department of Northern Development and the Government assumes the full cost, it was pointed out

London Satisfied

Member of London City Council were satisfied with the Government action regarding the beer revenue and lifting of the road impost. While an estimate of the money London would receive was not available, it was believed the city's tax rate might be reduced half a mil or $40,000 annually. Mayor George Wenige declared, "I can only say I am delighted. I think the municipalities are entitled to this relief and I am also of the opinion we should get a share of the gasoline tax, particularly for the use of city-owned cars."

Mayor Sturm of Kitchener thought the municipalities "are finally getting some of the concessions we have advocated for years." He estimated the city would obtain $1,800 from the beer licenses and roughly $2,600 from the 20 per cent exemption from highway costs and maintenance. The mayor declared the government should go further and pay a business tax on the liquor stores, operated by the Ontario Liquor Control Board. He urged this action because, he said, the government's attitude showed it acknowledged the correctness of the principle the municipalities should obtain a share of the revenue.

Means $10,000 to Windsor

Government action in sharing profits from beer and wine sales will mean a revenue increase of between $10,000 and $12,000 to Windsor, Commissioner Clyde Curry said to-day after some rapid calculation. Acting Mayor John Duck, expressing approval of the action, said anything that will take the tax off the land and put it on luxuries was a move in the right direction. Neither Mr. Duck or ex-Mayor F. J. Mitchell had any qualms about accepting the money because of its sources. Mr. Mitchell said "We'll take 50 per cent if we can get it."

Opposition in Toronto

Opposition to the government beer announcement came from Mayor W. J. Stewart of Toronto, who declared "I hold no mandate from the people I represent to become a co-partner in the liquor business with the government." George Ramsden, vice-chairman of the Board of Control, commenting on the lifting of the road tax said, "This relief to the city is most welcome, and I do not want to sound insatiable but I am still not averse to the city receiving some share of the gasoline tax revenue.

City Manager Goddard of Niagara Falls, speaking of the Government assumption of highway costs, said "It is welcome though belated news." He estimated that due to the 20 per cent. share of beer profits and the saving on highway costs the city would enjoy an annual saving of about $4,000.

Millbrook

The Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group were guests at a delightful party on Saturday afternoon when Miss Eleanor Bigelow invited her fellow-members as guests for her thirteenth birthday anniversary. The event took the form of a hike to the pine grove on the Rowland farm, east of the village, where games were played, and all gathered about a big bonfire for a weiner and marshmallow roast, the crowning feature of the tea hour being a birthday cake with tiny silver favors concealed in almost every slice. The young hostess was assisted by Anna Rowland in serving the hungry guests, and much merriment was created when the fortunes of each were told as favors were exhibited, and Eleanor read aloud the significance of keys, rings, thimbles, etc., after the delicious birthday confection had been passed, and generous slices eaten. The hostess for the party received many lovely gifts, and was warmly thanked when, gathering darkness and a growing coldness of atmosphere having compelled departure from the circle of the glowing fire, the guests made their adieus with reiterated wishes for "many happy returns of the day."

Rev. Franklin Bannister, B.D., of Canton, preached in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday at 11 a.m., exchanging pulpits with the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, who took anniversary services at Elizabethville. In an inspiring discourse, based on the text found in Revelation the message to the church at Sardis, "Strengthen the things that remain," the speaker pointed out some of the non-permanent foundations upon which the world has been building and that have brought things to the present crisis: organization, wealth, force and knowledge apart from religion. The things that endure because God is in them were listed and the honoring of these things stressed included the holy Bible, the moral law, and the evangelical church, personal consecration to a living Christ being the final message.

Miss Jean L. Burnham spent the week-end in Peterborough, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burnham.

Miss Gertrude Spence is visiting friends at Toronto and Malton, for the present week or ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham, their daughter, Miss Francis and Mr. and Mrs. Courtenay Graham and little son, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam last week.

Mrs. C. W. Walsh, who has spent the summer with her niece, Mrs. (Rev.) Anson Halpenny, and her nephew, Dr. G. O. Barclay, at their summer homes, Portland, Rideau Lakes, and with her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Walsh, of Montreal, is visiting her nephew and niece, Mr. G. F. and Miss L. Burton, this week.

Miss Friedal Needler, who spent last week with Mr. A. A. and Miss Etta Needler, returned home to Toronto on Saturday.

Mr. M. McDowell, and three daughters, Misses Dorothy, Madeline and Marjorie motored to Goderich for the week-end and visited relatives in that town and vicinity.

Miss Eva Hansman, of Port Hope, visited her sister, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, and Mr. Johnston, last week, and assisted with the music at the anniversary services in St. Andrew's Church, also attending the fowl supper which completed the anniversary occasion.

Miss Francis Jones spent the week-end with her sister, Miss Beatrice, as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hall, and attended the anniversary services of Centreville Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

PREFERS INDIA OF NEW STATUS LIKE CANADA'S

Scholar Says Majority Would be Satisfied With Dominion Self-government.

VISITING IN CANADA.

By Harold J. Fair
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (C.P.).—Tall son of the Punjab, Prof. L. R. Sethi of Dyal Singh College, Lahore, India, in an interview here punctured the future of an India steeped in mediaevalism and veiled in the haunting mystery concocted by popular writers. In its place he substituted one of a huge sub-continent honeycombed with Rotary clubs, accustomed to dial telephones and radio and flooded with American-made motion pictures.

In Canada on a Massey exchange scholarship to pursue post-graduate work at the University of Toronto, he described in perfect English this latter view. He emphasized his contention India is fitted for self-government and desires partnership in the British Commonwealth of Nations as a full-fledged Dominion with a constitution modelled on that of Canada.

Not a politician, he views the Indian situation from the standpoint of the intellectual. Nevertheless he is a fervent Nationalist and on the walls of his room appear pictures of such as Mahatma Gandhi and his disciple, C. F. Andrews.

"An independent India would mean an isolated India," Prof. Sethi declared, adding it was his firm conviction 99 per cent. of the people would be satisfied with Dominion status. He stressed the necessity of continuing the alliance with Great Britain so India could have the benefit of British military protection. Otherwise the hill tribes would pour into the country through the Khyber Pass.

Prof. Sethi has had a close acquaintance with these hill tribes. For seven years he lived in romantic Peshawar with a brother who was an engineer. Once, he recalls, their sleep was rudely broken by the rattle of raiders' musketry on the roof of their bungalow.

Prof. Sethi pointed out the National Congress of India was waging a campaign against the recent White Paper of the British Government, proposing the new constitution for India. "It doesn't give us anything," he declared. The Congress was nominating candidates for the Indian Legislature with the object of defeating the objects of the white paper and securing some other form of constitution.

Gandhi had lost none of his influence with the people, the professor declared. He described a great assemblage to meet the leader as he engaged in prayers at 3.30 o'clock one morning last July.

Prof. Sethi is a member of the reformed Hindu religious sect, whose adherents have a conception of a living Deity as opposed to belief in idols of the orthodox Hindu. The reformed Hindu credits the famed qualities of the sacred waters of the Ganges at Benares to its chemical properties rather than to spiritual origin as held by the orthodox.

A NEW ONE.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 30 (C.P.).—The telephone pole has been substituted for the door knob in that story: how I got my black eye. Policeman James Wilson tells it thus:

"I saw a man who looked suspicious and I chased him down an alley. He got into an auto and then I tried to jump on the running board, my head hit a telephone pole. That's how I got the black eye."

BROCK STREET SUMMER GARDENS

Appropriately Decorated for Hallowe'en Dance and Masquerade.

Whether you are in masquerade or not you will be able to thoroughly enjoy yourself at the Brock Street Summer Gardens to-morrow night, "Hallowe'en." The rink has been very handsomely decorated for the occasion and you are invited to attend as a spectator, a dancer or in masquerade if you desire.

There will be plenty of clean, wholesome fun. There will be free favors, ladies' and gentlemen's door prize of $5.00 each, balloon dances throughout the evening for cash prizes, and the orchestra has prepared a swell program.

Have your Halowe'en fun at the Brock Street Summer Gardens. Admission to all only 10c. Dancing on the biggest and finest floor in Central Ontario only 5c.

The Weather

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (C.P.). — A deep depression, centred over Hudson Bay, covers the northern part of Eastern Canada, while pressure is high over the major portion of the Western provinces and the United States. Light snowfalls have occurred in some districts in Ontario and Quebec, and showers in the Maritime Provinces, while it has been fair in the Lower Lake Region and in the Western provinces. Temperature has been considerably below normal in nearly all parts of the Dominion.

Forecasts:

Lower Lake Region: Moderate to fresh south-west winds; fair to-day and Wednesday, with a little higher temperature.

Georgian Bay: Fresh north-west to south-west winds; partly cloudy to-day and Wednesday, with a little higher temperature; local snow-flurries.

Northern Ontario: Fresh south-west and west winds; partly cloudy and rather cold to-day and Wednesday; local snowflurries.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Moderate to fresh south-west and west winds; fair to-day and Wednesday, with a little higher temperature.

Magistrate's Court

"Well, Your Worship, I had an awfully bad toothache," a local man stated in police court to-day in explaining to Police Magistrate Campbell how he came to be drunk on Simcoe street last night.

"Yes," encouraged the magistrate.

"I went out to the drug store to get something for that toothache. That didn't seem to help, so I decided that perhaps a couple of drinks would kill the pain." the penitent concluded.

He was fined $10 and $3.50 costs or 30 days in jail.

"There are many tempting places in Peterborough and you young men who come here should try to keep away from them for your own good," Magistrate Langley told two Apsley youths who also pleaded guilty to being intoxicated last night on Simcoe street. They were fined $10 and $3.50 costs each or 30 days on the hill with Colonel Johnston

PRANK OF THE SUN.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 30.—(C.P.) — Firemen decided this false alarm was a prank of the sun. Reflections against a wall of the W. F. Kelly home caused residents to turn in an alarm, but when firemen arrived, they discovered it was merely an illusion created by the sun.

THREE-CORNERED TIE.

The following are the scores for the weekly rifle shoot at George Street Shooting Gallery, the prize being a hunting coat donated by Al Sharpe for the best score. A three-cornered tie resulted in some keen competition for first place, W. Dorrington, W. Lackie and M. Pearse scoring 53 points each.

In the shoot-off for first position M. Pearse was adjudged winner of the coat by a small margin. Other scores were: M. Hall, 55; H. E. Dodson and Lloyd Kennedy, 54; A. Hickey and M. Hall, 53; M. Harrison, 52; Ed. Vanette, 51; S. Milligan and B. Harrison, 50; E. Jones and S. Killen, 48; S. Killen, 48; F. W. Ebdon, 43.

The management are giving four special prizes this week.

EXPERT CORSETIERE.

DONATED FERNS.

Members of the Police Department desire to express their thanks to A. Blade and Son for donating the beautiful ferns used in decorating the Canadian Legion Hall for the successful dance held by the policemen on Friday evening.

Y.W. Contribution

It is Peterborough's provision to meet a community need in the lives of your own girls. Money invested in the Y.W.C.A. is community insurance.

It is the ONLY place of wholesome influence and supervised activities open every day and evening in the week to all classes of young women.

The "Y" specializes on the leisure hours of girls. The preventive value alone of the association makes it worthwhile.

The "Y" provides a proper place for girls to meet under Christian leadership. It promotes a character-building program which guarantees strong womanhood and better citizenship.

The "Y" is an investment in girls—and the association has unbounded faith in the girls of to-day if given half a chance. The Youth of Peterborough is worth more than all her buildings, stocks, industries, paved streets, transportation systems and real estate. The Youth of to-day is the Peterborough of tomorrow; therefore it is confidently hoped that there will be a generous response to the appeal being made this week by the Y.W.C.A. in the interests of our girls.

What he does for the community, lives long after he is gone."

SCOTIA FISHING INDUSTRY FIRST ON PROBE LIST

Inquiry Opens To-day Under New Chairman, Maj. W. W. Kennedy.

NEW BRUNSWICK NEXT.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30. (CP).—With the first public sitting of the mass buying royal commission opening to-day, announcement was made witnesses from the Nova Scotia fish industry would be followed by hearing of representatitves of the fish industry in New Brunswick.

When Premier L. P. D. Tilley recently was in Ottawa, the New Brunswick Prime Minister urged everything possible should be done which would bring about the best possible conditions in the fish industry in his native province.

To-day, the Commission announced its selection of the following witnesses from New Brunswick:

Leonard Loggie, Burnt Church; Fletcher Harvey, Grand Manan; Emery Mathews, Campobello Island, Arthur M. Haney, Deer Island; Clarence Thompson, Chance Harbor, and Adalph Hacey, Lanequ.

Under Kennedy

Under the new chairmanship of W. W. Kennedy, (Con., Winnipeg South Centre), succeeding Hon. H. H. Stevens who resigned Friday, the meeting is opening to-day with the taking of evidence of the Nova Scotia fishing representatives. The taking of this testimony is expected to occupy several days.

Early in December is the objective the commission has in mind for concluding its inquiry a continuation of the Parliamentary Committee of last session. Before the investigation is completed further testimony will be submitted relative to flour mills and bakeries, chain stores, agricultural implements, canners and textiles.

Obituary

MRS. ROBERT W. CORMACK.

Word was received in the city at noon to-day of the death in Fort Dodge, Iowa, this morning, of Mrs. Robert W. Cormack. Mrs. Cormack was well known in this city as Mr. Cormack was connected with the Quaker Oats plant here for a number of years.

ALFRED A. LEONARD.

Following a brief illness the death occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday of Alfred A. Leonard of 306 Stewart Street. He was in his 84th year.

A native of this city and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leonard, he was employed for a number of years as a printer on The Examiner staff, retiring some thirty years ago. He was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral congregation, and also the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association.

The funeral is to be held on Wednesday at 9 a.m., with a celebration of requiem mass at St. Peter's Cathedral, followed by interment at St. Peter's Cemetery.

MARSHALL W. SOMERVILLE
(Saint John Times-Journal)

The death of Marshall Whitfield Somerville, father of F. M. Somerville of this city, occurred suddenly at his home in Norton, New Brunswick, on October 21. He was in his 79th year and had spent a lifetime in his community.

He was the last surviving son of Daniel and Adeline Somerville, who came to Norton from Scotland as pioneer settlers. He gained note as a contractor and builder during his long and active life. A Conservative in politics and a Baptist in religion, he was keenly interested in the welfare of the church and community, and had a host of friends.

Besides his wife, Mr. Somerville is survived by three daughters: Mrs. I. Bliss Marr, Mrs. G. Harold Perkins and Mrs. Ernest Folkins, all of Norton; one son, Fred, in Peterborough; and two sisters, Mrs. C. M. Morrell, West Somerville, Mass., and Mrs. W. H. Holman, Sussex. A nephew, Daniel, is a member of the British Parliament.

Among a wealth of floral tributes at the funeral was a tribute from the Foreman's Association of the Canadian General Electric Company of Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Somerville of Peterborough attended in company with many others from outside points. Interment was made in the Norton Cemetery following services at the deceased's home and church.

ACTOR HONORED

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 30 (CP)—Richard E. Harrison, "De Lawd" in Green Pastures, London's most famous actor son, was honored by London to-day, when the freedom of the city was conferred upon him by Mayor George Wenige. The ceremony took place at a luncheon given by the Rotary Club.

One of two brothers of Basutoland, South Africa, is ebony black, and the other is an albino with her hair.

Full Night of Fun Assured For All Attending Kinsmen Hallowe'en Effort

Hallowe'en is a few hours ahead, and with it the big Kinsmen Club masquerade and carnival, to be held at the Armouries tomorrow night.

To young and old Hallowe'en has long been an occasion for unrestrained fun and jollity, and to-morrow night's big masquerade under the auspices of the Kinsmen, promises to provide an outlet for unlimited expression of the spirit of revelry.

Entertainment has been provided for all, and an attractive prize list is announced for the best fancy and comic costumes, which should be a means of attracting a large number of entries. There is also a cash door prize being offered, while the program includes a fashion show to be staged by the Canadian Department Stores, and also boxing and wrestling bouts and a clog dancing contest.

The entire effort is for a worthy cause: that of raising funds for the Kinsmen service work program, which takes the form of an eye clinic for underprivileged children.

Arrangements for the event have been proceeding for the past three weeks and the general committee under chairmanship of Bob Stanley, has put in some real spad e work. Needless to say, public support is the one remaining essential to success, and in soliciting the generous help of the public, the club president C. Alex Sollitt and his co-workers promise a real measure of Hallowe'en fun and frivolity to all who join the gang at the Armouries.

DENIES HITLER FATHER NAZIISM

Fischer, Leader of Swiss Group, Claims He Started Movement.

ANTI-JEWISH.

(By Joseph E. Sharkey.)

BERNE, Switzerland, October 30 (A.P.). — Theodore Fischer, burly leader of Switzerland's little band of Nazis, said to-day that he, and not Adolf Hitler, is the Father of Nazism.

Fischer, a Swiss-German, asserted he started his Union of National Socialist Confederates of Switzerland before Hitler began a similar drive in Germany.

He is a defence attorney and dominating personality in the Jewish Protocol trial here, in which Jewry seeks to prove the falsity of documents alleging it planned to rule the world.

Swiss Nazis do not say "Heil Fischer" when they meet their chief. Instead, they say "Heil Rutli." That salute, Fischer explained, symbolized the Union of Forest Cantons in 1291 Rutli.

"We Swiss Nazis are few, but we sit in the seats of the mighty," Fischer continued.

"We are essentially anti-Jewish, not because of Jewish culture or Jewish religion, but because we object to the Jewish race. We are pro-Christian and pro-Ary, and for dividing property among people who really work in proportion to their activities.

"We should not have only one Fuehrer (leader) because Switzerland has three races. Germans Italians, and French, but we might have three. We have a positive program and we shall grow stronger creating daily a new and more vigorous Switzerland based on the doctrine of Nazism."

Funeral on Friday at 8.45 a.m. to the Church of the Sacred Heart for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment at St. Peter's Cemetery

LEAHY.—In Douro Township on Monday, October 30, 1934, Michael Leahy.

Funeral from his late residence Lot 4, Concession 8, on Wednesday morning to St. Joseph's Church for celebration of Requiem Mass. Interment at St. Joseph's Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

PAYNE—In loving memory of Mrs. E. Payne, who died Oct. 30, 1931.
Thou loving wife and mother dear
Thou suffered much when thou wert here;
We hope to see thee free from pain,
When Christ shall raise thee up again.
—Ever remembered by husband and daughter Gladys.

IN MEMORIAM

PAYNE.—In loving memory of Mrs. E. Payne, who departed this life Oct. 30, 1931.
In sorrow we waited day by day
And watched her suffering there;
Slowly but surely passing away
From the pain she scarce could bear.
And then God called from His throne above,
Her suffering and pain is past;
We know she has gone to realms of love
And in Heaven has peace at last.
—Ever remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Austin Payne.

Weddings

LEVINE—ROGOW

Eckler's Blue Room in Toronto was the scene of the wedding at half past two o'clock on Sunday afternoon, of Adeline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Rogow, George street, and Mr. Myer Levine, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Levine of Wolfe street. The Rev. Rabbi Sachs officiated.

Attendants were Miss Sadie Levine, sister of the bridegroom, and Mr. A. A. Rogow, the bride's uncle.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white velvet, made on long princess lines with a cowl collar fastened at one side with a brilliant clip. The long sleeves were trimmed with buttons to the elbow and the long train had a tie back.

A hat of white velvet and net was worn with a face veil that fell to the shoulders. White silk sandals with flesh-colored hose, white kid gloves and a white velvet bag, with a bouquet of red roses and lily of the valley, showered with white ribbons, completed the bride's costume.

Miss Levine was in a jacket frock of cerise velvet, with matching slippers and hair bandeau. Her bouquet was of yellow roses.

The wedding march was played by Miss Ruth Black.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held, attended by about seventy-five guests, thirty of whom were from Peterborough.

The wedding party was assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Rogow wore a long black velvet gown with short jacket, and Mrs. Levine was in black crepe, trimmed with velvet. Both wore corsage bouquets of pink roses.

Mr. Levine and his bride left later for a trip to Buffalo, New York and Montreal. They will live at 220 Wolfe street, on their return.

The bride's travelling costume was a navy blue tunic dress trimmed with fur, a matching "off-the-face" hat, a navy coat with wolf collar and little muff of the same material as the coat, a pair of navy suede pin-tucked shoes and navy bag and gloves.

Suspect Tame Bear As Sheep Killer

LINDSAY, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Mysterious sheep killings in Fenelon, Somerville and Verulem townships are causing farmers of this district considerable alarm. Many sheep have been killed in various flocks recently and another five were killed by the mysterious marauder who attacked the flock belonging to Neil Reids, Fenelon Township last night.

While wolves and dogs are receiving consideration as being the guilty parties, the majority are of the belief that the killer is a tame bear who escaped from the custody of E. Graham, A. Baddow farmer, a short time ago.

TURNKEY ON EVE OF RETIREMENT

Robert Rae, Veteran County Official, Succeeded by Norwood Man.

50 YEARS' SERVICE.

Robert Rae, oldest official in the county in point of service, is scout to be retired.

On completion of his rounds tomorrow night as turnkey at the County Gaol, he will terminate a period of over fifty years of honorable service.

He has served under two gaolers, having been appointed in the year 1884 under the late Henderson Nesbitt, and completing his service under Colonel T. D. Johnston

His successor, appointed by the Provincial Secretary, is Gordon Ford Fry, 25, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fry of Norwood. He will assume his duties as turnkey on Thursday morning after first subscribing to the formal oath of office.

While the appointment carries with it a salary of $720 per annum, with free house, fuel, and uniform, it is learned from an official source that the salary of the new turnkey will be subject to the approval of the County Council, who will have the matter of the appointment as one of the items on the agenda at the November sessions.

It is considered likely that the forthcoming meeting of the Council will also provide the occasion for official recognition of Mr. Rae's long record of service to the county.

It was shortly after Mr. Rae was appointed fifty years ago, that he was married, and for a long period his late wife also served the county in an official capacity as matron at the gaol. While a brief period will elapse between Mr. Rae's retirement, before he is prepared to vacate his quarters in the County Buildings, which he has known as home for half a century, it is anticipated that he will have completed his personal arrangements in time for his successor to move his wife and family in by the first week of December.

Norwood Auxiliary Meets In Clark Home

The monthly meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the Norwood United Church was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Edgar E. Clark. The meeting opened by the singing of a hymn and Mrs. Pakenham led in prayer. Business was discussed and the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. R. Gardner, followed by the devotional leaflet by Mrs. John McConnell. Mrs. Renaud favored with a vocal solo. The two chapters of the study book were taken by Miss L. Starke and Miss M. Williams. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Clark, and the Mizpah benediction was repeated in unison. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and a social hour spent.

BOYS FAKE RIVER RESCUE TO AVOID "HOOKEY" SEQUEL

"Hero" Gets Medal and Job —Take Steps to "Unfrock" Him

CONSCIENCE WINS

London.—Four Barnes schoolboys who took part in a dramatic Thames "rescue" have confessed that they faked it to avoid punishment for playing truant.

Fourteen-year-old John Burns, who—so all the boys declared—had bravely saved one of them, George Taylor, from deep water, received a medal of honor in public from the mayor.

An application was made on his behalf for a Royal Humane Society award, and an admiring school manager secured John a job when he left at the end of the summer term.

Recently another presentation was to have been made to him, by the mayor of Hammersmith. This was cancelled at the last moment. Now steps are being taken to "unfrock" the hero.

On the sunny afternoon of July 10 a mathematics examination was to be held at the boys' school. They threw away dull care and plunged into the river. Then the plot was hatched to avoid a "row."

The boys dressed, and George Taylor fell in the water. Two of his friends waded up to their waists to reach the "drowning" boy. John Burns, a strong swimmer, jumped in fully clothed and brought George to the shore.

Then they all went to John's home, and told of the "rescue." But at school next day they seem to have decided that their alibi was not good enough, or perhaps it was not credited, for arrangements were made for their suitable punishment.

Mrs. Burns intervened, however, and explained about the "rescue," and the wrath of the school authorities turned to kind words and congratulations.

Now conscience has prevailed, and George has owned up.

EXCAVATIONS REVEAL COFFIN 7 FEET LONG

Find Remains of Giant Among 800 Bodies, on Bank Site

London.—During the excavations for the rebuilding of the Bank of England remains of about 800 buried people were found.

This is revealed in the report of the medical officer of health. The bodies have been reinterred at Nunhead cemetery.

Most of the bodies were found at the site of the old churchyard of St. Christopher-le-Stock, it is reported.

"It is probable that most of them were victims of the Great Plague of 1665," an official said. "There was also found the body of Jenkins, the Bank of England giant, who died about 1750 and was interred in the bank premises to prevent body snatchers stealing the corpse. His coffin, made of lead, and weighing 335 pounds, was over 7 feet long."

PEER'S WIDOW ANGRY WHEN TITLE NOT USED

Lady Randall Dislikes Being Referred to as "She"

Wellingborough.—Lady Randall, of Wilby Castle, who sought an injunction at county court, insisted that she should be referred to by her title and not as "she."

Lady Randall, widow of Sir Henry Randall, Northampton boot manufacturer, sought the injunction against Thomas C. Gillitt, farmer, of Wilby, in respect to the use of certain land.

Gillitt stated that in a letter from Lady Randall he was told he could not use a private road after a certain date.

J. H. Johnson (for Gillitt): For what purpose did she use the road?

Lady Randall: Who are you calling 'she'? I won't be called "she."

Several times Lady Randall interrupted Gillitt's evidence. Eventually Judge Haydon remarked: "I don't suppose it is much use asking you to remain silent."

Judgment was given for Gillitt, with costs.

PLANS SAVING "CLUBS"

"New Adventure" Will Ensure Safety, Is Claim

Stoke-on-Trent.—Lord Mottistone, chairman of the national savings committee, speaking at the West Midland regional savings conference, referred to one of the committee's "new adventures"—the scheme for national saving clubs, to be launched next month.

The object of the formation of these clubs, said Lord Mottistone, was to place the management of share-out clubs on a really sound basis.

"We believe that the great national savings institutions can supply a scheme which will combine all the simplicity and easy working of an ordinary share-out club with an added security. There will be little change in the general method of procedure, but there will be far more safety," he said.

ABOLISH BULLY BEEF

Soldiers To Get "Food Reform" Emergency Ration Instead

London.—After months of experiment and research, the war office has decided to abolish the iron ration of bully beef and biscuits issued to soldiers in favor of a "food reform" emergency ration, composed as follows: An 8-ounce cake made of pure cocoa, cocoa-butter, milk, proteins and sugar, contained in an airtight tin, 3½ inches by 3¼ inches by 1 inch. This will sustain life for 48 hours, the war office states.

ONE-CENT STAMP WORTH $50,000?

Refuse $35,000 for British Guiana Issue of 1856

London.—A man is touring the capitals of Europe with a halfpenny stamp in his pocket. He expects to sell it for $50,000.

The stamp is the one-cent magenta British Guiana stamp of 1856, part of the collection once owned by the late Arthur Hind, a millionaire plush manufacturer.

The number of people who could and would buy the one-cent magenta is limited to about six. Already $35,000—the price Mr. Hind paid for it—has been refused.

Now Mrs. Pascal Costa Scala, Mr. Hind's widow, has instructed her European agent to sell it.

VAST INDIAN ESTATES MAY BE WHITE GIRL'S

Native Custom Does Not Allow Widow to Attend Funeral

Torquay.—A twenty-five-year-old Devonshire girl may be heiress to vast estates in Hyderabad, India.

She was Miss Gwendoline Reed, daughter of a Torquay farmer. She married the Nawab little more than a year ago.

Her five-months-old baby son was to have started with his nurse for India, the Nawab and his wife having planned to follow overland in a week or so.

The young widow waited outside the Mohammedan mosque at Woking, where the funeral service was being held for her husband. No women are allowed to enter a mosque.

Now she will sail for India shortly to visit the state where her husband was to have been ruler.

The Begum will not know what part of her husband's vast property she inherits until she visits Hyderabad, where she will meet her mother-in-law.

Her one-time nurse, who has lived with her since babyhood, told the story of her charge's romance and its tragic ending.

"They were like lovers in a fairy tale. I do not think she ever thought about his worldly possessions at all," she said. "When they were married no one realized that he was like a prince in his own country. At present her grief has simply stunned her. I think she found it tragic not to be able to see the burial service. They were never apart, and throughout Torquay and Paignton were known as an ideally happy couple."

RETAIN "CROONING" VICAR

Cleric Who Demonstrated New Dance Step Not Resigning

Walkhampton.—Rev. E. J. Pizey, the "crooning vicar," has withdrawn his resignation.

He handed it in two months ago for financial reasons. It was not accepted.

In a letter to the Bishop of Exeter, he writes: "The patron of the living has assured me that he is not against me . . . The financial difficulty can be overcome by permission for me to let the vicarage, or for arrangements to be made to sell it and to build a smaller house."

Mr. Pizey earned his title of "crooning vicar" by acting as vocalist to a dance band. He composed dance music, and recently demonstrated the Walkhampton Rhythm, a new step.

5,000 MEN GET WORK AS INDUSTRY BOOMS

Steel, Oil and Hide Plants Call in Unemployed Help

London.—October started cheerfully for thousands of unemployed in many parts of the British Isles.

Announcements of new manufacturing plants to be put into operation have been made so frequently during the past two or three days that a mere compilation would read like a stores catalogue.

The more important include the completion of a new acid Bessemer steel plant by the United Steel Companies, Ltd., at Workington, Cumberland.

This is the only plant of its kind in Great Britain, and has a capacity of 7,000 tons of steel ingots a week.

Dorman Long are to reline one of their blast furnaces at Warrenby, Yorkshire. It is hoped to have the furnace in action before the end of the year.

State improvement schemes providing work for 1,000 men will begin in the Isle of Man at the end of this month.

A new oil refinery is to be established, at a cost of $1,350,000, on the Lincolnshire bank of the Humber.

A Danish firm has bought and will soon reopen the extensive Earlfield Tanneries, Grantham, Lincs., which have been closed for some time.

These schemes will provide work for more than 5,000 men.

The post office authorities, confident that they are on a rising wave of telephone prosperity, have decided to spend another $30,000,000 on one improvement alone.

They have begun work on a new underground cable between London and Glasgow which will give direct employment to several thousand men, and provide work for thousands more in the industry.

MODERN FIRE HALL TO HAVE TEN EXITS

Location on Thames Permits Land and Water Protection

London.—The new fire brigade headquarters are to be the most modern in the world and will have ten exits.

Excavations already have been begun on the site at Albert Embankment, facing Thames House, Millbank, and the new building will establish a notable landmark on the Lambeth side of the river.

The land is a part of the extensive premises of Doulton and Co., Ltd., the Royal Doulton Potteries, and has been lying vacant since the transfer of the firm's pipeworks, a portion of their pottery making business, to Erith.

Before the plans of the new building were drawn up, L.C.C. officials and leading officers of the brigade visited the continent and saw the new fire station in Paris and the brigade headquarters in Berlin.

The new headquarters will be so built that they will form the hub of a wheel from which ten spokes emerge, thuns making a series of ten "run-outs."

The site will also enable the new station to be used as the headquarters of the river sections of the brigade, and a dock is to be built to accommodate fire-floats when required.

BABE STRANGLES IN COT

Coventry. — An eighteen-month-old baby, Audrey Edwards, was killed by getting her head caught between the bars of her cot in Coventry hospital. Her neck was broken. The coroner returned a verdict of "accidental death." He added: "No blame rests on the nurses in charge of the ward. Three nurses had to look after thirty-six children."

"SIR TRISTRAM" AWAITS THE JUDGES

"Bring on your judges, I await their decision"—or words to that effect—growls this bulldog, none too pleased at having to attend the Kennel Club show at the Crystal Palace. "Sir Tristram," to give him his official title, is owned by Mrs. Surtes Monkland of Greengate, Datchet, England.

BRITAIN'S WORKLESS FEWER THAN ANY TIME SINCE 1929

Unemployed Is Reduced by 255,000—Basic Industries Busier

INSURED RANKS UP

London.—There are more people in employment in Great Britain now than at any time since the boom period of early 1929, and unemployment returns issued by the ministry of labor show that on Sept. 24 there were 10,233,000 insured people in work in the British Isles.

This was 63,000 more than a month earlier, and 352,000 more than a year ago.

The unemployed number 2,081,987, which is 54,591 fewer than in August, and nearly 255,000 less than in September, 1933.

Good features of the latest returns are that the greatest declines in unemployment are shown by important basic industries, and in areas most badly hit by the depression.

There are more than 48,000 fewer unemployed coal-miners than a month ago. Other industries with fewer unemployed than a month ago are woollen and worsted, boot and shoe, cotton, pottery, iron and steel, and hosiery.

There is a seasonal drop in unemployment in the distributive trades, hotel and boarding house services, and building.

Best returns come from the Midlands, with 34,313 fewer unemployed; the northeastern district, with 31,000 down; the northwestern, with 9,388 down, and Wales with 4,722 down.

SHELFISH CATCH INCREASES

Ottawa—Figures for the first seven months of 1934 indicate a million-dollar increase in the landed value of Canada's catch of shellfish as compared with the corresponding period of 1933.

FREAK CALF TWINS

Fort Collins, Colo.—Twin calves were born on the George Nelson ranch near here three days apart, the owner said. One was born on Sunday, the other on the following Wednesday.

LANDSLIDE ENDS HUNT AS STAG, DOGS KILLED

Dulverton.—A stag, at bay on the edge of a 120-foot cliff on the Border of Devon and Somerset, was, with eight hounds which had cornered it, dashed to death on the rocks below when a landslide took place.

The accident followed an exciting chase in which the stag took to the cliffs on this wild part of the coast and stood at bay at the edge.

MAN SWALLOWS NAILS 'JUST LIKE A MAGPIE'

Doctors Remove Pound of Hardware From Patient's Stomach

Birmingham — A middle-aged man, a hospital patient, complained that he felt a slight pain. He was X-rayed, then operated upon. The surgeon removed from inside him: Twenty-three iron screws and nails (assorted sizes), half a dozen tintacks, two zinc washers, a few iron staples, the top of a metal container, and five odd pieces of metal. Altogether they weighed more than a pound.

Said this human "ostrich" to the hospital officials later: "I started about three months ago. I was just like a magpie. Anything bright and glittering fascinated me. The iron screws had a clean, satisfying taste, and somehow I developed a habit of sucking and swallowing them."

The patient is making an excellent recovery.

CHIEF WELL COVERED

Leicester.—Two enormous umbrellas, each standing 14 ft. high and measuring 12 ft. across, have just been made in Leicester for Akenzua II., Oba or Chief of Benin, Nigeria. The umbrellas are adorned with the name and titles of the chieftain in large gold letters around the edge.

MILLION-DOLLAR WILL SUBJECT OF DISPUTE

Former Ambassador and a Retired Admiral Are Executors

Uckfield.—A former British ambassador and a retired admiral are concerned as executors in litigation over the will of a relative who left nearly $5,000,000.

They are Sir Barry Domvile, at one time director of the naval intelligence division of the admiralty war staff, and afterwards president of the Royal Naval College at Greenwich, and Sir Ronald Macleay, who was ambassador to the Argentine until last year.

The will in dispute is that of Arthur Gilstrap Soames of Sheffield Park, Uckfield, an uncle of Lady Baden-Powell, who died last July, aged 80.

It has been announced that letters of administration have been granted to Sir Barry Domvile, the person appointed to administer the estate "pending the action of Macleay and Another v. Soames in the high court concerning the validity of the will."

Sir Ronald Macleay, who is a plaintiff in this action, married a daughter of Sir Robert Peel, the third baronet. Mr. Soames was married to her sister.

Lady Macleay's daughter, by a first marriage, is the wife of Sir Barry Domvile.

"Sir Ronald Macleay and I were appointed executors in the last will executed by Mr. Soames," Sir Barry Domvile said. "A nephew, Captain Arthur Soames, in contesting the validity of that will, and a caveat has been entered."

Proceedings have been started by Sir Ronald Macleay with the object of having the caveat removed.

HOPES TO DETECT UNDERSEA CRAFT

Will Test Device After 16 Years at Task

Swansea.—H. Grindell-Matthews, world-famous as "Death-Ray" Matthews, intends to carry out preliminary tests in the waters of Langland bay with one of his latest inventions, a device for detecting under-sea craft.

His object is mainly to discover the amount of electrical energy required over a given distance for the work which is to be accomplished.

He said that as soon as the preliminary experiments were over arrangements would be made for further tests of the invention at Milford Haven, Portsmouth, Harwich, or some other suitable place.

He had been experimenting with a device for the detection of under-sea craft since 1916 and believed that he had succeeded.

"The war gave me the idea," he explained, "and I started work on a detector in 1916. It is only lately that I have returned to my idea, and I did so because I want to see England once more invulnerable."

VICAR CENSURES GIRL SUNBATHING ON TOMB

Benfleet.—A girl in a smart bathing costume was seen sunbathing on a tombstone in the parish churchyard.

The vicar, Rev. Ralph Gardiner, censures her sharply in his parish magazine.

He declares that she was "certainly not overburdened with a sense of the fitness of things."

CALL OFF BAILIFFS

Official Tells Farmer "Terrible Mistake" Made

Hothfield.—While R. M. Kedward, president of the National Tithepayers' association, was in London, bailiffs entered his house and impounded a grandfather clock for tithe.

The next day a court official told Mr. Kedward that a "terrible mistake" had been made and the men were withdrawn.

"LOST" GIPSY BABY FOUND NOW PARENTS ARE MISSING

"Give Me a Penny, Bring You Luck," Lisps Child

TRY BEGGING CURE

Dorchester.—The astonishing adventures of little Margaret Miller, the lost baby for whom her parents had searched for nine months, have taken a curious turn.

Margaret was found in a gipsy encampment. But now her parents are lost: apparently they are still tramping the country looking for her, and nobody knows where they are.

Margaret is in the public assistance institution in Sturminster Newton, and she has been formally adopted by the committee. When her father and mother come to claim her they will not be able to take her away until magistrates have given them permission to do so.

A flaxen-haired child with blue eyes, Margaret was hugging a doll when she came into the master's room to see a reporter. She was not shy. With her was an eight-year-old chum, Peggy, who has mothered her since she came to the institution.

"Give me a penny—bring you luck," she lisped in gipsy fashion, putting out a chubby hand when greeted.

"We are trying to cure her of the begging habits she has picked up on the roads," said Mr. Thomas, the master.

Suddenly Margaret broke in. "I am Romany tawnie, not gorgio," she said, meaning that she was certain she was really a gipsy lass.

EMPLOYEES TEARFUL SERVING AS JURORS

"Curse" Dogs Family of Marquis of Waterford, Found Shot

Waterford, Ireland.—A verdict of "accidental death" was returned at the inquest on the Marquis of Waterford, who was found shot at his Irish home in the early morning.

Six employees on the estate formed the jury. They sat in the steward's room at Curraghmore House, Portlaw, Co. Waterford, the marquis' seat, and wept as his servants told of the tragedy.

Ill-fortune, traditionally ascribed to an ancient curse, has dogged the family.

Henry, the third marquis, died in the hunting field of a broken neck.

The late peer was tall, stalwart, and athletic. He carried on the tradition of the family on the hunting field, and was an able cricketer, footballer and boxer.

He was devoted to country life. Moonlight had a peculiar influence on him. He liked to walk abroad in it, alone. He habitually rose early—almost with dawn itself.

BEAT GLIDING RECORD BY OVER FOUR HOURS

Thirsk.—A new British duration gliding record has been set up by E. Weymouth post-office telephone inspector, J. Laver, who was in the air at Sutton Bank, near Thirsk, for 12 hours, 20 minutes, 48 seconds.

He accomplished this in spite of the fact that he was using a three-year-old machine — the Dorset Club's Dorsling sail-plane.

The previous record was held by Flying Officer E. L. Mole for a flight of 8 hours 8 minutes.

Mr. Laver was catapulted into the air at 7.39 a.m. and landed a little after eight o'clock at night.

THIEVES TAKE WATCH GIFT BY LORD NELSON

Timepiece Was Presented to Admiral Martin

Eastleigh.—A gold hunter watch, given in 1797 by Lord Nelson to Admiral Martin after the battle of Cape St. Vincent, is among the articles of sentimental value stolen during the week-end from the residence of Miss May Rowley at Homesland House, Botley.

Although the burglars, who entered the house by means of a ladder taken from a potting shed, ransacked upper and lower rooms, and ate a substantial meal of cold duck, cheese and biscuits, they did not disturb the servants who were asleep in another wing.

POLICE ARREST MAN ON HIS WEDDING MORN

Charges Halt Plans for Marriage After Invitations Sent Out

Portsmouth—The arrest of a prospective bridegroom on the morning of the proposed wedding had a sequel at police court when Kenneth Cooper, aged 30, married, of Southsea, was sent for trial.

He was accused of bigamously marrying Florence Maud Lee at Southampton register office obtaining $25 by false pretences from a Southsea woman, attempting suicide in a Portsmouth police cell by opening a varicose vein, and obtaining relations with a young woman by false pretences.

In the case last named the prosecutrix, aged 22, was the daughter of the woman complainant in the false pretences charge. She said that Cooper told her he was single, and later promised to marry her.

Arrangements were made for the wedding at the parish church and he went with her and her mother to London to buy a wedding dress.

On the morning of the wedding she received a letter from him asking her to go to Fratton Station to say good-by to him, as he wished to cancel everything.

She communicated with the police, kept the appointment, and he was arrested. Cooper pleaded guilty to all the charges except that of attempting suicide.

MEDICINE MAN KNEW RICHES AND POVERTY

Claim "Sequah" Made Fortune Pulling Teeth

Southampton. — "Sequah," the great medicine man of 40 or 50 years ago, is dead. He was 93 years of age, and poor.

His real name was Hannaway Rowe. In 1916 his death was reported, but he wrote to the papers declaring himself to be very much alive.

When Sequah was in his prime, travelling the world dressed as a red Indian, with his brass band and retinue of cowboys and "braves," he is said to have made a large fortune.

It is claimed Sequah extracted teeth in public while the band played loudly—and that made the crowd think the operation was painless.

6 BROTHERS REUNITED AT TOTAL AGE OF 446

Coalville.—In an old cottage, off the beaten track at the village of Limby Hall, near here, six old brothers sat down and talked, and talked . . . .

And well they might. The youngest is a nimble 64—together their ages total 446 years—and they were together for the first time since their youth.

They live in different parts of the country and had travelled many miles for this reunion. It will probably be their last.

They had a few short hours together, and then all except the brother who lives in the cottage left for their own homes.

They are the brothers Hall — George (aged 82), Albert (79), John (77), James (73), Frank (71), and Joseph (64).

HUNTS SPIDERS FOR LIVING

Use Insects' Web in Scientific Instruments

London.—There is a man in London who catches spiders for a living.

Not rare or dangerous spiders, but the common variety whose web can be seen on any hedge or bush.

Who buys the spiders?

Men who use the insects' threads for marking the diaphragm sightlines on scientific instruments of precision.

The female spider is kept in captivity for three or four days. Then she is allowed to escape.

Letting out her thread, she attempts to lower herself to the ground. As quickly as she spins a workman winds the thread, in single strands, on a delicate wire frame.

PADRE DROWNS

Porthcawl—Captain the Rev. John Francis Jones of Mountain Ash, padre of the 6th Welsh Regiment in camp with the 160th Welsh Infantry Brigade, was drowned at Golf Bay, Porthcawl. He was bathing at low water with Captains Simmons and Martin and Dr. Bowen Rees.

RAID BRITISHER'S FARM AFTER NATIVE ARRESTED

Believe White Man Victim Of Ritual Attack

SKULL AS CHARM

Nairobi.—Settlers in the Laikipia district of Kenya have been thrown into a state of anxiety by a ritual spear-blooding attack by Samburu natives.

Reports reached Nairobi of a raid carried out by the Samburu warriors, who came across from the partly administered territory which they inhabit. They attacked the farm of an Englishman named Wallace, where a similar raid was made two years ago.

On this occasion a Kikuyu cattleherd was speared and badly mutilated before some of his companions made a counter-attack and after a lively affray drove off the raiders, one of whom was severely hurt in making his escape.

The raid follows the arrest of a Samburu warrior on a charge of being concerned in the death of a young Englishman, Theodore Cowper Powys, in October, 1931. Mr. Powys was at first thought to have been mauled by a lion, but since then the theory has grown that he was the victim of a ritual murder by natives who wished to have his skull for their ritual dances.

Mr. Powys, who was the manager of Lady Eleanor Cole's farm at Laikipia, went out one morning during a period of drought to search for grazing.

A few hours later his pony returned minus its rider. Following a search by settlers, police, and natives, aided by an aeroplane, portions of Mr. Powys' body were found, but the head was missing.

Inquiries suggested that Mr. Powys had been dragged from his pony by a lion, but many settlers continued to maintain that the circumstances were completely inconsistent with attack by a lion. For instance, the pony showed no signs of distress and no claw marks of the lion.

Rumors arose periodically that Mr. Powys had been murdered by Samburu tribesmen in connection with their spear-blooding ritual ceremony.

Last year the authorities were disturbed by a number of brutal murders in the Samburu area, the victims being Kikuyu tribesmen. Ten Samburu tribesmen were charged with murders all connected with spear-blooding.

While the police were inquiring into these crimes they heard statements to the effect that it was common knowledge among the Samburu natives that Mr. Powys was murdered. The murder was the theme of a popular song sung at ritual dances extolling the daring of the murderers, and referring to the fact that the skull was taken back to the tribe by the criminals and regarded as a potent charm.

Warrants have been issued against four other natives.

JOURNEY 60,000 MILES IN 9-YEAR HONEYMOON

Calcutta. — After being on the road for nine years and travelling more than 60,000 miles, a German couple, Herr F. Hecker and his wife have arrived on their way home to Munich.

They left Germany in August, 1925 — almost immediately after their marriage—and travelled on foot through Belgium, France, Spain, Austria, Italy, Greece, Bulgaria, Turkey, Syria, and Irak. In Baghdad they were presented with two bicycles.

On these they rode to India and reached Calcutta in July 1930. From Calcutta they went on to Burma, Siam, Malaya, China, Japan, and the Philippine Islands.

Now they are back in Calcutta, and intend to make their way home to Germany. Their route will be through Northern India, Arabia, Africa, and so to Europe. They hope to reach Munich in 1937.

As a memento of their tour, they have a magnificent Alastian dog, which was given to them in China. It is their constant companion.

CHILD, 3, KILLS MOTHER

Salt Lake City.—Tiny fingers that clutched a strange object beneath Mrs. Clarence L. Merrill's pillow sent a bullet through her heart. Mrs. Merrill, 21, wife of a special policeman, kissed her son, Douglas, three, as she lay on her bed. The child's hands closed on a revolver she kept for protection during her husband's absence and unwittingly pulled the trigger. An emergency operation failed to save her life.

YELLOW FEVER BEATEN?

Paris.—Research work by an American, Dr. Sellard, and a French scientist, Dr. Laigret, of the Pasteur Institute at Tunis, has resulted in the discovery of a serum which, it is claimed, confers absolute immunity from yellow fever, the dread tropical disease.

REPLACE TOOTING HORN WITH A FLASHING LAMP

Authority Claims Autoists Cannot Help But Break 154 Rules

Brussels.—Belgium has inaugurated a "silence zone" from midnight to sunrise, when motorists must flash their lamps as a warning instead of using their horn.

A competent authority has stated that if the police carry out their instructions firmly—and to do so they must memorize the 154 articles of the code—no motorist will be able to travel on the road without committing some offence.

Here are some of the things which drivers of vehicles must, or must not, do.

Street refuges and moving tramway cars must be passed on the right (all traffic runs on the right here); a vehicle being overtaken must not accelerate; and two vehicles running parallel must not be overtaken.

The speed for going over level crossings is not to exceed 9½ m.p.h., and over mobile bridges 3 m.p.h.

Vehicles must not be left stationary before places of amusement, schools, public parks, and carriage entrances to buildings.

Vehicles may not be left standing within 30 feet of a tramway, omnibus or light railway stop, or in any position likely to prevent the free movement of any other vehicle, nor within 15 feet of the cornerstone of a building standing at a turning.

Pedal bicycles will have to carry a back red light, and, among the many regulations dealing with the lighting of motor vehicles, one stipulates that the rear number plate must be so illuminated as to make it visible at a distance of 65 feet.

JAPANESE MUST NOT MARRY SCOTTISH GIRL

Diplomat Takes Fiancee to Native Land, Without Avail

Tokio. — The Japanese foreign minister, M. Hirota, has personally forbidden the marriage of Toshio Katsube, the young attache from the Japanese embassy in London, to Miss Lillias Green, Scottish singer.

"The foreign office does not desire its members to marry foreign women," M. Hirota says.

"Some time ago," he adds, "a member of a Japanese legation in a certain country committed suicide when it was revealed that his foreign wife was an enemy spy."

Failing in London to obtain the consent of his family to his engagement, Mr. Katsube sailed for Japan to try to win his mother's approval.

Miss Green accompanied him from England, registering at a hotel in Tokio. After the foreign office ban had been announced, she left the hotel, leaving no address.

AGED MAN WALKS FAR

Amsterdam. — A 73-year-old Dutchman has walked to Rome to see the pope and back to his native village, Tegelen, in the south of Holland. He took 82 days to walk the 1,366 miles there and stayed eight days.

CONTEST EATER GAINED ANOTHER LOST WEIGHT

Most Competitors in "Festival of Stomach" Would Try Again

Rouen.—Three of the four competitors for the title of "greatest eater," which was decided at the "Festival of the Stomach" later declared themselves willing and anxious to join in another gargantuan battle. The competitors were:

M. Charles Viennot (a vintner), aged 52, the winner; M. Roge (a singer), aged 32; M. L'Oiselle (a water), aged 39, and the "Unknown Eater," aged 40.

When the trenchermen mounted the platform the boards creaked under the strain. Then, amid applause, they set about this appetizing menu:

2 1-5 lb. of brill, 2½ lb. of chicken, 2¾ lb. of mutton, with kidney beans, one cheese, and apple tart (lots).

The winner drank four bottles of cider, two of Alsatian wine, and two of Burgundy. Prizes for the biggest stomach went to the "Unknown Eater," who put on ten pounds in weight during the meal. Viennot was up six pounds; Roge by five pounds, L'Oiselle actually lost weight.

LEAPS TOO LATE

Rome.—A pilot of the Italian air force, Warrant Officer Gustavo Gerroni, crashed to his death in a pursuit seaplane near the airport of Vigna di Valle. He struggled to regain control of the machine until it was too late for him to jump with his parachute.

The following extract from the Empire, of Prince Rupert, B.C., (October 16th issue), is of local interest, as Mr. Sawle was formerly a member of the Review staff here:

"Twenty-five years ago today, in Peterborough, Ont., the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sawle took place and this evening in New Hazelton, the anniversary will be fittingly observed.

"The call of the expanding northwest was being heard throughout Canada, back in 1909. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway was under construction. Many young couples were attracted to Northern British Columbia, and the bride and groom from Peterborough were among those who journeyed to the new land of promise.

"In April 1910 they arrived in Prince Rupert, and in July, a year later, moved to Old Hazelton, where Mr. Sawle purchased the Omineca Herald from the late Mr. De Voin. In the following year he moved to New Hazelton, and has been established there ever since.

"He built a comfortable two storey building which today is surrounded by carefully kept lawns and gardens. It is here that they have their home and newspaper and printing office. The plant, including a type setting machine, is well equipped in every respect, and The Herald, published every Wednesday, has a good circulation.

"When Mr. and Mrs. Sawle first saw New Hazelton, it was first necessary to clear away the woods that covered their lots. They have seen what was forest land change into a community of homes and general settlement, and in this development they have taken a leading part.

"And so, this evening, there will be a large assembly of friends to wish them well on their silver wedding anniversary, and in the congratulations, many in Prince Rupert will be glad to share."

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

An easy way to crochet insertion into textiles is to have rows of hemstitching made in it leaving a space between the rows of hemstitching that will be equal to the width of the insertion. Also hemstitching along an edge before making a crochet border will decidedly simplify the work. Evenness of stitchery rows is insured, and all the labor of sewing the insertion to the textile or sewing on the edging is eliminated.

* * * * * *

The coarseness of the hemstitching determines the size of the crochet stitch as holes in the hemstitching gauge the size of the crochet mesh. Each stitch is taken around a post or stitch of the hemstitching. So be sure to tell the person who does the machine hemstitching, just how far apart you want these posts or stitches to come in the textile. Or if a mistake is made the worker can adapt crochet to size by using finer or coarser medium for the crocheting. Filet crochet lends itself admirably to this crocheting.

* * * * * *

After the crocheting is completed, cut the textile away under the insertion, leaving enough to turn back and fell down neatly to the foundation. Along the lowest edge turn back the textile which will not need cutting, probably, as a narrow edge only should come below the lowest line of hemstitching. Fell this turned-back textile to the foundation.

* * * * * *

The finish that is given the work by this simple and labor saving method justifies its use. The textile may be turned back in either of two ways. It can leave no vestige of the hemstitching on the front of the article, or the turning may not be so short and a single line of the hemstitching show, as in picoting. Or still a third way is to trim the hemstitching rather close leaving just a few threads of the textile showing and whip these strands to the lower edge of the hemstitching. While this may seem the easiest way, it is not so durable a finish as the turned-back hem at first described.

Household Hints

Menu Hint

CHILDREN'S LUNCH
Children's Spanish Rice
Whole Wheat Bread and Butter With Raisins
Coconut Orange Gelatine Milk
This is a luncheon for school children. Plenty of nourishment and vitamins in it. Graham crackers might be served with gelatine.

Today's Recipes

Children's Spanish Rice—One-half cup raw rice, one and one-quarts water, two fresh tomatoes (one-half cup canned), one slice onion, one teaspoon salt, one-third cup grated cheese, one tablespoon butter. Cook rice in boiling salted water until tender. Drain thoroughly. Evaporate rice water down to one cup. Add tomatoes and onion and cook fifteen minutes. Remove onion from mixture, add remaining ingredients, heat through and serve piping hot.

Coconut Orange Gelatin—Four oranges, one-half cup sugar, one package orange flavored gelatin, one cup orange juice and water, one tablespoon grated orange rind, three-fourths cup shredded coconut. Prepare oranges by peeling and dividing into sections, taking care to remove all membrane. Sprinkle with sugar and let stand a few minutes. In the meantime pour hot or boiling water over the gelatin, stirring to make certain it is well dissolved. Drain off juice which will have formed on oranges and to this liquid add sufficient water to make one cup. Add to gelatin with the grated orange rind. Cool until mixture starts to thicken, then carefully add orange sections and coconut. Serve plain, with milk, cream, or for the grown-ups, whipped cream.

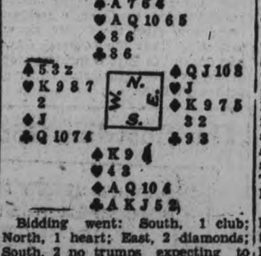
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

A FIFTH BEST LEAD

The unexpected and letting declarer pick his own leads, instead of the expected and helping declarer play the hand, defeated a sure game contract, by giving South an entirely incorrect picture of opposing holdings.



Bidding went: South, 1 club; North, 1 heart; East, 2 diamonds; South, 2 no trumps expecting to stop opponents suit 3 times; North, 3 hearts; South, 3 no trumps.

The best general rule for opening leads against no trumps is: Open partner's suit, unless you own suit is good enough to have bid had you sat in partner's place. Had West led his jack of diamonds the declarer could not have failed to win 3 tricks in that suit; taking the single finesse in hearts he would have won 2 tricks, giving him 5 tricks. The remaining 4 tricks required for game South could have won without taking a finesse. That would all have been quite within the declarer's limited ability as a player.

Instead of leading partner's suit West decided to lead hearts, as South must be short of that suit, to have twice declined to play at partner's call. South might even have gone game had West led his fourth-best heart, but he led the 2, as if he held only 4 cards of that suit. South took the double finesse, and the 10 lost to East's lone jack. The queen of spades was returned, losing to South's king.

Expecting to establish dummy's hearts, by giving West one trick in the suit, the declarer led his last heart. Dummy's queen won. East showed out, by discarding his lowest diamond. Dummy's 6 of diamonds was led. East played the 7. Declare's double finesse of the 10 lost to West's lone jack.

The king of hearts forced dummy's ace. The 8 of clubs was led. East covered with the 9. Declarer's jack lost to West's queen. West took his 2 good hearts, defeating the contract a trick, against cards which should have gone game, just by rattling the declarer through an unexpected opening lead, losing to lone jacks in two instance, and finding West with 5 hearts instead of the 4 hearts which the 2 of hearts' lead indicated.

Of course South might have gone game, even with the heart lead losing to the lone jack, had he played the hand with more vision, and suspected West of having the lone jack of diamonds.

Hollywood Player Corrects Poor Posture After Viewing It on Screen

MAE CLARKE

When the lovely Mae Clarke first entered the motion picture field, it is said, she had a bad habit of slumping. Mae wasn't even aware of the fact herself until she saw herself on the screen. But when she did realize this fault, she made every effort to correct it. And now, since she has learned proper posture, she has increased her height by two inches, and wears her clothes with a dash and a style that simply wasn't possible during her slumping days.

Beautiful, well-shaped shoulders will be a positive necessity this fall. And the lass who has developed sloping, poorly-carried shoulders will find herself in a bad fix. For the new styles designed for fall, to be worn properly, simply demand erect, gracefully-carried shoulders.

It really is quite simple to correct sloping, drooping shoulders. And the female who has gotten into the habit of permitting her shoulders to droop dejectedly will take steps to correct her slouch immediately, if she's a wise baby. For a pair of sloping shoulders can rob a figure or a gown of every bit of grace and attractiveness that it might possess.

Any woman, like Mae Clarke, can get into the habit of carrying her shoulders correctly if she practices the correct posture frequently enough. The shoulders should be held up and back at all times. They shouldn't be hunched up, of course. Nor should they be held tense and stiff. They should be flexible and alert. Square your shoulders correctly, and you'll find out not only that your clothes will hang more pleasingly, but also that the grace of your walking and sitting posture will have been greatly improved.

Ordinary posture exercises are most effective for correcting sloping, poorly-carried shoulders. But the following exercise is particularly excellent for this purpose: Relax your shoulders and pull them down as far as possible. Then, with a rotary movement, slowly raise them as high as you can. Relax again and repeat the exercise. It's a very simple exercise, and you should be able to practice it as many as 15 or 20 times at the very outset without experiencing any resultant stiffness.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Eyes

Cora: Your eyes can be strengthened if they are skillfully treated. I would advise you to consult an expert occulist about them.

Shampoo

Glenna: The castor oil shampoo is excellent for thin, dry, falling hair. The method of applying this shampoo is fully outlined in my "Beauty Culture" booklet.

Discolored Knees

Mrs. L. R.: Make a paste of lemon juice and powdered pumice, and rub it on the discolored skin. Bleaches will not lighten the natural color of the skin.

EDITOR'S NOTE: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

Great Little Goalie Tries Bigtime Comeback

One of the six goal-tending candidates fighting for jobs with Detroit Redwings is the sterling John Ross Roach, who has been the rounds in N.H.L. cages. He was rated best of the big time goalies with Redwings in 1932-33, but injuries forced him to the sidelines last season. He finished with Syracuse of the International League. Now he's trying to land his old job again, since Wilfie Cude has gone to Canadiens.

GORMAN WELL PLEASED.

(By The Canadian Press)

Two of hockey's most stubborn holdouts—Lorne Chabot and Paul Thompson—have signed contracts and removed a lot of anxiety Clem Loughlin has felt about the prospects of his Chicago Black Hawks.

Both come to terms yesterday and will start practice immediately. They did not remove all of Loughlin's worries, however, as Doc Romnes and Taffy Abel are still holding out for more money.

The veteran Chicago defenceman and Romnes returned contracts offered them and now join Ching Johnson of New York Rangers as the most prominent players who have definitely turned down offers. Johnson had a conference with Ranger executives in New York yesterday but is still on the outside.

Without Johnson, Lester Patrick will toss his Rangers over the boards to-night at Winnipeg to meet Montreal Maroons in an exhibition game. Tommy Gorman's team will sport brand new right and left wingers, Aubrey Webster and Sammy McManus, stars of Moncton Hawks, 1934 cup winners. Gorman signed them to contracts last night.

Tonight's game also will mark the first appearance this season of Lionel Conacher, whom Gorman brought from Chicago to Maroons when he moved himself the big defenceman was resting from a heavy cold when the first game between the teams was played to a 2-2 tie Saturday night.

Toronto Leafs finished their preliminary training at Galt today and returned to Toronto where they will continue practice. Their regulars last night played a team made up of substitutes and Herbie Lewis and Larry Aurie of Detroit Red Wings and won 5-4.

The Conacher-Primeau-Jackson line showed as much scoring punch as ever, Charlie Conacher getting two goals and Harvey Jackson and Joe Primeau each one.

Nels Crutchfield, who came to Canadiens after starring with McGill University's team, started his professional career last night by fighting with Johnny Gagnon, Boston winger, and Jean Pusie, defenceman, in an exhibition game at Saint John which Bruins won 2-1.

Crutchfield thought the way Gagnon checked him was a bit too strenuous for an exhibition game and they came to blows. The former McGill centre had hardly cooled off from that encounter when he tangled with Pusie, something of a badman himself. The Saint John fans, who had never seen an N.H.L. game before, cluttered the ice with programmes to show they didn't like that sort of hockey.

Nels Stewart and Peggy O'Neil scored the Boston goals and Aurel Joliat got the only Canadian counter. The play was as spirited as the fighting and hit mid-season style at times.

Training at Oshawa, Ont., Joe Simpson has pretty well made up his mind about the team on which he will stake his championship hopes. He has Roy Worters for goal and Aex Smith, Al Murray, Red Dutton and Bill Brydges for defense.

He has all of his forwards of last year and Bob Gracie, formerly of Toronto Leafs as an outstanding newcomer. He has sent Red Doran to Boston Bruins, Hal Picketts to Syracuse Red Jackson to New Haven and Roland Reeves to Buffalo.

ENGLISH TENNIS DATES

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The English Lawn Tennis Association yesterday announced the dates for its three big events of next summer, the Interzone and challenge rounds of Davis Cup play and the All-England, or Wimbledon, championships. All will be played on the Wimbledon courts.

Davis Cup interzone final—July 20, 22, 23.

Davis Cup challenge round—July 27, 29, 30.

Wimbledon championships—June 24-July 6.

MANAGER TERRY READY TO SELL MANY PLAYERS

Ott, Hubbell, Travis Jackson and Hughey Critz Will be Retained.

NEED OF GOOD SHORTSTOP.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30 (AP)—The New York Giants are in for some kind of shake-up, Bill Terry, their manager, let it be known in an interview here yesterday.

Excepting Mel Ott, outfielder, and Carl Hubbell, ace hurler, Terry said at least a dozen Giants are on the auction block, that he has $125,000 to spend for new material, and, as far as managing the club goes, he'll be solely responsible.

"I'm ready to spend lots of 'dough' for a shortstop," he said. "Not because Travis Jackson needs any help at short, but because we need strength at third, and 'Toney' can play a great third base. And, besides, he'll last longer there than at short."

He said Hughey Critz had "a wonderful year at second, and we're counting on him again."

"As for first base," he said, "I'm looking for my successor. I'm getting old—36 right now—and I feel 45 after every game. But until I find somebody I can't beat, I'll be there.

CARDINALS GET $5,389.57 EACH

World Series Champions Receive Over $2,000 More Than Tigers.

CHICAGO, October 30. — Wives of the Detroit and St. Louis Cardinal ball-playing regulars, managers and coaches can start their big shopping tours at once. Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis has mailed their husbands' World Series cheques.

Taxes reduced the players' pool from the original, unofficial estimate, but the players received some good sized cheques. The Cardinals received $137,739.19 as the winners' share, cutting their melon into 25 full shares of $5,389.57 each, and dividing $3,000 among eight members of their baseball family.

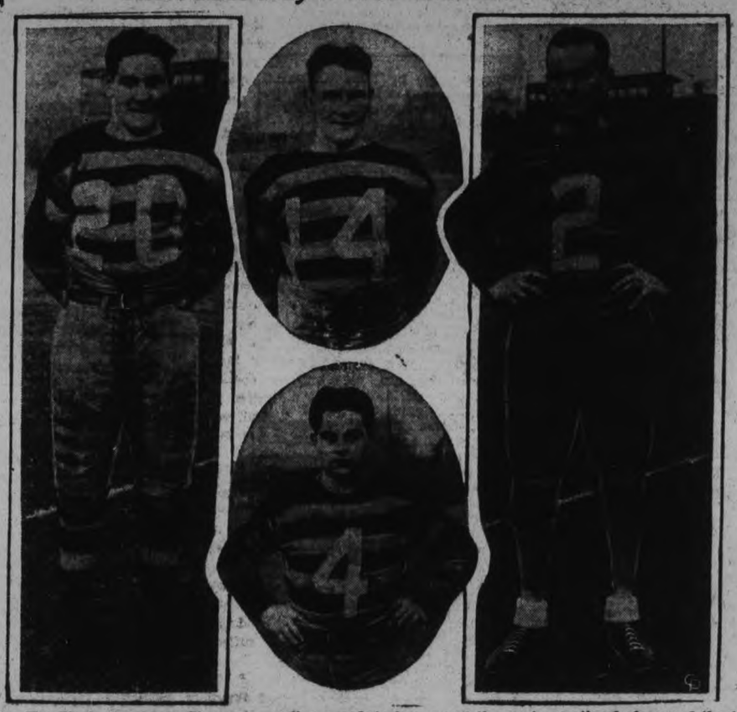
The vanquished Detroit Tigers received $91,826.13, of which 26 players, coaches, and Manager Mickey Cochrane received full shares of $3,354.68 each.

On the basis of their shareholding plans, each New York Giant regular received $913.07, each New York Yankee regular received $763.09.

Joe Medwick, Cardinal outfielder, and Third Baseman Marvin Owen of the Tigers, who stopped the final ball game with their big battle around third base, each received full shares from the Commissioner, indicating that the Commissioner had decided to let the incident drop, at least without plastering either or both with fines.

New York Giants To Strengthen Team

These Lads May Wear Dominion Grid Crowns



Hamilton's dangerous Tigers are casting greedy eyes at the Dominion grid crowns sported by Toronto Argonauts. It is suspected that the Big Cats have designs upon the Scullers 1933 regal robes. They smeared Lew Hayman's crew badly right in Toronto and these three Bengals are a prominent part of the smearing brigade. LEFT is Seymour Wilson, outside wing, one of the most sensational players of the 1934 season. TOP CENTRE, Jimmy Simpson, another outside, and team captain. LOWER CENTRE, Boley Jeffers, former Windsor, Ont., lad and a power in the Hamilton camp. RIGHT, Wilf. Patterson, speedy, clever quarterback for the Ferraro-coached squad.

HARRIS FAVORED SUCCEED CRONIN

Former Boss of Senators Appears to Have Inside Track or Job.

WASHINGTON, October 30. — As President Clark Griffith continues his enigmatic silence as to his choice for the Senator's baseball manager, Washington fans are fairly certain of three facts.

Stanley ("Bucky") Harris now has the inside track for the job; the new manager will not be a playing boss; and a shake-up in the Senator line-up is assured.

Griffith has said he would prefer a bench-manager who would not have to wear himself out on the playing field. Unless the old fox changes his mind this statement would eliminate a number of the present Washington players who have been mentioned in the speculations, among thme Second Baseman Buddy Myer and Catcher Luke Sewell.

It is known that Griffith highly regards Harris, and that they are close personal friends. Harris has applied for the job and his candidacy has been supported by baseball critics on capital newspapers.

Almost any manager Griffith may name naturally will have some plans for improving the club by trades or outright purchases. It is known that Griffith would like Outfielder Vosmik and Pitcher Hildebrand of Cleveland and Outfielder Ben Chapman of the Yankees.

The Senator outfield, with Manush, Stone, Schulte, Sington, and Powell, is a pretty formidable crew as it stands, but Griffith might part with Manush, even though he is one of the American League batting leaders, and Schulte if he could work some trade to bring another winning hurler here.

"RED" DORAN GOES TO BOSTON BRUINS

New York Americans Prune Squad—Nankina Smith to Remain Amateur.

OSHAWA, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Manager Joe Simpson of the New York Americans of the National Hockey League has started the weeding-out process with his squad of prospects in training at the Arena here.

Following the first week of practice, Simpson announced yesterday that Red' Doran has been transferred to the Boston Bruins of the N.H.L. and that three other players have been sent to International League teams. Hal Picketts, of last year's Americans, has gone to Syracuse of the International League, and 'Red' Jackson, another of last year's squad, has been sent to the New Haven Club of the Canadian-American League. Rolan Reeves, who has been trying out with the Amerks, lacks experience, and has been sent to the Buffalo Bisons of the International League.

Nakina Smith and Lex Chisholm, amateurs who came to Oshawa from Toronto have definitely decided not to accept professional contracts this season. Simpson said he was impressed with their possibilities.

COLLEGE TENNIS HONORS WON BY McMASTER PAIR

HAMILTON, Oct. 30 (C.P.). — Cleary Palmer and Charles Doolittle, McMaster University stars, yesterday defeated Saul Rae and Dan Kelly of University of Toronto to capture the Intercollegiate intermediate doubles tennis crown. The scores were 10-8, 6-3, 7-9, 6-2.

McMaster had the tournament won even before this match was played. Point standings were: McMaster, 13; University of Toronto, 6; Wetsern, 4; Ontario Agricultural College, 1.

The singles final was an all-McMaster affair between Palmer and Doolittle, the former winning, 6-2, 10-8. Doolittle defeated Douglas Goodge of Western, 6-0, 6-0, and Palmer downed Ken Shultis, University of Toronto, 6-2, 6-2, to enter the finals.

FORT WILLIAM HOCKEYISTS AGAIN ENTERING ICE WARS

Runners-up for Allan Cup Last Year Start Without Imports—Will Seek Permission for Two-Team League —Hacquoil Back.

By F. W. EDWARDS
Central Press Canadian Sports

FORT WILLIAM, Oct. 30.—All but forgotten in the maze of new developments in which the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association faces a crisis in dealing with persistent clamorings of commercial leagues for Allan Cup recognition, this city's western Canada champions and runners-up for the Canadian championships last year, awaits patiently the new deal.

They aspire to new heights and fresh glories in the 1934-35 campaign, with the double incentive of present Canada at the Olympic the championship and right to regames in 1936.

Their roster, while not entirely intact from last year, has suffered far less than many other teams, while material has been mustered to fill gaps left and give club officials hopes of a stronger and more able-bodied aggregation all around.

Under-weight Handicap

It was weight that cost Forts the Allan Cup against Moncton Hawks in Toronto last spring. Two more evenly-matched teams would be difficult to find if ganged from skating and stick-handling ability. The maritimers outweighed the locals almost to a man.

There is no gainsaying the fact that under rules of the past two seasons, players must possess both physique and ability to gain stardom.

Three of last year's brigade have been lost to other centres. Hugh O'Leary, clever forward and defence, is to be found among the Bluenoses, having entered a law school at St. John, and incidentally become part and parcel of St. John Beavers.

An opening in the paper industry finds Bill Hogarth, rapid scoring right-winger, learning to French in Quebec and eager to jump into amateur ranks there if the C.A.H.A. will permit, or failing that, to direct his steps to commercial hockey as a last resort. Jack Smith, spare defenceman, has gone to Sudbury, there to play commercial, if he does not catch on with Detroit Red Wings, with whom he tried out.

Goalie Hacquoil Back

But while their losses have been somewhat disparaging, the Forts believe they have an even stronger force than ever.

They are assured of Gordon Hacquoil for goal. His defence against Moncton in the finals at Toronto was one of the highlights of the series. Misfortune overtook him since, however, as he lost the middle finger of his right hand, but it is not thought this will handicap him any.

For defence they are assured of two and possibly three old standbys in Ross Knowles, Bobby McCranor and Pop Robillard. Of the three McCranor was by far the most outstanding last year, although Knowles played under strain of impending bereavement in his family, death claiming his father shortly after the play-offs.

A notion to try a change of colors is being entertained by Robillard, thinking seriously of going to Fort Arthur. Yet another colorful performer, however, will be candidate for defence, in Joe Konderka, of last year's local Woodmen of the World club. His acquisition should be an improvement.

Eliminate One Team?

Mostly all the old regime are available for the forward lines, though it is probable that "Porky" McLeod, the last member of the sensational 1927 aggregation, which lost to Toronto Grads in the finals at Vancouver, will be missing. He retired last year only to rally to a mid-season call to fill in at left wing. Gordon Houston, Jazzy Manahan and Ossie Hacquoil are to be out battling for places again, in addition to such newcomers as Bill Allin, Carl Ostrum, Ted Childs and perhaps Willie Thompson.

Bob Davies, ex-Winnipegger and former Detroit international and national league star, will be back as coach. He made a good job of his first year in harness.

The old "battle-cry" of jobs finds club officials almost smothered with applications, but nary a one from outside the district, a novelty when one compares really hometrew teams.

More houses are being built in Scotland than at any time since March, 1933.

NINE EXPERIENCED PLAYERS ALLOWED IN THE MINOR LOOP

Each Club to Carry Three Men With Less Than 3 Years' Pro Experience.

9-3-2 RATIO.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 30 (CP) — Clubs of the International Hockey Club will be permitted to carry nine players with more than three years professional experience instead of eight as previously decided on by league governors. The increase was made at a meeting of the governors here yesterday.

Another change made by the governors was to call on each club to carry three men with less than three years pro. experience and two amateurs just entering the money race. This lowers by one man the number originally required on each club who boasted less than three years in the pro ranks.

The original ruling was reached at a meeting in Cleveland when the 8-4-2 ratio was set. It was proposed by Connie Smythe, manager of Toronto Leafs in the National Hockey League, who use Syracuse of the I.H.L. as a farm. Other clubs of the International circuit considered the ruling a little severe and the 9-3-2 ratio appeared at yesterday's sessions.

Leo Quenneville of London has been traded to Quebec Beavers of the Can.-American League for Benney Ward, brother of Jimmy Ward of Montreal Maroons, it was announced after the meeting. Quenneville was loaned to Quebec last year.

Favor French Horses For Cambridgeshire

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 30 (C.P. Cable)—One of the largest and most baffling fields in the near-century of its existence will run for the Cambridgeshire Stakes, great autumn handicap over the mile and an eighth distance, at Turf headquarters Wednesday.

France, with six Frenchbreds, including the favorite, Mary Tudor II., confidently expects to win the big fall feature. Rentenmark is another dangerous contender from across the channel.

The Aga Khan, owner of Badruddin, expressed the opinion last night his colt would run well and "with luck" should win. The American-bred Mate, which has campaigned all season with little success, should finish in the money, according to Ivor Anthony, handling the rangy horse for A. C. (Brother) Bostwick.

AUSSIES ARRIVE BACK HOME.

PERTH, Australia, Oct. 30.—(C.P. Cable Via Reuter's). — The main body of the touring Australian cricked team which defeated England in the test series last summer, arrived back on Australian soil to-day, all fit and well.

They were accorded a civic reception at which Captain W. M. Woodfull, who is retiring from cricket, was presented with a casket especially made of Western Australian woods, in appreciation not only of the Australian recapture of the mythical "ashes" but of Woodfull's personal successes.

ONTARIO BOARD OPPOSE ACTION DOMINION BODY

Ontario Governors Support President Fred Waghorne in C.A.L.A. Squabble.

Want Amicable Agreement.

TORONTO, October 30. — The Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association at a special squabble session last night practically endorsed the exhibition series of Orillia on the Pacific Coast, defying the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association ruling with a motion that an amicable agreement be reached among the warring sectors.

After hours of arguing in which M. E. F. Kelley, vice-president of the C.A.L.A., ex-president of the O.A.L.A., and president of the Amateur Branch of the A.A.U. of C. took an hour and three-quarters with a dramatic discourse it was decided at the midnight hour that the Ontario Association confirm the actions of the Orillia and St. Helens clubs in playing a post-season series on the coast and that the various organizations unite in a general agreement without any suspensions or further trouble.

The squabble was the result of Orillia, on the personal sanction of President Fred Waghorne of the O.A.L.A. playing a series of exhibition games on the Pacific Coast after winning the Mann Cup, cuntrary to the decision of the C.A.L.A. president, Dan McKenzie.

A. E. Lyons, ex-president of the O.A.L.A. and a present member of the Ontario Athletic Commission, halted most of the squabble by explaining that the Ontario officials were only victims of a squabble on the Pacific Coast, which he explained as a festering sore in the West and the East was absorbing the scab.

Personalities, the history of lacrosse, accusations and a volume of words were spilled in the smoke-filled room that has heard so many lacrosse arguments for the last decade.

Bowling Notes

To-night will be the opening of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling House, for this season's activities.

Judging by reports that the committee have had handed to them it looks like one real crowd.

We are asked to announce that owing to the prospect of such a large turnout that as many guests as possible are asked to be on hand by 7.30 p.m. This will lighten the burden at the 9 o'clock draw.

Everybody will have three 8-end games and prizes have been kindly donated for the winners.

BILLY PETRIE OUTPOINTED.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With Odd Chuckle or Two

(By C. J. P.)

The annual meeting of the C.O.B.L. will be held in Belleville November 24th, at which time the business of 1934 will be cleaned up, officers for next year elected and plans made for the season of '35. Representatives will attend from Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville, Oshawa, Napanee and Cobourg. In addition to the loop officers, the club representatives and the press, two players from each club will be invited. The league will throw a spread for the gathering, and will present the Art Johnston Trophy, emblematic of the C.O.B.L. championship to the Petes.

• • • • • •

Though not stated definitely, the local club will likely hold its meeting about November 19th. Besides cleaning up this year's business and making plans for next year, the local executive out to decide just what they want to support or reject at the Central League gabfest. No use going to a session unprepared to meet all emergencies, and have several important matters hanging over till the spring meeting—maybe thereby forcing several hurried conclaves as was the case this year. This is just a timely notice—take it for what it's worth.

• • • • • •

Somehow, we wouldn't want to be Freddie Scates tomorrow night. This worthy guy has volunteered to referee the rassiin' bout in the Armouries between one Stan Peryer and one Bill Gerow—and one of each is too much! He will also stick to his old calling, that of announcer, and he's okay there. Once in a while he may strain a tonsil or two on a particularly tough name yodelled with all the fervour of one born to announce, but what of that? That's what we have throat specialists for. But what will he do should these two brawny grapplers sort of fall on him together and pancake him into the boards? After all, throat specialists have their limitations. However, with Messrs. Gerow, Peryer and Scates all in action in the same ring at the same time—well, we wouldn't miss it for a date with Jean Harlow (better make that Clara Bow, Mr. Printer).

• • • • • •

Dave Cowan is also staging three boxing bouts there, starting at 7.45 in connection with the Kinsmen Hallowe'en Carnival. Pete Vitarelli fights Fred Spencer, Ned Minicola tackles Jack Heffernan, and Reg. McMillan meets Harry Jennings. The ring will be smack in the centre of the Armouries, and no extra charge will be made to cast the orbs on these sultans of swat, nor even for the burly grunt and groaners. Gord Hunter, lightweight champ of British Columbia—born here but spending most of his 19 years in the coast province—will referee the bouts. Sounds to us like most of the other attractions there that night will suffer the hour or two of these four features are being staged.

• • • • • •

The past two days, we've had dozens of requests, at least quite a few, well anyway one letter, to advise heated fans against cussing at football games, especially if there are ladies around. They ought to restrain themselves, or at least wait till there is so much noise around that no one can hear them. Roughly speaking, there are too many men at football games, roughly speaking. When elated, they shouldn't have to swear, and when disgusted can't they say—doggone how do you spell that sound known as the Bronx cheer, anyway? We know a he-man football fan isn't going to be satisfied with a disgusted "Dear me!" or even the more strenuous "Dash it all!" but it's also true that there are still ladies around who don't swear themselves and dont care to hear profanity.

• • • • • •

Regarding last Saturday's game in Lindsay, the Post has this to say: "Sometimes in a football game, fans are privileged to see an extraordinary exhibition of gameness. On Saturday, few people knew that Harry Marsh, who stars on the Peterborough line, was suffering with torn ligaments in his knee. He played almost the entire game and was in the thick of it most of the time." Lindsay is now slated to meet the winners of the Senior B section of the Lakeshore League, and the Scugog scrappers should cop the group title without removing their coats as this other section was considered softer than the A section of P.C.I., Oshawa, Belleville and Lindsay.

• • • • • •

It's a bit early, but not too much, to start thinking of our hockey groupings for the winter. Nothing is known yet but there is a slight possibility of a Senior B loop consisting of this town, Oshawa, Belleville and a Toronto squad. Should this not materialize, here's an idea that might be worth working upon: Have one large intermediate Central Ontario group comprised of Peterborough, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Belleville, Trenton, Campbellford, Cobourg and Lindsay. Let them play a single schedule and have the first four teams in the playoffs.

• • • • • •

If these teams were all agreeable to forming one league, the fans would then see a different team at every home game, and each team would play seven contests on their own ice—a good schedule. As both clubs and fans want plenty of playoff games, first four teams could clash in the money series, and everyone should be happy. This sounds like an okay idea to us and is certainly worth thinking over anyway. If the local executive like this angle, they might get in touch with these other towns and get their reaction while there is still plenty of time. It seems to remain with Peterborough anyway to pioneer new group ideas in sports.

Old Theft Cleaned Up By Lindsay Police

LINDSAY, Oct. 30 (Examiner Correspondence)—The local police cleared up a theft of three years standing yesterday when Roland J. Dore, of Toronto, was sentenced to three months' definite and one year indeterminate on the charge of receiving stolen goods. The case arose out of the theft of outboard motors from Gordon's boat house in Fenelon Falls in January, 1932. One of these motors was recovered in Peterborough in July of that year, and the other was found in Toronto. The serial numbers one one had been partially removed, but with the aid of magnifying glasses the police were able to distinguish the numbers. The Provincial Police have no record of the whereabouts of the men who were implicated with Gore.

HUGH STIRLING TOPS SCORERS SENIOR UNIONS

Sarnia Imperials Only One Victory Away From Clinch O.R.F.U. Championship.

BIG FOUR STANDING.

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (C.P.) — While Interprovincial and Intercollegiate football unions fight through two of the closest races in years, Sarnia Imperials, packing all the power than sent them to the Dominion finals last season, have spreadeagled the Senior O.R.F.U. field and are only one victory away from clinching their league championship. And at the head of the Imperial parade march three of the East's highest scorers.

Roll Up 91 Points

Imperials have rolled up 91 points in their four victories, and of this total "Bummer" Stirling, Norm Perry and Alex Hayes have compiled 61. Stirling, star hoofer for the Oilers, tops the three unions with 25 points. The perennial Perry is only four points behind, while Hayes, canny quarter, is fourth in the league standing.

The Canadian Press' third scoring summary shows Stirling six points ahead of young Sam Gray, of Toronto Varsity, and seven points in front of Frank Turville, of Hamilton Tigers, leaders respectively of the Intercollegiate and Interprovincial races.

Stirling added three points on Saturday as his team beat St. Michael's College, 19-1. Perry scored a touchdown and a convert to advance into second place, ahead of Joe Connelly, of St. Mike's, who was held scoreless. Hayes converted a touch to bring his season's total to 15, and advance to within two points of third place.

Retain Leadership

Gray and Turville continued to hold the leadership of their respective unions though each scored but one point in last Saturday's clashes. Gray, with 19 points, led Bob Isbister, his teammate, and California Joe Smith, of McGill, by six. Ed Barnabe, Queen's University field-goal expert, was next with ten.

Huck Welch, kicking half of Montreal Football Club, garnered three points on two converts and a single, and was only two points behind Turville, who had 18. Big Abe Eliowitz, versatile Ottawa star, smashed his way up from near the bottom of the standing to third place with a rousing last-half splurge against Montreal, good for 10 points. Eliowitz was three points ahead of Ab. Box, Toronto Argonauts. Box scored all Argo's points in their 3-3 tie against Hamilton.

RACE RECORD FADES

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 30. (AP).—Cathcart Jones and Ken Waller, flying back to England after participation in the Melbourne Derby, made a second start from Allahabad, India, to-day shortly after noon.

Motor trouble forced them to return just after taking off early this morning. Apparently the delay here and one at Port Darwin have destroyed their chance of beating the record for the England to Melbourne flight.

Many Places Are Blocked With Drifts Three to Four Feet Deep.

TRAINS MAKE SCHEDULES.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30 (CP)—Sections of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces were thawing out to-day after feeling the first breath of Winter. Roads were reopened as snow piled high in heavy storms throughout the region was shovelled aside by workmen.

Snow fell to a depth of three and four feet in places to block all traffic. A bitter wind added to the discomfort of citizens, caught unprepared by the sudden Winter weather. In the Riviere Du Loup, Que., district, snow was three feet deep, while in Chicoutimi drifts 800 feet long measuring to a depth of four feet were found.

Close to the New Brunswick border heavy snowfall was reported but railway officials declared traffic was not impeded in any way. All trains operated on scheduled time.

Rochester Pugilist On Kinsmen's Card

Reg McMillan, hard-hitting local middleweight, will receive his hardest ring test since he started boxing when he clashes with Harry Jennings, smart Rochester pugilist, tomorrow night in the Armouries. This will be the main bout of three boxing features put on by Dave Cowan as an added feature of the big Kinsmen Club Hallowe'en Frolic. Fred Spencer and Pete Vitarelic, evenly-matched lightweights, open the card with a renewal of their leather-pushing feud of last spring. They are followed by two experienced welters, Len Minicola and Jack Heffernan, in what should be a bout packed with action.

Preceding the main fight will be a 15-minute wrestling match between Bill Gerow and Stan Peryer, local heavyweights who use pro tactics. This should be exciting and highly amusing. The two first boxing bouts will consist of three 3-minute rounds, with the main event going five 2-minute rounds —or less if a knockout occurs. It had been a long time since a good boxing and wrestling card has been dished up to local mit and mat fans, and this—in conjunction with the big Frolic, for a very worthy cause—should attract a big crowd. The boxing will be run straight through, starting at 7.45, in a ring in the centre of the Armouries.

McLean Manager Is Victim Of Gas

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Victim of carbon monoxide poisoning, George Herbert Tyndal, business manager of McLean publications was found dead in the front seat of his automobile in his garage here last night. He was 60-year old. Police said a note addressed to his wife was found in one of his pockets.

Born in Everton, Wellington county, he was educated in Guelph collegiate. He wrote his first advertisement for G. B. Ryan and company of Guelph.

After extensive experience in newspaper advertising in Western Canada with the Moose Jaw Morning News and Regina Leader-Post he returned to Toronto in 1917 and joined the MacLean organization.

Surviving are his wife, Kathleen P. Tyndall; his mother and four sisters, Mrs. Harry Morgan, Everton; Mrs. L. N. Overland, Mrs. W. H. Bunt, and Mrs. K. A. Grant, all of Toronto.

Beer Profit Issue Up To City Council

"It is for the City Council to decide," stated Mayor Denne today when asked what action Peterborough would take on the Government's announcement that municipalities can share by 20 percent in the profits of beer sales in beverage rooms.

Mayor Deene stated he did not care to discuss the matter, but under continued questioning, he said, "I don't think it will be the wish of the Council or citizens that the city should thus enter into the Government's beer business."

Named As Best American Amateur Athletes

LAWSON LITTLE

BEN EASTMAN

Mentioned as possible selections for the James E. Sullivan Memorial medal, mostly highly prized of American amateur awards, are Lawson Little, British and U.S. amateur golf champion, and Ben Eastman, track star, of Leland Stanford university, Los Angeles. This award is made by the American Amateur Union and this pair have led the nation-wide poll.

CHAPTER 17

Silently the two men hurried back through the washroom into the hall and toward the door which led to the third floor stairway. Before Lee opened it with Dan's key which Callaghan had given him, he drew his revolver.

With little sound but an occasional vague creaking from the old stairs, they went up, hugging the wall, for the room they sought was just at the head of the staircase. But when they peered over the top of the banister, the door was closed.

They approached it cautiously and listened. At first they could hear nothing except a vague shuffling. But presently a cheerful voice announced, "Not a thing, old boy, not a thing."

Gun in hand the inspector flung open the door and entered, followed closely by Tim. Two men were in the room. The young chap on his hands and knees, peering under the bed, was a stranger. But the man who stood near him, watching eagerly, was Dr. Henderson.

"Did you lose something?" asked the inspector.

Both men whirled at his voice. Henderson at sight of the gun backed away in horror. The dark-haired fellow, now sitting back on his heels, merely smiled pleasantly. His lean face was streaked with dust but even so it was handsome, with an excellent profile and deep, dark eyes. As he stood up, Tim noticed that he was about his own height and a little heavier.

He came forward now, one grimy hand outstretched toward Lee. "You're the inspector, aren't you?" he asked.

Lee ignored the hand and the question.

"Suppose you tell me who you are and what you're doing up here," he said coldly, still pointing the gun at the stranger.

"Sorry," he said, flushing a little as he drew back his hand. "I'm Windsor Hall, investigator for the Federal Insurance company. Reeves had a policy with our company and they've sent me down to see whether it looks like murder or suicide."

"How'd you get past the guards?"

"Guards?" The man looked puzzled. "We didn't even see any guards. I arrived just as Dr. Henderson did and we came in together. But there was no one at the door."

"It must have been while the kids were in the basement, inspector," suggested Tim.

Lee lowered his gun slowly and pocketed it. "I suppose you've got documentary proof that you are from the Federal people."

"Plenty," Hall assured him confidently.

"Let's go downstairs and look it over then."

Tim led the procession downstairs followed by Henderson and Hall with Lee coming watchfully behind. In the lower hall, Henderson drew out a handkerchief and wiped his face. Tim noticed that his hand shook a little as he replaced his glasses afterwards.

"Fearfully warm up there." He smiled at them apologetically. "By the way, I shall be leaving now and if you gentlemen wish to use my office for your conference, you are quite welcome." At Lee's nod of assent, he led them back toward it. "It's a little more comfortable than the seminar room that you used this morning," he added as he collected a few books from the neat desk.

At the door he turned. "The washroom is right next door, Mr Hall, if you wish to wash your hands. I'd suggest that you rinse off your face, too." He smiled a little. "You've rubbed your right eye until it looks as if someone had hit you and blackened it." With a friendly gesture, he left them.

"I suppose I do look rather a sight. Suppose I give you the documentary evidence, inspector, and you can look it over while I wash up." Hall drew a smaller leather folder from his inside coat pocket and a long envelop ad dressed to the local police department "That's from the head office, explaining me," he said tapping the letter "The other's just identification stuff."

Lee read the letter and passed it to Tim. It was signed by the head of the investigation department and seemed straightforward enough. It was brief, merely stating that their Central City office had notified them that he, Lee, was handling the investigation into the death of a policy holder of theirs, one Donald Reeves, and that they would appreciate his courtesy to their representative, Mr. Windsor Hall. The cards in the folder were simply identification cards issued by the company.

When Hall returned, with clean hands and face, Lee was more friendly "There's still one thing I don't understand, young fellow," he said. "How in hell did you get here so soon?"

"That's easy." Hall settled back into a chair near Tim and lit a cigaret "The office here 'phoned us in Chicago with the news about ten-thirty. Said they'd seen it in the papers. I caught the noon plane down and reached Center City at two. Then I came straight out here. Anything else?"

"That'll do, I guess," grinned Lee. "Did you find anything upstairs that the rest of us overlooked?"

"Not a thing." Hall shook his head. "By the way, inspector, are you sure it's murder?"

Tim stared at him. "And what would you suggest it was?" he asked mildly. "Pneumonia?"

"How about suicide?" Hall offered. "Sure, I know. You felt sure it was murder when the gun disappeared. But look at the points in favor of suicide. Powder burns on his shirt, the lights left burning in the office—which is no way to conceal a murder—and Reeves' strange statement to his wife that he was going away and would not be back. If you can find a reasonable explanation for the missing gun, how about it for a theory?"

"I gather that there was a suicide clause in his policy," said the inspector in amusement.

"There was." The insurance man grinned rather sheepishly.

"Just trying to deprive the poor widow of a few thousand dollars?"

"That's not quite fair, inspector." Hall was speaking earnestly now. "My company wants to discover definitely the hand that killed Reeves. If it was his own, we are not bound to pay the money. But nothing can completely kill the suicide idea in the home office like proof of murder. At present I do have a leaning toward suicide. If you can demolish that, then I'll help you prove the other."

"Good enough," said the inspector "But I'll not only demolish your hope of suicide, I'll hand you the solution of the murder on a silver platter. Even though Tim here doesn't agree with me.

"In the first place, the gun is no longer missing. Tim found it for me this afternoon in the cleaning things the janitor used here this morning and keeps stored in the basement. . . . Do you know something about the people in the department?"

Hall nodded. "Henderson described them to me this afternoon."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, October 31

The planetary rulership for this day, on the whole, calls for persistency, determination and patience, with clever insight and shrewd methods with which to combat and vanquish stubborn obstacles or to break up long-stagnating conditions. The mind will be found exceptionally well fortified and penetrating to cope with such circumstances, but sign papers with precaution and deal, if possible, with mergers, rings or secret bodies. Beware fraud, deception and untruths.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves confronted by a year requiring determination, perseverance, patience and practical efforts in order to break up crystallized conditions or to remove stubborn obstacles and impediments. However, they will find themselves mentally well equipped for such endeavor, but they should beware fraud, deception, misrepresentation and sign all writings with great precaution.

A child born on this day should be versatile, clever, as well as shrewd and tactful in combatting adverse conditions in life and eventually lending stability to its fortunes.

W. I. AT MADOC HAS BUSY MEET

Thanksgiving Thoughts is Topic for Month—New Members Added.

BOOTH RECEIPTS $81.50.

MADOC, Oct. 30.—(Examiner Correspondence). — "Thanksgiving Thoughts" was the topic of the October meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute, held on Friday, 26th, at the home of Mrs. J. Rutherford with a good attendance. Mrs. R. Bristol presided.

Business included the report of the Fair booth in which total receipts were $81.50. Bills were presented and ordered paid. Mrs. S. Ashley reported the purchase and marking of one dozen best linen towels for the Dafoe Hospital and these were distributed for embroidery. After discussion the executive were authorized to purchase a suitable flag for presentation to the new High School at the formal opening.

Current events of the month were ably reviewed by Mrs. C. N. Whytock. Mrs. C. McCoy gave a bright and interesting account of the high spots of the two days' Belleville area convention, which she attended as delegate from Madoc branch.

Mrs. W. A. Hunter gave a thoughtful and heart-searching paper on "Reasons for Giving Thanks."

Master Donald Rutherford favored the meeting with a brightly played piano solo, and Miss Helen Wellman and Mrs. L. Ashley gave a piano duet.

The National Anthem closed the program, and a social hour was enjoyed. The hostess was assisted by Mesdames Anderson, Corrigal, L. Watson, Huffman and F. Tumelty. Several new members were added to the list.

It is planned to hold a girls' program in December, and the November meeting will include the annual shower of fruit and jelly for the Children's Aid Society in Belleville.

MOTHER BADLY INJURED DURING CHILDBIRTH

Mrs M Seyffert, Toronto, Ontario, is a generous woman who is so thankful for her lasting recovery from chronic constipation that she has graciously consented to swear before a notary, a statement concerning her experience. She did so in order that other sufferers can be sure of its absolute truth. In her statement Mrs. Seyffert says—

"I was badly injured at childbirth, the injury resulting in continued constipation. For years I tried all sorts of remedies, but received little or no relief. My nerves were affected, I felt run-down, my complexion was yellow, and I lacked all vitality. Just over two years ago I started taking Fruit-a-tives, and now I am up at 6:00 A.M. every morning, doing my own housework. I am quite regular and my complexion has lost its yellow tinge. I have seven children and rely on Fruit-a-tives to keep them regular, too."

Mrs. Seyffert's statement is convincing but her experience is common to those who have used Fruit-a-tives. For Fruit-a-tives are really different. They have brought lasting relief to thousands of men and women from constipation, indigestion, sick-headaches, bad breath and similar ills. In fact, so successful has Fruit-a-tives proven that, today, it is the largest selling remedy of its kind in Canada.

Feel fit and healthy always. Start Fruit-a-tives at once. Their tonic effects will give you new vim, new zest, new happiness.

Copy of Mrs. Seyffert's sworn statement will be sent on request. Write Fruitatives Limited, Ottawa, Canada.

The Inside Nerves

Control the Vital Organs

Every beat of the heart,
Every breath of the lungs
Is the result of expended nerve force.
These inside, or sympathetic nerves
Direct and control the machinery of the body.
When you are worried and nervous and sleepless
These bodily organs become weak and slow in action,
Their motive power—nerve force, is running low.
You may not consider yourself sick,
But what is worse than a nervous breakdown.
Unfortunately nerve troubles do not correct themselves.
It is necessary to build up new nerve force.
This can be done by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food,
The time-proven restorative of blood and nerves.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

About twenty-five years ago a physician in an asyum in Alabama reported that many of the inmates of the asylum had a disease which had never before made its appearance in the United States. It was named "pellagra," and had frequently been described in other countries, especially Italy.

Soon after the publication of this announcement a large number of cases were reported from all over the United States, but especially in the south. For a while it ran a very severe course, so much so that in 1916 it ranked fourth as the cause of death in Mississippi, and third as the cause of death in Alabama. Since the first outbreak it has become much less severe, although deaths still result from it, and cases are observed all over the United States.

The disease affects particularly the skin and the digestive tract. On the skin it appears usually on the hands, arms, face, neck and feet, and consist of a red eruption, which later scales, leaving a deep brownish discoloration. The changes in the digestive tract consist of a sensation of burning or scalding of the tongue and mouth, indigestion and a troublesome diarrhea.

From the time it was first studied there has been a suspicion that diet had something to do with it. In Italy, where it has been known for several hundred years, it was noted that the districts in which it occurred where those in which the people ate corn and maize, and frequently corn that was spoiled. This monotonous type of diet was also found among people in the southern part of the United States who developed the disease.

On this theory it was supposed that there was either a poison germinated in the spoiled corn, or else that germ and moulds developing there caused the disease when taken into the human body. Later, lack of certain food substances was held responsible, and Dr. Joseph Goldberger of the United States public health service, persuaded some inmates of a southern penitentiary to submit to experiment.

By keeping them on a monotonous diet of corn and maize without milk, meat or fresh vegetables, he was able to produce the disease, while in other inmates living under similar conditions, but with a full dietary, the disease did not develop.

Still later it was proposed that a certain vitamin, known as vitamin G, which is found in yeast, for one thing, is the cause. All authorities do not agree to this, and some believe it is due to amino acids found in animal foods. However, it is generally agreed today that pellagra is essentially of dietary origin, and it depends upon the lack in the diet of substances such as vegetables with a high protein content (peas, beans, legumes) or animal proteon, such as meat, milk and eggs.

Although it is most comomnly a disease of the poor, it occurs in people of good economic status under certain circumstances. For instance, it is commonly seen in people who have been for some time on an alcoholic spree, probably because during that period they do not eat a mixed diet. It is also found in people who have digestive disturbances which prevent them from eating a balanced diet.

CANADA'S STAR GOT HER START IN 'MOVIE' WAY

Helen Trenholme Achieves Success in Hollywood Quickly.

RECENTLY MARRIED

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Probably the most publicized street corner in the world is that stretch of paper-littered pavement at the point where Broadway, Forty-second St., Seventh Ave. and Times Sq. cut the anatomy of Manhattan Island into mad triangles. The story of "Broadway and Forty-second" has been immortalized in song and dance, on the stage and screen. It stands for success and failure and glamor and cheapness. It is not surprising, then, that Canada's newest contribution to the Hollywood should find that her career has been successfully launched at Broadway and Forty-second.

Near this intersection stands the Rialto theatre, and in the Rialto theatre is being shown a film entitled "The Case of the Howling Dog" and in "The Case of the Howling Dog" we find our Canadian player. Her name, of course, is Helen Trenholme. A year ago Miss Trenholme was a member of the Montreal Repertory theatre.

It is the happy duty of this observer to report that Miss Trenholme is not only an actress but also a screen actress. She acts and she photographs equally effectively. The producers of the film realized this because they accorded her a heavy part in a first class company which included Warren William, considered one of Hollywood's better actors, and Mary Astor, one of the veterans of the talking screen.

The critics wrote that "Warren William, Mary Astor and Helen Trenholme were excellent," which to my mind is a form of high praise for the newcomer.

The Story of a Start

The story of how Miss Trenholme got her start is something even a Hollywood script editor would reject as being highly improbable. During last winter Miss Trenholme came to New York to find a place on the dramatic stage. She hadn't given a thought to pictures. Her one remote connection with the theatrical business was through a relative who knew Mitchell Rawson, publicity manager for Warner Brothers in New York. Miss Trenholme and relative visited Mr. Rawson's office one day to seek advice as to how to get a part in a stage production. During the subsequent discussion, the eastern casting representative for Warners—Mildred Weber by name—walked into the office. Miss Weber observed Miss Trenholme's face intently for a few minutes and then offered her a screen test.

Much to Miss Weber's amazement, the Montrealer reiterated her intention of appearing on the stage and firmly refused to consider a test. Miss Trenholme finally achieved her ambition. She was given a smal part in a play called 'Strange Orchestra.' It was a lovely play but no one seemed to like it. It opened and closed the same night. The Warner sleuths, however, were on the job. They observed Miss Trenholme on the stage followed her backstage after the performance, and in the hour of her bitterness they again offered her a screen test.

This time she succumbed. The rest was plain sailing. The test was duly received in Hollywood, contracts were hurriedly thrust before Miss Trenholme's nose and before she knew it she was on the Twentieth Century Limited, westbound.

Knows What She Wants

The story sounds a bit far-fetched and somewhat different from other versions I have heard, but it came to me the other day from the lips of Mitchell Rawson himself, and Mr. Rawson told his story with gestures. He even pointed out the very spot in his office where Miss Trenhome sat. He was so overcome with enthusiasm that I shouldn't be surprised if a monument or at least a plaque were placed on the spot.

Helen Trenholme is not a screen-struck girl. She knows what she wants out of life and she is sacrificing nothing for her movie career. When she signed the movie contract, she insisted that it stipulate a six-months holiday after her first two pictures. The second film was completed a month ago, and three weeks ago in Montreal Miss Trenholme became Mrs. Denis Smythe, wife of the Washington correspondent of the London Morning Post. Miss Trenholme the actress will be Mrs. Smyth for six months before she resumes her place before the cameras. They are honeymooning in Bermuda.

The Canadian's second film, not yet released, is entitled "Firebird" and features Veree Teasdale as well as Helen Trenholme.

Ontario Air Service Cuts Flying Hours

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 30 (C.P.).—Reduction in the number of hours' flying this past season by the Ontario Provincial Air Service was reported here to-day. Aeroplanes of the service were in the air for 6,912 hours during the past year, a reduction of about 1,800 hours from the previous season.

The difference might have been even greater, it was stated, had not 300 hours' flying by four transport aircraft on a Hydro project near Sioux Lookout helped to boost the total.

Pilot H. R. Phillips, stationed at the Sault, lead the flyers in individual performance with 564 hours and 40 minutes in the area. Second longest time was achieved by Pilot J. G. Twist, who has flown out of Biscoe and the Sault. His total is 520 hours and 40 minutes. Pilot Carl Crossley of Biscoe is third with 496 hours.

COHAN VISITS HIS HOME TOWN

Town Hall is Sold Out and 1,000 Stand in Cold Listening to Amplifiers.

GETS GREAT RECEPTION.

NORTH BROOKFIELD, Mass., Oct. 30. (AP).—George M. Cohan has added main street to his conquests.

"The man who owns Broadway" came home last night to play before the most appreciative audience he ever faced.

It took but a nod of his head, a smile, the mere lifting of an eyebrow, to bring down the house. Hand clapping was inadequate. Those who knew him as a boy stamped their feet, whistled and shouted their approval.

There were 550-odd packed into the 70-year-old town hall, and outside, in a cold, biting wind, 1,000 more heard "Georgie" through amplifiers.

It was the fulfilment of a promise Cohan made to himself a long time ago. He had said that some day he would "go back home" and put on a show for "the folks".

So it was that Cohan came with Eugene O'Neill's "Ah Wilderness" and 16 members of the company.

The play witnessed by those lucky enough to obtain seats—tickets sold out in 15 minutes—was the strangest North Brookfield has seen. Without costumes, without scenery, without makeup — even minus many of its most important atmospheric props — the company gave a performance that held indoor and outdoor audiences enthralled for two hours.

Into his performance Cohan put all the skill he had learned in more than 40 years on the stage, a career begun on the very stage on which he played last night.

NO RESIGNATION BEEN PARALLEL TO H. H. STEVENS'

Hon. Geo. Brown First to Quit Dominion Cabinet—Resented Minor Portfolio.

MANY IN LAURIER'S RULE.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30 (CP)—Canadian administrations in the past have not been free from resignations, although in the majority of instances these have been due to ill-health, or ill-health was, at least, the reason officially given. Some exceptions are on record, but none provide an exact parallel to the circumstances of Mr. Stevens' resignation.

In 1902 Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Minister of Public Works in the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was requested to resign his portfolio. Mr. Tarte's "crime" was that of publicly advocating policies of high protection without having first consulted his colleagues. Sir Wilfrid was attending the Imperial Conference of 1902 when Mr. Tarte in a number of addresses urged the necessity of higher tariffs.

On his return from England, Sir Wilfrid, pointing to the course which Mr. Tarte ought to have taken and recalling the principle of collective Cabinet responsibility, asked for and received the latter's resignation.

Brown Headed List

The first resignation from a Dominion Government was that of Hon. George Brown from the Confederation Cabinet of Sir John A. Macdonald. Mr. Brown, resenting the minor portfolio to which he had been assigned and regarding this as something of a slight, separated himself from the first government of the Dominion.

Hon. A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Cabinet, resigned following a disagreement with his leader over the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway. Mr. Blair was then appointed Chief Commissioner of the then reconstituted Board of Railway Commissioners.

Sir Hector Langevin, Minister of Public Works in the administration of Sir John A. MacDonald, resigned following an investigation into his department.

The cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier between 1896 and 1911 was fertile in Cabinet withdrawals. In addition to Mr. Tarte, and Mr. Blair there were resignations by Sir Clifford Sifton, Sir William Mulock and Hon. H. R. Emerson.

During the war Sir Sam Hughes, tile in Cabinet withdrawals. In addin the matter of war expenditures, was asked in 1917 to resign his portfolio as Minister of Militia.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK — By R. J. Scott

INOCULATION FOR DIPHTHERIA IS AVAILABLE IN SEPARATE SCHOOLS

Dr. A. W. McPherson to Supervise Work in Separate Schools.

PLANS ARE UNDER WAY

Separate school authorities have decided to make diphtheria inoculation available to all school children under their jurisdiction, within the city, according to announcement to-day by Dr. G. Murray Fraser, medical officer of health.

"Definite plans are under way to immunize children of the separate schools against diphtheria, and provision is also to be made for parents to submit children of preschool age by bringing them to the schools for inoculation," the M.O.H. stated. He added that further announcement would be made through the press beforehand.

Significance of the willingness of the separate school authorities to fall in with the suggestion which was originally made by Dr. Fraser, is that now every school child in the city, both public and separate will be protected against diphtheria.

Supervise Work

Dr. A. W. McPherson, school medical officer, who has charge of the health of the public school children will also supervised the work of inoculating the childen of the separate schools. At present he is just completing his periodic inoculation in the public schools and will be prepared in the course of a few days to proceed with inoculations in the separate schools.

"In spite of the fact that we, today have a more complete knowledge of the prevention, control and care of diphtheria, than we have of almost any other disease to which man is susceptible, diphtheria is still an important cause of death and illness in the province," Ontario Department of Health literature on the subject points out.

Death Rate Reduced

"In diphtheria antitoxin there is a remedy for the disease that has shown spectacular results. Its use has re duced the death rate from 42 per hundred thousand in 1896, to 3 per hundred thousand in 1932. It has been supplied free to people of the province by the Department since 1916, and its use has removed many of the terrors with which it was formerly regarded."

"The toxoid used to assist in fighting against diphtheria is a preparation to protect a child, and prevent him from contracting diphtheria."

"Diphtheria toxoid is a clear, straw-colored liquid. It contains the material which, after injection into the individual produces within the blood sufficient protective bodies to prevent his contracting the disease. It does not contain the serum of any animal.

"Results from the successful use of toxoid in the province over a period of eight years, during which time approximately 500,000 children have been treated without any harmful after-effect, indicate that the preparation is safe.

"That toxoid is effective in reducing the amount of diphtheria present in a community is evidenced by the figures showing the number of cases in four municipalities where parents have taken advantage of this protection of their children."

	1921	1932
Peterborough	160	1
Hamilton	596	1
Brantford	103	1
St. Catharines	141	7

"Toxoid is given as an injection of about one-quarter of a teaspoonful in three doses. It is given under the skin of the upper arm, and each dose is given three weeks apart. In a great majority of cases, especially in children under six to eight years of age there is no discomfort following the injection. Experience in Ontario has shown between ninety to ninety-five per cent of children are protected against diphtheria by three doses of toxoid, four to six months after the last dose has been given.

Dr. Fraser urges parents to carefully consider the advisability of giving their children the benefits of protection against diphtheria.

The Health Department bulletin remarks, "It is one of the best forms of health insurance against diphtheria with a very small premium, namely, three small injections. Consult your family physician with respect to this matter, and co-operate with the school clinic by having your children protected in this way and help to banish diphtheria from the schools."

Buys Divorce

LADY SHOLTO DOUGLAS

A sensation in London's social circles occurred when Lord Sholto Douglas sued his former wife (above) for payments allegedly promised him for divorcing her in 1924. Lady Douglas is stated to have admitted the divorce evidence was fabricated.

Anniversary Held Centreville Church

CENTREVILLE, Oct. 30 (Examiner Correspondence)—Anniversary services were held in Centreville Presbyterian Church on Sunday. The guest preacher was the Rev. D. A. Ferguson, B.A., of Port Perry. Large congregations were present and listened attentively to interesting and helpful discourses.

The church was artistically decorated. The text in the morning was the second verse of the third chapter of Exodus. The choir rendered special music at each service.

At the morning service the following special numbers were given: a solo "Hear not ye O Israel" by McIntosh Bradshaw; a quartet "Beneath the Cross of Jesus," by Mrs. O. B. Johnston, Miss Allie Berry and George Berry and Jack Isbister; an anthem by the choir, "I Will Magnify Thee."

The text in the evening was Matthew 14th chapter, 28th verse. The special music was: trio, "Oh God Our Help in Ages Past" by Miss Allie Berry and Messrs. Jake Isbister and George Berry; solo, "Face to Face" by Mr. McIntosh Bradshaw; anthem, "Lord of All Being."

Rev. Mr. Ferguson was entertained at the home of James Hutchinson.

Among the many visitors at the services were Mrs. (Rev.) Franklin Bannister, of Canton and Mr. and Mrs. Kerr and family, Millbrook were guests of Mrs. Stewart Hall.

Miss Price, Peterborough spent Sunday with Miss Jessie Deyell.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Fisher and children of Bensfort visited Mrs. George Berry.

Rev. W. G. Rivers, Madoc and Messrs. Raymond and Gray Rivers, Toronto were week-end guests of Mr. O. B. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson of Camborne visited her father, Mr. T. Donaldson.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dawson and family of Otonabee and Mrs. W. Dawson spent Sunday with Miss Minnie Fair.

Mrs. (Rev.) D. A. McKenzie visited Mrs. John McKague of Cobourg on Friday.

Mr. and Miss Rossvear of Cold Springs visited Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Whittington of Otonabee were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thorn.

Miss Kathleen Isbister of Peterborough spent Sunday at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Cooper spent the week-end in Cobourg.

Misses Grace Johnson, Allie Berry, Gurn Hutchinson, Agnes Breckenridge, Beatrice Jones and Mr. Dickson Hutchinson and Rev. D. A. McKenzie attended the Presbyterial banquet of the Y.P.S. in Cobourg on Friday evening.

Young Couple Are Honored By Friends

CAVAN, Oct. 30 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Friday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Staples was the scene of a pleasant social event, when friends and neighbors numbering about one hundred, gathered in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Staples, whose marriage was recently announced.

Ralph Staples read an original and interesting address and Melville Perrin and Archie Matchett presented them with a beautiful clock, and an upholstered rattan settee.

Mr. Staples on behalf of his wife and himself made a suitable reply after which the time-honored "For they are jolly good fellows" was sung.

The Todd family supplied good music for dancing. A bountiful lunch was served by the visitors before midnight.

FINE GRAIN YIELDS BURNBRAE DISTRICT

John W. Rannie Tops List With Three Thousand and Eight Bushels of Oats, Barley.

BURNBRAE, Oct. 30.—(Examiner Correspondence).—With the threshing season about ended in the Burnbrae district, some very fine grain yields have been reported, especially from the Menie district, where John W. Rannie tops the list with three thousand and eight bushels of oats and barley. R. Craighead with 2,300 bushels and L. J. Watson and Sons with 2,725 are second and third to date. George Ingram with almost 2,400 bushels, E. Eagleson with 2,100 and J. C. Nelson and Son 2,000 bushels are among those with worthwhile crops. Most of the farmers operate farms of 200 or more acres. One of the outstanding averages for the year was secured by W. S. Milne and Sons on the farm owned by Andrew Milne, west of Menie, where 1,020 bushels of oats were threshed from 18 acres.

Just across the county line in Rawdon Township Mr. L. Pollock, brother of E. C. Pollock, of Burnbrae, threshed 3,300 bushels on his 200-acre farm.

Full silos, overflowing straw mows and an abundance of grain, with a better than average root crop, go to make the majority of Burnbrae farmers fairly independent as regards feed for the winter season. Dairy herds that ordinarily receive hay three times a day will be forced to vary the diet with straw and grain, but no real hardship should result from feed shortage here as the winter feeding will not commence as early as in the autumn of 1933 when snow covered the ground during the last week of October.

Some large yields of mangels are noted throughout the district with yields in many cases exceeding one thousand bushels per acre. A few farmers have already harvested turnips and report fairly good yields, although the dry weather of late summer retarded the growth. Potatoes have yielded exceptionally well, but the price is away below cost of production.

While the cheese factories are all in operation, yet the recent slump in cheese prices has caused some unrest among the patrons. An exceptionally heavy flow of milk for this season of the year, with little or no supplementary feeding, is proving a boon to many a hard-pressed dairy farmer.

POST ENDS HUNTING TRIP.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 29 (C.P.).—Wiley Post, famous American aviator, arrived here during the week-end from Alaska and announced he plans to make another attempt at an altitude record in the near future.

Post, returning from a hunting trip in the north and en route to New York, said he was working on an invention which he believed would aid him in his record attempt.

Lakefield

Miss Claire Connell entertained a number of her young friends on Friday at a masquerade party with a decided Hallowe'en flavour. The younger set were there in full force and spent a very delightful evening. There were a number of highly original costumes and many of them very funny so that laughter mingled with music and song in a very successful social event.

Fourteen tables of euchre and a table of crokinole were played at the party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moore in Douro, on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Women's Institute. The party which was the second of a series of three being held this Fall, was a great success in every particular. Prizes were won by Mrs Kendal, Mrs. C. W. Garbutt and Mr. G. W. Payne and Donald Yale.

The Chautauqua was inaugurated on Saturday afternoon by a big parade of children, all in fancy costume and bringing residents of Queen and Regent streets out in full force. Dozens of youngsters in original, funny or makeshift outfits in a throng which brought to mind the mass approval of the Hallowe'en season. The Chautauqua representative was mistress of ceremonies and awarded the prizes.

The first annual rugby dance is being put on on Thursday evening in the Town Hall by the High School Athletic Association. They have engaged Wilson's orchestra for the occasion.

The Junior Auxiliary of St. John's Church held a successful sale of home cooking and afternoon tea on Saturday afternoon in the Parish Hall with Miss Winnie Payne in charge. Miss Payne was assisted by some of the members of the W.A. and the financial returns were most gratifying. Miss Payne is leader of the group of little girls. Other officers are: Honorary president, Mrs. W. J. Creighton; President, Eleanor Edwards; Vice-president, Mary Wong; Secretary, Alice Chappell; Treasurer, Miss W. A. Payne; Dorcas committee, Madeline Morin and Marion Trust.

The annual Hallowe'en party of the A.Y.P.A. will be a feature of Friday evening, November 2nd. There is a strong committee in charge and a good program is assured.

Mrs. Lovevs of Toronto is the guest of Miss M. Sanderson.

Mr. H. G. Simpson of Toronto spent the week-end at his home in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Elldeath were in Peterborough on Saturday.

Mrs. H. J. Stuart is visiting friends in Peterborough.

Miss K. Applebee and Miss Grace Sutherland of Oakville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Langley last week.

Rev. and Mrs. T. W. Wesley and son Kenneth of Camborne were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. [illegible] on Tuesday last.

Mrs. J. W. Easson and son Johnny of Toronto were guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Langley for a few days last week.

Sewing Circle Held Successful Bazaar

The ladies of the Centre Sewing Circle of Knox United Church held a very successful small bazaar in the store at 392 George street on Friday and Saturday.

The window was bright with many pretty articles collected by the ladies, with a novel feature in the little "joy logs" for Christmas use. These red and green oblongs, carefully compounded, when placed on a lighted grate fire, burn with prettily colored flames and make a pleasing novelty for the Yuletide hearth.

Mrs. John Allen and Mrs. J. Penrose were joint convenors of the sale, while Mrs. J. Foster was in charge of the tea room, where the little tables were decorated with Hallowe'en colors and novelties, which were also used in the arrangement of the entire interior.

Assisting in the tea room were Mrs. H. Williams and Mrs. A. Carter; the sale of cooking was supervised by Mrs. O. Bennett and Mrs. R. Laing; and Mrs. J. Lancashire looked after the fish pond.

A novel addition to the program of the bazaar was the inclusion of a quilting bee, with all the above named ladies taking part, as well as Mesdames W. Carter, A. Finney, Greenwood, R. Henry, T. Johnson, Milburn, J. Garside, A. Sanderson, and the Misses Catherine and Jean Menzies and Alice Dawson.

American tourists in the United Kingdom during August outnumbered those of any other country.

PIMPLES?
OILY SKIN?
LARGE PORES?
BLACKHEADS?
RED ROUGH HANDS?

MILLIONS END UGLY SKIN FAULTS

—with this famous "miracle cream"

THE smartest dress, the most appealing personality, lose their charm if your complexion is blemished or your hands red and rough.

That's why countless women now use Noxzema Cream regularly — for faces and hands. For Noxzema is a "skin medicine in cream form — designed especially to correct skin troubles and to restore the skin to normal, healthy beauty."

Ordinary creams fail to correct pimples, oiliness, large pores or blemishes. A medicated cream is needed to purge the skin of clogged impurities —to soothe and heal sore, tender skin —to refine roughened texture. Noxzema does all this.

Use Noxzema Cream every night for a week after removing make-up—and during the day as a powder base. How much softer, smoother, lovelier your complexion will become.

For beautiful hands, too

Noxzema is just as helpful for hands. If your hands are red and rough, make this test. Apply Noxzema on one hand tonight; compare the two hands in the morning. Feel and see how much smoother and whiter is the hand on which you used Noxzema.

Special Anniversary Offer

For a limited time only you can get an economical 83¢ jar of Noxzema at a big saving. For this limited time, the price is reduced to only 59¢! What a marvelous opportunity to gain a clearer, lovelier skin—and smoother, whiter hands as well—for exceptionally low cost!

SAVE 24¢

Clip this now as a reminder to get your jar of Noxzema while this Anniversary Offer lasts! A large 83¢ jar for only 59¢—double value compared to small size jars! Get your jar at

Father's Vow In Death Find Boys Who Lead Son

CHICAGO.—There is just one purpose now in the life of Edward J. Stell: "To find the boys who led his son into a career of crime—and death at 16. The elder Stell, a contractor of Omaha, came to Chicago to identify the body of his son, Maurice. He said: "Yes, that is my son's body. He got into trouble by associating with boys of whom I knew nothing. Now I am going to devote all of my time to running down the ringleaders of the band. The boys who led my son on the wrong path are responsible for his death." Maurice Stell was one of two bandits killed in a pistol battle with Detectives Joseph Lamb and William Newton in a tavern here.

Stoneless Cemeteries —The Very Last Word

CHICAGO.—Old-time cemeteries, with their imposing monuments and statutary, are passing. The cemeteries of the future will be beautiful memorial parks, with only bronze plaques marking the graves. That is the firm belief of the members of the American Cemetery Owners' Association, who have established 600 no-monument cemeteries in the past few years. Said Secretary Roy Hatten of Ann Arbor, here for the association's regional code meeting at the Morrison Hotel: "The beautifully landscaped no-monument cemeteries are things of beauty, an inspiration to relatives. They reflect good taste."

OFFICER CLAIMS BLOODY CLOTHES WORN BY YOUTH

Smears Found on Barn Floor, Axe and Sleigh of Slain Grandfather.

BODY FOUND ON ROAD.

Accused, Pale But Composed, Enters Plea of "Not Guilty."

WALKERTON, Ont., Oct. 31.—(CP)—A provincial policeman today described from the witness stand how he had found bloodstains on the clothing of Earl Leffler, 19-year-old Carrick Township youth, who went on trial today on a charge of murdering his aged grandfather, Phillip Stroh, farmer in whose home he lived.

The constable, Otto McLevis, described a search he and other officers made of the Stroh barn after discovery of the 68-year-old farmer's body on the roadside by two motorists. He said the body was covered with chaff such as is found on barn floors and that the barn contained a bloodstained sleigh, blood stains on the floor and an axe which had been placed in a grain bin.

On the axe, he declared, were bloodstains and gray hair, despite the fact the instrument appeared to have been washed.

He said he directed the beam of his flashlight on Leffler during the search of the barn and discovered bloodstains on his clothing and boots. In the house, he claimed, Constable Ferguson, his colleague, had found a towel into which holes had been cut to remove bloodstained portions.

Pleads Not Guilty.

Neatly dressed in blue suit and green shirt, with a red handkerchief tucked jauntily in his breast pocket, his hair slicked down, pale but composed, Earl Leffler was brought into the court, and in a steady voice said, "I am not guilty," as the clerk of the court read the charge of murder.

The court then proceeded with the selection of the jury.

FRANCE READY FOR NAZI DRIVE IN SAAR REGION

Will Crush Any Rising — Troops, Garrisons Prepared Along Border.

GERMANS CONCENTRATE.

Labor Camps Reported Ready to Hurl 17,000 Into Area on Election Day.

(By Melvin K. Whiteleather.)

PARIS, October 31 (A.P.). — France has notified Great Britain she has made all preparations to crush any attempt at a Nazi putsch in the Saar Region, it was learned to-day.

Charles Corbin, the French Ambassador to London, outlined to Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, technical measures taken by France to place at the disposal of the League of Nations forces necessary to prevent any subversive action.

The Saar votes on January 13 on whether to rejoin Germany, unite with France or remain under the League's mandate.

Rumors in France of activities of Nazis in the Saar were intensified. The French General Staff has ordered garrisons in Alsace-Lorraine to be prepared for duty protecting French interests.

Recruits have been trained swiftly in the area. Several regiments are regularly stationed near the Saar frontier.

Anti-Nazis in the Saar reported rumors 17,000 Nazis now in labor camps across the German frontier planned a putsch on the night of the election, regardless of its outcome.

Under the Treaty of Versailles, French troops may enter the territory, but the Foreign Office said this action would not be taken unless the League asks aid in maintaining order.

AS LOW AS $75.

Minimum Price of Three Cents a Pound Suggested to Probe.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—(CP)—Competition among fish buyers in Digby County, N.S., is practicaly unknown, the mass buying commission was told today by Lewis V. Bailey, a fisherman of Westport. The Maritime Fish Corporation, he said, bought almost all fish in the county and competitve prices were unknown.

For the second straight day the commission investigated conditions in the Nova Scotia fishing industry. Mr. Bailey said low prices was the primary cause for the industry to be at such low levels.

"Are low prices due to want of competition among buyers," asked Norman Sommerville, commission counsel.

"I don't thing there are any doubts about it," replied Mr. Bailey.

Three Cents a Pound

A minimum price of three cents a pound on the average for cod and haddock was suggested by Mr. Bailey as a necessary step before the industry would regain its feet. He also recommended construction of a cold storage plant in the Westport area to assist fishermen in keeping bait in fresh condition.

Burton L. Wilcox, of Louisburg described conditions among fishermen on Cape Breton Island. He said Louisburg fishermen last year averaged about $175 last year as net earnings while St. Peters and North Sydney fell to $100 and Glace Bay as low as $75. These returns forc-

MISSING CLERIC FOUND IN CABIN

Alive and Well After Guides and Bloodhounds Seek Trail Two Days.

HUNTING PARTRIDGE.

WINDSOR, N.S., Oct. 31.—(C.P.)—Alone in a forest cabin, Rev. Henry A. Harley, 83 year old retired Anglican minister, was found to-day by searchers who had sought him through the dense Chester road woods for more than 24 hours.

Though tired and hungry, the aged cleric appeared little the worse for his two day experience in the woods. His remarkable vigor had enabled him to stand the rigors of two bitterly cold nights with little ill effect.

He had been missing since Monday evening, hours after he left home to hunt partridges. An active hunter, despite his advanced years, he went into the woods alone after telling a guide he would head for the home of William Palmer for supper.

When word came that he had failed to turn up there, search was begun. More than 200 persons entered the forest in the search yesterday, but guides and a bloodhound failed to follow the trail.

To-day two residents of the district near Little Armstrong Lake—Fred Swinnimer and Louis Hogan—found him in a cabin used by the Hogan family on hunting trips. It was four miles from the nearest road.

A telephone message from the Hogan home said only the veteran minister was alive and well, but too tired as yet to attempt the long walk out of the woods. Since leaving home he must have tramped miles and his food must have been exhausted, for he carried only a few sandwiches when he set out.

NOT AN OFFENCE

HAMILTON, Oct. 31 (CP)—That a person driving a motor car through a pool of water, the spray from which bespatters the clothing of pedestrians is not liable under the Vagrancy Act, is the ruling of Judge Thomson, in granting the appeal of Harry Barasse against a conviction by Magistrate H. H. Burbidge.

A Break!

WINDSOR, Oct. 31 (CP)—The story of a Windsor man who went north under the Government's Land Settlement scheme and struck goal was told by Acting Mayor John Duck to-day.

Mr. Duck heard it from a physician in whose debt this man was. The physician despaired of ever collecting the money until a few days ago when in walked the man with a wad of bills.

"I thought they sent you to a farm in the north," said the surprised doctor.

"They did," was the reply. "But I staked a couple of claims that turned out all right. Now I am set up in business here again."

TWO SHIPS SINK OFF ANTICOSTI SEAMEN MISSING

One is Drowned From Schooner—Steamer Goes Down With All Hands.

WRECKAGE CAST ASHORE.

HALIFAX, Oct. 31 (CP)—Mystery shrouded the fate of perhaps a half dozen seamen to-day as wireless messages telling of the sinking of two ships off Anticosti Island recounted the rescue of only part of the crew of one vessel.

The messages, picked up by the East Coast Radio Signal Service, said the steamship Roy David and an unnamed schooner had foundered off the island, with all but one of the schooner's crew making land.

Of the steamer's complement there came no word and it was feared here she had gone to the bottom with all hands. All that remained of her to-day were floating drums of coal oil and fresh vegetables, which came drifting ashore with scattered bits of wreckage.

No indication of the causes of the wrecks was given in the brief messages received here from Signal Service's station at Ellis Bay, but it appeared likely both craft had been caught in a gulf of St. Lawrence storm.

The Roy David apparently was a small steamship, for she is not listed in Lloyd's register and other available shipping records.

500 Seats Available For Boxing And Show

The Kinsmen Hallowe'en masquerade carnival and entertainment extraordinary is here. The zero hour is at 7.45 p.m. sharp, when the program of fun and frivolity is timed to get away with boxing bouts as the opening feature. A fashion show, under auspices of The Canadian Department Stores, follows at 9 o'clock, and dancing continues from 9.30 o'clock until an indefinite hour.

Five hundred ring seats are being provided for the big boxing and wrestling card. There is plenty of room available at the Armouries, and the program has been so designed to provide popular appeal to both city and district.

Other items on the program include a novel clog dancing contest, open to all comers, and for which a cash prize is being offered. Other cash prizes are being awarded as a door prize, and for the best fancy and comic costumes. Proceeds go for eye clinic work.

Measles Strike 1,000 Glace Bay Children

GLACE BAY, N.S., Oct. 31.—(C.P.)—Two councillors and medical men worked to-day to offset an epidemic of measles which had effected 1,000 school children and claimed two lives.

School bells did not ring in seven town educational institutions this morning and the council, on recommendation of Dr. Bruce Archibald, health officer, closed churches and theatres to children under 15 years of age.

Between 300 and 400 children were absent from St. Anne's school with measles, the school supervisor reported at a meeting of the town council last night; 160 were staying away from St. Anthony's, 175 from Caledonia, 70 from Brookside, 40 from South Street, 125 from Central and 32 from Sterling school.

NO CANADIANS HOLD TICKETS SWEEP LEADERS

Wychwood Abbot Leads Field in Famous Newmarket Turf Classic.

COMMANDER III SECOND.

Many Americans Hold Tickets on Money Winners—$150,000 Richer.

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 31 (C.P. Cable).—The favorite, Wychwood Abbot, won the historic Cambridgeshire Stakes this afternoon, with Commander III. second, and Highlander third in the field of 33.

Wychwood Abbot raced the distance of a mile and an eighth in the last great race of the dying flat-racing season under an impost of 118 pounds, 15 pounds under top weight of 133 allotted to Denbigh. He is owned by O. V. Whatney and was ridden by Ferryman.

Commander III. carried 116 pounds in the silks of A. B. Briscoe, with Jockey Harry Beasley up. Highlander, owned by Lord Derby, and ridden by the veteran Weston, carried 114 pounds.

NO CANADIANS HOLD TICKETS.

DUBLIN, Oct. 31.—(C. P. Cable.)—No Canadians drew tickets in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes on today's Cambridgeshire Handicap on either the first, second or third horses which carry major prizes.

$150,000 RICHER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(A.P.) — Three Americans each were $150,000 wealthier to-day by the victory of Wychwood Abbott at Newmarket in the Cambridgeshire Handicap.

Holders of tickets on Wychwood Abbot in the United States were: Mrs. E. Fenz, Maspeth, L.I., Ming Mac Nesson, Astoria, L.I., and a person who signed his ticket with the nom de plume, "Never Quiet," New York.

Eight Irish Hospital Sweepstake tickets were held in the United States on Commander III who came in second in the race and each of these tickets will pay the owners $75,000.

On Highlander, the horse which came in third, four tickets were held in the United States and each of these tickets pays the holder $50,000.

TREE SAVES LIFE BANDIT VICTIM

Gunmen Angered at $2 Haul Chase Man Over Cliff—Pelt Him With Rock.

WIFE GETS POLICE.

ALPINE, N.J., Oct. 31. (AP).—Russell Hey, who knows what it feels like to cling to a ledge 300 feet above ground while two angry bandits hurl rocks from the cliff overhead, is safe and sound to-day in Englewood Hospital.

Bruised, shocked but otherwise unhurt, Hey was rushed to the hospital last night after a harrowing encounter with a pair of hold-up men who became enraged, he told police, and chased him off the edge of the palisades, because he had only $2.

A ledge less than a foot wide caught him 15 feet from the top of the highest point in the grim, gray cliffs which tower over the Jersey shore of the Hudson.

There Hey clung desperately to a tiny tree while his tormentors pelted thm with rocks. The screams of the victim's wife, Lucille, brought help, however, and the hold-up men fled, leaving the two dollars lying on the ground.

Passersby stopped and shouted encouragement to Hey until police pulled him to safety with ropes.

Hey, 44, who lives in Bogota, told police he was riding with his wife and parked his car just north of Point Lookout when the men, one of them armed, demanded his money.

FALL DOWN STAIRS FATAL.

WINDSOR. — Injuries suffered when he fell down a flight of stairs caused the death in hospital to-day of Walter Brown, 54, a machinist. He is believed to have tripped on a metal guard. He died without regaining consciousnses. An investigation has been ordered.

Giving Spirit

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 31.—(CP) — When Rev. A. E. Doan, pastor of Grace United Church at Essex set out to make up a railway car of clothing and produce for shipment to the Saskatchewan drought area, he accomplished something far beyond his expectations. He started loading the car on a siding here yesterday and his plea for donations met such a response he was forced to charter another car to take care of all the stuff that came in. Sixty tons in all were received.

NAVAL EQUALITY REFUSED JAPAN BY BRITAIN, U. S.

Proposals Will Not Be Approved Under Any Consideration Say Officials.

MAY SPLIT TREATY.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 31. (AP)—The British and American delegates to the preliminary naval treaty conversations to-day rejected as impossible suggestions made by Ambassador Saito of Japan in Washington that Japan be granted a naval tonnage equality on an installment plan.

Spokesmen for both the British and United States delegations asserted that tonnage equality will not be approved under any consideration since Great Britain and the United States stand firmly behind the continuance of the present ratios of the three nations.

Under these ratios, Great Britain and the United States are given approximately the same tonnages while that of Japan is three-fifths as large as either of the others.

As this stand was announced, it was learned authoritatively, that the Japanese delegation is advising the British and United States delegations that Japan will denounce the Washington Naval Treaty on which the 5-5-3 ratio is based before the end of the year, thereby terminating the agreement at the end of 1936.

This action has been expected for some time by the other delegations, since the Japanese proposals now under consideration suggest a new treaty to replace that of Washington.

The British are keeping the Dominions informed of the progress of the conversations here and have at times received advice from them on certain defence questions.

King Boris Saves His Engineer's Life

SOFIA, Bulgaria, October 31 (A.P.). — King Boris' passion for locomotives and things mechanical has probably saved the life of a railroad engineer.

When fire broke out in a coal tender yesterday the King left his special car, pulled burning garments from the engineer's body, and arranged medical care for him. Then he drove the locomotive more than 100 miles into Varna.

Physicians said the engineer probably would recover. Officials denied reports a bomb caused the fire in the locomotive, pointing out that the engine suffered no damage.

THIRD AVIATOR FALLS TO DEATH AT CAMP BORDEN

Toronto Ship Hits Building in Fatal Plunge With Instructor and Pupil.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—(C. P.)—Flying Instructor O'Brien Saint and his pupil, S. W. Hand, of Agincourt, near Toronto, were killed today when their plane crashed a short distance from the flying field of the Toronto Flying club.

The cause of the accident was not determined.

In falling the plane struck a building on the Connaught laboratories farm, near Dufferin street and north of the city limits. The building was damaged and the plane demolished when it crashed.

Camp Borden Flier Victim

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., Oct. 31.—(CP)—Sergeant V. S. Roberts of the Royal Canadian Air Force was killed today in the crash of a Siskin fighting aeroplane which he was flying alone.

Officers of the Air Force said the machine fell out of control and that Roberts failed to jump with his parachute. A court of inquiry began an immediate investigation into the accident.

Robert was a son of F. B. Roberts of McKeller townsite, Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (CP)—Sgt. Vivian Roberts, who was killed in an aeroplane crash to Camp Borden to-day, is the only son of Sydney Victor Roberts, Comptroller of the Treasury here, and Mrs. Roberts His parents have lived in Ottawa for the past seven years, but Sgt. Roberts himself never lived here with the exception of last winter when he took a photographic course at Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters here.

Educated in B. C.

Born in Winnipeg 26 years ago, he moved to Oak Bay, B.C., with his parents, and there received his education. He entered the Royal Canadian Air Force seven years ago at Camp Borden, serving the first three years as a mechanic, and afterwards as an N.C.O., pilot. With the exception of last winter spent here, he had always been stationed at either Camp Borden or Trenton air stations.

Sgt. Roberts was elected to fly a transport plane in the Royal Canadian Air Force coast-to-coast flight three years ago.

THREE HOTELS HAVE LICENSES

No Alarm is Felt by Other Hotelmen as Licenses Expire.

With the old licenses expiring at midnight to-night, only three local hotels—the Montreal House, King's Hotel and the Windsor Hotel—reported having received renewals when inquiries were made this morning. No alarm was felt by other hotelmen, however, as they are confident that the authorities will arrive in time to avoid interruptions in business.

Each of the hotels operating beverage rooms made applications for renewals during the past ten days. In view of Commissioner Odette's announcement that the task of issuing the renewals would not be completed until late to-day, the proprietors still without new licenses will look for them in the mails to-morrow. The three renewals here arrived this morning.

Montreal House.

Commenting on the renewal of the Montreal House license in the face of a protest by a nearby church, Manager Jack Loucks said he understood that the commission had investigated the complaints and found them without foundation. Residents in the vicinity of the hotel are not opposed to the operation of the room, he claimed and declared further that his beverage room had been handled in as orderly a fashion as any in the city.

The initial $300 fee paid for the renewal will entitle the proprietors to sell beer in beverage rooms and dining rooms up to $5.000 in value. Beyond $5,000 mark, a 5 per cent tariff on sales is to be levied, according to the recently-announced regulations.

Liquor Board Probe Assured

SLAGHT TO ACT COUNSEL'S PART WITHOUT PAY

GEO. WILKIE GETS POST.

17 O.A.C. Employees Fired—Tory Letter Asks Henry to Resign Leadership.

TORONTO, October 31 (C. P.).—Charges of a "toll gate" within the circles of the Ontario Liquor Commission that rang through the Provincial election campaign in June will be sifted by a Royal Commission. During a day of political announcements, the Ontario Government yesterday revealed plans for an inquiry under Judge Duncan C. Ross of the County Court at St. Thomas.

While the battle was being waged last June from the Liberal ranks came accusations that a distiller was called on to pay a commission before he could place his product with the Government stores. Denials came from the members of the Conservative Government that went down to defeat on June 19, and the Liberal Government now plans to probe the workings of the Liquor Commission under the Conservative regime.

Arthur G Slaght, K.C., of Toronto, will act as commission counsel without pay, and the inquiry will start probably next week. All transactions "or negotiations for transactions" up until January 1, 1934, will come under the eye of the commission which will also study, according to the Order-in-Council calling for the inquiry, "the conduct or activities of all agencies, subagencies, representatives, middlemen or persons dealing or purporting to deal with the board."

Axe Continues to Fall.

The political announcements by the Government yesterday included

NEW T.N.O. HEAD IS APPOINTED

A. H. Cavanagh of Barrie, Will Occupy Post of General Manager.

SUCCEEDS LEE.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—Appointment of Arthur H. Cavanagh of Barrie as general manager of the newly-organized Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway was announced yesterday by Premier Hepburn, chairman of the railway commission.

Mr. Cavanagh has had 25 years' service with the Canadian National Railway, in various capacities, but latterly has been district superintendent of the Allandale division.

His salary, Mr. Hepburn announced, would be $10,000 a year, "with no perquisites attached." He will act as general manager for the Nipissing Central Branch of the T. and N.O., as well, with no additional salary.

One of Mr. Cavanah's first undertakings will be a complete survey of the railway and its activities. He will then report back to the commission, when steps will be taken to implement his recommendations. The first meeting of the new commission was held at Queen's Park yesterday.

OLD-TIMER PASSES.

United Counties Are Being Sued, $25,000

COBOURG, Oct. 31.—Notice of a writ for damages against the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham as an outcome of the death of Albert Thair of Scarboro who was almost instantly killed in an accident on the county road at Baltimore, Friday, October 12, has been issued by Alfred J. Skeans.

Mr. Thair and a companion were returning from a fishing trip and were driving in a truck down the Roseneath-Cobourg road. The truck upset at a sharp turn in the road near Baltimore, and Mr. Thair died of a broken neck.

Mr. Skeans intimated that the damage claim would be for $25,000, and the suit would allege that the united counties were negligent in the fact that the road was loosely gravelled at the place where the accident happened.

Nurse Anne Williams, aged 68, and Arthur Trayer, 74, were married secretly at Braintree, England, recently.

GERMAN CHURCH REJOICES OVER HITLER'S ACTION

Feel Mueller, Now His Main Backing, is Gone—Is Mere "Phantom."

CHURCH, STATE MAY SPLIT.

By Louis P. Lochner

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Services of thanksgiving will be held Sunday by churches in opposition to the Nazi German christians, for Chancellor Hitler has decided he and his party are no longer interested in the church fight.

Thus Der Fuehrer disposed of, for the present at least, one of the most difficult and far-reaching controversies ever before him. His attitude may ultimately lead to separation of the church and state in Germany.

The chancellor's stand, taken at a conference with three insurgent bishops, was cheered by opposition forces today as a smashing victory. It climaxed their long fight against Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller and his dictatorial program to unify the German Christian or Evangelical church.

See Nazi Officials Doom

Insurgent leaders said Nazi German Christians, who could hold themselves in power only because political authorities did police service for them, sooner or later must collapse now that this support is gone.

Mueller, they feel, is now a mere 'phantom,' for his main strength was Hitler's backing—now withdrawn. It is immaterial to them, they say, whether Mueller will choose to resign or continue in his now powerless office.

The fundamental decision coming from Hitler's conference yesterday with the opposition bishops was that the Protestant church has regained freedom of action.

Viewed historically, Hitler's decision may mean a break with a 200-year-old tradition in Germany, during which period the Lutheran church rested on the authority of state. The way appears paved for a separation of church and state.

SEATTLE, Oct. 31 (C.P.).—Detective Lieutenant C. S. Hodge found an old fire extinguisher in a pawnshop. He thought it looked familiar. Closer examination proved him correct. From police records he found it was one reported stolen July 18, 1919.

PRISONER GIVES FRESH DETAILS ON HAUPTMANN

Claims Lindbergh Case Suspect Told Him He Kidnapped Baby.

ASKED AID WITH RANSOM.

Says One Package of Gold Notes Disposed of in Germany in 1932.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 31 (A.P.).—The Enquirer says to-day that a Federal prisoner held at Troy, O., has set down in writing that Bruno Richard Hauptmann told him he kidnapped the Lindbergh baby and needed help in handling the ransom money.

The prisoner, D. Y. Sanders, formerly of Schenectady, N.Y., now held at Troy on a charge of impersonating a Federal officer, has stated that he initiated negotiations to dispose of the ransom and did get rid of part of it in Germany, the newspaper relates.

"In 1932," the Enquirer's account runs, "he (Sanders) met Hauptmann by invitation in New York. Hauptmann told him he had kidnapped the Lindbergh baby and needed help in handling the ransom money. Because it was 'hot money' Sanders refused."

But, the newspaper adds, Sanders divulged he agreed to help Hauptmann the following year. They talked the matter over, then came to Cincinnati and "proposed an annuity arrangement with a minister, merely saying he 'had gold to dispose of'." The deal, says the Enquirer, did not go through.

Sold Some in Germany.

Finally, that same year, Sanders is quoted as saying, he sold a package of the money to a "friend in Germany, where he received $2,000 in marks and guilders."

The newspaper relates that Sanders had been questioned recently by Federal agents, had made verbal admissions, and later had supplemented these with a written statement detailing his dealings with Hauptmann, now under indictment in New York and New Jersey on charges of kidnapping and murder.

Due to the nature of the admission, the newspaper story concludes, Department of Justice agents said they would investigate

REDS STIR RIOT AT RELIEF CAMP

34 Are Injured in Clash and Colorado Officials Expect New Attack.

BARRICADE BUILT.

DENVER, Colo., October 31 (C. P.). — Stone barricades encircled Table Mountain to-day as Federal emergency relief workers prepared to resist resumption of yesterday's rioting in which four policemen and about 30 other persons were shot or beaten.

Police officials who called out reserves yesterday to quell the disturbances arising through the activities of strike agitators on Federal emergency relief administration projects, said they feared more clashes to-day. With sheriff's officers of nearby Jefferson County, they looked for trouble on Table Mountain, the announced objective of the strike leaders.

Several avowed Communists here, as well as leaders of other radical groups, announced they would lead a procession of automobiles to the Mountain, west of Denver, and call on Federal workers there to quit work in protest against recent reductions in Federal relief funds and wages.

Workers on the flat-topped Butte overlooking the town of Golden have declared they do not want to strike. Advised of the agitators' plans, they hastily piled up barricades of large stones and announced they would fight all efforts of the strikers to interfere with their work.

All of those injured yesterday were reported recovering.

Saskatchewan Seeks Loan For New Start

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (CP)—What additional assistance the Federal Government will give Saskatchewan in view of the exceptional misfortunes which that province has suffered, was the subject of conjecture here to-day.

Yesterday Premier J. G. Gardiner told to the Dominion Cabinet the story of Saskatchewan's tribulations. While no official statement was given out at the conclusion of the meeting, it was understood that the Saskatchewan Premier had asked either for a guarantee or a direct Dominion loan of approximately $9,000,000 to give the province a new start.

In the past four years Saskatchewan has received in assistance from the Dominion more than one quarter of the entire Federal disbursements to the provinces under the Relief Act.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Wholesale jobbing houses announced increases of 1c to 2c per dozen on fresh eggs to dealers yesterday.

Graded shipments in carlots or less were generally quoted at 40c to 42c for A-large, 37c to 39c for A-medium, 30c to 32c for A-pullets, 21c to 23c for B, and 19½c to 20c for C. Rail receipts, 738 cases.

The butter market was generally unchanged at 19½c to 19¾c per pound for carlots or less of No. 1. Small lots to the retail trade were 20½c for solids and 21c to 21½c for prints.

On the cheese market No. 1 Ontario white and colored generally sold at 10c to 10¼c, while Quebec No. 1 brought 9½c. Receipts 695 boxes.

The potato market was steady and unchanged, with Quebec at 35c to 40c. New Brunswicks at 40c to 45c, and Prince Edward slands 45c to 50c, for 80-pound bags.

CHICAGO GRAIN

After sagging early, wheat prices gained more than a cent yesterday on the strengtht of persistent commission house buying originating in Eastern sources. The rising market brought short covering purchases into the pit, and after early erratic fluctuations prices closed strong.

A welter of apparently conflicting market news confused some traders during early dealings, but when the trend became pronounced bulls shook off the restraint of hesitancy.

Early pronounced timidity that held trade to a narrow range was attributed largely to uncertainty as to the world wheat situation, with weakness in foreign markets and bearish news from Argentina important factors. The Canadian market situation was another disquieting feature, especially because no inkling was given as to the probably course of the Dominion Government.

Wheat closed ⅝c lower to 1⅛c higher than Monday's finish, May at 95c to 95⅛c after touching a ow of 93¾c. July deiveries, which were less active, showed a decline of ⅛c to ⅝c.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, October 31. — An upward trend at Chicago counteracted bearishness of Liverpool on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. Wheat futures prices closed unchanged to ⅛c higher; October at 74⅝c, December 75½c to 75⅝c, and May at 80⅝c to 80½c.

Net advances of about a cent in the Southern market, following Monday's sharp recessions, induced steadiness here. Declines of ½d to ⅝d at Liverpool, result of the weakness on Monday of North American markets, had but a temporary influence on local values.

News contained little to indicate a definite price trend, however, and trading was quiet and featureless. Continued absence of sustained foreign demand for Canadian wheat was disappointing. Liverpool advices indicated reports of rust in the Argentine were causing little concern there.

Lightness of offerings again restricted sales in the cash grain section despite continued good demand for high-grade wheats. Spreads closed generally unchanged. Coarse grains futures prices firmed in sympathy with wheat.

2 Mexicans Slain By Border Patrol

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Two unidentified Mexicans were killed in a battle with United States border patrolmen on the Rio Grande river within the city limits of ElPaso early today.

Chief Inspector H. C. Horsley said his officers challenged five men crossing the river to the American side when two of the men opened fire while the three others fled. The two Mexicans were killed when the officers returned the fire.

RUPERT'S LAND LOSES TO DEATH ITS ARCHBISHOP

Sudden Passing of His Grace Most Rev. I. O. Stringer Shock to Anglicans.

HAS HEART SEIZURE.

Ministered in Arctic For 36 Years—Led Restoration Fund Drive.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31. — (CP) — Church followers of every faith today joined with Anglicans of the nation in mourning the sudden death here yesterday of His Grace, Most Rev. I. O. Stringer, Archbishop of Rupert's Land. The 68-year-old veteran of Canadian mission fields suffered a heart seizure as he walked toward Trinity Hall here with parcels under his arm. Carried into the hall and the synod offices, he died almost immediately.

Funeral services will be held in St. John's cathedral at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, and it is expected most Rev. D. T. Owen, Toronto, Primate, will conduct the services, assisted by Very Rev. McAdam Harding, Regina, Bishop of Qu'Appelle. Bishop Harding, as senior bishop of the Ecclesiastical Province of Rupert's Land, automatically becomes Acting Archbishop.

From one end of the Dominion to the other came expressions of regret at the death of His Grace, who became archbishop of Rupert's Land April 16, 1931, in succession to Most Rev. S. P. Matheson, who retired.

He suffered the rigors of the far north during his missionary days and even after he became bishop of the Yukon he still followed the ice-coated trails in moccasins and parka. He spent 36 years in the Arctic.

Qualities Revealed

But it was his election as Archbishop of Rupert's Land that brought out his qualities as a church statesman. Defalcations had ducted a probe into the adminis-000000. Under his guidance the campaign to re-establish the funds was conducted.

Donations to the fund increased daily and then the last audit was made this year it was shown $820,-990 had been contributed toward the objective of $1,076,250. The campaign will be continued, and it is believed the objective will soon be reached.

Pioneering blood ran in the veins of the great churchman. Late in the last century his parents settled on the shore of Lake Huron in the Bruce Peninsula of Ontario. The Archbishop was born in Kincardine Township, and after graduating from University of Toronto in 1891 he attended Wycliffe College.

Tall, strong and handsome, he threw aside churches in the settled districts of the Dominion and went as a missionary into the Canadian Northland. And even after 36 years in the Arctic, surviving its rigors and once being forced to eat his boots to avoid starvation, he was sorrowful at leaving his far-flung frozen diocese.

CROUGH—NAGLE

KITCHENER, Oct. 31.—An interesting late Autumn wedding took place at St. Louis Roman Catholic Church at 10 o'clock Monday morning, when Miss Margaret Florence Nagle, daughter of Mr. Thomas Nagle, 198 King street south and the late Mrs. Nagle, became the bride of Mr. Joseph Francis Crough of Toronto, son of Mrs. Crough of Ennismore and the late Mr. Daniel Crough. Rev. Father Hinsperger, rector of the church, officiated.

The bridal party took their places before the chrysanthemum-decked altar to the strains of wedding music played by Mr. Eugene Fehrenbach, the organist. The bride and bridegroom were attended by Miss Margaret McCandlish of Toronto, as bridesmaid, and Mr. Giles Morel of Toronto as best man. The ushers were Messrs. Joseph Moylan and Mr. Hubert Nagle.

The bride chose for her costume a white satin frock fashioned on fitted lines to the knees and flaring to the floor. With it she wore a short white velvet jacket with high neck and long sleeves falling to points on the hands. With it she wore a white velvet and tulle turban with white veil, white gloves and shoes and shoulder bouquet of orchids and she carried a Mother of Pearl prayerbook and rosary.

The bridesmaid wore a red velvet fitted gown with red velvet turban and shoes and carried a bouquet of white baby chrysanthemums. During the offertory the bride's brother, Mr. Hubert Nagle, sang Kahn's "Ave Maria" and during the signing of the register "Just for To-day."

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Crough and their guests went on to the Good Companions Tearoom where a wedding breakfast was served after which a reception was arranged at the home of the bride's father. The bride's sister, Miss Jean Nagle, received with the young people, wearing a brown crepe dress with brown velvet hat and accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. During the reception Miss Gwen Pelliner sang "Because" to an accompaniment by Miss Marie Spencer.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Crough left on a wedding trip by motor, the bride wearing for travelling a blue crepe dress with blue coat and grey fox collar, a blue hat, grey gloves and blue shoes. On their return they will take up residence at Lansdowne Avenue, Toronto.

Guests from a distance were Rev. Father Basil Doyle of St. Michael's Cathedral staff, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. David Scollard, Brantford, Ont.; Mr. J. H. Redmond, Rochester, N.Y.; Mrs. J. McCandlish, Miss Mary McCandlish, and Messrs. John McCandlish, Jr., and Fred Davis, all of Toronto.

QUINTS BARGED TO HIGH SPOTS IN WORLD NEWS

Canada's Famous Five Sisters Still Big Human Interest in Far Corners.

PROGRESS REPORTED.

CALLANDER, Ont., Oct. 30 (CP)—Still hitting front pages after five months' existence, the Dionne quintuplets could be assured now, if they cared about such things, that their birth and development have furnished one of the greatest sustained human interest stories in Canadian news history.

From the time they were born last May 28 in their parents' little Northern Ontario home the five sisters—Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Marie — have received more attention in the news than some Royal Princesses get in a lifetime. Declared "world figures" in a Chicago court judgment that helped save them from exploitation, the youngsters have become just that.

When they had intestinal toxaemia their daily progress was reported in English, United States and continental papers. When Marie's tumor was being treated with radium it was news in South America and Shanghai. They have made headlines in Australia. A few days ago Dr. A. R. Dafoe, their physician, received a copy of The Times of India, published in Bombay, telling of the care he is taking of the youngsters. The Times described the quintuplets as "Canada's most famous persons."

News interest usually is short-lived but the Dionne youngsters seem to have grown in news value with their physical growth. Every day they lived in their first month was a source of bulletins to meet the public anxiety. Now they have reached the "cute" state stage and their antics have an appeal of another kind.

First word of the children's birth seeped from their home near here when their uncle telephoned the North Bay Nugget and naively asked how much it would cost to print a birth notice for five babies. The family and physician were left much to themselves for the first day or two—the outside world believed the quintuplets or some of them could not survive.

"When hours grew into days and the tiny hearts were still beating it developed a story of the first importance. Special writers rushed from all over the continent to the town. After the first 48 hours newswriters were barred from the Dionne home and only two reporters have seen the babies since then.

Dr. Dafoe was forced to accept the job of providing the press with news from the morning of the multiple birth. He carried out this assignment with keen regard for the ethics of his own profession. He became official observer in the nursery and faithfully reported all their doings to the press even to a fist fight between two of the sisters.

The parents, 31-year-old Oliva Dionne and his 24-year-old wife, have sought to escape from personal publicity and the father's first-day statement "I'm the sort of fellow they should put in jail," has been his most interesting public comment.

When the youngsters grow up they may have to pore through dusty newspaper fyles to read of the sensation their births caused. No one is keeping a scrapbook for them.

SPANISH VILLAGERS HORRIBLY MUTILATED BY VENGEFUL TROOPS

Whole Villages Are Reported Wiped Out by Foreign Legion.

STILL FIGHTING.

Rigid Censorship Prevents Publication of True Story of Revolution.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

MADRID, Oct. 31.—No newspaperman is allowed to go to Asturia. The reactionary government of Alejandro Lerroux is hiding from the world the most ghastly episode of the civil war. A severe barrier of censorship on the telegraph, telephones and mail shrouds the happenings in Asturia in a cloud of darkness, nevertheless news of the real situation is beginning to trickle through at last. The miners are still holding out this day, October 18. No less than three armies are operating against them. One of these armies, mainly composed of Arabs and Spanish Foreign Legion under command of General Balmes, is massacring its way toward Oviedo.

No mercy is shown. Women and children are put to the sword, or thrown from upstairs windows. I have it on the best authority that in one Asturian village every living creature was killed. A Spanish journalist, just back from there, counted a thousand corpses in that village, the work of the foreign legion. The men were horribly mutilated and several decapitated. Little children had had their heads smashed against the walls of buildings.

Socialists and anarchists are standing shoulder to shoulder in Asturia, 25,000 strong against a combined government force of 100,000 troops who are hourly discharging bombs on their strongholds and sending over waves of poison gas.

Truth Not Published

The whole of Madrid is shuddering with disgust. "When Spain learns the full truth," says the newspaper ABC to-day, "she will stand aghast." It is now openly admitted that the army is out of hand and that former royalist officers, who have been left in command by the republic, are violating their oath of allegiance and are now pursuing their own ends. They are taking revenge on the populations of the Basque provinces and Asturia for having been the most ardent champions of the republic whose action in 1931 ousted King Alfonso and the clergy. Premier Lerroux is said to be doing something to stem the wholesale tide of reprisals urged by the monarchists and the clericals, but nobody knows what it is.

General Balmes, who is used to commanding Moroccan troops, is giving the Spanish people a taste of what the natives of North Africa have experienced for years at the hands of Spanish troops. He is driving the population of villages into the churches and then sets fire to them. He is dropping the heaviest explosive bombs on the most peaceful agricultural hamlets untouched by the revolt, on the principle that only by inspiring the inhabitants with terror will they accept the new fascist regime with docility. The effect of this campaign may yet be the very opposite of what the general calculates. For the moment resistance certainly is stiffening. Men know that whatever happens, whether they fight or surrender, they will be massacred anyway. At Mieres, the newspapers report, the miners fought like wild beasts before being bayonetted. In the neighborhood of Oviedo where a priest celebrated the victories of General Balmes in the church, the roof was dynamited and crashed down on the congregation. In the same locality the Moroccan troops had fastened the headless bodies of the miners' leaders to trucks and dragged them through the dust.

Miners Hold Hostages

Though the censorship allows no details to seep through of what the Foreign Legion and the Arab troops are doing, much space is devoted to the atrocities said to have been comitted by the striking miners. They are said to be raping nuns and crucifying priests and burning churches. How they can do all this when the same papers report the miners hemmed in on all sides, is a mystery.

The miners have with them a number of prominent persons whom they keep as hostages, mayors of communes, members of parliament, bishops, editors of Madrid newspapers. They sent out word that these persons have not been harmed yet, but if the armies are not called off, the hostages will be executed. In some villages, however, it is reported the priests are fighting with the miners on the barricades.

Military tribunals throughout the country are working overtime. In Barcelona the death sentence was pronounced on 42 socialists, all of them newspaper editors, high school teachers, professors and intellectuals, but no exception has yet taken place. The city is again in a ferment and it is feared that if the executions take place the revolution will break out with redoubled force. The revolutionaries are massing 50,000 men there, but the harbor is filling with gunboats whose guns are trained on the slum districts where the revolutionary working-class resides.

Expect Another Revolt

One army, under command of General Bosch, which had been trying to advance for a week into the Asturias, is now reported to be retreating before the strikers. General Bosch has lost 800 men. He had set up revolutionary tribunals who had just begun their bloody work. One article in El Sol to-day states that seven hundred rebels in Oviedo were buried in a common grave.

The army on the whole appears to remain loyal to the government. This dooms the revolution to failure. That the army has not joined the people is largely due to the tactics of the anarchists, who dynamite the barracks whenever they have a chance, thus frustrating attempts of the socialists to fraternize with the troops.

But if this revolution is doomed, another one stands before the door. The Spanish working-class is not going to accept fascism lying down.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Mary Isabel Newton, Norwood, Ont.

Your handwriting portrays youth, and therefore your most predominating characteristics are not formed yet, but I will give you an outline which might assist you as you grow older and which advice, if you follow, may mean that you will 'Step off on the right foot'; for at present you seem to be pulled in many directions. You seem to want to do so many things that you never manage to accomplish any of them to perfection. Study, of course, is very, very necessary, and self control through gaining confidence in yourself is the next step. Now, one cannot gain confidence in on 's own abilities if one is not sure of one's knowledge or work, so —knowing that you know what you want to, is the next step. When you are more mature you will find that you are more courageous, but you will be rather retiring by nature til you meet people on an equal plane, and then you will be humorous and magnetic, drawing friends to you through your spontaneous personality. You will admire people who are mentally intellectual, and give credit where it is due. You should be discriminating in your choice of dress, both in quality and style, and be fond of entertaining and exhibit a splendid characteristic in the arrangement of your own home.

Your type are usually warm-hearted, fond of music and dancing; this is established in your lower loops throughout the sample of writing, but is a bit undeveloped as yet due to your age. Your 't' bar crossings indicate the ability that you possess to develop your will-power. The manner in which you sign your name, reveals all the above characteristics in the making so here's hoping my advice has been timely. Your lucky number is three. Your sign Virgo the Virgin. You are ruled by Mercury. February and November are lucky months. Wednesday is your best day.

Janet Grant, 246 London St., City.

The handwriting as delineated on your sample shows that you are gentle and kind, and that you always endeavour to avoid hurting the feelings of others.

There is a slight artistic tendency which, if developed, should bring you much pleasure. You also have a gift for imparting knowledge to others. That is to say that anything which you have learned through experience you can pass on with excellent ability.

The crossing of your 't' bars suggest very good will-power and determination.

You have rather an emotional nature and seem to be inclined towards a sympathetic and an understanding side of you, due to your insight into the meaning of psychology. Your thoughts and actions are not the result of selfish motives; but the honest desire to be helpful to those less fortunate than yourself.

You have averted self conceit by constantly reminding yourself that you are not by any means perfect, and in so doing you have sweetened your disposition till you are genuine and thoughtful.

You are modest and retiring, intuitive and enthusiastic, direct and quick in action.

Your birthsign is Gemini the Twins, you are ruled by Mercury and Friday is your best day. April and August are your most fortunate months. Gemini people usually have a dual nature, they are either very happy or very worried, but if they know and realize this characteristic they can overcome it and be very delightful companions.

Vocations for these people are many and varied but chief among them is work in which the mind can be trained for detail as in journalistic work, secretarial, nursing or any literary work where persistence would be necessary. Mercury, your ruling planet, gives you great mental ability. Your number is ten.

Your friend's number is eight, her birthsign is Taurus the Bull; ruled by Venus; May and July best months. Friday is the lucky day.

U. S. DEMOCRATS ARE CONFIDENT OF ENDORSEMENT ON NEW DEAL

Sure of Gains in Senate With That in House of Representatives Probable.

1,450 CANDIDATES.

(By CECIL B. DICKSON)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. (AP).—Democratic leaders told President Rosevelt to-day that the New Deal will receive a smashing endorsement in next Tuesday's United States elections despite Republican forecasts that the G.O.P. will score gains in Congress.

Democratic headquarters assured the President after a survey that the Democratic majority in the Senate would increase, with a probable gain of strength in the House of Representatives.

Republicans disputed a prediction by Postmaster General James Farley that Democrats would control both branches of the 74th Congress by two-thirds majorities. Republican headquarters declined to concede any Senate losses and said they would pick up about 40 House posts.

As 1,450 candidates for 432 House and Senate seats and 33 Governorships headed down the final stretch, the G.O.P. high command charged that the administration is playing politics with relief.

$135,000,000 Relief

It referred to the allotment yesterday of $135,000,000 in November relief money, to be divided among all states except Maine, which has already held its election.

The Republican Senatorial-Congressional campaign committee said "The New Deal administration convicts itself of the charge of using Federal relief funds for political purposes and as a substitute for a campaign fund."

Explaining the allotments, officials said Maine's needs for next month had not been determined. The Republicans noted that the allotment, which represents an increase over the $113,599,490 grant for October, was several days ahead of custom and a full week in advance of the election. They added, "This is the way to reap the ful political benefits."

Chairman Duncan Fletcher of the Republican National Committee said "no such shameless use of public funds to influence elections can be found in the most sordid annals of our municipal politics."

47,959,928 Qualified Voters.

Acute public interest in the new deal's first major test was indicated when a compilation by the Associated Press showed that 47,959,928 persons have qualified to vote.

For an off-year election, this figure is unusually high, although it is 1,000,000 less than the record registration inspired by the Roosevelt-Hoover contest in 1932. Two years ago, 48,962,530 persons qualified as voters, and 39,791,886—a record—cast ballots

During off-year elections, the vote cast usually totals about 70 per cent of the turnout in the previous presidential election. Therefore, Democratic and Republican headquarters say they expect 28,000,000 to 30,000,000 to vote next week.

That the Democrats will control the next Congress is conceded by even the most optimistic Republicans. The G. O. P. hope is to prevent Democratic control of both branches by two-thirds majorities and to win back as many governorships as possible. The Republicans seek to prepare for 1936.

Magistrate's Court

Believed by police to have been implicated in the attempt to burglarize Lowe & Outram's warehouse a week ago, Howard Bergeron and James Kirk, of Cornwall, pleaded guilty to-day to charges of vagrancy and were sentenced to 15 days in jail. They were arrested near the scene of the crime, but police found nothing to connect them with it definitely. They told the Magistrate that they were just standing on the corner debating where they would sleep the night when they were arrested.

YOUTHFUL KING PETER HEADS YUGOSLAV ARMY

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 31 (A.P.)—Eleven-year-old King Peter was playing "soldiers" with his little brothers to-day when he was informed that he is now commander-in-chief of the Yugoslav army.

Peter, on his 10th birthday, was made a corporal in the army by his father, the assassinated Alexander.

While Peter's elevation in the army came about automatically through a provision in the constitution which makes the king the head of the armed forces of the nation, the youthful monarch had not been aware of this.

His uncle, Prince Paul, head of the regency, officially informed Peter of the fact while he was at play. He will continue to wear the corporal's uniform, however, until he is 18 years old. Then he will formally be crowned king and generalissimo.

A SLICE FOR THE MUNICIPALITIES.

The announcement by Premier Hepburn that the municipalities are to share in the revenue derived from beverage rooms to the extent of 20 per cent. of the license fee and profits on the beer and wine sold in such establishments, is an interesting development that means a return to the principle followed in pre-prohibition days.

It is not a new thing for municipalities to get a slice of liquor license fees, for in the era before prohibition half the revenue from the licenses of hotel bars and liquor stores was turned over to the civic governments, and undoubtedly there was strong reasons why this should be the case, inasmuch as the municipalities were called upon to enforce the laws under which licensed places operated, even although they had no control over the granting of licenses.

The Government, at the beginning of the new fiscal year, is returning to the old-time system of turning over part of the revenue from wine and beer sales to the municipalities in which beverage rooms are operated.

AN EDITOR ABROAD.

One of the most enjoyable little volumes that has reached The Examiner in a long time is "The Diary of an Editor Abroad," a series of sketches written by Harold Leslie Weir, chief editorial writer of the Vancouver Sun, and giving his impressions gained during a summer visit to Britain and France.

As the Sun points out, these articles are intended to convey no information, to present no analysis of political or national events.

They, however, make very pleasant reading, for Mr. Weir has a delightful style, and he has succeeded in weaving into his stuff an atmosphere and color that give his readers an entrancing glimpse of England, Scotland and France, as well as a helpful conception of British character.

A quotation from "This England," the closing article in the series, indicates the charm of the Weir style:

"Yes, set in a permanence that is built upon something more enduring than any physical isolation or any might of arms old John Gaunt could dream of—fixed and immovable upon a rock of character, upon a grand simplicity of mind, upon a system of law and equity that is the envy of the earth, upon a fine sense of responsibility, upon a magnificent faith and upon a code of national honor that could serve as a pattern to us all.

"This is true permanence. This is real solidity. This is the spirit and essence of England, sitting there immovable and immutable, unhurried and confident, splendid in her pride, admirable in her common sense, glorious in her achievements.

"This is the England to which we bade farewell just now as we strained our eyes eastward toward that little spot of land lying behind us, glowing, shimmering and eternal."

PETERBOROUGH SET THE PACE.

The decision of the Ontario Government that beverage rooms throughout the province will henceforth close at 11 o'clock at night instead of at midnight, as has been the case in most places, will be hailed with satisfaction as a step in the right direction.

The ruling will, of course, mean nothing in Peterborough, for to the credit of the local hotelmen it can be said that they were quick to sense the fact that the midnight closing hour was regarded by the public as unnecessarily late and they decided several months ago to voluntarily reduce the selling period by closing at 11 o'clock throughout the week and at 10 o'clock on Saturday nights, so that they have set the pace for the whole province in this respect; as a matter of fact, they are still ahead of the rest of Ontario in that their agreement for Saturday night closing puts an end to beer sales an hour earlier than is called for in the new provincial regulations.

The decision of the Government to adopt earlier closing is a vindication of the judgment of Peterborough hotelmen, and an official admission of the fact that they were right when they concluded that there was no public demand for beverage rooms to remain open until midnight.

If hotelmen all over the province had been as quick to size up the situation and as prompt to act as were the local beverage room proprietors it might have bee n better for those engaged in the retailing of beer and wine by the glass, as well for the Government itself.

The change in the regulations brings the rest of the province into line with Peterborough except in the matter of Saturday night closing.

A DISTINGUISHED SON.

The fact that a large delegation from this city attended the complimentary dinner tendered Frank P. O'Connor, of Toronto, last week is proof that this former citizen whose rise in the world of business suggests one of the Horatio Alger stories has never lost touch with his old friends in Peterborough.

Mr. O'Connor is one of those unfortunately all too few men who have not been spoiled by success or contaminated by wealth. In a comparatively brief span of years he has amassed a great fortune, climbed to a high place in industry and business, and won for himself a niche with the leaders in the provincial capital, and yet he is the same genial, friendly, unassuming Frank O'Connor who not so long ago punched the time clock in the C.G.E. here and wore with distinction the uniform of the Peterborough rugby club. His wealth he regards as something over which he merely exercises a stewardship, and he has used it lavishly in benefaction after benefaction, in helping one worthy cause after another. Few rich men in our time have displayed such generosity, such willingness to help, and yet Mr. O'Connor, with the same shrewdness and acumen that have sent him to the top of the business ladder, has been careful in his selection of causes to be assisted. Invariably the objects of his generosity have been worthy of the aid he has so freely proffered.

The honor paid him by the distinguished gathering in attendance at last week's brilliant function is appreciated by his host of friends here; they have watched his meteoric career with interest, the more keen because of their knowledge that Mr. O'Connor's head was not being turned by success, and that the Midas-like faculties he has displayed in his business life have left him with a heart of gold.

Peterborough has given the country a galaxy of brilliant and successful leaders in almost every field of endeavor, but none of whom she can be more proud and none of whom their home city is more dear than Frank P. O'Connor.

SHOULD BE ASSISTED.

Among resolutions passed by Ontario mayors at a meeting in Hamilton is one urging the Government to widen relief work so as to provide jobs not only for those who are now relief recipients but for those behind in their taxes who are making a desperate effort to keep off the relief lists.

It will readily be admitted that those who come under this category deserve consideration. They have fought against heavy odds all through the depression, denying themselves many of the ordinary comforts of life and at the same time shouldering their share of the relief burden by paying their taxes during the early part of the economic upheaval. The protracted struggle has caused their resources to dwindle. Tax arrears are piling up on them with the result that the equity in their properties is in danger of being wiped out. To help these citizens is tantamount to encouraging future thrift and investment in a home—two things which provide stability in any municipality.

The Government should make every effort to extend a helping hand to those who are battling so heroically to avoid the welfare lists.—Kitchener News-Record.

THE HOT FOWL SUPPER.

"Perhaps you do not know how many hot fowl suppers take place in this district. Well, I have nothing much else to do but read and clip things out. Much of the time I spend in bed. Of course, your paper gets reports from a wide area, from around Tavistock all the way to Goderich and on both sides of that line. Within recent weeks I have it marked down that there has been reference to 54 of these suppers. Some of them have been in connection with anniversary services, and others just an annual event. I was wondering if there would be 50 chickens for each fowl supper, that is on an average. That would mean 2,700 chickens, sufficient to stock a fair-sized poultry farm."

We were asking some questions and there does not seem to be agreement about the number of persons who can be served from one chicken. "Knock off the legs and the breast and what is there?" That question was given as an answer several times. Then it is a fact that a good many folk who go to fowl suppers have a habit of sending their plates back for more. They guard against getting filled up with bread and celery and buns; they crave for more chicken and their craving is so great that it must thoroughly dissipate the price they paid at the door. When the hot fowl supper is over they are actually indebted to the church which fed them.

We have some doubts, though, about all the chickens which perform at the fowl supper being of the vintage which could profitably be used to stock a poultry farm. People who run poultry farms require birds which will lay eggs. There is no profit in those from whom the zest for production has departed, and we do not believe that the folk who kill off chickens as their contribution to the fowl supper would sacrifice those in whom there were left many months of egg production. The hen selected for sacrifice in the cause of Christianity and community life would be one whose best years lay behind. The tidy little pullet has a degree of safety measured out to her in the season of fowl suppers which is not granted to her elder sisters nor her ancient brother.

We are inclined toward the belief that the average of chickens used at a fowl supper would run on beyond the fifty mark. It would have to be so. There are people (men, of course) with stomachs which seem to have the capacity of large barrels and they can always be counted on to eat a whole chicken unless the ladies waiting on the table can persuade them to toss in a few potatoes and turnips at the same time or can lure them off toward pumpkin pie and frosted cake. We never have believed that the financial rewards from such an event are in keeping with the work involved, but even so we have no intention of rising to move for the cancellation of these events. Hot fowl suppers are deep rooted and will abide.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Now that the Provincial Government is going to assume the full cost of highways, deputations to Queen's Park asking for the construction of new roads will become popular again.

Mr. Stevens' reply to the Prime Minister is no doubt being carefully preserved by the Liberal board of strategy. It will make great ammunition in the next election.

W. A. Fraser, Liberal member for Northumberland, is guilty of a serious tactical error in calling Mr. Stevens a "political hyprocrite." The wise thing for Opposition members to say now is that the former Minister of Trade and Commerce is a political martyr.

Christmas is nearly two months away, but the municipalities are not likely to object to the Provincial Government playing a Santa Claus role a little ahead of time.

Mr. Gaby, former chief engineer of the Hydro and one of the most important civil servants to feel the Hepburn axe, has not done badly for himself. He succeeds Hon. Charles A. Dunning as assistant to the president of the C.P.R. and general manager of the Seigniory Club proposition.

Maybe if prosperity came back we could get the girls' fingernails out of the red.—Brandon Sun.

References to "our popular President" are rarely heard in Wall Street.—James J. Montague, in New York Herald-Tribune.

7,000,000 MEMBERS

Editor Examiner,

Dear Sir,—May I correct an error that appeared in your Saturday issue, in the account of a social afternoon and talk given by Mrs. Merritt, Leslie avenue, in connection with the Rosicrucian Order?

The members of the American Jurisdiction which is governed from San Jose, California, and which embraces North America (Canada, the United States, Mexico), South America and the West Indian Islands, number considerably over seven millions, not seven thousand, as stated.

Yours truly,
R. Farthing,
District Commissioner,
Rosicrucian Order A.M.O.R.C.

WAYS OF DOING BUSINESS

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—There are two ways of doing business. 1. Free competition by which the individual does as he wishes with his property, his capital and as he himself wishes it or in conjunction with others of a like mind and by which the more capable will surpass the less capable in the course of life or of a state owned and operated system of doing business, hence called the Socialistic or Social system by which all business and property, land, production, etc., controlled by the government who employs whom they please. Their employees being under the orders of the government and without any choice or liberty in the matter at all.

At present we are under No. 1, but we have people who want No. 2 and of such is Honorable H. H. Stevens. There is no halfway measure in the long run. No. 1 has serious faults as we see at present but No. 2 cannot make slaves of people and seize their lands and compel them to work for other people without reward, hence, it always breaks down. No. 2 has no way of escape for the individual. It is however, a good way for those who want to profit by the brains and labor of others without cost or wages. No. 1 has a way of escape and in this country it is by the land. It is impossible to fix a minimum wage unless you compel the farmer to sell his food and wool, etc., at a corresponding price. Machinery has driven the employed worker out of work and he must either live on public charity or go to the land and earn his own living. The Socialistic system is well summed up in the famous order," go on the roads or go to hell." How could a government give people work and good wages?

J. H. Burnham.

SOME QUESTIONS FOR MR. PECK

Editor Examiner,

Dear Sir—In Saturday's issue of The Examiner Mr. E. A. Peck, K.C., our Federal representative is reported as saying in reference to the Stevens Committee revelations of low wages, that it is "Japanese competition" that has forced employers to cut wages to meet the Japanese rate of 50 cents per day.

Will Mr. Peck please explain how Japanese competition affected the packing industry?

How were the Japanese responsible for the fabulous high salaries and profits of the tobacco industry, and forcing the producers to take "peasant pay" and the employees sweat-shop wages?

What had Japanese competition to do with the amalgamtion of industries, the watering of stock, and the raising of prices to the consumer and lowering of wages to the employes?

How does Japanese competition make high salaries higher and low pay lower at the same time?

If Japanese competition is flooding the country with goods at too low prices, what is this "protective tariff" doing that we hear so much about? Why has it failed?

Surely our politicians should see by this time that the day for "buck passing" has gone, issues and especially human rights must be squarely faced.

Political technicalities can no longer take precedence over human rights and moral obligations.

Conservatives and Liberals must both face the fact of Canadian industrial atrocity, and find a remedy there is no use trying to "pass the buck" to Japan or anywhere else.

We elect our representatives to meet these issues and not merely try to paddle around them.

We appreciate men like Mr. Stevens who can rise above technicality and "precedent" that are so often used to block progress and reform, and who see in the attainment of justice and human rights something greater than a mere political policy.

Mr. Stevens so called "indiscretion" has applied the lash of public opinion to the exploiters of human welfare and now they are running to Bennett and King for refuge, but thousands of sweat-shop victims, underpaid employees, and swindled producers thank God for a man of courage, conviction, and action, who has already brought more relief and redress than even a law statue would accomplish, and its beneficial effects are realized months if not years before legal enactments and their results would be noticeable.

Politicians may not like Stevens but the people do.

Yours truly,
Square Deal.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

BRIDGETOWN, NOVA SCOTIA

The district surrounding Bridgetown was first settled by the French in 1654, while the first English settlers came in 1763. The first house on the present site was built by a native of Lebanon, Conn., who was of Huguenot extraction. In 1832 the land was laid out in town lots and in 1824 the name of the place was changed from Hick's Ferry to Bridgetown.

One-half mile to the west of the town a detachment of 130 British soldiers from Annapolis Royal was ambushed by French and Indians, in which skirmish 24 soldiers were killed. The scene of this tragedy is known locally as Bloody Creek.

THREE LETTERS

I saw two letters—and I imagine a third.

The one I did not see was the second letter, but I know that it was, in its way, a victory as great as any Napoleon ever won on a battlefield of Europe.

The first letter was bitterly critical, written to a friend of mine who did not deserve it. It assailed him sarcastically, abused his motives, his life, his public and his personal point of view....It was the sort of letter that makes your face red and your ears burn and sends your blood pressure up, just the reading of it, even if it isn't written to you....You wonder how any human being can sit down before a desk and write that sort of letter to a stranger. And you wonder how, after it is written, a writer can put it in the mailbox and send it away.

The second letter, the one I can only imagine, was written by the man who received that harsh and bitter letter....He waited until his natural resentment had died a little, and then he wrote a simple, friendly letter in reply, admitting his faults, explaining what he was trying to do, hoping his critic would understand that he was, after all, just a fallible human being....As I said, I didn't see that answer. I am reconstructing it imaginatively. The way scientists do when they discover a jaw bone and a leg of a dinosaur and reconstruct the whole skeleton for a museum.

The third letter was different from that first one. It apologized. It was friendly, human, heart warming. A brave letter, a good one. It petitioned for friendship and understanding and made you wish to know the woman who wrote it, made you understand, somehow, that this letter was the mirror of the real self of the writer and that the other embittered one was the distorted reflection of her personality.

And this is why it seems to me the victory won by that second letter was greater than any of Napoleon's. It would have been so easy to write a harsh letter in answer to that abusive one. So easy to have crumped it and thrown it away....That, I'm afraid, is what I'd have done. But, instead, that man rose superior to his antagonist and superior to the lesser part of himself and won, by that victory—a friend for life.

A Thought

TODAY

Let me today do something that shall take
A little sadness from the world's vast store,
And may I be so favored as to make
Of joy's to scanty sum a little more.
Let me tonight look back across the span
'Twixt dawn and dark, and to my conscience say
Because of some good act to beast or man—
The world is better that I lived today.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

McDOUGALL'S MISTAKE IN MANITOBA

On this date (October 31) in 1869 came the first indications that half-breeds of the Red River country had determined to resist taking over of that country by the Dominion of Canada, William McDougall, who had been first man in the first House of Commons in 1867 to propose that Canada should buy out the Hudson's Bay Company and annex the Red River country and all the H.B.C. territory, was apointed governor of the North West Territories and despatched to Manitoba, via Chicago, but when he got to the international boundary and essayed to cross at Pembina he was stopped by a barricade erected by half-breeds armed with rifles, who paid no attention to the order of the commander of the military force accompanying McDougall to "remove that blasted fence." The Metis had been worked up to hostility by stories that Canada would rob them of their lands, by the stupidity of surveyors, who, instead of following the old custom of the district which gave each man a river frontage as is the custom in Quebec, divided up the country into lots of 160 acres and ran their lines across well established boundaries, by Louis Riel, who took advantage of the illness of Governor McTavish (H.B.C.) and of the absence in Rome of Bishop Tache.

They were ready for rebellion, and McDougall's course made the situation worse. Instead of trying conciliation he made threats. He issued a proclamation as governor, only to find out that he had not been gazetted, that he was merely a nominee, and that Ottawa had decided not to take over the country until the trouble had ended. So McDougall retired to St. Paul, and, as has been said by Prof. W. L. Grant, "All Canada laughed at the poor Governor of a territory which did not belong to him, helpless in a foreign city." Sir John Macdonald sent up Donald A. Smith, Colonel deSalaberry and Rev. Mr. Thibault as envoys to treat with Riel, but their efforts were unsuccessful. That is a story for another day.

MADOC TRINITY UNTED CHURCH HOLDS ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, Peterborough, is Special Preacher—Excellent Music.

SUPPER ON MONDAY.

MADOC, Oct. 31 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual chicken supper and anniversary services of Trinity United Church, Madoc, were held on Sunday, 28th, and Monday, 29th, with an excellent attendance at both services on Sunday and a record attendance on Monday evening, when the usual high reputation of the ladies was wonderfully sustained in the catering and serving of the supper on Monday, and with the serving of a noon-day lunch for business men and school children on Tuesday.

The special preacher of the day was Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, of St. James' United Church, Peterborough, while the minister of Trinity United Church occupied the pulpit of St. James' Church for the day.

A large choir had charge of the musical program, and did much to create a true thanksgiving atmosphere with their choice of suitable hymns and anthems.

In the evening, Mrs. J. W. Hulin rendered the solo, "How Beautiful are Thy Dwellings, O Lord God of Hosts," and a ladies' quartette, Mesdames Eagleson, Salisbury, Hulin and Fair gave a beautiful quartette and the anthem, "Now the day is over."

The Presbyterian minister and congregation withdrew their evening service to unite with Trinity Church in their anniversary services.

Following the chicken supper, a varied program was presented, Rev. G. W. Rivers, B.A., B.D., pastor, presiding as chairman.

Solo, "He was a farmer's lad and she was a Jersey cow," little Miss Sadie Tumelty; encore, "Pussy"; guitar numbers by Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. R. Taylor and Betty Phillips; musical monologue, Mrs. Abbott. Greetings from the Anglican parishes of Tweed and Madoc were brought by Rev. W. G. Hope Gwayne; ladies' quartette, Mrs. (Dr.) Eagleson, Mrs. Hulin, Miss Salisbury and Miss Fair, with Mrs. L. Ashley as accompanist; Miss Marion Henderson, solo; Rev. W. A. Hunter brought greetings from St. Peter's Presbyterian congregation; male quartette, Messrs. Fletcher, Wellman, Ross and Reddick; Rev. Mr. Doggett brought greetings from the Queensboro United Church, and another selection by the ladies' quartette, and the National Anthem closed a very enjoyable evening.

CROP REPORTS.

CENTRAL ONTARIO

Durham

Favorable weather last week gave farmers an opportunity to hit an excellent crop of turnips. About 40 to 50 per cent of these are still to be harvested. Acreage of fall wheat is not more than 60 per cent of last year's record sowing. Majority of this will go in the winter with a good top. Timothy, clover and alfalfa seed was practically a minus quantity in the county. I have only heard of one farmer who had a piece of red clover for seed.

Hastings

1266 cheese sold on Belleville Board at 9¾c, nearly one cent above price quoted a week ago. Advance in price was due to the rumor of the quota on Australia and New Zealand.

Northumberland

Farmers are not worrying about the shortage of hay. There is a big crop of corn, mangels and straw. Most dairymen are buying molasses at 20c per gallon to mix with straw and other rough feeds. Apple crop is less than 25 per cent of normal but quality and coloring are excellent. Good local demand, very few selling for export. British market weak.

Ontario

Root harvesting is general and crop is the best in several years. Weather has been ideal for the job. A big crop of potatoes has been harvested although there are still a few to clean up.

Prince Edward

While a number of farmers are a little behind with their plowing, this work is progressing much more rapidly than before the rains. Pasture remains good and cattle are in fair condition. Apple crop, which is extremely light, is practically all harvested.

Trent River

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Richards are spending the week at their home in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Lean and daughters Eleanor and Dorell were Sunday visitors with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lean of Cambourne.

Mrs. W. G. Barrie attended Elgin Sunday School Sunday afternoon and addressed the pupils on the international temperance lesson.

Miss Ella Cameron left Saturday for Toronto after spending the past few months with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rose and daughters returned to Toronto on Sunday after two weeks at "Ye Olde Mill." Mr. Herbert Rose accompanied them to Pickering where he will spend the winter with his son Harry and family.

Mr. Bill Hallowell arrived Saturday from Toronto, leaving for the city Sunday accompanied by his mother and brother Fred, who have spent the summer and fall months at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Ward left Saturday with the latter's brother, Mr. Palmateer for Colborne, where they will spend a few days prior to leaving for Rochester, N.Y., where they will spend the winter.

Mrs. James Longmuir and Mrs. Wesley Johnston arrived home on Monday from Detroit, Mich., where they spent over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Moore of Warsaw were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Soea and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wildman of Norwood road were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wildman and family.

Mr. Thomas Sedgwick had a birthday anniversary Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Palmer and daughter Glenna of Toronto were over the week-end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tyler.

Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davidson were Miss Elsie Hubel of Toronto, Mrs. Clarence Hubel, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Huffman and family of Havelock.

Mr. Wilbert Morrow of Elgin was a Sunday visitor with Mr. and Mrs. M. McArthur and family.

Madoc

The new Madoc High School was occupied by the teaching staff and students for the first time on Tuesday. Although not all finished, the building is likely to be completed in a few days and the formal opening is being arranged for probably the latter part of next week. The class-rooms are completed and the usual school routine is being resumed after the holidays of riday and Monday last, while school desks and equipment were being removed from the Armouries which have been High School quarters since the beginning of May.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rivers and little daughter of Toronto, were week-end guests at the United Church parsonage, attending the anniversary services and chicken supper on Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Charles Nicholls and son Claude of Marmora were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Hulin in Madoc over the week-end.

An unusually large crop of mushrooms on the landing field of Croydon Aerodrome near London has attracted so many pickers that a night guard has been placed to protect the mushroom-lovers from landing air liners.

SLOW TRADING MARKET CLOSE

Toronto Industrial Section Presents Weaker Tone in To-day's Session.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—(C.P.)—The industrial section of the New York market presented a weaker note today than its mentor, the New York list, with selling active in Nickel and Brewing Corporation Common. Liquor shares made up about the only firm group, while other sections of the board had more recessions than gains. Trade tapered off in the last hour to leave the tape moving very slowly at the close.

Nickel turned over actively at a drop of ⅝ to 22¼ while smaller losses were boarded for Brazilian, Ford A and C.P.R.

The Brewing Corporation stocks held up well in the early part of the session but selling expanded in the late trading attended by losses of ¼ for the common and ½ for the preferred.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET CLOSE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(A.P.) — The stock market remained in a fairly firm but somnolent state today. Substantial gains were scored by a number of specialties, but the general list was narrow. Oils were moderately higher. Amerada Corporation, United Fruit and Liggett & Myers B got up around 2 points each. Noranda Mines dipped as much. U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Du Pont and General Motors were about even. Transfers approximated 400,000 shares.

NORANDA LEADS TORONTO DROP

Loses Heavily Along With Gunnar Gold in Yellow Metal Division.

DISPIRITED SESSION.

TORONTO, Oct. 31 (C.P.) — The mining section of the Toronto Exchange put on a dispirited performance to-day with a generally heavy note appearing throughout the list. Noranda in the base metals and Gunnar Gold in the yellow metal division were leaders on the down side, losing heavily themselves and trailing others with them. Some short coverings helped the price level a bit in the final hour.

The Noranda statement revealing a falling off of earnings started active selling in that issue, and the price dropped to 30.70 for a loss of about $2.

The day's feature was the collapse of Gunnar Gold to 94, where short covering stepped in and it recovered to close at 1.05 for a net loss of 39 cents. Hollinger was sold actively down to 20.10, off 20 cents, while other big golds were slow.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 31 (C.P.).—Hogs continued to drop on the Toronto livestock market this afternoon and prices were 15 cents lower for the day and 25c lower for the three days' trading this week. Butcher cattle also slipped lower, selling barely steady to 10 cents down. Movement on all grades of cattle was slow. Partially offsetting the losses, lambs sold firm to 10c higher. Calves and sheep held unchanged.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion livestock branch were: Cattle 530, calves 480, hogs 1,520, sheep and lambs 1,680.

Butcher cattle sold mostly at $2.25 to $3.60, with a few weighty steers at $2.75 to $4.25. Good cows went from $2.25 to $2.50, while canners remained steady at $1. A few fed calves brought $4.50 to $6.75. Against the general trend of the division, store cattle sold fairly active at $2 to $3.25.

Lambs pushed 10 cents higher on some sales, moving at a top of $6.50 and at a $6.25 bottom for good ewes and wethers. Other grades sold at $3.00 to $6.00.

After an unsettled opening hogs dropped 15 cents to sell at $7.35 f.o.b. for bacons, $7.75 off truck, and $8.10 off car. The division opened unsettled with low bids.

Calves remained firm at $6.50 to $7.50 for good and choice vealers though tops were at $7.00. Grassers ranged from $2.00 to $2.75, while heavies brought $2.50 to $3.50.

Sheep also held unchanged at $1.00 to $3.00 cwt.

Live Stock Quotations.

Hogs, off car basis, select $1.00 premium; bacons, $8.10; butchers, count; lights and feeders, $1.00 discount; sows, $5.10.

Lamb quotations remained unchanged with the exception of good quality which were quoted at $6.25 to $6.50.

HAMILTONIAN NABBED FOR STEALING COMPASS

HAMILTON, October 31 (C.P.).— Years ago on the Scottish coasts, bold men used to build fires, guide ships to destruction on the rocky shores, and loot the wreckage. Jeff Morningstar, 52, must have the blood of these old-time wreckers in his veins, but he operates in a less spectacular manner.

Yesterday the tug J. R. Binning sank at her moorings in Hamilton Harbor. Last night the captain boarded the wreck, being raised, and discovered that most vital of all equipment, the ship's compass, was missing. He called police, and the officers pounced upon Jeff Morningstar.

Before Magistrate Burtidge today Jeff admitted his guilt, and was remanded a week for sentence.

Past Joking

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 31.—(C.P.)—To swing a black cat by the tail in a cemetery in the dead of night is to be lucky at something or other on and after Hallowe'en, but to push over gravestones at the witching hour is an uncanny business, desecrating the dead, police said to-day.

Chief of Police Harry Stanley declared that an investigation was being conducted into the activities of Hallowe'en "pranksters," and one of the first items to be investigated was the pushing over of about a dozen gravestones in Greenwood cemetery last night. No leniency would be shown offenders when caught, he said.

DAVID MEISNER CROSSES BORDER TO FACE POLICE

Wants to Get It Over — Positive He Can't Be Identified as One of Gang.

DRIVEN TO LONDON.

Not Likely Face Array of Witnesses on Arrival To-day.

WINDSOR, Oct. 31. (CP). — The long battle of David Meisner against extradition to Canada ended at 12.30 p.m. to-day when he arrived here and was immediately turned over to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Meisner, wanted in connection with the John Labatt kidnapping, signed a waiver of extradition earlier today. He was taken to London immediately by automobile.

Meisner was apparently in high spirits when escorted to the Canadian end of the Windsor-Detroit tunnel.

"I want to get it over with," he told newspapermen. "I know they can't identify me as having anything to do with the kidnapping, so I might as well go to London and let them have a look at me. It won't do them any good."

It is not expected he will have to face the array of witnesses today.

To-day's proceedings at Detroit were a mere formality. Arrangements were made by Sergeant Ted Weeks of the R.C.M.P. in the county jail last night when he visited the prisoner. Sergeant Weeks suggested to Meisner he abandon his intention to fight extradition and the latter agreed with the consent of his lawyer.

Sergeant Weeks took the prisoner in charge to-day and escorted him to an automobile in which they then set out for London

George Stephenson, Walkerton, Bruce County engineer, was the first witness called by the Crown. He gave evidence in regard to the location of the Stroh farm and a plan he had drawn of the farm and surrounding territory. He also stated that while examining the territory, one of the party, he was not sure which, had picked up an overcoat button near the spot where the body was found.

There were also some bloodstains, he added. Mr. Stephenson described in detail the Stroh farm.

Cross-examined by defence counsel, Campbell Grant, witness stated it had rained the evening previous to his examination and survey of the farm.

Found The Body.

Fred Baetz of Carrick Township, one of the two men who found the body of Stroh, was the second Crown witness. He told the court he was returning from Guelph, accompanied by his brother, William, and two relatives, when they arrived at the corner near the Stroh farm.

They saw the body of a man lying at the side of the road. He said the body was lying on its back, very straight.

With William Baetz, he got out of the car and examined the body. The body was fully clothed, but around the abdomen was a small part exposed. They then drove east to the home of David Miller, passing the Stroh home on the way.

"How long did it take you from the time you found the body until the time you telephoned to Clifford?"

"About a quarter of an hour."

"When you returned, was the body in the same position?"

"Yes."

"Did you know Stroh?"

"Yes, but I did not recognize him until a lantern was used the second time we looked."

Provincial Constable McClevis and County Officer Ferguson arrived on the scene some time later, examined the body, and the entire party returned to Clifford, where they got Henry Stroh, brother of the dead man, and his son Carl. They then proceeded back to the spot where the body lay. From there the party went to the farm of Phillip Stroh nearby, Baetz and his brother remaining in their car.

M.O.H. To Inoculate In Separate Schools

Through a misunderstanding The Examiner made a misstatement of fact in connection with announcement of the diphtheria inoculation to be undertaken in the Separate schools of the city.

It was mistakenly assumed by the reporter that the work in the Separate schools would be under supervision of Dr. A. W. McPherson, Public school health officer.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, medical officer of health, upon whose suggestion the Separate school authorities decided to offer facilities for the inoculation against diphtheria to children under their jurisdiction will direct and supervise the undertaking. He will be assisted by a nurse appointed by the Separate School Board, and it is probable that the inoculation will be started on Monday next. Definite announcement, however, will be made by Dr. Fraser shortly.

NO COMPETITION AMONG BUYERS IN FISH TRADE

ed the men to apply for government relief to survive.

He also blamed lack of competition among buyers for low prices.

Organization of fishermen into a co-operative association was urged by Mr. Wilcox. He thought the dominion government should increase its grant to the United Maritime Fishermen's Association so it could enlist more members and increase its bargaining power. The dominion government now pays $1,500 a year to the association.

The conditions of the fishermen along the shore of St. Mary's Bay in Digby County were outlined by Mr. Bailey. About 800 men depended for their livelihood on fishing in that district and were distributed among the four communities of Centreville, Freeport, Westport and Tiverton.

Years ago the lobster fishing had been the most lucrative activity engaged in, the catch being sent to the United States market. Now, however, the halibut fishing was on a par. Other operations embraced hand-lining for cod, and haddock and pollock.

All the salted fish went to the export market while a portion of the fresh-fish found its way to Boston.

In 1934 the prices received for pickled fish were $3.50 for 110 lbs., size 22½ inches and up, and $2.50 for medium sizes—that was between 16 and 22½ inches. This representd a 50 cent increase over the 1933 prices.

Mr. Bailey explained that in most cases the fish was sold direct to the dealers for cash, but in smaller communities sales were made to the stores and credits for supplies established.

Cod and haddock had brought $1 per 100 pounds this year and pollock and hake 50 cents per 100 pounds, said witness.

"What do you say were the average annual earnings for a fisherman in your district?" asked committee counsel, Norman Sommerville.

Earning $300 a Year

"$300 net for the year or $25 per month," answered Mr. Bailey. Out of the $300 a man had to take care of his family, and this amount made no provision for wear and tear of boat. The average life of a boat was 10 years, and a boat depreciated about 10 per cent of its value annually, Mr. Bailey told the commission.

Since 1929, fishermen had been "going back," and prices in 1933 were substantially lower than those received by fishermen in 1929, probably about 50 per cent lower, said Mr. Bailey.

Only Eight Boats

With regard to lobster fishing the fleet was down from 30 to eight boats this year, said Mr. Bailey. He believed the lobsters in his vicinity were being depleted

Low prices, due apparently to lack of competition, were the chief difficulty in the fishing industry.

Mr. Bailey favored government grading of fish.

The bait situation on the St. Mary's Bay was not good. There was a small cold storage plant in Digby with a capacity of 30 barrels—"not worth mentioning," said Mr. Bailey.

He had to go to Yarmouth in the fall or have the bait freighted up to Westport by boat. This added to the expense and the risk of deterioration was great. He advocated the establishment of a cold-storage plant about midway between the fishing communities of that district.

The greatest nuisance in the operations of fishing was the dogfish.

"They're tough," said Mr. Bailey. "I've seen one lying on top of a catch for an hour and a half. We threw him off with a pitchfork, and away he swam to go on with his killing."

Mr. Bailey believed that a basic price of three cents a pound would be satisfactory. If the market did not warrant the price the fishermen would have to take less. But should the market go above the three cent price, then the fishermen should get the advantage.

GOVERNOR PAYS VISIT TO LOCAL SERVICE CLUB

James Dunwoody Urges Rotarians to Give More Thought to International Goodwill.

ROTARY CHALLENGED.

Foreign Members of Organization Are Looking For Action in Regard to Sixth Object.

An earnest plea for Rotarians to devote serious thought to Rotary's international and vocational services was voiced at to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club by District Governor James Dunwoody of Erie, Pa. who was paying his official visit to the local club.

Adopting a phrase from the field of electrical engineering Governor Dunwoody remarked that he proposed to discuss the "lead" and "lag" of Rotary in the twenty-seventh district.

After visiting some forty-six clubs he felt that he had an accurate picture of the district from a Rotary viewpoint. The "lead," he said, was represented by club and community services and in these departments there was nothing to criticize. Clubs in the twenty-seventh district were splendid in their club service, and every one of them had undertaken some worth-while community service. The "lag" was to be found in the international and vocational service departments.

Attending the Governors' conference just before the convention of Rotary International he had found that invariably Rotarians from Europe and other countries were interested chiefly in the sixth object, the development of international goodwill. It was because of this feature that they had become interested in Rotary and they were looking to the Rotarians of the North American Continent for action. Their attitude was a challenge to the Rotarians of this continent and Governor Dunwoody declared that the challenge would have to be met.

Calling attention to the efforts of Rotarians in Peru and Paraguay to bring peace to the two countries, the speaker asked if it were not possible that Rotary endeavor was responsible for the fact that hostilities in South America were not on a bigger scale. Similarly might it not be the case that Rotary's hand was responsible for the fact that recent events in Europe had not been followed by an outbreak such as had followed a similar event in 1914.

The speaker's suggestion was that Rotarians should give serious thought to the sixth object. If it were not for the international aspect of Rotary he said the Peterborough Rotary Club, for example, might more appropriately be called a civic club than a Rotary Club.

As an entering wedge Governor Dunwoody advocated more attention to Rotary's vocational service. Business in the past had been developed too much on the stone age theory—the survival of the fittest rather in the spirit of "live and let live." Rotary's vocational service called for the development of higher ethics in business and as business was primarily responsible for most international misunderstandings, greater attention by Rotarians to this feature of their program was most desirable.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Ross L. Dobbin and the thanks of the club were extended to Governor Dunwoody by President J Fred Reed. As a gesture of welcome to the distinguished visitor "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" was sung by the gathering.

PASSENGER DIES IN TRUCK CRASH

Globe Delivery Van Hits Parked Transport as Driver is Blinded by Glaring Lights.

NEAR CHATHAM.

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct. 31 (C.P.).— Blinded by glaring headlights of an approaching car, Gordon H. Lapthorn, 350 Dundas Street, London, driver of a Toronto Globe delivery truck, crashed into the rear of a Lancaster transport truck which had broken down on No. 2 highway half a mile east of Kent Bridge early to-day.

Frederick Lachlan Carruth, 37, of 104 Brisco Street, London, a passenger in the Globe truck, received fatal injuries and died in St. Joseph's Hospital here an hour after the accident. Lapthorn is now being treated in the hospital for knee injuries, but he is not seriously hurt. An inquest has been ordered by Crown Attorney H. D. Smith, and it will be held before Coroner Dr. Fred Hall.

The Lancaster truck, which was in charge of Walter T. Ainsworth, of 1709 Howard Avenue, Windsor, broke down east of Kent Bridge about 5.30 a.m. The driver had discovered that the gas line had been plugged and he was in the act of making the repairs when it was struck by the Globe truck headed west. The newspaper truck smashed in the left rear end of the transport with terrific force, Lapthorn and Carruth being thrown hard against the windshield.

The two injured men were brought to Chatham by Garland Pigeon, a Chatham man, who happened to be passing at the time. Carruth spoke a few words during the trip, but lapsed into unconsciousness on being admitted to the hospital. His head was injured and his body badly bruised. He had been in the employ of the Walkerside Dairy in London, and was on his way to Walkerville to inspect the company's plant. Lapthorn was accommodating him with a ride.

Glengarry Tories Regret Stevens' Move

ALEXANDRIA, Ont., October 31 (C.P.). — Regret at the resignation of Hon H. H. Stevens from the post of Minister of Trade and Commerce was expressed by the Glengarry Conservative Association in a resolution passed at its annual meeting here last night.

The motion as presented to the meeting read: "Be it resolved, That this meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association for the Federal riding of Glengarry express its regret at the resignation of the Hon. H. H. Stevens as Minister of Trade and Commerce; and further, we wish to express our disapproval of the action of the Government in accepting his resignation. In our opinion Mr. Stevens is too valuable a Cabinet Minister for the country to dispense with his services at the present time. Be it further resolved, That this meeting is in hearty accord with Mr. Stevens in all his other actions during tre year, we feeling that they have been in the best interests of the people of Canada as a whole."

Later an amendment was passed deleting the words "and further we wish to express our disapproval of the action of the Government in accepting his resignation."

DISTRICT ROTARY GOVERNOR IS VISITOR AT CAMPBELLFORD

James Dunwoody of Erie, Pa., Delivers Splendid Address at Weekly Luncheon.

OFFICIAL VISIT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 31. (Examiner Correspondence).—Due to the official visit of District Governor James Dunwoody of Erie, Pa., the regular Rotary luncheon was held on Tuesday this week, all members being present with the exception of Mayor Harold N. Carr, M.P.P., who was unavoidably absent in Toronto.

Rev. Harold B. Neal was guest of honor for the occasion and also a number of citizens whose services had helped to make the recent Rotary Street Fair a great success, among whom were Messrs Dr. O. C. Watson, Glen Thompson, Gus Mowat, Hilton Beatty, George Lucy, Jack Bygott, Lee Bush, Roy Bell, George Davidson, Joe Smith, Mosley Peeling and Bennet Morton.

The program opened with a tenor solo by George W. Lucy, who sang in splendid voice "Queen of the Earth" by Pinsuiti. This was followed by community singing under the direction of Elie Brunelle.

The speaker was then introduced by President Stanley H. Neale. In his opening remarks Governor Dunwoody stated that during his recent travels he had visited 45 clubs and had noticed a decided increase in memberships during the past three months—men who had dropped out for various causes were anxious at the very first opportunity to re-instate, not only because they had found these weekly meetings interesting, but because these meeting were the very foundation for fellowship and communnity service.

There are two other avenues of service apart from the regular activities of club service said the speaker—international and vocational—these two items at the present time are lacking in some clubs.

The greatest opportunity of Rotary to-day rests with service—Rotarians from all parts of the world met to make plans, men from South America, Africa, Asia and Central Europe met with their brothers of the North American Continent and facts brought out from these conversations simply meant that unless Rotary does develop and does accomplish something in the way of better understanding with the peace of the world it will accomplish nothing. Imagine 150 000 members, established in eight nations—members gained because of fact and fellowship—these are the two things which draw men to this organization.

Rotarianc went out to these countries because they saw the chance of doing good among men of the world, and now Rotary has encircled the globe. We are an international organization, but taking little part in international affairs. Campbellford has just as much responsibility in the development of international as any club. "Don't lose sight of the fact that you are part of the international." If you are to continue to develop but only to your small community, you might just as well call yourselves the "civic society," but because of the service work we are doing we are trying to do things that affect the world.

In 1914, when the world was thrown into a tremendous turmoil, over an incident which on the face of it didn't at first appear to have meant war, but you all know the result in Central Euroue In the past month a similar thing happened, but how different to 1914. People have stopped and given some thought before action which was not done in 1914. I wonder if our club has not had some effect on the incidents of the past month—far more serious than in 1914—but it has passed without serious result. I wonder if the strong effort put forth has had any bearing on this disturbance. I have had the privilege of hearing these men from distant lands talk—hearing their desires, and I predict that our organization will within the very near future present to us facts that will mean a better understanding between the nations of the world.

Our organization is dynamic—forward going and we should not at this time let down our efforts from the foundations established. Our problems are truly international, and I ask you in Campbellford to give serious thought to better understanding and good will throughout the world. Great things have come from men of vision, and we must be visionary and consider our organization from that standpoint and see what can be accomplished.

President Stanley H. Neal, on behalf of the members, expressed their great appreciation of Governor Dunwoody's excellent address.

If you want the best remedy for severe coughs, mix it at home. Once tried, you'll never use any other kind, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its healing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ozs. of really better medicine than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

And for quick, lasting relief, it has no equal. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

CHANGES URGED IN TRUCK LAWS

Compulsory Tariff to Control Rates, Classification for Shipments Suggested.

BOARD PROPOSED.

TORONTO, Oct. 31 (CP)—Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways, to-day scanned a list of recommendations tendered him by the Automotive Transportataion Association of Ontario and which urged formation of a Provincial Transportation Board to control use of highways by commercial vehicles.

Among other suggertions made are limitation of licenses for public commercial vehicles; a compulsory tariff to control classification and rates charged for truck shipments; regulation of hours, wages and working conditions of employees, and amendments to the Public Commercial Vehicles Act to regulate carrier truck traffic between Ontario and United States points and between Ontario and Quebec.

The proposed board, the association suggests, should include a representative of the association, railway companies, the shipping public, the government, and an independent chairman. The board would be along the lines of public utility boards of certain states of the United States and the Transport Board in England. It would take from the Ontario Municipal Board its activities regarding trucking.

Through establishment of such a board the association believes looseness in issuing licenses which resulted in duplication of services; lowering of service standards; rate cutting; employing men at "slaves" wages would be eliminated; and "cut-throat competition" would be eliminated.

Millbrook

The Sunday School of Grace Presbyterian Church held a jolly Hallowe'en party in the basement of the church on Monday at 8 p.m., the decoration including streamers of yellow and black overhead and twined round the pillars; cut-outs and runners of black cats, witches, etc., Jacko' Lanterns and the red mountain ash berries. A grand march to display the costumes was the opening features, the judges being Miss D. Bannister, Mrs. J. N. McGill and Mrs. J. R. Thompson. Winners in the various classes included: Hugh Williams, realistic as a pirate; Phyllis Armstrong as a clown; Joan Deyell, a pierette; Dick Williams as a nun; F. J. Deyell as a witch. J. H. McKnight was in the chair, and the program opening with "O Canada," had a song by the little tots from Miss Margaret Armstrong's class, followed by a play, "A Visit to the Photographer's," the characters, who all filled their roles to perfection, including Joe Thorndyke, the photographer; Jean Bothwell who brought her twins (Mary Armstrong and Donald Kerr) to pose for pictures; Muriel Ball, a spinster school teacher, another patron; also Ruth Ball, who wished to be taken 'different'; then the group who wanted a family photo, Dick Williams, carrying the baby; Vanita Ingram, Gladys Bothwell; Reg McKnight and Jessie Armstrong. Costumes were appropriate, and the clever skit was much enjoyed. Musical contests, and the service of grapes and homemade candy brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Carveth, Cavan (Dorene Davis), on Saturday, October 20, a daughter, Joan Marie.

The Boneka Bible Class of St. Andrew's Sunday School intends holding a hot supper on Saturday, November 3, in the Bigelow parlors, beginning at 5 p.m., and continuing until all are served. The Golden Links Mission Circle hot supper is on Saturday, November 17, at the same place and hour.

The bale packed for western relief at the parsonage on Tuesday afternoon was well filled with clothing in good condition, warm sweaters and coats, etc., and was secured under the supervision of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hatherly have returned home after visiting their daughter, Mrs. Stanley Jones, and Mr. Jones, at Newtonville.

Obituary

DONALD GEORGE OLIVER

HASTINGS, Oct. 31.—One of the largest funerals to be held in Hastings took place on Monday afternoon, October 22, from the family residence on the Cobourg Road, to Trinity United Church, for Donald George, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Oliver.

The deceased, had he lived for four days, would have celebrated his tenth birthday. Very ill for nine weeks from complications developing from scarlet fever, Donald was rushed to Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, on Friday, for further treatment, but passed peacefully away the following morning.

Of a very bright and cheerful disposition he was loved by all who knew him and will not only be missed in his home, but at the Cobough Road School; at Trinity United Church, Sunday School and Mission Band, where during his short life he was a faithful attendant.

The funeral service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. F. W. Newell, who chose his text from the 8th chapter of St. Luke, verse 52: "Weep not, she is not dead but sleepeth," which was a message of hope and consolation to the bereaved family. Rev. F. H. Battersby, rector of St. George's Anglican Church, also spoke a few words and on behalf of his congregation extended his sympathy to those in sorrow.

Familiar childhood hymns sung were "When He Cometh," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and "I Know He Loves Me Too."

The pall-bearers were four neighborhood boys, Philip Ford, Ralph Hackney, Elmer Richardson, and Joseph Smith.

Five little school chums and three little cousins were flower-bearers. Jack Smith, James Smith, Harold Richardson, Vincent Gibson, Albert Lamey, Henry Oliver, George Oliver and McLean Herriot.

The deep sympathy, which is everywhere felt for the bereaved parents, his brothers, Virgil and Cecil, and sister Irene, was eloquently expressed by the many beautiful floral tributes, included among them being a broken circle from the Cobourg Road School, and wreaths from Trinity United Sunday School, and woman's Association.

MRS. ALEXANDER WILSON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 31—The funeral of the late Mrs. Alexander Wilson was held on Monday afternoon. Services at the family residence were conducted by Rev S H Hill of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. The large number at the funeral, as well as the many beautiful floral offerings, showed the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The bearers were Messrs. W. M. Fowlds, Dr. J. H. Hess, C. R. Fowlds, W. Montgomery, A. B. Smith and J. F. Jones.

Interment was made in Trent Valley cemetery.

JAMES CULKEEN

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 31.—(Examiner Correspondence)—In the passing of James Kulkeen, whose death occurred on Monday at the age of 75, this district loses one of its most esteemed citizens. Mr. Kulkeen was born in Tyendinaga, coming here with his parents who were pioneersof Seymour township at the age of 10. In 1891 he married Louisa Hicks who survives him, also four daughters, Mrs. Fred Phillips, Port Hope, Mrs. H. Desbarbiux of town, Agatha and Irene at home, and two sons Joseph of Kilworthy and Anthony at home. The funeral will take place from the family residence, Lot 8, Concession 8, Seymour on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 with services in St. Mary's Roman Catholic church at 3 o'clock. Interment will be made in St. Mary's Cemetery.

BONARLAW

Canon W. G. Swayne is in Toronto for a few days this week.

Fourteen members of St. Mark's Church Men's Club attended the annual meeting and banquet of the Hastings and Prince Edward Laymen's Association which was held in Trenton on Friday evening of last week. All report a very pleasurable and profitable evening.

Ten members of St. Mark's Sunday School attended the Township S.S. convention held at Carmel Church on Thursday of last week. Miss Florence Prest, delegate, will give a report of this convention on Sunday next.

A near accident occurred on the C.P.R. on Friday afternoon last about five miles east of Bonarlaw when a westbound freight train found it necessary to put their brakes in emergency to avoid hitting a truck which was standing on the railway crossing at that point, the owner apparently not hearing the whistle of the engine. The license number was not obtained.

$132.50 IS HIGH AT JERSEY SALE

Two Cows From S. S. Staples' Herd Bring Top Prices at District Sale.

BOUGHT BY STEPHENS.

E. T. Stephens of the Rose Lawn Dairy, Richmond Hill, paid the top prices for two cows from the herd of S. S. Staples, Cavan township, at the second annual consignment sale of pure bred Jersey cattle held yesterday afternoon in the stables of the Montgomery House by the Jersey breeders of the Peterborough district.

"Silver Alicetta" brought $132.50 and "Wayside Beauty" went for $120.

These were the peak bids of the sale of which Harry Redmond was auctioneer. Other breeders represented in the catalogue were Joseph Kelly of Roseneath, Thos. Bates of Baltimore and Fred Reynolds of Smith township.

Prominent in the numerous group of men attracted to the sale was James Bremner of Fredericktion, N.B., secretary of Dominion Jersey Cattle Club, who congratulated the local association upon the interest they were maintaining in the Jersey breed throughout the district. He said the financial returns from Jersey cattle were holding up well in spite of the depression, and that such consignment sales enabled other farmers to obtain quality stock at auction prices.

John T. Drope of Roseneath opened the sale with a few words in which he expressed on behalf of the Jersey cattlemen their appreciation of the attendance of so many breeders from the district. He said that the success of the first sale a year ago had been an encouragement the consignments of yesterday, and would have an effect of helping to distribute pure bred cattle of the Jersey breed.

A. Runions, county representative of the Department of Agriculture, was secretary of the sale.

Joseph Kelley's "Sunset Tony Diana" was bought by R. M. Brown, Peterborough, for $55.

"Indian Maid" consigned by T. Bates of Baltimore was sold to E. M. Herrington of Picton for $85.

"Springville Jolly Bessie" from the S. S. Staples herd passed into the possession of R. M. Brown for $57.50.

"Raleigh Boy's Ada" another Staples animal sold to Wm. Tinney of Cavan for $85.

"Flora Noble" also consigned by Mr. Staples was bought by M. Goudy, Peterborough, for $45.

"Nellie of Plateau Valley", offered by Fred Reynolds, was bought by Alfred Bagg, Edgely, for $50.

A pure bred heifer consigned by Mr. Kelly was bought for $52.50 by F. M. Chapman of Pickering.

A grade cow from the Staples farm sold to J. M. Lowes for $27, and another grade cow consigned by Mr. Bates sold to George Fairbairn of Lakefield for $26.

PRISONER GIVES FRESH DETAILS

Met 6 Years Ago.

Sanders is quoted by the Enquirer as saying he met Hauptmann six years ago through a former convict. The two asked him to enter a kidnap deal with them then, but he decline. Later Hauptmann renewed the invitation with another kidnapping in mind, the ewspaper relates, and again Sanders refused. His next contact with Hauptmann was in 1932, when he refused to handle the ransom.

The money obtained in Germany, the Enquirer says, was divided between Sanders and Hauptmann.

Jailor Skeptical.

TROY, O., Oct. 31 (A.P.).—The story of D. Y. Sanders, a former salesman for religious books, that he helped Bruno Hauptmann dispose of some of the Lindbergh kidnap ransom money was scoffed at by his jailor to-day.

"He likes to talk," Deputy Sheriff Russell Stane, night jailor, said. "He'll talk about anything you mention. We think that all he wants is a ride."

Stane said he did not know whether Department of Justice agents had questioned Sanders.

CONSIDERATE.

CADIZ, O., October 31 (C.P.). — Robert Hennen wants to thank the thoughtful thieves who stole his automobile. The car was found abandoned on Tuesday near Weirton, W. Va., and Hennen found the thieves had installed a complete set of new tires, a radio, and a heater.

SLAGHT TO ACT COUNSEL'S PART

a number of dismissals and appointments. The Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway was given a new general manager when Arthur A Cavanagh of Barrie, Ont., was placed in the position once occupied by George Lee, dismissed after Armand Racine, Windsor lawyer, conductde a probe nito the administration of the Government-owned road.

Victor Sinclair, lawyer, lost his position as chairman of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board and the Government also dispensed with the services of H. J. Halford, vice-chairman. George Wilkie, K.C., of Toronto, will take Mr. Sinclair's post at a much lower salary and Earl Hutchinson of Kenora will fill Mr. Halford's shoes at a lower salary.

The Reason Why

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said Mr. Sinclair was being dismissed because he accepted a solicitor's fee from another organization, contrary to the statute. Mr. Sinclair said when he was appointed 10 years ago the government knew he was a solicitor for the Order of Foresters and the dismissed chairman declared this was not contrary to the Act.

Lieut. Col. W. G. Thompson of Hamilton will succeed Dr. Fred Conboy as director of Ontario Dental Services and he will receive no salary. Another decision of the administration yesterday was to dismiss 17 employees of the Ontario Agricultural College, ranging from caretakers to professors.

Aim to Amend Act

Premier Hepburn also took occasion to deny reports his government would move for amendment of the Legislative Assembly Act for reduction of a government's term of office. There will be no change sought, he declared, and the five-year term will stand. He also announced there would be no sitting of the Legislature in December because he was bent on a "long-delayed and much-needed holiday."

On the other side of the political picture appeared reports that a certain number of Conservative stalwarts were calling for a change of leadership. The Mail and Empire said a letter had been written to Hon. George S. Henry, former Premier and Ontario Conservative leader, by a group of Conservatives, headed by Karl K. Homuth, former Legislature member for South Waterloo, demanding Mr. Henry's resignation immediately ano holding of a Conservative convention as soon as possible.

Several Toronto Conservatives said they had received a communication from Mr. Homuth, but would not divulge its contents, while Mr. Homuth declared he had nothing to say.

Young's Point

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wilson returned to Young's Point, on Saturday, from their honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls, Bufaflo, Windsor and Detroit. The young couple will take up residence in Young's Point.

Mrs. George Wilson of Hall's Bridge, visited with relatives and friends in the village on Wednesday.

Capt. William Scollard has left the village for Iroquois Falls where he will spend the winter months as a scaler of logs.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harvey and family of Niagara Falls, returned home on Sunday after spending a few days with Mrs. Harvey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert MacNaughton.

Miss Irene Young has spent the past week in Peterborough, where she nursed her father, Mr. P. P. Young, in St. Joseph's, Hospital.

Miss Vivian Whitmore of Apsley visited with friends in the village on Tuesday.

St. Aidan's Church, Young's Point, were the sponsors of a very successful rummage sale, and also a sale of Home Cooking, at the Lakeview Hotel on Saturday. Tickets were also sold throughout the afternoon on a quilt, formerly made by the Woman's Auxiliary, and when the draw was made, Miss Mary Scollard was the lucky winner. Mrs. Andrew Wilson was in charge of the Rummage table.

Mrs. Wilbert MacNaughton was in charge of the Home Cooking,and Mrs. E. C. Moore sold the tickets on the quilt and looked after the candy table.

Warkworth

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Thompson and Mrs. W. R. Dawkins of Toronto, were week-end guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Twiddy of Trenton, were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thompson.

Mrs. John Dick is visiting, Mr. and Mrs. James Dick, of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baker and Blanche, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Baker of Hastings, and visited Mr. and Mrs. Will Oliver Colborne and Mr. and Mrs. M. Rause, Brighton, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cephas Harper of Fenella, visited Mr. and Mrs. W. J Harper, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Murphy and Mrs. C. Leach, Fenella, visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beswetherick, on Sunday.

Mrs. Minnie Langford, of Prelate, Sask, and Mrs. Wesley Vanblaricom, of Picton, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. Buchanan.

Game Warden Busy In Lindsay District

LINDSAY, Oct. 31 (Examiner Correspondence). — Game Warden Windsor is cleaning up on those in this district who are violating the game laws. One man from Omemee was fined to-day for trapping muskrats and an Omemee merchant was fined for selling partridge. Mr. Windsor's territory has been enlarged and he travels as far as Lake Simcoe on his beat.

A visitor from the north country informed The Examiner yesterday that snow to the depth of a foot had fallen at Minden, and there was every indication that winter had set in.

MAN WHO WISHED FOR DEATH FINDS IT NOT SO SIMPLE TO DIE

Goes to First Wife's Grave, Fires Shot, Recovers, Fires Again, Recovers.

NOW IN HOSPITAL.

(By DALE HARRISON)

NEW YORK, Oct. 31. (AP).—To die, reasoned Leopold Schild, is a simple thing; a pressure of the finger on a pistol trigger, and it is done.

Leopold Schild was mistaken. To died is not a simple thing.

He went with a gun to the Lutheran cemetery in Middle Village, Long Island. He lifted the gun to his head and pulled the trigger. The bullet tore into his head through the right eye. He crumpled to the ground, and consciousness fled.

But he did not die. Through Monday night he lay there senseless, half dropped (as he had fallen) against a headstone into which had been cut the words: "Marie, beloved wife of Leopold Schild."

Sometime during the night—perhaps it was the raw wind that whined eerily among the tombstones fanning his bloodied face—Leopold Schild regained consciousness. It had not been so simple to die.

Drunkenly (for he had lost much blood) he fumbled about on the ground. His hand touched a paper. It was the note he had written and left there. It said—as so many notes have said—: "I am a victim of the depression."

The note was not what he had been groping for. Ah, there it is. The gun! I came here to die. One more bullet; that will do it.

He lifted the gun again, and a second bullet tore into his bleeding head.

Recovers Again

Tuesday's sun came, and with it consciousness returned once more to Leopold Schild. He stumbled to his feet—this man who had thought it a simple thing to die—and staggered blindly down the corridors of the dead.

He came to a garage in which an undertaker keeps his funeral cars. Into one of these cars crawled 53-year-old Leopold Schild—two bullets in his head—to die.

The undertaker found him thus. He thought the man dead. When he shook him there was response.

"I shot myself," said Leopold Schild.

They took him to a hospital. They called his wife—his second wife—and their 13-year-old son.

And they told her they had found a note, and that in it he had written:

"I want to join my wife Marie in death".

He lies to-day in a hospital, near death. His wife and their son watch and weep.

Outside is a policeman.

If Leopold Schild lives, the office will arrest him.

It is a prison offense for one without a license to possess firearms.

BIG MASQUERADE AT BROCK STREET

Rink Specially Decorated and Prizes Are Offered.

Hallowe'en Night will be observed with special entertaining features at the Brock Street Summer Gardens to-night, in a Masquerade Carnival.

The big rink has been decorated appropriately to the season, with a fringe of corn stalks for the big dancing enclosure, and pumpkin lights and witches.

It is expected that many will be present in costume and there will be free favors for all, as well as two door prizes of five dollars in cash for lady and gentleman, and cash prizes for the balloon dance.

Mose Yokom and his band will play.

4 NEW W.M.S. SOCIETIES

KITCHENER, Ont. Oct. 31. (CP) Four new societies were accepted into the membership of the Women's Missionary Society of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Canada at the opening sessions of its convention in New Hamburg yesterday. The new groups are Unionville, Chatham, Christ Lutheran Church of Montreal and the Light Brigade Society of New Hamburg.

Ex-Spanish Prince Loses Cuban Bride

PARIS, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—The former Prince of Asturias, who threw away his title and a chance at the Spanish throne to marry a Cuban commoner, was reported to-day to have lost his bride after 15 months of marriage.

Count De Cavadonga, the title adopted by the Prince, after his marriage, is living alone at a hotel and it was reported his wife has left him to return to her mother.

The Prince's delicate health—he is a sufferer from haemophilia like his brother, the infante Gonzalo, who died recently in a motor accident—was rumored to be the cause of the separation.

Monarchist refugee quarters here said the prince is contemplating seeking a legal separation.

CHIEF NEWHALL ISSUES WARNING

Youngsters Can Have Fun But Want No Damage or Injury.

SPECIAL CONSTABLES.

Local youngsters were all prepared this evening to take full advantage of the privileges afforded by Hallowe'en to perform many pranks. However, Chief Constable Newhall and his staff, assisted by a group of "specials," were just as prepared to prevent the "spirits" from going too far with their fun.

Last year the Chief recalled that a resident of Ashburnham was beaten up by a group of young men when he remonstrated with them for the damage they were doing his property. "We dan't want a repetition of that sort of thing," he commented. "They can have fun without damage or injury."

However, most of the city's Hallowe'en spirits will spend the joyous evening ducking for apples at house parties, while hundreds of others will be attracted to the big Hallowe'en Frolic of the Kinsmen Club in the Armouries, where a good time is promised everyone.

Weddings

CULLEN—GOSSELIN.

A lovely wedding took place at seven o'clock this morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart, when Alma Verna, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn Gosselin of 269 Perry Street, and the late Mr. Thomas Gosselin, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Frederick Cullen of Kingston, son of Mr. F. A. Cullen of Vancouver, B.C. The Nuptial Mass and ceremony were solemnized by the Rev. C. Maloney.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. S. Cadigan, wore a beautiful gown of tea rose satin, moulded on long princess lines, with high neck and long sleeves. Her hat, gloves, and shoes were all in velvet of tea rose shade and she wore flesh-colored hose and crystal ear-rings. Her arm bouquet was of bronze chrysanthemums of the pom-pom variety.

The bridesmaid, Miss Muriel Dorris, was frocked in shell-pink mousseline de soie, with a velvet jacket of rose pink velvet which was matched in turn by her velvet hat, shoes and gloves. She carried an arm bouquet of pink 'mums.

Mr. Ross Miller of Toronto was groomsman.

The wedding music was played by Mr. J. Armstrong and Miss M. Allen sang an "Ave Maria" and other hymns during the progress of the Nuptial Mass.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at Walkerfield House, where decorations were carried out in pink and white and the bride's cake centered the table.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Cullen left for a fortnight's motor honeymoon trip through the United States down to Virginia. They will live in Kingston.

The bride travelled in a tailored suit of brown tweed, with long coat, brown felt hat and brown accessories.

TRIAL DELAYED

(By Joseph E. Sharkey)

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Jewish "protocal trial," in which leaders of the race sought to prove the falsity of the notorious "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," was adjourned for at least a month to-day to allow witnesses for the defendants to make a report on the authenticity of the documents.

For stealing seven pounds of marmalade, Robert Lee is serving three months at hard labor at Hull, England.

WINS PRIZE SHOOT

With a score of 112 points out of a possible 120 points, T. Roy Blakely was last night adjudged winner of a free basket of groceries donated by H. J. Boyle, in a rifle shooting contest at George Street Shooting Galleries. Other high scores were shot by W. H. Magee, 106; F. Blakely, 92; B. Boothroyd, 89; R. W. Stanton, 86. Further prize shoots are being conducted by the management this evening and during the balance of the week.

CLEVER BOOK REST

The 'Reedatees' is the name of an ingenious little triangle book rest made by W. E. Massey-Cooke, on display at present in The Examiner window.

It is a clever little contrivance that is said to be practically indestructible, allows of folding up for convenience, and holds a book comfortably in an upright position. Made of ply wood, it is finished in lacquer, stain, walnut and figured mahogany.

Obituary

MRS. C. EDWARD JOHNSTON.

The death occurred on Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's Hospital of Arcellie Bois, beloved wife of C. Edward Johnston, in her 61st year, following a short illness. The deceased was a native of Point Levi, Quebec, and Deseronto, Ontario, before coming here eight years ago, where the family took up residence with her daughter, Mrs. Alphonse LeVasseur at 215 Perry Street.

Besides her sorrowing husband, she leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters, Mrs. LeVasseur and Anna, and one son, Edward, all of Peterborough. The funeral will be held Friday morning at nine o'clock from her late residence to the Sacred Heart Church, where she was a devout member, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

ALFRED A. LEONARD

Funeral services were held this morning for Alfred A. Leonard, who passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital following a brief illness, in his 84th year. The cortege proceeded from the family residence, 306 Stewart street, to St. Peter's Cathedral where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Paul Costello. Interment followed at St. Peter's Cemetery, the committal service being conducted by the Rev. Father Grant. Pall-bearers were: Messrs. James Lynch, William Rudkins, Frank Fairen, F. G. Young, George Giroux, and W. B. Merrell.

A native of this city and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leonard, the deceased leaves two sisters, Mrs. G. H. Giroux and Miss K. Leonard, both of Stewart street. They are the last surviving members of the family.

Prior to his retirement about thirty years ago, the late Mr. Leonard was employed as a printer with The Peterborough Examiner, Limited.

Toronto Vi-Tones Here on Saturday

Since the local intermediate O.R.F.U. team (Orfuns) will not be playing a regular game this week-end, an exhibition contest has been arranged for with Toronto Vi-Tones in Riverside Park.

Through the co-operation of Coach Bamforth of P.C.I., the Orfuns will have use of the park for the second half of a double-header. The Oshawa-P.C.I. game is slated for 1.45, with the Vi-Tones-Orfuns' contest listed for 3.30 sharp. No extra charge will be made.

PLAN TO FORM RURAL BRANCH

Formation of Rural Branch of Workers' Educational Association in Keene.

REQUIRE 25 MEMBERS.

Formation of the first rural branch of the Workers' Educational Association was discussed at a largely attended meeting of the Young People's Society of Keene last night, with Miss Marjorie Francis presiding.

It was believed that there would be no difficulty in registering more than the minimum of twenty-five members for the course of winter classes which has been considered as a possibility by the Peterborough branch of the Association.

Osborne Smith, president of the Peterborough branch, A. E. Borland, secretary, Adrian Macdonald, M.A., and J. E. R. Munro, B.A., explained the purposes of the Workers' Educational Association as an agency of providing adult education by study of selected subjects in a course of twenty lectures. The Association is sponsored by the universities of the province, who desire to extend the advantages of this work to rural communities.

The sentiment of the meeting indicated a real desire to organize a branch as an opportunity for spending a profitable winter. Immediate enrollment is likely to be undertaken. Mr. Munro's services as lecturer are available, and his success with the Peterborough branch last winter is a guarantee to the young people of Keene of what they may accomplish.

Twenty-five members are required as the minimum, and Miss Francis expressed the opinion that more than that number would probably join. Among those who spoke in favor of the project was Rev. Mr. Ferguson.

The Weather

TORONTO, Oct. 31 (C.P.). — A trough of low pressure extends south-westward from Hudson Bay across the Great Lakes to the Missouri valley, while high pressure and cold weather covers the Western provinces and the north-west states. Light snow has fallen in many parts of Ontario and Quebec, though elsewhere the weather has been for the most part fair.

Lower Lake Region: Fresh south-west winds; cloudy with showers or snowflurries to-night. Thursday—Strong north-west winds; mostly cloudy and colder again with scattered snowflurries.

Georgian Bay: Fresh south-west to north-west winds; cloudy with light rain or snow to-night. Thursday—Strong north-west winds; cloudy and colder with snowflurries.

Northern Ontario: Fresh west to north-west winds; partly cloudy and cold to-night and Thursday, with snowflurries.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Fresh south-west winds; partly cloudy; light rain or snow tonight and part of Thursday, followed by north-west winds and colder again.

Prosperity of Czechoslovakia's chemical industry during the depression is ascribed to the fact that it never outgrew the home markets while the large concerns in other lines expanded for export business.

BEHIND the SCENES in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31. — Universal and Margaret Sullavan are fencing again—this time over contract. The Laemmles control only two pictures a year from their bright new star. And the two for this year are already delivered. They are trying to make it 52 weeks for 1935 and Margaret, advised by her agents, Joyce & Selznick, says no.

* * *

GRAPHIC newsreel shots depicting the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia sent Steffi Duna running out of a Hollywood theater, almost in hysterics. The dark-haired little actress, who is Francis Lederer's off-screen romance, once played a command performance for the late king and became well acquainted with him.

Even then, reveals the European star, King Alexander knew that he was destined for a violent death. Sixteen bodyguards accompanied him to the theater and secret agents were planted all through the audience. The past lives and political affiliations of all the actors on the stage had been subjected, in advance, to the most searching scrutiny.

* * *

SMASHING an old adage, Busby Berkeley, creator of de luxe musicals for Warner Brothers, insists that beauty is more than skin deep—it's bone deep.

"That belief is a hangover from the old days," declares the beauty expert. "From the days when women wore lots of petticoats and a queen wasn't supposed to have legs.

"Real beauty to-day is a matter of continuity between the features and the figure—a sense of symmetry when first seen, plus a certain something which we have always called personality."

The director points out that some of the screen's best known stars have common, every-day freckles. For instance, Constance Cummings, Bette Davis, Myrna Loy and Barbara Stanwyck.

* * *

KNICK-KNACKS—

A certain singing star has been very lucky on the publicity that has gone out on his exit from a current picture. As a matter of fact he was trying to tell the director how to do the film, and, besides that, has an agent that gives the studio the jitters....The Mary Brian-Dick Powell romance apparently will mark time for some time to come. Mary leaves here any minute for New York and a try at her first Broadway show, "Calling All Stars."....Max Baer is telling the world that his kid brother, Buddy, is a cinch to be world's heavyweight champion some day. Buddy has a reach equal to Max's and is three inches taller....The reason Arthur Sheekman is so proud of that loud yellow sweater-vest is that Gloria Stuart knitted it with her own fair hands ....The beauty parlors of the nation are all in a furore over Evelyn Laye's champagne blonde hair They are calling for a recipe and Hollywood's best-known cosmetic factory is going to put one on the market....Janet Snowden, the oil heiress, and her new husband, William Gill, were at the football game the other week-end—the first time they've been seen in ages....And Patsy Ruth Miller there, too, with John Mahin. This, apparently, is the real thing.

DID YOU KNOW—

That Herbert Marshall made his first stage appearance as a servant in "The Adventure of Lady Ursula"?

HUNTING THIN MAN.

BUTLER, Pa., Oct. 31 (C.P.). — Police are searching for a thin man as the thief who broke into a grocery store and stole cigarettes, candy and $10 in change. A hole in the floor, 9 x 13 inches, was used to gain entrance.

GAS FOR FLOODLIGHTS.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., October 31 (C.P.). — Gas is about to make a "comeback' as fuel for outdoor floodlights, Glenn R Chamberlain, of Grand Rapids, Mich., told delegates to the 18th annual convention of the American Gas Association. Chamberlain said yesterday a new lamp has been invented which takes gas at ordinary main pressure and by means of a super-charger delivers it to the burner for intense combustion. Lamps of this type, he said, are being considered for use on the Seven-Mile Bridge now being built between San Francisco and Oakland, Calif.

NEIGHBORLY NOTES

Please Phone Items to 1090 or 1091

A jolly Hallowe'en masquerade party, under the auspices of the Young People's Society, was held in St. Paul's Sunday School hall last evening and was attended by over 150 young people, including the students of the Normal School who were the special guests. Jack Clayton, master of ceremonies and president of the society, welcomed the 'Normalites', and at the conclusion of refreshments the president of the Normal School thanked the society for a most enjoyable evening. One feature of the games played last night was the "honeymoon relay" in charge of Marion Armstrong. The judges for the costumes were Miss E. McVannel, Miss Elizabeth Walker, and Rev. Dr.. Barr. Ladies' fancy, Ann Young; ladies' comic, Alice Krom; gentlemen's fancy, George Hall; gentlemen's comic, Donald Ross. A quartet, composed of Howard Macdonald, Jack Clayton, George Hall and Donald MacKay, sang several comic numbers. The Sunday School orchestra, which is under the direction of Mr. M. B. Chenhall, rendered music throughout the evening. The social arrangements were in charge of the convenor, Miss Sybil Jackson.

A social evening which took the form of a "birthday party" was held last night in St. George's Church basement, under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild. Mrs. L. Warren, president, was general convenor. A pleasing program of games, contests and music was thoroughly enjoyed, those present entering wholeheartedly into the various numbers, the balloon race causing the most merriment. The winner for the "jumble name" contest was Mrs. J. L. Hughes, while Mrs. R. King won the "ring" contest. Master Jimmy Sands, wearing the Highland plaid contributed several Scotch songs, which were well received and merited encores. Mrs. C. Cole was treasurer for the "birthday bags," and the Rev. J. L. Hughes officiated as chairman. Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies of the Guild.

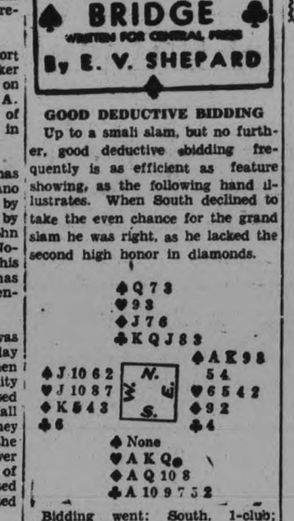
GOOD DEDUCTIVE BIDDING

Up to a small slam, but no further, good deductive bidding frequently is as efficient as feature showing, as the following hand illustrates. When South declined to take the even chance for the grand slam he was right, as he lacked the second high honor in diamonds.

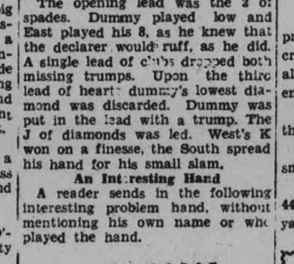


Bidding went: South, 1-club; North, 3-clubs; East, 3-spades; South, 4-diamonds; West, 4-spades, which was not a bad call at all; North, 6-clubs. The bidding had shown plainly that South held not fewer than 5 clubs to the ace. North saw no losers in the trump suit. South's unnecessary bid of diamonds, after his partner's jump assist, could only be to show perfect suit control in both major suits and the ace of diamonds, or the A-K of diamonds and control of one major suit. The diamond bid must be a call for a small slam provided North held 6 clubs to the K or 5 to the K-Q, with one or two diamond honors. Had North held the K of diamonds he would have risked a grand slam on his partner's bidding. He would have done the same had he held a lone diamond or been void of that suit.

The opening lead was the 2 of spades. Dummy played low and East played his 8, as he knew that the declarer would ruff, as he did. A single lead of clubs dropped both missing trumps. Upon the third lead of hearts dummy's lowest diamond was discarded. Dummy was put in the lead with a trump. The J of diamonds was led. West's K won on a finesse, the South spread his hand for his small slam.

An Interesting Hand

A reader sends in the following interesting problem hand, without mentioning his own name or who played the hand.



Bidding went: South, 1-diamond; West, 2-hearts; North, 2-spades; East, 3-clubs; South, doubled; West, 4-hearts. North, doubed How many can West win against the best play of his opponents. The answer will appear tomorrow.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

It is always pleasant to be able to record a new treatment which gives definite promise of relief to a distressing condition. Especially so when the method of relief is simple.

Many middle-aged and elderly people, especially those who are overweight, develop a condition of the lungs which is named "emphysema." In this, the lungs expand greatly. So much so that the chest becomes barrel shaped. The excursion of the chest in breathing is greatly limited, and the shortness of breath causes great discomfort and disability.

It seems that it is largely due to the fact that the expanding lungs push the diaphragm down, and this pressure on it is sufficient to limit its motion. Inasmuch as the diaphragm is the principal muscle of respiration, this partial paralysis greatly embarrasses the breathing. Up to a very short time ago there was very little that was known that would help these patients in any way at all.

The treatment just recently introduced consists in the application during expiration. The fact that the diaphragm is pushed up with a firmly fitting, snug belt can be seen on examination with the X-ray, comparing the condition before the belt was put on with that afterward.

The belt should be made of strong canvas and quite tightly fitted. Sometimes a pad is put in front to compress the abdomen further, but this is not necessary in all cases. The amount of relief which it affords is very considerable. So much so that all elderly people with this condition, who have become hopeless about getting relief, may feel that there is a very good chance, by using this simple remedy, that they may be helped.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Some persons have a gft for friendships. Others, who would so like to have the love and affection of friends, fail to win them. If you belong to the first group, you are fortunate. If you belong to the latter group, you may succeed in transferring yourself to the first one provided you take a leaf from their book of methods. It is true that the first group never appears to have any method, but they certainly have a way with them, and this, let us term their method.

* * * * * * *

One of the matters of prime importance is not to expect too much of your friends. An exacting person seldom has close friends. Persons dislike to be taken to task for what they do, or to make excuses for their actions. Just to feel that another expects explanation gives an uncomfortable atmosphere which is ruinous to friendships. There must be freedom of thought and action permitted by each of the other.

* * * * * * *

Do not expect a friend to think as you do. There is no surer way to break a friendship than to be provoked by difference of opinions. It is true that persons must have some similar views in order to be drawn toward each other. Sometimes it is children which stimulate friendships. The child study of today makes a common bond of interest among mothers. It may be that church, social or community work, or a great cause, is the foundation for friendships. Or it may be that similar taste in such matters as music, literature, art, etc., has been the inspiration. Still individuality of ideas must prevail even in these things and a willingness either to disagree pleasantly or to learn from each other. Reciprocity cements friendships.

* * * * * * *

It is unwise to be too self-revealing to one's friends or to discuss family secrets or confidences. Once a person realizes that a confidence from another has been told even to you as an intimate friend, the seed of suspicion is sown that what you may speak in confidence will be told to another.

* * * * * * *

The same thing is true of talking of others. Be kind in criticisms Speak well of others. If you cannot say a good word of a person, better remain silent. It is kinder and more christian-like. One is safe in the hands of a friend who speaks well of others. If a person tells you mean uncharitable things about others, you know very well he will say the same things about you.

DEAR HUNT.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 31. —(C.P.)—It costs real money to hunt squirrels in Westmoreland County —especially if it is done out of season. John Fedder and H. A. Guess will attest to that. Together they paid $64 for one member of the family scuiridae. Fedder contributed $27 for hunting out of season and without a license: Guess, who had the animal in his possession, paid an additional $10.

Consult Mrs. Ruth Johnson

Thursday - Friday - Saturday

NuBack A Miracle in Corsetry

Great news...here it is...the NuBack! Made with a "jointed" back—the top section moves with your body, the lower section stays put. The position of this garment is not dependent upon the hose supporters. Here are 5 reasons for the superiority of NuBacks:

- Will not ride up.
- Will flatten bulging diaphrams.
- Will prevent shoulder straps slipping.
- Will prevent stocking runs.
- Will fit the figure smoothly without pressure or drag in any position—stooping, stretching or sitting.

Be correctly corseted in a garment that can't ride up.

Spaghetti Meat Loaf
Baked Potatoes
Creamed Cauliflower
Carrot-Raisin Salad
Pumpkin Pie Cheese Coffee

The meat loaf is an economical dish and will serve at least six people.

Today's Recipe

Spaghetti Meat Loaf.—One and one-half cups cooked spaghetti, two cups ground pork, two cups ground beef or veal, three eggs, slightly beaten; one cup tomato juice, one cup milk, one tablespoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-fourth cup chopped onion, one-fourth cup chopped green pepper. Brown the meats in a skillet and add spaghetti. Add milk to slightly beaten eggs and add to meats. Add minced onion, green pepper and seasonings. Shape into load, place two slices of bacon across top, pour tomato juice over loaf and bake in slow oven for one hour. Serves six or eight. Substitutions: Other meats may be used, but we suggest that some pork always be used, to assure richness of the loaf. Corn flakes may be used in place of spaghetti.

Pumpkin or Squash Pie—One and one-half cups strained squash or pumpkin, one cup milk scalded and poured over pumpkin before adding sugar, one or two eggs, slightly beaten; one-half cup sugar, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, a little ginger may be added if liked. Pour mixture into unbaked pie shell, and put into a hot oven. Arte 2 0minutes turn heat down a bit. This takes about 45 minutes to bake.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Green Tomato Mincemeat

One peck green tomatoes, one tablespoon salt, one-half peck apples, chopped fine; two pounds raisins, four pounds brown sugar, one cup weak vinegar, one cup suet chopped fine; two tablespoons cinnamon, two tablespoons cloves, one tablespoon nutmeg. Chop tomatoes fine, cover with cold water and salt and heat to boiling. Drain repeat. The third time boil tomatoes until tender before draining. Add remaining ingredients and cook gently until apples are tender. Turn at once into sterile jars, filling them to overflowing. Seal at once. This makes seventeen quarts

King Gustaf, Sweden Is Great-Grandfather

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 31.—(A.P.)—King Fustaf of Sweden to-day was a great-grandfather.

A daughter was born last night to Princess Sybilla, wife of Prince Gustaf Adolf, the King's grandson, inaugurating the fourth generation of the Royal family.

Since Gustaf Adolf is a son of the Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, had the child been a boy it would have been a future heir to the throne. A salute of 42 guns and the pealing of church bells gave news of the birth to the public.

Princess Sybilla of Saxe-Coburg-and-Gotha and Gustaf Adolf were married in the spring of 1933 in Coburg, Germany, her home.

Johnson Signs $7,000 Contract With Rangers

AUREL JOLIAT ALSO DESERTS HOLDOUT RANKS

Doc Romnes and Taffy Abel Only Two of Hockey Stars Out of Ranks.

JOHNSON GETS $7,000.

(By The Canadian Press)

Singing of Ching Johnson and Aurel Joliat leaves the National League with only two declared holdups to-day, eight days before the opening of the season. Several stars are reported to be haggling over salaries offered them but Doc Romnes and Taffy Abel, of Chicago Hawks, are not training.

Johnson, bald-headed and scarred from pate to ankle by hockey injuries, was reported to have talked New York Rangers into paying him $7,000 for the season. Earl Seibert, ranked above Ching now among defencemen, also is said to have received the league limit from the New Yorkers.

Joliat was not considered as determined as Johnson but Montreal Canadien fans breathed a sigh of relief when Leo Dandurand signed the mite left winger in Saint John yesterday. There was no mention of the salary the veteran Habitant, who has been practicing right along, will be paid.

When Lester Patrick heard at Rangers' Winnipeg training camp Johnson had signed in New York, he remarked: "We'll all feel we're going places now." They started last night by beating Montreal Maroons 4-2 in an exhibition game.

It was a tough night for Tommy Gorman and his Montrealers who not only lost the game but the services, temporally at least, of Alex Connell, the goalie they got from Ottawa.

The veteran Senator, out of hockey last season, suffered an injury to his left hand and X-rays will be taken to-day to determine whether a bone is broken. If he is out of action for the third game of the exhibition series Thursday, Earl Robertson, formerly of Edmonton Eskimos, will take his place.

Traynor Will Lead Pirate Club Again

PITTSBURG, October 31. — The signing of Manager Harold (Pie) Traynor to lead Pittsburg Pirates in the baseball wars of 1935 was announced last night.

Traynor was named player-manager last June, replacing George Gibson. He received a salary boost at the time. Although terms of the new contract were not disclosed, it was reported Traynor had been given another raise. Despite the club's poor showing last season, Pie remained a popular figure with the fans.

ALLISON RANKED BEST IN STATES

Mercer Beasley, Tennis Tutor, Predicts Tennis Rating.

WOOD IS SECOND.

PRINCETON, N.J., October 31.—Wilmer Allison and Sidney B Wood, Jr., as one-two in national tennis rankings, and Don Budge and Gene Mako as the next additions to the United States Davis Cup squad.

These predictions were made yesterday by America's most famed tennis coach, Mercer Beasley, mentor of the Princeton University varsity net squad and "unofficial coach" of American Davis Cup forces.

Beasley yesterday made the final revision in his own personal idea of the "first ten" in national ratings, and here's the way he figures the United States L.T.A. ranking committee should and probably will align the players:

1—Wilver Allison, Austin, Texas.
2—Sidney B. Wood, Jr., New York.
3—Frank Parker, Lawrenceville, Sc'l.
4—Lester Stoefen, Los Angeles.
5—Berkeley Bell, New York.
6—Frank Shields, Greenwich, Conn.
7—George M. Lott, Jr., Chicago.
8—Clifford Sutter, New Orleans.
9—Don Budge, Oakland, Calif.
10—Bryan Grant, Atlanta.

Unofficial rankings such as the one above are usually picked to pieces by fans and experts. Probably the chief arguments over Beasley's selections will centre around the placing of Parker at No. 3. Parker is a pupil of Beasley, as are Allison, Sutter and Grant.

CLUB OFFICIALS CONFIDENT SECURING PLAYER SANCTIONS

Saint John and Charlottetown Teams Most Affected By Ruling.

CLAIM PLAYERS QUALIFY.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., October 31. — E. A. Gilroy, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said last night he had no intention of appointing any one to investigate the status of amateur players in the Maritimes.

Many amateur hockey players were reported to be lining up with Maritimes teams, although they arrived after the transfer date had expired. They were claiming exemption under the rules governing students.

Recently President Gilroy warned strict adherence to residence qualifications would be demanded by the association. However, he said when queried he had no intention, for the present at least, of appointing any one to investigate the status of players in the Maritimes.

HALIFAX, October 31. — A sizeable battle appeared to be looming between the Maritime Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association last night over the contentious question of player importations into Canada's seaside Provinces.

Out of a cloud of uncertainty hovering over the 'Big Four" for many weeks had come a bolt in the form of a statement from President Gilroy of the C.A.H.A. that no branch-to-branch transfers into the Maritimes would be permitted unless effected before last New Year's. It was this spark that threatened to set off a flare-up in the junior body.

Expect Sanction.

Team officials in the Big Four League were unanimous in saying yesterday they expected to have their players sanctioned, President Gilroy to the contrary notwithstanding. Two of the clubs—Charlottetown Abekweits and St. John Beavers—are banking heavily on importations, and, if their men are denied transfers, their absence will leave the teams badly weakened.

A season of poor competition and low gate receipts would be in prospect with the C.A.H.A. sticking to its ruling and disregarding the educational and industrial transfer clauses. In this event, it was pointed out in some quarters, the solution to the problem would be the professionalizing of the circuit, with the teams left free to build up their rosters to fighting strength at any time they pleased.

Officials professed not to take the suggestion seriously. President Jas. Wry of the Maritime Amatuer Hockey Association said he "wou'dn't think" a pro. loop would materialize. Manager E. A. Lamy of the St. John Forum expected to see the N.H.L. "playing amateur hockey again this season."

THREE CANADIAN BOXERS ARE BEATEN IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Oct. 31 (CP Cable). — Billy Petrie, Edmonton, was outpointed by Billy Barr of Woolwich in a ten-round bout at Battersea last evening.

Two more Canadians were on the losing end of bouts in different cities last night. Over the twelve-round bout Billy Reynolds of Newcastle outpointed Teddy Hayes of Toronto, while at Newcastle Jack Casey knocked out Phil Munro of Canada in the first round of a bout which, including the count, lasted just fifty seconds.

FAMOUS EQUIPOISE WILL RACE TO-DAY

Whitney Handicap Star Appears in Special 6-Furlong Race at Narragansett.

PAWTUCKET, R.I., Oct. 31 (AP)—Equipoise, C. V. Whitney's handicap star, yesterday was named to start with six others in the $5,000 invitation sprint at six furlongs at Narragansett Park today, a special event that was added when it was decided not to race "Ekky" in the $25,000 special.

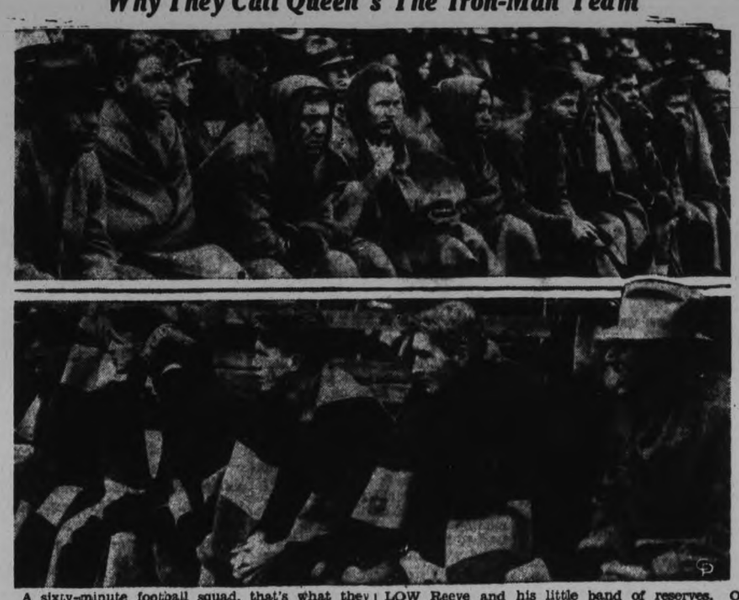
Named to run against the little horse with the big heart are Isaiah, Crazy Jane¼ Okapi, Cohort Miss, Teralice and All Forlorn. Isaiah, Okapi, Teralice and Equipoise all have been assigned 130 pounds, while Crazy Jane and All Forlorn got in at 127 and Cohort Miss 123.

The appearance of Equipoise in the invitation took some interest from the special, at a mile and three-sixteenths, in which a field of six is entered. None of the three originally hoped for starters—Equipoise, Discovery and Cavalcade—was named. The field, as named yesterday, is Mrs. Khayyam, Faireno, Time Supply, High Glee, Indian Runner and Azucar. Time Supply was assigned 120 pounds and High Glee 117, and the rest 126 each.

UBAIN MOLMANS RESIGNS AS McGILL ROWING COACH

MONTREAL, Oct. 31 (CP)—The McGill University Rowing Club announced yesterday that Urban Molmans, rowing coach of the Redmen for ten years, has resigned the post he has held for so long, as coach of McGill. Molmans coached the Redmen to five Dominion championships, though McGill rowers have been consistently beaten in recent years by University of Toronto eights in the annual intercollegiate classic here on Lachine Canal. Molmans is retiring from active rowing and coaching, it was announced.

Why They Call Queen's The Iron-Man Team



A sixty-minute football squad, that's what they are calling Teddy Reeve's gallant band from Queen's University who, although hopelessly outnumbered in available players, lost by a single point after outplaying Varsity Seniors in Toronto. UPPER photo taken just before the game shows Varsity's line of subs with Coach Warren Stevens directing, and BELOW Reeve and his little band of reserves. Only three of these subs were used by Reeve and eight Tricolor men played the full sixty minutes. Three Queen's men were lost to the team by a fraternity membership ban and others are out with illness and injuries.

ONLY THREE ELIMINATED IN EASTERN CANADA FOOTBALL

Ottawa, Western and Balmy Beach Are Definitely Out of Competition.

CHANCES FOR TIES.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—Two more Saturdays to go and the Eastern Canada football schedules will be completed, but so far only three of the 12 teams in the three major unions have been eliminated. Ottawa is out in the Interprovincial, Western in the Intercollegiate and Balmy Beach in the O.R.F.U. While three teams are definitely in the discard others are on the edge of elimination and may slip into the land of lost hopes next Saturday afternoon.

The Interprovincial Union presents a problem in mathematics. Argonauts, down in third place with three points the result of a win and a tie, must win their remaining two games and depend on Hamilton losing two to tie Montreal for first place, a similar situation to last year. Hamilton with a tie in its remaining two games, with Montreal and Ottawa, is certain of at least a deadlock for top place for the championship, while a win will give the Bengals the bunting. Montreal although in second place, can take the lead next Saturday by beating the Tigers, but can not be certain of the title until the following week.

Only Ottawa is absolutely out as the most the Rough Riders can collect this season is four more points for a total of six. Argonauts depended on other teams to put them in the playoffs last year and they went through to the Canadian championship. They are hoping and figuring on the same happening this season and there is a good chance as it would not be an upset if Hamilton Tigers lost two in succession and the Scullers won two.

Playoff for Playoff

Western University is the only team out of the Intercollegiate. McGill with two points less than the tied Varsity and Queen's leaders might get back in the rush for a playoff next Saturday, having a date with Queen's. There is a good chance that three of the college teams will finish even for first place, forcing a playoff for the playoffs, the new plan to decide the championship.

Sarnia seems almost certain of taking the Ontario title for the fifth successive time, although St. Michael's College and Hamilton Cubs are still in the running, with a chance to tie the Imperials for the top. Sarnia needs only a tie in its remaining games to capture the championship and enter the Canadian playdowns.

The season so far has featured a defensive play, with Sarnia the only team that can be considered a high-scoring collection, and most of the Imperial points were made against weak foes. Only six touchdowns have been scored in the Intercollegiate all season and ten in the Interprovincial. Varsity high scores of the college loop, has 54 points, which include four of the six tries scored, while Hamilton with 37 points, leading scorers in the Big Four, has only two touches. Sarnia has 91 points for four games.

Scrappers All Set For Kinsmen's Show

Not the least of the attractions offered at the Kinsmen Club Hallowe'en Frolic tonight in the Armouries will be the athletic program consisting of three boxing bouts and a wrestling exhibition. Considerable interest has been aroused owing to the matching of these local amateurs. Dave Cowan has used up his experience as a boxing promoter in lining up six boxers who will put up fine scraps, all being evenly matched and ringwise. The wrestling promises to be packed with action and the humor which goes with pro grappling tactics.

Pete Vitarelli and Fred Spencer, 132 pounds, open the card at eight o'clock. They are followed by Len Minicola and Jack Heffernan, weighing 145 pounds. These two bouts will be three 3-minute rounds. Bill Gerow and Stan Peryer, 185 pounds, go on in a 15-minute wrestling exhibition. The main boxing bout is between Reg McMillan and Harry Jennings, 150-pounders, and will go five rounds, each two minutes in length. Gord Hunter will be the third man in the ring for the leather-pushers, while Fred Scates will referee the grappling match. The ring is to be placed in the centre of the floor. No extra charge is made for this card. Proceeds of the whole carnival go for eye clinic work.

NEW KID LINE PLEASES IRWIN IN EXHIBITION

Day's Youngsters Score 7-3 Victory Over Clancy's Crew at Brantford.

RED WINGS BEATEN.

(By Canadian Press).

Toronto Leafs and Detroit Red Wings played exhibitions last night. The Leafs split their forces into two teams for a charity affair at Brantford and Wings practiced against Olympics, their farm team. The latter, reinforced by several National Leaguers, won 4-3.

Dick Irvin's new "kid line" of Pep Kelly, Art Jackson and Nick Metz, lifted bodily from St. Michael's College, Canadian junior champions last season, looked mighty good in the Leaf test. Metz and Kelly combined for a goal early in the game and the trio bothered George Hainsworth no end for the rest of the encounter.

Buzz Boll and Bill Thoms, two of the Leafs' younger stars, also showed up well. Boll getting three goals and Thoms a goal and an assist. Thoms' tally was from a penalty shot after King Clancy had tripped him.

Max Kaminsky, the Niagara Falls amateur who shone with Ottawa last season also is showing a wicked shot in the St. Louis Eagles' camp at St. Louis. Working with Frankie Finnigan and Jerry Shannon on the Eagles' star line, he counted four times on Ab Cox yesterday.

Newsy Lalonde is fast getting his Canadians roster cut down to manageable proportions at Saint John. Yesterday three amateurs left the camp, Pete Kelly and Joffre Destlets going to Charlottetown and Maxie Bennett to Hamilton Tigers. Paul Arcand has already gone to Quebec Beavers, and Bob McCully will start for Quebec to-day.

O.H.A. Bulletin

Applications for transfers for hockey players within the province who have changed their residence since last season on or prior to October 15, 1934, should be filed immediately at O.H.A. headquarters, so that they can be passed upon by the executive committee at a meeting to be held on Friday evening, November 2, at the Royal York Hotel.

Every application must be accompanied by a written release from the club with which the played last season.

GILROY EXPECTS ONLY TROUBLE COME FROM COAST ASSOCIATION

Fullest Co-operation Promised C.A.H.A. Except the Maritimes.

"PACK" TEAMS TROUBLE.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., Oct. 31 (CP)—Excepting possibly the Maritimes, President E. A. Gilroy of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association anticipates few difficulties in keeping amateurs within the rules and regulations of residence qualifications.

Reviewing the whole situation to-day, Mr. Gilroy said replies to letters from his office declaring the rules and regulations would be strictly enforced had been received from presidents of all branches except the Maritimes. All presidents replying had promised the fullest co-operation.

Mr. Gilroy was asked if any branches had reported heavy late movement of players to "pack" teams. "I have no knowledge of this other than Maritimes newspapers reports," said Mr. Gilroy. "One paper reported that a certain Maritime team would line up at least six players imported from other branches since January 1."

Sufficient warning had been given to avoid any difficulties, said Mr. Gilroy, in pointing out his letter was sent to all branches in June The replies had all been favorable, but Mr. Gilroy pointed out the Maritimes officials had not even answered his letter.

ONLY HIGH CALIBRE TUSSLE ON PROGRAM FOR THE WEEK

Both Have Come Through Tests So Far With Flying Colors.

WRECK TITLE HOPES.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—The meeting of two undefeated teams of major calibre, Army and Illinois, shifts the centre of United States football interest to Champaign, Ill., this week.

It is the only contest of that standing on the schedule and probably will write several chapters of the story of the 1934 national title struggle. The Cadets have had only one real test so far, coming through with flying colors when they walloped Yale 20-12 last week. The Illinois have turned back Ohio State and Michigan by one-point margins.

The game which probably will wreck the title aspirations of one or both teams has a brief but colorful background. Although playing plenty of mid-Western competition, Army has met only Illinois of the Big Ten in recent years. The Cadets lead 2-1 in the series.

Intersectional Frays

A number of other interesting intersectional frays also are at the top of the card. Only one, however, involves a major undefeated and untied team. Navy, with a perfect record so far, goes up against Washington and Lee, a Southern neighbor which made Princeton battle for its victory two weeks ago.

Fordham and Tennessee, meeting for the first time, may put on a good show despite their defeats and the injuries that are troubling the Rams. George Washington, with only a tie to mar its record, faces the Vanderbilt Commodores. Pittsburgh, coming back after its loss to Minnesota, encounters Notre Dame, which also is travelling the comeback route at a good clip.

DEFECTION OF HALIFAX ACE GAVE BACKERS PRO COMPLEX

But Other Teams Can't See Maritime Money Circuit—Need Allen Cup Lure—Transfer Troubles Also a Factor.

By VICTOR SERVICE
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

HALIFAX, Oct. 31.—When Jack Conn, owner of the Halifax Wolves in the Big Four maritime hockey league, was seized with the St. Louis Blues, he saw red, and announced the Atlantic ice circuit would detach itself from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and become an outright pro route.

However, Conn wasn't speaking for his normal self. He was highly perturbed, and spoke irrationally And he had an excellent cause. Announcement had come from Ottawa, where St. Louis Eagles of the National Hockey League (nee the Ottawa Senators), did their preseasonal conditioning, that Bill Cowley, an Ottawa product, had signed a contract with the Eagles for the 1934-35 season.

In the National Hockey League this didn't mean a thing, as Cowley is just another rookie on the hockey big time. However, in the maritime circuit, it was big news, for last season Cowley was star of the Halifax Wolves, and a standout among the offensives in the league. He played his first season in the league, having been snared from an Ottawa amateur outfit. His position is centre and he proved to be an ideal team man as well as individually effective.

Was Prolific Scorer

All through the season Cowley was either tops or runners-up in goals scored and assists, playing nip-and-tuck with Sammy McManus, of Toronto, then winging for the Moncton Hawks, Canadian champs for two years.

At the close of the Wolves' season, which came with elimination of the Haligonians by the Hawks maritime play-offs, Cowley returned to his Ottawa home. In early October Jack Conn and his coach, Bill (Red) Stuart, of Amherst, N.S., former N.H.L. and International League player, went to Ontario to contact talent, and conferred with Cowley at Ottawa. At that meeting, according to Conn, Cowley's presence on the Wolves was assured, and he promised to be back in Halifax by the middle of October.

However, when the Eagles started to train in Ottawa Cowley decided here was a good opportunity to get in some preminary training licks, and he secured permission of Eddie Gerard, the veteran coach, to work out with the Eagles until his leaving for Halifax. He was working out ten days when the announcement was made he had signed a contract with the St. Louis delegation.

This news sent Conn and Stuart into the doldrums. Their ace had done 'em wrong.

Leaves Wolves Fangless

Even with Cowley the Wolves shaped up below par for this season's Big Four schedule, and without Cowley the roster is tremendously weakened. Is it any wonder that Conn went pro? His inspiration was that he could strengthen without red tape, including the necessity of transfer aproval, if his team were outside the pale of amateur jurisdiction.

Added to his troubles are transfer difficulties involving Art Whittaker, of Toronto, and the Fritz brothers, Roy and Jack, of Listowel, Ont. Apparently he waited too long to stiffen up his battle front, and Ontario Hockey Association has also been on the Toronto Canoe Club seniors and Stratford, Ont. juniors. His younger brother Jack has played with Listowel intermediates, and previously with London, Ont., juniors.

Executives of Moncton Hawks, Saint John Beavers and Charlottetown Abbies, rival clubs of the Halifax Wolves in the maritime circuit, laugh at the Conn report that the league would formally go pro. There's not a chance, according to the intimate backers of these clubs. Moreover, Conn is talking through his discouragement, they aver and he will stick with the amateurs. Who would he pit his team against if he swung them into the pro ranks? Which would be extremely difficult, as his hired men know on which side their bread is buttered.

Jealous of West

Without Allan Cup lure the interest in maritime hockey would be reduced greatly. There is an economic background to the struggle for this big silver mug. Maritimers feel they have been discriminated against by the central provinces and the western provinces, too, on railway freight rates, transportation of western wheat wholly through Canada, and via the port of St. John, for overseas destinations, alleged failure to fulfill the promises of Confederation, lack of reciprocity in marketing of products, and other grievances of economic nature. Ontario is the chief target for touring speakers in the maritime provinces, demanding justice.

In past years there have been several professional leagues in the maritime provinces, but all have gone to the discard, through lack of public interest, reflected at the box office and also generally in the communities represented in the leagues. here was no concentrated effort on behalf of the pro circuits in the cities and towns entered on the various loops, although excellent hockey was dispensed.

CHING'S "MISS" RESPONSIBLE FOR RANGERS' STAR'S RETURN

Threatened to Definitely Stay Out of Game Unless Salary Demand Met.

SIGNS $7,000 CONTRACT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (CP)—"It was the missus; it was the missus," chanted Ivan "Ching" Johnston, powerhouse of the New York Ranger defence, when asked what had influenced him in signing his contract yesterday after a prolonged holdout.

Johnson agreed to terms with Col. John Hammond, Madison Square Garden president last evening after a fortnight which saw the popular Ching bickering at the Garden one day and motoring to Washington and other points the next contacting business interests with whom he had threatened to cast his lot permanently.

Monday, Johnson returned from the United States Capital and received an offer of $7,000 per season, which is tops under the National Hockey League salary code; still the hard-hitting defenceman was undecided. As he left the conference room he said, "I'm leaving it to the missus. After all, you know I am getting to the age when I must consider my future career in the interests of my family. There are not many seasons left for me in the Big Time and I have no intention of winding up in the minors. If the missus wants me to stick strictly to business, it's Okay with me."

Mrs. Johnson, a keen hockey fan from the West, who is seen at all Ranger games at the Garden along with their young son, apparently decided Gotham still needs the dynamic Winnipegger. He was one of the Ranger originals who won New York over to hockey nearly a decade ago.

The new $600,000 sewer of Erith, England, was choked recently by an old baby-buggy wheel, which cost $336 to remove.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(By C. J. P.)

When you see those boxers doing their stuff for a few brief minutes in the ring tonight up at the Armouries, just remember that they didn't attain that ring experience or physical perfection by daily saying: "Day by day in every way, I'm getting better and better." No, suh! They got that way by hours of roadwork, rope-skiping, bag-punching, exercises, shadow boxing, sparring, and finally actual experience in many previous battles. All this training was done alone, or with only a few other ambitious boxers with them. They had to live regular lives, watch diets, cut out smoking, etc. And all for a few three-minute rounds of public appearance! Of course, they love the game for its own sake or they wouldn't go through that rigorous training grind.

• • • • • •

But it's just worth thinking about occasionally. You sit back and watch a couple of husky youngsters sparring around, uncorking the odd vicious punch, ducking, weaving, clinching. You see one of them take maybe a hard one-two to the stomach and keep on fighting. How would you feel if those two fists smashed into your bread-basket? But then your're not trained for it. But don't be too hard on a guy that goes down under repeated pummeling to that section, or after taking a whistling uppercut to the jaw. They're good physical specimens but only human, too. And they're not getting paid for boxing—they just like the game.

• • • • • •

The Kinsmen have a good program for their Carnival this e'en with three boxing bouts and a rasslin' match, starting at eight. The Vitarelli-Spencer scrap ought to be hot, and we're looking for a reel slugfest in the Minicola-Heffernan tussle—the Irishers and Italians will go for this one—and the final between McMillan and Jennings has all kinds of possibilities. First two are three-rounders, with the other a five-round final. Then Gerow and Peryer are out to show the pro matmen how it should be done and heaven help the undermost! While it's sure to be amusing, we understand no amusement tax is charged, and that's something these times.

• • • • • •

Speaking of rasslin', we see where Alex Kasaboski and Frankie Hart are still at it over around Detroit, and now they've got a point standing to grapple for. This pair is well known locally. The Times says: "Kasaboski now is tied for seventh place with 225 points. Mephisto has a chance to tie Frankie Hart, the Hollander, for the lead. He now has 250 points and match nets 100. Hart has 350 to his credit." Must be some sort of tournament, but thank goodness that's one game we don't have to score. After all these years together, Kasaboski without Hart would seem as incomplete as ham without eggs.

A recent O.B.A.A. bulletin lists the Ontario championship ball teams as follows: Senior—Stratford Nationals; intermediate "A"—Napanee Gibbards; intermediate "B-1"—Chatham Colored Stars; intermediate "B-2"—Napanee; junior—Brantford Alerts; juvenile—Toronto Arlingtons; bantam—Toronto Columbus Boys. There were 179 championship games played, running from Aug. 10 to Oct. 23. making 27 more than least year. About 8,000 players competed in the O.B.A.A., representing nearly 400 clubs in 79 loops. This is a larger number than last year, showing baseball is more than holding its own against softball which threatened for a while to take supremacy over it in popularity. So much for figures—we don't care much for them, either, as they give us a headache.

• • • • • •

The Belleville jotter-downer jots this down: "There is a rumor floating around to the effect that the O.B.A.A. are planning drastic moves in intermediate circles in order to bolster their senior series. Such outstanding intermediate clubs as Southampton, Aylmer, Napanee and maybe others, may be requested to step up and play senior ball next season. If the Gibbards consent to this proposal, would it be possible to induce Picton to follow? It is understood Picton is endeavouring to strengthen by means of an imported battery for 1935. If so, they would be equally as good as Napanee, they having extended the Gibbards to the limit in their league playdowns. It might be a wise move to include an invitation to the Picton club and ask them to the league meeting."

• • • • • •

A district hockey group has been formed in Kingston in memory of the late George Van Horne, a former player, referee and O.H.A. official. It will be run along the lines of the S.P.A. in Toronto, and invitations to attend a meeting tonight have been sent to Peterborough, Belleville, Napanee, Ganonoque, Brockville, Smith's Falls, Perth, Carleton Place and Kingston. They plan to start the loop schedule in November and finish in January with all games in Kingston. It will be a similar league to the strong Kingston Senior City Loop of other years. Art Casterton, vice-president of the C.O. B.L., is on the executive. It is doubtful if the Petes will enter, owing to the distance, expense and early date of opening, though such a schedule would be fine practice for O.H.A. competition.

• • • • • •

So far we haven't heard a peep regarding the local Orfuns' next football game. How come? It's dollars to dimes the locals will be ordered to meet the Mining World team from Toronto in the first game of their playdown series this Saturday, but where will it be? The players and public should be notified in time, and not the last day or two. We may have some word later today, before the paper goes to press, but at present, no one seems to know a thing. Meantime, the conquerors of Belleville are training hard as they expect a tough layout in the Toronto team which made the Oshawa Blue Devils very blue indeed by eliminating 'em.

• • • • • •

Picking 'em off the grapewine: Belleville ball club went a few dollars in the hole this year . . . . Pro rasslin' starts again in Lindsay Nov. 7th . . . . The smarter local pucksters are starting to get in condition now, anticipating quite a battle for positions in about a month . . . . Besides a Toronto junior player and a McGill senior residing here now, there is a teacher at Lakefield Grove School who played for R.M.C. three years back . . . . An excellent City Bowling League is to be revived this year at Duffus' Alleys . . . . Badminton is again getting quite a play around town . . . . Jopling and Pulkinghorn of P.C.I. are going out with Orfuns for the rest of the season.

Committees Named By The C.C.F. Club

Committees to act during the coming season of activity were named at an executive meeting of the local C.C.F. Club in the city last night.

Dr. Lorna Cotton, president of the club, will head the educational and social committees, assisted by Mrs. William Johnston and Mrs. Charles Lambert on the latter. Other committee appointments were George Goodwin, finance; William Johnston and G. G. Torrance, organization; Alex Murray and H. G. Lewis, publicity; Dr. Cotton and Thomas Littlefair, literature; and Frank Biddle, membership.

Plans for the organization of a C.C.F. youth movement in the city were discussed at the meeting. An early visit by Dr. Lorna Cotton to Havelock where she will address a C.C.F. organization meeting was mentioned.

SCOTS LOSE OUT 2-1.

STAMFORD BRIDGE, London, Oct. 31 (C.P. Cable).—Coming from behind, the English League defeated the Scottish League by 2-1 this afternoon to take the lead in the inter-league soccer competition of the new season. Scottish led 1-0 at half-time. The game was played in miserable weather conditions before a small crowd.

NO MANAGERIAL BERTH LIKELY FOR RUTH IN AMERICAN LOOP

With Signing of Cronin at Boston, One of His Fondest Dreams Shattered.

TOO BIG AN EXPERIMENT.

(By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(A.P.)—It has become increasingly evident, if not absolutely definite, that there is no opportunity in the American League for Babe Ruth to fulfill his ambition to launch a managerial career next season.

What will happen after 1935, when Joe McCarthy's contract runs out with the Yankees and perhaps other vacancies develop, remains to be seen. Meanwhile the Babe is in the position of having burned his bridges behind him, with no place to go after he finishes a trip around the world. He had publicly declared himself out of the player ranks, which makes it official, but it is difficult to imagine his retirement, even if there isn't a manager's job available. Besides, the great man can always change his mind.

In rapid succession with the past fortnight, the possibility of Ruth becoming manager of the Philadelphia, Boston or Washington clubs in the American League has been discussed and discarded. It is no secret that most major league magnates consider the Babe too big a gamble, as a manager, to justify the substantial investment required in signing him up.

"Ruth unquestionably has the background, the personality, and many of the qualifications essential to become a successful major league manager," one club owner explained recently. "There should be a spot where he could have a chance to show what he can do with a ball club but, frankly, I don't know anybody willing to undertake the experiment. The big question concerns Ruth's ability to maintain discipline. He has never had such responsibility. It is also doubtful whether he would take the time and exhibit patience necessary to building up a second vision club. Meanwhile the more successful teams do not need hi m."

Twenty Grand Is Set For Track Comeback

BY ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 31. — (AP) — Twenty Grand, one of the greatest thoroughbreds ever to step a hook on the American turf, is being prepared for a comeback with an eye on the $100,000 handicap, which will be run at the new Santa Anita track outside of Los Angeles, Feb. 23.

Away from the races since 1932, when he was forced into retirement by weak legs, the big bay, which won $218,545 as a three-year-old in 1931, has been under saddle for the past six weeks at Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree farm near Lexington, Ky.

Whether he will stand training is still to be decided as nothing more than mere gallops has been asked of the six-year old contemporary of Equipoise. But Mrs. Whitney hopes to find out before the entries close on Dec. 1 for the rich west coast special for which Equipoise, Cavalcade and Discovery are being pointed.

It was decided to place Twenty Grand in training again when he proved of no value in the stud, being sterile.

SALMON FISHING TO BE PORTRAYED

Fish and Game Association Will Hold Meeting in Collegiate Institute.

Sportsmen and others of this district interested in outdoor life are assured of an interesting evening on Monday, November 5, when the film "Salmon Fishing in Newfoundland," will be presented under auspices of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association in the Collegiate Auditorium.

Not only is this film unique from the standpoint of natural history, but it also combines shots of wonderful scenic beauty with excellent photography. One of the many interesting features of the picture are the scenes showing the giant Atlantic salmon battling their way upstream against strong currents and leaping over waterfalls.

William Lang, ex-president of the Toronto Anglers' Association, made these pictures during the summer while on a trip to Newfoundland with Tom Full, one of the outstanding anglers and all-round sportsmen in the Dominion. Mr Lang by his commentary which accompanies the showing of the pictures adds further value to them.

The hoof-and-mouth disease has again broken out in England.

Many of the feature floats in the grape harvest festival procession in Bucharest, Rumania, this year were drawn by oxen.

CHAPTER 18

"All right," Lee continued, "Here's the story. Young Jamieson has been seeing too much of Reeves' wife and there's a quarrel in Reeves' office yesterday afternoon. Reeves threatens to kill Jamieson. Jamieson has dinner with Ruth Turner at her apartment which is only a short distance from Reeves' place.

"At nine o'clock he leaves there and goes to see Mrs. Reeves. He knows Reeves is at the English House, for he heard the men talking about it before he left in the afternoon. He is at the Reeves' apartment a half hour, talking the situation over with her. He has had a pleasant flirtation with her but he doesn't want to lose his job and his girl over it. And she doesn't want to get mixed up in any scandal.

"So they fix up this tale about the birthday party to tell Reeves and go down to the English House to straighten it out with him. That would be when this neighbor of hers saw them go out," he added to Tim.

"The boy probably was carrying the gun, remembering Reeves' threats against him. Or it may have been in his desk drawer. It doesn't matter. Anyway Reeves doesn't swallow the tale and threatens Jamieson again. The kid draws his gun in self-defense. They struggle over it and in the struggle Reeves is shot.

"Jamieson drops the gun in horror and it falls near Reeves' body. Both he and the woman are badly upset, of course. He sends her home alone, warning her not to say anything. She must have gone almost at once because they had no time to fix up a story together. That's why Jamieson was fishing this morning to find out what she had said about last night. She gets home at ten-fifteen, according to her neighbor.

"Jamieson leaves soon after she does, stopping only long enough, say, to see that the man is dead. He doesn't even turn off the light although he does remember to close the office door.

"He reaches home at ten-thirty as he says and as witnesses at the apartment building swear. Some time during the night he realized that he must get rid of the gun and this morning he comes after it. It's easy to see how he did it. He went in the back way and reached the washroom, probably while Dan went after the cop.

"He waited until they'd gone to 'phone, then got in the office and got out again before the cop took up his station at the door. What he did after that, I'm not sure. Maybe he planted them downstairs some time today, sneaking past the guard. Maybe he dropped them in the pail and left thinking that when Dan found the gun with his initials on it, he'd have sense enough to hide it. We know that Dan was fond of him and that he didn't like the dead man. Well? I know Tim doesn't believe it but how does it sound to you?"

Hall shook his head. "The gun part sounds weak. Doesn't click somehow. If he took the gun why didn't he get out with it? Why plant it anywhere in the building?"

"Maybe you're right," agreed the inspector. "See if this suits you any better. Tim thinks that Dan recognized the gun when he took the cop back in, and got it out in his pail when he was mopping, then hid it in the basement. How's that?"

"It sounds more plausible," agreed the investigator. "You don't think that if we discovered Reeves' birthday was this month, it would lend weight to their story of the birthday party?"

"I think you'll find it was this month. It would have to be if she and the young fellow told the story to Reeves," the inspector pointed out.

Tim uncoiled his long body from the chair and walked over to the desk, carefully crushing out his cigaret in an ash tray there. "You two are so anxious to catch a culprit, you're leaving out things. For instance, where do esthe unknown man on the third floor fit into the puzzle?"

"I don't think he does fit," answered Lee.

"Just an extra piece that somebody dropped into the puzzle box" the insurance man remarked airily.

"But it's got to fit," insisted the angular reporter his thin face set and earnest. "Somebody did live there you know."

"Probably a student who didn't have enough dough to rent a room," volunteered Hall.

"But can't you see that he's the center of your case, no matter who the murderer is? You can recognize voices through that ceiling. I heard yours," he added to Lee, "when you were upstairs with Brown this morning. And if that fellow was in his bed last night, he was at least a partial witness to the crime."

Lee brought his huge fist down on the desk. "By golly I think you're right. Why didn't I get it this morning when I heard Doc Holmes ranting around down there?"

But the reporter went on relentlessly. "That's not the only piece that doesn't fit." He had the full attention of both men as he exploded his next bombshell. "Have you checked your other alibis for last night? Because if you haven't, you'd better. I did."

He shrugged his shoulders as the two men stared at him silently. "Think it over. I've got to get back to the office. See you tonight at the station, inspector." He turned and went out before Lee could recover from his astonishment.

They could hear his swift footsteps on the stairs when Lee jumped up, saying to the investigator, "Wait here," and hurried after Tim.

The reporter had stopped at the foot of the stairs to light a cigaret when Lee on the landing called, "I want to talk to you Tim."

Ruth Turner in her office near the stairs, stopped and listened. She had been reading over copies of the morning's testimony, copies she had made for herself. Lee had slipped up when he hadn't confiscated the notebook.

Now she hurried out silently to the landing and knelt in the shadow of the banister to listen.

Lee had caught up with Tim and was saying "What the devil do you mean? Don't you see that with all this evidence against the kid, I've got to arrest him?"

"Sure," grinned the reporter, "go ahead and arrest him. But not because he's guilty."

The detective made a grab for him. "Damn you, Tim Blade!" he roared. "Stop being mysterious and tell me the meaning of all this talk about faked alibis and arresting men you don't think are guilty!" Though Lee's voice was mock heroic, Tim recognized the anger in it and waited.

When the inspector continued his tone was more controlled. "Sorry, Tim. Didn't mean to yell at you like that. But what's the idea? You've never held out on me like this before. Have you turned amateur detective?" he finished banteringly.

"Solves murder without aid of stupid police." Tim picked up the banter. Both of them were embarrassed; kidding each other was their mutual apology. "Sure. I've got the name of the murderer in a sealed envelop in my right-hand pocket, and when the game's over I'll let you open it to see if you guessed right."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, November 1

A day of great activity, initiative and adventures into new lines of endeavour and fresh surroundings is indicated by the governing rulership of leading planets. A sudden and abrupt change may have a revolutionary effect on the future destiny, with splendid opportunities for enhancing the position and prestige, making new and powerful friendships and increasing the fortunes.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves under high stimuli to engage in new enterprises and adventures with great ardor and enthusiasm. They will find new openings and opportunities awaiting such initiative.

A child born on this day should be enterprising, energetic, skillful, ingenious, adventurous and independent. It should attain success by these and its practical industry.

Large Congregation Warkworth Services

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, October 30. — Large congregations attended the anniversary services held October 28th, in St. Paul's United Church. Rev. A. S. Cleland of Norwood, was the special speaker. Rev. F. R. Duncan of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Platt of Trinity United Church, Norham, assisted with the evening service.

Special music by the choir, assisted by Mr. Maudsley of Toronto, as soloist, was greatly appreciated., Financially, as well as spiritually, the services were a success.

LONDON FIFTH GRADE PUPILS PROVE GUESSERS IN POLITICS

None Knew Who Bennett Was —One Thought Hepburn Ran the City.

ALL READ SPORTS FIRSTS.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 31 (C.P.)—Pupils in the fifth grade of one London Public School proved guessers in politics, but proved they knew their sport pages yesterday.

Inspector-administrator Weable was paying an inspectional visit and sought to find out whether the children were following current events in the newspapers.

"Do you read the papers?" he asked the class.

Every hand went up.

"Where do you look first?"

The answers were about 90 per cent—"sport page."

They knew Toots Holway, and other members of the London hockey team. The Dean twins "Dizzy and Daffy" and members of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team.

"Who is R. B. Bennett?" asked Mr. Wheable.

A sea of blank faces was the answer. Not one had heard that he was premier of Canada.

"Well, who is Mitch Hepburn?" One hand went up.

"She's the lady that runs the city and looks after the schools."

That one nearly floored Mr. Wheable. However, he agreed not to tell "Mitch" nor the chairman of the school board, Mrs. John A Rose who the little fellow was.

The pupils then proceeded to made it worse by identifying "A.D." as "After Daniel" and "All Done."

Fifth grade classes are to get more training in current events as a result of the inspection visit. Mr. Wheable said he didn't blame the children.

It is a commentary of people as a whole," he said. "Most people nowadays pay more attention to the sport pages than to affairs of their city, province or country."

A jolly Hallowe'en party was held on Friday, October 26, at Carscadden's school. Decorations were carried out in the Hallowe'en spirit of cats, witches, pumpkins, owls and bats. The evening was very spiritedly spent with a short program given by the pupils. Rev. Mr. Riding very ably acted as chairman, and contributed a ghost story and a reading. Mr. Carroll favored the audience with organ solos. Those present were G. Wright, G. Powers, T. Malcomson, J. Wood, J. Richardson, E. Shaw, H. Richardson, J. Boggs, and E. Bownes, Rev. Mr. Riding, R. Powell, B. Wood, L. Butler, D. Fowler, G. Underwood, J. Boggs, T. Malcomson, Doris Driver.

Rev. Mr. Harrington of Toronto, officiated at St. Paul's Anglican church on Sunday.

Mrs. Harold McMullen of Sunderland, was a guest of friends in the village on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Boggs of Manvers Station were guests of Mr. William Davis on Sunday.

Mr. William Davis attended the marriage of his grandson, Morton, Davis on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Staples of Cavan, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. James McKinnon.

U.S. Fliers May Sue Persian Government

CALCUTTA, India, October 31 (A.P.). — John Wright and John Polando, American fliers in the Melbourne derby who were detained last week near the Persian border for more than 24 hours, said to-day they intended to claim damages from the Persian Government.

After stripping their engine, they were amazed to find a faulty cylinder was not cracked, as they first believed, and they may not continue the abandoned flight to Melbourne. Otherwise they will sail from Bombay for London November 10.

Their purpose in returning to London to discuss their detention in Persia with the Air Race Committee. The fliers hoped both the British and United States Governments will co-operate with them in their plan to ask damages.

FAMOUS CHURCH FOLLOWS FOLKS TO FRESH SITE

Memorial London Edifice Removed in Pieces for Re-erection.

IN NEWER DISTRICT

LONDON, Oct. 31 (C.P.) — For the first time in the history of the Church of England one of its most notable places of worship has been removed, stone by stone, to a new site several miles distant.

Thirty years ago, St. Andrew's in Wells street, near Oxford Circus, was one of the "fashionable" churches of London. Every Sunday the broughams of Kensington and Mayfair filled Wells street. King Edward and Queen Alexandra were often in the congregation. Sarah Bernhardt, the actress, was married there. The music at St. Andrew's was of a high order. It had its own choir school, and Joseph Barnby, the famous composer, was for a time its organist. With its heredos of alabaster, and with other fittings as elaborate, St. Andrew's was one of the choicest specimens of ecclesiastical splendor according to the Victorian standard.

Changes in social custom gradually reduced the congregation to but a faithful remnant. These pious old-timers, however, were sufficiently jealous of the glories that had been as to appeal to the Privy Council against the closing of the church. The effort was vain, but the faithful few were perhaps mollified when an undertaking was given that the church should be removed in its entirety to serve a more populous district.

St. Andrew's has now risen again at Kingsbury, one of the rapidly growing new suburbs of northwestern London. The removal from Wells street to Kingsbury has been an expensive matter, but the cost was more than covered by the price received for the site in Wells street.

QUEENSBORO

Our village was visited with its first snow storm Sunday morning.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. . Moore on Thursday last. The president occupied the chair. Devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Doggett. Discussion regarding a bazaar to be held on Nov. 21, occupied most of the time.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Groves returned from their honeymoon on Friday evening, and were treated to a kitchen shower by a number of their friends.

Everybody received a shock when word was received here of the death of Mr. Henry Kells. Mr. Kells spent the greater part of his life about 1½ miles from here and was well and favorably known; having served in the council for a number of years and was at one time Warden for Hastings County. He leaves besides his widow, five daughters and four boys. Interment took place in Greenwood Cemetery on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Tanner, who for the last few weeks has been visiting friends near Harold, returned home on Saturday.

Mr. Charles Sager, who for the past two years has been in poor health, has been worse this week.

Threshing is almost over and crops were extra good in this district.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Leslie are leaving for a few weeks' visit to Belleville and Peterborough.

Final Plans Laid For Y.W. Campaign

Members of the Y.W.C.A. Board of Directors, committees, and friends met this week in the interest of the annual financial campaign. Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner presided and extended appreciation of the Y to all who were helping. Mrs. Kenner drew attention to three points in connection with the campaign—The Peterborough Association budget difference of $2500 is less than any other Association of its size in Canada; Peterborough Y has a program of activities larger than any Y of its size; the Y.W.C.A. asks for funds to carry on work for which there can be no income. Its residence, physical department and camp are self-supporting, and pay into the general expenses. But much of the Y program is extended through its clubs, educational classes, unemployment service, immigration travellers' aid, and general city service, and for this work the co-operation of the friends of the Y.W.C.A. is asked.

Mrs. R. H. Turner, chairman of the Finance Committee, mentioned some points in connection with the canvass, and read a letter from Mrs. P. Foster, field secretary of the National Y.W.C.A., extending best wishes to the canvassers, and offering some helpful suggestions.

Miss Brownscombe, general secretary, outlined the plan of the campaign and emphasized the fact that aside from the subscriptions, the campaign served to make known the work of the Y.W.C.A. and asked the canvassers to report any interests.

The various division groups then met together and planned their lists.

The division leaders for the campaign include: Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Miss E. Morrow, Mrs. R. Turner, Miss A. Wood, Mrs. H. C. Southeran, Mrs. E. E. Harvey, Mrs. L. J. LeClair, Mrs. E. G. Porter, Miss E. McVannel, Mrs. F. M. Sommerville, Mrs. R. H. Parsons, and a committee of teachers and business girls.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting.

No. 10— Taxi-Cab Murder on Yonge Street

By JOHN C. SCOTT

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

(Canadian Press)

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (C.P.)—Into a lonely cottage on Yonge street, near Finch's Corners, four miles north of the city limits, on the night of Saturday, Oct. 22, 1921, staggered Harry Strom, a city taximan.

The 24-year-old driver was badly beaten about the head and his clothes were covered with blood. In his hand he clutched some kind of fibre which medical witness at the inquest said "corresponded to sheep's wool, of a greyish color." He died next day in the Toronto General Hospital.

Unconscious from the time he collapsed on the cottage floor Strom was unable to give any information regarding his assailant. To-day, 13 years after his death, the crime is still on the records as an unsolved murder.

Police found the abandoned taxi on a side road. In it lay a blood-encrusted railway spike, evidently used by Strom's assailant. A dollar bill lay trampled in the soft earth near the scene. The side curtains and seats of the taxi were torn and stained—evidence of a hectic battle. Robbery appeared to be the motive.

City and county police co-operated on the case. Strom, well-known in North Toronto and Leaside, had passed through the northern part of the city in the evening with five passengers, three men and two women. Later the same night he had stopped for gas in the same district. At that time he had one passenger, a man, in his cab.

A suitcase found a short distance from the abandoned taxi contained personal effects. It was identified as belonging to a young man who had worked on a farm a mile or two beyond the scene of the tragedy. Paid off by the farmer the previous day he had disappeared.

The verdict of the coroner's jury specifically named the young farmhand in connection with the slaying. Police were unable to trace him.

INVESTIGATION IS COMPLETED IN STIRLING EXTORTION NOTE

Admission Reported to Have Been Made by Victim's Wife.

NOTE DEMANDED $25,000.

"No Intention to Extract Money, Just to Frighten," Says Woman.

STIRLING, October 31. — Believed to have been the writer of an extortionate note to her husband demanding $25,000 under the penalty of threats of kidnapping, Mrs. Albert Hammond of Stirling, was questioned by the Provincial Police late on Sunday. With her hair shorn close to her head by a pair of scissors, which the police think were used by the woman herself in an attempt to mislead the authorities, Mrs. Hammond was questioned in the local Provincial Police Office for some hours yesterday before she finally broke down and confessed trying to extort money by notes. She herself admitted she had hacked her hair, and later related a fictitius tale as to how she had been attacked by a man, who, she stated to the authorities on Saturday afternoon had been the sender of the extortion note and her assailant.

As in other previous cases throughout the province the demand was signed "Three-fingered Abe. Upon her confession Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., advised that the matter be dropped, as Mrs. Hammond appeared to be in ill-health. The woman was allowed to return to her home by Inspector Frank Gardner, and Constable John Kelly, both of whom investigated.

During the questioning by the police, Mrs. Hammond sincerely informed them that she did not expect any money in the matter of extortion, but merely wished to frighten her husband in the matter of money for running the house.

Note Printed on Envelope

The matter was first brought to the attention of the police when Mr. Hammond delivered a note to Constable Kelly in which certain demands were made for the sum of $25,000. The message was printed on an ordinary white envelope and addressed to "A. Hammond, Town." The message was posted in another envelope in the village of Stirling last Tuesday, and instructed Mr. Hammond to leave the money in a package at the south door of his summer cottage at Oak Lake. All day Thursday and Thursday night Constable Kelly had the cottage under secret observation, but the extortionist failed to put in an appearance.

Story of Attack.

Early Saturday afternoon the Provincial Police were notified that an unknown and mysterious man had attacked Mrs. Hammond in her home at Stirling.

Inspector Gardner and Constable Kelly moved to the scene of the alleged crime and were told by Mrs. Hammond that a man had approached the Hammond home about 2.00 p.m., and requested the use of the telephone. She said upon his being admitted to the house, however, this man pulled a revolver from his pocket and then threatened the life of Mrs. Hammond, according to the story to the police. The man was alleged to have said: "Your husband failed to leave that money, and this is to be a warning—no more fooling." The man, according to Mrs. Hammond, grabbed a pair of scissors from a nearby table and cut the telephone wires, later attacking her and beating her until she fainted. When she revived, however, the man disappeared, but Mrs. Hammond's hair had been hacked off with the scissors, close to the crown of her head.

Police Gather Facts

Later Constable Kelly, who still retained the extortion note of the previous Tuesday, found in the Hammond home an envelope, similar to the one upon which the extortion note had been written. After a short consultation with Inspector Gardiner, who had been examining the pair of scissors used in hacking off Mrs. Hammond's hair, the two officers confronted Mrs. Hammond with certan facts that had been revealed by the police.

Further investigations were carried out by the Provincial Police in the matter of tracing telephone calls while other clues were ferreted out before the police returned to Belleville late Saturday night to resume their investigations again Sunday morning.

Admission Reported

Mr. Hammond, accompanied by her husband and two friends of the family, accompanied the Provincial Police to Belleville, where they were met by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., and a thorough investigation began that terminated two and a half hours later by Mrs. Hammond, it is said, confessing that she had written the note, and had cut off her own hair, and had invented the story of the strange man. Earlier in the day the authorities had sensed the entire situation and governed themselves according'y, when they questioned the woman. The officers pointed out to the woman that they merely wanted the truth in the matter, having been informed of her ill-health. Later she admitted the above, and also informed the authorities that at other times she had done things she could not remember, and that she was subjected to hallucinations.

Although the matter took considerable time and investigating no charges are to be laid.

Piles being sunk for the new buildings of the University of London are planned so that any internal alterations to meet requirements for years to come can be made without touching the outer shell.

Successful Supper Held At Springbrook

BONARLAW, Oct. 31 (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual fowl supper and program of the United Church, Springbrook was held in the Orange Hall on Monday of this week and the hall was filled to overflowing. There was chicken in abundance and the tables were literally groaning under the weight of the many other good things to eat.

Rev. H. W. Foley, pastor at the close of the supper called the meeting to order and all sang, "All hail the power of Jesus' name." This was followed by prayer and words of welcome from Mr. Foley. The St. Paul's Sunday School orchestra which played many fine selections during the supper hour then gave an opening number after which the following program was given: male quartet composed of Messrs. Malcolm Totton, Murray Metkiejohn, Harvey Donald and George Donald, "It's Lamplightin' Time in the Valley," and encore, "Seeing Nellie Home"; reading, "The Spinsterhood of Mary" Miss Grace Dayman and encore; instrumental duet, guitars, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" by Letha and Stewart Hoover; banjo quartet, composed of Maurice Bell, Russell Pitman, Donald Scott and Harold West, "March Tune," and encore; reading, "My Sister's Wedding," Laura Foley and epcore; piano solo, "Minuet L'Antico," Miss Laurene Scott, encore, "Amaryllis"; recitation, "Just Neighbors," Miss Lulu Hoover, encore, "Jemimas Sparkin"; address, Rev. F. G. Joblin; address, Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth; reading, "The girl in the dentist's chair," Miss Grace Dayman; cornet quartet, composed of Messrs. Ted Hildebrande, George Duffin, Leonard Waterfall and Maurice Bell, "Mother McCree"; address, Rev. Mr. Gardiner; vocal duet, "Home on the Range," Letha and Stewart Hoover; male quartet, "Sing us a Merry Song," and "Good Night Ladies"; message of appreciation from Mr. Foley to all those who assisted at the Sunday anniversary services and those who assisted at the fowl supper and concert; the Stirling S.S. orchestra, "medley of popular airs"; "God Save the King" led by orchestra.

Hallowe'en Jokesters Turn Tables On Janitor

LONDON, Ont.—Hallowe'en jokesters turned the tables neatly last night on a cautious janitor. Because for years boys pulled chairs and other moveable articles to the top of a tall flag pole in the yard of South Collegiate, the janitor yesterday untied the flag ropes and with the aid of string, long ladders and some agile climbing, tied the ends of the ropes to the roof of the school—and smiled. This morning when he arrived at work he found the ropes back in their place neatly tied on the pole and nothing at the top. But the boys at the risk of limb and life proved they could have done so if they had liked.

Believed Newfoundland Seamen Are Lost At Sea

BURIN, Nfld.—Fears that two Newfoundland seamen had drowned at sea were held here to-day following the discovery of their fishing boat, empty and adrift off the coast. Arch Woundy, 40, and his 54-year old brother James Woundy left for the fishing rounds two days ago in their small boat and when they failed to return by Tuesday night fellow fishermen began a search for them.

PAIR CHARGED WITH PADDING RELIEF ACCOUNT

Evidence Not Clear States Judge—Asks Verdict Not Guilty.

$50,000 INVOLVED.

"No Doubt Lists Were Padded and Someone Very Much to Blame."

BARRIE, Ont., Nov. 1—(CP)—Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone today dismissed charges of conspiring to defraud the Ontario government of $50,000 through relief account "padding" brought by the Crown against Ralph R. Wilson, town clerk of Midland, and David A. Patchell, the town's tax collector.

Mr. Justice Kingstone granted the formal application of William Finlayson, defence counsel and former Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, that the charges be dismissed at the conclusion of Crown evidence. Joseph Sedgwick of the Ontario Attorney-General's department, conducting the prosecution replied.

The justice said: "I think I will have to take the case from the jury or ask for a verdict of not guilty."

The two men were accused of padding the accounts for housing, fuel and other items on the relief list.

Mr. Justice Kingstone said: "I think that members of the council must have known what was being done and advised it. Who prepared the list and what part Patchell had in it is not clear from the evidence.

No Doubt Lists Padded

"There is no doubt but that these lists to the government were padded and some one was very much to blame."

The justice held: "There is no evidence to show that these men conspired together. On this charge there must be some guilty mind or some guilty intention to defraud."

There was no evidence, he added, to show Patchel guilty of any offence.

He dismissed the two men and warned them: "As long as you occupy a public office you should be like Caesar's wife—above suspicion."

BRIDGE AT LOCKS BE WINTER JOB

Minister of Highways Expected to Look Over Lakefield-Burleigh Falls Road.

PLANS TO BUILD BRIDGE.

Long delayed construction of a new bridge at the Locks may become a winter employment projects.

James Hawthorne, Dr. D. Munro of Warsaw, and J. J. Duffus while in Toronto this week called at the Department of Highways, and were informed that one of the provincial engineers had been instructed to consult the Federal Department of Railways and Canals with respect to final arrangments for this work.

Complete understanding with the Dominion Government in regard to their interests in navigation rights is believed to be the last detail to be agreed upon. This is expected to be disposed of in the near future, and the province will then be in a position to proceed with the plans originally outlined under the Ministry of the Hon. L. Macaulay.

Three at Once

WHEELING, W.Va., Nov. 1 (CP)—Hunting season's on, and the hunting stories are starting to come in, with Findley Rice, of Middlebourne, in the van.

Rice claims to have fired one shot at a squirrel in a tree, after which three dead squirrels fell out. He told friend his bullet apparently pierced the first squirrel, and banked off the tree trunk into the others.

The nearest claimant to Rice's record is another Wheeling district hunter, who says he killed two squirrels and a pheasant with one shot.

YOUTH SUICIDES IN BACK SEAT OF BROTHER'S CAR

Deloro Youth Shoots Himself on Main Street of Marmora.

GIRL REFUSED LOVE.

Police Investigate and Coroner Decides Inquest Not Necessary.

MARMORA, Nov. 1.—(Examiner Correspondent.)—Jealousy and the tortures of unrequited love are believed to have led William Smith, 23 year old Deloro youth, to a spectacular suicide in Marmora shortly before 11.30 o'clock last night. Seated in the rear of an automobile as it stopped near one of the village's important intersections, a bullet through his chest from a high-powered rifle brought him almost instantaneous death.

Two in Front Seat.

Simeon Smith, brother of the young man, was in the driver's seat and Gordon Stewart, a friend, sitting in the front beside Simeon when the tragedy occurred. Climbing the hill to the intersection of Burstall and Matthews streets, the car stalled. The roar of a shot from the rifle rang out from the back of the vehicle, the two in the front report, and they turned to see William slump back and the rifle drop to the floor.

Excitement reigned as village citizens came running to the scene. Simeon drove the car to the office of Dr. H. Crawford in the village and the doctor pronounced him dead immediately. The bullet from the weapon, which was of a 44.40 calibre bore, had entered just over the heart, coming out through the spinal column and passed out of the car through the rear window.

Constable Percy Gray of Marmora, commenced an investigation and was soon joined by Dr. S. Eagleson, Madoc coroner. Dr. Eagleson pronounced it a clear-cut case of suicide. Contrary to suggestions by police that an inquest would be necessary to clear up certain angles to the affair, the coroner said today an inquest would be unnecessary and would not be held.

Quarreling With Girl.

Deloro and Marmora residents state that Smith had been quarreling with h is girl friend for the past two weeks and that he was acting "strangely." Jealous because the girl was in the company of another young man, he is reported to have followed her around Marmora during the evening as, in Hallowe'en costume, she revelled in the annual celebrations. Starting home about midnight, he was met by his brother and Stewart. When they noticed that William was alone with the rifle in the back seat, they tried to keep it from him, but finally gave it to him and they started home, the boys claim.

William is undersood to have giv-

99 P.C. FISHERS ARE ON RELIEF IN N. B. DISTRICT

Buying Probe Told Less Than 200 of 1,500 Made Any Cash Since '32.

ASK LONG-TERM LOANS.

Suggest Rigid Grading Laws, Fixed Prices For Consumers, Producers.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1. (CP).—All the glamor that has surrounded the hardy race of Maritime men whose fishing exploits have made them famous in song and tale, was shorn from them here to-day before the Mass Buying Commission. Witnesses from the Miramichi district of New Brunswick told of set-net Salmon fishermen netting no money this year for their work, of drift-net salmon fishermen making $2.50 and $7.50 for two months' work and of the average netting $78.

The dreary tale continued when Leonard Loggie, Burnt Church, N. B., said the average oyster-fishermen in the Miramichi district this year made $40 while smelt-fishermen, after paying their expenses and repairing their gear netted $110.

Adolphe Hache Laneque, N.B., said in Gloucester county less than 200 of the 1,500 fishermen had made any cash since 1932. They worked all year on credit from merchants but never made enough to discharge their debts and get their heads above water. Conditions had forced 99 percent of the fishermen in his district to go on government relief.

Remedial Suggestions

Various suggestions were left with the Commission to remedy conditions. Loggie proposed government assistance to the United Maritime Fishermen's Federation to promote co-operative endeavors and assistance from the Dominion Marketing Act in processing and selling fish.

On behalf of Gloucester fishermen, Hache suggested construction of cold storage facilities to keep bait fresh, wharf repairs and long-term loans to fishermen at low interest rates to purchase schooners and gear.

Through Fletcher Harvey of Grand Manan Island, herring fishermen sought government regulations for their industry. They wanted rigid grading laws, fixed prices for producers and consumers and export regulations.

CROLL SELECTS TWO LOCAL MEN

F. G. McNeely, of Local Relief Staff, is Now Relief Officer of Niagara Falls.

Two members of the local relief office staff have accepted positions with the Provincial Welfare Department under the direction of Hon. D. A. Croll.

Fred G. McNeely, who was employed with the local relief department for 22 months as an investigator of relief cases, is serving with the Welfare Department at present as relief officer of Niagara Falls. Mr. McNeely was called to Toronto two weeks ago by Hon. Mr. Croll and after spending a few days in the Welfare Department's offices at Queen's Park, was sent to Niagara Falls as relief officer.

It was learned to-day that Mr. McNeely's position at Niagara Falls may only be temporary. The Government is paying all relief in Niagara Falls and therefore its administration is under the direction of Hon. Mr. Croll's department completely. It was said that the relief situation at Niagara Falls is difficult and should prove a real test of Mr. McNeely's capacity as relief officer.

Capable Official

"He proved himself to be most capable during his term in this office," stated A. G. Metheral, city relief officer. "His training here will stand him in good stead in his present position which has great responsibilities."

Nagle Phelan, also an employee of the local relief office for the past 22 months, has accepted a position with Hon. Mr. Croll's department, but he will not commence his duties until November 15. It is expected that Mr. Phelan will be appointed a relief investigator for some district in the province, following a month's training in the office at Queen's Park.

Miss Muriel Morrison is temporarily employed at the local relief office and is doing the work formerly undertaken by Mr. McNeely.

Ashes in Gas Tank Is Meanest Prank

Police to-day were asked to assist in discovering the names of the group of youths who as a Hallowe'en prank poured ashes into the gas tank of a car owned by C. R. Hagerman, 34 Benson avenue.

The car was parked in Mr. Hagerman's garage during the night. He found this morning that the gas tank had been filled with ashes, and ashes also had been spread over the upholstery of the vehicle. The youths also carried away the caps of the radiator and gas tank. Police described it as the "meanest Hallowe'en trick."

SHORT COURSE FOR FARMERS

TEN DAYS $6.00.

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (C.P.) — A short course covering many phases of the agricultural industry will be opened to farmers of Ontario, at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Hon. Duncan Marshall announced to-day. The classes will be held from Jan. 2-11 when students will be given a holiday. Special work in livestock, covering beef cattle, dairy cattle, horses, sheep and swine, will be arranged, said the Minister.

It is also hoped to have in addition to the regular instruction, special conferences on important phases of production and marketing. At the same time, short courses in horticulture, bee-keeping and agricultural engineering will be held. The three months' dairy course and the month's poultry course will be held as usual, but will not be a part of the plan for the two weeks' course. There will also be a short practical course in emergency veterinary work.

"The time chosen will, if approved, permit the regular students, with the exception of the senior students in agriculture and the girls, to remain at home," he said. "This will leave the dormitories and the dining hall for a group of about 500, available for the short course and conference. We should like to make a special rate of $6 for the ten days of 75 cents per day for those who come but for a few days."

Fire Destroys Bell Avenue Property

An outbreak of fire, believed caused by a defective chimney, destroyed a 2-storey frame dwelling-house and contents on Bell Avenue, off Lansdowne Street, shortly after three o'clock this afternoon. George Doig, owner-tenant of the property, estimated his loss at $2,000. "I am completely ruined," he told The Examiner, as he surveyed the smouldering heap of ashes that was formerly his home, and reflected on his lapsed insurance policy.

While the Fire Department was summoned, fire-fighters were powerless to save the building, which was razed to the ground in a short time. Water was over a mile distant.

Great World's Fair Closes At Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 1. (AP). — A Century of Progress Exposition passed from the scene early to-day.

More than 363,000 merrymakers tuned the death watch into a huge and boisterous carnival. They cheered and sang and drank and danced, then left the grounds with whatever they could carry as souvenirs of the most successful fair in the United States' history.

The throngs of visitors yesterday and last night boosted the 1934 attendance mark to 16,455,063.

President Rufus C. Dawes of the Exposition, Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois and Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago spoke the formal adieus from the rostrum in the Court of States.

INSULL REFUSED OFFER TO HEAD BRITISH POWER

Chairmanship Offered by Baldwin in '26—Preferred to Guide U.S. Interests.

DEFENDS OWN CASE.

Says Middle West Pool Gave More to Area Than Shareholders Lost.

CHICAGO, November 1 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull, defending himself against fail fraud charges to-day, told the jury that his Middle-Western Electric Power pool had "contributed more to the wealth of this section" than stockholders had lost in Insull's $2,000,000,000 commercial failure."

A moment after he had made his proud declaration pounding his fist emphatically on the arm of the witness stand, Insull told the jury he had turned down an important post offered by the British Government, in 1926, to stay in the United States.

"This statement, gentlemen, has never been made public," said the 74-year-old utility executive.

"Mr. Stanley Baldwin offered me the chairmanship of the British High Tension Power Development." Insull said almost in a shout.

"He offered me a chance to do, in the country of my birth, what I had done in the country of my adoption. It was a tremendous temptation."

"I could have gone to England and duplicated the reputation there that I've made here. There were only two reasons why I did not.

"The first was my obligation to my associates here, and the second my obligation to the security holders who provided me with money to do it."

His offer from Prime Minister Baldwin, Insull said, came after he had testified before a Royal Commission investigating the possibilities of long distance power development in England.

"I went to London on business in 1926," said the witness. "I found a call at my office from 10 Downing Street. I went down and saw Mr. Stanley Baldwn."

MEISNER TRIAL SITE UNDECIDED

Roebuck to Settle Whether Labatt Case to be Heard in London or Sarnia.

POLICE HAVE INTERVIEW.

LONDON, Ont. Nov. 1.—(CP)—Whether David Meisner, Labatt kidnap suspect now being held in the steel cage of Middlesex county jail will be tried in this city or Sarnia will be decided by Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney General, it was stated today. There is, however, every indication that the trial will take place here, despite Sarnia reports to the contrary.

County Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw, by whom Meisner was formally remanded on his arrival here Wednesday afternoon has province-wide jurisdiction so that a preliminary hearing could be held before him. If, as it appears, that London is considered the safest centre in which to keep the prisoner there seems little reason to believe he will be taken elsewhere for trial.

In the meanwhile, it is learned that police had their first interview with the small, nervous little man who is accused of kidnapping the wealthy John S. Labatt, brewery president, since he was returned to Canada. Whether the prisoner gave a statement in the jail here or not could n ot be learned.

The Curious

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 1 (CP) —So many people have visited the grave of John Dillinger, once-the United States Public Enemy No. 1, that the sod around it has been worn away.

Hardly a day passes but several automobile loads of people, usually from other states, drive into the cemetery here and ask to be directed to the grave. Tons of cement were poured into the ground to protect the grave from ghouls.

ANGLO-GERMAN DEBT QUESTION SMOOTHED OUT

Latter Will Spend 55 P.C. Value of Exports to Britain to Buy Her Goods.

BANK LOANS $2,000,000.

Full Interest Starting January to be Paid on Dawes, Young Bonds.

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

LONDON, Nov. 1 (C.P. Cable).—Britain and Germany have reached a new agreement on the long-standing question of commercial debts owed by Germany to Britain.

The basis of the agreement, which was announced this afternoon in the House of Commons by Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, is as follows:

The German Government will guarantee that 55 per cent. of the value of German exports to the United Kingdom shall be definitely earmarked for the payment for United Kingdom exports to Germany. This allocation should, according to the normal trend of Anglo-German trade, be sufficient to enable the United Kingdom exports to Germany to be paid for in full.

In regard to liquidation of the outstanding commercial debts, the Reichsbank will provide immediately a sum not less than $2,000,000 for this purpose, and will also expedite liquidation by realization of outstanding German commercial claims on the United Kingdom, whether by a credit operation or otherwise.

Settlement in 12 Months.

Insofar as these measures are not sufficient, the Reichsbank will set aside additional percentage (provisionally fixed at 10 per cent.) of the values of German exports to the United Kingdom, in order to ensure liquidation of all outstanding debts within 12 months.

JUDGE PAINTS VIVID REVIEW IN HIS CHARGE

States While Crown Established No Motive, None is Necessary.

ACCOMPLICE POSSIBLE.

Value of Circumstantial Evidence Unduly Minimized By Defense.

WALKERTON, Ont., Nov. 1.—(CP)—Earl Leffler, 19-year-old youth, today was acquitted by an Ontario Supreme Court jury of a charge of murdering his 68-year-old grandfather, Phillip Stroh, district farmer whose battered body was found near his home last April.

WALKERTON, Ont., Nov. 1.—(CP)—The case of Earl Leffler, charged with the murder of Phillip Stroh, went to the jury this afternoon following the charge of Judge Makins, who commented as follows:

"I am here to propound the law and it is up to you to follow my interpretations. You are, however, the sole judges of the facts of the case."

Here Judge Makins read Section 259 of the Criminal Code, explaining fully what murder is. He also instructed them as to what manslaughter is.

He also described motive and stated, "while the Crown has established no motive, yet motive is not necessary. If you find Leffler did commit murder you need not worry about motives."

In regard to circumstantial evidence he said, "The defence unduly minimized the value of such and unduly exaggerated the plausibility of same.

"Many a murderer would go unpunished if juries refused to commit because no one actually saw the murder."

"Was Phillip Stroh murdered?"

Who Was the Murderer?

"Have you any doubt that it was not a fight but murder? If you haven't any doubt it was a murder, then who was the murderer. The

BLUEBIRD RACER BEING REBUILT

Hopes To Exceed 300 M.P.H.

LONDON, Nov. 1 (A.P.). — The remodelled Bluebird racing car which Sir Malcolm Campbell expects to take to Daytona Beach, Fla., early in January for another assault on his own world speed record of 272.108 miles an hour is rapidly taking shape in his workshop on the outskirts of London.

Although declining to reveal the scope of the alterations until they are completed, Sir Malcolm told the Associated Press the new Bluebird would look "quite different" from the old.

He said he was corresponding with Dayton Beach city officials and expected to have word shortly that all arrangements had been completed. It was at Daytona that all arrangements had been completed. It was at Daytona he set his old mark in the spring of 1933.

"I can't say for sure how fast she will be," Sir Malcolm said in discussing the capabilities of the remodelled car, "but I have real hopes of beating the present record and possibly exceeding 300 miles an hour."

While the car is taking shape Sir Malcolm is keeping himself fit for the great physical ordeal that a speed run entails. Part of this training has included yachting and deep sea fishing. Sir Malcolm is 49, an age at which most racing drivers are content to sit by the fire and tell about the days when they were young.

Law To Bar Married Women from Working Would Be Impractical, Hepburn Declares

TORONTO, Nov. 1. (CP).—Laws to bar married women from working when their husbands are employed, would be impracticable in actual operation, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said to-day.

Requests that such practice be instituted have not reached the Premier from St. Thomas and Stratford, he said, but expressed doubt that such law could ever be enforced.

"How could you do it?" he asked. "We all know of cases in which the woman's husband has left her and she is forced to support herself and family or where the husband's earnings are not enough to support the family without the aid from the wife. We would have to be making exceptions all the time.

"We have an understanding now in the Civil Service that two or more members of the same family should not have government posts but there are exceptions to this, so we cannot enforce such a law even in our own service."

Police, Worried As River Banks Disappear Learns Negroes Eat Clay Like Ice Cream

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 1 (AP)—The mysterious disappearance of clay deposits on the banks of the Mississippi River has been solved. Negroes are eating it!

Chief of Police Will Lee first noticed the gradual disappearance of the clay some time ago. The river, wending its way to the gulf, was not responsible, the chief found, so he set his officers to find out just where it went.

Their report was that the clay is being taken away by the negroes who munch it as if it were ice cream or pork chops.

Chief Lee estimated to-day that at least a ton of the clay has been eaten. Dr. Louis LeRoy, a diagnostician, gave the bewildered chief this explanation:

"Clay eating is not at all an uncommon practice, being known to the medical profession as 'picre.' It can't hurt them unless they eat enough to clog the intestinal tract.'

So Chief Lee simply shrugged his shoulders and said: "Le 'em go to it; I hope the banks don't run out."

1933 WARDEN OF UNITED COUNTIES SEEKS ELECTION

Durham County Liberals Hold Most Enthusiastic Nomination Meeting.

W. H. MOORE SPEAKS.

End of Democracy Foreseen Unless Liberals Returned in Ottawa.

(By A Staff Reporter)

ORONO, Nov. 1.—Warden of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham last year, W. F. Rickard of Newcastle was nominated candidate of the Liberals of Durham at their convention here yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Rickard was proposed by Thos. Holgate of Bowmanville and Robert Morton of Manvers township. He was chosen by 262 votes to 46 in a contest with Sam B. Hathaway of Port Hope, who was proposed by Vernon Hunter of Cavan and W. A. Meadows of Port Hope.

Three hundred and ten delegates were appointed from the urban and rural polling subdivisions of the riding, and every delegate was present with several hundred other men and women who completely filled the community hall.

Reeve Cecil G. Mercer of Hope township, president of the Durham Liberal Association, was chairman, and with him on the platform were W. J. Bragg, M.L.A., W. H. Moore, M.P., the chief speaker; W. A. Fraser, M.P.; J. J. Duffus, president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association; Hon. Nelson Parliament; Bruce McNevin of Omemee and Lawrence Mason of Bowmanville, secretary.

The allotment of delegates was as follows: Port Hope, 55; Bowmanville, 60; Newcastle, 10; Millbrook, 10; Hope township, 30; Clarke, 44; Darlington, 40; Cartwright, 9; Manvers 29 and Cavan 22.

When the result of the balloting was announced Mr. Hathaway moved that the nomination be made unanimous.

December Futures Set at 75 Cent Minimum With May Option at 80.

AT FEDERAL REQUEST.

Move Hailed Victory for Farmers and First Step in Government Regulations.

WINNIPEG, November 1 (C.P.). — "Pegged" wheat prices went into effect on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today for the second time in the history of trading operations here.

Inaugurating a move seen as victory for the farmers and the first step in Government regulations, the council of the Exchange last night at an emergency meeting accepted the suggestion from the Federal Government and placed a peg of 75 cents a bushel on the December wheat option and 80 cents a bushel on the May option.

When traders went into the pit this morning, they faced the first minimum prices since August-September of 1933. Under the regulations, the December futures cannot go below yesterday's close of 75 cents and the May future was pegged at the minimum of 80 cents, ¼ of a cent above yesterday's close. Higher prices can be bid in trading.

Informed circles believed that other regulations would be imposed by the Federal Government to offset foreign selling pressure, but John I. McFarland, in charge of Government stabilization operations on the Exchange, declined to give any hint as to what they might involve.

The regulations were now being considered, said Mr. McFarland, and when decision was made announcement could be expected. The pegging of prices was a step necessary to protection of the public and producers pending decision respecting regulations.

Foreign Selling Cause

Renewed foreign selling pressure, about which Mr. McFarland complained previously, was the immediate cause of the pegging of prices. Uncertainty in market circles, more marked than usual, had placed the Winnipeg pit operations in bewilderment and Mr. McFarland two days ago recommended to the Federal Government that control and restriction be imposed on the futures market.

"There is evidence that the Winnipeg Market is still the target of interest foreign to the wheat producer of Western Canada," Mr. McFarland said. "While the government has in mind certain restrictions that will prevent recurrence of the heavy selling operations witnessed the past few months, it will take some time to put these into effect."

Long a champion of farmers' rights, Mr. McFarland in winning pegging of prices and prospects of control met farmer organization requests. Allegations the futures market operated against the benefit of the producer were laid by heads of prairie wheat pools during the investigation conducted in 1931 by Sir Josiah Stamp, famed English economist. Since then requests for pegged prices and greater government control developed from farmer organizations.

Hallowe'en Passed Quietly In The City Little Rowdyism Is Reported By Police

Hallowe'en was free in the city of the rowdyism sometimes associated with it, police reported to-day As far as police could ascertain from a close check-up there was little damage to property.

Police reinforced by several "specials" kept a close watch throughout the district in the evening and until the early hours this morning, but the children kept their fun well within bounds and no arrests were necessary, police stated.

An awning was torn down at a shoe repair shop on George street just north of Edinburgh street and a few street lights were broken, but otherwise there was no damage according to police information. Noticeably absent from this year's celebration were the pea shooter and tick-tack which used to create such a disturbing racket on windows

At the Kinsmen's Club Hallowe'en Frolic it was announced that a group of youths were enjoying themselves by letting air out of the tires of cars parked outside the armouries.

Provincial Constable D. Silvester stated that he had received no reports of Hallowe'en disturbances in the county. "However," he said, "I expect that before the day is through I will receive complaints from farmers of gates missing and the odd fence torn down."

ROMANCES MAY WIPE OUT ROYAL SPANISH LINE

Third Son Rumored Determined to Wed Commoner Daughter of Lord Londonderry.

COST CHANCE TO THRONE.

PARIS, Nov. 1. (AP) — Waxing and waning loves of Spain's royal family last night threatened the throne Alfonso XIII gave up after the 1931 revolution.

The determination of Don Juan, Alfonso's third son, to marry Lady Helen Maglona Vane Tempest Stewart, daughter of the Marquis of Londonderry, British air minister, and Lady Londonderry, was reported at the same time the Count of Covadonga had parted from his Cuban commoner bride of 16 months

There was the oft-recurring rumor, too, that ex-King Alfonso was about ready to separate from former Queen Victoria.

Juan's romance (it was denied from London) would cost him his chance at the crown which his brother, Alfonso, the present Count of Covadonga, renounced to wed beautiful Edelmira Sampedroy Pobato, Cuban society girl, in June, 1933.

Because Jaime, Alfonso's only other living son, is deaf and dumb and has renounced his right to the throne, monarchist refugees in Paris last night expressed consternation at the prospect that the succession to the crown would be interrupted

Even as Alfonso defied his father in 1933, Juan, midshipman in the British navy, to-day was reported to have told Alfonso he intends to marry Lady Helen even though she is not of royal blood

(In London Lady Helen herself said: "It is ridiculous. I cannot understand how the report can have originated". A member of Lord Londonderry's house staff also denied the engagement on the air minister's behalf).

Alfonso Denies Reports

ROME, Nov. 1. (AP)—A spokesman for former King Alfonso of Spain last night expressed the opinion that there was no truth in reports from Paris that the King's eldest son, the Count of Covadonga, was planning to divorce his Cuban wife.

He said the reports reached the King's party only through the press and he considered them absurd

The spokesman also denied rumors that the former rule's third son, Don Juan Carlos, was engaged to marry the daughter of Lord Londonderry, British air minister.

LIVESTOCK PRODUCE AND CHEESE QUOTES

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Egg prices were again higher on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Top grades of eggs were 1c to 3c higher per dozen. Graded shipments in carlots or less were 42c to 43c per dozen for A-large, 40c for A-medium, 34c to 35c for A-pullets, 22c to 23c for B, and 20c for C. Arrivals were 944 cases.

Fresh No. 1 butter was unchanged at 19½c to 19¾c a pound. Small lots to retailers brought 20½c a pound for solids and 21c to 21½c for prints. Receipts were 258 boxes.

The cheese market was unchanged, Ontario colored and white bringing 10c to 10¼c a pound and No. 1 Quebec cheese selling at 9½c a pound. Receipts totalled 959 boxes.

Quebec potatoes were again quoted at 35c to 40c per 80-lb. bag, while N.B. Mountains at 40c to 45c per 80-lb. bag and Prince Edward Island Mountains at 45c to 50c per 80-lb. bag were also unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Outdoing season low price records, wheat in Chicago yesterday parted company with corn, which developed notable strength.

Wheat underwent a fall of 2 cents a bushel in some cases, largely responsive to cheap offerings of French wheat and to weakness at Buenos Aires, where the Argentine Government appeared to be removing trade restrictions at practically the same time Canadian authorities were discussing proposed increased regulatory measures at Winnipeg. Prospective freezing temperatures apt to enlarge feeding demand gave a stimulus to buying of corn.

Close is Nervous

The close for wheat was nervous, ¼c to 1¼c under Tuesday's finish. May 94⅜c to 94½c; corn, ⅛c to 1c up; May, 76⅜c to 77c; oats at ⅜c decline to ¼c advance, and provisions varying from 5c setback to a rise of 32c.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, November 1.— Price-stabilization efforts of the Government agency prevented excessive declines on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday as wheat futures prices, reacting to weakness in outside markets, closed ½c to ⅝c lower.

Buying from the agency comprised most of the market's support, as values were lower throughout, with continued lack of export demand for Canadian wheat a further bearish factor. October closed at 74½c, December 75c, and May 79⅞c.

Lowest in Month.

Following the downward trend of Chicago and Liverpool local prices slipped to the lowest levels of the month. Trading, however, was quiet and the price range only ⅝c.

Reports unrestricted trading would rule at Buenos Aires were bearish, as was a forecast of Argentine wheat exports for this week of 2,225,000 bushels, compared with 1,500,000 bushels last week. Cash wheats continued firm but coarse grains futures eased in sympathy with wheat.

FRANCE PLAYING WITH FIRE SAYS BERLIN WARNING

Follows Reports of Preparations for Possible Occupancy of Saar Region.

LEAGUE TAKES ACTION.

(By JOHN A. BOUMAN)

BERLIN, Nov. 1. (AP)—A semi-official German source, answering reports that France is preparing for possible occupation of the Saar territory, warned to-day that France is "playing with fire".

The Deutsche Diplomatische Politische Korrespondez, mouthpiece of the government, in an editorial headed "Playing with fire" said:

"Under no circumstances could peace and order be enforced in the Saar with military force by a power which is a party to the January 13 plebiscite."

(The rich Saar region votes then on whether to join Germany or France, or to remain under the mandate of the League of Nation).

The editorial expression came in quick reaction to reports from Paris and London that France is making ready for a possible Saar occupation "whenever the Saar governing commission deems it advisable."

Huge Army Shaping Up

PARIS, Nov. 1—(AP)—The newspaper Le Matin said today by next spring Germany will have an army more formidable than the one with which it entered the world war.

This army, the newspaper asserted, number 2,000,000 men and could be mobilized in less than 15 days. Le Matin said its information was the result of an inquiry in Germany.

The report was published as France was worried by the possibility of war because of the Saar plebiscite to be held in January.

Pierre Laval, foreign minister, has completed plans with the ministry of defense to send French troops to the Saar if the governing commission of the League of Nations requests help. Garrisons along the frontier have been instructed to prepare for emergencies.

"The French will be ready if there is trouble in the Saar," Laval said.

League Takes Action

GENEVA, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A special session of the League of Nations council today was called to meet Nov. 21 to discuss the problem of the Saar territory plebiscite.

Step out of fog into sunshine

HOW many days of your life are lost in the mists of half-health? How many hours which might be bright with promise are dull and dispirited?

Half-hearted days are frequently due to common constipation. It clouds your waking hours, takes the sunshine out of living. Yet this ailment can be overcome so easily and pleasantly by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory investigations have proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further assist elimination. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, and gently helps to clear the system of wastes. How much better than taking patent medicines!

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in muffins, breads, omelets, etc. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

IMPORTANT!
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains nothing but pure bran with a small percentage of flavoring. It is recommended as much more efficient in relieving common constipation than part-bran products which cannot contain as much "bulk."

TRADED HIS CAVALRY UNIFORM FOR THE MANTLE OF DIPLOMACY

Hon. Raymond Brugere Has Circled World as Envoy for France.

NOW IN OTTAWA.

By W. Q. KETCHUM
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—During the Great War a dashing lieutenant in the Chausseurs d'Afrique fought for la belle France in Bulgaria and on the western front. He was wounded in action and received the Croix de Guerre for gallantry. Today the former subaltern is a man of heavy responsibilities — Hon. Raymond Brugere, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Canada.

The writer interviewed Mr. Brugere at the French legation shortly before he presented his credentials to the governor-general.

Still under 50, M. Brugere, who from 1900 to 1910 was commander-in-chief of the French army. At the outbreak of the Great War the celebrated soldier was on the reserve, but soon commanded an army corps against the sullen German tide which threatened to envelop his country.

As a former cavalry officer M. Brugere hopes to do a little riding in Ottawa. His erect bearing and youthful and alert appearance suggest the days of activity and discipline to which he was suoject in early manhood. The French minister plays an occasional game of golf, is fond of fishing and hunting, though underlying all his activities is a love of books fostered during years of study in preparation for his life work—the diplomatic service.

Experienced Diplomat

His duties have carried him to Pekin, Madrid, Copenhagen Constantinople and other focal points of the diplomatic checker board.

M. Brugere referred feelingly to the high regard in which Canadian people are held in France, where the exploits of the Canadian army strengthened the bonds of friendship which existed between the two countries. One of his last acts before coming to Ottawa was to visit the beautiful Vimy memorial which perpetuates the fallen of the Dominion.

Establishment of a French legation at Ottawa is a matter of recent years. During the Great War the Dominion government appointed a high commissioner to Paris. At that time France had as representatives in the Dominion only two consuls, one in Montreal, another in Vancouver. The need became more and more urgent for a central administration accredited to the federal authorities at Ottawa and acting as a link between the Canadian and French governments.

On November 29, 1929, the Hon. Philipe Roy presented to the president of the French republic his credentials as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary from Canada, and the Canadian legation in Paris was founded.

Established in 1928

On September 12, 1928, M. Jean Knight established the legation of France in Ottawa, assisted by M. Henri Coursier, secretary of embassy, and Yves Corson, secretary-archivist. On July 1, 1930, M. Knight was recalled to France to assume the duties of chief of the press and information services and was replaced by Hon. Charles Arsene Henry, previously charge d'affaires to the Holy See.

M. Brugere is delighted with the location of the legation at 42 Sussex St. He hopes that the time is not so far distant when the property which commands a magnificent view of the Ottawa river and the blue Laurentians will be further enhanced by a minister's residence.

M. Brugere is licensed in law and has a diploma from l'Ecole des Sciences Politiques. In 1921 he was made a chevaler of the legion of honor, receiving even greater recognition when he became an officer of the coveted order in 1930.

Comes from Belgium

The new French minister, who comes to Canada from Brussels, where he filled the post of counsellor of embassy, is an animated conversationist and possesses a frankness which is sometimes found to be an alien quantity in a diplomat. He has, however, all the approachability of a cosmopolitan, which should win many friends to his cause—the promotion of trade and friendliness between two countries.

Madame Brugere is the daughter of Dr. Temoin, celebrated French surgeon and member of the French Academy, whose name stands high not only in Paris and France, but beyond the borders of that country.

SAYS JURY WOMEN TOO SENTIMENTAL

Manchester Court Chairman Criticizes Their Recommendations for Mercy.

MANCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 1.—(C.P.)—Women jurors came in for some scathing criticism by the chairman, H. St. John Raikes, K.C., at the trial of William Whittle, 60-year-old laborer, charged with stealing coal. He was found guilty and sentenced to six months' hard labor.

When the foreman of the jury intimated the women members desired to recommend him to mercy, the chairman asked them to give a reason and when one was forthcoming said: "Year by year, since women have been serving a certain amount of sickly sentimentality has been shown, and unless there is some strong reason they should be chary of making recommendations. It is rather a slight on the court. Those whose duty it is to award punishment have more experience than the juries and are able to size up the question."

On hearing that there were 11 previous convictions against Whittle for stealing coal, the chairman observed: "And then we get this recommendation by people who knew nothing about it. It is a shocking thing in a way."

Protests from various quarters followed the remarks of Mr. Raikes. "Women are no more sentimental than men," declared J. R. Clynes, former cabinet member. "Lectures on sentimentality to the jury who recommended mercy are unheard of and out of place," he said.

"I have never seen any reason to differentiate between women jurors and men," said Comyns Carr, K.C.

PART IN POLITICS FOR GOOD MOTHERS

Hon. Arthur Sauve Gives Opinion of Women's Place in Development.

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—(C.P.)—Education of youth to take its part in the political development of the country was stressed as one of the important contributions which might be made by woman to political life, in an address by Hon. Arthur Sauve, Postmaster General, under the auspices of the Association des Femmes Conservatices.

The intelligent mother, alive to her political duties and well-informed as to the history of her country and the political happenings of the day, could have a great influence, said Mr. Sauve, through the education of young people politically. Political clubs and newspapers, he stated, were not sufficient to educate youth in sound politics.

Commenting on the necessity of the party system under the Canadian constitution, Mr. Sauve warned his hearers that, for the good of the country, political partisanship must not be confused with nor assume the cloak of fanaticism.

Posters in nine languages advertising the 1935 British Industries Fair at London will be displayed in 45 countries.

The Social, Hygenic and Economic Aspects of the Nose

By DR. T. P. McCULLOUGH.

According to Dr. J. Fordyce, New York Medical Journal 1909, Catarrhal inflammation of the skin may alternate with that of the mucous membrane, the one being active, while the other is held in abeyance. Other conditions being observed by the same author occurring in the nose are uticaria (hives) and inflammatory oedema. The mucous membrane of the nose may participate in eczematous eruptions. Fordyce also describes Gangosa a disease of the tropics and consists of an ulceration of the nasopharynx, extending to the skin of the face producing great deformity. The ulcer has a punched-out appearance; it progresses rapidly destroying bony and fleshy parts. The cause of this disease has not been discovered. It frequently destroys the nose, face, lips and eyes. Many other diseases, among which are leprosy, lupus erysipelas, diphtheria and anthrax have a predilection to primary origin in the nose. The disappearance of the nasolabial fold, which gives a characteristic blank expression is one of the early signs of bulbar paralysis and also dementia or general paraysis of the insane. A habitually cold nose suggests some circulatory disturbance and possible heart disease. The play of the nostrils in febrile disease is highly suggestive of an advance in the general process. A deformed nose from fracture or injury may suggest acquired lower respiratory disease. Fetid nasal odor suggests syphilis, ozena or suppuration of the sinuses. The movements of the nasal wings (lower sides of nose) helps us to differentiate the presence or absence of some respiratory obstruction. In cyanosis from respiratory disturbance of the wings of the nose move with respiration (breathing) and in heart lesions or general intoxication, no perceptible movement is noted. Sudden drawing of the nose to one side is sometimes noted as a preliminary aura of epilepsy. In a patient evincing great pain in the top or back of the head, with or without much temperature clonic contraction of the nose and face muscles to either side, may accompany an acute condition of a chronic basalar meningitis without pain or temperature, it is a prominent symptom of hysteria. Upon careful inspection in an acute cold (coryza) in a child a mild case of measles is often disclosed. Tumors, abscesses in the anterior fossae of the skull, tabes suppuration in the sinuses or disease of the cortical centre may be suspected in anosmia (want of smell). Hallucination of smell is often an accompaniment of epilepsy or insanity, and may be the first sign of the approach of these diseases. Hallucinations of smell are comparatively rare as compared with hallucinations of sight and hearing. They are commoner in women than in men, and they not infrequently occur at periods of disturbance, at adolescence, in puerperal fever at the change of life, in women with ovarian troubles. A chronic red nose is indicative of gastro intestinal irritation or an active membership in the Bacchus Club. An acute redness of the nose with itching and sight edema may be Erethenatous in character, due to an unstable vasomotor system and gastro-intestinal disorders. Cavernous Sinus thrombosis, sudden blindness, errors of vision and disease of the adjacent tissue of the eye, may point to a causative lesion of the nose. Subjective aural sounds may be due to some lesion in the nose or nasopharynx enervated by the third or trifacial nerve.

Hyperosmia or over sensitive olfaction to specific odors may produce in those with an idiosyncrasy, congestion of the upper air passages, headache, nausea, muscular excitement, cerrebral congestion, skin eruptions, sufficient to incapacitate the individual from many duties, unless the environment is changed. Anosmia, or loss of smell, may be due to fracture of the skull or nose, central lesions, local or general disease and may be found in acromegly (giantism) as pointed out by Sajous, who also states that the olfactory sensibility may be influenced indirectly by the suppression of any habitual discharge, anaemia, impaired nutrition through the sympathetic system and pituitary body. The study of truancy and delinquency is a source of interest to those doing nose work and abnormalities may be looked for in the nose.

In some countries Juvenile Court Judges are constantly sending delinquent children to nose specialists, looking to the possibility of some abnormality, if not in the nose, in some portion of the body directly influencing the morals of the child. But I think it is a question whether post nasal operations for obstructions will improve the morals of the criminally inclined. Structural alterations of the nose from such diseases as Syphilis and tuberculosis are important evidences pointing to disease that may influence the nervous system. One cannot take up the Study of Criminology without considering Lambroso, Ellis and Drahms. Medical writers frequently refer to the stigma of degeneracy without giving the subject much comparative study. Lambroso speaks of the frequent deep frontal sinuses in female criminals and abnormal nasal bones found among prostitutes. He found crooked noses in twenty-five per cent. of criminals and eight per cent. prostitutes. Twelve per cent. homicides and twenty per cent. thieves have flat noses in nearly one thousand observations. The sense of smell is reported as affected in six per cent., whereas in the normal, this defect is only found in two per cent. Drahms says that the nose of the criminal is generally rectilineal, large, frequently crooked or malformed, with large wings or orifices, sometimes undulating and with uplifting base. Some of these malformations may be attributed to abuse by the parents in infancy and general recklessness of the individual. To conclude our observations upon the social aspect of the nose, we might add that classical literature and art owe much to the nose as a theme of thought and discussion, and even the stage is indebted to the nose for some of the most attractive plays, a notable example of which is "Cyrano de Bergerac." Greek art especially sculpture owes much of its beauty, attractiveness and individuality to the nose and the best are preserved in marble.

SNOWDEN TWITTED MIXED CHAIRMAN

British Statesman's Memoirs Recall Incidents of His Temperance Campaigns.

LONDON, Nov. 1. —(C.P.)— How the late Lord Aberdare, chairman of a brewery company, and not a "teetotaller," acted as chairman of a temperance demonstration at Cardiff, and at which Lord Snowden was chief speaker some years ago, is told in the second volume of the latter's memoirs, recently published. Incidentally Lord Snowden recalls with some amusement he was introduced as Rev. Philip Snowden, and tells how he turned the tables on his Lordship.

"It was a great meeting in one of the largest churches in the city which was crowded and enthusiastic," says Lord Snowden. "The chair was occupied by the late Lord Aberdare, who, in his speech, expressed surprise that he should have been invited to preside at a temperance meeting. 'As a matter of fact,' he said, 'I had a bottle of wine before I came to this meeting.'

"Among my fellow-speakers at this meeting was the present Bishop of London," the story continues. "He spoke before me, and the argument of his speech was the effect which even a small dose of alcohol had in confusing the mental faculties. When the Bishop sat down, the chairman called upon 'The Rev. Philip Snowden' to speak. I began by saying that we had not had long to wait for a practical illustration of the truth of the Bishop's arguments. The audience were quick to seize upon this point, and there was prolonged laughter at the chairman's expense, which I am afraid he did not altogether like.

"After the meeting Lord Aberdare said that he thought I had been a little too hard upon him, but it was impossible for me to resist the temptation to draw the connection beween the chairman's bottle of wine and his description of me as 'Reverend'."

NAMES MUST APPEAR.

With rumors of a local option fight in the offing, The Examiner is already on the receiving end of a number of letters, and it is obvious, even at this early stage, that if we do not adopt the usual precaution of insisting that the names of the writers must be published in the case of the communications on this subject our space would be swamped.

This is the principle The Examiner has followed for years in connection with political issues and controversial subjects, so that there can be no complaint if the same rule is put into force in regard to the beverage room question.

Henceforth, therefore, those who want to give publicity to their views on this subject, no matter from what angle, must do so over their own signature so far as The Examiner is concerned.

CAMPAIGN DESERVES TO SUCCEED.

The appeal of the Young Women's Christian Association this week for assistance to the extent of $2,500 to balance its budget is based on a splendid record of community service.

In the first place, the useful role played by the Y.W.C.A. is attested to by the fact that during the past year 4,200 girls have used the institution.

No fewer than 850 girls registered through the employment bureau maintained by the Y.W.C.A.; accommodation to the extent of $250 has been furnished unemployed girls; special courses have made possible more adequate training along various lines; and healthful recreation for every girl through clubs, gymnasium and swimming has been provided.

This is worth-while work indeed, and when it is realized that the Y.W.C.A., in spite of all the services it has been called upon to furnish, has been 92 per cent. self-sustaining, through its residence, camp, regular classes and other activities, during the year, there is every indication of good management and economical administration, giving the assurance that every cent donated will be carefully handled and used to the best possible advantage for the benefit of the girls of Peterborough.

Those citizens who are in a position to help can find no more worthy object for their generosity than this campaign, which seeks to have the community invest $2,500 in its girls.

It is an investment that will pay rich dividends, and there should be no doubt of Peterborough's reponse to the opportunity.

SENATOR BUCHANAN'S WARNING.

To those Liberals in Ontario who are harassing the Hepburn Government for jobs in the civil service comes a warning from that well-known Western Liberal, Senator W. A. Buchanan, editor and publisher of the Lethbridge Herald and one time resident of Peterborough.

Senator Buchanan's paper sees in the hunger displayed by followers of the new Government a grave menace to the Hepburn administration, and minces no words in telling those who are camping on the Premier's trail that they may succeed in wrecking the Government.

Says the Herald:

"Allow Mr. Hepburn to carry out his promises as to economies in administration and he may survive another general election, but if he starts firing Tories left and right and replacing them with Liberals the Conservatives who supported him will wander back to the fold, declaring that the Liberals are no better than their own crowd. Always remember it was Conservatives who put Hepburn in power and they can turn him out just as readily."

That is straight-from-the-shoulder advice from a veteran Liberal to whom the political wars are an old story, and it should be heeded by those who are trying to convince the Premier that it is his duty to clean out the whole civil service and fill the vacancies by appointing his own supporters.

The big parade will make a hit with the electors just so long as it is confined to supernumeraries whose services are not needed; if it is extended to take in other civil servants the reaction is likely to be exactly what Senator Buchanan's paper has pointed out.

TALKING TOO MUCH.

That the Ontario Government has found it necessary to warn J. F. Marsh, its newly appointed Deputy Minister of Labor, against "talking too much" will not surprise those who have read some of Mr. Marsh's utterances.

It begins to look as if his selection for this important appointment cannot be listed among the most brilliant moves made by the Government, for labor was not very enthusiastic over the choice in the first place and manufacturers have resented the speeches he has been making and the thinly veiled threats that have featured some of his public statements.

Premier Hepburn's remark that "it is not the function of a deputy minister to forecast legislation," is a plain intimation from the head of the Government that Mr. Marsh's injudicious talk has thrown a monkey-wrench into the whole code scheme that was about to be launched.

Obviously if the plan is to have a chance to succeed there must be co-operation between employers and employee, and the necessary atmosphere of goodwill is an impossibility with a deputy minister declaring that such a Red organization as the Workers' Unity League must be given the same recognition as the trades unions, and suggesting that the Government is prepared to "crack down" on employers who fail to fall in line.

Whether these utterances of Mr. Marsh had the support of Hon. A. W. Roebuck is not quite certain, but the report that the Labor portfolio is to be shifted from the Attorney-General to the shoulders of Hon. David Croll would seem to indicate that the Deputy Minister was merely reflecting the views of his chief.

The official explanation of the change is that the Attorney-General has been overworked, but seeing that Mr. Croll is already responsible for the administration both of the welfare department and municipal affairs, this seems to be an explanation that does not explain.

SOUNDS LIKE GOOD PLAN.

A few days ago Hon. David A. Croll, Ontario Minister of Public Welfare, laid down the principle that it was the responsibility of municipalities to provide furniture and household necessities to families on relief, and the Minister suggested that funds be raised by private subscriptions for this purpose.

In this connection it is interesting to note that in the neighboring city of Oshawa, where relief lists have been abnormally large, the Public Welfare Board has been successfully handling this problem for some time, and it has not been found necessary to raise a fund to finance the work.

The Oshawa Times explains that the plan followed in that city has been to salvage from homes articles that have outlived their usefulness to their owners, recondition them and then distribute to families in need.

This has been, we are told, a very effective and a very inexpensive system, for the actual cost to the Welfare Board during the first twelve months of operation was, according to the report of the manager, only $3.90. Citizens of Oshawa co-operated splendidly, donating their used furniture and dishes, cooking utensils, etc., to the board, and the need has been met in this way without having to call upon the public for subscriptions or to meet the cost out of the public treasury.

Other communities, faced with this problem, could do worse than to investigate the Oshawa plan, which has been found to be entirely successful in the Motor City and could undoubtedly be drafted effectively by Ontario cities in general. The Oshawa paper suggests that the Minister of Welfare should familiarize himself with the details of the scheme and pass the information on to the municipalities.

HE HAD NOTHING TO GAIN.

From "Our Empire" (London).

The truth of the following amusing—and at the same time illuminating—story of the recent monster anti-Fascist demonstration in Hyde Park is vouched for by a reliable authority who overheard the conversation:

He was a great big fellow—a fine figure of a man—whose past military training was quite obvious in his bearing and stride. By some means he had filtered into the ranks of the discontented, and because of his imposing appearance, he was given the coveted post of carrying the Red Flag itself.

On the Sunday in question he had marched all the way from Bethnal Green to Hyde Park. On arrival at the park—dusty and tired—he said (during a momentary halt of the column) to the man on his right: "What the blazes is this 'ere Communism, anyway?" To which his companion replied: "Well, 't's like this 'ere. If all the money of these rich blokes in the world was taken and divided up amongst us workers, we would each have £19 ds. 1d.—see?"

"Oh," said the standard bearer, "that's no blankety-good to me. I've got twenty-nine quid in the Post Office myself."

And with that he cast the Red Flag aside and disappeared in the crowd!

THE LANGUAGE OF GRUNTS.

When Cecil B. De Mille, motion picture director says that there may soon be no recognizable English spoken in the United States and that people, like Indians, will instead converse in grunts, he is making a criticism which is almost equally applicable to speech in this country.

Everything that Mr. De Mille says about slovenly speech in the United States might also be said about speech on this side of the border, where it has become a rarity to hear conversations being carried on with proper regard for articulation and pronunciation.

In an age marked by short cuts in almost every direction, we are becoming careless in regard to our speech and inevitably such carelessness on the part of adults is reflected in corresponding carelessness on the part of juveniles.

Children are scarcely to be blamed for failing to appreciate and practise the niceties of pronunciation when they are surrounded by older people—even some of their instructors—who persist in murdering the King's English almost every time that they open their mouths.

There is scarcely anything which betrays faulty environment to a greater extent than incorrect, butchered speech. It is nearly always possible to judge the early surroundings of individuals from the manner in which they express themselves. If, therefore, speech is to be improved, as there is every indication that it needs to be improved, the time in which to begin this work is in childhood. Surround a child by people who use English properly and he will rarely forget it in later life, no matter what the circumstances in which he may be placed.

People who are anxious that their children should speak properly should guard their own speech religiously and make every effort to see that the teachers in whose hands they are placed are also guiltless of barbarisms and the grunts that are beginning to pass for language nowadays.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

In rugby the man who makes the hole in the line is rarely mentioned, the ball-carrier getting all the praise. It is different in politics, and thus Earl Hutchinson, the Labor member who resigned to give Hon. Peter Heenan a seat, gets a $6,000 a year job with the Workmen's Compensation Board.

It is pointed out that Mr. Steyans' reply to Mr. Bennett "fairly sizzled." And so we imagine did the Prime Minister when he read it.

Now, if that policy of having the province assume all the cost of highway construction and maintenance had only been in force a few years ago, municipal tax bills would have really benefited.

Let us hope that Chief Justice Latchford and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen do not start to write "open" letters to each other.

Mr. Hepburn says that he is going to have a "much-needed" holiday in December. By this time the provincial Premier has some idea of the magnitude of the task of Prime Minister Bennett, who has been going at full speed for over four years without a real vacation.

A sports writer says there are 300 kinds of games played with balls. There are more than that many kinds played with golf balls alone.—Washington Post.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

HAWKESBURY, ONTARIO

This town was founded between the years 1790 and 1800 and first was known as Headport. No trace for the choice of this name ever has been found and residents can only ascribe it to the fact that the town is situated at the head of the Long Sault rapids, made famous by Dollard Des Ormeaux and a small band of Frenchmen and Indians, who held off the Iroquois and prevented massacre of the Montreal garrison.

The present town was incorporated in 1896, from the village of Hawkesbury, which name presumably was chosen for Lord Hawkesbury, a member of the British changed to Adamsville, in honor Napoleonic war.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

LAZY BONES!

Sit up straight, take your feet off that desk. Throw that cigarette away, square yourself before that typewriter, before tha desk, before that job!

Stop your mooning, cease your glooming, get to work. No use moaning, no use groaning, do your stuff.

Shame on you! That's no way to spend your life, even ten minutes of it. Pitying yourself, being sorry for the world, agonizing over things that can't be helped, ain't no way to live.

If you're going to loaf, then LOAF. . . . Sit and dream. Stare at a flower. Admire a humming bird. Take a sun bath. Read a bit. Mess around happy. And have a good time, fellow, but don't sit there grouching over the state of the world, all the troubles that rest upon your shoulders, all the misery that's coming your way.

Sure enough, things are tough. The world's in a mess and maybe life's getting to be a desperate trouble and the pessimists may be more right than they know. . . . But it can't do you or anybody else any good, just sitting there, with your eyelids drawn down and lines in your face and a sour look about you and a droop to your shoulders, just sunk to your eyebrows in miseries.

That's just lying down. That's giving up. That's being lower than a bug under a rock. . . . And you can't do yourself any good that way.

You got to do something. You got to change your ways, think different, wake up, do some acting. Maybe you decided that the thing you've been doing isn't getting you anywhere; then you got to do something else. You got to get a better grip on yourself, find another direction. . . . You got such a little time to live and you can't be spending it this way. Living like this isn't really SPENDING at all, if you come down to that. It's just throwing yourself away, pouring yourself down the drain pipe, wasting your powers.

You haven't any "powers?" Sure you have! That's the trouble. You don't know who you are. Don't know what you can do. Never did get acquainted with yourself. Never will get acquainted at all, if you just sit there on the end of your spine and moon and moon—and if you know what's good for you, you'll sit up straight and act alive. You lazy bones!

A Thought

VIOLENCE

Violence may constrain the outer shell and form of things. It can win the acquiescence of fools and the applause of parasites. It can kill those who dispute its commands. But it cannot make truth into falsehood, or falsehood into truth.—A. Froude.

Farmers in the vicinity of Mareuil-sur-Lay, France, are fighting a plague of foxes, the animals having been made so bold by hunger that they invade farmyards in broad daylight.

Popular Astronomy

Brilliant Autumn Star Groups

BY H. W. L. MAHOOD

On a clear Autumn evening as the afterglo vanishes and the night shadows deepen, the stars are brilliant. No diamond gleams as they. Even the fourth dimension stars glow with a light, that travels far, to light up our human path. Our electric lights, however powerful, are dim in their presence. Electric light travels short paths only. But the star light is a beacon for millions of miles. It falls not on the few, only, but on multitudes. The man-developed lights, cost. But the light that falls by day and by night costs us not even a thought. Every time we look up, we ought, if we are appreciative, remember the Creator of them all.

On the meridian, and on the apparent path of the Sun, and to the south find Aquarius, the Water Bearer. Stand looking directly south. You will have no difficulty in locating the constellation. If you have ever seen old country Germany folks carrying water you will quickl pick out Aquarius. There is the yoke, and the water pail, hanging from each shoulder. As this is written, a picture of an old German at Lakelet, Huron county, leaps up in my imagination. The old lady was carrying two pails of water hanging from a yoke fitted to her shoulders. The ease with which she bore the burden and the quick step with which she moved will never be erased from my memory. But we are writing of Autumn constellations. Strange the temptation to take a by-path.

As you stand looking south, turn your eyes to the east, just a little then peer into the south, near the horizon; there you will find the brightest star in the Piscis Australis constellation. The name of the star is Fomalhaut.

The star is of a reddish color and has for a companion a dull blue star. Fomalhaut is a very distant star. Twenty-three and a half light years are required for a ray of its light to reach our eye. Think of that. If you are fortunate to discover it one of these clear nights, you will be delighted.

THE SWEET SINGER OF QUEBEC

On this date, eighty years ago (November 1, 1854), there was born to Joseph Lajeunnesse, of Chambly, Que., a daughter to whom was given the names Maria Louise Cecilia Emma, and who was destined to become one of the world's greatest vocalists. She early showed signs of musical talent and as her parents, like most of their race, made sacrifices in order that their children might have a good education, she was sent to the famous Sacred Heart convent at Montreal where her talent was soon recognized. At the age of 15 she was the organist of the Church of the Sacred Heart, New York, and there the training of her soprano voice was really begun, although her first teacher was at Albany, N. Y., from which she took her nom de theatre Albani. She went to Europe and made her debut at Messina, Italy, in 1870. Then she sang at Florence and Malta and in 1872 made her first appearance in London at Covent Garden Theatre in "La Somnambula." She was a great success and for over 20 years was one of the stars of the operatic stage and sang at many of the great English festivals in oratoria. Several world tours made this child of a humble Quebec home internationally loved, while in her own province when she came home her receptions were like those of royalty.

Married in 1878 to Ernest Gye, her manager, she gave a living denial to the theory that it is impossible for a great artiste to be domesticated, for she was a good wife and mother without detracting from her reputation as the idol of the musical world of the empire. Always ready to give a helping hand to young talent, Albani was in her later days godmother to many famous musicians. In 1928 the King conferred upon her the Order of the British Empire so that when she died, April 3, 1930, it was as Dame Albani, who never forgot her ancestral cottage or failed to advertise her beloved Canada.

OCTOBER DIVIDENDS HIGHER REVEALED AT TORONTO MARKET

Payments by 76 Companies Total $10,752,553, an Increase Over Last Year.

ADDED BONUSES.

Dividends distributed during October by Canadian corporations listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange, as shown in the current monthly Bulletin, record an increase of more than a million and a half dollars paid to shareholders as compared with the corresponding period of 1933.

October dividends were declared by 76 companies, totalling $10,752,553, bringing payments for the year to listed companies of $119,496,157. This figure is also an increase over the $94,241,509 shown in October of last year.

Net increase of the month was primarily due to the added bonuses and increased dividends disbursed by some 15 companies, which more than offset the reduced payments of several of the utilities and financial institutions.

Four of the gold mines, accounting for $1,277,588, were the largest contributors to the October increase. Of these Wright Hargreaves, stepping up the dividend from 5 to 15 cents, was responsible for $553,000. Hollinger, which amplified the regular amount with a bonus of 10 cents a share, added $492,000. Bralorne's 15 cents declared this year, netted $150,000, and Pioneer's increase to 20 cents, for $82,588.

Industrial companies showing advances over the same month of 1933, were: Canada Canners 2nd preferred from 5 to 7½ cents; Dominion Textiles from $1 to $1.25, and Goodyear Common from 60 cents to $1.25; additional payments by Weston's Biscuits and Brewing Corporation Preferred on new shares; resumption of 25 cents dividend by Bruck Silk together with payments on arrears by Riverside Silk, Canadian Wirebound Box, Marcus Loews and National Grocers, while Crow's Nest Coal paid $2 this October.

Of the 76 companies, largest dividend amount disbursed, was by Montreal Power with $1,660,927, Bell Telephone's $1,156,230 being second, followed by Wright-Hargreaves' $825,000, Hollingers' $738,000 and British American Oil's $524,529.

Classed according to groups, the following amounts were disbursed by companies listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange:

Utilities	$3,711,938
Mines	2,814,271
Finance	1,041,784
Miscellaneous	1,029,279
Oils	735,674
Liquors	520,552
Foods	469,775
Steels	429,280
	$10,752,553

SPLENDID ATTENDANCE SHOWN IN SUNDAY SCHOOL REPORTS

Annual Convention of Religious Educational Council Held at Bethel.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, November 1.—The annual convention of the Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Township Religious Education Council, afternoon and evening session, was held in Carmel United Church on Thursday, Oct. 25th, and was well attended at both sessions, delegates being present from nearly all of the fifteen Sunday schools in the association.

The afternoon session was opened by a worship period conducted by Rev. E. W. Rowland, followed by an address of welcome from the Superintendent of Carmel Sunday school, Joseph Grills.

The President, G. C. Craven, then took charge, and after outlining the work of the R.E.C., called on the Department Superintendents for their reports. All reported except two.

The report of Mrs. H. Mumby, Secretary-Treasurer, showed two schools, St. Paul's United, Stirling, and Bethel United to be 105 per cent. Other schools were 96, 95, 90, etc. The average was very encouraging and indicated splendid work having been done during the past year.

Mr. F. Hulin reported for the Library Committee after which a splendid round table conference was held, conducted by Rev. H. B. Neal, Provincial Representative.

After the appointment of committees the afternoon session was closed with prayer by Rev. H. W. Foley.

A wonderful supper was served in the dining hall by the ladies of Carmel church, and a real social hour was spent.

The evening session was opened by Rev. H. W. Foley, devotional exercises, after which President G. C. Craven, asked for the report of the nominating committee, which was as follows:

J. F. Baker, Hon. President.
G. C. Craven, President.
William Johnston, 1st Vice-President.
W. J. Cottrell, 2nd Vice-President.
Mrs. Hiram Mumby, Secretary-Treasurer.

Department Superintendents: — Children's Work, Miss K. McComb; Boys' Work, Mr. F. Jeffs; Girls' Work, Miss Lulu Johnson; Young Peoples', Mrs. Thomas McMullen; Adult Division, Rev. H. W. Foley; Dept. Home Religion, Mrs. W. G. Swayne; Teacher Training Committee, Rev. F. G. Jobiln and Rev. J A Koffend; Missionary, Mrs. W. J. Sharpe; Temperance Dept., Mr. Ernest Searles.

The banner was won by St. Paul's United S. S. of Stirling, and the President asked J. F. Baker, county secretary, to present same. In handing the banner to Mr. F. Hulin, the Superintendent of the banner school, the county secretary complimented Mr. Hulin and the officers and teachers upon their high standing and expressed the hope that in this school, and all those in the Association, all Departments should be live organizations. He also explained that St. Paul's were awarded the banner by virtue of being a 105 per cent, and in addition have given to the missions during the past year $190.50, and have carried on both C.G.I.T. and C.S.E.T. work.

It was decided to hold the next convention in Stirling, the executive committee to arrange in which church.

The resolutions committee report was read by Mr. F. Hulin and contained the following resolutions.

"A hearty vote of thanks to the pastor and officers of Carmel church, those who assisted with the music, those who prepared the supper, the donor of the beautiful flowers, Rev. H. B. Neal, Provincial representative, Mrs. H. Mumby, Secretary-Treasurer, and G. C. Craven, President."

The committee also view with alarm the increasing consumption of beer and wine, and express their emphatic disapproval of this legislation.

The report on Leadership Training was given by Rev. F. G. Joblin. This committee recommend a training school to be held at Stirling this coming year.

During the evening session a vocal solo by Miss Nina Carlisle and a piano duet by Mrs. E. W Rowland and Mrs A Pyear, were much appreciated.

The address of the Provincial Representative, Rev. H. B. Neal was an inspiration to all. He touched upon many phases of Sunday school work in a masterly way, and admonished the Sunday School teacher to carry on, even though tempted to be discouraged.

At the close of the evening session it was decided to have a meeting of the Executive the following Thursday for organization purposes.

FUTURES HOLD TODAY'S GAINS

Boisterous Affair as First Session of Pegged Wheat Prices Gets Under Way.

1 3-4 CENT ADVANCES.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1.—(C.P.)—The first session of "pegged" wheat prices was a boisterous affair on the Winnipeg grain exchange to-day as wheat futures prices advanced strongly to score net gains of 1¾ cents.

The market was strong from the opening, when 1¼ cent gains were marked up and futures at the finish retained most of the day's advances. The October option closed at 76⅝ cents, relinquishing ¼ cent of its full two-cent gain, and May at 81⅝ cents.

Acting on a suggestion from the Dominion Government, the Exchange Council last night set minimum levels below which wheat prices could not go. The December future was "pegged" at 75 cents, yesterday's close, and May at 80 cents, ¼ cent higher than its previous finish.

INDUSTRIALS FIRM IN LOW EBB TRADE

Toronto Market Opens New Month With Slow Session—Leaders Down Narrowly.

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (C.P.) — A drab industrial share market opened the new month on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Trading was at decidedly low ebb, but the price level was generally firm.

Distillery stocks, the bright spot in Wednesday's market, were less firm to-day, the leaders recording narrow recessions. Brewery and oil stocks closed higher on good demand.

Arms Parley Date Left To Henderson

LONDON, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Disarmament conference leaders today considered postponement of the conference until late in the year or next year, but failed to reach any decision and left the matter in the hands of Arthur Henderson, president.

While there was considerable difference of opinion it was understood the date for resuming the conference may be determined as soon as it is known when Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France can take up his country's efforts to push the Eastern Locarno matter which has been temporarily inactive because of Cabinet changes.

Sir John Simon, Capt. Anthony Eden; Joseph A. C. Avenol, M. A. Aghnides, the two United States representatives and Henderson attended the meeting.

Lower Prices Seen In Secondary Golds

TORONTO, Nov. 1. (CP).—The mining market had another day of moderate declines with trade showing only in spots. Some of the secondary gold shares were again subjected to attack and lower prices were recorded for the majority of them including Gunnar Gold, God's Lake, San Antonio, McKenzie and Pickle Crow. Mild recessions appeared also in the silver and base metal groups.

MORE LABOR DEMANDS MADE ON A. AND P. STORES

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 1 (A.P.).—More union labor demands on the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company appeared imminent today even while more than 2,000 employees waited hopefully for the reopening of 300 stores owned by the company in greater Cleveland.

Officers of the grocery chain stores executives and employees' association announced moves for increased wages and better working conditions would spread throughout "the east."

First to be approached in the matter of wages and working conditions will be the James Butler Grocery Company, operating 665 stores in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

ONTARIO HOG PRICES.

TORONTO, November 1 (C.P.).—Losses of 15 cents were registered at Hull, Quebec, Stratford, Kitchener, and Brantford, while Barrie dropped 25 cents. The range remained at 35 cents with the low of $7.25 at Stratford, Barrie, and Kitchener, and the top of $7.60 at Hull. Other prices were: Peterborough $7.50, Brantford $7.35.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, November 1 (A.P.).—An easy tone developed in the stock market to-day following initial steadiness. Volume increased slightly on the reaction. Pennick & Ford dipped about 2 points. American Telephone and Consolidated Gas yielded around a point each. U.S. Steel, General Motors, and Standard Oil of New Jersey were off moderately. Borden was firm.

Transfers approximated 550,000 shares.

NO LOCAL VENDORS HAVE BEEN CUT OFF BY BOARD

While reports of license renewals were still lacking from two hotels when an inquiry was made this afternoon, no local vendors of beer and wine are to be cut off, Louis M. Brooks, manager of the Brewers' Warehouse, revealed this afternoon. Three renewals arrived in the city yesterday, two more this morning, and it was hoped that the remaining two would arrive within a few hours

With no orders to cut off beer supplies to any of the hotels on hand at the Warehouse, business in the city's seven beverage rooms continued uninterrupted. Mr. Brooks said he had no knowledge of the Commission's intention with regard to the granting of renewals, but that he would be notified immediately if any vendor was to be cut off.

TIP FOR THE MISSISSIPPI.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Secretary of War George Hardern said in an address here that continued opposition of the Lower Mississippi Valley to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway treaty with Canada might result in withdrawal of some Federal support for flood control.

"I have been told that the St. Lawrence seaway was a delicate topic to discuss down here," the United States Secretary said last night at a banquet given in his honor.

PHOTO FROM 12 MILES UP SHOWS EARTH AS WARPED CHECKERBOARD

Snapped During Ill-fated National Geographic-Army Stratosphere Flight.

COVERS 16 SQUARE MILES.

(By F. B. Colton).

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—The rarest of photographs—a picture that looks something like an old warped checkerboard—has just been developed at the National Geographic Society.

It is a bit of mother earth, as photographed from the record height of almost 12 miles. It was snapped 61,800 feet above the ground by Captain Albert W. Stevens during the ill-fated stratosphere flight of the National Geographic-Army Air Corps balloon "Explorer."

Except for the checkerboard lines, the picture would resemble a relief map of a schoolboy's geography. Square outlines of farms and fields give the checkerboard effect.

The picture shows a section of Nebraska about 16 miles square, over which the balloon was soaring when the bag ripped and started the fast descent that forced Captain Stevens and Major Kepner to jump for their lives.

Small hills and ridges appear like ripples on the surface of a pool or like an astronomer's photograph of the moon; edges of the picture are fogged because the film was partially exposed to light when the gondola crashed.

This photograph and others taken at lower levels, should help scientists make a more accurate adjustment of barographs, instruments that measure altitude.

The barograph works by responding to the decreasing pressure of the atmosphere as the craft rises. But at high altitude it does not register so accurately as could be desired. There is nothing against which readings can be checked.

By comparing the length of an object in the picture with its actual length, the exact height of the balloon can be figured. The focal length, or distance from focus to lens of the camera, also enters this calculation.

A Cure?

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 1 (CP)—Mayor William N. McNair has a unique plan of disposing of husbands arrested on their wives' complaints.

James Turnbaugh, 40, was charged by his estranged wife with annoying her.

"Five days," said the Mayor.

"Make it 60 days," urged Mrs. Turnbaugh.

"You don't know where I am sentencing him," the Mayor replied, adding:

"I'm sentencing him to live with you for five days."

"Do you call that justice?" the woman demanded.

"It's the law," the Mayor said, and Mrs. Turnbaugh, her husband following, left the courtroom, declaring she would refuse to admit her husband to her home.

LANSDOWNE ST. JOB EXTENDING

Grading and Widening of "Cut Off" Between Two Highways.

TO GRAVEL HILL.

Grading and widening of Lansdowne Street is being carried eastward by the Law Construction Company beyond Monaghan Road and the C.N.R. This part of the improvement undertaken by the Ontario Government as a cut-off from No. 7 Highway at the Locks Bridge to the Peterborough-Port Hope Highway.

On the property occupied by S. Rendell at the south-east corner of Monaghan Road and Lansdowne Street the bank of the railway is being reduced. The earth is being drawn away, and is being used as filling on the road and incidentally this detail will lessen the danger to traffic at this railway crossing on Lansdowne Street.

The roadgis being widened by the grading, and some of the employees are within one hundred and fifty yards of Park Street corner.

The major operation on this road has been the big cut and grade reduction at Forster's Hill. This job is almost completed. It remains to be gravelled, and this finish will be put on within the coming week. Some doubt has been expressed about the drainage of a new "V" formed on the south side of the highway at the turn toward the C.P.R. past Archie Patterson's farm, but it is presumed that the supervising engineers are satisfied.

YOUTH SUICIDES IN BACK SEAT OF BROTHER'S CAR

en a previous hint of his intention to suicide. On Wednesday he asked his brother, "What is the best way to commit suicide, by cutting an artery or using a rifle?" it is reported. The brother jokingly replied, "Use a rifle."

Smith was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith of Deloro, and leaves brothers and sisters. He was unmarried and was employed at different times in the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company. The body was taken to Deloro.

WORLD ARMS PROBE?

LONDON, Nov. 1 (C.P.-Havas).—Possibility of a world inquiry into the private manufacture and sale of war materials seemed likely, following the announcement to-day by Arthur Henderson, president of the disarmament conference, that the steering committee of the conference would meet in Geneva Nov. 20.

Cupid Continues To Be Active Here

Cupid is still more active in the city as disclosed by the vital statistics made public today at the City Clerk's office.

During October there were 23 weddings. This is the most weddings here in any October since 1928 when there were 25. In October last year there were 15 marriages.

Births also hit a new high mark with a total of 60. This is the highest number in October since 1930 when there were 61 visits by the stork. In October last year births totalled 43.

There were 35 deaths during the month, twelve more than in the same month last year.

JUDGE PAINTS

onus is on the Crown to prove he was the murderer beyond any reasonable doubt. If you have that reasonable doubt then you will bring in a verdict of "not guilty." You must not allow your sympathy to interfere with your duty.

"Who committed that murder? The defence suggests it was someone besides Leffler. The Crown maintains Leffler had spent two hours at the barn, during which he might have committed the murder. They were together during that time and Leffler had an opportunity to commit the crime."

"Wearing his working clothes, is it likely Stroh was going any other place than to the barn? What was the boy doing that two hours between two and four when McEwen came along. They went into the house where all the household was present.

"Is that the whole story. It is a remarkably strange thing that someone could drive that horse and cutter with a dead body in it, without attracting attention of someone in the house, unless it was someone from the house itself. Would a stranger have gone to the trouble of washing blood from the floor, axe and cutter, partially hid the axe and buried bloody sacks. Above all would a stranger have hitched a strange horse risking discovery or would he have cut and run for it.

The Closest Evidence

"The fact of Leffler having human blood on the clothes, is the closest link connecting him with the murder. Where did he get that blood? The defence argues he may have got it on his boots by walking on the barn floor, but would he not have had it rubbed on rather shan spattered?

"No one else had blood on their clothes. Leffler had it on his smock, on his overalls. Where did the accused get those blood spots?

"Notwithstanding all this, I repeat, the onus is on the Crown to prove beyond all reasonable doubt that Leffler committed the murder.

"There may have been someone else implicated with accused That is not a defence; each is equally guilty of murder. With that I leave the matter with you."

Defense Summary

"You have a responsibility on your shoulders, gentlemen," said Campbell Grant, counsel for the defenece, in opening his remarks to the jury, "and you must believe Earl Leffler is guilty of murder before you bring in your verdict of guilty.

"Has the Crown proved to each of you, beyond a shadow of doubt, that Earl Leffler murdered his grandfather".

Mr. Grant here hinted quite strongly that someone else must have had something to do with the murder. He pointed out the extreme uncertainty of all circumstantial evidence and submitted no one should be convicted, particularly in a murder case, on such evidence.

"There is an element of doubt in this case and now is the time to express that doubt," added Grant.

"We find," he continued, "that Stroh was killed in a small area in the barn, that one knuckle was scraped, that both eyes were swollen, all pointing to a fight. His clothes were badly torn. He weighed 90 pounds and yet look at Earl Leffler and ask yourselfs could he have done it."

The evidence points to a terrific struggle, and there is every doubt that murder was committed. It seems very probably that he was killed by someone in self defence.

"You are the sole judges, gentlemen of the jury, but you have every reason to doubt that Earl Leffler was the murderer."

South-end Youths Set Upon Barber

Despite the fact that it was the morning after Hallowe'en, there were no cases in Magistrate Langley's Court to-day.

A barber in the South-end suburb of the city appeared in court to complain about the activities of a group of youths, but he refused to lay an information against them. He stated that the youths were raising a rumpus about his shop last night and annoying him. He ran out to chase them, and one youth, in his hurry to escape, left a bicycle on the sidewa'k. The barber said he picked up the bicycle and was taking it into his shop, when the youths reappeared. One demanded the return of the bicycle, and then proceeded to slap the barber's face. "I gave up the bicycle," the barber told the Court.

He said that he would not lay an information against the young men, because "if I did, it would only be worse next year."

King Edward Park Face Lifting Job

Board of Works employees have been trucking loads of top soil to King Edward Park this week, the first step in Alderman Sloan's plan for a general levelling and raising of the park surface. His recent motion at a meeting of the Board urged that the job be laid down for completion this fall, but because of limited funds for additional work this year the Park job for this season has been restricted to approximately one hundred truck loads. Ald. Sloan was satisfied with that beginning and the promise of further work next year.

BENNETT AND HEPBURN KNOWN TO SOME TORONTO STUDENTS

Fewer in Third Class Know Their Sports Than Those in London.

SOME ODD ANSWERS.

TORONTO, Nov. 1. (CP). — Two Toronto senior third public school classes yesterday claimed marked superiority over similar bodies in London, Ont., when several students correctly identified Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario.

Major R. J. Blaney of Wilkinson Public school said 15 of of 33 pupils in the senior third grade of his school knew R. B. Bennett was Prime Minister of Canada and that 23 of the same group could identify Premier Hepburn. Twelve others had heard of Mr. Bennett but could not describe his office and two appeared never to have heard of him.

Ten students did not know who Mr. Hepburn is.

Seven knew "Dizzy" Dean was a baseball player, five knew he played for St. Louis Cardinals, but the remaining pupils had not heard of him.

In a north Toronto public school 12 third grade pupils correctly identified Mr. Bennett, five described him merely as Premier, one as "Governor of Ontario," two as Prime Minister of Ontario, one as "secretary" of Ontario and one "President of Canada".

Fifteen identified Mr. Hepburn and 12 could not guess who he was. Four named him "Premier of Canada." One said "Conservetive of Canada."

Fourteen knew Dean was a baseball player, one thought he was "coach of the Maple Leafs" and one described him as a "wrestler."

Salmon Fishing Film Being Brought Here

Under auspices of Peterborough Fish and Game Association, a free program of an instructive and educational nature is to be presented to the general public in the Collegiate Auditorium on Monday evening next.

The program, which will have wide appeal for all lovers of the great outdoors, will feature a series of films to be presented by William Lang, ex-president Toronto Anglers' Association, and Tom Jull, his sporting colleague. The main picture in the series is entitled, "Salmon Fishing in Newfoundland," made by Messrs. Lang and Jull while on a trip to Newfoundland during the past summer.

Not only is the film unique from the natural history standpoint, but it also combines shots of wonderful scenic beauty with excellent photography. It includes some remarkable shots also, of salmon battling their way upstream against the strong current and leaping the waterfalls encountered en route.

WHITE HOUSE IN NEW HANDS

Wes Champ, Regina, New Lessee—Wally Appleyard, Galt, Manager.

DEAL CLOSED TO-DAY.

The White House changed hands to-day.

Under terms of the transfer, Wesley Champ, owner of the Champlain Hotel, Regina, and prominent figure in the world of sport, has leased the property here for one year, with an option to purchase.

With the conclusion of negotiations that have been under way for several weeks Walter "Wally" Appleyard of Galt has taken over the management of the hotel on behalf of the lessee.

The deal—one of the largest real estate transactions in the city in recent months, marks the retirement of Gus White, later owner-proprietor of the hotel. The White House, regarded as a high-class commercial establishment, was founded by Mr. White's father almost half a cenury ago, and has been in the continuous possession of the family until to-day.

Mr. Appleyard, who arrived here this morning to take over the management, has a lifetime experience in the hotel business behind him, which has included management of the Iroquois Hotels in Toronto and Galt.

While no definite plans are yet announced, it is the purpose of the lessee to improve the hotel along modern lines and to install a beverage room. Announcement as to alterations to modernize the hotel, may be expected, it is said, within the course of a few weeks.

Asked if he had applied for a beverage room license, Mr Appleyard replied that while he had not yet made application, he had secured the forms and expected to make application to the Liquor Control Board without delay.

He was also intendeing, he intimated to engage an architect to draw up plans for alterations to the premises.

In the event of Mr. Champ exercising his option to purchase the hotel at the end of the twelve-month period, it was intimated that enlargement of the hotel on an ambitious scale would be undertaken, adding considerably to its present capacity of 26 rooms.

Mr. Champ, it is interesting to note, was former owner of the Chicago Black Hawks, and is a power in the Western Canada sport world.

Democrats Turn Guns On Sinclair

(By Cecil B. Dickson)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—High Democratic leaders of United States sought to-day to counteract any effects the now famous Farley-Sinclair mixup may have on the New York State Gubernatorial election.

Some of the leaders were concerned over reports that certain foes of Governor Herbert H. Lehman are making headway by telling Catholic, Jewish and Protestant voters that National Chairman James A. Farley really endorsed Upton Sinclair and that Sinclair is again all religion.

Though expressing confidence that Lehman, a close friend of President Roosevelt, would win out in the furious campaign with Robert Moses, embattled Republican candidate, Democratic chieftains are believed to be planning special efforts to convince the voters that neither Chairman Farley onr President Roosevelt has endorsed the former Socialist who seeks the California governorship.

Look Over Road

Mr. Hawthorne reports that the Hon. T. B. McQuesten may come to Lakefield next week to look over the road between Lakefield and Burleigh Falls, and also the road on the east side of the river between Peterborough and Lakefield. It has been suggested that the government might find it possible to extend the presen pavement through Lakefield, and because of the disrepair of the east road to Lakefield caused by the diversion of traffic during the last two months the department will be asked to make a grant for the improvement of the scenic route.

The visit of Hon. Mr. McQuesten, it is reported, will in no way conflict with the invitation which has been extended to him by the County Council, Peterborough and Lakefield to officiate at the formal opening of the new pavement.

Section Of Rail Fence Torn Down By Boys

A gang—presumed to be a gang of boys, not only switched several gates by transferring them from one property to another, but they went so far as to tear down a 12-foot section of rail fencing on some property adjacent to the highway.

The latter act of vandalism, as it was termed by the indignant owner, was the cause of a protest to The Examiner to-day.

"We don't mind them taking our gates down. They can be easily replaced again, but tearing down rail fences is going too far, and I wish you would give a reminder in the paper that such conduct is against the law," the complainant said.

She added that her "nice green-painted gate was removed and in its stead was hinged an old and warped gate that never saw a coat of paint since it was made."

YOUTHS INVADE TORONTO STORES

Gang of 50 Flee With Cakes, Candies, Cigarettes on Hallowe'en.

MEET ONE BATTLE.

TORONTO, November 1 (C.P.).—Although rain dampened the ardor of pranksters in many parts of Ontario, there were still enough youngsters with their false faces and weird costumes on the streets to worry the householder and merchant. The usual ring of the door bell and a plea for apples appeared, while the riotous ones indulged in pranks along the city streets, Toronto especially feeling the heavy hand of the jokers.

A gang of 50 or more, arrayed in false faces and parents' old clothes swarmed down the west-end streets of Toronto, charging into stores and looting the places of cakes, chocolates, and cigarettes as they screamed their triumph.

When they reached W R. Hoar's drug store a battle resulted as William O'Neill, manager, with the delivery boy and three other youths displayed resistance to the looting mob. Three or four boxes of candy were captured by the invaders, who also took along with them black eyes and cuts.

A real defensive was shown by O'Neill and his four stalwarts, and they knocked two of the attackers into the star-gazing sphere and loosened a number of teeth. Two officers appeared and the mob dispersed, but they left behind a looted bakery and covered the street with cakes and cookies.

Only half a dozen false alarms were recorded by the Fire Department and no serious injuries were reported to police

DAMAGES CLAIMED SCHOOL ACCIDENT

Son of G. Winstanley Has Fingers Crushed in Door—Campbellford Board Meets.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 1 (Examiner Correspondence).—At a meeting of the Board of Education held Monday night, a letter was read from G. Winstanley, stating that his son had been injured by having his fingers crushed by a door at the Public School, claiming damages. The letter was referred to Lewis Hay, agent for the insurance company.

A communication was received from Inspector A. A. Martin, stating that at the request of one of the members of the Board, he had written the Department of Education with reference to giving special attention to sub-normal children of the Public School.

The reply stated the department would send a representative here to look into the situation and give an estimate of the number of such children in the Public School and make recommendations without expense to the Board. In a motion of Dr. Watson and W. Henson, the secretary was asked to forward a request to the Department to send a man to investigate conditions here and report his findings to the Board. Dr. H. O. Richardson spoke of the great advantages of special training and teaching of sub-normal children, who were a drag on the other pupils. Reference was also made regarding a number of children not attending school, the reason being that they did not have the right clothes to wear. In view of this situation, a motion was carried that Truant Officer Armstrong report in person at each meeting of the Board.

A motion by Messrs. George O'Sullivan and William Cock was carried, instructing the secretary to forward a letter of condolence and sympathy to Ellis E. Darling, one of the members of the teaching staff, in his great loss in the death of his wife, which occurred in Kingston Hospital on Monday.

The chairman of the Internal Committee, George O'Sullivan, reported that during the absence of Mr. Darling, the services of Mr. Lewis of Toronto had been secured as a substitute. On motion, the action of the Internal Committee was ratified by the Board.

E. H. Greig, Principal of the High School, was given leave of absence on Wednesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Darling at Kingston.

Arrangement was made for sending a floral token of sympathy by members of the Board.

A communication from the Music Protective Association, regarding the use of music for concerts on which a license fee should be paid. The idea is to protect composers of music, as writers of plays are protected by royalties. Any piece of sheet music can be used in private, but cannot be used at a public entertainment where an admission fee is charged. The letter stated that in order to use this music a license would be required. The matter was referred to Principal Greig to report at the next meeting.

Some discussion arose over the lunches given at the Public School. Not having the necessary information with reference to grants for lunches and the required equipment, the Property Committee was instructed to obtain details from Inspector Martin on his next official visit. After passing the pay sheet, the Board adjourned.

Obituary

MRS. ELLIS E. DARLING.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 1 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—The funeral of Mrs. Ellis E. Darling, whose death occurred in Kingston General Hospital on Monday, took place from her brother's residence, Mr. Miller B. Donnelly, 428 Earle Street, Kingston, on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Darling whose maiden name was Harriett Helena Donnelly, was a native of Kingston, being the daughter of the late Captain John Donnelly, M.E., and Mrs. Donnelly, and was married to Mr. E. E. Darling, B.A., science teacher on the High School staff here, on June 27, 1933.

Among those who attended from Campbellford were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Greig, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Stuart, Mr. Ross Douglas, Mr. Purdy Petley. Interment was made in Cataraqui Cemetery.

GEORGE HIGGINSON.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 1 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Mr. James P. Archer received the sad news of the death of his brother-in-law, Mr. George Higginson, by accidental drowning on Sunday last near the village of Irma, Alberta. Mr. Higginson owned a farm about four miles from his home, and had left on Saturday to attend to some business there, expecting to be home for Sunday dinner. When he failed to return, Mrs. Higginson (nee Alice Archer) became alarmed and a search party was organized, with the result that her husband's body was found in an old well on the farm, the board covering of which had broken through.

Besides his widow, two daughters survive, Miss Elizabeth, nurse-in-training at Edmonton, and Miss Marion at home.

Small Girl Injured Knocked Down By Car

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov 1 (Examiner Correspondence). — Knocked down by a motor car at the west side of the traffic bridge, just before noon on Wednesday, a little girl, Ruth, about 7 years of age, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dalgleish, sustained severe cuts about the face and body bruises. The child was picked up by Mr. James Heptonstall and rushed to Dr. F. B. Brintnell's surgery, where after first aid she was driven to her home. Her condition is not serious.

Bad Weather Spoils Fun On Hallowe'en

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov 1 (Examiner Correspondence).—Snow, sleet and rain spoiled the small boys' fun on Hallowe'en, and it will go down as one of the most quiet celebrations in years. A masquerade dance at the Venetian Gardens helped to liven up the evening.

1933 WARDEN OF UNITED COUNTIES SEEKS ELECTION

stration of cheering, acknowledged the honor which had been conferred on him, and promised to put forth every effort to win the riding, which is now represented by Fred Bowen, M.P. He asked for the heartiest support of the men and women and the members of the Twentieth Century Club, stating that success depended upon complete organization and co-operation. Mr. Rickard is a farmer living on the outskirts of Newcastle.

Brief speeches by Mr. Duffus, Mr. Fraser, Mr. Bragg and Mr. Parliament preceded the address by W. H. Moore, chairman of the Tariff Board under the administration of the Mackenzie King administration.

Mr. Moore was received with prolonged applause as he followed Mr. Fraser's introduction. He said he was delighted with the encouraging sign of Liberal strength in Durham, and hoped that the convention was an indication of the political spirit of the people as they faced the forthcoming Federal elections.

Old Wine In New Bottle

Mr. Moore's address was an appraisal and survey of political ideas of today against brief glimpses of the background of history. His unquoted text might have been "there is nothing politically new beneath the sun", and one of his affirmations regarding such expedients and experiments as fascism, national socialism and their kind declared them to be nothing more than the old wine of force in the new bottle of democracy. He mildly advised his audience to read history and acquire political philosophy, and he amused them by his ironic allusions to the gliibness with which so many public men used the word democracy.

The enunciation of a policy for the times was not to be undertaken lightly by wise and prudent men, Mr. Moore remarked, and venturing into prophecy he added: "But if I were a prophet I should say that the political times are going to be even more strenuous than they have been."

"Recently we have seen indications of the breaking up of the old Conservative party. When I was in British Columbia a year ago we saw the disappearance of the Conservative party in that province. Old party lines are bound to disappear through new party lines.

People the world over today are found in three divisions of political thought. Some are not expressed in nomenclature or party labels, but the thought is there just the same. In their earlier days Lenin and Trotsky were leaders in what they called the Social Democratic party, but there was nothing democratic about them after they secured power in Russia."

Mr. Moore's three divisions of political thought were: state socialism, fascism, and economic liberalism.

The Supplying of Wants

We all have wants, Mr. Moore continued, and every person who is able to earn a living should be capable of supplying his wants. By what means are we to supply each other's wants? We may be driven to supply each other's wants or we may be attracted to supply each other's wants. That is all. Search through history and that is all you will find.

By the love of service we may be attracted to supply each other's wants. Mothers do that, for example, but it is not practical in the larger sphere of things where nations are concerned. The other element of attraction is the hope of profit, the giving of some service that will return a profit to the one who renders it.

The driving way in supplying each other's wants is essentially what is called the new economics, Mr. Moore said. Codes are laid out, and the farmer is required to supply so much produce that is wanted by others, and the bootmaker and hatmaker are bound to serve on conditions that are laid down. That is fascism as it has been put into practice in Italy.

Economic Liberalism

Driving orders by the masses is the other way as it is exemplified in Russia, and by economic liberalism men serve by attraction with a minimum of force.

"Go back into history a bit and see what this new idea of force means. We have heard little of it in Canada as compared with other nations, but I think I can say to you in all sincerity that if the Liberals lose the next elections this will be the last time you will ever hold a nominating convention."

Mr. Moore read a quotation from Professor Amoroso of Italy which he said was pertinent to the present day political trend: "This is the century in which dictators take charge. It is the century of authority. Our history is not the history of the masses; it is the history of men of genius, of men who lead the masses. We are living in a political era. That is why Liberalism has been left behind; Liberalism belongs to the past."

"If the policy advocated by the two wings of the Conservative party, Mr. Bennett on the one side and Mr. Stevens on the other, or by Mr. Woodsworth should prevail, the end is the end of democracy. It can be nothing else."

History Recalled

At the close of the sixteenth century, Mr. Moore continued, the nations of the world were passing through a period similar in many respects to today. Prices were fixed, wages were fixed, but there were signs of the beginning of revolt. The masses were led by so-called men of genius, and they were kept in order only by making the people believe that if the control was released chaos would result.

"We need only to refresh our memories of the American revolution which took place over a matter of monopoly. The issue was the freedom of trade, and the Americans won it. It then began to be realized in France and England that these people in America had freedom of trade, and yet they still lived, and they lived without centralized direction. It was a new idea."

Mr. Moore said he believed the revolution in France was primarily due to the innate desire of man to be free, and to assert his freedom.

"In England in 1840 they had a depression that was greater than any we have today. The Napoleonic wars had ravaged Europe. Debts had been piled up, new machinery had come into use, and men were thinking as we think today. They were asking, 'is it possible to go on with freedom?'

Carlyle's Pessimism.

Carlyle wrote: 'England is full of wealth, of multifarious produce, supply for human wants of every kind; yet England is dying of inanition'."

Mr. Moore quoted another opinion of that time: "All schemes of reform are far too late to prevent the tremendous evils which I have long seen gathering around us and for which I see no remedy. We are engulfed, I believe, and must inevitably go down the cataract."

"Carlyle said: 'Liberty I am told is a divine thing. Liberty when it becomes the Liberty to die of starvation is not so divine.' You have been told that by the C.C.F., and Mr. Stevens said as much when he declared some time ago that the economic structure was upside down.

The economic structure of this country was not upside down in 1926 when after an investigation of nineteen of the principal nations of the world Canada stood among the first. And since 1930 Mr. Stevens has been Minister of Trade and Commerce. He is going to be asked why our economic structure is upside down and who put it there."

Mr. Moore declared that our grandfathers had a choice of industrial regimentation as it was being attempted in the United States today, and, he said, as it was manifested in the Natural Products Marketing Act of the Bennett Government, but they held to the principle that men are not only economic animals but political also. They said: 'we want political freedom, we want votes; not for all the plumduff in Christendom will we give up our demand for votes, and they got them in 1840.

And then we had another seventy-five years of progress the like of which was never seen in all the centuries that had gone before. I wonder if you ever think of that, and it was all because men demanded the right to anticipate the wants of their fellowmen."

Depression of Today.

Then our depression came, Mr. Moore said in pausing. According to Mr. Woodsworth and Mr. Stevens it was because of individual greed. Mr. Moore said that according to history they were wrong. They forgot three or four important things.

"They forgot our own collective incapacity. May I explain that in this way. This audience could be our Parliament, because you are all average men like the members of Parliament, like Mr. Fraser and myself. During the last session there was the Bank of Canada Act, the Natural Products Marketing Act, and a host of others. We have been overloading our democratic institutions. You do not elect men of genius. If Mr. Rickard should be elected, he would still be Mr. Rickard just as he is, except that he would gain in experience."

Parliament was given so much to do that it was almost bound to make some failures, Mr. Moore stated, and that piled up debt and taxes, becoming a cause of the depression. Government takes about 35 per cent. of the income of the people. The produce of all the farms and mines would be spent by the people's representatives now at Ottawa and in the provincial and municipal administrations, and that was one of the causes of the depression.

Regimenting Production

A second cause that was overlooked was the attempt to regiment production. What Australia tried was what the the Government of Canada had done this year. In Queensland, Australia, the fixing of wages was thought to be the duty of the State. An arbitration board was set up to fix the wages of men who clipped sheep. Farmers objected to it, and the government found it wouldn't work. Then they said "you form marketing pools and we will compel producers to sell through those pools." So they spent four million Australian pounds in subsidizing the sugar industry and three million pounds went to the butter industry. But they had to borrow at the rate of thirty million pounds a year from England, and when they couldn't borrow any more the whole scheme collapsed."

That was government by your men of genius, as Professor Amoroso has been trying to teach. But we have no men of genius in our House of Commons. In our democratic institutions we have no 'cream separator'. And yet you are being told that 'men of genius' have been devising a way to make you all rich by means of the Natural Products Marketing Pool. Mr. Weir and Mr. Stevens appear to be shedding tears for the condition of the farmers, and well they might, for they have done little to help the farmers of this country."

Mr. Moore said he believed this Act was just "a kite flying," that if farmers were to have ther combinations, the manufacturers in turn would demand a combination for themselves. It was being sounded out on the plea of codes and wages, and it might yet appear to those who were patient watching the developments that Mr. Stevens instead of fighting the big interests was backed by them in their desire for combinations of their own

"Genius" and Force

"And there is no greed like group greed," Mr. Moore remarked. "We have already seen, and I hope I have made it clear, that the so-called 'man of genius' of whom Amoroso spoke is nothing more than some fellow behind a roll top desk with a policeman at his elbow. These are the men who undertake to say what production there will be, and what there won't be. And it is all based on force."

"Now we are told that we must have a world ordered society. That is the movement advocated by men like Keynes, Salter and other leaders of such thought. It would mean the taking of orders from Geneva or Moscow, and I'd just as soon have the one as the other.

But how are you going to preserve our democratic institutions? I said this might be your last convention here. To me it seems a possibility. If we are to have as a function of Parliament the fixing of codes for this and that, for Ontario and Quebec and so on, then ultimately we shall have a battle of codes and prices. And what becomes of freedom?

This movement is only beginning in Canada. But you have seen it in Italy, Germany, Czechoslovakia and Brazil. In the last session of Parliament when I referred to these things, Mr. Bennett called me an 'early Victorian.' He said I was ready to stand by and see the procession pass,—to me a procession of dictators.

I am willing to let it pass, because it is a funeral procession, a procession of death."

JAMES DRAIN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, November 1.—After a long illness, which took him to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Saltern, of the Ninth Line, Dummer, James Drain, aged 69, died on Sunday, Oct. 28. Lewis Drain of North Dummer, is a son. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon from the Saltern home to Warsaw cemetery. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson held the services at the home and at the cemetery.

WILLIAM M. WALKER.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WOOLER, November 1. — The funeral of the late William M. Walker, who passed away on Wednesday, October 24, in his 81st year, at his residence, to the St. George's church, Wooler, was attended by a large number of friends and relatives to pay tribute to one who was highly respected by all who came in contact with him.

The deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Walker of Newfoundland.

The late Mr. Walker was cheerful and helpful in disposition, a true neighbor, and a friend to those in need. He was quiet and unassuming in manner and led a most consistent life. In the year 1881 he was united in marriage to Elizabeth H. Kelland, Winterton, Newfoundland., and they lived there until 1920, when they with their family moved to Canada.

Besides a sorrowing wife, there is one son, Robert Walker of Wooler. Of the three daughters, Jean and Bee at home, and Mrs. Albert Hulley, of Middleboro, Mass., and seven grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Lind and Miss Sarah Walker, Little Bay, Newfoundland.

The pallbearers were W. H. Bell, Percy Gooding, Thorpe Jones, Elgin McMasters, Clarence McMasters, Arnley Masters. Interment in the Friends' cemetery.

MAURICE McMAHON

The funeral of the late Maurice McMahon took place Wednesday morning from his sister's residence, Young's Point and proceeded to St. Mary's Church where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. Garvey, assisted by Rev. C. J. Carroll. The deceased was born in Douro 48 years ago and was a member of the 57th Regiment and when the war broke out enlisted with the 93rd Battalion and went to France from England with the 5th C.M.R. He was wounded at Vimy Ridge and again at the Marne and was discharged from the army in March 1919.

Left to mourn his loss are two sisters, Mrs. Frank J. Young, Young's Point; Mrs. M. Stolne, Toronto and step-mother, Mrs. McMahont, Peterborough. A sister, Mrs. Joseph McCarthy predeceased him seven months ago.

The pall-bearers were: William Crowe, John Crowe, George Boatman, Thomas McCarthy and two brother-in-laws, Joseph McCarthy and Francis J. Young. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, Young's Point.

ENGLAND, WALES POUR TO POLLS

Municipal Vote Likely to Indicate Labor or Tory Victory at General Elections.

400 COUNCIL SEATS OPEN.

LONDON, Nov. 1 (CP-AP)—Laborites and Conservatives clashed to-day in nationwide municipal elections—a test expected to prove a fair barometer of the way the political winds may blow in the next general election.

Seats in more than 400 borough councils were at stake throughout England and Wales; all of the 1,385 seats on the 28 borough councils in the London Metropolitan district were concerned. In the provinces, one-third of the seats were being contested.

The elections climaxed weeks of strenuous campaigning which, while generally modelled on purely local issues, also reflected broadly the principles deviding the National Labor and Conservative groups.

The Conservatives, joined by Liberals and other smaller groups in certain sections of the country based their campaign largely on taxation, contending that the rate is higher, oftentime without visible result, in practically all boroughs where Labor is in control.

Conservatives and their coalition partners went under a variety of names.

In London they were known as Municipal Reform, while elsewhere they chose names such as the Civic Reformers and the Ratepayers' Associations.

While the Conservatives plugged away at the rate question, Labor hung its election hopes on a campaign of public health, housing and related public welfare work. The workers' party, in many cases admitting that taxes were higher, argued in return that the higher rates were justified by results.

New locomotives for express trains in England are being named for public schools.

Idle railway cars in Japan recently were only half the number of a year ago.

LIQUOR ADS. MAIN ADDRESS

Chief Topic Under Discussion at W.C.T.U. Meeting on Wednesday.

DUFF ITINERARY.

"Liquor Advertisements" was the chief topic under discussion at the W.C.T.U meeting yesterday when, despite the storm, over fifty ladies gathered at the Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. J. H. Rowe, the president, occupied the chair and conducted her well-planned program. This opened with a worship period, when all joined in the temperance hymn, "Some Glad Day." Mrs. A. H. Allen read the scripture lesson which told the story of Christ's suffering and the resurrection, and prayer was offered by Mrs. Fairbrother.

Greetings were brought to the meeting by Mrs. Rooke, a visitor to Peterborough, from Howard Park United Church, Toronto, of which she is a member.

In a brief business session several items of important business were dealt with, and satisfactorily settled.

Arrangements were made for Miss Duff's itinerary during her visit in the near future, to our city and the county. Miss Duff is field secretary and invariably brings fresh inspiration into every W.C.T.U. she visits.

Of vital interest to a large number of people was the discussion led by Mrs. A. B. Cunningham from the clip sheet, and the question of liquor advertising was thoroughly taken up from every angle.

"Many people are glad that the recently-elected Premier for Ontario has decided, in the interests of community welfare, that the ban against advertising of alcoholic beverages be not lifted. The Ontario Liquor Control Act was a temperance measure, and this is the main restrictive clause left intact.

It is recognized that advertising does increase the demand for the article advertised. It is to the credit of all newspapers who have declared that they are against liquor advertising in Ontario. Three of the four Toronto dailies would not accept such advertising if it were legalized. Nor would many others. At least two dozen weekly newspapers have intimated they would not accept liquor advertisements. This declaration of approval of the ban against advertising is all the more noteworthy, since it is not prohibited in any other province nor in the United States.

"We do not fully appreciate the service given by an unselfish newspaper that refused this kind of business, for there is no question but that liquor advertisements would mean steady revenue. Gratis space for temperance items is given in more than a dozen towns and cities. And, it has been past experience that when a newspaper carries liquor advertisements, temperance news will automatically be dropped out. The liquor advertising affects the liberty of the press to speak out on a subject of public interest. We should, as temperance women, express our approval of the restriction and through resolutions to the proper authorities, ask for the continuance."

Mrs. G. K. Tyler, our local representative to the recent Provincial W.C.T.U. Convention, held at Stratford, brought a very splendid account of that meeting. Delegates are sent to get enhusiasm, and to bring it back into their own union. Mrs. Tyler's appointment was no mistake and her message will live in the renewed energy of her organizations for a long time. Mrs. Wand, who was another delegate, added in a few words, many little interesting facts about the convention.

A beautiful duet, "God Wipes the Tears From Every Eye," was contributed by Mesdames Hepburn and Telford and the meeting was dismissed with the Mizpah Benediction.

PORTRAYS MYSTIC IN BEAVERBROOK

Fleet St. Publisher Compared With Northcliffe Among Press Dictators.

LONDON, Nov. 1. —(CP)—Lord Beaverbrook's personality is painted by Russell Stannard, formerly News Editor of the Sunday Express, in his book published here, "With the Dictators of Fleet street."

Mr. Stannard describes Lord Beaverbrook as "a lonely, wistful, and rather fragile figure, surrounded by secretaries and flunkeys, directing one of the most powerful Press groups in the world, and conducting almost single-handed from the platform and through his papers, a political campaign which the great Conservative party, after much embarrassment had decided to adopt. Physically he was trivial in comparison with Northcliffe."

"This frail figure, trembling with a sort of evangelistic fervor, held spellbound on different occasions audiences of sophisticated Londoners and of sceptical farmers and laborers in my native Norfolk," the former editor says, "There is undoubtedly something of the practical mystic in him. It seemed evident to me that there was more spirituality in this man than there was in Northcliffe or in the other dictators of Fleet street."

Struck by lightning, the historic church of Hoernerkirschen, near Hamburg, Germany, which was erected in 1761, was destroyed by fire recently.

HAUPTMANN CHALLENGES CONDON'S IDENTIFICATION

FLEMINGTON, N., Nov. 1 (AP) —The way was paved to-day for another encounter between two principals in the Lindbergh kidnapping case—Dr. John F. Condon and Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

"He is mistaken and I invite him to come here again and give me a chance to talk more to him and prove my innocence," Hauptmann's statement says. "If he talks to me long enough, he can't help seeing that I am not the man he met in St. Raymond's Cemetery."

WINDSOR IN SCHOOL TROUBLE

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 1 (CP) — The Board of Education was banking upon Provincial assistance today to enable it to continue operation of Windsor's high schools and public schools after Dec. 1. At an emergency meeting last night, it was declared that due to the city council's recommendation, the Board of Supervisors had reduced the budget causing a shortage of $22,000. Because of this shortage it was declared it would be impossible for the schools to operate during the last month of the year.

'MARRY FOR LOVE' IS LATEST PROPAGANDA OF THE SOVIETS

State Launches Educational Campaign to Teach Sanctity of Marriage.

NO WEDDINGS.

By COSALIE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

MOSCOW, Nov. 1.—Marriage has lost all solemnity in the Soviet Union. Couples do not require a license. There is no publication of the banns. You never see a wedding procession. No feasts or celebrations are held as is the custom among all the other peoples of Europe, especially among the peasantry, with whom a wedding is always the occasion for rejoicing, and a display of color, plus a good deal of drinking. In Russia everything has been done to deprive marriage of its special character. It is looked upon as an every day occurrence.

Coralie van Paassen

A boy only needs to say to a girl: "I like you. I know a room that is vacant. Let us go and live there!" and the thing is done. Registration of the marriage usually follows afterwards. What we call betrothal does not exist here. The usual form of proposal is: "Let us go and live together!" If the girl agrees, there is nothing to stop a young pair from doing so. Parental consent is not necessary. The law system of the New Russia encourages early marriage. The basic requirement is not the possession of property, but the capacity for the work of the two fiances. While in Germany the new law stipulates that only one of the partners in marriage may work for a salary and moreover women are as much as possibly exclusively relegated to the home, in Russia it is the other way around. Everything is done to make it possible for husband and wife both to have a job and to earn money. If there are children, the state provides creches where the little ones are taken care of during the mother's absence in factory or office. Eight weeks before confinement, she ceases to work and goes into a maternity home. But the wages go on, full-time, under the system of social insurance in force here.

Must Be Examined

When a couple decides to have their marriage registered, which usually happens only after a few weeks of trial-marriage, they go to one of the "Zags" as the bureaus of vital statistics are called. It's very busy at the Zags. Couples have to line up. This is going on day in and day out, except on the sixth day which is a free day when all government offices are closed.

While waiting in one of the Zags bureaus, prospective husbands and wives are required to read the big posters on the wall. "Before your marriage can be registered," it says on these posters, 'you must both have a medical examination and present a certificate signed by a gynaecologue that you are sound and fit to bring children into the world."

Other posters give addresses of clinics and doctors, from whom advice may be obtained on sexual hygiene, contraceptives, prenatal care and all other details of medical information. "You are urged to visit the clinics for your own sake and for the sake of the children. Don't hide anything. Be frank. There is nothing to hide. There is no mystery about sex. Reticence, secrecy and morbid mystery-mongering are responsible for unhappy marriages, unhealthy children, insanity and disease. You are free men and women. Be an honor to your fatherland in every way!" This is the translation of one of the posters.

Require No Witnesses

Most of the couples one encounters in those crowded waiting rooms are between the ages of 18 and 25. They are asked under what name they desire to be known. Most girls retain their maiden-name.

There has been a noticeable tendency of late, I was told, to neglect registration of marriage. The registration is not compulsory. But the members of the Communist party are urged to set an example to the others and to urge non-members to register their marriages. The government does not want to make marriage-registration compulsory, but hopes to obtain a 100 per cent registration of all marriages by education.

No witnesses are required, but the goom and bride must show their identification papers, passports, they are called here, and these papers show a man's and a woman's whole history. Not only the date of birth indicated on these papers, but length of service in the army, his civil conduct, former marriage if any, with the date of and the reason for the divorce. Also the dates and nature of illness or mishaps, signed and attested by hospital or medical authorities. The system makes you think of a soldier's personal life in the army. It certainly is a more reliable source of iddenification than a couple of witneeses, who may be picked up anywhere and say anything in exchange for a little tip.

Encourage Love-Matches

An innovation in the marriage system is the introduction of psychopathic advice. Soviet experts were mainly perturbed over a possible degradation of marriage life into a mere satisfaction of the sexual instincts. The second five-year plan therefore includes in its program an attempt to elevate the marriage to a higher plane. This really means that they want marriage to become more of a love affair. A gigantic publicity campaign is going on to imbue the men, who are the worst offenders with the sanctity of married life, the beauty of conjugal love and the great responsibility of having children. Marriage should become your greatest happiness, the citizens are told.

"The clinics, the preventoriums and rest-homes, can do a lot to diminish the biological tragedy of women. But the attitude of men towards marriage must wipe out the psychological tragedy." Woman is your partner. Life is holy. Love is something not to be sneered at. Human beings are not beasts. They have a solemn dignity." These are some of the captions above the lists of printed advice which is now given to the newly married. In other words, the Russians are coming back from the crude materialistic conceptions of the first days They are rediscovering the human soul.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov 1.—Watching from the eastern seashore apparent swing of Canadian politics towards Liberalism after a period when the Conservative star was in the ascendant, is the staunch son of an English soldiering family and of Loyalist stock who prepares for the battle of votes in his home province with quiet confidence. He leads the New Brunswick Liberal party, at present sitting in the opposition benches.

Albert Allison Dysart, M.A., LL.B., K.C., M.L.A., was born at Cocagne, N.B., on Feb. 20, 1880, fourth of seven sons and six daughters of the late Andrew Knox Dysart, for many years Collector of Customs at the port of Cocagne, and Henrietta Miriam (Cutler) Dysart. His primary education was received in the public schools and the University of St. Joseph's College. He also was graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College and from Dalhousie University Law School, Halifax.

Through his mother he is a grandson of the late Robert Cutler, a former representative of Kent county in the New Brunswick Legislature and in the Parliament of Canada; and a great-grandson of Ebenezer Cutler, the Loyalist, who accompanied the British fleet under Howe from Boston to Halifax in March, 1776.

Of Fighting Stock

On his father's side there is recalled that band of retired British army officers and men who were encouraged to acquire land in Canada at the close of the Napoleonic wars. Among the number settled at Cocagne in 1824 were the cousins, Colonel James Long and Mr. Dysart's grandfather, Capt. Robert Dysart. Commissioned at first with the purchase of spars for the royal navy, they afterwards operated as partners in the ship building and lumbering business from 1827 until about 1854.

Following his admission to the bar of New Brunswick in 1913, Allison Dysart spent some time in the office of Judge. Robert W. Hewson of Moncton, later opening an office in Buctouche, where he succeeded in building up a substantial practice.

He was first elected to the legislature from Kent county in 1917. He was re-elected in 1920 and became speaker of the House in 1921. In the contest of 1925 that marked the fall of the Veniot government, in which he had served as Minister of Lands and Mines, he was again successful. In the general election of 1930 he was again returned with his colleagues, and thereupon resumed the leadership of the Liberal forces in the province, a post he still holds.

He was married in 1916 to Miss Blanche Carmel MacDougall of Glace Bay, Nova Scotia. Two doughters, Mary and Miriam, and a son, Robert MacDougall Dysart, complete the family group.

He is a Roman Catholic and makes his home at Buctouche, N.B.

FASHION SHOW AT BIG CARNIVAL REVEALS LATEST

C.D.S. Winter Fashion Show One of High Lights of Carnival.

TRAILING VELVETS.

Trailing velvets, shimmery taffetas, soft furs and glamorous ladies were all a feature of the Kinsmen Carnival last night, when the Canadian Department Stores presented a Fashion Show on the big built-up stage in the center of the floor at the Armories.

Grant Gordon's orchestra from Bancroft played for the parade of models and lights were down all over the big enclosure, leaving four big flood lights at each corner to light up the square platform and the ladies who demonstrated the latest ideas in fashionable attire. Announcing the different sections was the trim little Miss 'Jerry' Campbell, in gold-braided page's outfit.

Fur coats came first, warm and luxurious for the chill evening. They were in the flat furs of the mode; broadtails in black, cocoa brown and silver grey, and gleaming seals, collared with squirrel, wolf and fitch, all in the slenderizing styles of the year.

Cloth coats were trim and snugly-fitting, also trimmed with standing and shawl collars of fur, in materials of close weave, and colors of deep brown, green and grey.

"Double duty" dinner frocks, those accommodating dresses that may be worn for evening when the little accompanying jacket is dispensed with, were in many shades of red—geranium, Inferno, firefly—in dark Paddy green, in rich dark brown, in soft Venetian and Eleanor blues, with the high necklines, the sleeveless gowns, and the long-sleeved 'wrap around' and 'butcher boy' jackets that finish these pretty things.

One striking model had long sleeves to the gown, with cuffs embroidered to the elbow in silver that also finished the rounded neckline. A brown tunic dress, Russian style, had a wide belt and sleeve bands above the elbow, of silver embroidery, and another deep wood brown was made with effectively belled sleeves of transparent, metal-sprinkled net.

Dinner at Eight

Deep, wine-red velvet showed the metallic touch also in the "dinner at eight" section, with its silver belting and silver shoulder flower. This ruby-red material was rich and glowing and the frock had long, tight sleeves and a slit yoke at the back. Another unusual treatment was demonstrated in the shirred topping to the back panel of another dark red velvet with short cape sleeves.

Velvet in the new shade of 'black tulip' fashioned a stunning model with a train, a low V decolettage in the back and tiny cap sleeves.

"Cocktail hour" gowns were exquisite models that demonstrated a liking for the many variations of a soft mid-blue tone, in tightly-fitting styles, many of them shimmering with sequins on transparent net sleeves and yokes. Wood brown was beautiful in one of these dresses and a black taffeta gown was topped by a yoke and little puff sleeves of net, sprinkled with silver. An unusual note was in the heavy white metallic sleeves of a black frock, with long, tight cuffs of black crepe.

A parade of gorgeous evening gowns and wraps ended the style showing. Deep wood brown came into its own again in a brilliant model with very full skirt and a brown and green 'chou' trimming the front of the bodice. With a dark emerald green gown of severe cut was worn a wine-velvet wrap collared with soft white fur, and another wrap made entirely of this snow-white fur went with a gown of white crepe satin that had ruffles of itself trimming the back panels and the sleeves.

Quite different and very attractive was the combination of delphinium blue material in a gown trimmed at yoke and skirt hem with a row of diamond-shaped inserts in rose red.

Wraps of black velvet collared in white fur, with a red rose fastening in front, and a three-quarter length, tight wrap of bottle green velvet, were noticed, the former worn with a black crepe fashioned with a blouse top of lace.

The mannequins, parading in evening attire to put a period to the show, were made up by Miss C. E. Fellowes, who is demonstrating Helena Rubenstein's products at the C.D.S. Store this week, and their hair-dressing was done by Downer.

Ladies taking part in the display, which included stout, medium and slender attire, were Mrs. L. Brown, Mrs. Rae McKinlay, Miss Jean Wheeler, Miss Dorothy Marshall, Miss Lillias Grierson and Miss Phyllis Payne, all of the store staff, also Miss Mabel Brown and Miss C. E. Fellowes.

VARSITY EDITOR QUITS.

TORONTO, Oct 31.—(C.P.)—Arthur C. Cochrane has resigned as editor-in-chief of the University of Toronto students' daily publication. His resignation followed the decision of the joint executive of the students' administrative council to limit the powers of the editorial chief.

The resignation also follows controversy over an editorial in the student paper calling for a referendum on the province's beer parlor system or retraction of the amendments to the liquor control, establishing the beverage rooms.

BUILDING TRADE SHOWS ACTIVITY

Building permits for the past month aggregated $18,396 as compared with $2,880 for October last year.

Not only is an increase in building activity in the city, by comparison with the two months of each year, but the increase has been maintained over the entire ten-months period for which permits totalling $141,596 have been issued through the city engineer's office. As compared with the corresponding ten months of 1933 the increase is $18,036.

Among the 91 permits issued last month there were 86 miscellaneous; 2 garages; and 3 dwellings. In the first category is included a permit recently issued, for alterations at 183 Charlotte Street, which has been acquired by the local board of The Christian Science Society. At an estimated cost of $600, the building is to be fitted with a front suited to the dignity of a place in which it is intended to conduct religious services. The contract calls for completion by January 1 next.

Other permits include alterations to a dwelling at 127 Park Hill Road, which is to be converted into a store with apartment upstairs to the order of J. Harrison, at an estimted cost of $2,000; and the conversion of another dwelling located at 213-215 Simcoe Street into four apartments, at an estimated cost of $3,000, for V. S. Rutherford.

Thomas Birk whose residence located on Highway 7 at the easterly entrance to the city was recently gutted by fire, sought a permit, to rebuild at an estimated expense of $400.

A large percentage of the permits authorized the shingling of roofs, and were taken out in compliance with the recently enacted city by-laws requiring the use of certain precautionary fire prevention measures, in connection with such work.

POLICE OUTPOST NOW THRIVING ALBERTA TOWN

Mounted Police Were Founders of Fort McLeod in 1874.

WHISKEY TRADE HEAVY.

By C. F. STEELE
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

MACLEOD, Alta., Nov. 1—Macleod, link between the old and new west, is this fall celebrating its diamond jubilee. In the autumn of 1874 Col. J. F. Macleod and his detachment of North West Mounted Police "originals" founded a fort there and with this as a base carried British law and order to a hitherto lawless region.

Reports of bloodshed and lawlessness having reached Ottawa from the far west, Sir John A. Macdonald, premier at the time, decided that a mounted force should be sent west to maintain law and order paving the way for the march of civilization and settlement. In October, 1873, 150 men of all ranks were sent to Fort Garry to winter. During the winter 150 more men were recruited in Toronto, and joined the first contingent at Dufferin, in June, 1874.

The force who moved west and who established Fort Macleod consisted of 300 officers, N.C.O.'s and men, divided into six troops of 50 men each. There were no trails in those early days and they had to depend largely upon guides, who, it was found, knew nothing of the country west of the Cypress Hills, a region inhabited by savage and warlike Indian tribes of the powerful Blackfoot confederacy.

Fort McLeod Was Base of Western Law Enforcement

Whiskey Trade Prominent

There were few white men in the country except whiskey traders from Montana, and these, mostly desperate characters, had built forts on some of the rivers, notably Fort Kipp and Fort Whoop-up. The traders carried on their nefarious trade with the Indians, exchanging whiskey for buffalo robes and other valuable furs which they moved over the old trail to For Benton, Montana territory, and south from there to St. Louis. The Hudson's Bay Company had at that time no forts south of Edmonton, where the celebrated factor, Richard Hardisty, was in charge.

The mounted force, in their march westward, met members of the international boundary commission engaged in fixing the boundary between Canada and the United States. The survey party were accompanied by American troops, for the Indians were on the warpath and without the protection of troopers their work would have been impossible.

Col. Macleod and his contingent selected a site for a fort above Fort Whoop-up on the Old Man river and this fort, constructed of logs, with mud floors and roofs, was named for the gallant and resourceful commander. Buffalo provided men with a supply of fresh meat. Supplies were brought up to Fort Macleod from Fort Benton, head of navigation on the Missouri river, by bull teams. Mail came from Eastern Canada also via Fort Benton, and it was an occasion of jubilation when the mail arrived.

Is Now Modern Town

The late Captain Sir Cecil Denny, in his valuable account of those days, said: "Our horses which were in very poor condition after our arduous march were sent to Sun River, Montana, to winter under the care of the late Major Walsh. We purchased some Indian horses for our work among the Indians and for hunting down the reckless and daring whiskey traders. When captured, their buffalo robes, teams, etc., were confiscated and if the men could not pay their fines they were imprisoned in our guard room which was kept full all winter. Long term prisoners had to be sent the following summer across the plains to Winnipeg, the nearest penitentiary in those days being there."

In the summer of 1880 Rev. Dr. John McLean, for many years librarian of Wesley College, Winnipeg, and a noted pioneer missionary of the west, arrived at Fort Macleod.

A marked change from the old log frontier village of the '70's and '80's is the Macleod of to-day. It is one of the largest and most flourishing of Alberta's towns, boasts modern improvements, excellent business houses and is one of the central points for tourist traffic. The old mounted police barracks are slowly deteriorating for police headquarters are now in Lethbridge. Much of the color, the glamor, the romance of the town has gone, yet there is about Macleod to-day something of the spirit of the old west and the feeling that here indeed was history made during one of the most stirring periods of Canada's expansion.

ENGLISH FLIERS NEARING LONDON

Jones and Waller Leave Athens on Return Dash From Melbourne.

DERBY ENTRANTS GO ON.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Cathcart Jones and Ken Waller, Englishmen who left Melbourne last Saturday on a "boomerang" flight to England, hoped to reach here tonight.

They hoped off at 5:25 a.m. (12.25 a.m. Eastern Standard Time) from Athens after returning to make an adjustment to their propeller.

Two fliers, meanwhile, completed the flight to Melbourne, C. J. Melrose, Australian, and Lieut. M. Hansen of Denmark, arrived to finish in seventh and eighth positions, respectively.

Captain and Mrs. James A. Mollison, who were forced out of the race by motor trouble, completed repairs at Allahabad, India, and hopped off for Karachi enroute to England.

Although far behind, H. L. Brook of Great Britain, continued along the Derby route, after having been stalled in Athens for a week because of repairs. Before he departed he aattributed part of his bad luck to the influence of the number '13'.

"The date I took delivery of my plane was the 13th, he said. "I arrived at Mildenhal Airdrome on the 13th. I drew 13th place for the start and my numbers reversed make 13."

AS HIS STRENGTH SO CHILD'S WORK

Editor Discussing Homework Problem Suggests Need of Limitations.

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 1. (C. P.)—The journal comments editorially on the protests against homework for school children. "These are not new, and not confined to Canada. An Edmonton reader of the Journal sends in a clipping from the British Medical Journal, dated back in 1926, quoting an address by Prof. P. M. Leiean delivered on the occasion of his appointment to the chair of public health in the University of Edinburgh.

"Prof. Lelean declared that school children's working hours often amounted to 10 hours a day. He subscribed to a statement previously made that 'examinations were ruining the intelligence of the nation for all practical purposes.' He sought the support of parents for a three-plank platform: (1) to get 30 per cent knocked off every examination standard and every secondary education curriculum in Britain; (2) to insure that the amount of homework was adequately supervised, and (3) to secure for a psychological expert a seat on every educational committee in the country.

"The effects of such expressions of opinion and of the protests of parents everywhere already may be seen," says the Journal. "The amount of homework and the number of compulsory examinations in the elementary and secondary schools are being steadily reduced in several Canadian provinces. Ultimately it may be generally recognized that the school child's working hours should be strictly limited in proportion to his strength as are the working hours of adults."

DENY MUELLER LEAVING POST

Reichbishop's Stand Firmer Than Ever Says Church Official.

FEAR PAGANISM TO GROW.

(By A. D. Stefferud)

BERLIN, Nov. 1 (AP)—Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller is still firmly in the saddle, the Protestant Church's Government office said to-day in denying rumors that he had resigned.

"The Reichbishop's position is firmer than ever," a spokesman said, "now that the bone of contention — Jaegger — has resigned." Dr. August Jaegger quit as Nazi Commissioner for Protestant Church in Prussia this week.

But many observers considered Mueller's resignation is imminent, Chancellor Hitler having withdrawn his support of the Reichsbishop.

Unrestrained growth of German paganism and further anti-Semitic acts were considered possible to-day as sequels of Chancellor Hitler's decision to separate the church and the state.

Persons close to members of the Confessional Synod (oppositionists or opponents of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller) expressed this belief.

They said Der Fuehrer's hands-off policy in the Evangelical Protestant Church fight may also mean non-interference with Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, philosophic dictator of the Third Reich, and Julius Streicher, publisher of The Stormer. Both are active in the Nazi party and are, respectively, head of the Pagan faith and anti-Jewish movements.

The Hitler policy, it was said, might also mean cancellation of the concordat with the Vatican, since "What is fair for the Protestants is fair for the Catholics."

Half the 10 per cent wage cuts imposed in 1931 on 12,000 hemp and flax workers of Scotland are to be restored.

Tells Before Notary

MR. S. SANSONE

Suffering from indigestion, Mr. Sansone, 44 Front Street West, Toronto, at last got complete relief. He wants to help others and consented to tell of his experience in a statement, sworn before a notary so that everyone can be sure it's true. He states,—"For a long time I suffered badly from indigestion. I tried everything but I continued to get worse. A friend of mine recommended Fruit-a-tives and after taking them for a short time I began to feel much better. It was not long before I was entirely well and could eat anything without pain or after effects."

Copy of Mr. Sansone's sworn statement will be sent on request. Write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Canada.

PRIZELESS BOYS MAY BE VICEROY

Earl Willingdon Disparages Color Lnie, States India Needs Public Schools.

SIMLA, India, Oct. 30 (C.P.).—Earl Willingdon, Viceroy of India, and former Governor-General of Canada, in distributing honors at the Bishop Cotton School, added in humorous vein a word of encouragement to students who did not receive prizes.

There was no occasion for the disappointed boys to despair, he assured them. One of them might become Viceroy of India some day. He referred to the fact that in his own school days he seldom got prizes.

Notwithstanding this, Lord Willingdon said, he had enjoyed the privilege of doing considerable work in the cause of education in the British Empire. Never was it more important for the country as a whole to train up her own citizens to realize their great responsibility.

"I want you always to remember that it is not the color of man that makes a man, but it is the character inside the man that counts," the Viceroy advised. "During my long public life, I can count many friends, tried and trusted friends, who are neither of my race nor of my color."

His Excellency emphasized the necessity for a public school system in India. He said there was no occasion in the life of India when discipline, character and sense of responsibility was more wanted.

Hastings

On Sunday morning following the Sunday School services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday School room, Miss Madeline Dodd, pianist of the Sunday School was presented with a beautiful pyrex pie-plate in a silver server, from the superintendent, teachers and scholars. Mr. Findly, superintendent, made the presentation and Mrs. William Hill, teacher, read a suitable address. Miss Dodd, a bride to be replied thanking all for their kindness.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Spooner and daughter Annie and Mr. and Mrs. S. Spooner and daughter Betty were Sunday guests at the home of their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Johnston of Coxvale.

Mrs. W. Way spent several days in Toronto at the home of her daughter and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. McBride and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Way.

Miss Fannie Collins of Peterborough is visiting with Mrs. Cunningham during the very serious illness of her daughter, Katie.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Dainard, Nicholas and Bernice spent the weekend with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dainard.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce King, Pauline, Margaret and Russel of Dartford were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. King.

Mr. S. Spooner spent several days during the past week on the jury in Cobourg.

TRENT RIVER

Mr. George Brooks has his residence connected with Hydro.

Mr. Fred Cook has purchased the remaining wood on McCulloch's Island and is having the same brought to the main shore.

Mr. Craddock and son of Trenton have completed the work of removing the saw mill machinery, trucking the last load on Tuesday.

FIVE YEAR PLAN FOR HYDRO USER IS NOW IN FORCE

Municipalities in Peterborough District All Approved in Change.

FROM 20 YEAR CONTRACT.

Contracts Cannot be Cancelled if Loan is Outstanding.

Notice from the Hydro Electric Power Commission that the new 5-year contract plan for consumers in the Peterborough Rural Power District will be effective immediately was received by the Peterborough Utilities Commission at a meeting yesterday afternoon. The 5-year obligations will the 20-year agreements required formerly.

Under the new plan, present rural consumers as well as new consumers will be allowed to enjoy the shortened term. With certain exceptions, all will be allowed, having given one year's notice, to terminate their contracts after having accepted five year's continuous service. For such consumers as cottagers who do not take power continuously, periods in which power is not taken are not to be included in the five year period.

Under the plan, however contracts can not be cancelled until after the payment in full of any loan obtained by the customer under the Rural District Loans Act by participants in guarantee contracts, by customers who have taken power or energy for less than five years or by the customers who is default any sum payable under his contract.

At the meeting, the Commissioners decided to charge the city 44 per cent of the fuel costs and $5 per month attendance costs for the heating of the Medical Officer of Health offices in the Utilities' side of the City Buildings. The Commission will notify the City that it will not require the services of the city janitor in its offices having decided to use one of its own men for the work.

A request that a local Italian workman who has been in the employ of the Commission for 38 years be considered for a pension benefit was received from the vice-consul of Italy in Toronto. The matter is to be considered.

The Commission decided to secure passenger hazard protection in addition to the other forms of insurance now covering its fleet of trucks. Drivers have for some time been forbidden to carry passengers but, nevertheless, a considerable risk exists, the Commissioners agreed.

Arthur Nelson of Hastings spent a day or two in the village.

On Thursday evening the United church parlor was the scene of a pretty shower in honor of Henry McCall and his bride (nee Gertrude Lawson, Toronto), a gathering of many friends and neighbors, who joined in heartily singing old-time songs, played by Mrs. A. G. Austin.

Mr. C F Wessels, chairman of the evening, called on a few numbers on the program. Mrs. L. H. Rowe, and Mrs. A. G. Austin played a piano duet, and Jessie Rogers read one of Edgar Guest's poems, "No Place to Go." A number of little girls sang sweetly.

Mr. and Mrs. McCall were invited to come to the front where a long table was arranged with parcels. Arthur Putnam and Jessie Rogers assisted in cutting strings and unwrapping, while the groom passed the gifts to his bride, who very sweetly read the names and showing the gift as she placed it on the table. The gifts were useful and beautiful and much appreciated by the bridal couple.

The party joined hands and sang "Should Auld Acquaintance be fo.-got," for the closing number.

WHEN CO-EDS WORE SERGE AND CALICO

Member of McGill's Pioneer Class of Women Recalls Early Conditions.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31 (C.P.) — College garb of 50 years ago, consisting of "sensible" coats, dresses of serge or cashmere in winter and print or calico in summer, cotton or heavy woollen stockings — no fur coats or silk hose—was recalled by Dr. Grace Ritchie England, a member of the pioneer class of women at McGill, at the luncheon recently given by the Alumnae Society to mark the 50th anniversary of the admission of women to McGill.

She said the quarters allotted to the 10 women students was a classroom in the Peter Redpath Museum for lectures, and contrasted them with the imposing block of buildings which accommodate the 600 or so women students of to-day.

Montreal at that time was like a sleepy overgrown village," said Dr. England; transportation was furnished by horse-drawn tram-cars or cabs; the sidewalks were of wood and there were no towering buildings.

In 1884, a group of students from the High School for Girls, petitioned to be allowed to enter McGill. Two of them had headed the list in the Associate in Arts examinations, one taking the highest marks ever obtained.

Principal Dawson was sympathetic but there were no funds available. Fortunately a timely gift of $50,000 from Hon. Donald Smith, later Lord Strathcona, to endow a college for women, made it possible for the first class to enter the university in 1884. Two years later assurance was given them that degrees would be granted to women, and they were permitted to wear the college gown.

CHEAP SOAP-CHIPS COSTLY

SKIMPY SUDS MAKE HARD RUBBING— FREE ALKALIES FADE COLORS AND "EAT CLOTH"—CLOTHES RUINED QUICKLY!

What looks like "a lot of soap for the money" while it is puffed up dry, may prove a great disappointment when you get it in your tub. You cannot expect from cheap soap-chips the rich, lasting suds you get from a fine, rich soap like Chipso. Poor, watery suds flatten out. They won't budge the dirt. You have to rub, rub, RUB. And rubbing weakens clothes!

Money lost on clothes

Then there's the danger of free alkali in cheap, crudely made soap-chips—of artificial bleaches and strong water-softeners used in place of genuine soapiness. Do you dare risk clothes which cost you good money in such "pinch-penny" soaps? You know how harsh soaps roughen your hands when you use them for dish-washing. Think what they do to your clothes on washday! Isn't it cheaper to buy good soap?

"I bought a bad bargain," says Mrs. H. J. Carr

"I bought cheap chips because I thought I was getting a lot of soap," says Mrs. Carr. "But I had to use twice as much soap and I had to rub twice as hard! The lace on my best slip went to pieces after three washings. My regular white wash started to turn gray. Where I tried to save pennies on cheap chips, I lost dollars on clothes! I went back to Chipso—to thick, rich SUDS that are SAFE."

Only soap-filled suds rinse easily

Skimpy suds that are too thin to pick up the dirt leave a mean, curdy scum to be rinsed out of your clothes. Hard work! Don't do it. Use Chipso. Chipso is a flaked soap that is fine and rich. Cheap soap-chips try to look like Chipso, but they can't act like Chipso. Chipso is real soap . . . its creamy thick suds are soap-filled. They soak out dirt in less than 15 minutes . . . they rinse out in a flash. And they are safe, even for your nicest things—hard only on dirt!

A Good Slip—Gone!

Clothes Worth $50 Ruined by Cheap Soap-Chips!

STRONG BLEACHING ALKALIES . . WEAKENING WATER-SOFTENERS . .

Does it pay to buy such a risk in cheap soap-chips? To ruin clothes? Washing is a job that needs soap-filled suds—Chipso suds—that will float dirt away without harming a thread or fading a color. Test Chipso by using it to wash your dishes—see how easy it is on your hands. It's just as easy on clothes!

CHIPSO CHOSEN BY WOMEN WHO SAY "SAFETY FIRST!"

"HALF AS MUCH CHIPSO MAKES TWICE THE SUDS!"

says Mrs. Isaac Hitchcock. Every Chipso box is filled with real soap. Use half as much Chipso as you'd use of cheap soap-chips and you'll get a tub piled up with thick, soap-filled suds. Suds that work—save you hard rubbing . . . save your clothes!

"SNOWY WHITE CLOTHES . . COLORS STAY BRIGHT,"

Mrs. W. J. Robitow says. "Chipso suds are simply wonderful. I never have to soak my white clothes more than 15 minutes to have them come out as white as snow, without any hard hand-rubbing. Yet these lovely, rich Chipso suds are as safe as water for all my very nicest things."

Chipso is SAFE because it is made of fine, fresh ingredients unadulterated with harsh, "dirt-cutting" substances. It does its quick work with RICHER SUDS. Get Chipso this week from your grocer.

Manchukuo Moves For Oil Monopoly

TOKYO, Nov. 1. —(AP)— The Manchukuo government, it was learned today, has already moved to effect an oil monopoly, despite representations by Great Britain, the United States and the Netherlands.

Disregarding the foreign charges that the scheme is discriminatory and violates the principle of the open door, Hsinking has instituted steps to assume early possession of extensive marketing installations made in Manchoukuo by the Standard Oil Company of New York and the British Asiatic Petroleum Company, reliable sources said.

They are to be eliminated from profitable distributing and retailing businesses built up during recent decades.

CITY TEACHERS IN CONVENTION

Peterborough Teachers' Institute Holds Annual Convention in Armouries.

QUESTION OF HOMEWORK.

The first session of the Teachers' Institute was held this morning in the Public Library. Miss Clara Adams, the vice-president, occupied the chair.

The treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand. The usual grants to the Ontario Educational Association and to the respective schools for magazines were passed.

The appointment of delegates to the Ontario Educational Association was left to the Executive committee.

Miss Bernadetta Galvin gave a most helpful and practical paper on "Training for Self-Expression."

"By self-expression, self-activity is meant. There is too great a tendency for a teacher to do too much for the children. Activity on their part is necesary to obtain knowledge and leads gradually to the ideal position where the teacher becomes merely a prompter. What the child does for himself is really all that counts in education. As the body cannot be developed without exercise and activity, so also must the mind grow. A school may possibly stunt the mind's growth by doing too much for the child. The teacher should withdraw more and more, and let the child fall back on his own resources. Self-discipline is self-education.

"A good deal of all teaching is the amount of self-activity aroused. Children are greedy for power; they enjoy overcoming difficulties.

Opportunities for self-activity are afforded by the various courses on the curriculum. The child should do his own experimenting. He should be directed what to read and encouraged to go on excursions for observation, to make maps, to visit manufacturing plants and museums. In arithmetitc he should do actual measuring, and transact business affairs. The reading of books on history should be suggested. In teaching civics the pupils should have elections of their own."

Children Love Work.

"Let the child learn to do by doing," said the speaker. "Children love work, and valuable habits of initiative, resourcefulness, and self-reliance are engendered through their own self-activity. They become able to grapple thus with the problems of life.

During the session a motion was carried that an honorary president and honorary vice-president be added to the executive committee, and that M. N. Clark, B.A., and Miss M. Morrow respectively hold these offices.

Schoolwork

A. Mowat, B.A., discussed some questions pertaining to schoolwork. One of these was the matter of homework. The regulations of the Education Department seem to be clear on this subject. Homework below the third classes is scarcely necessary. In the third and fourth classes it should be supplementary to the school-work. Pupils should have plenty of time for seat work in school and there will not be much need for additional work at home. Some homework is of advantage, but it must not be excessive.

The new Minister of Education and his Deputy Minister are both considered very sane and are highly spoken of. They are careful about making extensive changes. The second year of the Normal School course did seem advantageous, but there should have been a minimum salary for those who took it," declared Mr. Mowat

"The prospective changes in the school course will affect the secondary schools especially in the academic and vocational departments.

The Education Department frowns on too much competition amongst students and does not want examinations to dominate the course of study to a great extent. The Minister and Deputy Minister both are anxious to know the opinions of teachers before making changes.

New Officers

The report of the Nominating Committee is as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. M. N. Clark, B.A.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Miss May Morrow.
President—Miss Clara G. Adams.

Obituary

MICHAEL FITZPATRICK.

DOWNEYVILLE, November 1. — Another of Downeyville's old and highly esteemed residents passed away at his family home on Tuesday in the person of Michael Fitzpatrick, 90 years old. Born in Emily Township on September 29, 1844, Mr. Fitzpatrick followed the occupation of farming for many years. In 1876 he was married to Jane Cavanagh of Ennismore, who predeceased him some thirteen years ago. Of the nine children born to this happy marriage six survive: Denis of Lindsay, Fred, Gertrude, and Mrs. John Winn of Downeyville, Mrs. Thomas O'Hearn of Toronto, and Mrs. Louis Schnitzler of Cargill. He is also survived by one brother, William Fitzpatrick of Downeyville. Mr. Fitzpatrick was a very enthusiastic educationist, his children being educated in Lindsay Collegiate and St. Joseph's Academy.

MRS. EDWARD MURPHY

The death occurred last evening of Blanche Delaire, widow of the late Edward Murphy, at her residence, 454 Park street, at the age of 58 years.

Besides her father, John Delaire, she is survived by sons, Frank and Jack Murphy, and daughters Mildred, Florence, Blanche and Marcelle all at home. Other relatives are four brothers, Beck and Joseph of Saginaw, Michigan, and Leonard and Wilfred of this city ,and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Driscoll and Miss Winnie Delaire.

The funeral is to be held on Saturday morning, with a celebration of Requiem Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral at nine o'clock. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM.

THOMPSON. — In fond and loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. William Thompson, who departed this life one year ago to-day.

Two dear, bright eyes, a tender smile,
A loving heart that knew no guile;
Deep trust in God that all was right—
Her joy to make some other bright.

If sick or suffering one she knew,
Some gentle act of love she'd do;
No thought of self, but of 'the other';
I know He said, "Well done, dear mother."

—Inserted by her Husband and Children.

IN MEMORIAM

THOMPSON. — In affectionate memory of Mrs. William Thompson, who entered into rest on November 1st, 1933.

There the flowers from earth transplanted
For our coming, watch and wait,
In the upper garden growing,
Just within the pearly gate.

Though our hearts may break with sorrow
By the grief so hard to bear,
We shall meet her some bright morning
In the upper garden there.

—Sadly missed by her Mother and Family.

CALGARY FACES ANOTHER CRISIS

May Default Debenture Interest Payments Unless Loan Arranged.

UP TO BANK.

CALGARY, November 1 (C.P.).—Calgary to-day faced another financial crisis and may default its debenture interest payments, due and payable in December, unless arrangements are made for a bank loan to meet current obligations for November and Decemebr.

In special session last night, the Finance Committee of the Council adopted a recommendation of Mayor Andrew Davison that the city default its debenture payments unless the Bank of Montreal meets the requests for funds. The Mayor was empowered to continue negotiations with the bank for a further loan of $250,000.

The debenture issue payable in December amounts to $131,000. The City Council will meet in special session on Friday to consider the Mayor's recommendations adopted by the Finance Committee.

Streamline stockings, with backs slightly darker than the front to give the desired effect, have appeared in London.

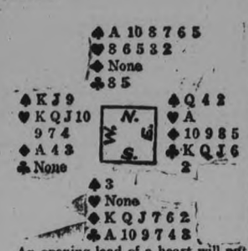
HOW MANY CAN WEST MAKE?

Hearts are trumps, with West the declarer of 4-hearts doubled. North must make the opening lead. How many tricks can the declarer win against the best defence of North and South?

This is a simple problem for players of limited experience. Play all hands face upward on the table, as the problem is intended as double-dummy practice.



An opening lead of a heart will put the dummy in. Lead the K of clubs. If West does not play his ace, discard declarer's lowest diamond. As it can do no good to wait, South may as well play the ace. Declarer will ruff. In case South delays putting up his ace beyond the second round, the declarer will discard both his losing diamonds. He will then lead a spade, giving North a single trick in that suit, and making a small slam.

An opening lead of a club also will give the declarer a small slam. The J of clubs will win the first trick unless South puts up his ace. Declarer will ruff the lead of clubs upon which South plays his ace. West will lead a heart. He will lead a low club and ruff with his 9, so that North cannot overruff. All North's trumps will be pulled, then that player will be given a single spade trick. This opening club lead will yield the declarer a small slam, just as the opening trump lead will do.

An opening lead of the ace of spades will make things very easy for West. South cannot ruff a second lead of spades, as he is chicane (void of trumps). West will take care to win the second spade trick with his K, to enable him to enter dummy with the Q, after having led a trump, and established clubs, as described above.

The only opening lead which may prevent a small slam is a low spade. In case the declarer fails to win that with his highest spade, so that he surely can enter dummy with a later spade lead, spades will be blocked. West can enter dummy only by leading a trump. He can establish clubs, to obtain 2 diamond discards, but he cannot enter dummy. North will let West win the spade lead with his K, but the ace will be played when West leads his last low spade.

Only a beginner or a careless player will fail to make a small slam at hearts.

Vegetable Plate—Baked Potatoes
Squash Carrots and Peas
Sliced Tomatoes
Maple Cream Cake With Frosting
Tea or Coffee

The vegetable plate is subject to many variations, as the seasons change or your fancy dictates. It is a colorful affair, and should be used more often in the average family. Inexpensive grill plates, in either china or glass, are nice to serve a vegetable plate on.

Today's Recipes.

Maple Cream Cake.—One-half cup butter, two cups light brown sugar, two eggs, well beaten; one cup sour milk, three cups sifted flour, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup pecan nut meats. Cream butter and sugar, add well-beaten eggs, a little each time, beating well between additions. Add the flour sifted with dry ingredients gradually, alternating with sour milk. Lastly add floured nut meats. Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees for 25 minutes.

Easy Cream Frosting.—One egg white, one cup confectioner's sugar, two tablespoons butter, one-half cup confectioner's sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, more sugar if needed. Beat egg white until stiff, add gradually one cup sugar. Cream butter add one-half cup sugar and vanilla. Combine both mixtures. Beat until creamy, adding more sugar if needed to make the desired spreading consistency.

FACTS AND FANCIES
Loony But It Works.

A housewife dares us to try this hint: Buy your usual cut of steak, but do not have it cubed. Instead, carefully remove bone and large gristle, then wrap steak in two or three layers of waxed paper. Adjust wringer on washing machine so it is not too tight and run steak wrapper in paper through the wringer two or three times. With correct cooking this will make the most inexpensive cuts of meat as tender as the best. Sounds rather idiotic, doesn't it? But just try it.

Fresher Frocks.

Upon removing your dress, place it immediately upon a hanger and place in a current of air to thoroughly dry out. Look over it to see if it has acquired any spots or needs pressing before being put away. Then a bag of sachet may be suspended inside th frock before it is placed in its cretonne bag ready for the next wearing.

HOMUTH ADMITS LETTER ASKING HENRY TO QUIT

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (C.P.)—Karl Homuth, former Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for South Waterloo, yesterday confirmed reports he had written former Premier George S. Henry demanding his resignation as leader of the Ontario Conservative party.

In a long distance telephone conversation from his home in Preston Mr. Homuth denied any secret meeting of the Conservative party had been held and said he took "full responsibility" personally for the letter.

"It is time for a complete reorganization of the Conservative party," he said, but declined to reveal whom he believed should be new leader of the party.

At his home outside Toronto Mr. Henry declined to comment on the letter, saying he had not yet received it.

Modern Beauty Doesn't Rely on Magic To Keep Skin Lovely, Says Gladys

Marlene Dietrich

Back in the sixteenth century, when the beautiful Diane de Poitiers became the mistress of Henry II and virtual Queen of France, women did fearful and amazing things to their skins. In those days there was magic in the very air. Alleged wizards and magicians were consulted on all points of beauty. And the court ladies could procure anything, from a magical love potion to a miracle-working beauty formula.

In this practical age, of course, the average woman doesn't place much faith in alleged wizards and magicians. She looks to scientists to provide her with beauty information. She doesn't expect miraculously to become a beauty over night. But she is just as desirous of a lovely skin as were the sixteenth century belles.

Physicians, dermatologists and cosmeticians all agree that the primary steps in preserving a good complexion are to keep the skin scrupulously clean, free of fatty residue, and to give it sufficient exercise to maintain its firmness and health. That might sound like a big order to you. But it really isn't any more. For a new facial treatment has recently been designed for just this purpose.

This new facial treatment consists of a cleanser and a stimulator. The stimulator is a tiny, specially designed complexion brush of just the proper texture for use on the face and throat. And the cleanser is a tiny, ivory-tinted complexion bowl of soap. This soap is a neutral soap and contains concentrated milk from which all fat has been removed. Sufficient of this de-fatted milk is incorporated in the soap to purify, soothe and tone the skin and help refine the pores.

To administer this facial you moisten the stimulator with warm water and rub it over the surface of the cleanser to produce a lather. Then you gently massage this creamy suds over your face and neck for two or three minutes with light, circular movements of the stimulator, working always upward and outward. After this you simply rinse your face with warm water and then cold, and pat it dry. And as a result, your skin appears clear, smooth, glowing, and fresh as an English garden.

Editor's Note: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

She Suffered With Pains in the Back

Ontario Lady Soon Got Relief Through Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. Little Says Nothing Helped Her But Dodd's Kidney Pills.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. Nov. 1. (Special). — "I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for sometime, and want to tell you that I never had anything help me like they have," writes Mrs. Jos. Little, 108 Merritt St., St. Catharines, Ont., "I have been bothered with pains in the back and also a distress across the lower regions of my body; a kind of bloated feeling. Whenever I feel out of order I take them for a week or so until I feel well again. I always keep them in the house."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become a household remedy all over the world because people have tried them and been more than satisfied with the results. Thousands of people are buying and using Dodd's Kidney Pills solely through the recommendation of their friends who first discovered their relieving and healing properties. A trial will convince you.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

People often say, "Well, you're always talking about the necessity of putting vitamins in the diet, but what will happen if we do not put them in?" The answer is that their absence causes the development of deficiency diseases, meaning diseases due to deficiency of one or the other of the vitamins.

One of these diseases is rickets. It is probably today the commonest of the deficiency diseases. It is important that parents, guardians and nurses of children should understand the cause and nature of the disease, expecially at the beginning of winter, in order to prevent it.

It was in 1918 that the English physiologist, Mellanby, proved that he could produce rickets in animals by feeding them on diets of cereal and skimmed milk. The puppies used in Mellanby's experiments developed soft bones, bowed legs and other typical deformities seen in rachitic children. No other studies prove more conclusively the value of animal expe iment tion, because these researches of Mellanby's have been the means of saving thousands of children from disease and hideous deformity.

The diet used is now recognized as being deficient in Vitamin D and also calcium, and it is the ack of these two substances in the diet which causes rickets.

Primarily, it is the lack of Vitamin D because even if the diet is sufficient in calcium, rickets will develop if it does not contain Vitamin D.

Rickets is exclusively a disease of childhood, and is largely a disease of the bony structures. The bones lack calcium and, therefore, are soft, and under weight-bearing the legs bend so as to become badly bowed or knock-kneed. The arm bones frequently warp.

The disease appears most frequently in the spring months, due to the lack of proper hygiene during the winter. Lack of proper hygiene means either lack of exposure to sunlight or to food containing Vitamin D, or to both.

The body is able to form V tamin D itself from its own chemistry provided it has sufficient exposure to sunlight. The sunlight forms Vitamin D in the skin, and after its formation it is stored in the liver. For this latter reason anima livers usually contain a good amount of Vitamin D, especially fish livers. So cod liver oil, halibut liver oil and almon liver oil are all sources of the vitamin necessary to prevent rickets.

Since it is formed by sunlight, it can be artificially induced by exposing various food substances to sunlight or to ultraviolet rays. Thus we have Vitamin D milk due to irradiation. Also viosterol, a vegetable oil in which Vitamin D has been produced by exposure to ultraviolet light.

Any one of these substances should be deliberately added to the diet of children during the winter months. Care should also be taken that the children have as much exposure to sunlight as possible during the short days.

GOOD AT DUCKING.

RIVERSIDE, Ont., Nov. 1.— (C. P.)—Some quick footwork on the part of Councillor William Emery enabled him to duck the shower of over-ripe tomatoes that came his way while giving a discourse on the town's finances at a meeting of the Riverside Socialist Club. A 10-year-old boy was paraded to the platform as one of the culprits, but his vehement denial gained him his freedom. Mr. Emery treated the matter as a joke.

Under auspices of the Ministers' Aid group of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, a very successful Hostess tea was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Sunday School room. The guests were received by the president, Mrs. A. Jack, assisted by Mrs. A. T. Barr, Mrs. R. Ross, and Miss Elizabeth Walker. The semi-circular form of the big room lent itself admirably to the occasion and Hallowe'en decorations were used throughout, arranged by those in charge, Mrs. F. J. A. Hall, Mrs. W. A. Burrell and Miss Violet Davidson. Tea was poured by Mrs. T. A. Mackay, Mrs. R. J. Goring, Mrs. R. H. Hunter and Mrs. M. McNabb, at two large tables covered with lace cloths and centered by branching candelabra holding black and yellow candles. At the corners, black cats and bats, in novelty cutouts, stood guard. The individual tables placed in the large Sunday School hall and adjoining alcoves were attractively arranged with hand-embroidered covers and vases of baby 'mums, and were presided over by a bevy of hostesses. During the afternoon, a pleasing program was rendered, including solos by Mrs. Lorne Mitchell, with accompaniments played by Mrs. G. W. Craw; an unaccompanied vocal trio was given by the Misses Emma Lou Chenhall, Isabel MacKay and Mary Sedgewick. Miss Muriel Harris played a solo number on the Hawaiian guitar, and Mrs. Gerald McClelland, who is here from St. John, New Brunswick, was greeted with enthusiastic applause on her appearance in recitations, this being her first visit home from the East to the church of her childhood days. Mrs. Robert Ross was general convenor of a very successful event, the proceeds of which will be used for relief work in the congregation.

The ladies of May's Home and School Association were hostesses at a delightful tea held in the school, when the guests were received by the president, Mrs. A. Brisco and Mrs. A. Pearson. The tea room was very attractively arranged in the colors of the Hallowe'en season. The tea table was centered by a small pumpkin filled with small bronze chrysanthemums and ferns and placed on a mirror reflector banked with pale green tulle in which nestled tiny 'mums. Orange candles were also decorated with sprigs of fern and tiny 'mums. Individual tea tables were decorated with bud vases of the same flowers. Tea was poured by Mrs. A E Saunders assisted by Mrs. W. Stevens, who was in charge of the tea room, and Mrs. Allan. A very interesting program during the afternoon was presented in one of the class rooms, with vocal solos by Mrs Todd, accompanied by Mrs. P. Dallin, vocal solos with guitar accompaniment by Mrs. G. Robinson, piano solos by Miss Jean Meeks, and a number of pleasing choruses, recitations, and readings given by the children. The guests were ushered to the tea room by Mesdames A Pearson, G. Cunningham, and Miss Squire and Mrs. J. Barnes was in charge of the sale of home-made cooking and candy, while Mrs. K. Denoon acted as treasurer. Ladies in charge of refreshments were Mesdames Watkins, Halliday, Brealey, Reid, McGregor, and assistants in the tea room were Miss Aileen Brisco and Miss Norma Stenson. Mesdames Cunningham and Pearson and the teachers of the staff were in charge of the program.

Mrs. John Bothwell, daughter of two of the earliest pioneers of the township of Cavan, celebrated her eighty-second birthday quietly yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. Mahood of 731 George street. Her father, the late John Madill, came to Cavan from the county of Monaghan, Ireland, as a child of four years of age, and his parents settled on the farm, not far from the present Bothwell home, now owned by Mr. Joseph Madill of North Monaghan, brother of Mrs. Bothwell. Mr. and Mrs. Bothwell had seven children, six of whom are living: George of Cavan; John of South Monaghan; Joseph of LaSalle, Michigan; Mrs. D. Mahood of Peterborough; Mrs. W. L. White, of North Monaghan, and Harry, who is occupying the old homestead where Mrs. Bothwell went as a bride and where she resided continuously for sixty-one years, until recently, when she came to the city to live with her daughter.

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Folding doors are in style again. They have always been included more or less in architectural plans, because of their practical value. But homemakers have been shy of using them since they seemed a bit out-of-date. Now they can slide the door back and forth with the feeling of assurance that they reveal one of the latest fads in home-building devices.

* * * * * * *

Modern folding doors have taken on novel aspects. For instance double folding doors, formerly partitioned off two rooms, with the opening coming in the centre of the wall between two projecting stable sections of equal size, and wide enough each to accommodate a door slid into the opening. One of the latest fads is to have but one wall section, with the doors in several sliding sections—each overlapping the others when folded, and all of which slide into the space between the comparatively small although thick partition wall.

* * * * * * *

Another idea of today is to have the doors hinged in sections which fold together like a Japanese screen. These sections may be ornamental, of plain polished wood, or be papered to match the falls. The sections are nearly ceiling high so that when doors are unfolded the wall appears continuous if a trifle undulating.

* * * * * * *

While these partitions seem decidedly modern many of you will recall the ingenious folding partitions in the Johnson house in London, England, where the lexicographer lived who compiled the famous dictionary. The swinging partitions make it possible to throw open practically a whole floor for festive occasions, or to divide the space into rooms and hall with doors for entrances and exits. One can picture large receptions of splendor held in these opened quarters, and also smaller teas when closed walls gave an intimate home atmosphere.

* * * * * * *

It will be seen that for centuries folding or sliding doors have been favored as utility partitions for rooms. Today when one room has to serve for several purposes in apartments, folding doors provide excellent solutions. They may be of any kind, old-style, or of modern uniqueness, but a single large room can be subdivided by them into two or more rooms providing a need of privacy or an open measure of spaciousness.

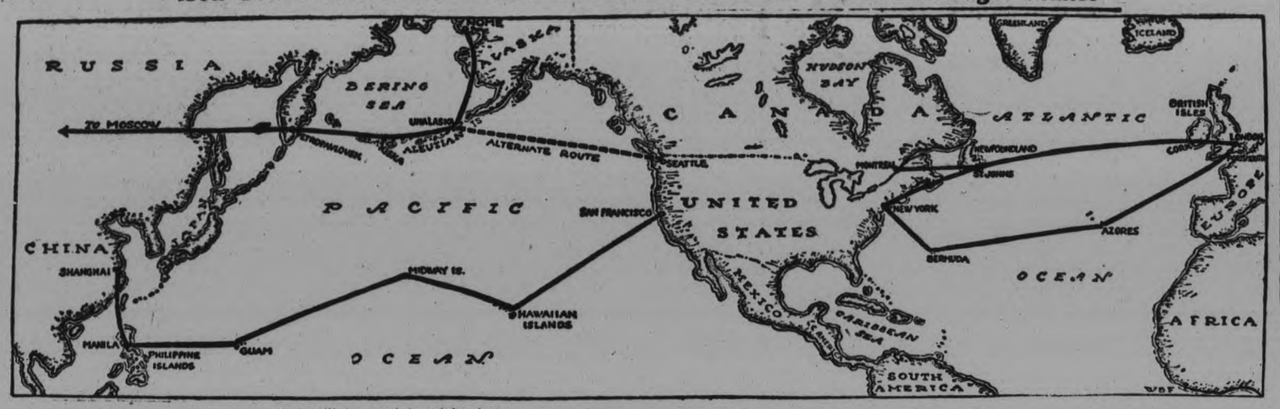
Italy's "Crazy Boy" Sets Record

Lieut. Francesco Agello, sometimes called the "Crazy Boy" of Italian aviation, attained a speed approximately one-half that of a bullet, when he shot through space in a secretly-built seaplane, of special construction, at a speed of 435 miles per hour over Lake Garda. He thus beat his own record mark of 423 m.p.h. which he established on April 10, 1933.

How British-American Combine Will Route Round-the-World Passenger Planes



These are the trans-oceanic routes that will be used by eight-day round-the-world passenger aeroplanes to be placed in service next summer by Pan-American Airways and Imperial Airways, British concern, working in co-operation with other lines which they control or with which they have traffic agreements. Pan-American Airways will carry passengers to England, from where Imperial Airways will carry them to Alaska, where they will again become charges of Pan-American.

Velvet And Tinsel

By LISBETH

It's surprising what a bit of tinsel, sequins, paillettes, a flower, or what have you in the line of something bright, will do for even a somewhat drab dress.

What a tinsel striped blouse will add to a brown velvet suit is demonstrated without doubt in this delightful suit worn by Una Merkel of the screen. The blouse has a belt of gold kid, and with this suit Una wears a brown malline hat and brown gloves and shoes.

One of the handsomest styles for dinner and theater dresses this season is the dark skirt with a metal cloth blouse, especially when the latter is in Russian styling.

Spain's Joan of Arc Proudly Goes to Prison

A 'Joan of Arc' of Spain's mine strikers (who must be nameless), marches proudly at the head of the column after she and 32 others were arrested in the forest near Les Branoseras. The village is in the heart of the mining centre in Asturias and was the last sector to be brought under control in the recent uprising. Wearing the barettas that have been part of their costume for ages, the civil guards are marching them to prison. The roadway, mottled by the noonday sun as the rays filter through the leaves, makes the scene a picturesque one indeed, in spite of its sombre connotations.

Dr. George Minot declares he owes his life to Canada's Sir Frederick Banting for his discovery of insulin.

Forgive And Forget Plans Foiled

After they had been married 13 years, Mr. and Mrs. John Vay were divorced. Later, "in a fit of jealous rage", according to the prosecutor, Vay threw acid in his wife's face and was sentenced to jail. Now, Mrs. Vay, living partially on relief in Cleveland, Ohio, seeks to remarry her ex-husband. But "forgive and forget" plans have been frustrated by the state who refuses to sanction such a marriage. Mrs. Vay says her two daughters need their father. Vay, a college graduate, is now a teacher in the penitentiary. Layout shows Mrs. Vay and her two daughters.

WINNIPEG GANGS GO ON RAMPAGE ON HALLOWE'EN

Rowdiest October 31st in History Sees Two Sent to Hospital.

DOZEN ARRESTED.

Riot Call Necesasry to Quiet Portage Avenue Midnight Fracas.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1.— (C.P.)— Winnipeg to-day reflected on one of the rowdiest Hallowe'en celebrations in its history.

Two persons were in hospital and almost a dozen boys were gathered in by police on minor charges for juvenile court authorities. A riot cal lhad to be sent in to break up a midnight crowd on Portage avenue.

J. D. Ludman, struck by missles thrown by boys he was chasing away from his store, was in hospital with scalp injuries. Four stitches were required to close the wounds.

Ann Kamsky, 17, received cuts when the riot call officers started to disperse the Portage avenue throng. She was standing next to the Mayfair style shoppe when a plate glass window was broken. Her injuries were not serious. There were several hundred in the throng, which blocked traffic and scattered cans, gates, an old bathtub and other relics over the street. Detonator caps were placed on car tracks.

The fire department answered more than 30 calls to minor outbreaks. Furniture in the home of William Robinson was damaged when a lantern set fire to window curtains.

OFFICERS CAPTURE ALLEGED POACHER

Haul of 450 Pounds of Fish is Recovered at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 1. — Three men alleged to be poaching on Government pound nets were interrupted early yesterday by G. K. Manore, Superintendent of the Fish Hatchery, and A. W. McLeod, Superintendent, from Toronto. When the boat bearing the three men and 425 pounds of whitefish, taken from the nets, was approached, two of the men jumped into the water, made shore and retreated in the darkness. The third man was taken but police refused to divulge the name, fearing it might hinder their work in apprehending the other parties.

Taking fish from the pound nets, which the Government are using to obtain spawn for the season's run at the hatchery, has been a common occurrence and a trap was laid yesterday, which resulted in at least recovering the fish. The boat was confiscated. It is believed the men were taking the fish to Point Anne by boat and thence by motor car to this city for sale to the local dealers.

Tourists' expenditures in Mexico last year are believed to be larger than usual.

Ottawa Watching Naval Conference

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—(C.P.)— The Dominion government is following closely the progress of the naval conference now proceeding in London between Japan, United States and Great Britain, but if any advice is being forwarded to the Mother country, as suggested in a London cable yesterday, it is not being discussed publicly here.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, in an interview given soon after his return from abroad last week, denied rumors that he had been discusing Empire defence while in London. He did say, however, that he believed Great Britain had gone farther than any other great Power in disarming and that her cruiser strength would be inadequate to protect essential food channels on the high seas in the event of war.

The new public-works program of the Philippines calls for an expenditure of $3,500,000.

British Beef Import Quotas Are Extended

LONDON, Nov. 1 (C.P. Cable).— Reuter's News Agency says it understands that discussions between Walter Elliott, Minister of Agriculture, and representatives of the Dominions have resulted in the various high commissioners for the Dominions agreeing in principle to beef import quotas that will operate until March 31, 1935.

Conversations on this question, in which there has been considerable divergence between the attitude of government officials here and that of the Dominions, were resumed yesterday and are now temporarily adjourned pending consideration of future policy.

It is understood the proposed quotas will be on the basis of the average quota for the corresponding period during the past three years. The home subsidy ends next March 31, and the British Government at that time faces the question of deciding upon a long-term policy on the vital question of meat imports.

Stale coffee loses flavor ... is nervously irritating

Coffee deteriorates very quickly after roasting. It develops rancid oil. Loses its rich, full-bodied flavor. Becomes nervously irritating. You find yourself easily upset by trifles.

Avoid the bad flavor and unwholesome irritation of stale coffee by buying Dated Coffee. Chase & Sanborn rush it to your grocer, with the date of delivery clearly marked on every tin, so there can be no doubt in your mind. And we watch this date and make deliveries so frequently that no tin remains on your grocer's shelf more than ten days. Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee is always fresh, full-flavored—a delicious, healthfully stimulating drink. Packed in pound and half-pound tins.

Just Gypsies

For 60 miles we nosed our trusty car northward through the woods and hills of Hastings county. Then beyond the alert little village of Bancroft we suddenly came upon beautiful Baptiste Lake.

For us alone, apparently, the gods had reserved the one little clearing of the south shore. At least no one else appeared to lay claim or exact rent for the lovely spot.

In a few minutes our gypsy equipment was drawn forth from our caravan—the back seat—and a shapeless green mass was assuming the form of a large umbrella tent.

From the shelter of great birches the camp looked forth upon the rippling blue waters of Baptiste and to a great forest wall beyond.

As the sun dropped down behind this wall and threw its colorful farewell across the sky, we built our crude camp fire, cooked supper, and rested, well content.

A morning dip while the wisps of mist were still on the hills; a hike on a wandering trail that leads to a prospect point; and some dreamy hours spent down on the sand reading a book that was upside down; such were the things that pleased us.

In three short days we had all the spice of varied weather. Heavy peals of thunder echoed through the hills while brilliant flashes lighted the sky. Then the rain descended and washed our car. In the evening a full moon cast shimmering shadows through the trees and threw a silver gleam across the lake. Soon a great wind arose threatening to upturn our whole abode and whipping the lake into an angry mob of black waves and white crests. Finally the sun reappeared and peace was restored.

The main thoroughfare of the lake settlement seemed to be the railway track. Not only did the tri-weekly train wheeze its way along this, but fishermen strode down it in the morning, milk boys in the evening, and even cows stumbled over its projecting ties.

Two small boys, carrying a pail visited our camp one evening. "Want to buy some crabs" asked the braver. "Crab-apples?" asked one member of our party, not knowing what else they could be.

"But we've no way of cooking them" said another member, recalling crabs she had eaten at the coast.

"Naw" said our salesman, holding up a crayfish, "these is for bait for fishin'."

Four days were not enough at Baptiste. We yet have channels to explore, a mountain to climb, and fish to catch.

$75,000 AND FOUR PLAYERS INVOLVED IN BASEBALL DEAL

Ryan and Vergex, Infielders, Become Property of Philadelphia.

STRENGTHENING TEAM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—In a deal estimated by club officials to involve $100,000 in cash and players, New York Giants last night announced the much-discussed acquisition of Dick Bartell, star shortstop of Philadelphia Nationals, as the first big move toward bolstering the former world champions for 1935.

The Giants turned over four players and an estimated $75,000 in cash for Bartell, outbidding at least two other National League clubs, St. Louis and Chicago. The players going to the Phillies are utility infielder John ("Blondy") Ryan, Third Baseman Johnny Vergez, Outfielder George Watkins and John Puzzello, right-handed pitcher, who performed with the Richmond, Va., and Nasville, Tenn., clubs last season.

Ryan Had Bad Year

There was no surprise in the players let go by the Giants. Ryan was a hero of the 1933 championship team, but his play fell off this year. Vergez, in three years with New York, has been the victim of injuries and tough luck. Watkins failed to measure up to expectations after being obtained in a trade with the Cardinals.

Bartell, a "fighting" type of player and much admired for his aggressiveness, is 27. He has been in the big leagues for seven years. He broke in with Pittsburg in 1927, after being picked up from the semi-pro ranks at Butte, Montana. He was traded to the Phillies after the 1930 season. He has a lifetime big league batting mark over .300, and probably will be the lead-off man for the 1935 Giants. His presence at short will cause Travis Jackson to shift to third.

Commandant Cronin, the new leader of the Free State Blueshirt organization, was fined two cents for negligent driving in Maryborough, England.

Hustling Hawks Rate 'Selves Highly

(By the Canadian Press.)

When Tommy Gorman departed from Chicago he must have left behind some of the confident spirit that has helped make him a great hockey manager. His 1933 edition of Chicago Black Hawks were cocky enough, but this year's team is asking already what other team but Toronto can keep up with them.

Perhaps it was because Owner Frederic McLaughlin was looking on, but when they had finished an hour's tough workout at Champaign, Ill., yesterday and Clem Loughlin waved them to the showers they protested violently.

Their new manager feels that when a team can work up that much enthusiasm a week before the schedule opens they have great chances of going places, and confidence, he believes, isn't out of place among world champions.

If Montreal Canadiens had any doubts about themselves after being beaten 2-1 by Boston Bruins in an exhibition game Monday night, they probably banished them after they whipped Frank Patrick's team 7-6 at Moncton last night.

Wildor Larochelle, who is working on a line with Aurel Joliat and Pete Lepine now, broke up the game almost eight minutes of overtime with a brilliant goal and scored another in the first period.

The Habitants' first line accounted for goals in all, Lepine and Joliat also scoring. Joe Lamb and the Mantha brothers, Sylvio and George, got the others.

Big Nels Stewart was Bruins' scoring ace with three gaols, and Peggy O'Neill, Johny Gagnon and Dit Clapper also beat Wilf Cude.

While Hawks seemingly can't get enough practice, Eddie Gerard's St. Louis Eagles are going stale on him and he ordered a lay-off to-day. The former Ottawa Senators started training in Ottawa and have had a long siege of it.

Jack Adams is waiting until after to-night's game with Toronto Leafs at Windsor before deciding which players he will use on his Red Wing team and which will be sent to Detroit Olympics. He has plenty of material and his biggest worry is in selection.

Young Normie Smith is giving John Ross Roach a battle for the goalie's job left vacant when Canadiens recalled Wilf Cude and both will be used to-night against the Torontonians while Adams gets a further line on their work.

Leafs are taking a large squad to the Border City and Manager Conny Smythe and Coach Dick Irvin hope the workout will help them to make up their minds which players to retain and which to send to Syracuse, their farm.

The Toronto team has an ambitious exhibition program with a game in London Saturday night, another at Syracuse Sunday and a third at Toronto Monday.

New York Rangers and Montreal Maroons play again at Winnipeg to-night and will leave over the week-end for St. Paul, where they stage a two-game series. They go from there to St. Louis where Rangers open Nov. 10 and Maroons Nov. 13.

United States' Prospects For Davis Cup Becoming Gloomier.

SHIELDS WITH MOVIES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (AP).—The light of hope for a successful 1935 United States Davis Cup team glimmered faintly to-day. The movies have claimed Frank X. Shields, No. 1 player, and the final blow that will leave the United States Lawn Tennis Association in the dark is expected shortly with the announcement that George M. Lott, Jr. and Lester R. Stoefen, crack doubles pair, have turned professional.

Shields's contract leaves him free to play tennis, but it is generally believed he will be too busy with his new undertaking to remain in active competition or be a candidate for next year's team.

Lott and Stofen are weighing an offer to turn pro. made by Bill O'Brien, sports promoter, and William Tilden and are reported to be on the verge of signing away their amateur standing and contracting to play to the tune of the clicking turnstiles.

NORM LOCKING JOINS HAWKS, PIVOT FOR THOMPSON - MARCH

Owen Sound Whirlwind Broke Into Pro Hockey With Cards But Farmed Out.

BAD MOVE FOR BIRDS.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., November 1 (C.P.). — It was just three years ago that Pudgy Ted Graham, then Chicago's ace defenceman, brought a tall, gangling youth into the Black Hawk training camp, and officially sponsored him as a coming National Hockey League star. The young fellow was Norman Locking, of Owen Sound, Ont., Graham's home.

He skated fast in practice, this Locking, but the Hawks had plenty of material that autumn, and the boy seemed somewhat slight of build for the big league wars. They signed him and later released him to St. Paul of the American Association. It has turned out to be an expensive business.

Just recently the Hawks paid good money to get Locking from the Cleveland club of the International League. They wanted a centre player to fit in between two of the most brilliant wingers in hockey, Paul Thompson and Mush March. Locking was the boy. He has proved it to Manager Clem Loughlin's satisfaction in practice.

Since he left the Chicago camp three years ago the Owen Sounder has gone places without delay. He was a success in his first season as a minor league professional, and last year he landed with Cleveland to immediately become a standout performer.

He led all goal-scorers in the International League with 24, and placed seventh among the point-getters.

TERRIERS TO BE FETED ON RETURN TO ORILLIA

ORILLIA, November 1. — Orillia Terriers, Dominion lacrosse champions, will be feted at a reception and dance on Friday night, tendered by the citizens of the town. Each player will be presented with a club bag.

Terriers, who won a post-season series with St. Helen's at Vancouver are en route home and will arrive on Friday morning.

At the reception Fred Waghorne president of tht Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association, is expected to be present to present to Terriers the gold medals donated by the Ontario body to the team winning the Provincial crown.

BASEBALL HAS BEEN SELECTED FOR OLYMPIC DEMONSTRATION

NEW YORK, November 1.—Baseball has been selected as the sport foreign to the organizing country to be demonstrated at the 1936 Olympiad in Berlin, according to word received yesterday by Frederick W. Rubien, secretary of the United States Olympic Committee.

The Berlin Organizing Committee has requested the United States organization to send a team to meet a team from Japan in a single game the night of August 13.

In order to spare expenses, it was suggested the American nine be made up from members of the United States team who will compete in other events, but Rubien pointed out that this is a question that will have to be decided upon by the American Committee.

PETE VITARELLI TAKES TRIUMPH FROM SPENCER

GOOD RASSLING FARCE.

Reg McMillan knocked out Harry Jennings in the third round of the main bout at the Armouries last night. The wrestling and boxing bouts were staged under the auspices of the Kinsmen Club in their Hallowe'en Carnival, and were witnessed by some five hundred fans.

The first bout was between Pete Vitarelli and Fred Spencer and proved a dull affair. These boxers, who had met before, proved too cautious and staged an uninteresting bout. They sparred throughout the first round, feeling each other out, and Pete won on his leading, but by a slight margin. The second round saw a few brief flurries but the boys were still too careful, and no damage was done. It was about even. The first two minutes of the final session was very quiet but Pete opened up the final sixty seconds to pile up a substantial lead with his rushing tactics, knocking down his rival once for no count with a one-two to the jaw and out-boxing him completely in time to gain the nod. The decision was given the Italian and drew scattered applause.

Good Wrestling Farce

The wrestling match was staged next, Bill Gerow and Stan Peryer mixing it for fifteen minutes. They pulled everything a pro could think of and then some, but failed to reach a decision, the bout ending a draw. They tried rough-and-tumble, and straight grappling, mixing scissors-holds, strangles, toe grips, flying tackles and boxing — being in and out of the ring time and again—but could show no superiority over over each other. Twice, they had the referee down in rough mat-work, and the affair finally wound up with both more than willing to continue.

Len Minicola failed to appear for the semi-final boxing bout and Gord Hunter—a former lightweight champion of British Columbia agreed to go in against Jack Heffernan, local welterweight. It turned out to be a perfect boxing lesson for the fans, with Hunter doing the demonstratng. He proved to be a shifty, experienced ringman with a lovely left hand which he hung in Heffernan's face all evening and took all three rounds by a good margin. When too far ahead on points, he stalled in obvious fashion, as huskier opponent being unable to land a square wallop on him throughout the fight, though he tried gamely in the third stanza. Jack was bleeding at the nose and tired at the finish.

Knockout Victory

The final bout of the evening was a five-round affair between Reg McMillan of Peterborough and Harry Jennings, late of Rochester. It started off like a good bout but the local leather-pusher early showed a decided superiority through sheer power and anxiousness. He waded into Jennings from the start and took the first round easily on his aggressiveness, rushing Harry around the ring with a two-handed barrage to the head, downing him once for no count and staggering him another time with both dukes to the whiskers.

The second was another fast round, with Reg again having the edge on his pushing, two-fisted attack, while the New York boy was so busy warding off rights and lefts that he could not lead himself. Reg. tore out in the third with both dukes flying and knocked his opponent down for a one-count with a one-two to the chin. They sparred around and Harry began to bore in. McMillan whirled into action again with both mitts and drove him to the ropes. Jennings went down under a right uppercut that caught him right on the button and he lay inert while the referee tolled the count of ten over him. He was aided from the ring while McMillan got a big hand to wind up the card.

Earthquake shocks which destroyed the town of Carnot in Algeria also damaged many other villages in the district.

HARPS AND HABITANTS EVENLY DIVIDED IN 1934-35 EDITION OF LALONDE'S LES CANADIENS

Riley, Carson, Portland, McGill and Crutchfield Have True Emerald Ring to Names—Trades and Judicious Scouting Have Given Coach Promising Material.

FAMOUS OLD GUARD GONE, MORENZ TO HAWKS, GAGNON WITH BRUINS, LEDUC PILOTS QUEBEC

By WALLACE WARD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

MONTREAL, Nov. 1. (CP)—Long labelled the Flying Frenchmen of the National Hockey League, Montreal Canadiens seem to be turning from Gallic to Gaelic as the years roll by. Irish hearts have thumped under red, white and blue jerseys throughout the history of the club but the green of Erin has never battled with the Gallic tricolor as it is now.

Pete Lepine

Riley, Carson, Portland, McGill and Crutchfield have a true emerald ring to their names. Wilf Cude is a Welshman and another Gael. The harps and the Habitants are about equally divided in the 1934-'35 edition of es Canadiens Newsy Lalonde will lead into the N.H.L. fray this month after training camp preparation at Saint John, N.B.

The spirited Canadiens will have some strange faces in the lineup when they answer the call to battle. Trades have removed some familiar figures and trades have brought some new ones.

Howie Morenz, speedball centre star for a dozen seasons, has gone to Chicago Black Hawks. His old tricolor sweater with the large "7" on the back will hang unused on its peg in the Canadiens' dressing room, a sentimental gesture by his old club. Leo Bourgeault, chunky defenceman, has been sent to Quebec Beavers, Canadiens' new farm club in the Canadian-American League. Albert "Battleship" Leduc, defence star with Canadiens up till two seasons ago, has been named manager of the Quebec club. Johnny Gagnon has gone to Boston Bruins in a trade. Lanky Lorne Chabot has been sent with Morenz to the Chicago club, and will guard the vacant goal cage Chuck Gardiner left when he died last Spring. Marty Burke, defenceman, is also with Chicago.

Trades in the professional hockey mart and judicious scouting among the amateurs have given Coach Newsy Lalonde promising material to build up a strong team to send into action when the season opens this month.

Cude Recalled

Wilf Cude, plucky little Welsh goaler, was recalled from Detroit Red Wings to whom Canadiens loaned him last season. Wilf was sensational with the Wings when he replaced John Ross Roach during the season.

From Chicago Black Hawks the Canadiens secured Roger "Broadway' Jenkins, a sturdy bodychecking defenceman who can rush fast. From amateur ranks the Canadiens picked up a pair of husky sharpshooters in Jack McGill and the rugged Nels Crutchfield, scoring aces of McGill University, Canadian and international intercollege champions. Crutchfield plays either centre or wing. Jack McGill is a wingman too.

Aurel Joliat

Sylvio Mantha, wily old veteran, and Jack Portland, rapidly improving youngster, are available for relief duty on defence. Jack Riley, one of last season's best looking rookies, will centre the second forward line with Armand Mondou on left wing and the fast-skating Geoge Mantha racing up and down the right side. Paul Raymond will play on the third line with the two college recruits, Jack McGill and Nels Crutchfield.

Lafrance Sent to Beavers

Adelard Lafrance, Sudbury youngster who turned pro with the Canadiens late last season, has been sent to Quebec for seasoning together with Bob McCully, and a few other promising youngsters who tried out at the Saint John training camp for places with the Redshirts.

LEPINE HAS CHANCE TO SHINE AS STAR IN THE MORENZ BERTH

Canadiens' Shake-up Makes Reserve Centre First Line Player.

Long Howie's "Understudy."

"Nine times a bridesmaid, never a bride"—not until the 1934-35 hockey season, anyway. That, possibly is an explanation for the hockey career of rangy "Pit" Lepine, smart Canadiens' centre ice star who this year will be in the pivot position on the Redshirt first string line.

Lipine has long been recognized as one of the smartest centre men in the National Hockey League, but unfortunately for him, should he have had designs on a seat in the hockey hall of fame, Canadiens have been blessed with super-star who rather overshowed all lesser lights—Comet-like Howie Morenz.

With the veteran front man doing his stuff this year with Chicago Blackhawks, however, "Pit" comes into his own.

Flanked by little Aurel Joliet on the left and with Wildor Larochelle patrolling the right boards, the poke checking ace will have a chance to bask in the glory of front rank rating.

He joined the Canadiens in 1926 and has been with Dandurand's French club exclusively. Standing five feet ten and one-half inches high and weighing 171 pounds he has shown himself a fast skater even in the speedy Redshirt company. Probably this most valuable asset aside from a hurricane attack is an ability to poke check with the best of them. Lepine is co-holder with Charlie Conacher of Toronto Maple Leafs of the N.H.L., scoring record of five goals for one night's work. His best year was 1930, when he put together 24 goals and nine assists for a point total of 33.

Two seasons ago when Morenz was showing a mediocre brand of puck-chasing, Newsy Lalonde moved the rangy "Pit" up to the front line. The incentive, perhaps, of seeing another centreman replacing him had something to do with the great Howie's comeback.

Pit has had plenty of hard luck during his career. A broken leg threatened to end his playing days once, but the underpinning recovered and failed to hinder his play last season. A broken nose, smashed hands and fractured collarbones have also been his lot, but cannot hinder him when he starts away with the cry of the rabid French Canadian fans ringing in his ears.

There will be plenty of comparisons this year, for the break-up of the veteran line may not be welcomed in Montreal, but Lepine has his chance at last to become an outstanding star in his own right—and maybe the loss of Morenz to Chicago will not be missed as long as the tall lad is pivoting for the Redshirts.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—Sammy Slaughter, 162, Terre Haute, Ind., drew with Alabama Kid, 159, Dover, O. (12); Babe Amos, 155, Syracuse, N.Y., drew with Ray Drake, 156, Indianapolis (8).

Numbers Will Count In Exhibition Game

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 1 (CP) — It will be a test of numerical strength when Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings engage Dick Irvin's Toronto Maple Leafs in a hockey tilt here to-night. Adams will throw 18 players, including two goalies, into the fray, while the Toronto mentor has 17 players whom he may dress.

With Adams, it is a case of experimenting to find out which of his many players will best fit into his style of campaign. He has two new front lines he will show against the Leafs. Lorne Duguid, George Patterson and Wally Kilrea have impressed with their work in the city championship series while playing for the Olympics and will get an opportunity to clinch a berth with the major league team. The old Philadelphia Arrow trio of Connie King, Tommy Anderson and Yank Boyd will also show their wares against the Toronto team. Normie Smith and John Ross Roach will share the goal-tending duties.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(By C. J. P.)

Reg McMillan, hard-hitting local middleweight—and not a bad looking chap either, girls—piled up his tenth straight ring victory last night at the Armouries. He polished off one Harry Jennings, late of Rochester, in three rounds without extending himself unduly. In fact, you got the opinion that he was just doing a half days' ordinary work and waiting for the whistle so he could punch out and get at something more pleasant. It was a businesslike demonstration with Reg gluing his right mitt to his chin and ripping holes with his left before he'd park that right where it would do the most good. Well, it did eventually!

• • • • • •

As a matter of fact, we didn't think much of this Jennings bird. He may be a good guy to his mother and kind to animals, but we don't think boxing is his game. McMillan isn't a world-beater at boxing—he's just a game, hard-hitting youngster who may get somewhere later—but he had it over Harry like a Turner's tent, out-speeding, out-boxing and out-punching him from start to finish. At least Reg can wallop like nobody's business.

• • • • • •

The first bout on the card was be tween Pete Vitarelli and Fred Spencer, and perhaps the less said the better. It was just one big yawn for three rounds, and a yawn that long isn't much fun. They were too careful, and twice nearly mussed each other's hair up. We don't care for that in a boxing ring. Pete won by a narrow margin on points, but he'll hardly brag about it. Len Minicola failed to show up in time for his fight, so Gord Hunter, weighing 128 pounds, agreed to go in against Jack Heffernan at 140 pounds. But the British Columbia boxer didn't lose anything by it. He proved a mighty shifty and clever scrapper whom Jack could not lay a glove upon and out-boxed his opponent 100 per cent, and even stalled at times to make it look like a fight. This Hunter will be heard from later in the east—just wait.

The rasslin' was just rasslin', and that should be enough. Stan Peryer had a habit of drop kicking like Joe Savoldi, but Bill Gerow shaded him a mile with his realistic groans. It was a pure and simple burlesque of the pro grappling game and was quite funny in spots, with referee Scates down twice and having a tough time trying to keep order.

Toronto Vi-Tones play the local Orfuns an exhibition rugby game at 3.30 Saturday in Riverside Park. This will be the second tilt of a double-header, Oshawa and P.C.I. seniors winding up their schedule here at 1.45. Since Orfuns are not slated to participate in Ontario football playdowns this week-end, they decided to keep in trim with a game—and picked a good team. Vi-Tones played in the same loop as Oshawa Blue Devils and Mining World, and gave all opposition a stiff run before being eliminated. These games will get away promptly on time and should be worth seeing. The local O.R.F.U. entry will likely get a bye to the Provincial semi-finals now.

Charlie Carson has his squad in the well-known pink, drilling nightly at King Edward Park. Next week, they'll have to practise indoors, we imagine, as it's getting dark earlier every eve. With two or three of the best P.C.I. player added to the outfit, the Orfuns shape up as a classy intermediate team, and one that may sweep right through to the finals in their first season. It will be interesting to see how they stack up against the Toronto crew here Saturday.

The important Eastern District soccer championship game between Trenton Airport, winners of the Bay of Quinte loop, and Canadian General, local champs, is billed for this Saturday afternoon at three bells in King Edward Park. Should be plenty interesting to followers of soccer. Last time they met, the visitors won by the odd goal.

Nov. 15th in Toronto sees the opening of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada three-day convention. Some forty motions will face the delegates but most of them are minor matters. British Columbia will bring up the ever-troublesome question of whether or not an amateur should be permitted to play in pro company without losing his simon pure rating. The Central Ontario branch will suggest that the sub-divided branches of Ontario be eliminated, this Province reverting to its former status. Neither of these motions will get to first base, but will go out swinging.

Up and down Sports' Rialto: Len Minicola was late getting down from the road camp last night and plenty peeved at being unable to meet Heffernan, as scheduled, in the Armouries boxing bout . . . . Senior O.H.A. hockey looks to have the skids under it generally this winter, at least so far . . . . A Lindsay dispatch says the Lindsay junior pucksters will likely be grouped with Peterborough, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Belleville, Trenton, Campbellford and Cobourg . . . . It's doubtful if the Scugog town will have an intermediate outfit this winter . . . . Officials at the boxing and rasslin' yester p.m. were: Promoter, Dave Cowan; referees, Gord Hunter and Fred Scates, the latter also announcng; judges, Percy Grey and Vern Selkirk.

Washington are the lone exceptions.

Army, for instance, plays Illinois this week and Navy later, as well as Harvard and Notre Dame.

Dartmouth and Princeton will square off against one another in the season's final for both.

Taking everything into consideration, the best guess seems to be that the end of the season will find Alabama, Michigan State, Minnesota, and Princeton with their slates clean of tie or defeat.

ROSS-CANZONERI SCRAP IS HEADED FOR CHICAGO

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (CP)—The long-discussed return match between Barney Ross, world's lightweight champion, and Tony Canzoneri, from whom he won the title, is headed for Chicago, it was indicated to-day. It is expected to take place there early in December over a 10-round route if Canzoneri accepts terms.

Ross signed articles of agreement yesterday, according to a message to his New York representative, Sol Gold.

Ross won the championship from Canzoneri in Chicago and successfully defended it against him here three months later.

Ross is expected to engage in several overweight matches before meeting Canzoneri.

Thirteen Unbeaten Teams On U.S. List

Army, Navy and Princeton Neither Tied Nor Beaten in East.

(By Herbert W. Barker)

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Thirteen United States major college football teams still are pursuing that will o' the wisp, a perfect season, an all-conquering campaign marred neither by defeat nor tie.

Here's the list of major teams neither beaten nor tied as it stands now:

East.—Army, Navy, Dartmouth, Princeton, and Syracuse

Midwest — Minnesota, Illinois, Chicago, and Michigan State.

South—Alabama and Tulane.

Far West.—Washington.

Rocky Mountain—Utah Aggies.

A study of the schedule for the rest of the season shows that of these 13, no fewer than nine are booked for competitions against one or more teams also on the list; thus making it certain that the final count will be far short of 13. Alabama, Tulane, Utah Aggies and

COTTON, BLAIR AND DORATY SLATED FOR NEW QUARTERS

HOLLETT RETURNS.

GALT, Ont., Nov. 1.— (C.P.)—Harold Cotton, Andy Blair and Ken Doraty may have played their last hockey for Toronto Maple Leafs. Reports persist here that the trio are slated either for sale to another National League club or loan to Syracuse, Leaf farm.

Pep Kelly, Nick Metz and Art Jackson, the line Conny Smythe lifted bodily from St. Michael's College, Canadian junior champions, would fill the gap their passing would leave.

Smythe is represented as feeling his "kid line" are worthy successors to the sensationally successful Conacher-Primeau-Jackson combination which Smythe also graduated in one step from junior hockey to big time.

Hollett Returns.

He may gamble on the youngsters providing the punch his team lacked in the playoffs last season and make only one other change, replacing Levinsky, sold to New York Rangers, by Busher Hollett, who was on loan to Ottawa Senators last season.

This would give Toronto the old kid line and the new and another line made up of Hec Kilrea, Bill Toms and Buzz Boll. For defense they have Frank Clancy, Red Horner, Happy Day and Hollett, with George Hainsworth in goal.

There is a possibility Smythe may decide to keep either Blair or Doraty as a utility forward, with Blair the more likely choice. He has already cut down his training camp squad by sending Phil Stein, Bob Davidson and Fred Robertson to Syracuse and Cotton may follow them.

If Smythe parts with Doraty he will lose one of the greatest opportunists in the game. In play-offs with Detroit last spring and with Boston in 1932 the little winger has snapped in goals that won valuable games and marked him a money player who could keep cool in a tense situation and outsmart hockey's best goalies.

Joined Leafs in 1928.

Blair went to the Leafs from the University of Manitoba team in 1928 and was an immediate success. Illness kept him from playing his best hockey in later seasons, but he showed up well in the last campaign.

Cotton came to Leafs from Pittsburgh in the 1928-29 season.

STILL BUSY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (CP)—Business at The Times Square subway station isn't what it used to be, but it's still the heaviest in New York.

Transit Commission figures announced to-day showed that 77,687,613 nickels climbed into the turnstile slots at the Square during the fiscal year ending June 30, compared with 79,094,381 the previous year. The statisticians figure that, coming and going, 155,375,226 passengers used the station during the year.

CHAPTER 19

"Honestly, inspector," continued Tim, "I'm not sure what I mean. I just don't think you've got an answer to a puzzle like this when there are pieces lying around that don't fit in. I don't know anything. You check your alibis yourself. I can't believe it has anything to do with the murder. And so I don't want to tell you as long as you can find it out for yourself.

"But I do still believe you ought to arrest Jamieson. I have an idea that might precipitate something and maybe then some of these odd pieces will fall into place." There was the faintest rustle on the staircase but he did not look up and the inspector missed it.

"We'll have to pick up Dan, -too, and Mrs. Reeves."

The reporter nodded. "That'll probably help."

"I'll go down after the warrants now and round 'em up right after dinner. Hall might as well come along. Suicide!" he snorted. "All these insurance guys are alike."

Tim moved toward the door laughing and called, "I'll be down at headquarters when I get cleaned up at the office."

A few minutes later Ruth, sitting quietly in her office, heard the inspector go down the stairs again with Hall. There came the soft hum of a motor and the detective car pulled away from the curb.

Ruth waited until the sound had died away, then peered cautiously out of her office door. No one was in the building but Walker and Wilson, and they were sitting in the latter's office smoking their pipes and talking. The plan that had come to her as she read the reports crystalized while she listened to their muffled voices. But first there was something else to do.

With one eye on the closed door she called a number.

"Hello," she murmured softly into the 'phone. "Can you hear me? This is Ruth Turner. The police are going to arrest Ralph Jamieson tonight and you must help me save him. I know you can."

She listened for a moment. "But you must," she pleaded almost sobbing. "Nobody knows where he went last night but you. You've got to help me."

Again she listened and after a moment she smiled. "In half an hour," she said.

The door to Wilson's office opened a minute later and Walker appeared. "Good night, sir," he said, lingering half-turned in the doorway. "Try to forget it and get a decent sleep tonight."

He smiled at Ruth as he passed her office and turned into his own. "Dr. Walker," she called breathlessly and hurried after him.

Leaning against his desk, he listened to her as she spoke to him briefly in tones that were almost a whisper, gesturing with her fragile hands excitedly. Puffing on his pipe he leaned there, shaking his head in half-hearted protest. But she refused to listen, putting her hand on his arm as she urged him eagerly. Suddenly he smiled, nodded his head in consent and smiled again.

When the girl returned to her own office she slammed shut her typewriter desk, took out her purse from a drawer and swiftly pushed into it the bulky manuscript of statements. Tonight at dinner she would go over them again. Then she hurried from the house and up the street.

In perhaps ten minutes she halted before the apartment building in which Mrs. Reeves lived. Going in, she hesitated for a moment at the foot of the stairs before she squared her slender shoulders and went boldly up the steps.

The widow greeted her quietly with a faint smile, but Ruth noted that the hand she gave her was as cold as ice. The two eyed each other thoughtfully for a moment—Ruth, a slight, child-like figure in her slim sleeveless frock of yellow silk, with her fine, golden hair blowing about the taut eagerness of her face—and Mrs. Reeves composed, quiet, somehow even peaceful, wearing a soft chiffon gown of creamy-white, like the exquisite color of her skin.

"I still don't quite understand, Miss Turner," said the older woman in her low, rich voice when they were seated in the living room. "Why are the police arresting Ralph Jamieson? It's not in connection with my husband's death?"

Ruth nodded.

"But that is so stupid. Don't they have to have some sort of proof and some reason?"

Ruth leaned forward toward the older woman. "I don't know all they think they've found as evidence. But I know that they're going to arrest him tonight. I just heard the inspector tell that reporter so. Though the reporter says he doesn't think he's guilty."

"And the evidence?"

The girl's face flushed a little but her eyes met the woman's steadily. "They heard about that quarrel in the office yesterday afternoon. They think he was in love with you. They might have believed his story, I think, but when they asked him questions about last night he lied. He doesn't lie very well. We could all see it. He's worried about something."

"About the quarrel?" murmured Mrs. Reeves. She gazed directly at the girl. "What do you believe yourself, Miss Turner?"

"I believe in Ralph," said Ruth simply, "because, you see, I love him."

Mrs. Reeves eyed the girl keenly, a little surprised. She had seemed incredibly slight and young when she came in. But there was a depth, a control to her answer that suggested an older woman.

"But what can I do?" she asked with a slight gesture of bewilderment.

"Ralph is lying about something that happened last night between 9:30 and 10:30," said Ruth, "because he thinks you are in danger and he can protect you. If you'll tell what happened then he'll be safe." She stumbled a little in embarrassment. "I—I didn't mean that you should tell it if it does put you in danger, of course. But I'm sure Ralph is wrong. If everybody would tell what they know, maybe it would all be cleared up." She hesitated again, then rushed on more youthfully. "Ralph acts as if he thinks you had done something that would be hard to explain or something. I think it's horrid of him."

"No, my dear, it's very sweet of him to want to help me." She sat in silence for a moment, thinking, then went on. "You must believe me when I tell you that I'd help if I could, but I have no idea what he did except during ten minutes of that hour. He left me before a quarter to ten and I haven't seen him since."

Ruth started at her, aghast. "I was sure you could fix it if you would," she said suddenly very near to tears. "Now what can I do? They'll arrest him and he'll have to go to jail after all."

Mrs. Reeves was silent as she gazed at the girl compassionately. "I think I have it," she began. "It's just an idea and someone else will have to do the work. You said that Sun reporter thought he was innocent, didn't you? He's the one I'll go to. You run along and don't worry any more."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, November 2

A day of the unusual, mysterious and highly adventurous is predicted from a long and intriguing chain of planetary configurations. It is probable that extraordinary, unexpected and perilous situations may arise to give an exciting and disturbing if not devastating cast to current affairs and conditions. Change, turbulence, excitement, with rather startling developments, may be presaged and all calling for cool and calm decisions and movements. Violence, passion, impetuosity, jealousy might precipitate extremely disagreeable and hazardous circumstance. Be calm.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year calling for all their self-control, restraint and wise deliberation if they would avoid the pitfalls and disasters incited by impetuosity, passion, jealousy, quarrels and other forms of indulgence, excesses and temper, both in business and private affairs. Startling, mysterious and perilous predicaments rule the year. Sudden change is imminent.

A child born on this day, although having many kind and lovable qualities, may be also be tempestuous, unruly, passionate and always in "hot water."

VICTORIAN ERA IN GRAND SHOW

Niddy-noddy and Busk Have Places in Unusual Exhibit of Antiques.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (C.P.). — Hundreds of the ornaments and implements of life in an earlier America are jumbled in the grand ball-room of a local hotel where the Fifth International Antiques Exhibition is open. Pin-cushions, china dogs, pressed glass, quilts, fine old chairs and objects of questionable elegance or utility are so thick that it looks as though an old-fashioned church rummage sale had been arranged amid the elaborate pre-war ornamentation of the big hall.

From the confusion emerges the conviction that Victorianism is popular once more. Scarcely a booth lacks examples of glasses of the Victorian era. There are wax flowers and Victorian prints and Victorian chairs, complicated and mildly uncomfortable looking. There is Victorian china everywhere. One dealer has arranged his exhibit to resemble a Victorian parlor in Brooklyn in the '70s or '80s. Brussels carpet, carved walnut arm chair covered with tight red brocade, down to the curious little white china dogs Victorians seem to have been so partial to, and the glass-topped table filled with knick-knacks.

"We are just in time," said W. B. Sprague, president. "People are forgetting the names and uses of the old tools. And more of them are lost every year.

"Take that niddy-noddy. The member who got that has found something that in another 20 years no one would know how to use, much less name. He found it in the house of an old woman in Connecticut, and she told him the verse that goes with it, that used to be sung while the wool was wound: 'Niddy-noddy, niddy-noddy, two heads and one body.' The tools and their uses, and things like that are all being forgotten as fast as they can be."

There are curiosities in the exhibition, too, things like the big horn that was used to call in laborers to dinner on the farm, ginger bread boards; a "busk," a large wooden stay that was slipped into the front of the corset to serve the same purpose as the modern "uplift brassiere."

Sir Philip Sassoon, British Under Secretary for Air, is making an air journey of 19,300 miles to inspect Royal Air Force bases and units.

The Weather

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—(CP)— Synopsis—A disturbance of moderate intensity is passing eastward across the New England States, while an area of high pressure and moderately cold weather is coming over the Great Lakes and middle states from the far northwest. Light rain or snow has occurred in many districts from Ontario eastward, while in the western provinces the weather has been fair with somewhat higher temperature in Alberta.

Lower Lake region and Georgian Bay—Fresh north and Northwest winds; partly cloudy and cold; a few scattered snowflurries. Friday—Moderate northwest to west winds; fair and rather cold.

Northern Ontario — Northwest winds; mostly fair and cold today and Friday.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley — Fresh northwest winds; mostly cloudy and cold with scattered showers or snowflurries. Friday — Fresh northwest to west winds; fair and rather cold.

PRIZE WINNERS AT BIG CARNIVAL

EIGHT CLOG DANCERS.

Keen competition was offered in the contests held last evening in connection with the big Kinsmen Hallowe'en Carnival, which attracted close to a thousand people from the city and district.

The clog dancing contest, judged by Reeves Harry Wood, James Gifford, and Allan B. Mann, had eight entries, with the prize of $5 being awarded to George Downer, city. Other contestants were; Victor and "Mickey" McManus, Lakefield; Norman Matthews, Warsaw; James Jordan, Ted Maskell, Bert Jones and Jack Baker, city.

Judges of the costumes were Reg. Turner and Chris Graham, who placed the winners in the various classes as follows: Ladies' fancy dress, Cecilia Delorme, in a unique advertising costume representing Dominion Woollens and Worsteds; comic dress, the Misses Alda and Hazel Bradley, as Mickey and Minnie Mouse. Gents' fancy dress: Art Beauclerc, as a Buccaneer; comic dress, Frank Douglas, as Buster Boy. A special prize was also awarded to little Gladys (Dolly) Lewis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Lewis.

Emmet F. Sheehy as the Masked Marvel, made the door prize drawing, the winner being the holder of stub No. 1821, while the drawing for a ladies' coat or gentleman's overcoat was won by the holder of stub No. 412.

Robert Stanley, who headed the general Carnival committee, acted as master of ceremonies throughout the program and had the assistance of a strong committee.

Rosicrucian Order Hears Commissioner

An open meeting of the local Rosicrucians was held on Tuesday evening at the home of the District Commissioner, R. Farthing, 416½ George Street. There was an appreciative audience, numbering many sympathizers and friends of the Order. Commissioner Farthing was the speaker of the evening. He opened his address with an exposition of the nature of man and of man's consciousness in relation to himself and to his environment; the question arising whether man's true nature was material or spiritual. The speaker pointed out that part of the work of the Rosicrucian Order was in increasing the range and extent of man's consciousness. That man occupied a unique position in nature, being the link between the animal world and the spiritual world. He afterwards lightly sketched the salient points in the history of the Rosicrucians from before the time of Moses to the present day, naming a few of its more eminent members ranging from the earliest prophets, mystics and philosophers of the ancient world to Professor Einstein of today, whose theory of relativity and of the curvilinear nature of space, the speaker remarked, was based upon the knowledge in the possession of the Order. The earliest foundation of the Rosicrucians in America was touched on, and its revival in 1915 in New York with its present establishment in San Jose.

At the close of the meeting it was strongly urged upon the local brethren that a series of these meetings, open to the general public, be held during the coming winter season. Should this be decided on, notice of each meeting will appear in the columns of The Examiner.

Because of a shortage of supply of Siberian lumber American wood is being used more extensively in China.

Sales and wages of government employees in New Zealand will be raised.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK — By R. J. Scott

GRENFELL HOPES TO TAKE IT EASY STARTED IN 1892

Great Labrador Physician Has Served Natives for 42 Years.

RICHLY EARNED REST.

Relief Stations and Outposts Dot the Cold Bleak Peninsula.

By Central Press Canadian

QUEBEC, Nov. 1. — With more than 42 years of dog team mushing over the Labrador icy wastes to his credit, Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell, silver-haired medical missionary, who is noted for his heroic welfare pioneering work, may soon decide to "take it easy," a rest he has richly earned in an action-crammed life.

The pleasant looking Englishman, whose exploits include carrying medical aid to the isolated Labrador fishermen and their families in the teeth of fierce blizzards, has remained modest while the entire world has paid tribute to his indomitable zeal.

All over the wind-swept and bleak peninsula, which thrusts its huge length into the icy cold northern Atlantic, are scattered medical stations and other relief outposts attesting the industry and kindliness of Sir Wilfred.

Started in 1892

Back in 1892 he left his pioneer medical work with North Sea fishing folk and turned to out-of-the-way Labrador across the Atlantic. Dr. Grenfell had heard harrowing tales of the wretched condition of the Canadian mariners. Equipped with a hospital ship, he arrived on the rocky shores of Labrador and began his work of relief for the 15,000 inhabitants, some of whom are Christianized Indians.

HOSPITAL FOUNDER, SIR WILFRED GRENFELL

In the following years, Dr. Grenfell added five hospitals to his primitive original structure. They were erected about 150 miles apart from each other. He also built nurses' stations, schools, orphanages and co-operative stores.

Gradually his philanthropic work became widely known and contributions of money and labor poured in. On his hospital ship, the Strathcona II, scores of young people aided him on his missions of mercy along the Labrador coast. They worked without salary and paid their own expenses, and there was a long waiting list of candidates from which Sir Wilfred selected his crew.

Many of the volunteers are stationed at various isolated settlements as teachers and workers.

Women in Industry

Sir Wilfred also established an industrial department which provides paying occupations for hundreds of women while their husbands are away fishing.

At St. John's, capital of Newfoundland, port of call for supplies of thousands of fishermen, Sir Wilfred established the Fishermen's Institute, which was opened by King George V of England.

In recognition of his meritorious work, he has been honored and decorated by a score of societies. He holds half a dozen honorary medical degrees, besides the highly-prized knighthood received in 1927.

Sir Wilfred is the author of several books, some dealing with his medical pioneering and his classic, "Adrift on an Ice Pan," is used as a school reader in American and British classes.

He is one of the few living men to have an organization named after him, the International Grenfell Association, in which he has taken considerable pride.

Cavan

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Swain attended the anniversary services at Mount Pleasant on Sunday.

Mrs. Leonard Challice of Garden Hill visited her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. Carr, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Begelow, and children, of Millbrook, were guests of Mrs. Bigelow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Swain, on Sunday.

Mrs. Annie Hunter attended the anniversary services at Mount Pleasant on Sunday.

Mis Winona Cathcart has returned home from the Nicholls' Hospital, Peterborough, where she has been a patient for the past week.

Mrs. Donald Tinney and sister, Miss Mary Cathcart, were guests of their cousin, Mrs. E. J. Grandy, of Millbrook, on Sunday.

Mrs. B. F. Carley of Bolton spent the week-end with her son, Oakley, here.

Misses Eleanor and Margaret Fallis of Peterborough, were the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fallis, over the week-end.

Apsley

A masquerade dance was held in Apsley School on Friday evening and attracted a huge crowd, a great many being in fancy costumes. The object of the dance was to raise funds to pay the prizes awarded at the Rural School Fair. The objective was over-reached, there being a substantial surplus left over after meeting all expenses. The proceeds amounted to approximately $50.

Kilborn (pirate), second; girls, Gwennie Kilborn, (Saturday night), first; Virgie Smith, (Indian maid), second. The door prize was won by "Tiny" Hunter; and the draw for a bed spread was won by George Wilson.

Kiwanis Governor Attending Convention

CHICAGO, Nov. 1. (CP)—Frederick G. McAlister of London, Ont., Governor-elect of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime Kiwanis district, arrived here to-day to attend the annual council of Kiwanis International which will last until Saturday. The meeting brought together Kiwanians from many parts of Canada and the United States.

Mr. McAlister announced these district Lieutenant-Governors will take office next Jan. 1: T. Walden Thomson, Owen Sound, Ont.; Frederick H. McLean, Swansea, Ont.; Allan Kneale, Brantford, Ont.; Arthur J. Ames, Ottawa and Harry C. Murphy, Halifax.

To Assist Beatty

FREDERICK A. GABY

Ousted from his post as chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission by the new Ontario government, Frederick A. Gaby (above) has been appointed assistant to the president of the Canadian Pacific Railways, announcement from E. W. Beatty, president, states.

AIRMAIL FOR ESKIMOES

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 1 (CP).—Beginning Nov. 21 and ending April 12, winter air mail service will include three flights into the Arctic. The mail will be carried by Canadian Airways Ltd. aeroplanes, three of which will go as far north as Aklavik.

NAZI TRIBUNAL DOOMS TRAITORS

Names of Condemned and Number Are Kept Secret of State.

MANY GET LONG TERMS.

BERLIN, Nov. 1 (CP-Havas) — Nazidom's secret people's tribunals yesterday passed sentence of death of treason.

Neither the names of those condemned, nor the number, were divulged by the Nazi authorities.

It was learned that several others had been sentenced to long terms of solitary confinement running as high as 15 years. Two prison terms were imposed, as distinct from the solitary confinement sentences.

In connection with the sentences a brief communique was issued by the ministry of justice.

"All these sentences," it said, "were imposed by virtue of a retroactive decree. The accused committed their crimes before May 2, 1934, the date on which the law for treason became effective, a law which, in principal, provides for only one penalty, death. Every German who since that date has betrayed his country must realize that he risks his life and that he will be excluded from the national community. Such conception conforms with popular common sense and the Nazi sentiment of justice."

SOMERSET APPOINTED MARKET COMMISSIONER

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 1 (C.P.)—The Ontario Marketing Board has been dissolved, and its work now will be taken over by W. R. Somerset, former chairman to be known as the Ontario Marketing Commissioner, Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture announced yesterday.

J. B. Fairbairn, deputy Minister of Agriculture, and H. B. Clemes, manager of the United Farmers Co-operative, were the other members of the original board.

"A whole lot of marketing boards are being appointed under the new Federal act," said Mr. Marshall, "and I think it will avoid confusion. I think one man can give work of this kind better attention."

Order for appointment of Somerset will be made to-day, said the minister at a salary yet to be determined.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME.

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Why at 40 You Think You're "Growing Old"

At about 40, many people think they're "growing old." They're tired a lot. Have headaches more often. And they're subject to stomach upsets — nausea. Talk of "nerves."

Well, scientists say the cause, in a great many cases, is merely this: a tendency to an acid condition of the stomach. Likely the result of faulty diet.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, all you do is take a little Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. Soon you feel like another person.

Signs Which Often Indicate "Acid Stomach"
ACID INDIGESTION — LOSS OF APPETITE
AUTO-INTOXICATION — FREQUENT HEADACHES
NAUSEA — FEELING OF WEAKNESS
SOUR STOMACH — SLEEPLESSNESS
MOUTH ACIDITY

What To Do For It

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water in the morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

Stomach calm. Fewer headaches. And the pep and energy you thought lost, comes back again!

Try this. Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'", or, the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets — convenient to take with you anywhere.

Also in Tablet Form:
Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Movie Contract Offered Fred Perry, Tennis Ace

LONDON, Eng.—Fred Perry, British lawn tennis champion, was reported to-day to have received the offer of an "amazing contract" from a leading Hollywood studio. His fiance, Miss Mary Lawson, herself a British film star, declined to reveal the exact amount Hollywood had offered but admitted that it was considerably more than £20,000 (about $100,000). "In his cable to me" said Miss Lawson, "he declared the offer was too good to be true, but did not say whether he would accept it." Perry is due in Auckland, New Zealand, this week-end where he is to make a tour.

Brave But Bold Hero Thinks He Was Foolish

CHICAGO. — Donald McKinlay didn't know how brave he was. Even now he can hardly believe it. He was driving home early to-day when he stopped for a red light at Sheridan avenue. A bandit jumped onto the running board and ordered him out. McKinlay got out. But he was angry. Without stopping to think he swung a fist straight to the bandit's face, knocking him down. Then he held him until the police came. Then McKinlay began to think, and the more he thought the more amazed he was about his conduct. He said: "I certainly was foolish. I don't think I would do anything like that again."

Music Out Of Her Voice Girl Crippled For Life

CHICAGO. — Dorothy Lambert will never sing from the concert stage again. The cane that she must carry for life might not prevent; but the music went out of her voice with the death of the young man she had married less than a year before. The jurors understood that to-day. They awarded her damages of $35,000 against the New York Central Railroad for the crossing tragedy that left her crippled and took the life of her husband. James, editor of a Harvey newspaper. The twenty-four fractures she suffered, the cane she carried, were explained by her attorney, Royal W. Irvin. A graduate of the University of Chicago, the young widow had been a star in golf, in hockey, tennis, and swimming. But now, her attorney said, there could be no happiness for her.

13 COMPANIES ALL PAID SHARE OF HUGE WAGE

Laborer Ordinarily Worthy of His Hire Power Magnate Tells Jury.

TELLS OF FORMING TRUST.

Admits Salaries Held Up During 1930-31, Got Two Raises Besides.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2—(AP) — Thirteen salaries, paid to Samuel Insull by his companies, gave him a pay cheque of roughly $500,000 in 1930 and 31. Insull admitted today under cross-examination in his mail fraud trial.

Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter drew this admission as he began cross examining Insull, as the defendant finished direct defence testimony.

Walter asked about 13 salaries paid to Insull in as many questions. To all Insull answered, "yes sir."

Insull had testified that he formed the first of his investment trusts Insull Utility investments, to insure control of his huge public utility system.

"You also had a personal motive, did you not, in wanting to maintain the Insull management?" Salter asked.

"Excuse me," asked Insull, "what do you mean?"

"Well, you were receiving from these various Insull companies in the neighborhood of a half million dollars a year in salary?"

"To that extent at least you had some personal motive in wanting to see the control of these companies kept by you and your associates, didn't you?" Salter asked dryly.

Different Motive

"You may think that is the motive," said Insull, "I dont.

Insull turned to the jury and said, "I will say to the jury that I received these salaries, and I think that ordinarily, gentlemen, the laborer is worthy of his hire."

The salaries were listed as $75,000 from the Commonwealth Edison Company, $75,000 from the Commonwealth Subsidiary Corporation, $75,000 from the Peoples' Gas, Light and Coke Company, $25,000 from the Peoples' Gas Subsidiary Corporation, $50,000 from the Public Service Subsidiary Corporations, $50,000 from Middle West Utilities Company, $8,333.33 from the Midland United Company, $25,000 from the Chicago Rapid Transit Co., $12,499 from the Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad, $7,500 from the Chicago Aurora and Elgin Railway, $24,000 from the Peabody Coal Company, $16,000 from the Midland Utilities Investment Corporation.

They made a total for 1929 of $481,000.

Insull's salaries not only held up during 1930 and 1931, but he received two "raises," he testified under questioning.

DOORMAN SUES FOR PINT BLOOD

Claims Patient Owes Life to Transfusion—Sold 54 Pints in 7 Years.

MANY "ON THE CUFF."

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 2. — (A.P.).—Samuel Szego, 60, a doorkeeper at a Budapest sanitorium, began a suit to-day for $25, alleging another citizen owed him that for a pint of blood.

Szego says the blood was transfused from himself to the defendant, saving the latter's life.

The plaintiff is the most famous "blood spendj" in Hungary, having sold 54 pints of his blood for transfusion in the past seven years.

His customers are from all classes but Szego complained bitterly in court that many people still owe him for blood sold "on credit." His overhead costs are quite considerable because he is obliged to pay for frequent analyses of his blood, and must follow a strict diet, he said.

HANSON OFFERED STEVENS' POST IN TORY CABINET

York-Sunbury, N.B., Member Returns Home "to Think It Over."

SHAKE-UP RUMORED.

Conservative Members Flock to Ottawa as Re-organization Move Develops.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2. —(CP)— An atmosphere of 'what next?' In respect to the dominion cabinet is apparent these days on Parliament Hill. Apparently the resignation of Hon. H. H. Stevens has precipitated a measure of cabinet reorganization which while expected eventually, was not looked for until later on. Now the question asked generally is how far will it go.

As far as can be ascertained Prime Minister R. B. Bennett has made one definite proposal to a new man, speaking from the cabinet point of view, R. B. Hanson, Conservative member for York-Sunbury, N.B., prominent parliamentarian left for home yesterday with an invitation to enter the cabinet.

It is understood that he has been asked to accept the portfolio vacated by Mr. Stevens. He is thinking it over.

Only One Definite

That, with, of course, the resignation of Mr. Stevens, is the only word of a definite nature which has yet come out. But there are persistent rumors of further changes to come. Presumably British Columbia will not be left without cabinet representation. In this connection the name of Grote Stirling, who represents Yale in the Commons, is mentioned. He is a capable parliamentarian and a good speaker.

Other cabinet changes may come about in the next few weeks. Conservative members are here in numbers, but it is understood that their presence is attributable more directly to party reorganization plans than to possible appointment. The provincial situation, as well as the federal, enters into the picture and its possibilities will probably be canvassed during the coming weeks.

Times Too Hard

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., November 2 (C.P.). — Richard Dix and his wife ran out of gasoline en route to Palm Springs.

For 50 minutes the movie star hailed passing automobiles in vain. Finally a farmer gave them a ride to Banning and back to the Dix car. Dix offered to pay.

"Times are too hard, stranger," the farmer replied. 'Keep your money."

PRESSURE GANG HITS MONTREAL

City Takes Action to Prevent Campaign by Salesmen Ousted From Ontario.

HOLD DRUNKEN PARTIES.

MONTREAL, November 2 (C.P.) —Driven out of Ontario by a campaign against sellers of doubtful stocks and bonds, a large group of high pressure salesmen have set up headquarters in a Montreal hotel, and have made themselves obnoxious by drinking parties and rowdy conduct, J. R. Neilson, general manager of the Better Business Bureau, revealed to-day.

Steps were to be taken at once to see that these salesmen did not start peddling worthless securities here, Mr. Neilson declared.

Recognizing they would be unable to get their licenses renewed as securities salesmen, they came here apparently in an effort to set up organizations to peddle worthless stocks and bonds, the Better Business Bureau official said, but their presence had been quickly recognized and investors would be protected.

A charge of attempted burglary had been laid against one of them found scrambling about on a fire escape outside the window of a guest, it was learned, but the charge was withdrawn when it was explained the accused was intoxicated and was merely playing a prank

DEFEAT LOOMS FOR DOUMERGUE AND HIS CABINET

Radical Socialists Under Herriot Refuse Power to Dissolve Deputy Chamber.

PREMIER DISCOURAGED.

Italy Expecting France to Seek Her Support on Moving Troops to Saar.

PARIS, Nov. 2 (A.P.). — Premier Gaston Doumergue seemed likely to-day to be forced from office by the refusal of the powerful Radical Socialist Party, headed by Edouard Herriot, to give him increased power to dissolve the Chamber of Deputies.

President Albert Lebrun continued desperate efforts to reach a compromise and save the "truce government," which took over after bloody rioting last February.

He summoned Herriot, a former Premier and now Minister without portfolio, to the Elysee Palace, but Herriot's Radical Socalist supporters said there was little hope for a settlement.

Crisis To-Night.

A Cabinet session is scheduled for to-night, and should it fail to solve the question, the Cabinet might resign, but it also may meet again to-morrow for a final decision with President Lebrun assuming the role of peacemaker.

"Only a miracle can avert the crisis," said one Minister, while others took the situation less seriously.

Doumergue was said by friends to be tired and discouraged. He originally intended to remain in power until he pulled France out of the hole, regardless of political opposition, but has been disheartened by political bickering within and without the Cabinet.

He was saddened by the Marseille assassinations and the death of former President Raymond Poincare, and is also conscious of the prevalent belief here that the German military "menace" is growing.

Support in Italy?

ROME, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—The Foreign Office expected France to-day to seek support in Rome for her decision to send troops into the Saar if a German outbreak comes in connection with the January 13 plebiscite.

Italy will be consulted along with Great Britain, a Foreign Office spokesman said, because this country likewise is a signatory to the Locarno pact. The French request, however, has not yet been made in Rome.

Asked what would be the Italian attitude, the spokesman replied that Italy's chief position is that the Saar problem should not lead to war.

He said it was logical, however that France should place troops at the disposition of the League of Nations' Saar Commission because it would be difficult to obtain soldiers from a neutral country.

LABOR FORCES GAIN 526 SEATS ACROSS BRITAIN

Conservatives Lose 405, Liberals 30, in British Municipal Elections.

45 REDS RUN, ALL BEATEN.

Trend in View of Approaching General Vote Gives Officials Food for Thought.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(C. P. Cable) —At 5 o'clock this afternoon (Noon E.S.T.) compilation of the voting in municipal elections in London and all England and Wales showed the following results:

Labor gains 526.
Conservative losses 405.
Liberal losses 30.
Others losses 91.

Food For Thought

Inroads made by Labor into strongholds of the Conservatives in municipal elections throughout England and Wales today gave political observers food for thought.

Results from many sections of the country showed that Labor had registered sweeping gains. The outcome in the London district where municipal voting took place for the first time since 1931 was considered of special significance.

Voters in 28 London boroughs were balloting in the municipal field for the first time since just after the general elections of three years ago. At that time the overwhelming Conservative strength in the government was reflected also in the municipal arena.

Cities Swing Labor

The trend of the voting in the more than 30 cities of England and Wales was significant, too, in view of the possibility of a general election next year.

Labor's gains were marked in many large cities and towns. Manchester gave them a net gain of eight seats over the Conservatives and Liverpool a net gain of nine. The same story was told in Birkenhead, Burnley, Derby, Preston and many other centres.

Further results from London boroughs were as follows: Fulham, Labor gained 27 seats; Labor 27, Munifipal Reform, 13; Labor gain.

Southwark, Labor gained 52 seats; Labor 59, Independent one; Labor gain from Municipal Reform party.

Woolwich, Labor gained 12; Labor 35; Municipal Reform 10; Labor gain.

Shoreditch: Labor gained 29; Labor 36; Municipal Reform six; Labor gain.

All Reds Beaten

Forty-five Communists stood in various parts of the country. All were defeated.

In Poplar Labor won all 42 council seats for the first time in the history of the borough. George Lansbury, the Labor leader in the House of Commons, was returned without opposition. The only seat lost by Labor was to the Municipal Reformers in Holborn.

An odd situation arose in South Bloomsbury. There was a vacant seat in one ward but no contest. The returning officer placed the names of four retiring members in a pickle jar and invited a newspaperman to draw a name. He drew that of a Muncipal Reformer.

In Woolwich Labor now has a majority of 21. Before the polling their majo was one seat.

In London as a whole 250 women candidates campaigned and nearly 120 were successful.

POLLING BOOTHS MAY BE CHANGED CITY ELECTIONS

Committee is Named By Finance Committee to Make Arrangements.

HILLS USUALLY ICY.

In preparation for the holding of the municipal elections on New Year's Day, the Finance Committee of the City Council last night appointed Mayor Denne and Alderman George A. Macdonald as a special committee with City Clerk S. R. Armstrong to select officials and polling booths for the elections.

For several years now the polling places have been in schools and other public buildings, but this may be changed this year in some subdivisions. Mayor Denne maintained, and members of the committee agreed with him, that last year many persons were kept away from the polls owing to the fact that the schools in which the polls were placed are located on hills which were icy and dangerous both to pedestrians and motorists on election day.

It was urged that in some cases an effort should be made to locate the polls in places that would not be difficult to reach, if sidewalks should be icy. The committee will consider this suggestion, it was said.

As far as possible unemployed men, providing they are capable, will be used as officials at the polling booths.

A. G. Metheral, relief officer, was instructed to employ a man in his office after November 15. Nagle Phelan is leaving on that date to join the employ of the Provincial Welfare Department. The relief department will be permitted six dollars a month for bus transportation of its employees on business of the department.

W. J. Collins will replace Harry Moncrief as operator of the snowplow for the district No. 6. Mr. Moncrief was the successful tenderer but illness made it impossible for him to do the work. Mr. Collins will receive $225 for the season, the same payment for which Mr. Moncrief agreed to do the work.

The Property Committee discussed the need of an additional unit to the incinerator, which it was agreed is too small to efficiently handle the garbage during the summer months. City Engineer Parsons reported upon the feasibility of making this addition, and said that the new building could be erected without difficulty at a cost of $6,200.

While it was generally agreed that the addition was necessary, it was decided that it must wait for decision by next year's Council.

'PEG OFFICIALS READY TO AID INVESTIGATION

Approve McFarland Suggestion in Hope Canadian Wheat Exports Will Increase.

PROTEST BEAR RAID ITEM.

Claim No Conditions Existed to Justify Story Sent From Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, November 2 (C.P.). — The Council of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, which pegged wheat futures prices in its pit on November 1, at the instance of the Dominion Government, to-day expressed readiness to aid the Government or any impartial inspectors in an investigation into its trading operations.

In a formal statement issued today the Council approved in principle the suggestion of John I. McFarland, general manager of the Canadian Wheat Pools, that Canadian, Argentine, and English wheat markets be investigated, in the hope exports of Canadian wheat would increase.

The Council took exception, however, to a "mischievous despatch" "originating from some newspaper service in Winnipeg" that there had been an organized bear raid on the Winnipeg grain market during the first week in October. (The story refrred to was not carried by the Canadian Press)

Figures There If Wanted.

"There was no condition existing" according to the Council's facts and figures, "that would justify such a story." International grain trading firms mentioned in connection with the "bear raid" were prepared, said the Council's statement, to reveal their trading figures to Mr. McFarland if he so desired.

The Council further declared it would "lend all possible assistance to a Government supervisor of the kind recommended by the Stamp Commission should the Government see fit to appoint one." (A Royal Commission under the chairmanship of the noted financier and economist, Sir Josiah Stamp, conducted an inquiry into the wheat marketing conditions of the Dominion in 1931. Appointment of a Government supervisor was one of its most definite recommendations."

NO BEER VOTE ON NEW YEAR'S

Two Months Must Elapse Between Time of Request and Day of Voting.

MEETING CALLED.

Peterborough Temperance Association who decided at a meeting early this week to ask the city council for a local option vote to be taken at the forthcoming municipal elections, have since learned that their contemplated move is forestalled owing to statutory time limitations.

But while there can be no local option vote on New Year's Day, because the proposed request could not be presented in time to allow of the vote being taken at that time, a mass meeting of all temperance forces in the city is called for eight-thirty Sunday evening to reconsider the whole question.

The meeting is to be held immediately following the church service at Murray Street Baptist Church Sunday School Hall.

Original intention of the Association had been to send a strong delegation to the council on Monday ev-

German Press Reminds France Invasion of Region Will Brand Her "Aggressor."

STORM SQUADS REVAMPED.

Churchill Warns Britain Nazi Re-arming Secretly, Illegally, Rapidly.

By WALTER E. BROOKMANN

BERLIN, Nov. 2. (AP).—Chancellor Hitler, his newspaper denouncing possible occupation of the Saar by France, was reported to-day to have taken up the troublesome question at length with leaders of his storm troops.

This was one of the principal subjects at a two-day conference ended yesterday.

Indication persisted here of France's reported intention to occupy the Saar region if called on by the League of Nations' governing commission to do so.

"The French press has been talking of using French troops outside of French territory with unexampled irresponsibility," declared Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobacheter.

"We remind France" it admonished, "that the international definition of the aggressor is one whose troops invade foreign soil." The newspaper said even the Versailles Treaty recognizes the Saar as German territory.

The very purpose of the Locarno Pact of 1926, it insisted heatedly, was to prevent war between France and Germany.

Judge's Marriage To Be Investigated

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Trustees of the Los Angeles Bar Association announced yesterday it had decided to investigate all phases of the marriage of Superior Judge Guy F. Bush and the former wife of a man the jurist sentenced to prison for a felony.

Mrs. Bush's former husband, John Le Grand, is president of a pipe supply company in Long Beach. For grand theft and violation of the Corporate Securities Act in connection with the theft of $85,000 from investors, Judge Bush sentenced him to serve two years in prison. Judge Bush reduced the sentence to six months on the same day last April that Mrs. Le Grand sued her husband for divorce on the grounds he was a felon.

Judge Bush was divorced from his first wife, and after Mrs. Le Grand obtained her divorce they were married in Tijuana, Mexico.

Deserves Medal

NEW YORK, Nov. 2. (CP).—Milton Einsohn, 20, who broke a traffic law to save the life of a 6-year-old boy, found mercy tempered justice in his case to-day.

He was accused of driving an automobile without a license.

"If you sent Einsohn to jail" said Christ O'Banion, father of the injured boy, "I must serve his sentence. He saved my boy, Anthony."

The Magistrate suspended sentence, told Einsohn "You should have got a medal instead of a ticket."

Anthony was injured by an automobile Sunday night, and Einsohn hurried him to a hospital.

LIQUOR STORE STAFF OUSTED

LIBERALS GET POSTS.

LINDSAY, Nov. 2.—The Hepburn axe fell heavily here yesterday, when the entire staff of the Liquor Control Board store, outside of T. J. Begley, the vendor, were ousted without notice. Those 'fired' were W. J. Elliott, J. W. Brown and George Pol lock, who have been members if the staff since the opening here.

Those to fill their places are Jack Hartnett, a retired farmer and James Mitchell, who formerly lived near Dunsford. Both were active in the Liberal cause in the last election. Scores of citizens are up in arms over the dismissals. The Lindsay store was rated as one of the best managed in Ontario, according to inspectors.

Tweed Man Let Off On Car Theft Count

TWEED, Nov. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—Leo Kelleher, of Tweed, pleaded guilty to a charge of the theft of a motor car, when arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in Belleville, and was given one year's suspended sentence. Kelleher was found in the possession of Steven Hawkins' automobile in Toronto three weeks ago, after Mr. Hawkins had consented to drive Kelleher to Belleville. The accused man, who only recently became of age, had no previous record nor had he ever been in trouble.

TELLS LIFE CAREER.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (AP)—Samuel Insull, Sr., came back to-day to put the finishing touches to the story of his life's career—a story in which he confesses mistakes, but admits no wrongdoing.

The white-haired, 74-year-old former utilities czar, accused with 16 others of swindling investors out of some $100,000,000 in the sale of his Corporation Securities Company stock, had his "day in court" yesterday, and he made the most of it. There were times when he cried. They came when he referred to the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Alva Edison when he first went to work for the late electrical wizard in New York.

There were times when he slammed his fist on the witness chair to emphasize a point. One of these was when he told the jury that his Middle Western power pool

Drivers Exonerated In Trenton Fatalities

COBOURG, Nov. 2 (CP)—Investigating the death of William Cox and Roy Durocher in connection with a highway accident which occurred in September near Trenton, a coroner's jury at Brighton last night brought in a verdict exonerating the drivers of blame.

The collision occurred when Alexander Costal of Buffalo, driving a large sedan west between Brighton and Trenton, collided with an eastbound car driven by Durocher, said to be due to both drivers mistaking the other's intention in regard to a left-hand turn. Both cars were damaged almost beyond repair.

Costal escaped injury, but Cox, who was riding in the rear seat of the Ottawa car, was instantly killed. Durocher died the following day in Belleville Hospital. The inquest last night had been adjourned from that held two weeks ago in order that the testimony of one of the witnesses in the hospital at that time could be obtained.

ENDS IT ALL

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2 (CP) — The body of Mrs. Ann Johnston, 30, wife of Joseph P. Johnston said his wife had suffered a nervous breakdown.

WHEELING, W.Va., Nov. 1 (CP)—Hunting season's on, and the hunting stories are starting to come in, with Findley Rice, of Middlebourne, in the van.

Rice claims to have fired one shot at a squirrel in a tree, after which three dead squirrels fell out. He told friend his bullet apparently pierced the first squirrel, and banked off the tree trunk into the others.

The nearest claimant to Rice's record is another Wheeling district hunter, who says he killed two squirrels and a pheasant with one shot.

LIVESTOCK PRODUCE AND CHEESE QUOTES

TORONTO CHEESE.

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (C.P.)—The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady to-day, with dealers, buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 9¾c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices: New large, 11¾c; twins, 11½c; triplets, 11¾c. Old, large, 17c; twins, 17¼c; triplets, 17½c. Medium, large, 15c; twins, 15¼c; triplets, 15½c.

ONTARIO GRAIN.

TORONTO, November 2. — Approximate prices track shipping point:

Wheat 90c to 92c, oats 30c to 33c, barley 43c to 44c, corn 75c to 78c, rye 45c to 47c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, November 2. — Prices were mainly unchanged on the Montreal Produce and Dairy market yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter in car lots or less was again quoted at 19½c to 19¾c a pound. Small lots to the retail trade brought 20½c a pound for solids and 21½c for prints. Arrivals were 10 boxes.

Ontario colored cheese sold at 10c to 10¼c a pound, while Quebec cheese was quoted at 9¾c a pound. Receipt stotalled 1,414 boxes.

On the egg market, graded shipments in car lots or less were 42c to 43c a dozen for A large 39c to 40c for A medium, 34c to 35c for A pullets, 22c to 23c for B and 20c for C. Arrivals totalled 2,061 cases.

Potato pices were unchanged, Quebec bringing 35c to 40c, New Brunswick Mountains 40c to 45c and Prince Edward Island Mountains 45c to 50c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 2.— Active buying that apparently was associated with closing up of trade spreads between Chicago nad Winnipeg led to sharp upturns of prices yesterday for wheat.

Although the inauguration of minimum prices for wheat at Winnipeg was variously construed in Chicago, many traders acted on the belief that the step would result at least temporarily in arresting declines in European markets. Considerable notice, too, was taken of British semi-official estimates indicating a decrease of 44,000,000 bushels in world export surplus supplies of wheat.

Closing quotations in Chicago for wheat were firm at about the day's top level, 1c to 2¾c above Wednesday's finish. May 95⅞c to 96c, corn unchanged to 1½c higher, oats 1c to 1½c up, and provisions showing 12c to 35c gain.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, November 2. — The effect of minimum-price rulings on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange was bullish yesterday, as wheat futures prices, backed by plentiful support, scored net advances of 1¾ cents—December at 76¾c, and May at 81¾c.

Aiding in the upswing was the strength in outside markets and the buying of 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat by foreign importers.

Shooting upward at the opening, values at no time came closer than ½ cent to the "pegged" levels, December option at 75 and May 80 cents.

The stops were placed under the market by the Exchange Council following an emergency meeting, adopting the suggestions of the Dominion Government. No further statement was issued by the Council yesterday, but it was understood further application may be made at an early date.

Outside markets were bullish. Liverpool gaining ¾d and Chicago more than 2 cents. Other news was also constructive. Argentine wheat shipments for this week were smalled than expected, totalling 1,062,000 bushels, while other reports said Russia was shipping wheat from Black Sea ports to Vladivostok.

WEEKLY LIVESTOCK REVIEW

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (C.P.) — Prices on the Toronto Livestock Market this week were lower on hogs, two grades of cattle, firm on lambs and steady on calves and sheep. Its steady trend of higher prices apparently broken, the hog division lost 25 cents while butcher cattle and weighty steers dropped 25 to 35 cents in the four days' trading.

Receipts on cattle, calves and hogs were heavier than for the previous week, but 3,000-head lighter on the sheep and lamb division. Almost 6,000 head of cattle met buyers at the opening of the market and of these, 3,200 were unsold. Past history of the market shows that heavy, plain quality cattle runs flood the market at this time of year and prices are not expected to regain losses for about five weeks.

Butcher cattle were at a standstill on Monday and only moved the following day when the price was cut 25 cents. Closing levels were at $3.25 to $4, with tops generally $3.75. Exporters paid $4.50 to $5.25 for choice weighty steers on Monday, but for the balance of the week, packers took the remaining supplies at $2.75 to $4. Common butcher cattle ranged from $1.50 to $1.75 for boners to $2 for tops.

Fed calves sold steady at $6.50 to $7 for choice and slowly at $4.50 to $5.50 for plainer kinds. Good butcher cows were weak at $2.25 to $3.50, while canners and cutters held at $1 to $1.50. Bulls moved within a range of $2.25 to $2.75 for good heavies, to $1.75 for bolognas. Store cattle trade was against the general feeling of the market, being fairly active at unchanged prices. Good stockers made $2.75 to $3, while feeders got up to $3.50. Light stockers went at $2.15 cwt. Milkers and springers also held unchanged at $35 to $45.

Stagnant domestic trade was given as reason for the drop on the hog division. On slightly heavier receipts, the division lost 15 cents Monday and another 10 cents Tuesday, holding steady for the net two days. Bacon hogs closed at $7.35 f.o.b., $7.75 off truck and $8.10 off car. Advices from England were that the British bacon market was holding unchanged.

About 40 0head of westerns were included in the 2,700 head calf run. Vealers were active and steady at $6.50 to $7.00 for choice with occasional tops at $7.50. Common vealers sold down to $4.00. Eastern grasers brought $2.00 to $2.75 while heavy calves moved slowly at $2.50 to $3.50.

Lambs held steady throughout the week with some prices up 10 cents. The majority of good ewes and wethers went at $6.25 to $6.40 with few picked lots at $6.50. Culls, bucks and heavies brought $5.00 to $6.00. Sheep were unchanged at $2.50 to $3.00 for good, light ewes and at $1.00 to $1.5 for culls. Yearlings brought $3.50 to $4.00 cwt.

Start Proposed For Spring—Answer to Hunger Marchers' Demands.

TORONTO, November 2 (C.P.). — In the reply of Hon. David A. Croll, Ontario Minister of Public Welfare, to demands made last July by the hunger marchers who invaded Queen's Park was seen to-day the possibility of the Government launching a Province-wide slum clearance scheme. It is believed the plan would be included in an unemployment works program, necessary legislation to be enacted at the coming Legislature session and the scheme started in the spring

For some time Government interest had been noted in the slum-clearance inquiry in Toronto, conducted by Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce. The Lieutenant-Governor will present the report of his committee to the City Council next week.

An indication that sanitary, modern homes may replace those in slum areas came in Mr. Croll's reply to Ewart G. Humphries, secretary of the Hunger Marchers' Congress, when in referring to workers homes and slum clearance, he said: "When a works scheme is prepared by the Province undoubtedly this will be included."

Principal cities and towns in the Province may be affected including Ottawa, Hamilton, Windsor, and St. Catharines. New activity, trade union heads believe, would be injected into the building industry if the scheme is carried out. An army of skilled workmen would be required in demolishing slum homes and erecting new ones.

Mr. Croll informed the hunger marchers the Government had considered carefully the "demands" and he promised to bring into effect any of those considered feasible.

The Minister also appealed for co-operation from the unemployed "in order to better conditions for all," but at the same time warned further demonstrations in any centre "will not have the slightest effect on this government."

Waiting On Ottawa

The statement said the government had recognized the need for "an effective form of unemployment insurance" but it claimed Ontario is awaiting action from the Federal Government at the coming session of Parliament.

"If no action has been taken then," said Mr. Croll, "we are prepared to act and have a bill ready. This bill has not yet been considered by the Cabinet and we are awaiting devolopments at Ottawa."

Suggestion that $300,000,000 be made available for public works is rejected on the grounds "the province does not control the monetary system of Canada, and that sum is simply not available." To a demand that fool allowances be increased 50 per cent., the Minister says

STRESSING PEACE IN CELEBRATIONS

London County Council Says Time Diminishing Reality of Armistice Day.

LONDON, Nov. 2 (C.P.).—"Armistice" Day will be replaced by "Peace" Day in all London schools Nov. 12. The actual form of celebrations is being left to the individual schools, but the London County Council expresses its conviction "that with the lapse of time the reality of Armistice Day, 1918, is diminishing, since none of the children remembers it, and the same now applies to a few of the younger members of the teaching staff."

Emphasis is placed on the increasing need for inculcating in the minds of children a proper outlook towards the settlement of international disputes and to such agencies as the League of Nations and The Hague Court.

Hope is expressed head teachers will use the new "Armistice and Peace Day" as a culmination of all the anti-war teaching which is carried out during the year.

William Harris Took Part in Relief of Khartum

One of Little Band Of Navigators Who Went from Canada

William Harris, Born in Township of Smith, One of Fourteen Men Fom Peterborough Who Took Part in Relief of Kha rtum.

CANADIANS NAVIGATED THE SMALL BOATS WHICH CARRIED TROOPS DOWN THE NILE

Saw Little of Actual Fighting — To-day is Able to Vividly Recall Exped ition—Once Wrec ked.

Two thousand miles up the Nile to the rescue of General Gordon! Only a handful of the gallant little band of Canadians who volunteered their services as navigators on that long, heart-breaking expedition now remain to tell the tale. One of them is William Harris, 220 Edinburgh street, in this city.

Still active, with a robust glow in his cheeks and an adventurous twinkle in his eye, the old voyageur recalls his part in the expedition with a clear memory. He was a young man of 30 years when the call came from England. "Chinese" Gordon, the gallant British soldier who had undertaken of his own accord to re-establish Egyptian authority over the Sudan, had been beseiged in Khartum for several months. An urgent message asking for aid had been borne down the Nile to the British. After considerable indecision over their obligation in the matter, the British had decided at last to send a relief expedition.

Difficult Problem

The problem of transporting an army of sufficient size to put down the maniacal Madhi and his hordes of natives fifteen hundred miles up the fever-laden, meandering Nile was a difficult one for the British command. A plan to move the army 300 miles overland from the Red Sea had been abandoned. Obviously the soldiers would have to be carried the greater part of the distance in small boats. Experienced boatsmen would be required to handle the craft. And what part of the Empire could supply the efficient boatmen that Canada boasted?

Forgetting his 79 years, "Bill" Harris looks back on the excitement and anticipation which attended the departure from Canada in September, 1884. He was born on a farm in Smith township and, as a young man, led a quiet existence as a carpenter in the small community which Peterborough was at that time. The romantic allure of an expedition up the fabled Nile appealed as strongly to him as to the other thirteen voyageurs recruited in Peterborough. "As we sailed from Montreal, a band more than 350-men strong, we felt that we were off on a big adventure," Mr. Harris relates.

Seeking adventure, however, the voyageurs were to be disappointed. Had they not looked forward to some real old-fashioned hand-to-hand squirmishes with the backs of the Madhi's army? On arrival at Alexandria they learned that the fighting was to be done by the British Tommies. Their duty was simply to navigate the scores of small boats which were to transport the Tommies from Wady Halfa up to Khartum.

They got a taste of the heat they would have to endure later as the first leg of the journey by train and steamboat over the 1,200 miles from the mouth of the Nile to Wady Halfa was begun. Winter was settling down over the land away back home in Canada but there was to be no winter for them. They were heading for the equator. Through the sparse fringe of trees and brush along the banks of the great, murky river they could see frequently the limitless wastes of hot sand stretching away to the horizons. The journey was extremely monotonous and they were glad when, a week later, they reached Waldy Halfa and the prospect of some diverting work loomed ahead of them.

Soldiers Manned Oars

Eight hundred small whale boats were made ready for the navigators and soldiers at Wady Halfa. The river was now too shallow and the rapids too frequent for the use of steamers. Ten to twelve soldiers and a navigator were assigned to each boat and the spare space in the boat filled with army provisions. The soldiers manned the two rows of oars and the navigator with an assistant or two handled the rudder. If there was any breeze in the right direction, sails were run up on the two masts fore and aft.

"There wasn't much work for us to do," Bill Harris relates. "The soldiers did the rowing under our command and, when we had rapids to negotiate, we put lines on the boats and natives on shore hauled the craft up through the rough spots. Sometimes one line would be enough but on the longer rapids we had to put on two or three tow lines. The soldiers would walk around the rapids."

In Constant Danger

But the trip was not without the constant threat of danger. Many sections of the river were alive with crocodiles waiting to seize upon the unlucky man who might fall overboard. One of the Canadian navigators met this ghastly fate. Mr. Harris himself had a close shave with death when a boat which he was piloting alone in one of the more severe rapids stretches upset in the turbulent waters. With difficulty he gained the safety of a small island in the river but the craft with its cargo of supplies was lost.

And the fear of dysentery and fever was greater among the men than the fear of crocodiles. Scores of Tommies and a number of the Canadians fell prey to the insidious tropical diseases. Mr. Harris spent a week in the grip of fever but recovered sufficiently to continue on to the goal of the expedition.

Due to the intense heat, it was impossible to carry a supply of fresh food. Tinned bully-beef, hard biscuits and black tea were the mainstays of the menu. When, at long intervals, canned potatoes were carefully rationed out, they were considered a rare treat.

Saw Very Little Fighting

Mr. Harris witnessed very litte of the fighting on the way to Khartum. The advance guard had several skirmishes with the blacks but the voyageurs followed too far behind to see what was happening. While the soldiers tended to the business of fighting—what fighting there was—the boatmen stuck to their posts on the boats. Mr. Harris viewed one encounter near Khartum three miles in the distance from a vantage point on a hill but that was all the real action he was privileged to see.

The boatmen saw nothing of the tragic entry of General Wolseley to the city of Khartum—tragic in the discovery that the tedious expedition had been in vain, for General Gordon had been massacred just two days before. The armada of whale boats was beached several miles below the city. The soldiers proceeded the remaining distance on foot while the boatmen remained to guard their charges.

Big Adventure

"The whole affair was an adventure to a fellow who had never before been more than a few miles away from Peterborough," Mr. Harris says, summing up his experience. "I enjoyed it but I don't know that I would like to go through it again. The heat was terrible."

Even now, almost fifty years after his return from the expedition, when he thinks of the burning African sun he wipes imaginary perspiration from his forehead.

Of significance in connection with this article is a despatch which comes today from London, England. The despatch follows:

A poignant memory of "Chinese" Gordon, British general who was killed at Khartum, in the Sudan, in 1885, today was conjured up when the fragment of a postage stamp on which he wrote a last, futile despatch was sold by auction for seven pounds. "Beseiged for 10 months by Moslem insurgents, General Charles Gordon sent out the torn fragment bearing the cryptic message "The Nile is rising." This call for help reached its destination too late. General Wolseley's relieving army reached the city two days after General Gordon had been killed.

Leonine verses was the name given to the hexameter and pentameter verses, common in the middle ages, which rhymed at the middle and end.

Plays Role Of Hero

QUEEN GIOVANNI KING BORIS

Another attempt to assassinate King Boris III. of Bulgaria, is reported from Sofia, capital of the nation. The story also makes of the king a hero. When the train which was carrying the king to Varna caught fire, King Boris leaped from his car, dragged the engineer from the burning tender, dressed his wounds and then took the throttle of the train and piloted it into Varna on schedule. The king has made a lifelong hobby of engines and often acts in the capacity of engineer on regular trains without knowledge of the passengers. The king is shown ABOVE, with Queen Giovanni and the Royal Palace at Sofia.

RUMANIA'S DOWAGER QUEEN MARIE FLU VICTIM IN MIDST OF SORROWS

Daughters Marie of Yugoslavia and Princess Ileana Are Also Both Ill.

LATTER'S CASE SERIOUS.

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

BELGRADE, Nov. 2 (A.P.)—The dowager Queen Marie of Rumania and her daughters, the Queen Mother Marie of Yugo-Slavia and Princess Ileana, are all ill.

Dowager Marie is suffering from influenza contracted during the funeral of her son-in-law, the assassinated King Alexander of Yugoslavia. Marie of Yugoslavia has gallstones. Princess Ileana, now living near Vienna and expecting another baby, is suffering with a high fever.

While none of the royal pernsonages, with the possible exception of Ileana, is considered dangerously ill, their physicians say that all will require careful nursing and rest especially as their conditions have been aggravated by a terrific nervous strain resulting from Alexander's assassination.

When the Associated Press correspondent inquired at the palace yesterday on the condition of the two queens and the Princess, the dowager Queen Marie, convalescing in an arm-chair, said: "On top of our bitter grief, illness has come to us all, but I hope we will all soon be well.

Anxious Over Princess

"I'm especially anxious about Ileana. In spite of her delicate condition, she and Anton (Ileana's husband, the Archduke Anton of Austria) insisted upon coming to Belgrade to attend the funeral.

"Her condition became so serious that the doctors thought they might have to remove the baby prematurely, but Ileana fought so desperately against this that the physicians decided to wait. They think now that everything will be all right but I still am greatly worried, especially as I cannot leave Mignon (Marie of Yugo Slavia) to go to Ileana in Vienna and nurse her myself.

"These last weeks have been tragic beyond words. It is a sad duty for me to try to help my little widowed Queen Mignon begin her new lonely life.

"No kind of sorrow is new to me, no sad experience is unknown to me, because life for a queen can be just as hard as it is for anyone else."

A Mother's Advice

"Perhaps I can assist in guarding and advising Mignon. She is so magnificently modest and unselfish. She lived so entirely for her king, her country, and her children. To-day she is lost.

"She naturally turns to her mother. I represent strength, consolation, and sympathy. She finds in me royal stamina, patience and resourcefulness coupled with the sad courage of one who has stood alone facing fate.

"The intense sympathy and righteous indignation manifested in the whole world over the king's murder has been in some measure a consolation to my poor daughter. Throughout these last weeks, in spite of her great illness and racking pain, she has been a real heroine."

MUST KEEP FAITH AS INDIA AWAKES

Baptist Leader Says Her Women Take Interest in Affairs and Need Guidance.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2 (C.P.).— The women of India are anxious to take a part in the life of their country and are just beginning to realize their power, stated Dr. J. B. McLaurin, addressing the 58th annual meeting of the Women's Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary Societies (Eastern Ontario and Quebec sections). Dr. McLaurin is president of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec.

Stressing the vital importance of the work being done by Canadian women in India, Dr. McLaurin declared that it could not be withdrawn without breaking faith with the women of India. Because of their newly-awakened interest in public life, he said, they are manifestly in need of guidance. There was a reflex influence on church at home, he said, declaring that there were places in Canada where the Baptist church had faded from view except for its women's circle which derived inspiration from the activities carried on in India.

Dr. McLaurin paid a tribute to the medical work of Dr. Jessie Allyn, head of the women's hostal at Pithapuran, India, and that of the leper hospital founded by Miss Hatch of Woodstock, Ont., and now in charge of a native doctor.

HUNTING VICTIM

MONTREAL, Nov. 2 (CP)—Word of the death in a hunting accident at Victoria, B.C., of F. Ian Nichol, 35, formerly of Montreal, was received here to-day. Mr. Nichol stumbled while out on a hunting trip with friends and his gun accidentally discharged, fatally wounding him.

Born in Montreal, Mr. Nichol was educated at Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., and at McGill University. He was married about two years ago and moved to British Columbia.

COMEDY TREND FOR LONDON'S AUTUMN SHOWS

Newest Hits in English Theatres Include Humorous Type of Plays.

SEVERAL FAILURES

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 2 (CP)—Taking it all round the autumn theatrical season in London has opened with a fair measure of public favor.

J. B. Priestley's "Eden End," which is concerned with the fortunes of a doctor's family in Priestley's native Yorkshire, has been submitted to a wholesome tightening-up since its initial production. It by no means earned unstinted praise from the critics at the first, but the general public has taken to it readily.

Quite a substantial measure of support is given P. G. Wodehouse's "Who's Who" at the Duke of York's, although the play has not been classed as an outstanding specimen of this writer's achievements in irresponsible humor. For one thing the basic idea in it—of two children being exchanged at birth—is rather threatbare. It was certainly not new even when W. S. Gilbert employed it in "Pinafore."

The highest of the highbrow critics might heartily admit that C. B. Cochran has surpassed himself in his revue "Streamline," by A. P. Herbert and Ronald Jeans, which is bringing enormous business to the Palace. Cochran breaks his own outstanding record in establishing a swift continuity of exhilarating speed. Spectators are carried breathlessly through a maze of 10-minute impressions, in which the Russian Ballet, the American Cabaret, the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, and a half a score other institutions of social life are unblushingly caricatured.

Against such an attraction as "Streamline" the many bright spots in the new Walker-Nesbitt revue, "Hi-didd'e-diddle," at the Comedy, may seem a little dim. All the same it is excellent entertainment, and with June—Miss Howard Tripp—in the cast and giving of her best, it will almost certainly enjoy a good run. Miss Gladys Cooper had the happiness of seeing her son, John Buckmaster, who is just under 20, make a successful debut in this piece. Until a few months ago young Buckmaster intended to become a professional boxer, and underwent training from Johnny Somers.

Not All Successes

Against these and other instances of successful new ventures must be placed a rather formidable list of decided "flops." At His Majesty's the lavishly mounted "Josephine," with a first-rate company, was taken off after a run of only five nights. The play was from the German of Hermann Bahr, translated by Emlyn Williams, and the critics, with complete unanimity, fell upon it unmercifully.

Napoleon was presented as a blubbering, petulant but passionate lover, one of his little personal exhibitions being that he refused to fight a battle because the mail was late with a letter from Josephine. Many a playgoer came away wondering whether the piece was after all intended for farce.

If the judgment of the professional theatre-goers was right "The Nighthawk," by the late Roland Oliver, deserved a better fate than a mere fortnight's run at the Vaudeville. This play, we are told, ran for seven months in America. In its short life here Miss Beatrix Thomson certainly secured a personal triumph in her ruthless realism of the character of a Cockney girl.

WOMEN ARE SLOW TO SEEK OFFICE

But Veteran of Politics Says Present Situation Bringing Them Out.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2. (CP).—Women are taking more and more intelligent interest in the current political campaign than in any preceding one, largely because the economic issues involved strike so close to home and affect so directly the life of the individual voter, in the opinion of Miss Helen Varick Boswell, veteran campaigner and vice-chairman of the New York County Republican Committee for 17 years until her retirement last year.

"Women are naturally conservative in politics, as most things," she thinks. "They are slow to seek office, but if they sought office more they would hold more offices. It is not the fault of the men. The yomen are slow to come forward.

"Bt in the present campaign, both in the state and for Congress," she added, "the issues involved affect the voters so directly, there are so many economic questions involving taxation, that they want to now what is being done with the money. They are more interested in issues and less in personalities than ever before."

She expressed gratification that both parties had named women as candidates for Representative-at-large. The director of women campaign speakers for the Republican party has been training young women to make political speeches. "Some of the material we have uncovered is astonishingly good," she said. "I have been letting them pick their own issues to discuss, and they have done remarkably well.

BUILDING IMPROVEMENT CONTINUES.

While locally the same improvement has not been noted, reports from all over the country show that increased activity in the building trades which has been in evidence for the last six months is still being kept up as winter closes in, a somewhat unusual development that leads to the hope that next year will see a notable expansion in construction operations.

MacLean Building Reports, Limited, an authority on such matters, announces that the contracts awarded for the whole Dominion during October amounted to $11,152,700, bringing the total for the first ten months of the calendar year to $109,297,800.

This is an increase of 39.3 per cent. over the ten months total for 1933 of $78,445,500.

Over half of the total for October, $6,360,800 to be exact, was made up of Ontario contracts, with Quebec next in line with a total of $2,737,300. Every province in the Dominion shows an increase this year over last.

Contemplated construction reported for the first time during October amounted to $18,997,000, as compared with $14,240,700 for September, while the total for the year to date is $219,250,900, as against $171,814,900 for the same period in 1933, an increase of 27.7 per cent.

A DRASTIC RULING.

The ruling in Montreal that before being considered eligible for relief applicants for assistance from the public treasury must first use up the cash surrender value of their insurance policies, is a harsh edict and one that takes no heed of the future.

It is true, of course, that rather than apply for what they consider charity people all over the country have been doing that very thing: subsisting on the revenue they obtained from surrendering their insurance, but they have adopted that course voluntarily and as a matter of principle, which is a different thing from being forced to do so by reason of an official order.

When heads of families have made some provision for the care of their loved ones in future years it seems to be a mistake in judgment for relief authorities to insist that before they can be helped from relief funds they must let their protection go and jeopardize the future of their families.

One contemporary referring to this matter declares with much truth that it is this kind of thing that develops rebels; certainly to insist that no person can be given relief until he has not only exhausted his last resources but has scrapped the meagre amount of protection he has been able to provide for his family, is a course that does not contribute to a spirit of good-will in the community.

Relief has cost the people of this country a tremendous sum, but few taxpayers would be willing to seek an easement of [illegible] a price.

NOT TAKING ANY CHANCES.

When the county crown attorney at Chatham the other day offered to pay the fare to Russia of a confessed Communist who was charged with obstructing an officer in the discharge of his duty he was not taking any chances.

Any of the Red brethren in this country are willing to profess their admiration for the land of the Soviet on every and all occasions and to declare how much better conditions are in Russia than here in Canada, but they draw the line at going to Russia themselves.

There are many people in Canada who would be glad to subscribe to a fund to send all the foreign-born Red agitators in this country over to the land which they are constantly praising, but there would be no use raising such a fund, for the simple reason that it would be impossible to persuade one Canadian Communist to take advantage of this opportunity to go to Russia.

The truth of that statement is to be found in the fight that Red agitators make against being deported from Canada, for despite the vehemence with which they denounce Canadian institutions and the capitalistic system, they battle strenuously against any move to send them out of this country.

The Chatham crown attorney evidently knew the breed and his offer of free transportation was probably a mere pleasantry.

He is undoubtedly ever aware of the fact that it would be impossible even to bribe a Canadian Communist to leave Canada to take up residence in Russia.

SPEED WITH ECONOMY.

When The Examiner referred a few days ago to the trans-continental trip of the Union Pacific's streamlined train as revolutionizing railway transportation we, like the public, were thinking mainly of the speed element.

Railway executives, however, according to the New York Post, were far more impressed by the economy of the record-breaking dash.

They have always known that faster time could be made, but they have always known also that with steam locomotives the greater the speed the greater the fuel consumption, and consequently, of course, the higher the cost.

The fact that the M-10001 made the Los Angeles to New York run at a fuel cost of only $80 is the feature that has set the railway world thinking.

It costs about one and one-half cents a mile, including gasoline and oil, to operate a light motor car carrying five passengers, so that the cost of a coast-to-coast trip in an automobile of that type would be $45.

To run a heavy motor car of seven-passenger capacity from Los Angeles to New York would cost $90 for oil and gasoline.

Yet the stream-lined train, capable of carrying 124 passengers with Pullman accommodation for sixty-eight people, actually made the trip at an operating cost of $10 less than the cost of operating a seven-passenger motor car over the same distance.

According to figures given by the Post, 246,756 miles of railway line were operated last year, and the locomotive fuel cost $151,809,601, or, in other words, it cost the United States railways for locomotive fuel $650 a year for every mile operated, some 5.15 cents out of every dollar of revenue being eaten up by this item.

No wonder the low cost of operating the streamlined, Diesel-engined Union Pacific train is giving railway men much food for thought these days.

A NATIONAL CHEESE WEEK.

A group of men interested in the manufacture and distribution of all classes of cheese made in Canada plans to undertake a national cheese week which will be held during the month of November with the object of promoting a larger consumption of this basic Canadian agricultural commodity. The week has been chosen to coincide with a similar period set aside in the United States for the encouragement of the cheese industry, and it is the fond hope of those promoting it that, due to the emphasis which will be placed upon cheese as a healthful, nourishing and appetizing food, something may be done to reduce the exportable surplus of cheese and other dairy products which for a variety of reasons is becoming increasingly burdensome.

The sponsors of this "week" point out that as cheese-eaters Canadians fall far short of the citizens of some other countries. The Canadian per capita consumption of cheese does not exceed four pounds per annum, where the average Britisher eats over nine pounds of it every year and in Switzerland the per capita consumption amounts to fully 16 pounds. In some of the Scandinavian countries it is even higher. Much of the European consumption consists, of course, of soft cheese which is not so largely manufactured in Canada.

The Canadian cheese industry has been steadily declining for a number of years, due to gradual loss of the British market to New Zealand and other countries which are apparently able to lay down their cheese in the United Kingdom at a lower figure. Export figures covering the present season reflect a continuation of this tendency. Up to the end of September, the Canadian exports were running below even those of last year. They fell to 647,078 cwt., valued at $7,007,439, as opposed to 697,585 cwt. at $7,416,361 for the preceding 12 months. During September shipments fell from 141,305 cwt. to 76,508 cwt. It is evidently becoming increasingly difficult for Canadian cheese to secure a profitable overseas market, and in spite of a reduced make during the 1934 season on account of adverse weather conditions, there is still a large surplus in cold storage warehouses awaiting sale.

A national cheese week such as that which is in contemplation will not prove a permanent solution for the difficulties in which the cheese industry finds itself. Through stimulating the domestic consumption of that commodity is may, however, do much to bring about a reduction of the stocks now being carried and through educating the public to the greater use of cheese as a food, it may lead to a larger home consumption of the food that will be carried into future seasons. Particularly to the people living in this district, noted for many years for the fine cheese that it produces, may the "week" be commended. Most of us eat, after all, very little of the cheese that is the pride of Leeds and Grenville Counties.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

MEN AGAINST DEATH.

With announcement just made before the American College of Surgeons of discovery of a nearly perfect preventive for dread peritonitis, surgery's worst death risk, science has opened another brilliant chapter in the romantic tale of humap achievement. Yet it is unlikely that news of the successful outcome of the researches of Dr. Herbert L. Johnson, of Boston, Mass., Dr. Edward L. Young, Jr., and their associates, into the protective qualities of amniotic fluid (from which the preventive vaccine was developed) will create any stir. The names of Johnson and Young will mean far less to the crowd than those of the Dean brothers or "Schoolboy" Rowe. The public will scan the brief newspaper references with mild interest—and forget. But fewer people will die as a consequence of surgical operations. The new discovery is remarkable, but the progress of preventive medicine has been so rapid in the last 70 years that, like achievements in engineering or industry, or any of a score of fields, one more discovery cannot be expected to rouse general enthusiasm. Occasionally a Banting finds himself, for a brief hour, in the role of a popular hero, but, for the most part, the triumphs of the patient, untiring "Men Against Death" go unheralded by the plaudits of the throng and must be content with recognition from the smaller circle of scientific co-workers and record in the terse paragraphs of professional journals.

For all the lack of applause, however, modern medicine has made spectacular advance, for it must be remembered that it was as short a time ago as 1867 that the antiseptic principle was introduced and modern surgery inaugurated with the work of Lord Lister. Medicine and surgery are to-day giving the world the healthiest era in its long history. To a far greater degree than the man in the street will ever realize, our very civilization depends upon our doctors. Much yet remains to be done. Many other discoveries must be added to the growing list. Future advances in the prevention of disease, the alleviation of suffering and the prolongation of human life may well be expected to eclipse even the most outstanding of present triumphs. Crises will arise in this sphere or in that, but as long as the scientific spirit survives, a long as there are Harveys, Jenners, Listers, Pasteurs, Bantings and Johnsons, medicine will march forward —and with it civilization.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Anyway the Bennett-Stevens controversy seems to be over until it can be renewed on the floor of the House.

Up to the present it would appear that the former Minister of Trade and Commerce is a long way in front in the matter of fan mail.

Henceforth when better roads are built the Provincial Government will build them—and what is more, my son, pay for them, too.

Premier Hepburn started the recent six-day bicycle race in Toronto by firing a revolver, and Saturday Night suggests that this gun was the only thing he has fired that he wasn't asked to replace with a Liberal.

Karl Komuth, former member for South Waterloo, is undoubtedly not the only Conservative who would like to see ex-Premier Henry retire from the Conservative leadership, but he is one of the few who have come right out and said so.

What a monotonous old world this would be were it not for the delusions therein.—Detroit News.

THAT INDEPENDENT PARTY

Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—Recently the government gave a sum of money to the three recognized political parties on a percentage basis to cover remuneration expenses. Forty-five per cent were given to the Conservative party, forty-five per cent to the Liberal and ten per cent to the independent. Ten per cent of the above sum has been claimed by a party who describe themselves as the Great War Veteran's Political party notwithstanding the fact that the Great War Veteran's Association is a non-political body and could not reasonably be otherwise its members being composed of a class of people whose political tendencies differ. My suggestion is this that if the party or parties who stooped so low has not sufficient respect for themselves they at least should honor and respect those who have won the admiration and respect of all Canadian citizens, rather than try to pull them into the mud in quoting Robert Burns, he says, A Prince can make a belted Knight; A Marquis, duke an' a' that; But an honest man's aboon (above) his might; Guide faith, he mauna (mustn't) fa' that.

Alex Murray.

ANSWERS W. A. FRASER, M.P.

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—In answer to the speech of Mr. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland may I say that we the executive of the C.C.F. are in accord with many of his statements but we are at variance with him in the conclusions that he arrives at from these statements.

May we quote: "There are more Liberals of one kind or another today than ever before." We agree, particularly with "of one kind or another," that is the greatest weakness of the Liberal party in Canada. There are so many degrees of so called Liberalism that it is impossible for Mr. McKenzie King to come out with a program which would be accepted by the Liberal dictator Mr. Patulla of British Columbia and the Conservative Liberal Mr. Taschereau of Quebec. This statement clearly defines the Liberal parties weakness.

Again may we quote: "I have nothing to say about the sincerity of the C.C.F. candidate and the leaders of that party." That is a great compliment to the C.C.F. at a time when there is so much that can be said for the insincerity of the Liberal leaders in the Beauharnois scandal and the insincerity of the Conservative leader who used public funds for the upkeep of his private car. Surely the C.C.F. stands above the old time parties when the sincerity of its leadership goes unquestioned, even by a Liberal, in these troublesome times.

Again we quote: "I say the things they (C.C.F.) stand for are opposed to the democracy which you and I know." Again we are in agreement with Mr. Fraser's statement but opposed to the conclusion he infers. The democracy which Canadians have known these last four years, was a democracy which allowed wages to be reduced to the levels revealed in the Steven's Report; levels of $3, $4, $5, and $6 a week for 40, 50 and even 60 hour weeks; while at the same time the firms have maintained and even increased profits. It has been a democracy which has forced farmers to sell their produce at less than the cost of production, while the packing houses to whom they sold, have made exhorbitant profits. We are opposed to exploitation of workers and farmers. We stand for democracy, the government of the people by the people for the people. At present we have a partial democracy, government of the people, by the people, for the big interests. Mr. Fraser apparently believes in democracy as it is to-day.

Lastly may we quote: "Speaking on economic grounds I say the C.C.F. is wrong." We don't know whether "moral" conclusions can be drawn from economic premises. But we answer speaking on moral grounds we believe that the C.C.F. is "right" and that it is "Christian" for it has at heart the welfare of all the people, not just those who are in distress but those who through necessity under the present system are compelled to be exploiters. We do not favor setting up a society in which the under dog will be top dog but rather setting up a society in which there are no under dogs or top dogs. We look forward to a Christian democracy for tomorrow rather than clinging to the fictitious democracy of to-day.

Thanking you in advance for the courtesy of your People's Column.

Sincerely,
L. H. Cotton,
Pres. C.C.F. Club Peterborough.

JUGO-SLAVIA

Which Way Blows the Wind?

Assassination has never accomplished its purpose. Wilkes Booth slew Lincoln. He thought to defeat the victory of the North. He was committed to the system of slavery. But that institution was doomed by the type of American civilization, and the surrender of General Robert E. Lee. The assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia will be as fruitless. News leaking out of Jugo-Slavia confirm reports about the cruelty of King Alexander. Of modern times he is held to be one of the bloodiest. His hands were literally brued with blood. As was said of Napoleon, "He fleshed his sword in blood." Those who stood about him were so servile to his will that they dare not make even a slight protest. Nor dare they plead for clemency for the doomed.

The assassination of the King lifts up the question of the insecurity of minorities. This is one of the foremost European issues. It is one of the urgent international perplexing problems. We have come to the juncture in international contacts where this question can no longer be shelved, and minorities left to work out their own salvation. The same human problem is forging to the front, though it be in another form, in every nation. The rights of the weak demand recognition and protection. Legislation will not solve. The church has the one solvent.

Has the church lost its passion? Do the poor and the outcast and the weak look to the church for sympathy, and brotherliness, and equality? Has the church lost its human in its churchliness? In Jugo-Slovakia the minorities have received but little consideration at the hands of the church. The Croats have been oppressed by both Serbs and Slovenes. A protest by a Croat against injustice either on his own acount, or for another has had but one answer. Without trial, or opportunity to present his complaint he has been led out and shot.

VIOLA LLMA

Some Strategic Ability

Professor Zorbaugh suggested that the age of the delegates be limited to thirty years. Youth under thirty is plastic. Its ideals are in formation. At that age lasting impressions can be made. But thirty is the age of danger. That the Christ should be severely tempted when thirty years of age was not a chance experience. Spoil a life at that age and it will in all probability desiderate long time for recovery.

That first American Youth Congress came at a crisis time in the life of every delegate. Delegate associations and contacts and leadership and program was indelibly written. The effect upon the individual life, and type of citiizen, and all the future could not be otherwise than profound.

Sit in as Miss Lima and her associates plan for the Congress. Back of the Central Bureau plans for the program the Roosevelt Administration N.R.A. is distinctly perceptible. Ideals common to the Hitler and the Roosevelt "New Deals" were embodied.

Well prepared literature was sent out to the young people who had accepted election to the forthcoming Congress. Three objectives were stressed. First, that American youth must learn that hope lay in transient camps. Second, that subsistence homesteads must be projected. Third, that an apprenticeship system must be fostered.

All these have been woven into the New Deal. But do not overlook the presence of these three integrated in Fascism. What does the homestead subsistence method mean? It is an attempt to freeze into a service-standard of living all who have been caught unprepared for the depression. American youth cannot be regimented. Viola Lima will find this out. She can learn.

JUGO-SLAVIA

King Alexander could have said, "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." He did say it to himself many a time. To his estimable wife he said it many, many times. He prepared himself and his family for such an eventuality as assassination. Violent death, when it came, was to him no surprise. To his wife and family it was a shock. But they all looked beyond death. They lived beyond the day. Had he taken thought for himself and his family, first, he would have resigned his royal position. He has been characterized by some as the tyrant of the Little Entente. He has been called, "Alexander the bloody." He was not a well trained ruler. They that use the sword shall perish by the sword, has been demonstrated in history many times.

In his kingdom there are three antagonistic races. They do not intermarry. Nor are they on friendly terms. They hate each other. The Croats have long been ridden into the earth by the Polanders. Their oppression has been so long continued and terrible that they long for freedom, and a government of their own. When Jugo-Slavia was created, racial equality was promised them. That has not been given. The Serbs and the Slovenes coerce them. Among the three races there is constant friction. Jugo-Slavia is not a unity. Nor will it ever be if the church fails to ameliorate hatred into brotherly kindness. The Croats are a minority. When the Versailles Treaty carved out the Jugo-Slovakian kingdom the minorities were promised equality, and the protection of all their citizen rights. Instead of fulfillment of the pledge the Croatians have been oppressed and pillaged. They have not been blessed with capable leadership. Few of the people are educated. Nor do they bear the marks of present day civilization in their social life. Ignorance, poverty, disease, prevail in Croatia. The fundamental problem is not political, or economic. It is religious. Here comes Cousin Paul!

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

MERRITT LOST NO TIME

On this date November 2) in 1832, William Hamilton Merritt, the creator of the Welland Canal, was first elected to the Assembly of Upper Canada, in which he remained until 1860 when he went to the legislative council. The election came about in a curious way. The previous election had been protested but both member-elect and his opponent died suddenly from cholera. The petition therefore lapsed and a new election was necessary. Merritt was presented with the usual requisition and he accepted. His opponent was Mr. DeCew, a local merchant of much influence. The campaign was very warm, both sides calling in heavy artillery from the legislature but after the polling, which lasted from October 30 to November 2, it was announced that Merritt had been elected by a substantial majority. One historian says: "When the result was known the most unbounded enthusiasm was displayed along the canal and the people of St. Catharines gave way to expressions of good feeling on a scale of grandeur surprising for the times. We see by the Journal that an illumination took place and all the paraphernalia of general rejoicings were indulged in."

Merritt took his seat within a week, but, unlike John A. Macdonald who waited a year or more before he made his maiden speech, rose to his feet the very first day, presenting a request for a special committee to investigate the charges made by William Lyon Mackenzie against the Welland canal and making a speech in favor of the free admission of grain and cattle from the United States. The same week also he pleaded for the abolition of imprisonment for debt, which system he stigmatized as a relic of barbarism and only a lever of tyranny in the hands of the legal fraternity, whose only thoughts were the filling of their own purses. He was, of course, the spokesman for the Welland canal, having no hesitation as a legislator in asking financial aid for the project which he had carried to its initial stage. From the outset, Merritt and Mackenzie were at arms; their verbal interchanges were so hot that at one time there was talk of a duel, but nothing came of that. Merritt had to avail himself of the hated legal fraternity when he sued Mackenzie for libel.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

KINGSVILLE, ONTARIO

This town has achieved wide renown from the fact that it is the home of Jack Miner, famous bird man, as well as from the fact that it is the only town in Canada that lies south of an American city. Actually, it is south of Detroit.

In 1763 the land on which Kingsville stands was given to the white man, but through family purchase was returned to the Indian. In 1823 King George IV. deeded it to Richard Herrington and John Tofford.

In 1837, James King, after whom the town was named, opened the first school. And down through the years it went until 1878 when it became a village and then in 1901 when it assumed the status of a town.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

HOW DO YOU "USE" LIFE?

Mr. A is clever with words. When he gets into trouble, he is almost always able to get out of it by using the right words. . . . So he is frequently in trouble. . . . His cleverness with words is bad for him, bad for his character. He leans too much on that gift. Instead of trying to do the right thing, he does the wrong thing, and spellbinds himself out of his difficulty. Thus he uses his talent meanly, selfishly.

Mrs. B. has rare executive ability. In any given situation, she immediately begins to organize material, organize human beings, take command. . . . She isn't popular, however. . . . People shy away from her. She has allowed her talent to become a vice, a nuisance to all who know her. She has let it degenerate into "bossiness" and uses it for little things, for petty situations, instead of for large and useful command of life.

Mr. C. has what is usually described as a "fine personality" . . . He is neat, he is fairly good looking, his manners are pleasant, he says the right thing at the right time, he is likable, his smile is a pleasure to behold and it has a warming effect on those who see it in action. . . . Thus he gets what he wants easily. . . . But that talent has weakened his character. He receives so much more often than he gives. And his life has been an easy one because people are as friendly to him as they are to a tail-wagging puppy.

Miss D. is beautiful. . . . Strangers turn to look at her as she passes by. The boys flock around. The girls frankly envy her. Life has been good to her, solely because of the accidental or inherited conformation of her body. She doesn't need to do anything, make the slightest effort. . . . She has become monstrously selfish, a petulant and imperious and unhappy young woman.

We forget, too often, that our talents are not treasures but obligations. They are not given to us merely for our own sakes, for selfish use, but for other human beings as well. When we use them only selfishly, they disintegrate and we are more weakened than strengthened by their possession. And finally we become miserably unhappy creatures who cannot understand why life has been so "mean" to us.

A Thought

A REAL MAN

"A real man never talks about what the world owes him, the happiness he deserves, and the chances he ought by right to have and all that.

"A real man is just as honest in the dark in his own room as he is in public.

"A real man does not want pulls and favors. He wants work and honest wages.

"A real man does not want something for nothing, so the get-rich-quick people can not use him.

"A real man does a little more than he promises.

"A real man is dependable.

"A real man is loyal to his friends, and guards their reputations as his own.

"A real man does not hunt danger, but never dodges it when he ought to meet it.

PLAN NO DELAY IN LEGISLATURE

Sessions Will Open in February Says Hepburn—No New Taxes in Sight.

CUT OUTLAYS INSTEAD.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—(CP)— The 1935 session of the Ontario Legislature will begin about the middle of February, the customary time, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said today. There never had been any suggestion the session would be delayed until the following month, he added.

He also gave assurance the customary financial report, released to the public near the close of the fiscal year, Nov. 1, would be published, though a little later in the season. "We want the people to know just where we stand," he said.

The premier also said definitely the government was "not contemplating imposing any additional taxes on the people of Ontario. He denied a suggestion municipalities had been relieved of their share in highway costs and had been permitted to share in beer and wine profits, "to pave the way for imposition of an income tax."

"You can tax only to a certain point," he said, "then you drive wealthy people out of the country." Policy of the government he added, had been to reduce expenditures rather than increase taxes. An example of this was the estimated saving of $75,000 by George Ponsford, newly appointed head of the Ontario Air Service.

VOLUME HEAVY IN DISTILLERY

Advances Held in Oil Shares, Ford "A" and Nickel Issues.

WALL STREET STRONGER.

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (C.P.) — Arising mainly from technical causes, the industrial section of the Toronto Market rallied to-day and held the bulk of the gains till the close.

In firming up the Toronto list trailed the New York market, gains up to a point holding in the interlisted group. Volume was heavy in the distillery and oil shares, and in Ford "A" and Nickel

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (A.P.). — Rallying forces were at work on the stock exchange to-day. Prices advanced 1 to 2 points on rather brisk trading during the forenoon, but later tapered slightly on dwindling volume. McCrory Store shares were firm features, advancing to new highs for the year. Many other specialties showed substantial gains. Johns-Manville, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, U.S. Steel, Santa Fe and United Carbon were higher. Transfers approximated 650,000 shares.

RE-ORGANIZING FORESTRY BRANCH.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—(C.P.)—Reorganization of the Ontario forestry and northern development branches is being considered, but no definite plans have been made, Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, said to-day.

The minister said: "I can't say, because I don't know," when asked regarding a suggestion that E. J. Zavitz, deputy minister, was to be replaced by Frederick Noad.

CABINET SITS 4 HOURS.

OTTAWA, November 2 (C.P.). — Cabinet Council sat to-day for nearly four hours in an effort to catch up with accumulated routine which the ministers had not been able to deal with in the last fortnight. At the same time Prime Minister R. B. Bennett took the occasion to make a detailed report of his recent visit to Geneva, Paris and London, and to advise his colleagues of what he had accomplished and learned while abroad.

19 ADMIT RINGING ALARM.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP). — Nineteen boys and young men, ranging in age from 10 years to 19 years, have been questioned by officials of the fire department and have admitted turning in false alarms in the city over a long period, and the department this morning was considering laying charges against the offenders.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 2 (CP)—Ernest Little will face a charge of assault against his wife, when he appears in Police Court on Saturday as the result of an altercation at his home in Thurlow Township last night.

Little appeared to-day with a pair of "beautiful shiners" allegedly given him by his two sons, who went to the defence of their mother.

ADJOURN PROBE INTO TOLL GATE

Will Be Entirely Public Inquiry Judge Ross States—Reopens Nov. 8.

WELCOMES INFORMATION.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—(CP)—Probe into an alleged toll gate regarding transactions of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario up to an including Jan. 1, 1934, opened at Osgoode Hall here today before Judge Duncan C. Ross of St. Thomas and was almost immediately adjourned until Nov. 8.

A. G. Slaght, K.C., of Toronto, is conducting the investigation for the Crown, assisted by Kenneth J. MacLaren of Toronto.

Charges alleging a "toll gate were made by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, during the provincial general election campaign last June.

Judge Ross announced it was merely a preliminary meeting. Remarking on his being asked to accept the commission, he said he felt "it was my duty to my native province," to do so.

He declared it would be entirely a public investigation. Mr. Slaught said if there are any facts the public wish presented they would be welcomed.

JONES, WALLER REACH LONDON

Set 5 Day Record From Australia and Round Flight in 13 Days.

COVER 22,646 MILES.

LONDON, November 2 (A.P.).—Cathcart Jones and Ken Waller, English "boomerang fliers," returned to England to-day completing a round trip to Melbourne, Australia.

They left Mildenhall airdrome on the morning of Oct. 20 and set their trim monoplane back on British soil at Lympe airdrome at 1.14 p.m. to-day, exactly 13 days 6 hours, 42½ minutes from the moment they left.

In that length of time they covered a route 22,646 miles long.

In making the return flight, the boomerang fliers set a new record of 5 days, 15 hours, 54 minutes from Port Darwin, Australia, to England. The previous record was 8 days, 9 hours, made in September by C. J. Melrose. They made the last leg of their joriey non-stop from Athens.

CHARLEVILLE, Australia, Nov. 2 (CP-Havas).—J. D. Hewett and C. E. Key, participants in the London to Melbourne air derby arrived here to-day at 5.25 a.m., completing the second last leg of their flight.

Peace and Quiet

LONDON, Nov. 2. (CP).—A longing for peace and quiet brought a 65-year-old London resident and his son-in-law to the police station early to-day.

A place to sleep—a quiet, peaceful place was what they wanted, they confided to the desk sergeant. The older man explained he was afraid to go home as he anticipated 'trouble' with his wife.

"Well then," countered the cop, "why don't you stay overnight at your son-in-law's place."

"The daughter's just as bad as her mother," came the reply from the younger of the two. The other nodded agreement.

The constable sympathized and ushered them to one of the stations' "guest rooms."

SCORE INJURED IN MINE BATTLE

Over 1,000 Workers, Members of Different Unions, Battle For Supremacy.

POLICE ARE HELPLESS.

WILKES BARRE, Pa., ..ov. 2 (AP)—One thousand mine workers engaged in a pitched battle early to-day at Nanticoke, where forces of the United Mine Workers of America and United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania battle for supremacy at No. 7 Colliery of the Susquehanna Collieries Company.

The battle front extended from the mine entrance over an area of several city blocks, and on the sides and tops of nearby clum banks.

More than a dozen combatants were knocvked senseless when hit by flying rocks, but no one was seriously hurt.

From 4 to 6 o'clock United Anthracite Miners were strongly entrenched at colliery entrances, trying to make a new union strike order effective.

United Mine Workers who tried to run their automobiles through the gauntlet were threatened and forced to turn back. Windows of their cars shattered by flying missiles. Several autos were upset in other parts of Nanticoke, it was reported.

Shortly after 6 o'clock several hundred United Mine Workers, led by District Board member John Kmets and district organizers, arrived in a body and charged the mine entrance. They put the pickets to rout.

From nearby clum banks the pickets barraged the workers with rocks. Three separate charges were made by the United Mine Workers during the half hour the riot lasted. In each instances they put the new union members to flight.

Nanticoke police at the scene were powerless to stop the riot, several of them being struck by flying rocks.

Vermilyea Remanded Until November 10

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 2. (CP). — Harold Vermilyea, charged with the murder of his mother, Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea, was arraigned in police court this afternoon and again remanded until Nov. 10, when the preliminary hearing will take place.

Vermilyea was accompanied to the judge's chambers by Jailer G. H. rFench and Eugene Donovan, his day guard, while in the room were his counsel Charles A. Payne, K.C., and the Crown Attorney. Both counsels agreed on the remand and the proceedings were quite brief.

Vermilyea appeared to be cheery and waved at several jail attendants as he was led down the corridor. He was wearing the same suit he wore on his arrival in this city. He was puffing on a big cigar.

The hearing was held to-day to prevent curious seekers from storming the courthouse Saturday the date set last Saturday.

CANADIAN GOLDS LEAD ADVANCES

To-day's Upward Move Supported by Thursday's Dividend Declaration.

SILVERS ALSO FIRM.

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (C.P.) — The mining section of the Toronto Exchange rallied smartly to-day, led by a better market for the Canadian gold shares on the New York market. Gains up to about $2 were recorded in the group and Noranda, supported by yesterday's dividend declaration, moved ahead more than a dollar and cheered the other base metals. Silvers also firmed to a moderate extent.

WORK PROJECTS GIVEN APPROVAL TOTAL $160,000

Enable Seven Municipalities to Commence Cash Relief in Return For Labor.

INSPECTORS TO CHECK.

Croll Isues Warning to Relief Officers Against Grafting From Funds.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—(CP)—Hon. David Croll, minister of public welfare and municipal affairs announced today that municipal projects totalling approximately $160,000 have been approved, enabling a number of Ontario municipalities to commence cash relief in return for work as soon as unemployment relief branch inspectors have visited the municipalities to make sure the provisions of the cash relief regulations are being observed.

The approved municipal programs are as follows:

	Total Cost	Labor Cost
Town of Whitby	$ 6,054	$ 4,520
Town of Parry Sound	19,240	13,550
Town of Collingwood	40,898	26,181
Township of Barton, (Hamilton)	7,500	7,500
Town of Niagara	22,434	23,560
City of Chatham	46,120	23,560
Town of Bracebridge	14,000	9,000
Town of Tillsonburg	5,431	4,358

The city of Chatham had previously been given approval of another $10,000 item. These new projects bring the total of cash relief schemes which have received approval up to $2,120,946 of which $1,546,400 will go for labor cost. Twenty-two such projects have now received the department approval.

Warns of Graft.

At the same time, the Minister issued a warning to municipal relief officers and officials against "grafting" from government funds, and pointed to the recent case at Midland.

"The judge's warning to all municipal officers is echoed by this department," he said. "We shall prosecute wherever there is strong evidence that relief funds are being mishandled.

"The Midland case was only one instance where, as Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone found, lists were being padded. Investigatotrs from the Welfare Department are examining books in a number of municipalities where mishandling of funds is suspected, and prompt action will be taken if these suspicions are found justified."

SHAKE-UP HINTED IN TORY MACHINE

Earl Rowe, M.P., Addresses Hamilton Women's Conservative Club.

HAMILTON, Nov. 2.—Addressing the Hamilton Women's Conservative Association yesterday afternoon, Earl Rowe, M.P., of Ottawa, attacked the Hepburn Government's policy of dismissing Conservative office-holders. Declaring that the Liberal Administration in a few months had gone back to the politics of 25 years ago, Mr. Rowe said that civil servants were being fired because they were Conservatives, and for no other reason, unless it was that their relatives were Conservatives. Contrasting Mr. Hepburn's economy efforts with those of the Federal Government, Mr. Rowe stated that the Bennett Government had saved the country $18,000,000 a year by reducing the civil service by 13,000 members. Yet civil servants had not been fired, he said, but superinannuated.

Matter of Doubt

Turning to his own party, the speaker gave some hint of possible reorganization, when he said that the picture was not bright in Ontario, and Conservatives had begun to wonder whether the Liberal government had been elected, or simply the Henry Administration voted out. Even ardent Liberals admitted that the Liberal Government had not been chosen, he said.

Reverting again to his attack on Premier Hepburn, the speaker said that the Premier, after criticizing the Henry Government for issuing so many Orders-in-Council, has been governing several months by Orders-in-Council. The Liberals said that the beer and wine law was a Conservative measure, but if they changed it much more the Conservatives would not recognize it. The law, as administered by the Hepburn Government, was not true temperance, he asserted. In conclusion, he lauded the actions of the Bennett Government in effecting great economies in transporation.

Mr. Rowe touched very lightly on the Stevens-Bennett controversary, supporting the Prime Minister against his former Cabient Minister. Mrs. M. J. McGarvin presided.

WAGES INCREASED

GATINEAU, Que.—An increase of five percent was given to all employees of the Canadian International Paper Company here, it was announced to-day. The increase goes into effect immediately and brought the total gross increase to 20 percent within one year. About 700 employees of the company's paper mill and the International Fibre Board plant here were affected by the increase.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 2.—Although the stock market continues to present a sold-out appearance it does not go much beyond that stage in point of strength. There are still individual weak spots side by side with strong spots but the general picture is that of exhaustion of selling. For the time being one must regard as a flaw in the general picture of market firmness the action of railroad bonds and stocks action that may be corrected of course but action cannot be ignored. There was improvement in the action of oils yesterday. Standard of N.J. and Texas Corpn. showed favorable action. Johns Manville is the leader of speculative action at present.

General Motors shows favorable action as do the store stocks. There is no point in not adhering to a constructive view in respect to selected stocks. The inflationary trend of the administration's policies, and the ever present potentiality of an inflation psychology growing out of either direct administration action of demands of citizens may be the basis for the drying up of sales and buying of selected issues.

October ended with stock prices approximately where they were when the month began and half way between the low point of September and the high of October 11th. The significant event of the period was the failure of a hopeful rally to carry through the overhead stratum of resistance not very clearly defined in the area between 85 and 90 on the standard industria index. At present the market is presenting a sold-out appearance It is hard to explain it's indifference to events like the A & P strike and lockout on any other basis. This encourages the belief that further recessions will be held to small scope. But the stimulus which would carry prices upward is not in view. It may crop out suddenly in next week's elections but the chances are against it. Expectations of an early spring pick-up in business remain as the most probable market factor.

WOMEN USURP CLUB DINNER

Kiwanis Find Out That Women Can Really Keep a Secret.

CHARGE OF PROGRAM.

Women can keep a secret after all, Kiwanians learned to their dismay as they reported for their weekly luncheon at noon to-day. After a week of hushed mystery in regard to the nature of the meeting, President Archie B. Gates arrived to find his wife ensconced in his chair of authority with several other merry wives of Kiwanis usurping head table seats. Control of the meeting was yielded to them without resistance.

Ladies present in addition to Mrs. Gates were Mrs. Charles Saunders, Mrs. J. A. McKone, Mrs. L. J. Pettit and Mrs. Laurie Mitchell.

As the program of the luncheon got under way, Mr. McKone was called upon for a speech, whereupon his wife pinch-hitted with a witty address on the topic, "Do Married Men Make the Best Husbands," introduced by Scotty Scott, Mrs. Laurie Mitchell doubled for her husband with two solos with the unreserved approval of the club. Charles (Caruso) Saunders, introduced by Ben Chilton, passed on similar responsibilities to Mrs. Saunders. Mrs. Pettit sobered the tone of the merry meeting with a well-received selection of monologues and recitations.

Two piano offerings by Bob Maybee proved features of the program.

William Moorhead, a recent arrival to the city as the new manager of the Agnew-Surpass Shoe Store, was presented as a recruit to the local club by W. A. Richardson. Mr. Moorhead was a member of the Sault Ste. Marie Club before coming here.

Sedition Bill Passes House Of Commons

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(C. P. Cable) —By a vote of 241 to 65 the House of Commons today gave final reading to the government's sedition bill, sending it to the House of Lords where passage is assured.

The vote came after day-long debate during which George Lansbury, Labor leader, characterized the measure as "a dying effort" of reactionaries to restrict the expression of public opinion.

The bill against incitement to disaffection among the nation's armed forces, declared Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, was aimed "at protecting our present liberties."

FIND WRECKAGE OF MOTOR SHIP BURIED IN SAND

Cargo Strews Shores of St. Lawrence, But Bodies of Crew Missing.

HAD SIX ABOARD.

Mariners Believe Craft Grounded in Blizzard While Seeking Shelter.

CLARKE CITY, Que., Nov. 2. — (C.P.).—Wreckage of the small mofor ship St. Roi David, which foundered in a Gulf of St. Lawrence storm, was found half buried under drifting sand on the north shore to-day at the entrance to Seven Islands Bay. No trace was found of Captain Joseph Brie and the five members of his crew. All are believed drowned.

A search party which set out from here reported to-day the battered wreckage of the 87-foot motor vessel was found at the entrance to Seven Islands Bay in the passage between the west end of Manaween Island and Les Rochers a Tarre. The hull was washed by huge waves and half embedded in the deep sand. Cargo of the little ship was strewn along the shore. Members of the search party believed the bodies of the six members of the St. Roi David ship's company were also buried in the deep sand on the beach.

Caught in Blizzard.

Reconstructing the tragedy of the early winter gulf storm, local mariners in the search party believed that Captain Brie, part owner of the vessel he commanded, was caught in the storm after setting out from Isle Oeufs and tried to run for shelter in Seven Islands Bay. The position of the splintered hulk indicated that the St. Roi David swallowed up in the raging blizzard and hampered by falling darkness, failed to negotiate the narrow passage and ran ashore. Huge waves smashed the little ship as she grounded on the sand.

Lifeboat Wrecked.

Captain Brie, Purser Stanislas Pelletier, First Officer Deschenes, Engineer Tremblay, the cook and the one sailor, apparently tried to launch the motor lifeboat. The shattered after portion of the lifeboat was found half-buried in the sand, not far from the hulk of the St. Roi David. The gasoline engine of the former was missing, torn from its base.

Vegetables, fruits, boxes of mixed cargo and water-soaked pieces of packing cases littered the sandy shore of the bay, but after a 10-hour search, the rescue party failed to find any traces of the ship's crew.

Early reports said there were half a dozen passengers on board as well as Captain Brie and his crew, but this was denied later by the ship's agents.

ening, to request that a local option vote be put to the electorate on New Year's Day.

Two Months' Time.

It was later learned, however, that under statutory requirements two months must elapse between the time such request might be granted by the council and the time that the vote might be put to the electorate. Chapter 69, section 6, sub-section 5 of the Liquor Control Act states:

"The day fixed for taking the vote on any question shall be the day upon which under the Municipal Act, or any by-law passed under that Act, a poll would be held at the annual election of members of the council of the municipality unless the Board fix some other day and notify the clerk of the municipality to that effect on or before the 1st day of November of the year in which the vote is taken; but a poll shall not be held on any such question until after the expiration of two months from the passing of a by-law for submitting the question, where the council submits the same without a petition, nor until after the expiration of two months from the filing of a petition as the case may be."

SEAWAY OPPOSITION

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 2. (AP).—Opposition to ratification of the proposed St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty with Canada project was expressed by J. HAVELOCK WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLD ANNUAL MASQUERADE BALL

Nurses in Charge of Quintuplets Win Fancy Dress Prize —Many Fine Costumes.

EVENING NETS $80.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—Witches, goblins and spooks held court here Wednesday evening, when almost the entire population turned out to observe the traditional feast of All Hallows' Eve.

Early in the evening the youngsters arrayed in strange ensembles garnered from attic and chests visited the various homes where it was known from past experiences they would be accorded a welcome and treated to the goodies prepared for the Hallowe'en visitors.

Interest began to centre around the Town Hall about nine o'clock when older members of the community began to arrive to enjoy the annual masquerade dance held under the auspices of Havelock Women's Institute. More than half the guests came in fancy, hard time or comic costume, and enjoyed to the full round and square dancing to music furnished by Doug. Hutchinson's orchestra. Gypsies, squaws, Indians, Turkish ladies, page boys, Peter Pan, pierrots, dominos, sheiks, old - fashioned couples, Red Riding Hood, bell boys, as well as comic characters of all kinds were to be seen dancing around, all concealed behind the masks, and keeping everybody guessing until the magic midnight hour. Perhaps the most attractive couple on the floor were the two nurses in charge of the Dionne quintuplets, with a large double carriage with five baby dolls each labelled with her name. The nurses were in full graduate uniform with masks complete, and most solicitous about their young charges. This couple took first prize in the fancy dress class. Alma Martin and Grace Ketchen, as an old-fashioned couple in comic costumes, who kept everybody guessing during the entire evening, and provided a great deal of merriment, were winners of the comic class prizes. Mr. and Mrs. George Rigby of Smith Falls, their oath of allegiance and are ed first prize in their class. In each case the couple remained together all evening until time to unmask, and much interest centred around them until the very last minute.

Miss Jean Pirie of Toronto was present and gave a splendid exhibition of tap dancing, and also favored the gathering with a couple of songs, "Moon Glow" and "I'll string along with you." Little Helen White (Princess Helena), of a Toronto radio station, who was expected to be present, was unable to attend the dance owing to an engagement in a Toronto theatre. A cafeteria in the council chamber was well patronized.

Members of the Institute committee are gratified at the result of the dance, a thoroughly good time having been enjoyed by all, no disorder, and approximately eighty dollars net in the Institute treasury.

TO BE INCLUDED IN WORKS PLAN

"From all reports from the vast majority on relief, the allowance is adequate."

When a works' scheme is prepared by the province, "undoubtedly workers' home and slum clearance will be included," says Mr. Croll, who points out the government is not responsible for provision of shelter for unemployed, "and is unprepared to assume it.

The government is responsible for its share of the cost within the regulations, he added, but the actual responsibility lies with the municipality.

Evictions also are beyond the scope of the government and are under private contracts between landlord and tenant. "However, it is our intention to present legislation at the next session of the Ontario Legislature which will be more satisfactory we know, and will greatly ameliorate conditions."

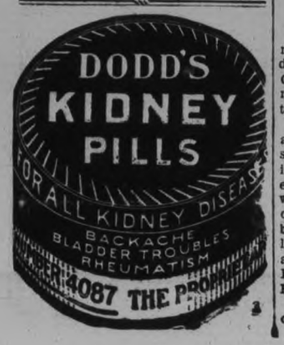
BETHANY

W. J. McMullen of Lindsay spent the week-end with his brother, Charles McMullen, Front street.

Mrs. J. J. Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. Padgham spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. F. Stevenson at Allandale.

Mr. and Mrs Harold Thompson of Manvers station, were guests on Sunday of friends in the village, and attended the services in the United Church.

Victor McCartney of Cornwall, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. W. H. McCartney.



Obituary

MRS. ALBERT EDWARDS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, November 2—Mrs. Albert Edwards, another old resident of the village, and a pioneer of Manvers Township, died on Sunday at the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough. The deceased lady was 79 years of age, and is survived by her aged husband, and one sister, Mrs. Isaac Fallis, of this village.

The funeral on Monday was largely attended from her late residence to the Presbyterian cemetery at Millbrook, Rev. Mr. Patton, of the United Church, officiating at the service at the home, and also at the graveside.

MRS. JOHN BEATTY

TWEED, Nov. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—An old resident of Hungerford, Katherine Beatty, wife of the late John Beatty and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Porter, passed away at Picton on October 29th, following an illness of several weeks. The late Mrs. Beatty suffered a fractured leg some time ago and due to her advanced age of 74 years, her condition grew steadily worse. Born in Hungerford Township, she spent many years in this immediate district and on the retirement of her husband from active farming, the family removed to live at Picton. Mr. Beatty died four years ago. The late Mrs. Beatty was a member of the United Church.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. William Varty, Picton; five sisters, Mrs. A. M. Dafoe, Mrs. John Dwyer, and Mrs. John Brown, all of Tweed, Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Peterborough, and Mrs. John Rhodes, Picton. Two brothers also remain: William Porter of Hungerford, and Everett Porter of Picton.

The remains were brought to Tweed on Wednesday afternoon and interment was in Victoria cemetery. A large number of friends were in attendance. The bearers were: William Craig, Jerry Poiritt and John Brown of Tweed, and Messrs. Campney, Anderson and Westman of Picton.

FRED KINGYENS

TWEED, Nov. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—As the result of a sudden heart attack, Fred Kingyens died at his home in Detlor, near Bancroft, Tuesday morning. He had been apparently in good health up to the time of the heart seizure.

The late Mr. Kingyens was born in Queensboro 61 years ago. His father, Samuel R. Kingyens, died some years ago. His early years were spent in the Queensboro district, but the greater part of his life was lived in Detlor, where he was engaged in farming. He was a man of fine character, a member of the United Church and of the Orange Order. He was unmarried. Left to mourn his death are his mother, Mrs. Samuel R. Kingyens of Belleville; one sister, Mrs. B. M. Mason, Belleville; two brothers, Edward of Detlor and John of New Liskard, Ont.

RICHARD CONLIN

TWEED, Nov. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Richard Conlin, who died in Brantford, took place from St. Edmund's Roman Catholic Church at Stoco on Thursday morning, with Rev. Father Cullinane conducting Requiem Mass. The late Mr. Conlin, who was 76 years of age, was born near Stoco and spent his boyhood days there, removing to make his home near Brantford. His wife, who was formerly Jane Cassidy of Stoco, died one year ago.

His death occurred following an illness of several months. He was always a farmer and a devout member of the Roman Catholic Church. He is survived by one son, Albert of Brantford, and a grandson, "Buddy." The late Mr. Conlin was the last surviving member of the family.

Among those in attendance at the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Conlin of Brantford; Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Burgoyne and Mr. and Mrs. Lynch of Belleville, and Mrs. Dargie of Paris, Ont.

EPHRAIM FITCHETT.

TWEED, Nov. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—One of the oldets residents of South Fredericksburg township, near Napanee, was removed with the passing of Ephriam Fitchett, who passed away at the age of eighty-two years. The late Mr. Fitchett was a United Empire Loyalist stock and had lived all his life in that neighborhood. He was a prosperous farmer and a splendid citizen. He was a Conservative in politics and an Anglican in religion. He is survived by his wife and two children, one son, John, at home, and one daughter, Mrs. Fred Boyce of South Fredericksburg. One brother, H. Fitchett, lives at Marlbank. Mr. Ed. Fitchett of Tweed, is a cousin of the deceased.

The funeral took place from his late home to Sandhurst cemetery.

ALEXANDER FLEMING.

TWEED, Nov. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— Alexander Fleming died at his home at White Lake, near Crookston, on Friday, after an illness of about three months' duration.

The late Mr. Fleming was born at White Lake in Huntingdon township, 57 years ago, and had resided in that locality all his life, being engaged in farming. In religion he was a member of the Presbyterian church. Surviving to mourn his loss besides his widow are two sons, Wallace and Delbert Fleming at home, and two daughters, Miss Aletha Fleming, Madoc and Miss Ethel Fleming at home.

One brother, Mr. Richard Fleming, of White Lake, six sisters, Mrs. W. H. Rollins, Ivanhoe; Mrs. Wm. Holbert, Thomasburg; Mrs. Ed Blakely, Thomasburg; Mrs. David Whytock, in United States; Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, Holloway; Miss Alice Fleming of Stirling.

Beautiful-Dumb

KINGSTON, N.C., Nov. 2. (C.P.)—Beautiful but dumb is this pigeon. It goes to roost just before six o'clock on the rim of the town clock's dial beneath the VI. and evening after evening, it is brushed off by the clock's hands.

Watchers see the minute hand come around, bump the bird, which jumps over the hand and continues to roost. The same thing happens with the hour hand. People wonder why the pigeon doesn't get wise.

McLEAN HAIG, GUEST SPEAKER

Former Campbellford Resident Addresses St. John's Men's Club.

INTERESTING PROGRAM.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 2 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—At a well attended meeting of the Men's Club of St. John's United Church held on Thursday evening at which the president, Harvey Donald, had arranged an excellent program, included was one of Campbellford's old boys, McLean Haig, now located in Belleville, as guest speaker. Dinner was served at 7 o'clock. This was followed by community singing led by Albert Hazell, brief address by the president, Ionic Quartette, cornet solo by Captain Houslander, address by the Rev. Harold B. Neal.

The speaker of the evening was then introduced by Earl H. Greig, principal of the High School, from which Mr. Haig had graduated not so many years ago, later attending Queen's University, afterwards becoming associated with newspaper work in Regina and finally locating in Belleville where he is engaged in the insurance business.

Mr. Haig took for his subject "Western Canada," referring particularly to Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan, stating that these three provinces were entirely and distinctly different from the sister provinces due to the fact that there was only one industry, agriculture and that during the past six years things had become very serious; most of the farms were mortgaged, cattle and horses were poor due to lack of grain and pasture, and in many cases children had not the proper clothing and were unable to attend school— thousands in Saskatchewan alone were in that condition, and while there had been no crops for years, the people of this section were brave and optimistic, and cheered each other up by saying: "Never mind, perhaps next year we will have a good crop." The West deeply appreciates the efforts of the United Church on their behalf. If you could see those people when the cars of mixed vegetables, clothing, and canned goods arrive from Ontario towns, you would feel that a great service had been done.

Dr. Bruce Longmore moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for his most interesting address, which was seconded by Dr. E. A Stuart.

Young People Hold Successful Social

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2.— The annual social evening and masquerade was held by the A.Y.P.A. of Christ Church on Monday evening in the Parish Hall with the Rev. T. H. Floyd presiding in the absence of the president, Alton Dunk. A contest was conducted by Mr. Floyd, the prize being won by R. M. Lewis.

During the promenade which followed judging of the costumes took place Mr. Lewis, Mrs. Reid and Mr. Floyd acting as judges, after much consideration. Miss Dorothy Bullen was awarded the prize for the best fancy dress, representing an old lady and the best young man's costume by Mr. Roy Ramsden as a pirate.

A short program was then enjoyed including an exciting Hallowe'en story by Miss Vera Wood and piano solos by Miss Thelma Hollings and Miss Mayme Benor.

After the service of refreshments which were appropriate for the Hallowe'en season, the very jolly evening was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Light Fall Docket Campbellford Court

CAMPBELLFORD, November 2 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg presided at Division Court held in the Public Library here on Thursday. There were only a few minor cases which were quickly disposed of. Clerk Neil Morrison and Bailiff Andrew Milne were in attendance for the first time since their appointment.

Plans are being made for the new Zeppelin which will be launched early next year to explore the vast forests of Brazil, and a hangar is being constructed at Rio de Janeiro to house it.

FALL WHEAT HAS NOT HEAVY TOP

South Monaghan Farmers Well Advanced With Fall Work.

FEED SUPPLY GOOD

BALLEBORO, Nov. 2 (Examiner Correspondence) — The farmers of the district are well advanced with their fall work. Ploughing is nearing completion.

The fall wheat did not get as good a top on as is desired, but the crops appear in a healthy condition.

Threshing has been concluded and the yields of grain have been most gratifying. Although hay is generally scarce, there is an abundance of good straw and with the excellent yield of oats and turnips and mangels the stock should winter well in South Monaghan.

The open fall is also an asset to the farmer as it is making it possible for stock to remain on the pastures and thus preserve the fodder within the barns.

Hallowe'en Party

The Hallowe'en party held in the hall under the auspices of the Young People's Society of the United Church on Tuesday evening was the most successful yet held in the village.

About fifty young people were present and under the capable direction of Miss Bessie Barnard, recreational convenor and Miss Fern Rahmel, Missionary convenor the stunts and games were thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

The highlight of the evening's program was a ghost parade, where led by a ghastly ghost parties or groups of young people were led on a parade blind-folded.

Refreshments were later served and the young people did full justice to sandwiches, pumpkin pie and candy.

Next week's meeting will be in the form of a special fellowship meeting, when Rev. Patton of Bethany will be the guest speaker of the local group.

HITLER DEBATES SAAR SITUATION

corded civilians "left an indelible impression on the minds of the German people." It cited a series of fatal incidents, "to say nothing of the atrocities of colored soldiers of Grande National. Those Moroccans who fired upon women and children in Frankfurt-on-Main."

Viktor Lutze, chief of staff of the storm troops, in an address to group leaders, revealed that Hitler means to enroll a new type of storm troop leader, quite different from the putting over the Nazi revolution. He said a rigorous corrective process would be applied.

Reorganization of the storm troops has been under way since the June 30 "blood purge," and Lutze indicated it virtually had been completed.

While no details were given, it is understood membership has been drastically cut. Some reports said local units have been reduced by as much as 75 per cent. and some units dissolved altogether.

Churchill Warns Britain.

WOODFORD BRIDGE, England, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Winston Churchill yesterday warned Britain that Germany, rearming "secretly, illegally and rapidly," will have "overtaken us before another year has passed" in "organized military machines alone."

"A reign of terror exists in Germany in order to keep secret the feverish and terrible preparations they are making," the former Chancellor of the Exchequer told his constituency.

"Mr. Stanley Baldwin has said, 'our frontiers are the Rhine.' Can we be sure that the men now in control in Germany will not reply to that, 'Our targets are the Thames'?"

A national emergency is approaching, Churchill said, as he attacked the National Government for what he said was its laggardness in completing the program for air defence.

He termed the government's attitude astounding "when we consider the character of the present German Government, the rapidly darkening European scene, and the obligations which ministers repeatedly are declaring we have in Europe."

The Germans, he asserted, "have gigantic civil aviation with enormous reserves of pilots and airplanes, many of them faster than our fastest military machines."

Churchill declared the approaching emergency must be faced "with energy and courage if a safe, coherent and peace-keeping policy is to be found."

"The state of Britain's air defences, he insisted, is an issue far larger than mere party considerations.

"In spite of the plainest warnings and the facts, practically nothing has been done during the whole year," he said.

He expressed amazement that "patriotic Ministers are prepared to go on month after month bearing this load of responsibility and that members of Parliament set their obedience to party whips above their duty to the nation."

French Anxiety Deepens.

PARIS, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Allegations of Germany's increasing military might yesterday intensified the war scare gripping France.

In great measure the fear of conflict, which overshadowed All-Saints' Day pilgrimages of the French people to the graves of their war and civil dead, was based on belief that the approaching plebiscite in the Saar might set off an international explosion.

For the first time since the war, the French apparently were not so confident of the crushing superiority of their army, leading Minister of War Henri Petain to seek urgent reinforcements for the nation's weapons of defence.

5 AT ONTARIO HOSPITAL IN COBOURG LOSE JOBS

COBOURG, Nov. 2. — Five employees at the Ontario Hospital here received notice yesterday that their service were no longer required. Liberal supporters filled their jobs. Names of those dismissed are: Tom Shaw, age 60, war veteran and married; F. Walton, war veteran, married and age 35; T. Slattery, war veteran, age 40, married; H. Lloyd, age 50, married, and H. Tetlock, single, age 25. The latter three were employed as firemen. The services of the discharged men range from one to six years.

LIBERALS NAME BRUCE McNEVIN

Will Contest Victoria-Haliburton Riding as Progressive-Liberal.

HON. W. D. EULER SPEAKS.

LINDSAY, Nov. 2 (Examiner Correspondence). — Bruce McNevin, farmer of Reaboro', was yesterday afternoon selected as the Liberal-Progressive standard-bearer for Victoria and Haliburton to contest the coming Federal election. It was a large and representative gathering of some five or six hundred people.

Earlier in the day officers of the association were elected, as follows. President, A. J. McLaughlin, Lindsay; Vice-Presidents, F. Welsh, Minden; Dr. Millyard, Coboconk; A. E. Tiers, Fenelon Falls; A. E. Rich, Oakwood; Secretary, W. Eric Stewart, Lindsay; Treasurer, Dr. G. Graham, Fenelon Falls.

James Carol, a young farmer of Downeyville, said: "The people have awakened from their lethargy to drive an autocratic Tory dictator out of power," and Hon. W. D. Euler of Kitchener also referred to Premier Bennett as a dictator. Mr. Carol stated that it was an "insult" the way Mr. Bennett had treated a monster delegation of farmers when they arrived at Ottawa.

Bennett as Dictator

"If we do not change, Bennett will have dictatorship ruling in Canada," said Dr. Johnston. "Look what has happened to Hon. H. H. Stevens. The Henry Government was not a Conservative Government, and Tories voted with us to vote Henry out.

Saul Bernstein of Haliburton claimed that Hon. Mackenzie King lost his last election because he was not progressive enough.

William Newman, M.P.P. for Victoria and Haliburton, said that Mitchell Hepburn had promised to cut down expenditures, and was doing so. Civil servants were being dismissed because the system was overcrowded, and because of incompetency. To-day you cannot get a job at Queen's Park unless you have ability, and those in jobs must work. "I said I would take care of the boys in the road camps, and I have. There hasn't been a camp closed until the road was completed," he said. Mr. Newman stated that winter camps were to be started on a road to be built from Bancroft to Orillia.

Hon. W. D. Euler: "Unless there is a political miracle, the Bennett Government is doomed. His Government is going to pieces from within. The one man who had the confidence of the people, Hon. H. H. Stevens, has quit the Cabinet. Mr. Bennett is a dictator and somewhat of an autocrat. I am not blaming the Bennett Government for the depression, but it has lasted longer than it should. Mr. Bennett is in office under false pretenses, because of the promises he made, which he knew he could not carry out. His Government has taken no real, definite action to relieve conditions of depression."

Euler on Railways

Continuing, Mr. Euler said: "I believe in public ownership of the railways, but not under Mr. Beatty's management. There seems to be a definite purpose in Mr. Beatty's propaganda, but the Liberals believe in amalgamation of the railways as a business venture, not as national development. I will fight against the C.P.R. getting control. We must balance our budget, and perhaps one way to do it is with the railways."

INSULL ADMITS MISTAKES MADE

had "contributed more toward the wealth of this Mississippi Valley than all the losses on any securities I might have issued."

Speaks Right to Jury

Through most of his examination the aged defendant, who rose from a five-shillings-a-week job in London to the head of one of the world's largest enterprises, spoke directly to the jury. Among other things he told them:

1—That he attended a White House conference in 1929 and expended $200,000,000 to help carry out President Hoover's "Business as usual campaign."

2—That the acts the United States government described as criminal were "most usual" and "completely regular."

3—That Stanley Baldwin former Prime Minister of Great Britain, offered him the chairmanship of the British High Tension Power development in 1926.

4—That three of the young defendants—John F. O'Keefe, his former secretary; Edward J. Doyle and P. J. McEnroe had "no more to do with this case than you gentlemen sitting in the jury box."

Proud of Accomplishments

Most of Insull's time was given to a detailed recitation of his career, and there was a note of pride in his voice as he outlined his accomplishments. There were times however when he touched on high finance—and his "Mistakes." One of these, he said, was made in connection with his policy of doing all possible banking with Chicago institutions.

"I think," he said, "it was one of my great mistakes, without any reflections on the banking facilities of Chicago. I think I made a great mistake by not spreading the interest in me and my companies.

Another 'mistake' Insull said he made was one of finance in 1930 when he 'ransomed' some of the securities of his companies from Cyrus Eaton, the Celeveland capitalist, paying Eaton $56,000,000, which was well above the market price.

"The mistake I made, gentlemen," he said, "was that I did not arrange either before or just after the purchases were made for the permanent financing of the purchases by the issue of some security and the sale of it."

Electors' List Is Nearing Completion

CAMPBELLFORD, November 2 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—The Registrar of Electors of Northumberland County, J. F. R. Douglas, has been busy on the preliminary lists and states that the same are now practically complete. Any person whose name has been inadvertently omitted may have it placed on the list by applying to the enumerator of their particular division on or before November 15. Enumerators will be in their respective offices on November 13, 14, 15, during the hours of from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m.

COMMISSIONER LEAVES

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (CP)—Commissioner James Hay, head of the Salvation Army in Canada for the last five year, left to-day for Montreal to sail for England, where he will accept another important post with the Army.

The Commissioner and Mrs. Hay were bidden farewell at the Union Station by about 150 Salvation Army members.

The SECRET of DELICIOUS Pies!

A good pie brings more compliments than anything else you can bake! Even if you're a beginner—you can make pies that are astonishingly fine by following these easy St. Charles recipes—crust so light and flaky—fillings so smooth and creamy—what pastry!

Borden's Special Pastry

1¼ cups flour.
¼ teaspoon baking powder.
¼ teaspoon salt.
⅓ cup shortening.
2 tablespoons ice water.
2 tablespoons St. Charles Milk.

Sift flour and measure. Add baking powder and salt. Sift again. Cut in shortening. Blend St. Charles Milk and water. Some flours absorb more liquid than others. Add just enough to make mixture stick together. Roll on slightly floured board. (In mixing and rolling handle as little as possible to insure flaky crust.) Makes one pie shell.

NOTE: For Baked Pie Shell bake 15 minutes in a hot oven (450° F.) or until delicately browned.

Custard Pie

1⅓ cups St. Charles Milk.
1⅓ cups water.
4 eggs.
⅓ cup granulated sugar.
¼ teaspoon salt.
Unbaked pie crust (9 inch).
Grating of nutmeg.

Blend St. Charles Milk, water, slightly-beaten eggs, sugar and salt together. Line pie tin with unbaked pie crust. Build up fluted edge. Pour in filling. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) to set edge. Decrease heat and bake about 40 minutes in slow oven (300° F.) A knife blade inserted will come out clean when custard is done.

Borden's St. Charles Milk makes a wonderful improvement, too, in soups, creamed vegetables, puddings . . . but be sure you buy St. Charles—the evaporated milk with the fresh natural double-rich milk flavor!

ARITHMETIC COURSE IS IN NEED OF REVISION CITY TEACHERS TOLD

Many Problems Taught in Fourth Book Never Really Understood.

COURSE DISCUSSED.

The Fourth Book Section of the Teachers' Institute met at Central School on Thursday afternoon, with G. C. Northey as chairman.

K. S. Wightman, B.A., introduced the discussion about what could be eliminated from the Fourth Class work, and what could be added to take its place.

Mr. Wightman said, that in determining the importance of any item of learning three questions should be the guiding principle: Is it of practical value? Has it educative value? Is it taking up time better used otherwise?

The arithmetic course seems in need of revision. Many problems taught are never really understood. Too much time seems necessary for the subject. In Saskatchewan a limit of 12 per cent. of the school-day is placed on it. Many problems such as those involving papering, shingling, etc., are of little value as they do not comply with the methods used in everyday practice. Fractions with large denominators are seldom met with in ordinary life; decimals are used instead. Fire insurance is taught, but not life insurance, yet the latter probably affects more persons. Problems often do not fit the mental age of children; inaccuracy is a constant complaint.

Correct Use of Words

In grammar, there seems to be little value in much of the classification of the parts of speech. Grammar should be a rational basis for the correct use of words.

In teaching geography, teachers spend much time on the physical features of countries, when the chief interest of a country should be the people living there, whom efforts should be made to understand. Teachers should aim to give geography a more cosmopolitan nature.

More good supplementary reading should be introduced.

Accurate Thinking

Mr. Dearborn led the discussion on the topic of Accurate Thinking. He said that mistakes and inaccuracy in work were much too prevalent. These may be due to improper eunciation, poor hearing, bad print and bad writing, but the chief cause of them is laziness and carelessness. Pupils do not sufficiently concentrate on one thing at a time; they are too easily enticed from the matter on hand, which results in inefficiency.

Carelessness leads to loose habits that produce trouble in later life. Many of our automobile accidents are due to a lack of concentration. Mistake are always costly. It was said of Poincare of France that he was "painstakingly accurate."

Stricter discipline seems needed. Teachers should not accept slovenly work. Let pupils experience the joy of doing things well.

In the discussion which followed, it was pointed out that concentration depends on interest. There are now greater numbers of distractions for children leading to less concentration and hence more carelessness.

Composition

J. E. R. Munro, B.A., introduced the subject of "Enrichment of Composition."

Mr. Munro did not think that composition had been raised to its proper place. There was not sufficient time given to it, yet the proper use of language should be a great asset in life. More oral composition is needed, epecially as it has greater value than the written kind. In public schools teachers should confine themselves to small units such as paragraph work. It could be finished and criticised in a lesson period before pupils would become bored.

Models can be examined and then rebuilt by pupils. Subjects for the study should be those of everyday life with which the pupil is familiar. Many of these might come from subjects as history and geography.

Practice in the subject is very necessary. There is a suitable vocabulary for each individual subject. It is good practice to take one topic and write upon as if the author were in varying moods such as scorn, praise, etc.

Practical criticism of compositions is very important. Pupils must criticize short extracts. Questions such as the following will help in the criticism: Does the paragraph present a picture? Does it fit the topic sentence? What are fitting expressions?

The spelling and errors in grammar are not the chief essentials in the enrichment of composition.

The pupils' models should be kept. It is a good thing to have individual books for children where they can see what progress they make.

It is a good plan to select a topic and have one set of pupils write a paragraph on one phase of it, while other sets of pupils write on other phases. Bring the best paragraphs together and note the results.

In friendly letters let pupils write to others in the school.

In the discussion that followed, it was pointed out that business and friendly letters would be the chief forms of composition that adults would use. Pupils should be encouraged to use their own vocabulary and to express themselves in their own words rather than in the language of others.

Second Class Section.

The First and Second Class Section met in the Public Library Hall with Miss Eva Elliott as chairman.

Dealing with Book II. Limit, Miss Stout outlined the course of Study in Arithmetic, emphasizing the need of constant drill, with its attendant difficulties. She also mentioned the work as laid down in the monthly limits as well as in the opportunity plan book, and urged for greater uniformity in teaching. The idea of teaching division in conjunction with multiplication was discussed, and a resolution passed that this plan be adopted for the coming year throughout the city.

A spirited discussion on Spelling in Second Book was opened by Miss E. Thomlinson, who pointed out the difficulty of covering the complete course in this subject, and also noted the necessity of correlating it with other subjects, such as geography, memory work, and language.

The problem of dealing with a pupil, fair at oral work but very backward at written work, is found in both first and second books. Ways and means of meeting this difficulty were outlined by Miss Olive Armstrong, who brought concise and helpful suggestions on the topic. The reasons for this problem may lie either with the pupil, because of physical defects or sheer laziness, or with the teacher, who may assign too lengthy exercises. Various effective devices were suggested to overcome this backwardness on the part of the pupil.

Of particular interest to First Book teachers was the subject: "Which has been found more successful—teaching facts of numbers 11 to 18, singly first, or with extensions?" This was dealt with by Miss E Huffman, who reviewed her method of procedure, as taking these number facts with extensions, and from the discussion period which followed this seemed to be the consensus of opinion as giving the best results.

For First Book pupils it is difficult to arrange examinations, especially in language, which are simple enough for the pupils to carry out. This topic was introduced by Miss Alberta Hunter, who advised the use of individual books, where possible, so that the answers reach the greatest degree of simplicity. The course of study was briefly outlined and great emphasis placed upon blackboard work.

Several excellent concrete devices as means of procuring accuracy in arithmetic were brought by Miss Myra Baird, who pointed out that constant checking on the part of the teacher was essential, and who also recommended the dictation of questions to the class as a way of securing uniform effort.

Labor Trouble Hits Grocery Chain

CHARLES A. BROOKS GEORGE HARTFORD

Closing of A. & P. grocery stores in Cleveland, Ohio, following differences with labor unions, threatens to precipitate labor battle in the United States. George Hartford, chairman of the board of the company, and Charles A. Brooks, central division superintendent, are directing the A. & P. moves from division headquarters in Pittsburg.

HEADACHE, BACKACHE?

FOR young girls growing into womanhood, for women in middle life going through the "change," or those who suffer from headache, weakening drains, backache and nervousness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just the vegetable tonic needed. Mrs. Elizabeth Dadson of 523 Simcoe St., London, Ont., says: "When rearing a family of five children my health broke. I slept poorly, lost weight, went down to 90 lbs. I had pain in my back, and headaches almost drove me mad. After taking the first bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I noticed a big improvement in my health—I felt stronger, my nerves became quiet and normal and I rested better." New size, tablets 50 cents, liquid $1.00.

THAT "LIKE THE DICKENS" FEELING IS LIVER

Wake Up Your Liver Bile. Feel Fit. You Needn't use Calomel To Do It.

It's your liver, failing to pour out the vital two pounds of bile, daily, into your bowels, that makes you feel so off-colour.

Lack of bile means poor digestion. Food stays too long in your bowels and decays. Your system is poisoned. You go through the misery of gas, bloating, pain, heartburn. You have a dark brown abominable taste in your mouth and bad breath. Your skin's unhealthy and often your head aches. Your whole system seems out of kilter.

How can you reasonably expect to clear up a condition like this by merely taking salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage? These only move the bowels, and that's not enough. You must wake up your liver bile.

Avoid calomel (mercury). Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. They're purely vegetable, gentle, sure and safe. They'll make you feel a hundred per cent better in a very short time.

Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name—and get them! Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. 25c. at all druggists. 45

The Weather

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (C.P.).—The disturbance which was over the New England coast yesterday morning has moved north-eastward to Labrador with increasing intensity, causing strong winds and gales, with rain in Eastern Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and Gulf of St. Lawrence. Pressure continues low over the western half of the continent, and the weather has been mostly fair and comparatively mild in the Western provinces. Cool weather has prevailed in Ontario, with snowflurries in some western districts.

Lower Lake Region and Georgian Bay: Moderate west and south-west winds; fair and cool. Saturday — Southerly winds; fair and becoming somewhat milder.

Northern Ontario: Fair and cool. Saturday—Mostly fair and becoming somewhat milder.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Moderate westerly winds; fair and cool. Saturday—Fair and becoming somewhat milder.

HOME-BUILDING DRIVE FOR U. S.

Roosevelt Will Issue Loans Up to 80 p.c. of Value at Low Interest.

$15,000,000,000 BOOM.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt, overruling his housing administrator on interest rates to aid "the great mass of our people," launched to-day a gigantic home-building campaign which may aim at a $15,000,000,000 construction boom during the next 10 years.

Setting a "basic maximum" interest rate of five per cent. for the whole of the United States, the administration announced regulations under which loans for home-building will be insured up to 80 per cent. of the appraised value.

James A. Moffett, former Standard oil executive whom the President drafted to be his housing administrator, thought the interest should be six per cent. in some sections, but the President disagreed.

"I am firm in the conviction," he told Moffett in an open letter, "that every practical attempt at lowering the cost of homes to the great mass of our people is worthy of our best efforts. It is time to make these lower interest rates apply to every part of the country."

DINING-ROOM AT KING'S HOTEL IS RE-DECORATED

The dining room at the King's Hotel has just been tastefully redecorated, in keeping with other major alterations and improvements made since the hotel came under its present management in February, 1932.

Walls of the dining room have been artistically papered in a modern cream-colored design offering novel contrast to the pale green skirting boards and the delicately shaded blue, electric wall lamps, which provide part of the new wiring installation. Besides the wall lamp, the room is lighted by three suspended ceiling lights of modernistic design.

Electrical work was done by Miller Powell; painting and decorating by Victor Miller; and the new linoleum floor covering comprising a novel star pattern, was laid down by the Robert Fair Company. Twelve new dining tables were supplied by the Peterborough Wood Products.

Production of one iron and steel company in Australia has increased over 50 per cent in the last 12 months.

MOVIE IDOLS ARE MOST HUMAN VIEWED AWAY FROM SPOTLIGHT

Public Gaze Makes Marriage and Other Problems Most Difficult.

AID LESS FORTUNATE.

By GRANT TERRY
(Central Press Canadian Writer)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—No columnist would be a columnist without "Joan and Richard are hollywooing, infantisipating," or what have you.

And yet one wonders! One wonders how many of the columnists are ballyhooing and how much of Hollywood's so-called (s)existence is merely the commonplace existence of Kokomo, Buffalo or Ontario.

Perhaps one of the movie magnates still says, "In two verds I'll tell you! Eem-possible!" And maybe he believes it.

Yes, a prominent foreign star did turn down fifteen hundred dollars a week because he wanted one thousand. But at least he is satisfied.

Not so very long ago movie magazines ran an item something like this: Constance Bennett is now under contract to Warner Brothers at a salary of $30,000 a week.

Works on Holiday

Yes, Miss Bennett received a salary of $30,000 a week—but through a slip up.

You see, in Hollywood a big star is contracted for a period of years. Each year or half year the studio (not the star) has the option of breaking the contract.

The star is "on call" (ready for work) forty weeks a year. The other twelve are her holidays—and, believe me, she deserves them.

Miss Bennett's contract did not say that she could not work during her vacation.

It was impossible for any studio to borrow a star like Constance Bennett from RKO. She was one of their biggest stars. Standard borowing costs are double the star's salary plus two weeks extra pay.

Connie was, however, willing to work during her vacation, so why not pay her what she wanted?

Warners found the answer to the question in the form of a contract with the star to make pictures for them during her twelve weeks. This brings up to the question of salaries.

Salaries Exaggerated

Stars and feature players are not paid too much, because:

1. Movie magazines usually double or triple the amounts for the gullible public.

2. For 280 days each year he or she must be ready to work anytime, anywhere. Sickness is the only excuse and stars will not hold up production unless they are unable to walk and talk.

3. The above places them under a terrific strain.

4. Expenses: 10 per cent of their salary to their business agent, at least 10 per cent to publicity, income tax, upkeep of front (if they do not keep it up their salaries drop accordingly.)

5. If an actress goes to a theatre, dinner or dance with a man, she is "hollywooing" as far as the columnists are concerned. If she stays at home she is conceited.

6. If she goes out occasionally with different men she is "doin' 'em wrong" and up crops a studio official lecturing about contracts, morality clauses, no more options renewed and "fare thee well to pictures." Naturally this excludes public appearances with other stars as requested by the studios.

7. With very few exceptions, every feature player and star in the entire motion picture industry is supporting families, sending the children of relatives to school, helping friends etc.

8. If the box office does not warrant large salaries, the players do not get them.

9. A star's career "on top" is liberally estimated at about six years. After that——?

10. They require talent as well as years of training and hardship in one of the world's most difficult professions—the stage.

Problem of Marriage

As a tabloid blares that two more stars are getting another divorce, we come to another problem—matrimony!

Let us put Mr. and Mrs. John Public in the place of two stars and watch the results.

Mrs. Mary Public is a star and Mr. John Public a feature player, earning about one-third of his wife's salary.

He walks down Hollywood Blvd. A friend comes up: "Why, if it isn't Mr. Mary Public!"

Will "Mr. Mary Public" take it? Perhaps—but not for long. He would prefer divorce to being called a gigolo.

Would Mr. Public like to go to a theatre and see his wife in the arms of another man—even if it is only a picture?

Finally, would Mr. and Mrs. Public stay married as long as Mr. and Mrs. Neil Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd, Lewis Stone and his charming wife, or any of the many happily married couples in Hollywood? (Yes, there are plenty of them!)

There is another side of Hollywood that we hear little or nothing about.

Aid Less Fortunate

Most of the stars have fought a hard battle to attain fame, and they do not hesitate to help others. As an example, take the case of one famous star, one of the most popular actresses to-day. Her name? Miss Joan Crawford.

One afternoon Joan went to a beauty parlor to have her hair done. (A friend of mine was sitting in the next booth. She overheard the conversation.)

Two boys about twenty years old came in and asked for a quarter for a meal. The star overheard them—heard how they had given up college because of financial difficulties, and that they had neither money nor hopes of a job. Joan sent for detectives to investigate the case. When she found that the story was true she sent them back to college, and to-day she is paying all their expenses.

One day while she was on location one of the extras broke his leg. He was not working at the time; otherwise the studio would have paid his expenses. Joan sent him to one of the best hospitals. The extra does not know who came to his aid.

Marion Helps Consumptives

Another even more prominent actress, Marion Davies, has opened her luxurious beach house to tubercular children. The house is located near the children's hospital which she erected and maintains. These are not isolated cases. It is the true spirit of Hollywood.

One night the writer went up to see Richard Cromwell. His charming sister came to the door.

"I'm sorry," she said. "He isn't in. He's working."

Working? From 6 a.m. to 12 or 1 a.m.?

"But," you will say, "he isn't working every day."

No! But he must be ready to work every day and night while he is under contract.

The answer is four little words: Charles John Holt, Jr. Jack spends all his time away from the studio with his handsome fifteen-year-old son. And in a few years that young man will have all the girls on the continent raving about him.

Brazil has banned child labor.

HAIR-DYER LOSES WHEN COOK SUES

Should Have Warned Customer of Risks, Says English Judge.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(CP).—Judge Sir Alfred Tobin gave his views on women's hair during the hearing of a case against a hairdresser. "We always heard of grey hairs being treated with respect," he said.

When counsel commented that women did not seem to like it, the judge said: "The most beautiful thing a woman can have is beautiful white hair."

The action was brought by Mrs Blodwen Gullick, 40, a cook in a private house who claimed $500 damages from a hairdresser for injury to her head by alleged negligent application of a hair dye. She went to the hairdresser to get her hair dyed because it was showing streaks of grey. He applied a solution which caused a burning sensation. A doctor said she was suffering from oedema of the scalp and diffuse erythema—the one a swelling and the other a rash.

Mrs. Gullick was awarded $250 damages with costs, and Judge Tobin said he thought the case was of general importance. He held that it was the hairdresser's duty to warn women of any risk run.

England is boasting that among the many American cities named for English places are 13 Bristols, 13 Oxfords, nine Plymouths, seven Yorks, seven Baths and six Cambridges.

ASK GRAND RIVER ACTION.

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (C.P.).—A deputation representing sections of Western Ontario conferred with Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn yesterday regarding plans for the Grand River Valley development.

William Phillip of Galt, who headed the delegation, introduced by Norman Hipel, new Speaker of the Legislature, said they had outlined plans for the project to Mr. Hepburn, "and while a good many details are yet to be completed the Premier appeared to be very favorable."

DIVORCE ON STEADY DECLINE UNDER NEW SOVIET CAMPAIGN

Government Seeks to Show People Way to True Marital Happiness.

HOLD REFERENDUM.

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

MOSCOW, Nov. 2.—The epidemic of divorce, which followed the war and the revolution period in Russia as everywhere else in Europe, never assumed the proportions in the Soviet Union which the United States of America showed up till recently. Divorce in Russia has steadily declined since the period of reconstruction set in and made life more regular. The emancipation of woman, and the fact that woman can be completely independent of man in this country, has done away with many of the causes of the marital conflicts which led to divorce.

Coralie van Paassen

At the present moment there is a complete revaluation of matrimony in Russia. The government of the Soviet Union wants to elevate the ethical status of marriage. This came in answer to the desires of the people. Recently a gigantic referendum was held among the youth of the land, young people above eighteen years of age in which twenty-five millions expressed their opinion. Seventeen million boys and girls were in favor of the regularization of the marriage laws of the words "marriage should be based upon the sharing of opinions and the spiritual compatibility of two human beings who love one another."

Before a marriage is allowed to go definitely on the rocks in a divorce court, the disputants are urged to go before a court of conciliation, which is not presided over by a legal expert but by a psychopath, a doctor of the soul. He hears both parties separately first, then together, and may prolong his consultations and conferences indefinitely if all find that some benefit is derived from these discussions, the object of which is to save the marriage.

Demand High Standard

In the co-operative agricultural communes and in the state farms another system is in vogue. There they have no doctor of the soul, but if and when it is noticed that a husband and wife don't get along well together, the matter is taken up at a public meeting of the members of the commune. Frequently the offending party is openly reproached and is put on his good behavior, failing which he may be excluded from the commune. The communes demand a high standard of morality from their members.

There are few questions which are so much the subject of scientific and social investigation in the Soviet Union as marriage and divorce at the present moment. This proves in the first place that conditions are easier and that other problems, such as industry, which required undivided attention for a number of years, are now on the way to settlement or normalization.

There is a widespread reaction against the easy divorce laws of the first years of the revolution. This is a result of social conditions becoming more settled. A man who abandons his wife without a just cause, or who falls short in his attention to the household, is no longer left to do as he likes. He is summoned to explain his actions and if he is a member of the Communist Party he runs the risk of being thrown out, which means the loss of many privileges. The Communist Party stands for no nonsense or philandering on the part of its members. It is the duty of the members to set an example to the rest of the population in every domain of life, in industry, in citizenship, in private life, in willingness to serve and in self-sacrifice. For a communist to be caught in a lie is a bad thing. If it happens twice, he is expelled from the party. No mercy is shown.

Difficult to Join Party

It is difficult enough to become a member of that party in Russia, for the candidate must be known for his unswerving devotion to the cause of building socialism, which does not merely mean that he can debate very nicely on the social theories of Marx and Lenin. Like in the early Christian church, where the Catechumens underwent a period of probation, the candidate for membership in the party must pass through years of observation and testing. One false step—attending too lively a party, an affair with another woman if he is married, failure to do his best in the factory or workshop, falling behind in studies in the evening classes—all these things are liable to spoil his chance of admission for good.

You hear a good deal here about the "new morality." "If we are to succeed in the great task that we have set ourselves," one woman professor said to me, "we must learn to treat each other first as beings with an equal human dignity. Woman does not merely exist for the amusement of man, but to be his companion and comrade in all life's undertakings. Men have to take the interest of the home just as much to heart as women."

Men Do Housework

This I mention because in Germany the official view of the relation of the sexes is the very opposite. There, woman is considered an inferior being, the plaything, if not the slave, of the ideal warrior-husband.

To my intense surprise, I found men taking part in the household duties in several homes which I visited. There was a division of labor. You see men pushing the perambulators here now, something that the old Russia considered beneath his dignity. One famous writer washed the dishes after supper, while his wife and I talked. He excused himself that he could not pour the tea yet, as he was still too awkward with the samovar.

I met a boy and a girl, both 25 years of age, who had been married five years. They had done the university together and both were graduate agronomes, who worked at one of the government laboratories, side by side. On the way home from work in the afternoon, they alternately called for their three children at the creche and took them home. They told me that in their circle of friends this sharing of interests in the profession they had chosen was quite general, and that this was considered the ideal form of marriage under the new morality. It is a beautiful relationship!

After Air Record

DRASTIC CURES MAY BE NEEDED SAYS TORY M.P.

Conservative Party is Always Ready to Cut Off "Mouldering Branches."

C. W. BELL SPEAKS.

Stevens Probe Must Go On; Can Be No Stifling by Big Interests.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—Re-organization of the Federal Tory Party was forecast by C. W. Bell, M.P. for West Hamilton, in an address to the Ward 1 Conservative Association in Toronto last night.

"Good Conservatives," he said, "are always ready to cut off the mouldering branches. We are living in abnormal times and drastic remedies may have to be applied to save things for the people of Canada, and I say that the Conservative Party is prepared to cut the whole tree down if necessary. I believe, as we must all believe who have the good of the country at heart, that the good can best be achieved by our party which we are going to purge to the state where it can again be looked upon as an honor and glory to Canada."

He was speaking of the mass buying and price spreads inquiry, and told his audience that whatever might be thought there was no escaping the fact that the inquiry must be brought to a conclusion of some kind, and that pretty soon.

Must Finish Probe.

"A query that may have arisen in the minds of many Canadians," he declared, "is 'whether or not Harry Stevens has been side-tracked; are the aims and beliefs of that committee going to be stifled'? I can say without fear of contradiction that whatever else may happen in the near future that investigation is not going to be stifled at the instance of big business or any one else who may want to stop it, and if these hope by some means to crucify and destroy the effects of what has been done they are going to find that the country will not stand for it."

John Williams, who has just been appointed minister of Hermon and Ebenezer Churches of Llansadwrn, Wales, worked as a bricklayer for six years.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Andrew Fairbairn, Box 362, Lakefield, Ontario:

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis reveals that you are a person who is gifted with good keen common sense. You are one who moves about with excessive rapidity, and yet one who thinks deeply and with a clarity of opinion.

You do not seem to offer your opinion unless you are asked for it, or you think that by giving it you will be able to assist someone else.

Your will-power is normal, and so is your determination, but sometimes neither of these attributes come to your aid just when you require them the most.

Your disposition is changeable, according to circumstances. You can be secretive when necessary, but as a rule you are openhearted and generous, fun-loving and very friendly.

You should love music, and could be termed a fair critic, because your opinion would be just and honest.

You were born under the sign of Pisces the Fishes and which are ruled by Neptune. May and June are your most fortunate months and Saturday your most fortunate day. Your lucky number is eight.

Nellie Greenly, Warkworth, Ont.:

The handwriting as described on your sample for analysis indicates that you are versatile. Your disposition is quite changeable, but you will find that it is usually due to prevailing conditions.

Your tall upper loops suggest that you have rather a romantic turn of mind and that you are an idealist. You have an artistic tendency which is peculiar only to you. It creates scope for your imagination and assists you greatly to pass time which otherwise might be spent in idleness.

Your will-power is developed to such an extent that there is no doubt as to your meaning when you say No.

I might suggest a journalistic field in order to give you the correct atmosphere in which to develop your imaginative talent.

You omitted the year of your birth so I am unable to give you your number, that is, according to numerology. Your birth sign is Cancer the Crab and you are ruled by the Moon. February and September are your most fortunate months and Monday is your lucky day.

Mildred A. McIntyre, R. R. 1, Round Lake, Ont.:

Your handwriting with its small angular formations and uneven pressure, which creates the impression that it is sprawling across the page, delineates you as a person who is given to moodiness and sudden temper. You are alert and have a keen mind but you are easily irritated and extremely sensitive.

You are not always as outspoken as you ought to be but somehow manage to conceive the right things to say when necessary. You generally act in an impulsive manner on the spur of the moment and have what is known as luck in the frantic decision.

You could improve your position greatly, if you care to make more use of the talent depicted in the tops of your letters which gives you the power to analyse and criticize and to go deep into subjects which interest you. It shows that you mostly do your own thinking because you are not at all satisfied with the viewpoint of another.

Your birthsign is Vergo the Virgin and you are ruled by Mercury. Your most fortunate number is nine, and the months of February and November are the most interesting times in which to commence projects. Wednesday is the most fortunate day of the week.

Elizabeth Charlton, Lakefield, Ontario:

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis illustrates keenness of perception. You are 'easy-going' and good-natured till someone crosses you, then you 'flare up' and argue but not for long as you most often grant the other person the benefit of the doubt.

You are not very ambitious; it is not your nature to be so, although you find life quite interesting as it is. You are 'wide awake' and nothing much escapes your attention.

The crossing of your 't' bars being almost above the letter in one instance and on the top of a very tall stroke in the other instance creates the impression that you need to exert your will-power much more than you are doing, at present.

You can be very enthusiastic at times and lackadaisical at others. You appear to expend all your energy upon one project, leaving no reserve strength upon which to draw in an emergency.

The Sign of Aquarius the Man is your birthsign, and this sign is ruled by Uranus. April and August are the best months in which to begin new projects and Saturday is the most fortunate day of the week.

George Lawrence Charlton, Lakefield, Ontario:

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis is expressive of a keen thinker. Often you think too quickly and arrive at wrong conclusions. You are sharp, concise and to the point in delivering your opinions.

You seem to give strict attention to deals and their details, then you stop suddenly and soliloquise, "Oh, well, what's the use?" But you always manage to bring yourself back to the subject in question and complete it with alacrity and fineness.

You are strict as to your code of honor, and expect others to be so too.

You are not lazy by any means and should command respect and confidence from those whose good fortune it is to have been numbered among the elect, either in business, college or home circles.

Your outstanding characteristic seems to be that of physical culture, but you could engage in the making of delicate parts of machinery. However, you would do equally well in any line which really appeals to you. You are honest and should soon win a place for yourself in a successful business world.

You are born under the sign of Taurus the Bull, which is ruled by Venus the God of Love. Friday is your best week day and May and July the most fortunate months of the year.

Your numerological number is that of eight.

WESTWOOD Y.P. VISIT HASTINGS

Variety Program Given at Successful Hallowe'en Party.

MASQUERADE SOCIAL

HASTINGS, Nov. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Fraternization of two church societies took place on Monday evening, October 29th, when the Young People's Society of the Westwood United Church, were entertained by the kindred organization of Trinity United Church, Hastings, the visiting society putting on a well-prepared program.

Messrs. Gordon Fairman and Martin Rusaw, the social and literary convenors, had charge of the Hastings' share of the evening's entertainment and lunch.

Sidney Warr, president of the Westwood Y.P.S., took the chair for the entertainment after Grant Sine of Hastings had opened the meeting with Mrs. F. W. Newell leading in prayer. The program was varied and interesting and consisted of the following numbers:

Topic on Concentration, by Mr. S. Warr; piano solo by Miss Alice Thomas of Birdsalls; vocal duet, A School Song, by Vernon and Zole Warr, with encore, "Abide With Me"; solo "Steal Away to Jesus", a Negro spiritual song by Fred Cooper; duet, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Morris with accompaniment by Mr. Brekenridge; piano duet, Misses Berta and Margaret Brekenridge; vocal solo, Pauline Humphries; Biblical reading, Miss Helen Clysdale; duet, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Morris; solo, Miss Jessie Douglas; recitation, Vernon Warr; vocal duet, Misses Berta and Margaret Brekenridge; song, six pupils of Westwood school.

Miss M. Battersby, teacher of Westwood school, ably assisted in all the singing by her pupils. Mrs. Sine and Miss K. German of Hastings then took charge of the Hallowe'en party, the large number present being divided into seven groups, who spent an enjoyable time in games and contests. A delightful lunch of coffee, cake and sandwiches was served by the Hasting Y.P.S.

Masquerade Party

On Monday evening a jolly Hallowe'en masquerade party was held in the basement of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church in connection with their regular weekly meeting of the Young People's Society, under the leadership of Mrs. S. Whitred. The meeting opened with a hymn and prayer and scripture reading by Howard Porter with the topic given by Miss Alice Whitred.

The basement was gayly decorated in black and orange in keeping with the Hallowe'en spirit. Much laughter was caused as nearly seventy-five came in masquerade, some appearing as Indians, jubilee singers, clowns, little girls, etc. With the room darkened and with Mrs. S. Whitred as ghost. Some weird ghost stories were told. Games and contests and the serving of refreshments ended a most successful evening's entertainment.

UNITED CHURCHES PLAN CONFERENCE

World Missionary Conference Will be Held in the City.

George Street United Church will be the scene on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, December 1st, 2nd and 3rd, of a World Missionary Conference and Missionary Exhibit held under auspices of the United Church of Canada and sponsored by the six United Churches of the city.

Active missionaries engaged on foreign fields will visit the city during the three days and give addresses, and there will be a display of curios, tapestries and costumes illustrative of the countries in which these missionaries labor.

The inaugural meeting of those who will assume responsibility for this Conference and Exhibit was held on Tuesday night in George street Church, when the Rev. G. A. Williams of Toronto, Missionary Secretary of the United Church of Canada, explained details of the plan.

Committees were appointed for an effort that promises to be one of the most far-reaching and instructive missionary endeavors that have yet been attempted in the city. The Rev. J. E. J. Millyard was placed in charge.

Further information as to the Conference and Exhibit will be published later.

Cavan

Hallowe'en passed off very quietly in the locality. Matchett's and Whitfield's Schools had appropriate programs in the afternoon, when the children enjoyed the fun of donning Hallowe'en costumes. In the evening there were the usual groups of young people, in funny costumes and wearing masks, who called on their neighbors and caused a great deal of merriment. The pranks played were harmless.

Mr. Chenhall had his first vocal music class in the basement of the United Church on Wednesday evening. There was an attendance of 17. On account of it being Hallowe'en there were many social events, which kept a number of the young people from attending, but it is expected that next Wednesday evening the number will be much larger.

Importation of radium into the United States has been greater since 1929 than in previous years.

Try KRUSCHEN NOW!

At no expense to you

If you suffer from rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago or neuritis you should try Kruschen Salts right away because your druggist is offering a FREE trial of Kruschen for a limited time only. Ask him for the Kruschen Giant Package which contains a regular bottle and a FREE Trial Bottle. After using the Trial bottle, continue with the Regular bottle—unless you are not completely convinced that Kruschen will do everything claimed for it, in which event your druggist will return your money if you take back the regular package unopened.

But millions of people testify as to Kruschen's effectiveness, for in 119 different countries nothing else has been found that gives the same results as Kruschen. Get your package without delay. The supply of Free Trial bottles is limited.

WOMEN ARE RIGHT IN SEEKING WORK

Montreal Abbe Says Dignity and Security Are Thus Obtained.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—(CP)—Putting the question of work on the basis of sex is to judge the question falsely; the basis should be one of ability and need, stated Rev. Ceslas Forest, chairman of the department of philosophy at the University of Montreal, in an address to the Cercle d'Etudes at de Conferences, on the subject of the right of women to work.

Woman has gained dignity and security through her work, said Abbe Forest, and those who would banish her to the home apparently have not considered how she is to obtain livelihood nor what would become of industry if their ideas were carried out. It is through her work that she has gained emancipation, and it is unfortunate that the position she has attained should be menaced by such as Mussolini, who is forcing women back to the home.

Abbe Forest believes it is necessary to make a distinction between the married women and the single woman worker, and that, unless compelled to work by economic necessity, the tendency should be for married women to remain in the home. But, he stated, the privilege of working, whether in manual or intellectual pursuits, is the inviolable right of the unmarried woman.

Centreville

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, November 2. — A fowl supper, attended by approximately five hundred people, continued the observance of the one hundred and first anniversary of Centreville Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening.

The president of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. James Whittington, assisted by a competent committee of helpers, served the great gathering.

The supper was followed by an interesting and enjoyable program in the church, with the minister, Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., presiding. The chairman welcomed the visitors and expressed thanks to all who in any way assisted in making the anniversary a success.

The program opened with a reading by Miss Parnell of Peterborough. This was followed with a solo by Donald McKay, and responding to an encore, accompanied by Miss Isobel McKay, rendered a delightful duet.

Miss Parnell gave another reading and encore, which was followed by a splendid piano duet by Misses Frances and Beatrice Jones.

F. W. Bowen, M. P., of Newcastle, was present, and delivered a brief address.

Miss Parnell rendered in fine style Pauline Johnson's poem, "The Cattle Thief."

A trio of young ladies from St. Paul's church, Peterborough, Misses MacKay, Sedgwick and Chenhall, sang unaccompanied, "The Old-Fashioned Garden;" the humming chorus was novel and effective.

Miss Parnell, whose selections were much enjoyed, gave as her closing number, "A Friday Afternoon at School," and an encore.

Miss M. Mayneord of Peterborough, gave a whistling solo and encore, which was much appreciated.

A quartette, Miss McKay, Miss Sedgwick, and Messrs. Hope and Sands," sang "Abide with Me," after which the audience sang the National Anthem.

COTTESLOE

Miss Marguerite Webster spent the week-end at home here.

Miss Annie Elliott spent the week-end with Miss Mary Tedford.

Rev. Mr. Downing of Norwood Baptist Church, gave a very interesting and helpful talk on "Temperance," on Sunday.

Miss Mae Webster returned home on Sunday after spending a couple of weeks in Lakefield.

Mis Peever of Cobden, Quebec, is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Marmion Clements.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Webster, and family, of Lakefield, visited at the home of the former's brother, Mr. Albert Webster.

Mrs. Howard Patterson spent a few days last week at the home of her father, Mr. F. Morgan, near Warsaw.

Mr. Joseph Gallagher and family, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Moore, on Sunday.

LYCEUM CLUB HAS PLANNED PROGRAMS

Season's Programs Are Planned by Women's Art Association.

The Lyceum Club Women's Art Association have prepared a very fine program for the coming season. The meetings will be held this winter at the Y.W.C.A., where the initial session was held last week, and Mrs. F. E. Robson of Toronto talked on Russia and exhibited her collection of dolls from various lands.

The scheduled events for the Art Association proper are as follows. November 8th, reception for Miss Katharine E. Wallis of Paris, France, and exhibit of her work, as well as of etchings from the studios of Mr. and Mrs. Armington, Canadians now in residence in Paris: November 9th, address by Mr Teghsoonian of Toronto, and exhibition of Oriental rugs; November 23rd and 24th, exhibition and sale of work under auspices of the Guild of Arts and Crafts; December 7th, Christmas program arranged by Mrs. L. J. Pettit; January 11th, program arranged by the Causerie Francaise; January 25th, Mr. Melville Keay's lecture on Elizabethan costumes, illustrated by mannequins; February 8th, Exhibition and talk by Mr. Harold McCrae, artist, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough; February 22nd, Musical program; March 8th, exhibit of pictures by artist members and talk by Miss Matthews; March 22nd, Birthday program and resume of W.A.A. activities by Mrs. R. Gliddon of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough; April 5th, talk by Miss Katharine Wallis.

The affiliated branches of the association: the Guild of Arts and Crafts, the Art Study Club, the Causerie Francaise and the Literary Study Club, will all be busy during the season with regular meetings.

The officers for this year, the completed list having not yet been published, are as follows: Mrs. T. A. S. Hay and Miss Frances Hatton, honorary presidents; Mrs. W. Blackwell, president; Mrs. C. M. Scott, first vice president; Mrs. T. Cruickshank, second vice president; Mrs. R. J. Kidd, third vice president; Miss T. Mathers, recording secretary; Miss Laura Belleghem, corresponding secretary; Miss Mary Stratton, press secretary; Madam Masson, treasurer; Mrs. H. W. Morphet, assistant treasurer; Miss Leone Walsh, archivist.

Convenors are as follows: Mrs. D. R. Howat, Program; Mrs. V. S. Foster, Art Study Club; Mrs. C. S. Thompson, Arts and Crafts; Miss Margaret Hamilton, Literary Study Club; Mrs. F. Hooper, Exhibition; Mrs. H. E. Connolly, Social; Causerie Francaise convenor to be appointed.

Member representatives are as follows: Mrs. J. R. Munro, Mrs. W. R. Widdess, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Mrs H. Wightman, Mrs. L. J. Leclair, Mrs. F. C. Neal, Mrs. R. Gliddon, Mrs. G. N. Gordon and Miss Annie Wood.

Nap In Hearse Gets Youth Ride Home

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP) —Jack Carter, Belleville youth, arrived home yesterday in a hearse, but he was far from dead.

Carter said he was stranded last night in nearby Stirling. "It was raining cats and dogs" and he was without a place to sleep, he explained, so he walked into a drive shed, found something soft in the dark interior of what he took to be a automobile and slept in it.

Yesterday, he declared, he awoke to find himself travelling rapidly in the direction of Belleville. He hailed the driver of the vehicle and learned the man was going to make a "pick-up." He remarked the driver was annoyed when he first saw him, but cooled off later and gave him a lift all the way here.

Six hundred miners were deported from France to Poland in one day recently.

Havelock Records Rowdiest Hallowe'en

HAVELOCK, Nov. 2.—(Examiner Correspondent.) — The rowdiest Hallowe'en in the annals of the village was recorded here on Wednesday night. Taking full advantage of the fact that Constable C. F. Roberts had not fully recovered from his recent illness, groups of destructive vagrants upset more than thirty outbuildings and tore down two fences. Despite the efforts of a county constable and a deputy, the vandals stormed the town from Old Havelock to the eastern limits. The wooden fence around the Masonic property at George and Orange street was destroyed, together with a wire fence on a Union street residence.

In conversation with The Examiner, Chief Constable Roberts stated he will show no leniency whatever if he is able to put his hand on the destructive persons.

TRENT RIVER

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Craws (formerly Dorothy Carnrite) and Miss Doreen DeCarle of Toronto were week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carnrite.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Richards have returned from Baltimore where they spent a few days.

Mr. George Richardson and Miss Irene of Hastings were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. William Preston.

Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald and family have moved from Carrying Place and have taken up residence on Mr. Ward Glenn's farm, formerly owned by the late Mrs. Post.

Obituary

MRS. EDWARD MURPHY.

The funeral of Mrs. Edward Murphy who died on Wednesday evening at the age of 58 years is to be held to-morrow morning from the family residence, 454 Park street, to St. Peter's Cathedral for celebration of Requiem Mass at 9 o'clock. Interment will be made at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Predeceased by her husband, Mrs. Murphy is survived by two sons, Frank and Jack Murphy, and by daughters Mildred Florence, Blanche and Marcelle, all at home. Other relatives are four brothers, Beck and Joseph of Saginaw, Michigan, and Leo and Wilfrid of this city, also two sisters, Mrs. Frank Driscoll and Miss Winnie Delaire.

FRANK R. HODGENS

Frank R.Hodgens, well known in Toronto business and club circles and brother of H. E. Hodgens of Peterborough, succumbed to a heart attack while in his car on a parking lot in Toronto shortly before 9 o'clock last night. He was president and manager of the Sidway-Topliff Company, manufacturing toys.

When Mr. Hodgens, who was in his sixty-fifth year, did not return to his home at the dinner hour, his brother, George A. Hodgens, went searching for him. Mr. Hodgens had been seen to enter the parking space around 3 o'clock in the afternoon and it was there that he was found. Coroner Dr. G. R. Philip was summoned and on investigation pronounced death due to heart failure. An inquest would not be necessary, he stated.

Besides his two brothers, he leaves a sister, Miss E. M. Hodwill be interred in the family plot wil be interred in the family plot there to-morrow. Mr. Hodgens was known to a number of Peterborough people.

Fire recently completely destroyed the Jewish Synagogue at Jalso, Poland, dating from the twelfth century and believed to be the oldest in Europe.

Professor Dr. Johannes Rudolff, who at one time was chief designer of Kaiser Wilhelm's Navy, died recently in Berlin at the age of 87.

ARTICLES WANTED.

We have many requests for small cook stoves and heaters, and could use half a dozen if they are available. There are also requests for a child's bed; a coat, size 38, for a tall woman who has been ill and is not able to get out because she lacks a coat; a single bed and mattress and quilts for a man who is "sick most of the time," and who says: "I nearly freeze at night, as the house is awful cold"; and two requests for articles of furniture—floor covering, tables, chairs, dishes — in fact, anything to make two homes more liveable.

If any of the above things are available, please telephone Miss McCarthy at The Examiner and we will call.

DAILY RIFLE SHOOT

Winner of the daily contest at George Street Rifle Range yesterday was C. Althouse with a score of 112 points. Other high scores were shot by W. Lackie, B. Dorrington, J. Blakley, who all scored over 100 points, and R. Harrison with 99 points.

MILITARY MEETING

The annual meeting of Military District No. 3 Branch of the Canadian Infantry Association takes place at the Armouries here to-morrow evening, when it is expected that delegates will be present from the entire district.

A brief business session, including the annual election of officers will precede a dinner. The retiring officers are: Colonel R. J. Gill, M.C., president of Brockville and Bowmanville; Lieut.-Colonel Garneau, Hull, vice-president; and Major Austin O'Connor, M.C., K.C., Ottawa, secretary-treasurer.

Weddings

LUFFMAN—ZINSTON

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Gerald Higgins, Dublin street, by the Rev. C. D. Daniel, when Olive Zinston, second youngest daughter of Mrs. Margaret Zinston and the late Mr. George Zinston, became the bride of Mr. Percy H. Luffman, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Luffman of Chamberlain street.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Logan.

Mr. and Mrs. Luffman will live in Peterborough.

THOMPSON—MARTIN

The marriage took place quietly at three o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Epiphany, Toronto, of Ruth Reid Martin, B.A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Martin of Lascelles Boulevard, Toronto, to Mr. William Ross Thompson of Peterborough. The Rev. Leslie Hunt, a friend of both bride and bridegroom, officiated, and Mr. Sargent, organist of the church, played the wedding music. Tall standards of bronze and rust-shaded chrysanthemums were arranged around the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a graceful frock of rose-beige crepe, the high neckline caught with two rhinestone clips, and the sleeves, very full at the shoulders, finished with tight cuffs at the wrists. Her beige felt hat was trimmed with three pink gardenias across the back, her slippers were of beige moire and she carried an arm bouquet of Briarcliff roses.

Mrs. Cass Sheffield of Plymouth, Michigan, a cousin of the bride, was her attendant, wearing a brown ensemble with bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mr. William Breyfogle of Peterborough was best man.

A reception for the immediate families was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Martin received her guests wearing a gown of black transparent velvet with sleeves of white peau d'ange lace, a large black velvet hat and corsage of Butterfly roses. Mrs. Thompson of Peterborough, mother of the bridegroom, wore a tunic frock, with black skirt and a tunic of gold and silver lame. Her hat was of black hatter's plush and her flowers were a corsage of orchids.

The bride and bridegroom left later for a motor trip, the former travelling in a suit of brown Rodier wool with collar of natural fox fur, and a brown hat. On their return, they will live in Peterborough.

Your Health
by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

In ancient medical literature few references to cancer can be found. There are two possible reasons for this—one is that cancer is a disease of the later ages of life, and in the old days of plagues and wars so few people lived to ripe ages that the disease was comparatively rare. Another reason may be that means of curing cancer were unknown up to 65 years ago.

Newspapers, until a few years ago, did not like to print the word cancer, and no wonder, when all it meant was the idea of a loathsome growth and a slow and painful death. But things have changed. One of the sure-fire newspaper stories today is the announcement of the discovery of the cause of cancer, or of a new cure for cancer.

Unfortunately, all of these discoveries are not genuine. The real facts about cancer are not dramatic, but they are important for every one to know. The Society for the Prevention of Cancer urges that public adresses by memebrs of the medical profession acquaint the public with the early signs and possibilities of cure. The bureau of health and public instruction of the American Medical association issues a number of pamphlets designed for the same purpose. Newspapers are urged to take part in the campaign as a public duty.

The steps which have advanced our knowledge so that the outlook is so much more hopeful are four.

The first came with the application of the microscope to the study of diseased tissue. In 1858 Virchow, the German pathologist, published his treatise on the changes in body cells in disease called "Cellular Pathology".

He found that under the microscope the various kinds of new growth showed quite characteristic cell arrangements— so characteristic that they can be recoguized for diagnostic purposes. Also that there were stages in the development of these growths, and in the early stages a cancer is so small and circumscribed that removal at that time will prevent its recurrence.

The second step came with the perfection of aseptic surgery by Lister, the Englishman, ten years after the publication of Virchow's book.

Soon after the discovery of the X-rays in 1895 by Roentgen, the German, it was found that these rays would destroy living body cells. And that by modifying the strength of the current the destructive action could be modified from that of a superficial scorch to that of a deep burn. Furthermore, the action of the ray is selective; it destroys first young and undifferentiated cells, which is what cancer cells are. This was another weapon, and our third step in the conquest of cancer.

Lastly, when, in 1898, radium was separated by the French scientists, Becquerel and M. and Mme. Curie, it was found to have the same properties as the X-ray, and to lend itself to more serviceable application, in destroying cancerous tissue.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

Roseneath

A most enthusiastic meeting was held by the Ladies' Aid Society of the United Church. Several officers were elected and discussions of how to raise funds were talked over. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Arthur Braithwaite's on the last Wednesday of November. It is urgently requested that all ladies interested should be present.

The public speaking will be held in the Orange Hall on Monday evening, November 5th, when the rural schools, who enter the School Fair will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson and daughters Daisy and Doris of Baltimore, were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Budd, and little daughter, of Dale, were Sunday visitors with her sister, Mrs. Howard Macklin, Mr. Macklin and family.

Mr. Howard Papp, was home from Toronto, for the week-end.

After nine years' work the $17,000,000 Cauvery River control project in India has been opened, and will supply flood-control, irrigation and hydro-electric development.

WAVERLY CLUB IS FORMALLY OPENED

St. Thomas W.A. Meets at the Home of Mrs. L. M. Bonneville.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Mrs. L. M. Bonneville was hostess for the October meeting of the W.A. of St. Thomas' Church, held at her home on Monday at 8 p.m., with the president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, leading in the W.A. Litany and Miss Annie Armstrong reading the Bible lesson.

The report of the treasurer showed a slight deficit still for the amount pledged, and after discussion, it was decided that each member should try to make, or give, one dollar before the end of the year, to have the books balance. Miss Margaret Simpson gave an interesting report of the Junior W.A., showing 22 members and a course in 'home nursing being taken up with the senior girls in which they are showing skill and improvement. A certificate will be awarded at the conclusion of the course. Fourteen of the junior group will be prepared to write on the examination on missions at the close of the year.

The secretary read a letter from the Blackfoot school in Manitoba gratefully acknowledging receipt of the bale shipped to that point, and business continued with the decision to have lantern slides covering the study book at the conclusion of its chapters. The president read an article from the Living Message describing the presentation of a handsome staff of office to the Bishop of the Arctic, and Mrs. Bonneville took up the new chapter in "Our Goodly Heritage," describing work among the Eskimos.

This being the last meeting when Mrs. Bonneville will be connected with the auxiliary, as she is leaving the village to reside in Peterborough for the next few months at least, a handsome electric table lamp in Chinese design was presented to the hostess, Mrs. Westmacott voicing the appreciation of the members for her helpfulness and interest since coming to Millbrook to make her home.

The recipient of the gift replied briefly, expressing her thanks and assuring the members that no tangible evidence was necessary to help her keep in mind her happy association with the Millbrook memoers in the church and Missionary Society.

Lunch was served at the close during the social hour, and the invitation of Miss Simpson to hold the November meeting at the rectory was gratefully accepted.

Hallowe'en Night at Y.P.S.

The Y.P.S. of St. Andrew's Church combined the citizenship and recreational departments for the meeting on Monday at 8 p.m., the convenor of the former committee, Gordon Muspratt, taking the chair and giving a helpful paper on "Faith" in the worship period.

The large room was decorated in the usual Hallowe'en style, and under the leadership of Misses Francis and Beatrice Jones games of all kinds, suitable to the season, were played, the jolly evening concluding with the ervice of pie and whipped cream.

Next Monday, November 5, the Christian fellowship department, Oliver Brock convenor, will have charge.

Hallowe'en Tea.

Mrs J. R. Eakins gave the use of her home on Wednesday for a Hallowe'en tea, under the auspices of Mrs. H. A. Kerr's group of the Women's League of Grace Presbyterian Church. In spite of bad weather, there was a large attendance and the event was much enjoyed.

The home was decorated with orange and black streamers, witches, bats, etc., as cut-outs, and the living-room featured bitter sweet and Chinese lanterns. Mrs. E. J. Whyte, sister of the hostess, and Mrs. (Rev.) H. R. Williams answered the door and Mrs. R. J. McKnight was cashier.

The dining table was lovely with lace cloth, silver basket of bronze 'mums as centrepiece and gold candles burning in silver holders. Pouring tea were Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong and Mrs. H. C. Lord the service being entirely of silver. Assisting with the service of the guests were Mrs. Kerr and Misses Margaret Armstrong and Vanita Ingram.

During the tea hour Miss Ingram sang, "A Bowl of Roses," Miss Grace Johnson, A.T.C.M., being the accompanist.

Waverly Club Hallowe'en Party.

The new club and party rooms opened at the Waverly building with a dance and Hallowe'en party on Wednesday night attracted a satisfactory number of guests, considering the inclement weather conditions. Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow have gone to a great deal of labor and expense in having the east rooms of the Waverly transformed into suitable accommodation for parties and dances, taking away the partition that separated the front room, where the fireplace is an attractive feature, from the larger room in the rear so that now the whole is sixty feet in length, with a raised platform for orchestra and a player-piano permanently installed.

Decorators from Peterborough have been at work, crepe paper in a four-color scheme of mauve, gold, peach and blue being used for the handsome ceiling of light coverings, and for Wednesday night Jack o' lanterns and other suitable Hallowe'en streamers, cut-outs, etc., were much in evidence. The Serenaders orchestra of Millbrook furnished music for the dance, and an archway cut between the club room and the adjoining ice cream parlors makes easy access when refreshments are required.

Mr. Bigelow's intention is to have weekly dances in the Waverly Club, beginning on Saturday, November 3, at 8.30 p.m., and closing in good time before midnight. The room immediately back of the ice cream parlors has also been fitted up as a ladies' sitting-room, and other improvements have been recently made. The Waverly Club will be available for rental by private parties for entertainment purposes, if desired, and the host and hostess are to be congratulated on their initiative in thus adding an attractive public meeting-place that was much needed in the community.

Household Hints

Menu Hint

Liver Birds
Creamed Potatoes Baked Apples
Bread and Butter
Cookies Milk

This luncheon menu is intended for children, but it would serve equally well for supper or dinner menu for adults. The recipe for liver birds serves seven. Cook them at the last, when the vegetables are done, so as to serve them hot.

Today's Recipes

Liver Birds.—One and one-half pounds liver, two small onions, one green pepper, part bunch of celery. Roll liver in flour and place on plate. Chop onion, celery and pepper very fine and spread on slices of liver. Roll and wrap with a slice of bacon held in place with a toothpick. Have hot fat ready in deep pan and cook over hot fire 10 minutes, rolling over and over in the hot fat. Place on back of stove until ready to serve.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Coffee Custard

Two cups milk, two tablespoons ground coffee, three eggs, slightly beaten; one-fourth cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon vanilla, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Scald milk with coffee and strain. To the eggs add sugar, salt and vanilla. Add to the milk and strain into custard cups. Bake in a pan of hot not, boiling, water at 350 degrees until firm.

Tips on Beef Cuts

Sirloin, tip, bouillon or rumpare the beef cuts used for pot roasts, which require long cooking. These are cheaper cuts of meats but contain as much nourishment and flavor as the more expensive cuts. The only differences lie in the method of cooking them.

NO PAY BOOST

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—(CP)—The official notice of Canadian railroads issued to the running trades last month announcing that the present 15 percent pay cut cannot be lifted, has gone out to some 50,000 more men in different crafts, it was learned here today.

The NEW loaf that brings back appetite for bread

Maybe you only think you don't care for bread any more. Maybe you have been eating the same kind of bread so long that the taste has become monotonous. But "Wonder" Cracked Wheat Bread, made only by Stocks Bread Limited, is different!

About nine out of ten people who eat a slice of "Wonder" Cracked Wheat Bread say they didn't know bakers' bread could be so good. That's because "Wonder" Cracked Wheat Bread is really two breads in one. It gives you the moist, spongy texture of fine white-flour bread, plus the intriguing, natural flavour and energy-value of Canada's world-famous wheat at its best.

"Wonder" Cracked Wheat Bread is sliced so evenly it makes delicious, dainty sandwiches; it is just porous enough to give you quickly-made, extra-fine toast, with countless hiding-places for the butter. A slice of bread and butter is a real treat—when the slice comes from a loaf of "Wonder" Cracked Wheat Bread.

Many Peterborough families have been enjoying "Wonder" Cracked Wheat Bread for some time. Chances are your neighbour can tell you how good it is. But don't take anyone's word. Taste "Wonder" Cracked Wheat Bread yourself. Your own delighted sense of what's good will tell you that "Wonder" Cracked Wheat Bread belongs on your table—and in the lunch-box—every day.

Tonight will see the celebration of Hallowe'en at the Young Women's Christian Association, when the Seniors of the "Y" have their big annual party. Tomorrow morning, the Juniors have their huge gathering in commemoration of the jolly season.

* * *

The lower parlor of St. John's Church parish house was the scene yesterday afternoon of a merry gathering of juniors, when members, and a few friends, of the Merry Elves Ribbon Band, directed by Miss Lily Bacon, A.T.C.M., held their annual Hallowe'en costume party. Decorations were carried out appropriately to the season and a jolly program of games and contests was enjoyed by the small guests who also held a Grand Parade, when costumes were judged by Mrs. S. Robertson and Mrs. A. Bacon. The prizes went to Doris Fousett, as a Fairy, and to Lynn Head, as a Snow Man. Dainty refreshments were served at the conclusion of the afternoon's fun. Those present were Mrs. W. Bothwell, Mrs. F. Kiff, Mrs. S. Kingdon, Mrs. R. Wilson, Mrs. J. Fausett, Mrs. S. Robertson, Mrs. B. Head, Mrs. A. Bacon, Miss Lily Bacon, Doreen Wallace, June Wallace, Joan Magee, Lenore Fausett, Doris Fausett, Barbara Bothwell, Katherine Hendry, Crystal Hendry, Janet Kearns, Vera Barnes, Eileen McWilliams, Sheila Head, Fred Kiff, Lynn Head, Donald Kingdon, Jim Hawthorne, David Robertson, Jim Robertson. Another member of the Band, Mary Masters, was ill, and unable to be present.

* * *

On Wednesday evening Miss Geraldine Hutchinson entertained about twenty of her friends at a jolly Hallowe'en party at her home on McDonnel Street. The guests were all masqueraders, and the various weird costumes caused great merriment. The rooms were seasonably decorated with lighted pumpkins, Hallowe'en favors and flowers. The evening passed pleasantly in a series of games, contests and music. A costume parade was staged and prizes were awarded to Jack Dougherty for the most origina. get-up, and Marian Schooley for the best comic costume. The young hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Hutchinson, served a sumptuous lunch. Among those present were the Misses Geraldine Hutchinson, Dorothy Symonds, Muriel Symonds, Muriel Genge, Ilean Winslow, Jean Dougherty, Ruth Dougherty, Jean Turcotte, Reta Young, Marian Schooley, Margaret Eano, Helen Eano, and Messrs. Leonard Symonds, Lorne Genge, Henry Winslow, Jack Dougherty, Gerald McKinnon, Jack Eano, Jack Legrow, Jim Primeau, Jack Campbell.

* * *

The initial meeting for this season of the Guild of Arts and Crafts of the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association was held at the home of Mrs. C. H. Saunders, Dennistoun Avenue, when Miss Betty Runnett gave a very interesting demonstration of stitchery.

* * *

To-morrow, which is also the date of the wedding of their daughter, Frances, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Courneya of Olive Avenue will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their own marriage.

* * *

The annual Hallowe'en masquerade party of the A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church was a merry event of Wednesday evening in the parish hall. About eighty members and friends were in attendance. The program consisted of various games and contests and dancing. Prizes for costumes were presented to Miss Hilda Phillips and Mr. C. Sport, fancy; Miss Violet Britnell and Mr. F. Pammett, comic. The convenor of the entertainment committee was Mr. Roy Pitchford, while Miss Ena Young was in charge of the committee which looked after refreshments. Music was played by Reg. Dyer's Sunday School orchestra.

* * *

The wedding of Miss Frances Courneya of Olive Avenue to Mr. Joseph Kearns of Rogers Street will take place to-morrow morning at eight o'clock at the Church of the Sacred Heart.

* * *

Friends in the city of the Rev. W. Harold Young, D.D., of Toronto, former pastor of George Street United Church, will be interested in the following account of the post-nuptial reception of his bride: "Bronze and yellow chrysanthemums were attractively arranged about Dr. and Mrs. W. Harold Young's home on Bernard Avenue, yesterday, when Mrs. Young received for the first time since her marriage in the afternoon and again in the evening. Mrs. Young, who was formerly Miss Jean Walker, was gowned in cruise blue velvet made on long lines with draped neckline caught with a brilliant clip. She was assisted in receiving in the afternoon by her mother, Mrs. William Walker, Mrs. Howard Clarke, and Mrs. J. C. Robertson. Large white 'mums were arranged in a silver bowl on the tea table, lighted with ivory candles and presided over by Mrs. C. Woodley, Mrs. S. B. Coon, Mrs. Cecil Thompson and Mrs. R. B. Smith. Those assisting in the living-room and dining-room included: Mrs. Large, Mrs. Agnes Lawrason, Mrs. G. M. Walker, Mrs. W. A. Walker, Mrs. R. B. Walker, Miss Beatrice Theakston, Mrs. Angus MacNish, Mrs. J. Irvine and Mrs. C. Sutherland. Rev. Dr. Young received with his wife in the evening from 8 until 10 o'clock, when tea and coffee were poured out by Mrs. Richard Maddocks and Mrs. Milton Homuth. Those assisting were: Mrs. Charles Corrigan, Mrs. Frederick Watson, Miss Ella McKinnon, Miss Laura McKinnon, Miss Betty McLelland and Miss Mary Lynch. The many callers were welcomed at the door by Miss Mary Young, Miss Mary Ruth Austin and Miss Anne MacGregor. During the afternoon and evening groups of songs were sung by Mrs. R. B. Walker, Mrs. J. W. McCausland and Mrs. Ewart Booth, with Mrs. Ray Birks acting as accompanist."

On Tuesday evening, a number of friends motored from Peterborough to Lakefield to the home of Miss Margaret Charlton, R.N., who entertained at a surprise party and cup and saucer shower, in honor of Miss Agnes McCormack of Woodbine Avenue, a bride-elect of the month. At refreshment time, a cousin of the hostess, Miss Lillian Calberry, brought in a wagon containing a number of pretty cups and saucers; for which the guest of honor made suitable acknowledgment. The balance of the evening was spent in dancing. Decorations were carried out appropriately to the Hallowe'en season.

SIMPLE LINE JUMPER

It's really astonishing what variety a little jumper dress affords the schoolgirl's wardrobe.

Today's model, cut on correct simple lines, is made in a jiffy.

The jumper is navy blue wool crepe; the blouse bright red crepe. Red and white gingham check blouse and perhaps another in yellow cotton broadcloth could be made as extras for the jumper.

Style No. 3074 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 39-inch materia for the jumper and 1 yard of 35-inch material with ½ yard of 35-inch contrasting and 1 yard of ½-inch ribbon for bow.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

In these days when it can be said more truthfuly than ever before, that "of the making of books there is no end" it is interesting to remember that in the past ages books were such a luxury that they were prized as precious as fine gold. Since this was true, it was a serious matter both to loan a volume, and to fail to return one promptly that had been borrowed. Today it is also no light matter to be careless about returning books, and one should continue to be loath to ask to borrow an expensive volume.

* * * * * *

For protection of one's literary works book plates were ingeniously conceived. Prior to that time courteous verses and sentences used to be written on the inside covers of books intimating in graceful phrases that the owner would appreciate it if the book was carefully handled and promptly returned.

* * * * * *

A quaint verse is in a volume of the 15th century, treasured in the British Museum. It is a primer termed a "Book of Devotion." The verses are introduced by a line stating to whom the book belongs.

"This book is mine, Eleanour Worcester,
And I ty loos and you yt find
I pray you haretly to be so kynd
That you will take a letel payne
To see my boke brothe home agayne."

There is in this no hint that a borrower might be at fault, merely that the book might get lost! Kindly Eleanour Worcester!

* * * * * *

Today such a bold statement as the following has been known to be penned on the fly leaf of a college boy's books,

"This book was stolen from John Smith...." or whoever the owner was. A sharp contrast between the manners of gentlefolk of the 15th and the 20th centuries. But this is an extreme of rudeness, probably intended for nothing more than humor, which as classmates probably thought it was—of a sort.

* * * * * *

Bookplates solve the problem of ownership of volumes in as graceful and positive a way as can be though of. Literary persons and those who like the courtesies of life, and have the money to get special bookplates designed for them, often have significant ideas wrought into the design. It may be something to do with the name such as trees edging each side of a plate, made for a person named Wood, etc. But for the average person, the bookplates which can be bought at book stores do admirably. The name of the owner can be written in ink by the owner himself, which autographs the book, although not by the writer. Or the name can be printed in the space alloted to it in the design. When a package of book plates are so printed the cost is trifling. Members of the family as well as friends know to whom such books belong.

Modern Beauty's Hands Soft, White Without Use of Wine for Bathing To Keep Skin Lovely, Says Gladys

DOLORES DEL RIO

By GLADYS GLAD

The lovely but unfortunate Queen Marie Antoinette of France, who wound up by losing her pretty head during the French Revolution, had very beautiful hands. Marie always bathed her hands in a silver basin of wine. She used perfumed oils and unguents on them frequently, too. For she wished her hands always to retain their smooth, alluring loveliness.

Perfectly groomed hands, of course, are very attractive. But even perfect grooming doesn't make up for faults in skin texture. Hands, to be truly lovely, must be soft and smooth. And unfortunately, when the cold, wintry breezes begin circulating around, a good many damsels find it difficult to keep their hands from becoming unprettily rough and chapped.

If you want to have the kind of hands that men admire and itch to hold, you must see to it that they are always soft and smooth. I'll admit that that's not so easy during the winter months. For hands must be washed so frequently that the sebum that keeps the skin pliable and supple is constantly removed. And when frosty air hits the skin, it becomes hard and scaly.

However, a great deal can be done to keep the hands from chapping and roughening during the cold weather, if care is taken in their cleansing. In the first place, the water used for washing the hands in winter should never be cold. It should be good and warm, or at least tepid. And all soaps that contain an excess of alkali should be dispensed with.

Instead of using ordinary soap, I'd suggest that you try using meal bags during the winter. Slice a small cake of castile soap into fine shavings and place the flakes in a receptacle. Then add to them a cup of ordinary oatmeal and half a cup of almond meal, and mix the ingredients well. When the ingredients are thoroughly blended, transfer the mixture to a small cheesecloth bag and sew it shut. Then each time that you wish to cleanse your hands, simply moisten the bag and scrub your paddies with it. Not only will all dirt and grime be removed thereby, but the soluble oils in the meals will help to keep the skin soft, smooth and velvety.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Colors

Joan: I think that you will find shades of tan, brown russet, capucine, pinkish beige, cool greens black and mat white most becoming to you.

Makeup

Joan and R. T.: I think that a soft peach shade of powder, soft orange rouge, and light lipstick would blend harmoniously with your coloring.

Manicuring

Margaret: You can indeed give yourself a successful manicure at home if you follow the instructions contained in my article on "Care of the Hands and Nails." This article also contains information on keeping the hands soft smooth and white.

A VERY IMPORTANT RULE

Many rules of play are not generally known. Here is one which I have been playing for the past dozen years. Perhaps the occasion to use it arises every two weeks. Holding 5 of a suit including K-Q, as declarer at no trumps, with one honor singly guarded in dummy and the other honor twice guarded in the other hand, if that suit is led by senior, play low from dummy, allow junior to win the first trick. Only in case junior plays the Ace can you hope to win two tricks in the suit.

The following hand gave me a chance for game by using the rule, last week:

	♠ K 10 8 6 ♥ Q 5 ♦ A J 2 ♣ K Q J 10
♠ Q 9 4 ♥ A J 9 7 ♦ 4 2 ♦ K Q 7 5 ♣ None		♠ A 2 ♥ 10 3 ♦ 10 8 4 3 ♣ 9 8 5 4 2
	♠ J 7 5 3 ♥ K 8 6 ♦ 9 6 ♣ A 7 6 3

North dealt, and bidding went: North, 1-Club; South, 1-No Trump; North, 2-Spades; South, 3-Spades; North, 3-No Trumps, as the best hope for game.

The opening lead was the 7 of hearts. Junior was allowed to hold the trick with the 10. He led back his 3. West's Ace won, dropping the Q. Back came the 2 and my K won, leaving West with an established suit, but East was out of hearts. My one hope for game appeared to be if West held the Q of spades, with the Ace in East's hand.

The J of spades was led, intending to let it run unless West covered. Up went the Q. Dummy's K covered. East's Ace won the trick. He led back the 3 of diamonds. West covered my 9 with the Q. Dummy's Ace won the trick, which was only our second, while opponents had won 3 tricks. Things did not look any too well for us.

I gained entry to my hand by leading a club and putting up the Ace. The 3 of spades was led. West covered with the 4. Dummy's 8 won on a finesse, dropping East's 2. The 10 of spades picked up West's 9. My 7 won our sixth trick, and our 3 remaining good clubs just gave us game, on a very close fit. Opponents had previously won 2 heart tricks and 1 in spades. They wound up by winning a single diamond trick.

Game was won only by observation of the rule for playing the Q-X and K-X-X. Had dummy's Q won the opening lead of hearts I would have been left with the K-X. When East was in with his Ace of spades he would have led his 10 of hearts. West would have overtaken with the J, led off with his Ace and run off all his suit. Had my K of hearts won the first trick in that suit dummy would have been left with the lone Q, for West's Ace to pick up and we would have been down 2 tricks on our contract. Remember this rule. It will pay you.

SHOPPING WITH ANNE

You must put your best foot forward this season, whether you are walking or just letting your tootsies peep shyly from beneath the sweeping lengths of your evening dress—Interesting afternoon step — in pumps are made of brown suede and named Mercury from the bronze winged clips on either of the instep. Sandals are the last word in the evening mode. Lovely models in silver, with brilliant buckles and little ties. Moire with kid and suede trimming—and the ever popular plain satin pump are among the highlights for the coming dancing season. Our stores are well stocked with lovely models in all sizes and widths at very low prices.

The new shades for stockings are "Mushroom", a dark beige of brown extraction—to be worn with browns and greens. "Beechnut" golden brown, goes well with browns, greens, rusts, gold and russets. "Bayou" a lovely flesh shade with a decided glow. The one and only shade for evening wear. Particularly lovely with white. "Rifle," a dark taupe of the grey family. Lovely for the matron to be worn with dark greys and taupes, wines, reds and blacks. "Smokebrown," a taupy shade with a tinge of brown to be worn with navy, purplish tones and black. Our stores are well stocked with many well known lines and they are carried in several weights, chiffon, crepe, service chiffon and heavy service. Prices range from 59c to $2.00. It is a very economical to buy two pairs of the same shade. Have you ever tried it?

* * *

Don't forget ladies, if you would preserve your health and be comfortable you must wear woolies these frosty fall days. Do you know in Peterborough you can buy lovely little woolly underthings for as low a price as twenty-five cents a garment. They are a very nice weight too, finished at the top with inch elastic and ribbed at the knees just where you want them to cling closely and keep you warm. Other lovely models at a higher figure of course are beautifully designed and can be worn under the snuggest gowns without even being detected. These garments are a real good investment and they will keep you warm and healthy when the wintry winds do blow.

* * *

A new note in knitting is the knitted shirtwaist, to be worn with your fall tweed suit. They can be in a contrasting shade and are very easy to make.

* * *

A note from Paris says—Short jacket suits are still the rage, and more than half the models shown by French creators are short, some waist length only, others hip length or three-quarters. But lavishly trimmed with fur.

* * *

Fur trimmed hats are very swanky. If you haven't thought of it maybe in a box someplace in the house reposes a piece of fur that could be used for that. You will have a very smart hat. We may disapprove of the Russian government but we do love the Russian influence in clothes. Our newest hats have a Russian flair and our new blouses and suits are all decidedly Russian.

A splendid way to bring your old woolen frock up to date is to add a small collar and jabot or bow of taffeta.

Now for a Christmas suggestion—and it is a surprise for the man of the house, or maybe the only man in the world, anyway it is for a man. Make him a necktie or many neckties if you like, they cannot have too many of them, I am told. A necktie pattern can be made by ripping an old necktie apart and pressing it, being careful to iron the tie with the weave, not across it as this would stretch it out of shape. There are exquisite heavy silks suitable to make into neckties, either four in hand or string ties. There are choice cotton prints, ponjees, and printed silks which lend themselves admirably to the making of neckties. Stripes and dots as well as plain colors are good selections. Blue is a safe color, and blue and white or blue and beige are good combinations of colors. In speaking of these colors as safe, I mean that blue, dark, light, and in combinations is a favorite necktie color. Be sure to get colors that will be liked, and stick to conservative and inconspicuous patterns. They should be cut on the bias, and the expensive ties are on one length. The ties can be in two lengths if the joining seam comes in the centre back and is neatly taken. A necktie has an interlining which does not extend to the ends of the tie however. Outing flannel makes a good interlining. Why not try this? It may solve many Christmas problems for you.

ADVANCE INFORMATION ON CHARACTER OF 1935 AUTOS

Sedan Leads Coach in Body Style Vote.

WIDER BODIES FAVORED

By DOUGLAS MURRAY

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—"Find out for us what the 1935 cars are going to be like" chorused the automobile editors.

Not an easy assignment, but a hunch whispered: "Find out what General Motors has learned from its 1934 Customer Research questionnaires and you will know the kind of cars at least one company will build next year."

Sound reasoning, too, for when the question was put to H. A. Brown, vice-president and general manager of Generals Motors of Canada, Limited, at his office in Oshawa, he smilingly admitted that he knew to some extent what 1935 cars would be like, aud least in part, by the thousands of Canadians who take the trouble to answer the General Motors questionnaires; and that while he couldn't reveal exact finding from this proving ground of public opinion," he could hint at trends and possibilities.

1935 Cars Taking Shape

"You know," said Mr. Brown, "the cars of 1935 are taking shape already in two places, in the drafting rooms of the engineers and in the mind's eye of the potential 1935 purchaser. These two shapes must be blended before the factory goes into production, and we are able to co-ordinate the ideas of engineers and public with greater assurance because of the questionnaires we send out to the man at the wheel We have found he has definite likes and dislikes and they are of great value in guiding us as manufacturers. The fourth edition of our questionnaire is coming back to us now in thousands from the public, and these replies will be studied in detail. When the next Buyer's Guide is published it will contain a digest of what the public has told us. In the meantime, we have made a preliminary check into early returns in the low-price class, and the results are surprisingly interesting."

Sedan Is Favorite

Mr. Brown spoke freely of some of the early findings from the "plebiscite" of Canadian motorists. The answer, for instance, to the question "Body style desired on next car" might be expected to favor the sedan, but hardly to the extent that the ballot shows, with "sedan" holding a tremendous margin over "coach", with coupe, convertible and roadster trailing.

A similar emphasis is discernible, Mr. Brown said, in the vote for type of engine. "Six-cylinder" is the overwhelming favorite

Radiator style desired by most motorists is the V-type, curving outward. The "blunt curved front" is away down in the scale.

Streamline Tendency

Replies from most car owners favored the "tendency toward streamlining", though a considerable group were opposed or didn't care. It is believed people generally look at this characteristic of car design more as a style factor than as an advantage from the standpoint of economy of operation or any other angle.

Another interesting thing is that people are overwhelmingly in favor of wider bodies. Even more decidedly are they in favor of built-in trunks; that is evidently a development that met with definite popular approval.

Among the mechanical questions with emphatic answers is one about position of starter button. People want it, evidently, combined with the gas pedal. They also like headlight dimmer on the floorboard, rather than on the steering wheel.

Among the "gadgets" which find favor are driver's arm rest, dash compartment, automatic choke, and octane selector.

Major developments of the past year or so were indorsed decisively, front wheel suspension and no-draft ventilation among them.

In the choice of colors, blue, of course, leads, but green steps in ahead of black for the first time, and gray is close on black's heels.

It is a safe guess, from votes received, that disc and wood wheels have definitely departed. The ballots are nearly all for wire or pressed steel.

Dependability Leads

General characteristics, in order of preference, still lead off with dependability, but "Safety" is ousted from second place, in the preliminary studies, by "Operating Economy." Mr. Brown think- this, like the preference for "six-cylinders" is a "sign of the times." Nearly all replies showed the influence of "first cost" to be small, but the extent to which the public mind is focused on maintenance is revealed in the votes or economical engine and economy of operation.

Here a leading question brought a frank reply from Mr. Brown, who incidentally, has had most to do with setting up the machinery of the Customer Research department of General Motors of Canad.

"May it be assumed," he was asked, "that General Motors cars next year will reflect these views as expressed by the man at the wheel?

"Very definitely," was the answer. "Some of these replies have already served as a valuable guide for us. The most natural way in the world to find out what people are thinking is to ask them, and that's what we do each year, months before new models are put in production. It is a valuable way of avoiding guesswork—of keeping an ear to the ground while we work with an eye to the future."

"Presumably, then, Customer Research is a permanent department of your manufacturing job?

"Yes, and getting more important all the time," said Mr. Brown, in conclusion. "I may say we are not only applying it to our product problems, but also to our employer-employee relations. Just as customer research has reduced the insulation between maker of product and consumer of product, so the same theory, employed within the organization, is reducing the layers of insulation that separate the working man and the big boss. Management cannot justify, over any period of time, a position that is untenable either with the consuming public or with the employees. So, as consumer research grows with use, we see it concerned not only with the consumer's getting the product he wants, but also with the status of the workman in the scheme of production. The idea cannot help but be fruitful in improving our industrial economy."

Royal Bride And Groom For Rideau Hall

Rumors are current in London that the Duke of Kent, Prince George, and his bride-to-be, Princess Marina of Greece, are to become the next tenants of Rideau Hall, Ottawa, as representatives of the King in Canada. Meanwhile, there is lacking official word from Ottawa that the royal couple will be invited to succeed the Bessboroughs, whose term of office ends in 1936. Last member of the royal family to hold post of governor-general of Canada was the Duke of Connaught, great-uncle of Prince George. Layout shows Duke of Connaught (from photo taken when he was governor-general), Rideau Hall, Princess Marina and Prince George.

TRAINING CHILD FOR CITIZENSHIP

A. S. Zavitz Addresses Annual Teachers' Institute.

GROUP SESSIONS.

The Friday morning's session of the Teachers' Institute was held in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall; A. S. Zavitz, B.A., the president, occupied the chair.

The first item on the program was the president's address on the subject of "Training for Citizenship."

The teacher's methods of imparting knowledge are not as important as the development of the children themselves. Teachers leave indelible impression on the minds of their students. They must be what they want the pupils to become. If it is desirable that children should develop mentally, morally, and spiritually, the teacher must impart to them the proper influence. If the teacher is a deceiver, he will produce deceit.

Organized sport has important lessons to teach. The team with the highest score may not be the real winner. The boy who plays the game according to the rule, who will not cheat and is self-controlled, is developing character of inestimable value. Unfortunately to cheat is to demoralize character and stunt spiritual welfare.

Conditions outside of school may make it difficult to develop a child's character, but the teacher must aim to develop the sterling qualities of industry, integrity, and harmony and peace with one's fellowmen. This will require courage, effort, sympathy and divine enlightenment to accomplish.

Third Book Section

The Third Book Section of the Teachers' netitute met in Central School on Thursday afternoon.

Miss A. Mathews' address on Pewter-Craft was an unusual and interesting feature in the section. Miss Mathews had on exhibition several pieces of her own work to illustrate the different methods which she uses to construct and decorate pewter.

This was followed by discussions on "Paragraph Building," led by Misses Dobbin and Buck; on "Devices to Secure Good Compositions" led by Misses Milloy and A. Eagleson; and on "Dictionary Exercises and Methods," led by Misses Cox and Guerin.

Misses Benson and Green introduced the subject of "Interesting Projects."

Stratford In Dark Magistrate's Wage

STRATFORD, Ont., Nov. 2.—(C. P.)—Stratford City Council is wondering to-day just what portion of the police magistrate salary it will be called upon to pay. When the government took over the magisterial system of the provinces, it was the belief of the council that the government would also pay the salaries and since the new system came into effect Magistrate J. A. Makins has received no part from the city.

A recent letter from W. W Dennison, inspector of legal offices, changes the situation, it being pointed out that the city will be liable for part of the salary, the amount to be settled in a conference between the municipality and the government.

The question has been referred to the city solicitor.

MOTOR PROSPECTS FOR 1935

Roger W. Babson, Noted United States Financial Writer Warns Against Higher Motor Taxes in 1935.

BABSON PARK, Mass., Nov. 2.—Automobile factories are now shutting down production of 1934 models. It has been a good year—the best since 1930. Passenger car sales were up 38 per cent over last year, while truck production was 69 per cent higher. The last two months of 1934 will naturally be very dull, although sales are holding up better than anticipated — especially truck sales. It is interesting to note that car sales so far in 1934 have increased 40 per cent over 1933 in the drought areas, whereas in other sections the gain is only around 30 per cent.

Outlook Depends on Building Activity

With the 1934 season practically over, a survey of the industry's prospects for 1935 is timely. It is, however, too early to hazard any definite forecast as to 1935. In the early months of the year, business will probably be slow; but by the middle of spring there should be brisk activity in all divisions of the trade. A great deal depends on the building industry, over half of whose workers are now unemployed. If building shows signs of a strong revival in the early months of 1935 and the buying power of building workers can be restored, 1935 should be a much better year than 1934.

There will be some interesting changes in the motor industry next year. For instance, the New York Automobile Show will be conducted by dealers rather than by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, as in the past. This means that Ford will be able to exhibit his cars this year at the New York show. As was the case last year, Ford will be among the first to get into production. It is a well-known fact that the first car on the market has a tremendous advantage during the entire year. Plymouth and Pontiac, along with Ford, will probably be among the first to announce their 1935 lines.

As for the new models, the major changes will be in body design. These will be drastic enough to give the tooling and die-casting companies considerable business. There will be the usual improvements in motor construction, but no announcement concerning the development of a radically new motor has been made by any manufacturer. I am told that the long awaited light-model Packard will be introduced sometime in January and in appearance may resemble the 1934 Chrysler Air-Flow. Among the "Big Three," Chevrolet will cut out the similarity of style of its Master and Standard series, while the new Fords will have a much longer wheel base. So far as is known now, these are the outstanding changes in 1935 motor plans.

The low-priced car makers are again dusting off the "Bigger and Better" slogans for 1935. The question is how long low-priced automobiles can grow bigger and better. Early in 1934 the public clearly showed that it would balk at higher prices. Costs of everything going into an automobile, however, are rising. Eventually car makers in this class will be forced to stress comfort, riding qualities and economy; and forget about size. If manufacturers continue to overlook the tremendous demand for a cheaper way of "getting around," somebody may slip into the field with a modern "Model T."

Motorists Pay One Out of Every Eight Tax Dollars

Speaking of taxes, I wonder how many readers realize that motorists pay one out of every eight tax dollars to-day? The 1933 total receipts were $1,137,000,000 compared with $202,000,000 in 1919. State taxes have jumped 300 per cent per car since the War—and 1934 receipts will hit a new peak. The multiplicity of taxes on motor users is bewildering. There are innumerable federal and state taxes of all kinds, and in addition cities and counties in certain states are taking their slice. The gasoline tax is now used in every State in the Union. Since 1919, the retail price of gasoline, minus the tax, has been cut in half; but in the same period the average tax has jumped from one-half cent to nearly six cents per gallon.

The gasoline tax has proved to be a wonderful revenue producer. Motorists are glad to pay a small tax in order to finance highway improvements. As with any form of revenue producer, however, there is a saturation point. The automobile industry was one of the biggest factors in our 1920-30 industrial boom. Good business in the automobile industry goes a long way toward good business in every industry. In weighing a further increase in automobile taxes, legislators should constantly keep in mind England's experience. If the present trend of taxation continues, the motor industry in America may be terribly handicapped just as it has been in England.

Motor Stocks Good For Long Pull

The automobile industry is one of our five largest industries. Ten per cent of all gainful workers in the United States are employed directly or indirectly in this huge business. Furthermore, these workers are among the best paid in all industry Since car plants have been working on the spread-the-work principle, workers' income per week has not been as large as in 1929 but the hourly wage rate is higher. When the motor industry is operating at a satisfactory rate, four and a half million workers have a tremendous buying power. Furthermore, the industry is normally the largest consumer of nine leading commodities.

These figures give some inkling of the tremendous influence which the automobile industry has on general business. If costs and taxes can be kept low, the industry has a wonderful future. It is a progressive and capably managed industry—it is now ready to reap the harvest of the potential demand which has been accumulating since 1930. Figuring the average life of a car at 7 2-3 years, production has not kept pace with junking since 1930. This is the biggest reason why I can talk optimistically to all those connected with the motor industry,—workers, dealers salesmen, and investors. In fact, I feel sound motor stocks are a fair investment for the long pull as a part of a well diversified list.

ADVANCE INFORMATION ON CHARACTER OF 1935 AUTOS

Sedan Leads Coach in Body Style Vote.

WIDER BODIES FAVORED

By DOUGLAS MURRAY

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—"Find out for us what the 1935 cars are going to be like" chorused the automobile editors.

Not an easy assignment, but a hunch whispered: "Find out what General Motors has learned from its 1934 Customer Research questionnaires and you will know the kind of cars at least one company will build next year."

Sound reasoning, too, for when the question was put to H. A. Brown, vice-president and general manager of Generals Motors of Canada, Limited, at his office in Oshawa, he smilingly admitted that he knew to some extent what 1935 cars would be like, aud least in part, by the thousands of Canadians who take the trouble to answer the General Motors questionnaires; and that while he couldn't reveal exact finding from this proving ground of public opinion," he could hint at trends and possibilities.

1935 Cars Taking Shape

"You know," said Mr. Brown, "the cars of 1935 are taking shape already in two places, in the drafting rooms of the engineers and in the mind's eye of the potential 1935 purchaser. These two shapes must be blended before the factory goes into production, and we are able to co-ordinate the ideas of engineers and public with greater assurance because of the questionnaires we send out to the man at the wheel We have found he has definite likes and dislikes and they are of great value in guiding us as manufacturers. The fourth edition of our questionnaire is coming back to us now in thousands from the public, and these replies will be studied in detail. When the next Buyer's Guide is published it will contain a digest of what the public has told us. In the meantime, we have made a preliminary check into early returns in the low-price class, and the results are surprisingly interesting."

Sedan Is Favorite

Mr. Brown spoke freely of some of the early findings from the "plebiscite" of Canadian motorists. The answer, for instance, to the question "Body style desired on next car" might be expected to favor the sedan, but hardly to the extent that the ballot shows, with "sedan" holding a tremendous margin over "coach", with coupe, convertible and roadster trailing.

A similar emphasis is discernible, Mr. Brown said, in the vote for type of engine. "Six-cylinder" is the overwhelming favorite

Streamline Tendency

Replies from most car owners favored the "tendency toward streamlining", though a considerable group were opposed or didn't care. It is believed people generally look at this characteristic of car design more as a style factor than as an advantage from the standpoint of economy of operation or any other angle.

Another interesting thing is that people are overwhelmingly in favor of wider bodies. Even more decidedly are they in favor of built-in trunks; that is evidently a development that met with definite popular approval.

Among the mechanical questions with emphatic answers is one about position of starter button. People want it, evidently, combined with the gas pedal. They also like headlight dimmer on the floorboard, rather than on the steering wheel.

Among the "gadgets" which find favor are driver's arm rest, dash compartment, automatic choke, and octane selector.

Major developments of the past year or so were indorsed decisively, front wheel suspension and no-draft ventilation among them.

In the choice of colors, blue, of course, leads, but green steps in ahead of black for the first time, and gray is close on black's heels.

It is a safe guess, from votes received, that disc and wood wheels have definitely departed. The ballots are nearly all for wire or pressed steel.

Dependability Leads

General characteristics, in order of preference, still lead off with dependability, but "Safety" is ousted from second place, in the preliminary studies, by "Operating Economy." Mr. Brown think- this, like the preference for "six-cylinders" is a "sign of the times." Nearly all replies showed the influence of "first cost" to be small, but the extent to which the public mind is focused on maintenance is revealed in the votes or economical engine and economy of operation.

Here a leading question brought a frank reply from Mr. Brown, who incidentally, has had most to do with setting up the machinery of the Customer Research department of General Motors of Canad.

"May it be assumed," he was asked, "that General Motors cars next year will reflect these views as expressed by the man at the wheel?

"Very definitely," was the answer. "Some of these replies have already served as a valuable guide for us. The most natural way in the world to find out what people are thinking is to ask them, and that's what we do each year, months before new models are put in production. It is a valuable way of avoiding guesswork—of keeping an ear to the ground while we work with an eye to the future."

"Presumably, then, Customer Research is a permanent department of your manufacturing job?

"Yes, and getting more important all the time," said Mr. Brown, in conclusion. "I may say we are not only applying it to our product problems, but also to our employer-employee relations. Just as customer research has reduced the insulation between maker of product and consumer of product, so the same theory, employed within the organization, is reducing the layers of insulation that separate the working man and the big boss. Management cannot justify, over any period of time, a position that is untenable either with the consuming public or with the employees. So, as consumer research grows with use, we see it concerned not only with the consumer's getting the product he wants, but also with the status of the workman in the scheme of production. The idea cannot help but be fruitful in improving our industrial economy."

Royal Bride And Groom For Rideau Hall

Rumors are current in London that the Duke of Kent, Prince George, and his bride-to-be, Princess Marina of Greece, are to become the next tenants of Rideau Hall, Ottawa, as representatives of the King in Canada. Last member of the royal family to hold post of governor-general of Canada was the Duke of Connaught, great-uncle of Prince George. TRAINING CHILD FOR CITIZENSHIP

A. S. Zavitz Addresses Annual Teachers' Institute.

GROUP SESSIONS.

The Friday morning's session of the Teachers' Institute was held in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall; A. S. Zavitz, B.A., the president, occupied the chair.

The first item on the program was the president's address on the subject of "Training for Citizenship."

The teacher's methods of imparting knowledge are not as important as the development of the children themselves. Teachers leave indelible impression on the minds of their students. They must be what they want the pupils to become. If it is desirable that children should develop mentally, morally, and spiritually, the teacher must impart to them the proper influence. If the teacher is a deceiver, he will produce deceit.

Organized sport has important lessons to teach. The team with the highest score may not be the real winner. The boy who plays the game according to the rule, who will not cheat and is self-controlled, is developing character of inestimable value. Unfortunately to cheat is to demoralize character and stunt spiritual welfare.

Conditions outside of school may make it difficult to develop a child's character, but the teacher must aim to develop the sterling qualities of industry, integrity, and harmony and peace with one's fellowmen. This will require courage, effort, sympathy and divine enlightenment to accomplish.

Third Book Section

The Third Book Section of the Teachers' nstitute met in Central School on Thursday afternoon.

Miss A. Mathews' address on Pewter-Craft was an unusual and interesting feature in the section. Miss Mathews had on exhibition several pieces of her own work to illustrate the different methods which she uses to construct and decorate pewter.

This was followed by discussions on "Paragraph Building," led by Misses Dobbin and Buck; on "Devices to Secure Good Compositions" led by Misses Milloy and A. Eagleson; and on "Dictionary Exercises and Methods," led by Misses Cox and Guerin.

Misses Benson and Green introduced the subject of "Interesting Projects."

Stratford In Dark Magistrate's Wage

STRATFORD, Ont., Nov. 2.—(C. P.)—Stratford City Council is wondering to-day just what portion of the police magistrate salary it will be called upon to pay. When the government took over the magisterial system of the provinces, it was the belief of the council that the government would also pay the salaries and since the new system came into effect Magistrate J A. Makins has received no part from the city .

A recent letter from W. W. Dennison, inspector of legal offices, changes the situation, it being pointed out that the city will be liable for part of the salary, the amount to be settled in a conference between the municipality and the government.

The question has been referred to the city solicitor.

MOTOR PROSPECTS FOR 1935

Roger W. Babson, Noted United States Financial Writer Warns Against Higher Motor Taxes in 1935.

BABSON PARK, Mass., Nov. 2.—Automobile factories are now shutting down production of 1934 models. It has been a good year—the best since 1930. Passenger car sales were up 38 per cent over last year, while truck production was 69 per cent higher. The last two months of 1934 will naturally be very dull, although sales are holding up better than anticipated — especially truck sales. It is interesting to note that car sales so far in 1934 have increased 40 per cent over 1933 in the drought areas, whereas in other sections the gain is only around 30 per cent.

Outlook Depends on Building Activity

With the 1934 season practically over, a survey of the industry's prospects for 1935 is timely. It is, however, too early to hazard any definite forecast as to 1935. In the early months of the year, business will probably be slow; but by the middle of spring there should be brisk activity in all divisions of the trade. A great deal depends on the building industry, over half of whose workers are now unemployed. If building shows signs of a strong revival in the early months of 1935 and the buying power of building workers can be restored, 1935 should be a much better year than 1934.

There will be some interesting changes in the motor industry next year. For instance, the New York Automobile Show will be conducted by dealers rather than by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, as in the past. This means that Ford will be able to exhibit his cars this year at the New York show. As was the case last year, Ford will be among the first to get into production. Leafs-Redwings In Goalless Tie At Windsor

RECRUITS FAIL TO SHOW FEAR IN ICE TANGLES

New Men Ready and Willing to Swap Punches With All Comers.

CRUTCHFIELD STARTS OFF.

4,000 Spectators Watch Tameless Exhibition as Leafs and Wings Tie.

(By Canadian Press.)

These young puckchasers who move from amateur hockey to the National League in one stride seemingly don't intend letting veterans worry them with rough play without hitting back. Far from showing any inclination to take the razzing usually dished out to the rookies, they have shown they can swap punches with anyone.

Nels Crutchfield, Canadiens' recruit from McGill, started it the other night in a Boston-Canadien exhibition when he tangled with Johnny Gagnon and then took on Jean Pusie, Boston heavyweigh, defenceman, in another bout.

Bert Connolly, the Moncton Hawk New York Rangers have signed, carried it on last night at Winnipeg when Jimmie Ward, Maroon wing, tripped him as he coasted in to take a pass from Vic Ripley. The former Hawk dropped his stick and waded into Ward. The fight brought other Rangers and Maroons to the rescue, but only the principals drew majors.

The New Yorkers won their series with Maroons by taking last night's game 6-4 after tieing the first 2-2 and winning the second 4-2. They play again in Winnipeg to-morrow night before moving on to St. Paul for another pre-season workout.

Maroons had three goals before Rangers got started, Earl Robinson and Allan Shields scoring in the first and Dave Trottier in the second, but when the New Yorkers got the range it was too bad.

Cec Dillon and Bill Cook beat Andy Aitkenhead in the second, and Dillon got two more in the third to add to goals by Butch Keeling and Alex. Levinsky. Hooley Smith, star Maroon centre, tallied their fourth.

There were 36 players on the ice at one time or another in the Toronto Leaf-Detroit Red Wing game at Windsor last night, but none could score a goal. George Hainsworth, for Leafs, and Normie Smith and John Ross Roach, for Wings, turned aside everything they had.

Ken Doraty, who may be sold down the river by Leafs, did manage to bulge the Detroit twine in the third period, but it was ruled he ha dhsot from the goal crease. The only penalty shot awarded went to Leafs in the third, but Bill Thoms couldn't beach Roach on it.

The work of Toronto's new kid line, Pep Kelly, Nick Metz, and Art Jackson, pleased Conny Smythe, Leaf manager, who is reported to have decided to use them this season in preference to Doraty, Cotton, and Andy Blair.

National League fans are likely to hear more than once this year about Art Ross' black cat. The animal followed him into his hotel, and the Boston general manager has adopted it as a mascot, believing it means good luck for his Bruins this year. Anyone who can prove ownership is to be given a trip to Boston for the play-offs if the cat drags Bruins that far.

This announcement was made here today by Arnold Dowd, Secretary of Western Canada Rugby Football Union, who received a wire from President Sax Crossley in Vancouver, stating the new plans.

TIGERS AND TRICOLOR CAN SETTLE FOOTBALL PENNANTS ON SATURDAY

Hamilton Invades Montreal, Where They Have Failed to Win a Game Since 1928.

QUEEN'S FAVORED.

Coach Frank Shaughnessy Has His Team All Primed For Titanic Struggle.

By Elmer ulmage
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (C.P.).—Complications such as struck football's serene course near the end of last season, forcing playoffs for two of the three major titles, can be avoided to-morrow only if forthright victories are forthcoming from Hamilton Tigers in the Interprovincial Union and Queen's in the Intercollegiate.

There is no other way to circumvent a tumultuous finish in which six teams may possibly be fighting for two titles. The Tigers and the Tricolor can obviate this business by winning the feature tilts on the east's football program to-morrow.

Tigers invade Montreal, where they have failed since 1928 to win a game from the Wheelers. But this time they have the big four crown within eyesight. They can end all the worrying and planning in the circuit by defeating the Wheelers because a victory will qualify them for the eastern final against Sarnia Imperials.

Will ead By a Point.

Should they fail, Montreal's strong, foolproof force will be leading by a single point and no champion can be crowned until a week later—if then. A tie at Montreal or a victory for the Wheelers will leave an opening for Toronto Argonauts who move on Ottawa with every intention of retaining their slender title chances with a win over the Roughriders.

Tigers and Wheelers played an 8-8 tie in their first meeting this season. The return struggle will feature a kicking duel between Frank Turville and Huck Welch, a ball-carrying battle in which Turville, Wilf Patterson, Johnny Ferraro and Brian Timmis will be pitted against Welch, Gordie Perry and Pete Jotkus of the Wheelers.

McGill's invasion of Kingston is equally important to intercollegiate affairs. The Redmen, fresh from two decisive victories over the Western Mustangs, can land in a second-place tie with the Tricolor by winning. Should they proceed on this basis and beat Toronto the following Saturday, the intercollegiate would in all probability have a three-cornered deadlock on its hands.

Playing before a home crowd of 7,000 of more, Queen's will be slight favorites. The Tricolor has as powerful a defensive wall as any in the college circuit and a fine punter in Johnny Munro who should outkick any McGill kicker. Queen's are short on manpower and long on courage.

But the Redmen have come along fast, just as the Tricolor have, and Coach Frank Shaughnessy has his team primed for this struggle. A Queen's win would mae it virtually certain that Toronto and Queen's would finish one-two or ties and play-off for the title in either case.

Heavy Favorites

Warren Stevens' blue team faces Western at Toronto. Even without their star punter, Bob Isbister, who will be out of action with an injured shoulder, Varsity will be heavily favored to beat a Mustang squad that has yet to score a victory this year.

Sarnia Imperials can put the finishing touches to their O.R.F.U. triumph by downing Hamilton Cubs in Hamilton while it doesn't matter very much how Balmy Beach fares against St. Michael's College here. The Irish schoolboys will be fighting for a victory so they can finish in second place.

HEROES OF FORMER ICE WARS SENT TO OTHER N. H. L. CAMPS AS SMYTHE STRENGTHENS TEAM

Smythe Satisfied He Has Duplicated His Performance of Five Years Ago in Signing New Line—Much Depends on No. 2 Line of Kilrea, Thoms and Boll.

TORONTO, November 2 (C.P.)—Out of the junior hockey hat that has supplied plums before, Conny Smythe has lifted a forward line designed to astonish those pessimists who said the quick-thinking, fast-talking boss of the Toronto Maple Leafs couldn't go on for ever picking amateur winners for his National League force.

Conny Smythe.

The Leafs were the outstanding team in hockey last season despite the fact they won neither the N.H.L. title nor the Stanley Cup. Their season's record far surpassed that of any other team. Unexpected play-off setbacks sent Managing Director Smythe to figuring what was wrong with a team that hadn't a fault until the crucial period arrived.

He sent Charlie Sands, a right-winger, and Jack Shill, rookie left-winger, to Boston Bruins to make way for fresh material. Alex Levinsky, rugged defenceman, was sold to New York Rangers. It may yet develop before the season opens next Thursday that there is not room for little Ken Doraty and the veteran Harold Cotton.

Because Smythe is just about satisfied he has picked three plums at one pull, duplicating his performance of five years ago when he signed Charlie Conacher, Harvey Jackson, and Red Horner from the Toronto Marlboro Juniors, 1929 Canadian junior champions.

This time he selected Art Jackson, younger brother of Harvey; Red Metz and Pep Kelly from the latest Memorial Cup champions, St. Michael's College. In view of the fact the Conacher-Joe Primeau-Jackson string is known as the 'kid' line, the young fellows from the Irish school are likely to be known as the "infant" line.

Show Great Promise.

They have shown great promise in practice and in exhibition games this fall. It seems certain the astute Smythe will at least give the trio a thorough trial under big league fire, perhaps sending Doraty and Cotton to Syracuse of the International League in the meantime.

The Leaf No. 2 forward line, Hec Kilrea, Bill Thoms and Buzz Boll, will be just about the fastest skating string in hockey. Kilrea and Boll are tremendously fast skaters and the line is expected to deliver more goals than last season. Primarily, however, it is useful for defensive purposes. There are few backcheckers as effective as Boll and Kilrea.

King Clancy and Red Horner will make up Toronto's first defence and the veteran Happy Day and young "Flash" Hollett will team on the second. Hollett, signed by the Leafs a year ago and loaned to Ottawa Senators for the 1933-34 campaign, outshone his chief rivals, Freddy Robertson and Reg. Hamilton, in pre-season training. Hamilton, former St. Michael's College husky, and Robertson, last year with Syracuse, will be returned to the Stars. There may be some shuffling of players between Syracuse and Toronto in the early season but, however, it goes, the Leafs seem well fortified in all departments, especially reserves.

George Hainsworth will play goal for this team that packs great defensive potentialities but invariably forget all about defence when it gets into action. It is a machine geared for goal getting.

Smart Rugby Display In Saturday Battles

Two football games are billed for Riverdside Park tomorrow afternoon. First one is between Oshawa Collegiate and P.C.I., the final game of their schedule. It will start at 1.45 o'clock. The second contest will see the Toronto Vi-Tones tangle with the local Orfuns at 3.30 sharp. While neither game will find a great deal at stake, a large crowd of fans is expected for the bargain bill, both games for a quarter. Some smart rugoy will be shown, and it will be interesting to see how the Brooks-Carson squad compares with a good Toronto O.R.F.U. entry.

The Orfuns have been practising regularly and trying out various new ground-gaining plays, besides drilling constantly in the forward-passing play. They will likely open up their play considerably in the first half of the game against Vi-Tones in an effort to pile up a lead. The visitors are said to be husky, good blockers and with an accurate booter. The presence of one or two P.C.I. stars on Orfuns' lineup should strengthen the local line considerably. Both games ought to be close, scrappy affairs, and the first one should see a particularly tight struggle with Oshawa out to revenge themselves on Coach Bamforth's team.

Another Blow Struck at U. S. Davis Cup Hopes for 1935.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP)—George Martin Lott, Jr. of Chicago, co-holder of the United States indoor and outdoor doubles championships, and recognized as the world's outstanding doubles tennis player, turned professional yesterday, signing a contract to join a four-months' pro. barnstorming tour under the sponsorship of Bill O'Brien, sports promoter.

The 28-year-old mid-westerner, who was a member of six United States Davis Cup teams, and was listed in the United States' first ten seven times in the past ten years, refused a flat sum of $10,000 offered by O'Brien and his partner, William ("Big Bill") Tilden, and affixed his signature to a document specifying a percentage of the gross gate receipts.

Sideline Views of U. S. Football

(By HERBERT W. BARKER)

New York, Nov. 2. (AP).—Pleading with Old Man Upset to remain on the sidelines for at least one week, United States football prognosticators went into the well known Brown study to-day.

From this corner, the week's outlook for major games was something like this:

Pittsburgh - Notre Dame: Notre Dame is improving fast but Pitt's feat in holding Minnesota's thundering herd to a 13-7 score makes the Panthers look better and better each week. Probably a tight squeak but a vote for Pitt.

Army-Illinois: Two undefeated and untied teams collide but the Illini have faced much toucher competition. This fact, coupled with Army's apparent weakness against passing, seems to give Bob Zuppke's big ten outfit the edge.

Kentucky-Alabama: Whatever the thermometer reading, Kentucky appears to be in for a warm afternoon. Alabama handily.

Stanford - U.C.L.A.: Stanford to continue its undefeated Pacific Coast conference march.

Washington-Oregon State: Ditto Washington.

Harvard - Princeton: On paper, the only question here seems to involve the size of the score. Princeton easily.

Minnesota-Michigan: Michigan is set to shoot the works but the Gophers look touchdowns better.

Texas-Southern Methodist: Two southwestern powers meet here. Southern Methodist appears to have the more versatile offense, inducing a faint-hearted ballot for the Mustangs.

Fordham-Tennessee: St. Mary's and Southern Methodist appear to have deflated the Fordham bubble thoroughly. A nod in Tennesee's direction.

Yale - Dartmouth: Dartmouth never has beaten Yale but there's always a first time. If the Indians don't win this time they'd better quite visiting the Yale bowl.

Chicago-Perdue: One, or both, will be eliminated from the Big Ten race after to-morrow's encounter. The Maroons have their strongest team in years but will have to watch Purdue's touchdown twins, Jim Carter and Duane Purvis. On the flip of a coin, Purdue to spring an upset.

Tulane-Mississippi: Another for Tulane.

Louisiana State-Mississippi State: Likewise for L.S.U.

Navy-Washington and Lee: Navy, but the future sea dogs had better be careful.

Michigan State-Marquette: There seems to be no reason to suspect Michigan State's perfect record will crack up here.

Syracuse-Penn State: Syracuse should surmount one more obstacle in its bid for a perfect season.

Columbia-Cornell: Despite the injury to Al Barabas; Columbia, but it may be fairly close.

SHORE PLAYS FOR PATRICK BUT WANTED TO LONG AGO

Too Hot for Hockey When Green Rookie Sought Berth — Now Mentor Does Worrying — Eddie Rode Towards Stardom With Gangster.

By G. Douglas Mackie
Central Press Canadian Sport Correspondent

EDMONTON, Nov. 2. — Eddie Shore, now signed for $7,000 with the Boston Bruins under Frank Patrick, probably represents the biggest mistake Patrick ever made in his hockey career. Certainly Patrick suffered plenty of headaches when he considered his original oversight!

Eddie Shore

In the summer of 1923, Eddie Shore, fresh from two seasons of standout amateur icework, aspired to money hockey. With a letter of introduction to Frank Patrick from Goldie Smith, manager of Melville Millionaires, Shore set out for Vancouver with high hopes.

Just 21 years of age, he called on Patrick in Vancouver and told the latter he was a hockey player. He produced recommendations and his letter from Goldie Smith. It was a pretty warm day and Patrick was trying to think of anything but hockey. He gazed across his desk at the big fellow.

Too Hot For Hockey

"It's too hot today. Call around when there is ice and I'll talk hockey," said Mr. Patrick, thereby letting go one of the most valuable pieces of hockey ivory to ever come within his grasp.

That was Shore's first meeting with Frank Patrick. The Pacific coast hockey magnate could have had Shore for nothing. Later he was to offer $3,[illegible] for his services. Today he is managing Shore at a salary of $7,000.

Shore didn't think much of Patrick after that interview. He returned to Melville and got a chance to sign with Regina Capitals in the western Canada hockey league. He consulted Goldie Smith who was then scouting for the Boston Tigers. Smith advised him to go ahead.

Eddie looked around for someone to drive him down to Regina. A Canadian National Railway locomotive engineer, beside whom Shore had "fired" on the road, came to his aid. Eddie Shore as a result of that trip was started on a career which was destined to nickname him No. 1 "bad man" of big league hockey while his driver was destined to flash across the American scene as "No. 1 Public Enemy of the United States."

A wide comparison of course is provided by the fact that Shore is not at heart a "bad man." His robust style of play, favored tco by Boston Bruins, and a hearty willingness to give and take the tough spots in hockey, has earned him the leagues' longest penalty list of recent years. But off the ice, Eddie Shore is a quiet, likeable chap, and a cheerful friend and neighbor. Sankey on the other hand turned out to be cold-blooded and ruthless criminal.

Gangster Was Engineer

Eddie Shore's engineer friend was Verne Sankey, who came to the end of his trail by suiciding in a jail cell last spring. The same Verne Sankey, wanted for murder, kidnapping and a host of other minor complaints. The same Verne Sankey who terrorized the United States for a month or better.

Sankey drove Eddie Shore into Regina for the latter's first professional contract. Shore met Wes Champ, manager of the Regina Capitals and signed at $800 a season for three seasons. Then he spent his first season principally warming the bench. The regulars were too good.

Regina Capitals were sold to Portland, Ore., and as they didn't know anything about Eddie Shore's ability and — ironically enough — needed a good defence man, they traded Shore to Edmonton for Bob Trapp.

The deal was apparently, not to Shore's liking. He returned to Melville and once again confided in Goldie Smith. He told Smith the salary he was getting and Goldie advised him that he could do better playing amateur hockey in the United States. Smith offered to place him with Roy Schooley at Pittsburgh.

Bruins Roped Him In

Eddie left for the United States but got only as far as Minneapolis where he played a couple of games with Lloyd Turner's Millers. Kenny McKenzie of the Edmonton Eskimos was in the meantime looking for his new player who was due to report. Eddie got in touch with McKenzie and at a meeting in Winnipeg, agreed to go to Edmonton for $2,400. That turned out to be Shore's big season. It was then that Frank Patrick saw Shore perform and regretted the day he had allowed him to slip through his fingers.

Then the western Canada hockey league dissolved and Goldie Smith, who had always been a staunch believer in Shore's worth, tried to get Shore for the Boston Tigers for whom he was scouting. However Shore was not a free lance and the negotiations were abandoned. Smith however advised George Brown, owner of the Tigers, now the Boston Cubs, to have the Bruins go after Shore. They sent Ross and Shore was officially embarked upon his big-time career.

He proved to be a sensation in the national hockey league. Frank Patrick could not but regret the day that he had found conditions unfavorable to the discussion of hockey!

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(By C. J. P.)

All the local football fans (and the rugbyists, too) will be wending their way past a giving point—yeah, the old box office—to see two tilts in Riverside Saturday. First and foremost is the Oshawa-P.C.I. squabble at 1.45, while second and secondmost is the tussle betwixt Toronto Vi-Tones and Orfuns at 3.30 by your wristwatch. At least, the home teams have abjectly pleaded with the visiting squads to get here on time for the sake of the customers, their own sakes and for the luvva Pete. Both games are promising affairs and if they live up to their promise, all will be peaches and cream. If they don't, we'll just take apple pie with a slice of cheese for dessert.

• • • • • • •

We are looking forward with the odd lick of the lip to the Vi-Tones-Orfuns' scrap. Something seems to whisper into our little ears that ye Hogtown aggregation may come down looking for a little bit of a rugby game with a first-year unknown squad and go home nursing bruises and telling folks that we imported six all-Americans and half a dozen rasslers. When Mick Magee, for instance, with the blond hair and high knee-action, hits that line, they may start to wonder; or when Jack Gardner, with a jaunty smile and murder in his heart, knifes his way through a six-inch opening, they may ponder somewhat. And they'll certainly know they're in a game when Ashmore whams two hundred pounds of bone and muscle at them. And all the other gentle Orfuns. It mght be good, but of course the Vi-Tones aren't choir boys, either!

• • • • • • •

As far as we can make out, there are only five intermediate teams left in the O.R.F.U. race. The Twin City Panthers are opening against Toronto Mining Word this Saturday, while Sarnia and St. Thomas are slated to meet. The local Orfuns will be drawn to play the winner of one of those series either in the semi-finals or finals. A few days ago, we expected the Peterborough outfit to be ordered against Mining World, and figuring we'd get a good line on this team, we borrowed a nickel and purchased one copy of the weekly "Mining World."

• • • • • • •

To tell the truth, we didn't learn a great deal. It seems this paper, "Mining World", deals with mines or something. We hunted through all kinds of tips, dope and stock chatter, for the merest mention of a rugby team sponsored by the sheet, but there wasn't a line. Now, if we had a team in The Examiner and it had just knocked off the Oshawa Blue Devils, you would see very little else in the paper but this wonderful fact. It would be blazed across a couple of pages, referred to on every page, and would even slyly pop out at you when you were reading Jiggs or Tillie. But the "Mining World" was too busy telling you how to invest.

• • • • • • •

The first heading we read that sounded like maybe it was sports was "Two New Veins at Casey Contact". We wondered if a star Irish back was having trouble with varicose veins, but it seems it was only some gold discovered in a mine. Another said: "Canadians Watch Out For This Sharpshooter". That sounded like a forward-pass expert but proved to be a Mexican racket for suckers. Then: "Green Stabell Drills Preparatory to Sinking" turned out to be not a footballer who was training himself into the ground, but merely diamond-drilling operations. And so it went. Well, maybe the Orfuns will never meet those doggone secretive M.W. players, anyway.

• • • • • • •

A replay has been ordered of the Bowmanville-Cobourg rugby game of Oct. 20, on the grounds that the referee in charge was influenced by the crowd on a scoring decision. This put Cobourg back in the running with the Rubbertown lads and pro longs their schedule a week or more. The winner of this group tangles with Lindsay, leader of our senior school group. The Scugog gang are more or less loafing around carelessly and figuring it will be a lead-pipe cinch to walk through either light squad, and it probably will. However, we once knew a bird who used to laugh at a bowlegged and buck-toothed lass who would roll her eyes at him—and the chump didn't quit laughing till one day he suddenly found himself mumbling: "I do," at a perfectly legal marriage ceremony!

• • • • • • •

Four Church League cage contests are on the cards at the 'Y' tomorrow e'en. At six, St. Andrew's Juveniles meet St. Paul's; it's St. James' Juveniles vs. George St. at 6.35; followed at 7.15 by George St. Juniors winding it up at eight with St. John's. These ought to be snappy tussles and basketball fans are invited to help themselves to a piece of the gallery anytime between six and nine and give the cagers a look-see.

• • • • • • •

The winner of the first fracas moves to the top of the heap, while the second-game teams are striving mightily to keep out of the cold damp cellar in this weather. The first junior jamboree should be a battle royal. George Street has a fiery young squad in in Kingdon, Stinson, Ward, Gunsolus, Heard, Sketch, etc. But St. Paul's boasts a heavy, classy lineup which includes Marsh, McIntyre, Morrow, Sedgewick, the Clarks, Pulkinghorn and Barr. And the last game also sounds rather warmish. Trinity has last year's leading scorer, Thorburn, plus such worthies as Hayes, White, Morrow, Edmondson, Martin and Gadd; and some of St. John's stars are the Patterson boys, Howell, Young, Amys, Gledhill, Townsend and Pink. Making whoopee in the hoop game—or something.

• • • • • • •

Grab-bag: Gym sports, bowling, badminton and carpet ball have their hundreds of devotees here these gloamings . . . . Ace Bailey plans to go into business with a large firm in Toronto this winter . . . . Not much hockey chatter around yet, though we hear maybe Bridgenorth and Hastings will apply for entry to the E.P.L. at the annual meeting . . . . The junior Petes lose their ace sniper, Bill Calladine, via theo ver-age route this winter—he'll be trying out with the intermediates . . . . We're calling both local rugby teams to cop wins here tomorrow.

Gamsby Will Enter Junior Hockey Team

COBOURG, Nov. 2 (Special to The Examiner). — Now that the baseball season is over, Orme Gamsby, popular sport of Orono, is ready, it is stated, to direct the destinies of a junior O.H.A. hockey team. At a hockey meeting just held, the Orono hockey club decided to function the coming season as a junior O.H.A. club, but to also enter an intermediate team in a district league, which will probably be composed of Orono, Newcastle, Newtonville, Oanton, Courtice and Elizabethville.

The following officers were elected for the season:

President—P. C. Brown.
Vice-President—N. F. Porter.
Secretary-Treasurer—H. Clarke.
Manager—O. A. Gamsby.

Babe Threatening Long Green Moguls

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (CP)—Babe Didrikson, the broad-jumping, baseball - tossing, sprinting, hurdling, high jumping, etc., etc., girl athlete, is reported from the West to be driving golf balls 326 yards.

If that information is accurate, or ever nearly accurate, women golf stars, and the men too for that matter, had better rally to the defence of their lofty laurels.

The startling information of the Texas girl's powerful driving came out of Tacoma, Wash. In need of a little warming up before pitching a baseball game, Babe joined in a foursome at the Allenmore course and ruined the day for her opponents by smacking balls so far off the tee the others quit playing to watch and marvel.

GRIDIRON WAR HATCHETS BURIED AS HARVARD-PRINCETON TANGLE

Famous American Elevens Again Meet Following Long Layoff.

PATCH UP DIFFERENCES.

(By Bill King, A.P. Sports Writer.)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., November 2 (A.P.). — Eight years may be much too short a time for nations and humans to cease hating enemies, but that is two full generations in intercollegiate football, long enough to erase all the bitterness that resulted from the Harvard-Princeton athletic break and for ever silence the haranguers who had an unofficial part in the famous "Big Three" smashup.

Break Up in 1926.

The current Harvard and Princeton players and under-graduates were in their early 'teens back in 1926, and, at this late date, for them, the real casus belli may be dim.

The biting satires of the Harvard lampoon, the magazine articles of former Harvard players which reflected on Princeton sportsmanship, and the "signet ring" assault charges of the State Street quarterbacks association were merely thorns in the paw of the angry Tiger, who was chiefly concerned with the crimson's blunt refusal to rotate the Princeton and Yale games.

But much water has flowed beneath college bridges since then, and on Saturday, when the Tiger eleven returns to the Stadium for the first time since the break, it will be under vastly changed conditions.

For one thing, this re-union of ancient rivals is not going to be a game for blood, much to Harvard's chagrin.

The twice-beaten Crimson does not appear to have any weapon capable of making any impression against the Tigers, whose football star is in the ascendant.

Finances Also Changed.

The financial aspect of this game has also changed. When last played here, a capacity crowd was eager to pay $4.00 for any kind of a Stadium seat. This year the Stadium will be only comfortably filled by a crowd not expected to exceed 40,000, and half of these spectators will pay but $1.65 to witness the re-union festivities.

While the unbeaten Tigers were putting on their final polish before advancing on the Stadium, the student editors of the Harvard and Princeton comic publications were patching up their ancient differences and getting out a joint issue.

The final touch to this feast of mutual forgiveness will be applied on Saturday night when the two football squads line together in one of the new Harvard houses.

Whirlwind Again

JACKIE "KID" BERG

The Whitechapel Windmill, who was a sensation a couple of years back in American lightweight ranks, but just failed to top the division when Tony Canzoneri was at his best, is hitting the comeback trail after a disastrous slump. He grabbed the lightweight crown of Great Britain in a furious battle with Harry Mizler, whose seconds tossed in the towel after ten rounds. The "Whirlwind's" return was staged in his beloved London.

Soccer Notes

Arrangements have been completed for the eastern championship soccer game on Saturday afternoon, when Trenton Airport team will be the guests of the Canadian General aggregation in the return game on King Edward Park. Kick-off at three o'clock prompt. Referee, Alexander McKinley. In the previous encounter at Trenton the Airmen carried off a one goal victory. If the Petes win, a third game will be necessary on neutral ground.

Secretary Crumble of Trenton Airport team, has notified local officials that they will leave Trenton at 12.45 which will give them ample time to be ready for the kick-off. Their left wing combination is considered one of the best in the province.

CHAPTER 20

The girl looked her gratitude. "Then they won't arrest him?"

"I'm not sure we can get anything done fast enough to prevent that, but you mustn't worry. If they do arrest him, they won't keep him long. If only this reporter-Blade will help!"

Ruth powdered her nose illogically and brushed back her hair from her face. "Then I'll go," she said. At the door she turned, reached up and kissed Mrs. Reeves softly and was gone.

Mrs. Reeves was very tired. A little kindness, she thought, would be enough to make her weep, something that all the horror of the night and day had not been able to do.

But she turned with assurance to the 'phone. Tonight she would have to forget she was tired. The cab stand which she called was at a near-by corner. By the time she had put on her hat, collected her bag and tossed a thin, summer coat over her arm, the apartment buzzer rang.

She hurried into the cab and gave the driver the Sun Address. Then she settled back. Neither she nor the driver noticed a dark, rather bulky man, leaning against a lamp post near the apartment or saw him start forward as she entered the cab, or watched him scribble down the cab number as the car drove away.

* * *

The city room of the Sun was relaxed, in that comfortable mood a city room takes on when the last edition of the day has gone to press. Reporters in their shirt sleeves lounged about lazily, talking or reading newspapers, their chairs tilted back and their feet upon desks in front of them.

Copy readers at their long table behind the city desk argued in languid tones. In half an hour the night staff would arrive and the room would come to life again. But until then, there would be peace.

Mawson, the city editor, was a wise man. So he listened attentively while for the twentieth time Tim Blade reviewed again the case the police had against Jamieson. He knew that Tim was only thinking out loud—the boy had used him like that before on a difficult case. But sometimes when the reporter shifted the order of happenings, changed the emphasis on words, either he or the boy found a new clew.

Suddenly Tim broke off his story. "Well, I'll be damned," he muttered, fervently, and abruptly left the city desk. Mawson watched him walk toward the railing, outside which visitors and publicity agents waited. A woman in a creamy-white dress came inside the gate which the reporter held open and followed him across the room to a secluded desk in the corner.

Mawson started as he caught sight of her face, grabbed the last edition of the Sun and studied the picture on the front page. Then he, too, murmured softly, "Well, I'll be damned." They had found the picture in their files. She had been a hostess at a faculty women's club tea. Tim had raised Cain because they use it, but Tim, thought Mawson, philosophically, would get over his idealistic scruples in another five years.

He watched them as they talked, the woman telling a story of some sort, Tim nodding his head with a faint smile. She was recounting something, Mawson guessed, that Tim had already figured out.

Now she said something slowly, impressively. Whatever it was, Tim hadn't known about it, because he leaned forward and questioned her. But it must have fallen flat because Tim was shaking his head negatively and the woman looked discouraged.

She began talking again. Slowly she drew her forefinger from her left temple along her cheek almost to the tip of her chin. Mawson stared cautiously while Tim sat there buried in thought, after that last cabalistic sign, sketching circles with interlocking triangles on the copy paper in front of him. The city editor knew what they were, even if he couldn't see them. That meant that Blade was puzzled, something wouldn't click.

Then a light of inspiration broke over his face. In his glee, he jabbed the point of his pencil so deeply into his copy paper that he lead snapped. This time it was he who leaned forward and made that mysterious sweep from temple to chin. Mawson grinned. It began to look like two lodge brothers getting together.

Then his grin faded. Tim was on his feet hurrying toward the railing with the woman after him. Now where the devil was the kid going? He watched them out of the office, shrugged his shoulders and picked up the still-damp final an office boy had just laid on his desk.

Outside in the hall, Tim led the way swiftly toward the morgue. "It might be," he muttered. "It just might be right. But," he demanded of the woman who followed him, "what the devil does it mean, if it is?"

Mrs. Reeves shook her head. In the morgue, Tim's fingers were nervously excited as from one of the file cases he drew out a fat manila envelope stuffed with photographs. He ran through them, hastily: a banker who had absconded; a member of a royal house; a queen of bathing beauties. At the next one he halted. Lifting the picture under the desk light, he beckoned to Mrs. Reeves. It was a small Bertillon picture, not as clear as prints may be, but Mrs. Reeves nodded her head vigorously. "Yes," she said. "That's the man."

"O. K." replied Tim, briefly, putting them all back in the envelop and pushing it into the file. "Now I want you to trust me and do just what I tell you to. Will you?"

"Tell me first. I can't promise without knowing."

"Go on down to the police station and give yourself up. Tell Lee you heard he was looking for you. He is, you know," he added, as her eyes widened in fright and disbelief.

"No," she whispered, "not me. It was Ralph he said he was going to arrest."

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Reeves." The reporter's voice was less brusque. "I thought you knew. Ruth Turner hurried away too quickly or she would have heard us. I though she had, and had told you. But you needn't be frightened. It will only be for tonight. If I can find this man, both you and Jamieson will be free by morning."

"Very well," said the woman at last. Her voice was calmer. "I'll go to the inspector, but I won't talk. They can't make me talk about it. Goodnight." She held out a firm, white hand to him.

Tim watched her walk with swinging grace down the hall toward the elevator. Compassion poured into him as he thought of her moving so firmly to a cell at the police station. Well, he'd find the guy if it was the last thing he did. It might be the last thing, at that. He'd better get away without Mawson seeing him. Mawson would want to know where he was going, and there'd be the devil to pay if he told him.

He almost ran by the city room door, dodged into the locker room for his hat, and caught the back elevator downstairs. Across the street, he picked up a cab and gave the driver a direction.

The cab swung out Main street in the direction of the university. Twenty minutes later they had reached University Row and had driven past it. Six blocks to the east, the driver turned to the right. Before the cab had reached the next corner, there came the beginning of a long, steady incline. Tim's destination was at the top of that hill.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, November 3

A very lively and interesting day is presaged from the mutual aspects between the rulings of business, commerce, letters and practical and all constructive operations of importance. It is a favorable time for launching new projects or agreements, with much stirring in connection with the lines above. The energies and faculties will be found keen, original and audacious.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively and eventful year, with much activity and enterprise in business, trade, all pertaining to writings, publishing and promotion, with heightened urges to new undertakings and fresh agreements, but in all sign papers carefully and do not squander or imperil funds.

A child born on this day should be talented, versatile, quick and clever in whatever direction it may apply itself, bringing original and constructive as well as practical insight into all its affairs.

One feature of the many dinners for Prince George and Princess Marina in London this winter is the return of the old-fashioned long dining table which is crowding out the many small round tables.

OMEMEE LAYMEN NAME OFFICERS

United Church Laymen Decided to Continue Activities.

OMEMEE, Nov. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Wednesday evening in the basement of the United Church a meeting of the members of the laymen's association was held with Dr. H. McPhee, the vice-president, in the chair. The meeting was held primarily for the purpose of deciding whether or not the association would remain active in 1934-35. It was the unanimous opinion of those present that program for season should be carried out. Accordingly new officers were chosen for the association as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Rev. Dr. Reddick.
Hon. Pres.—Rev. O. B. Thornton.
President—H. Gardiner.
Vice-President—L. Curtis.
Secretary—S. Vaughan.
Treasurer—W. Moncrief.
Advisory Committee—T. A. McConnell, M. Sandy, R. James, E. Switzer, Dr. Reddick, Dr. McPhee, B. Pogue.
Music Committee—M. D. Earl, C. Elliott, H. Harrison, A. Stinson, R. Marshall.
Banquet Committee—F. Parker, W. Wilson, H. Lamb, T. H. McConnell and W. Weir.

The treasurer's report was given by Mr. Curtis, showing a slight balance on hand.

Dr. Reddick closed the meeting with prayer.

Hallowe'en Dance

A good time was had by those who attended the Hallowe'en dance on Wednesday night held in Coronation Hall under the auspices of the Glen Lee Club.

Spendid music was furnished by Watson and Atkinson's orchestra of Peterborough. Dancing continued after lunch until wee small hours in the morning. This dance was such a success that the club plan to hold a similar one on Friday night, November 16th.

The Rev. Dr. Reddick was a visitor to Haliburton on Tuesday.

The Misses Currie and Rutherford accompanied by Miss Bell motored to Peterborough Tuesday.

Miss Patricia Harris and Master Stephen Harris are visiting Mrs. Wallace at Lindsay.

HAMILTON INVADES MONTREAL FOR CRUCIAL TILT SATURDAY

McGill and Queen's at Kingston is Other Top Game on Week-end Card.

BENGALS HAVE TO WIN.

TORONTO, November 2—(CP)—Hamilton's invasion of Montreal for a crucial Big Four battle and a significant tilt between McGill and Queen's at Kingston top Saturday's football card in the East by such a wide margin that four other engagements have relatively little public appeal.

Tigers can win the Big Four title for the second time in three seasons with a victory at Montreal. They can retain a better chance than any other team by simply holding the Wheelers to a tie or they can throw the race wide open by losing. Any one of the three results is very possible.

In the event of a tie or a Montreal victory, Toronto Argonauts can get back into a serious position by defeating Ottawa Roughriders at Ottawa. But if the Bengals win it's all over, and the Eastern Canadian finalists will have been decided. The O.R.F.U.'s representative will be Sarnia Imperials.

Imperials Defeated.

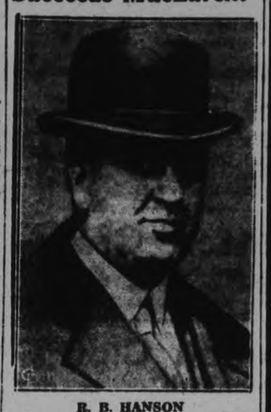
Nothing short of a miracle will stop the Imperials from defeating Hamilton Cubs on Saturday and putting away their fourth straight title beyond all doubt. They have won all four games this season and remain the only unbeaten, untied team in the East.

Frank Shaughnessy's McGill squad, beaten in its first two starts, has a definite "must" program lined up. It must beat Queen's on Saturday at Kingston, then upset University of Toronto the following week. This, providing the Western Mustangs cause no ructions meanwhile, would create a three-cornered tie between McGill, Queen's, and Toronto.

Only a last-minute field goal gave the Tricolor a victory over McGill on October 13, and Queen's have just finished two bruising games with Toronto, winning one and losing the other. Ted Reeves' gallant team of 16 may find it difficult to work up the same fighting spirit against the Redmen.

There will be a play-off for the intercollegiate title anyway, the teams finishing first and second playing a two-game series to decide the championship. The college winner is not entered in the Canadian playdowns.

Succeeds MacLaren?



R. B. HANSON

Reports from Ottawa indicate that R. B. Hanson, Conservative member for constituency of York-Sunbury, will fill the Federal Cabinet post expected to be vacated by Hon. Murray MacLaren, Minister of Pensions and National Health.

TWELVE CITIZENS PAY RADIO FINES

Fine of Two Dollars and Costs of Three Dollars Levied.

11 PLEAD GUILTY.

Twelve local citizens appeared before Police Magistrate Gee today and were fined $2 and $3 costs each for operating radio sets without the necessary Federal license.

All maintained that they were not trying to defraud the Government in neglecting to secure their radio licenses. "I understand it was just a matter of carelessness," stated Magistrate Gee. "But don't forget another time."

Eleven of those charged entered pleas of guilty, but one, H. Cruikshank, pleaded not guilty, and his case was tried. Mr. Cruikshank testified that he told the radio inspector who visited his home that "if he could guarantee that everyone would buy a license I would buy one."

He said that he had also complained about the manner in which the Radio Commission was handling broadcasts. "The inspector told me he was around to hear complaints and he wrote all mine down," witness stated.

Mr. Cruikshank testified that his radio was out of order when the inspectors called due to two tubes being burned out. The inspector had sworn that the set was connected up, but Mr. Cruikshank stated that he had told members of his family not to connect up the radio. He said he had not used it since early in the Spring. "I bought the radio in 1930 and have here radio licenses for every year since."

He said he had purchased a license for his radio a few days after the visit of the inspector "but it was not his visit that caused me to get the license, as I would have purchased one anyway before I used my set."

Magistrate Gee found him guilty and fined him the same as the others.

Those who pleaded guilty were: Richard Williams, E. Condon, J. Heffernon, T. Glover, O. Hurrel, Wm. Cole, Mrs. C. Smith, H. Zacks, T. Hooper and G. Solmes. All produced their radio licenses, showing that they had purchased them since the visit of the inspector to their homes.

Another case was adjourned for a week at the request of the prosecution.

PRIMARY TEACHERS HEAR FINE ADDRESS

Miss Evelyn Tudhope Describes Trip to Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

The Primary and Kindergarten-Primary Section of the Institute met in the Kindergarten, Central School on Thursday afternoon, the chairman being Miss Laura Wilson. The discussion of the first topic, "Formal Number Work: Should This be Taught in the Junior Primer Grade?" was ably led by Miss Ross. The other primary teachers took part in the informal period which followed, and by a unanimous vote put themselves on record as being of the opinion that formal number work should not be begun until the child's second year at school. The chief reason advanced was that the child is being asked to do something for which he is mentally unfit at the expense of his energy and time, as well as those of the teacher.

Miss V. Fusee gave a splendid talk on "Suggestions for Making Blending of Sounds Less Difficult for Dull Pupils." The teachers who took part in the discussion were all agreed that this is a real difficulty and some helpful suggestions were given.

Miss Anne Lawrence brought some interesting and valuable ideas from the Kindergarten-Primary Summer Course which she attended at London. With the aid of samples of handwork suitable for both Primary and Kindergarten-Primary work she gave practical help to all present.

The last item on a varied program was Miss Evelyn Tudhope's account of her trip last summer to Norway, Sweden, and Denmark. Travelling on a cruise ship from England, she first visited Oslo, the capital of Norway. Oslo is a very old town, formerly called Christiania, but being changed in 1925 to its ancient name Oslo. Among many modern buildings is a wonderful hospital of 2,000 beds, open to rich and poor alike at a charge of 75c a day, the remainder of the cost being included in the taxes. Norway is naturally a dull country and the people are fond of brightly colored flowers in their gardens and bright clothes on their children to overcome this dullness. The next call was at Stockholm in Sweden. This country is more like Canada, and with its summer homes reminds one of the lake districts here. Stockholm itself is called the Venice of the North, being built on thirteen islands and with its waterways and canals in all its streets. It is famous for its tapestries and has some unusual points of interest, beautiful buildings and an open-air museum. Copenhagen was visited next, the famous Danish city, famed for its porcelains, its great zoo, and its large amusement area. Bicycles are very popular in Denmark, there being one for every three of its inhabitants. A visit to the Norwegian fjords proved of great beauty, its interest being enhanced by its dangerous travelling in treacherous channels by water and on very winding motor roads among the mountains.

BEN TURNER NOW BATLEY'S MAYOR

Trades Union Veteran Receives Congratulations on Diamond Anniversary.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(CP)—King George and Queen Mary have sent their congratulations to Sir Ben Turner, popular veteran of the Trades Union movement in the textile industry, who with Lady Turner had just celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding.

Sir Ben, born at Holmfirth 71 years ago, started work at the age of 10. President for many years of the National Association of Textile Trade Unions, he is still joint chairman of the Workers' and Industrial Council for these industries. He is the "Father" of Batley Town Council, having been a member for more than 40 years. On Nov. 9 he will become Mayor of the Borough. Lady Turner for reasons of health will be unable to act as Mayoress and the duties will be carried out by Miss N. E. Turner, the eldest of their five daughters.

In 1922 and 1929 Sir Ben was elected M.P. for Batley, Morley and Ossett. He was Secretary to the Mines Department in 1929-30 during the Socialist administration, and on his retirement from the position in June, 1930, he was made a Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

He was knighted in 1931.

BURNS TO DEATH

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 1. (AP)—Flames which trapped him in the cabin of his barge, 'The Hiram Thurston' early to-day cost the life of Alfred Shortell, 75, of Oneida, N.Y., veteran garage canal skipper. Hortell's body was found badly burned and slumped at the foot of an eight-foot stairway leading from the cabin to the barge deck.

Hollywood's Fairbanks Are Happily Reconciled

KANSAS CITY. — Asked if she and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, had been reconciled, Mary Pickford said: "Yes, we're reconciled." Then she quickly changed the subject. She stopped here last night on her way east by train. At Hollywood, Fairbanks could not be reached for comment, but close friends there said they believed the actress' remark was intended to be taken humorously. The actor's brother, Robert, declined to comment other than to say: "Well, they have been going around a lot together lately haven't they?"

Attempts Suicide Twice Brooklyn Man To Live

NEW YORK—Leopold Schild the man who shot himself twice in the head, is apparently recovering in a hospital in Brooklyn.

Schild thought to die on the grave of his first wife, leaving a note saying "I am a victim of the depression." That night was Sunday night. He shot himself but awoke to consciousness on Monday to shoot himself again. Wakening once more he staggered to an undertaker's and lay down to die in a funeral car. But the undertaker found him, summoned his second wife and 13-year-old son and had the would-be suicide removed to a hospital. There he lies to-day coming back to life.

Enraged Motor Driver Battles With Bandits

HAMILTON.—Two masked men, armed with revolvers, stepped out from behind a garage door as Ernest Hall was putting his car away early to-day. The bandits ordered Mr. Hall to "put 'em up" but instead of doing so, the intended victim leaped on one of the thugs. The weapon discharged twice, but the bullets flew wild. He hurled the robber to the earth and pinned him there. As he did so, the revolver exploded again, but the bullet did not find its mark. When the other thug saw how the fight was going, he struck Hall over the head with the butt of his revolver, stunning him. Both bandits then fled, and made good their escape.

OFFICIALS SLAY WHOLE PIGGERY OF 140 ANIMALS

Loss to Farmer Runs Near $1,500, Part Borne by Government.

DISTRICT ALARMED.

Large Area Quarantined in Effort to Nip Disease Early.

HAMILTON, Ont. Nov. 3.—(CP)—Hog cholera, the dire menace to the welfare of all farming communities where such animals are raised, has broken out in Wentworth county, it was learned today. Inspectors from the Federal Department of Agriculture are in charge of the situation and whole districts have been quarantined, and hundreds of animals destroyed.

The trouble came to light yesterday when Harold G. Harper, whose piggery is near the Caledonia highway south of Hamilton reported his animals sickening. He had purchased a few hogs to add to his extensive herds of swine and it is believed that these newcomers brought the infection with them. The animals were slaughtered and examined and the inspectors pronounced the disease hog cholera.

The farm was immediately quarantined and placed in the charge of a group of government officials.

Barns were fumigated and 140 hogs taken out into the barnyard and shot. Their carcasses were thrown into a deep pit and covered with quick lime.

FARMERS ALARMED

Throughout the district, farmers are deeply worried, within a half mile of the Harper piggery are several of the largest in this district, including the Ontario hospital pens. A total of almost 2,000 hogs are kept in the immediate district. Mr. Harper's loss is estimated at about $15000 which is partly borne by the federal government.

A flock of gulls hovering over the area has caused much annoyance to farmers and inspectors alike. The birds have been settling in barnyards and pig pens, picking up Offal and flying away. It is feared that they will distribute the infection. Farmers are forbidden by law to shoot gulls but have been firing at them with blanks to scare them away.

TWO FLIERS ARE FATALLY BURNED

Were Going to Sprinkle Confetti From Their Planes Over Bridal Party.

WING COLLAPSED.

NOTTINGHAM, England, Nov 3 (AP)—Two Air Force fliers who set out to springle confetti from their plant over the country church where a friend was being married were burned to death to-day when their plane crashed.

En route to the scene of the wedding they were seen to pitch suddenly to the ground. Showers of confetti they had intended to embellish a wedding, shot into the air as the machine hit the earth and then burst into flames incinerating the occupants.

The two fliers were Frank Dalton and Philip Rook, members of the Nottingham Squadron of the Auxiliary Air Force. Observers said a wing of their machine, which was a private one, hired for the occasion, appeared to collapse while they were stunting.

RAILWAY CUTS TO BE REDUCED TO 10 PER CENT

Agreements Been Reached Between Both Lines and Employees.

SLIDING SCALE JAN. 1.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3 (CP) — A gradual reduction in pay cuts from 15 per cent to 10 per cent during the next few months was announced to-day at the conclusion of conferences between the railways and certain classes of employees.

Agreements have been reached between the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, the Railway Association of Canada and representatives of the Engineers, Firemen, Conductors, Trainmen and Yardmen, Railway and Commercial Telegraphers, Maintenance of Way employees, Federated Trades and Shop employees and Signal Maintainers of both railways, and representatives of Clerks, Freight Handlers and Station employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

"Existing wage agreement will continue until the end of the year," a joint statement said.

"Commencing Jan. 1, 1935, the general scale of compensation will be revised, so that the deductions from compensation calculated on existing basic rates of pay will be 12 per cent instead of 15 per cent, and on May 1 the general scale of compensation will again advance, reducing the total deduction to 10 per cent. Those who are now subject to a percentage of less than 15 per cent will receive a proportionate restoration.

Mary Is Bewildered About Press Reports

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 (AP)—No; Mary and Doug are not reconciled.

Miss Pickford seemed quite bewildered about reports to the contrary. Someone had chatted with her down at Kansas City, as her train from Hollywood passed through, and from the chat emerged a story of happy reconciliation with Douglas Fairbanks.

"Why," said the actress when she reached Chicago. "I only talked with one man there. He must be a good scenario writer."

Well, were they reconciled?

The answer is, "No."

Upon reading interpretations in the morning papers of his declaration yesterday for Governor Lehman and of remarks in his press conference at the White House, Mr. Roosevelt asked his secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre, to make it clear he was voting for Senator Copeland.

MERCHANTS GET FIRST HEARING AT BUYING PROBE

Wholesalers and Retailers Attack Chain Stores—Cut-throat Fish Prices.

DESTROY MARKETS.

Stevens Will Press For Another Cent Per Pound For Fishermen.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP)—The fishing industry, in all its ramifications, will be delved into further next week by the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying. For four days this week the fishing business has had the spotlight focussed on it. On Monday and Tuesday again, it will hold the centre of the stage.

Out of the week's evidence a picture of impoverished fishermen on the shores of the Canadian Atlantic, many on relief in some sections, has been portrayed by practical fishermen from the three Maritime provinces testifying before the commission. Falling prices since 1929 evidently is the chief reason for their plight. The majority have not enough money for repairs to their gear.

A number of suggestions have been made by the representatives of these men, including curtailment of the work of the three beam trawlers, regulations of marketing, establishment of a board which would maintain minimum prices of three cents per pound on haddock and a comparative increase for the other varieties of the product. The situation prompted Hon. H. H. Stevens, former chairman, to serve notice he would see if it would not be possible to get another one cent per pound for the fishermen out of the existing spread between producers' and consumers' prices.

Attack Chain Stores

Wholesale and retail merchants of Toronto and Montreal given their first hearing yesterday, attacked the chain stores. C. P. Perkins, Toronto, and Harry Marshall, Montreal, were on the stand.

Their evidence was featured with allegations that shipments of fish on consignment by small dealers found their way into the hands of chain stores, who sold this fish at cut-throat prices, bringing destruction to the market for regular shipments on orders.

"Fresh fillets" as marked on the box containers were sold as "loss leaders" at three pounds for 25 cents; but these fillets, the merchants said, were of the inferior kind composed of hake, pollock and cod, and not the haddock fillets which the consumer thought he was purchasing.

GLORIA'S LETTER READ IN COURT

Tells of Unhappiness While Travelling With Mother, Mrs. Vanderbilt.

ACCUSED DOUBTS WRITING.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The record of evidence in Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's court battle for her daughter Gloria held letters today written by the child at the age of 7 and expressing unhappiness over her life while travelling with her mother in Europe.

The letters was described by Justice John F. Carew, who has been hearing the evidence behind closed doors, as the outpourings of an unhappy child complaining to her grandmother. The letters were addressed to Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, mother of Mrs. Vanderbilt, who has already testified her daughter was not fit to bring up Gloria. Mrs. Vanderbilt seeks to regain custody of her daughter from Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the child's aunt.

Under cross-examination yesterday Mrs. Vanderbilt said she did not believe her daughter could have written the letters unless put to it by someone else and said some of the phrasing was too mature to be used by a child.

The trial will be resumed on Monday.

STOKEMEN FALL TO SUNDERLAND AND LOSE LEAD

Arsenal Gunners Tied With Winners for Top Place in First Division.

EVERTON BEATEN 2-0.

Bolton Wanderers Lead in Second Cut When They Lost to Brentford.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(C. P. Cable.)—Arsenal and Sunderland, each winning their engagements to-day, moved up into a deadlock for leadership of the first division of the English Football League. Stoke City, erstwhile leaders, were beaten 3-0 by Sunderland in the feature match of the day.

While Sunderland was trouncing the Potters on their own grounds, the Gunners were beating Everton by 2-0 at Highbury. The two elevens established a lead of a point over Stoke City. Manchester City, the cupholders, beat the Spurs 3-1 to go into fourth place along with Grimsby Town, the promoted club that picked up a point in a 2-2 tie at Blackburn.

Bolton Wanderers saw their lead over the second division shaved to a single game, as they lost 1-0 at Brentford while the joint second-placers, Manchester United and Blackpool were battling on the latter's grounds. The United won 2-1 to hold undisputed place.

Sheep-Killing Bears Raid Powassan Area

POWASSAN, Ont., Nov. 3.—(C.P.)—Bears in unusually large numbers are roving in the Golden Valley and Loring districts and killing numerous sheep, it was reported here to-day.

Eddie Bain of Loring, has killed two, both of them weighing about 300 pounds. Finding a sheep killed in his barn, Bain went after the bear. He got the animal the following night when it paid a return visit to the barn. He killed the second one on a hunting trip a few days later.

Bob Lawrence, also of Loring, killed a bear on his farm.

GERMANY BENT ON WAR BRITISH PAPER CLAIMS

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(C.P.-Havas)—Germany is bent on war, and Great Britain should withhold money from her, the Daily Express said today.

Germany only conceded the British a victory in recent commercial debt conversations in order to take advantage of the favorable impression made, the newspaper warned.

"Don't give financial assistance", the editorial said. "Germany will only use it for equipment for new wars. She is resolved on war. She means to overthrow the treaties by force of arms.

"In Germany now all who raise their voices against war are liable to death by shooting. That is the meaning of the firing squad executions in Berlin, not enemies of state but enemies of war are slain.

"Germany means war. Have nothing to do with her."

More than 5000 farms in England are now using electricity extensively.

POLICE ARE SENT TO PULP CAMP TO PROBE FIGHT

Railway Names Seven Specials After Workers Are Chased From Cutting.

ONE BADLY BATTERED.

Strikers Rumored Shooting Large Quantities of Moose, Partridge.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP)—Provincial Constables Carmichael and Taylor, stationed here, left by train last night to investigate a disturbance at Suuronen's pulpwood camp at Mile 155 on the Algoma Central Railway.

This morning Sergeant Bert Knight and three Provincial constables left by train for camps, while more provincial men are expected to reach Sault to-day and proceed to the camp.

The Algoma Central Railway has sent special railway constables to Hawk Junction and seven other specials have been sworn in by Judge Stone under the County Constable Act, and will be despatched later.

No further word has come from Suuronen's camp, where yesterday a force of pickets twice as large as the number of men employed, drove those at work from the camp.

The man battered in the riot at Suuronen's camp at Mile 155 yesterday and reported missing last night, was warned by pickets to keep moving when he had walked 12 miles from the camp to Hawk Junction, so he walked a further 12 miles to Goudreau. His face was badly puffed about the eys. He will be brought on the train to Hawk Junction to-day, Dr. J. E. Gimby reported by long distance.

Reports from Hawk are that the strikers, armed with 32's and other rifles are shooting great quantities of partridge and moose.

LEGION PLANNING ITS OWN SERVICE

Local Branch Carry Out Service on Remembrance Day Independently of Churches.

CURTAIL BAND MUSIC.

Athough in some Canadian communities, the Remembrance Day ceremonies of the Canadian Legion on the morning of Sunday, November 11, will be of a religious nature combined with the regular church services of the communities, ceremonies in Peterborough will be carried out independantly of the church. Legion officials said to-day. Churches will be urged, however, to observe a two-minute silence at 11 a.m.

The Legion ceremonies will be much the same as in other years beyond the fact that the playing of the band will be curtailed in order that no interference in church services in the area will be caused. The Legion parade will form at 10 a.m. at the Legion hall and a wreath will be laid on the cenotaph. Weather permitting, the men will march to Confederation Square and lay a wreath on the monument. Two minutes of silence at 11 a.m. will be followed by a march to the Armouries.

Addresses by Captain Rev. P. Costello, branch chaplain, Major J. T. Belford, His Worship Mayor Denne, and the president of the local branch of the Legion, Robert Haddow, will form the principal part of the program in the Armouries. Hymns, in which the public will be invited to join, will be sung, with the accompaniment of the Peterborough Rangers Band. Buglers will sound the Last Post as the flag is lowered and then the Reveille before the rendering of the National Anthem brings the service to a close.

Ralph D. Wright, president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, states that no common action on the part of the churches has been considered but that the churches will likely observe the two minute silence at 11 a.m. It will be a matter for each church to decide upon, he said.

Lao-Tse was an ancient Chinese sage, reputed founder of the philosophy known as Taoism.

Job Waiting

WARSAW, Nov. 3 (CP) — Anyone with experience in naming railroad cars or ice cream sundaes might find a job in Poland, where identifications are needed for 42,000 farming communities. The names, once chosen, will be permanent. Five years ago 142,000 of these projects sprung up and about two-thirds of them were named. It is for the others the Government now seeks names.

RUMOR HANSON HAS ACCEPTED CABINET POST

Ottawa Report Believed Correct, Though No Official Comment Made.

STEVENS' PORTFOLIO.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—(C.P.)—R. B. Hanson, Conservative Member of Parliament for York-Sunbury, has accepted the invitation of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to enter his Cabinet, according to a report today. Although official comment could not be secured it was believed the report was correct.

Mr. Hanson had been offered a portfolio, presumably that of Trade and Commerce vacated by the resignation of Hon. H. H. Stevens, and left Ottawa two days ago to discuss the proposition with his family and business associates in Fredericton. When official announcement of the appointment is made it is expected the government will announce other cabinet changes.

Appointment of Mr. Hanson would no doubt precipitate the retirement of Hon. Murray MacLaren, Minister of Pensions and National Health, and his appointment as Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick.

28th French Riot Victim Succumbs

PARIS, Nov. 3.—(A.P.)—A prince walked behind a butcher boy today at the funeral of 16 year old Lucien Gabriel, meat shop assistant, who died after nine months in a hospital of wounds received in the bloody riots of Feb. 6.

The prince was Joachim Napoleon Michel, Prince of Ponte Corbo and head of the House of Murat. Along with an assemblage of veterans' "shock troops," he followed the butcher boy's bier.

Gabriel was the 26th to die of wounds suffered in the February riots. He had a bullet in his spine.

Woman Gets 2 Weeks For Drunken Driving

CHATHAM, Ont., Nov. 3.—(C.P.)—Mrs. Hannah Noah, an Indian woman who resides near Blenheim, was this morning sentenced to serve two weeks in jail on a charge of driving a motor car while intoxicated. Information received by the police indicates that the woman crashed her car into the rear of a wagon in charge of Murray McDonald of Harwich who was returning home after delivering beets to the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company factory here. John Noah, husband of the woman, was a passenger in the car.

INSULL DENIES DIVIDEND WAS BAIT FOR INVESTORS

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 (AP)—Samuel Insull took the witness stand today for his third day of testimony in the Insull Mail Fraud case.

Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter, Assistant United States Attorney General, resumed cross examination of the deposed public utility magnate.

Insull denied that the Corporation Securities Company issued its first dividend as "bait" for investors, scolding Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter for "questions with inferences."

Insull professed not to be able to recall much about the dividend in question, issued just before the Corporation Securities Company put its common stock out in a nation-wide sales campaign in 1930.

HUSBAND, WIFE TWO CHILDREN FALL IN SMOKE

Child is Found Clasped in Arms of Each Parent By Firemen.

INQUEST ORDERED.

Fatal Blaze is Blamed on Spontaneous Combustion in Oily Rags in Cellar.

HULL, Que. Nov. 3.— (CP)—Taking the lives of a family of four and resulting in injuries to a Hull police constable, fire early today swept La Caisse Populaire of Notre Dame parish. The fire was attributed to an explosion in the basement of the two-storey building.

The dead:

Jean Campeau, 30, a barber.

Mrs. Jean Campeau, 35.

Denise Campeau, aged 16 months.

Andre Campeau, aged 4 months.

Injured:

Constable Joseph Sanscartier.

Heroism and tragedy went hand in hand as the mother and father, each with a child in their arms, fought desperately to escape from their smoke filled apartment in the building.

When found, the father, with Andre in his arms, was said to have been close to the front window while the mother, clutching the other child, was near a side window in the hall just back of the front room.

The blaze is believed to have been due to spontaneous combustion in a box of oily rags in the basement. At first it was thought that the furnace exploded, but Deputy Fire Chief A. Audette, after an investigation, said he was convinced the oily rags were the cause. He found the rag box burned but the furnace in good condition. A loud explosion was heard as the fire started and awakened neighbors who turned in an alarm.

The fire was discovered by Roland Gadbois. Calls for help and the noise of breaking glass awoke him and pulling on his trousers he rushed to the street and turned in a fire alarm.

His father George Gadbois, was also aroused and running out noticed the fire and broke in the door of the Campeau home in an attempt at rescue but was driven back by the flames. Both father and son were barefooted and clad in only scantiest of garments when they ran into the streets to turn in an alarm.

Flames Foil Firemen

The firemen on arrival immediately ran up ladders to the upstairs window and breaking them in attempt to enter to locate the occupants. The flames drove them back, Roland Gadbois said, but they eventually made their way in through the windows protected by streams from hose lines and brought out the bodies. None of the bodies showed evidence of serious burns and it appeared as if death had been due to asphyxiation.

According to another report the body of Mr. Campeau was discovered by the firemen lying in one of the front upstairs rooms beside the tiny crib containing the body of Baby Denise. Apparently Mr. Campeau had rushed to the crib in a vain effort to save the life of his child.

Escape Cut Off

Mrs. Campeau's body, according to this version, was found lying in the top hallway of the building

BROMLEY FACES SERIOUS COUNTS MAYOR STATES

Police Commission Ignorant of Charges Preferred Says Councillor.

SURPRISE TO OFFICER.

Situation to be Aired at Monday's Council Session—Accused Ex-Peterboro Man.

SMITH FALLS, Nov. 3. — (Special) — G. C. Bromley, chief constable here since July 15, 1933, and formerly chief of Campbellford and previously member of the Peterborough police force, was suspended yesterday because of alleged gross negligence of duty from his post on orders issued by Mayor J. J. Marsh.

"In view of the fact that several serious charges have been laid against you, you are herewith suspended from duty until these and other charges are thoroughly investigated," states the mayor in his letter of suspension, copies of which were forwarded to the chairman of the police committee and the town clerk.

Although the nature of the charges against Chief Bromley was not divulged yesterday by Mayor Marsh, he promised that the matter would be fully aired at the meeting of the Town Council on Monday night.

Councillor M. L. Perry, chairman of the Police Committee, stated that he was completely in the dark concerning the mayor's action. He said, "I have not the faintest idea as to what the charges mentioned by the mayor are. As far as the Police Committee is concerned we were not consulted in the matter." He said he had appointed Sergeant J. Lees as acting chief, pending the result of the investigation.

In affirming the news that he had been suspended from duty, Chief Bromley stated, "The action of the mayor came as a great surprise to me I have not the faintest idea as to what the nature of the charges he mentio' can be."

Bromley joined the Peterborough force after the war and served here until 1923 when he went to Oshawa with the C.N.R. police. Later he was a constable in Galt, and then was chief in Campbellford for several years before accepting the position in Smith Falls.

BANK REFUSES FURTHER CREDIT TO CALGARY CITY

CALGARY, Nov. 3 (CP)—The bank has refused to extend further credit and in consequence the city will default its interest payments due in December unless money can be raised to carry on to the end of the year, it was announced to-day at the close of a lengthy council meeting at which all recommendations of Mayor Andrew Davison submitted to the Finance Committee last Wednesday were approved.

The city's obligations for December total $141,000 comprising $131,000 in debentures interest and $10,000 in bank interest.

The council also instructed the city solicitor to make a report on procedure in placing the affairs of the city before the Alberta Board of Public Utilities for their advice.

Cats Unwelcome

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Nov. 3 (CP)—There will be no "mewing" from under the floor during the services at the Immanuel Congregational Church here tomorrow.

A black cat, imprisoned somehow for two weeks between the first floor and the basement, was freed yesterday when the Rev. H. E. Muellen removed part of the flooring. A saucer of milk was placed at the opening, and the animal came out of hiding.

RELIEF LINE-UP TO BE SHELVED IN BORDER CITIES

Croll Plans Body of Home Visitors to Deliver Cash or Vouchers.

AVOID HUMILIATION.

Means Closer Contact With People—Reduce Cost of Administration.

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (C.P.)—Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Public Welfare and Municipal Affairs, said yesterday that he anticipated a wide extention of a plan to be instituted in the border cities area by which relief would be given in the homes and not at relief offices.

"The humiliation and discomfort of standing in line at the welfare office, which in my opinion, is one of the most damnable defects in the administration of relief," the minister said, "will be ended forever in this district in the next couple of weeks."

Such a system might be put into effect in all districts where the government is paying 100 per cent relief costs, said Mr. Croll, who added his department is giving the practice further consideration.

"The most important feature of the new setup," he said, "will be the formation of a body of home visitors,no one for whom will have more than 150 families to care for. The home visitor will deal with applications for relief, will take the relief vouchers or cash to the home, and will be continuously in contact with the people in her group." Cost of administration also might be reduced.

In Defence Of Motherhood

The finely chiseled character study here is that of Mrs. Reginald (Gloria Morgan) Vanderbilt, who despite her distinguished ancestry, stepped out of the pages of Mayfair's most select roster to represent the rights of all the mothers of the world. She took the stand, pale and nervous, in supreme court, to fight with the instincts handed down from primordial times . . . for the custody of her child, Gloria, who is described most often as "the old girl". Behind closed doors in Justice F. Carew's court she collapsed on the stand, refuting the statements of peeking former servants who told of gay parties in Paris. Mrs. Vanderbilt's action was brought against Mr. Harry Payne Whitney, who now has possession of the child.

VEGETABLES ARE WELCOME GIFT DROUGHT SASKATCHEWAN AREA

Teacher Acknowledges Car Sent From Havelock, Norwood and Peterboro.

TELLS OF CONDITIONS.

"If you had planted your garden for four or five years in succession and seen it buried each year in drifting sand, dried out, burned by the sun, eaten by grasshoppers, attacked by cutworms and killed by frost, you would understand what we feel like when we get fresh vegetables. We had no crop this year—not even feed for our cattle. Many families have pulled up stakes and gone north. Nearly all the livestock, with the exception of that actually needed, has been shipped to Winnipeg."

The above is an excerpt from a letter received in Norwood this week from a school teacher in Lake Alma, Saskatchewan. The letter was written to two of the contributors to express the thanks of farmers in the drought stricken area around Lake Alma for the carload of emergency provisions filled in Norwood, Havelock and Peterborough recently and sent West.

"I wanted to let you know how much your gift and others were appreciated," the letter reads. "If you could only see our little village as it was yesterday! On Tuesday, the 24th., the carload of vegetables and fruit arrived. Of course none could be distributed then. But very early Wednesday morning the farmers began to drive in. The councillors that are here, and a few of the men in town, including my Dad, worked all day in the car trying to give things out fairly and see that everyone got something.

Eager For Apples

"There were only a few bags of apples besides yours and they were divided up into smaller portions and given out as long as they lasted. If there had been any time, your box would have been taken to the school and then about fifty-children would have enjoyed them. Nevertheless I can assure you that although we ourselves got none, your apples will be fully appreciated wherever they go.

"Perhaps you have never lived in a drought area. I hope you never will. Maybe if I sketched conditions here you could realize better what this offering has meant."

Telling of the terrific difficulties with which they were faced even in trying to raise a few things in their garden, the teacher states: "The few things that managed to survive in our own garden this year were killed by frost in mid-July. The only fresh vegetablec we had this summer were at a home in Yorkton where my brother took us during his holidays and again down in Wisconsin, U.S.A., where my Dad and I drove to see my Grandad who had been very ill."

Feed Lacking

Feed for what livestock the farmers are keeping is entirely lacking, the letter reveals. "All the men and young men not needed in the community and some of our councillors were sent up to Melfort some time ago to bale straw and hay for feed. That comes in every week or so.

"I, myself, am a young teacher out of work, and have to stay at home with Dad and Mother However, I am truly thankful I have a home where I am welcome to stay.

"Again I'd like to say how we appreciate your goodness and kindness to complete strangers who are in need. I think it shows the kind of people who sent them, loving Christian families who will some day receive their reward—'For even as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto Me'."

HALF HOLIDAY HOURS ARE SET

Campbellford Merchants Decide to Have Thursday Open Night For Town Stores.

WEDNESDAY HOLIDAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—About forty merchants and business men of the town assembled at the Public Library on Friday night for the purpose of considering the changing of the half-holiday during the summer months. A. J. Meyers acted as chairman and J. A. Irwin as secretary. A motion by W. S. Wiggins, seconded by W. J. Armstrong, "That Wednesday instead of Thursday be the weekly half-holiday," was carried unanimously, it being the logical day in view of the fact that nearly all the adjoining towns observed that day. A second motion by W. S. Wiggins and E. C Dolman that the half-holiday would be in force from May 1st to Nov. 1 was carried.

A committee composed of Messrs. W. J. Armstrong, J. P. Archer, J. A. Anderson, with A. J. Meyers as chairman, was appointed to present petition to the council at the next regular meeting, and have the necessary action taken. The same committee to interview managers of local banks regarding keeping the banks open on Saturday afternoons, and taking Wednesday for their half-holiday. Merchants not present at the meeting will be asked to affix their signatures to the resolutions passed.

Sweet Reward

NORTH EGREMONT, Mass., Nov. 3.—(C.P.)—After 10 years, a swarm of bees has been ousted from its home in the Baptist church here. The bees made their home under the clapboards and have never been molested until recently when the church leaders decided to remove them. Experts, after considerable work, finally complete the removal of the bees and got, as a reward, 100 pounds of honey.

TORONTO CHEESE.

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (C.P.)—The Toronto wholesale cheese market was unchanged to-day with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 9¾c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices: New large, 11¼c; twins, 11½c; triplets, 11¾c. Old, large, 17c; twins, 17¼c; triplets, 17½c. Medium, large, 15c; twins, 15¼c; triplets, 15½c.

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point: Wheat, 90c to 92c; oats, 30c to 33c; barley, 43c to 44c; corn, 75c to 76c; rye 45c to 47c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Prices were generally steady on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday.

On the egg market graded shipments in carlots or less brought 42c to 43c a dozen for A-large, 39c to 40c for A-medium, 34c to 35c for A-pullets, 22c to 23c for B, and 20c for C. Receipts totalled 1,790 cases.

Fresh No. 1 butter was again quoted at 19½c to 19¾c a pound in carlots or less. Small lots sold at 20½c a pound for solids, and 21c to 21¼c for prints. Arrivals were 450 boxes.

Ontario colored cheese brought 10c to 10¼c a pound, while No. 1 Quebec cheese was 9¾c a pound, both unchanged from Thursday's prices. Receipts were 4,336 boxes.

No price changes occurred on the potato market. Quebec potatoes were quoted at 35c to 40c; New Brunswick Mountains were 40c to 45c and Prince Edward Island Mountains sold at 45c to 50c, prices in each case being per 80-lb. bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Reports of likelihood Argentina would announce minimum prices for her new wheat crop did much yesterday to bring about material upturns of wheat values here.

Abnormal scantiness of movement of wheat from rural sources in the United States contributed to market strength, causing December contracts in Chicago to go 2⅝c over May the widest difference yet this season. Chicago December delivery of wheat rose to within a fraction of $1 a bushel.

Wheat closed firm at nearly the day's top level, ¾c to 1⅝c over Thursday's finish, May 96⅞c to 97c corn ¾c to ⅞c up, May 77⅜c to 78c, oats ⅜c to 1⅛c advanced, and provisions varying from 2c decline to 50c gain.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, November 3. — Tide of bullishness rolled over the Winnipeg Grain Exchange wheat pit yesterday, carrying wheat prices at the high points to nearly 4 cents above the minimum price levels. Values closed with net gains of 1⅝ cents, December at 78¼c, and May 83c.

Coupled with strength by all outside markets was the effect of export sales of Canadian wheat 500,000 bushels—and some short coverings. Liverpool gained ¾d, Buenos Aires 1⅝c, and Chicago 1⅝c, as the December option at the high point, 78¾c, was 3¾c over the "pegged" price of 75c.

Crop reports from Argentina, where crops were said to be entering the critical period of growth, were less reassuring and from Australia it was reported widespread grasshopper damage had been wrought. Australian estimates indicated a crop of 136 000 000 bushels.

Support entered the market from several sources, all offerings being easily absorbed. It was unnecessary for the Government agency to absorb hedging, all elevator sales being taken up in the pit. Cash grains spreads closed a cent better, but coarse grain futures were quiet.

JAIL DELIVERIES ARE BLAMED ON SPOILS SYSTEM

Indiana Mayor Admits 8 of His Special Guards Armed With Wooden Guns.

"WORKED FOR DILLINGER."

Officials Enlarge Probe Into Notorious Gunman's Crown Point Escape.

CROWN POINT, Ind., Nov. 3.—(AP)—The wooden gun of John Dillinger assumed an important political position today, with repercussions of the desperado's jail escape sounding in the closing stages of Indiana's election campaign.

Republican orators charged that introduction of the spoils system by the Democratic state administration in penal management was responsible for prison deliveries.

The Republican mayor of Crown Point, Vincent Youkey, assigned 25 special officers to guard citizens against "kidnapping by state troopers." Eight of the guards carried shiny wooden pistols.

"They worked once before down here," said the mayor, "and I suppose they would again."

The United States government took full charge of the investigation of Dillinger's escape, after a secret conference in Chicago between District Attorney James R. Fleming and Assistant Attorney General J. Edward Barce.

Results to Silence Critics

It was Barce who was active in the state inquiry, ordered by the Democratic Governor, Paul V. McNutt. The results of the investigation, McNutt predicted, would silence the critics of his administration's jail and prison policies.

A man, whose identity was not divulged, was held by Indiana authorities, and Governor McNutt said he had made a confession, involving two other men.

The Department of justice disclosed in Washington that persons now under arrest in connection with Dillinger's activities would be investigated for possible connections with the Dillinger escape plot.

Eight Lake county residents, seized during the week as witnesses and spirited to Indianapolis, were released.

Reports that $3,900 was paid to "spring a notorious gunman," went unconfirmed, and Fleming said he had no information that three parties shared the money. Barce said recenty that $1,800 was paid by Dillinger for his escape, and that $3,500, which was never paid, had been promised.

Cheese Notes

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3. (Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Cheese offered for grading at Campbellford last week were as follows: Brickley 13, Kimberley 42, Crow Bay 36, Brae 27, Spring Valley 18, Burnley 41, I.X.L. 24, Trent Bridge 38, Stanwood 35, Woodland 19, Trent Valley 66, Norham 28, New Model 17, Beaver 14, Prince of Wales 37, Rylstone 54; total, 509 boxes.

Fred Peister, who for a number of years has owned and operated the Codrington cheese factory, will at the close of this season, retire from the cheese making business and take up farming near Wooler. Mr. Peister has been one of Northumberland's most successful cheese makers, being in the 100 per cent. class for the past four years. This factory will be in charge of Fred Jones next season. Mr. Jones is well and favorably nown in this district.

Roseneath factory closed this week with a season of 100 per cent. first grade cheese to report.

Mountain View Cheese Company in Prince Edward County has install a complete butter equipment and expect to operate in future as a co-operative creamery.

Leslie Shillinglaw of the Empire Cheese and Butter Company has been engaged a cheesemaker for another season.

Fine full pasture has resulted in a better than usual October make of cheese, reports received thus far show the October make to be very little short of September's total.

Cheese prices recovered last week considerably, selling in Belleville at 9¾ cents per pound on Saturday's board.

GERMAN GROUPS FIGHT PAGANISM

Catholics Join Protestants Against Common Enemy Led by Rosenberg.

MUELLER EASES RULE.

(By A. D. Stefferud)

BERLIN, Nov. 3 (AP)—Protestants joined Catholics in a campaign against what they called their common enemy, Dr. Alfred Rosenberg's Pagan Faith movement.

"Our next enemy is Rosenberg," Protestants were told by Rev. Martin Miemoeller, head of the Pastors' Emergency Federation which with other opposition groups has just won a victory over Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller and Nazi Christians.

All priests in the Berlin diocese received a book of "Studies on Rosenberg's book, 'The Myth of the 20th Century'," which has become a Nazi textbook of philosophy. Rosenberg a the party's philosophic dictator.

Bishop Dares of the diocese said the book "carried deep disquietude into believing Christian folk in Germany and is threatening the very foundations of Christian life and faith, even among youth."

Protestant circles said Dr. Christian Kinder, a Protestant leader, is slated to succeed Dr. August Jaeger, who recently resigned under heavy opposition as Nazi Commission for Protestant Church in Prussia. Kinder is reported to have drafted a law for reorganization of the Protestant Church.

A denial by Reichsbishop Mueller of rumors that he had resigned made it clear he hopes to effect a compromise in Protestant ranks.

He announced a new church code would be promulgated, allowing congregations increased latitude in managing their affairs, in contrast to his recent dictatorial policies.

WHOLE VILLAGE TO BE DESERTED FOR GRAND BLAST

Officials Take No Chances on 100 Ton Shot of Dynamite at Mine.

BIGGEST IN B.C. HISTORY.

ANYOX, B. C., Nov. 3. —(CP)— The 1,000 people who live in the village of Hidden Creek, two miles east of here, have orders to evacuate their homes. The order says "temporarily evacuate," but just whether their homes will still be in the same place after a 100-ton dynamite blast in the old Hidden Creek mine is problematical.

The blast, which experts say will be the biggest in the history of North American mining operations is for the purpose of cleaning up the old workings. The previous record explosion was the setting off of 50 tons of dynamite in a Colorado mine a few years ago.

Exact date for the discharge has not been set but it wi ll be some time late this month. The miners will be given plenty of warning and everybody—old and young—will be moved out of the village. If nothing goes wrong they will be able to watch the roll of the earth from some safe vantage point.

When arrangements are complete and all dynamite in place, a switch will be thrown at Anyox touching off the charge. In order that parts of the mine still in use will not be closed by the blast, a new entrance tunnel has been built far enough away to insure its safety.

After the explosion, workings of the mine will be resumed and its varied ores brought out at much less expense than at present.

Few Minutes Eases Neuritis Pains Now!

DISCOVERY BRINGING QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN TO MILLIONS

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Demand and get the method doctors prescribe—Aspirin.

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH — An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

II. Peter 3: 18—"But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

Sabbath Message For The Shut-Ins

WHAT ARE PRAYERS FOR?

By RABBI ABRAHAM FINE of Hebrew Synagogue.

Psalm 20, Book of David: "The Lord answer thee in the day of trouble; the name of the God of Jacob set thee up on high; send thee help from the sanctuary; and uphold thee out of Zion."

THE big philosophers and poets do not need any set prayers or any set time for prayers because their whole life is a spiritual one. The philosopher finds a philosophical answer to the problem of life. He does not become disappointed at a big catastrophe. He finds comfort in his deep philosophy. If for him one world becomes destroyed, his brilliant mind can create for him a new world. Just so it is with a great poet. With his deep feelings he can put himself on a higher plane than our earthly existence and can allow his spirit to float in a higher and more beautiful world. But the ordinary mortal has also a spirit which demands spiritual food to awaken in his human body a longing to separate himself from his daily material existence, and become transported to a higher spiritual world. The prayers in set times are the daily food which strengthens his spirit so that it may not become dormant and so that he should not be buried in a rough materialism. When an ordinary mortal sees before him approaching danger and he becomes frightened he feels weak and helpless. He then wishes to have someone to confide in. He finds comfort then in his prayers to God. He becomes stronger, more courageous and can continue his battle for existence, and it often happens that there awakens in a person his conscience. He is sorry about his bad conduct. Then he needs someone to confess to and to whom he can promise to improve, and all that he finds in prayers.

The Prayers in Ancient Days.

History proves that the prayers of the ancients were made as a result of fear. They asked their many Gods not to do harm to them, but the prayers which we find in the Bible are turned to the only God, and they do not express feelings of fear, but feelings of faith and confidence in the righteousness of God. They pray to God not only for themselves or their brothers but request righteousness from God for all the nations of the world. Our ancestor Abraham prayed to God for the people of Sodom and not as a weak one prays to a strong one, but as a demand for righteousness. Genesis, chapter 18, 23:25, "And Abraham drew near and said, 'Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked?' Far be it from thee to be like this thing to slay the righteous with the wicked and the righteous and the wicked shall be alike. Shall the Judge of all the earth not do justice?"

King Solomon when he built the temple prayed to God not for himself and his people but he prayed that God should hear also the prayers of other nations that pray to to Him. (I. Kings, chapter 8: 41 and 43.)

The greatest assemblage of prayers are found in the Book of Psalms and the most of them come from our King poet, David. The prayers of the Book of David are rich in thoughts of divinity and morality, and are also poetically written. Therefore, all the nations of the world understood the value of the Book of David and have taken it in as a part of their prayers.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

MANKIND may be divided between those who know and those who do not know. In other words, gnostics, those who possess the Wisdom, and agnostics. It may be objected by the superficial thinker that, in matters of the soul, there is no way by which blind faith may be replaced by certain knowledge. Hence the superficial thinker is apt to place undue emphasis upon blindly believing, and often considers it impious, or worse, to even enquire into the basis of such believing. This is a terrible misuse of the word "faith" as such blind faith rests only upon hearsay and tradition, and has no basis within the believer's experience. True faith, on the other hand, is best defined as certain expectation based on knowledge. It makes no difference if that knowledge is of the outer mind, objective, or if it is of the inner man, intuitional; such faith is indeed based upon the rock of truth and all the powers of doubt and negation cannot prevail against it.

If the superficial thinker were indeed right, then all the Scriptures of the world, including our own Christian Bible, all the experiences of saint and mystic, down through all the ages to the present day, are but chimeras of imagination, illusive and deceiving. There is no escape from the dilemma. Either these things were and are so, or they are not and never were so. These men and women of all races and of all creeds boldly lifted up their very beings into attunement with the Most High. And, as if to prove the existence of law and order in all states of being, as if to demonstrate that fancy and imagination played no part, their experiences were, and still are, PRACTICALLY THE SAME.

To say that the age of miracles is past is tantamount to a denial of law and order in the universe, to make of God a capricious being instead of seeing Him as the Author of all law. If men walked and talked with God in days gone by, then it is reasonable to assume that, if man FULFILS THE CONDITIONS, he can to-day commune with his Maker. God has not changed, the conditions have not altered, therefore the trouble must lie in man, himself. And that is true, because man to-day can, if he will, still "know" his God and walk with Him in peace and happiness.

The truth of being is NOT a thing that was true in past ages and is now no longer true, it is a fundamental truth, a truth of God, and hence, it always was and ever will be true; for in Him there is no change nor shadow of turning.—Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

Development of Grace in the Soul

(By Dean O'Sullivan).

SO far, I have dwelt only on the natural life and powers of the soul. These are the foundation upon which is built up its supernatural life which is sanctifying grace. The knowledge that we have acquired of the nature of this foundation should aid us to have a better understanding of the operation of that grace bestowed through prayer and the sacraments. The best way, it seems to me, to have a clear conception of this matter would be to trace the development of grace in an individual soul, from the moment of its creation until its exit from this world.

Our first parent, Adam, entered upon his existence under more favorable auspices than has any member of his posterity, "our tainted nature's solitary boast," the Mother of God excepted. He received a soul unimpaired in its natural powers, and after his creation he was elevated to the supernatural state by the infusion of sanctifying grace and by the bestowal of all those gifts and privileges, including freedom from death, that are associated with original justice and innocence. When he sinned he lost these gifts and graces, not only for himself, but for his posterity. After the sin of disobedience, which in his case was a mortal sin, was forgiven him, he was restored to the state of grace through the foreseen merits of Christ, but his intellect remained darkened and his will weakened. His happiness was marred by the revolt of the lower passions of the soul against its higher powers, by the forces of nature warring against him, and by having to suffer the pains of death and all the infirmities that lead to it.

Now, take the case of the individual child of Adam. Like his first parents, he has received a soul made to the image of the Trinity with an intuitive knowledge of the first principles of right and wrong, as regards the natural law, stamped upon it. He never attains however, to the state of original justice and innocence; for the moment the soul is united to the body, thus forming a new individual, that individual becomes subject to original sin. That is, he is deprived of that sanctifying grace which would have been his inheritance if Adam had not sinned. In addition to this he suffers the positive injury of darkness in his understanding and weakness in his will. The soul of the unbaptized child is very much in the same condition in which Adam's was after his fall and before he was forgiven. But Baptism brings to the child a greater abundance of grace than repentance brought to Adam; for grace is much more lavishly bestowed in the new dispensation than it was in the old. Baptism restores to the child his lost inheritance, opens to him the gates of heaven, establishes peace between him and his Creator and makes him a temple of the Holy Ghost, Who elevates him to the supernatural state by the infusion of sanctifying grace and by implanting in his soul the germs of the virtues of faith, hope and charity which will begin to operate when reason dawns and the child becomes responsible for his human acts, that is, acts performed with the concurrence of the intellect and the will.

From this we see that the young Christian starts out upon the term of his probation—that is, from the dawn of reason until death—with a soul turned towards God by sanctifying grace and the infused theological virtues of faith, hope and charity. He possesses, moreover, a conscience, a heavenly mentor, a voice of the Divinity that stirs within him and which directs him to act in accordance with those primary principles of the natural law, which God has stamped upon the fleshy tables of his heart. On the other hand, he is attracted in the opposite direction by his rebellious passions and the temptations of the evil one. It is the purpose of the sacraments and the other means of grace, to give light to his intelligence and strength to his will that the tree of his life may ever turn heavenward. Just as the natural powers of man must be nourished, healed, strengthened and enlightened, so his spiritual life must have its nourishment, its medicine, its envigorment and its illumination. For example, four of the seven gifts of the Holy Ghost—wisdom, understanding, counsel and knowledge—enlighten the intellect that it may realize the value and the beauty of those things which make for the soul's peace; while the other three—fortitude, piety and fear of the Lord—strengthen the will and help to refine the emotions that we may act with uprightness, energy, prudence and perseverance.

As the years go by, repealed acts of virtue performed under the impulse of grace, help the man or woman to acquire habits of virtue or a facility in the performance of good. Thus the intellect and the will, under the influence of grace direct and rule over the senses and the emotions until the culminating grace puts in its place, as it were, the key stone of the spiritual edifice, and the redeemed and sanctified soul joins that host which we honor on All Saints Day.

Next week, I will discuss the soul's life beyond the tomb.

Your Problems

Religious and Social Questions Answered By DR. WYLIE CLARK

Is it true that we have reached the point where man is just a machine in control of other machines?—D. T.

We must not forget that man made the other machines and they are set up and run according to the will of man.

Dr. Wylie Clark

It is true that the routine of man's life may become very machine-like and workers, as to time, and what they do are controlled by rules, which must be kept, all of which forces the workers into machine activity. Behind all this there is the fact that man can stop and start the machine when he likes.

When prayer is based on faith, what do we believe to give us confidence?—N. C.

We should believe that God will act wisely, that He will do with the prayer what will be best for us and our part in the Kingdom of Heaven. In order that this may come about our prayers may be entirely set aside and the very reverse granted to us.

This willingness to accept the will of God is the assurance that prayer will be answered in the best way.

In our attempts to be broad-minded have we not become silly and lost our sense of conviction?—A. M.

Broadmindedness is apt to become no-mindedness, that is we have no convictions about anything. We agree with everybody and everything. This is being nonentities both useless and harmless.

Real broadmindedness is to be ourselves with our own knowledge and ideas, but granting its right for all others to have the same, and also agreeing that they might be right and we ourselves be wrong.

To claim that we are always right prevents us from looking fairly at any uestion.

What is meant by the saying, "He that hath two coats let him impart to him that hath none?"—T. C.

It simply means sharing with those who are in need as if they were our own blood relations. During the years of depression we have been sharing with many who have been unfortunate, but few of us have got to the high standard of the two coats. Many of us who had half a dozen coats or more gave the oldest one we had.

I heard of no one who sent the new suit and continued to wear the old one.

It is that part of the river just north of the Sea of Galilee. Here the bed is stony and there are high cliffs of basalt through which the water rushes almost in continuous rapids.

Is it true that by helping others to bear their burdens we ease our own?—S.R.

Yes, in two ways. When we get interested in the troubles of others, we are apt to forget our own, and when we see the loads others are carrying, we discover that our own are not nearly so heavy as we thought they were.

This is proved by experience.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Luke 2:42-52; II Peter 1:5-8.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Jesus' parents regularly attended the Passover and other feasts in the temple at Jerusalem and when Jesus was twelve years old he accompanied them. At the close of the week they returned to Nazareth, but Jesus tarried to question the teachers. Here Joseph and Mary found him.

He said to them, "How is it that ye sought me? Wist ye not that I must be in my Father's house?" Nothing in Jerusalem so interested him as the things he could learn here. But he cheerfully returned to Nazareth and grew to manhood obediently serving God in his home.

Jesus often likened the Christian's growth to that of seed and grain: "First the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear." He also grew mentally, physically, spiritually and socially: "in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man".

Peter wrote of the Christian life as a process of adding rather than subtracting, saying, "Adding on your part all diligence in your faith supplies virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness love of the brethren and love". (GOLDEN TEXT—II Peter 3.18)

ADHERES TO FIVE-YEAR PLAN.

It is to be imagined that a great many people will be surprised as well as disappointed by the announcement that Premier Hepburn proposes to adhere to the five-year legislative term as put into force by ex-Premier Henry.

Much was heard about this matter during the election campaign, and the impression most certainly was created that if Mr. Hepburn were given the responsibility of government he would see to it that the term would be reduced to its former four-year duration.

It is true, of course, that the campaign attacks largely centred upon the fact that the former Government had no right to lengthen the life of the Legislature without first consulting the people—but associated with that condemnation was the idea that a change in Government would see a return to the former four-year rule.

Under the circumstances the present statement of Premier Hepburn that he has no intention of reverting to the old plan is an unexpected development.

There are large numbers of electors who feel that four years is long enough for the Legislature; in fact, as the Border Cities Star points out, there are many who adhere to the idea that the electors should be consulted every three years in provincial politics, with an appeal to the people every four years on federal questions. It is possible for a Government to be thoroughly discredited in a comparatively short time, and five-year terms strike most people as decidedly too long, either in the provincial or the federal arena.

A RECORD PERFORMANCE.

While their performance will not yield them any monetary rewards, the British fliers, Cathcart Jones and Ken. Waller, who finished fourth in the London-to-Melbourne race, have just completed a very nice job of flying by making the return journey from Australia to England in record time.

They covered the distance from Port Darwin in the north of Australia to England in exactly 5 days, 15 hours, 54 minutes, almost three days ahead of the best previous mark for the hop, and they completed the round trip in a little over 13¼ days, which, it must be admitt ed, was a remarkable achievement, seeing that they covered a total distance of 22,646 miles.

While the glory of this splendid feat has been dimmed perhaps by the record-breaking dash of Scott and Black from London to Melbourne, aviators the world over will undoubtedly acclaim the performance of this other British pair as one of the most meritorious in the history of flying.

To cover such an immense distance, flying over the ocean and over wild jungle country, in less than two weeks was an achievement that called for courage, endurance, flying and navigational skill, and a machine capable of standing up under a heavy strain.

Jones and Waller were not fortunate in winning the big money prize, but they have earned a place for themselves among the great flyers of the world.

PROGRESS TOWARD PROSPERITY.

Canada's progress toward recovery is convincingly demonstrated by a chart just released by the research department of J. J. Gibbons, Limited, the object being to portray the distance travelled by each factor from the low of the depression toward a point of average prosperity.

Some surprising gains are recorded. In exports Canada has travelled 50.5 per cent. of the way back to average prosperity, and in exports to Empire countries has done a little better with 53.2 per cent. In the matter of imports in general there has not been so much progress, the figure being 36.8 per cent., but imports from Empire countries have matched our gains in exports to Empire countries, the percentage being exactly the same, 53.2.

Physical volume of business has won back 64 per cent. and industrial production 67 per cent. of the lost distance, while manufacturing production is over three-quarters of the way back, and iron and steel production more than half the journey from the low of the depression to average prosperity.

In three factors Canada has left the average far behind. Mineral production is 184.8 per cent. above the low, textile production 141 per cent. and electric power production 140.5 per cent.

The chart shows the distance travelled by other factors as follows: Automobile production, 61 per cent.; construction, 17 per cent.; car loadings, 35.6 per cent.; employment, 62.6 per cent.; farm products prices, 28.7 per cent.; wholesale prices, 23.9 per cent.; retail sales, 27.7 per cent.; common stock prices, 40.1 per cent.; preferred stock prices, 36.6; bank debits to deposits ratio, 33.3 per cent.; per capita purchasing power, 17.7 per cent.; and the basic factors combined show a 46.7 per cent. recovery made.

The only two factors to show diminishing trends are bond interest rates with a decrease of 115.9 per cent. and commercial failures with 3 per cent.

A CODE FOR SPORTSMEN.

With the deer hunting season opening on Monday, a special bulletin issued by the Ontario Safety League, containing a code for sportsmen, is timely and should be helpful.

Experienced hunters, of course, know the danger of careless habits in the woods, but even in their case a reminder cannot do any harm, while novices in the hunting camps should find this sportsmen's code a very useful warning.

"1. I will never allow my gun to point at anything I do not intend to shoot.

"2. I will make sure when loading my gun that the muzzle is not pointed at any part of my body or at any person. I will not stand in front of another who is loading a gun.

"3. I will never cock my gun or pull the trigger 'just for fun.'

"4. I will never shoot directly at a flat, hard surface, a bottle or similar object, as the bullet is liable to glance from it and may hit someone.

"5. I will never handle a gun without first opening the breech to be sure the gun is empty and looking through the bore to see that it is clean.

"6. I will never carry my gun loaded except when hunting and will then make sure it is locked in the safe position.

"7. I will never shoot at a song-bird or harmless animal for sport and will always be sure that no wounded game is left to suffer.

"8. I will always remember that a .22 calibre bullet will travel three-quarters of a mile, or through nine inches of ordinary board and will glance a long way across water.

"9. I will always put my gun muzzle first through the fence, before I climb the fence, and then I will climb over between the next two fence posts.

"10. I will be careful not to fire at any moving object in the bushes until I make sure of what it is. Too many hunters have been killed through having been mistaken for a deer.

"11. I will give my gun a thorough cleaning as soon as I am through firing."

THE PRICE OF BUTTER.

(By Rusticus, in the Stratford Beacon-Herald.)

On the farm: One of the sore spots in farming this fall is the price of butter fat. Feed costs are considerably higher and the cost of production has been higher all summer, but these facts stand out and are a cause of concern on the part of every farmer producing milk or cream for the production of cheese and butter. In the first place, the price of either product is practically the same as it was a year ago. And then there is a larger amount in storage so that the future does not look in the least promising.

Dairying is one of the principal revenue producing branches of farming in this province, and when the dairy industry is not prosperous the farmer has not the revenue to spend and industry must suffer. We sometimes wonder if the consumer when she buys her weekly supply of butter realizes that an extra few cents on her requirements would result in a tremendous amount of money to the farmers each week, and that this money would eventually reach her husband's pay cheque.

Some years ago there was a large quantity of milk diverted from the cheese factory to the creamery. Several factors were responsible. The major cause was the fact that butter was higher in price than cheese. (Roughly speaking butter costs twice as much per pound to produce as cheese. Thus 10-cent cheese would be the same as 20-cent butter.) Then, too, the producer of cream had the skim milk left, and that is a valuable feed for calves, hogs or poultry. That change from cheese to butter production still goes on. We all know that it should not, because Canadian cheese had an enviable reputation in the export market where Canadian butter sells at a discount. The theorist then would urge the Ontario farmer to produce cheese, but why advocate the production of cheese while this fact remains?—Milk turned into cheese has returned the farmer about 65 cents per cwt., and there is not one farmer in Ontario that can produce milk at that figure.

* * * *

Last spring we had some hope of the "Natural Products Marketing Act" being of some benefit to the dairy farmer and we understand that the Hon. Robt. Weir has made some effort to have some of the surplus exported. Low as our prices are, world markets are still lower and exports must be made at a loss. No one apparently wants to take that loss.

The surplus butter is not held by the producer. Speculators have bought it up in the season of flush production. Should the Export Board be able to move the surplus to some overseas market the speculator would gain possibly more than the producer. The speculator should not be blamed too much. During the summer months when the surplus was produced he was putting his butter into storage. He kept the Canadian price above the world market to which level it would no doubt have gone. He probably underestimated the ability of the Canadian cow to produce butter under adverse conditions.

A way should be found to get rid of that comparatively small but burdensome surplus, even if the speculator should profit. Steps should be taken to prevent a recurrence of these conditions another year. Butter fat is quoted at 18c for No. one cream. If a herd tested 3.5, 100 lbs. of milk would net the farmer 63 cents, and considering feed prices, that figure is so far removed from a price that would allow of a profit to the producer that we can hardly suggest a fair price for butter-fat.

We will say that few who will take the trouble to consider capital invested, veterinary and other costs, losses of stock and labor, 63c per cwt. does not leave even a little bit for feed costs. The price of butter to-day is in about the same position as wheat was when it sold at 40 cents per bushel. We would not be far out in comparing it to the skilled mechanic getting only 10 cents per hour for his labor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Eastern Ontario Conservatives, it is reported, are seeking the resignation of ex-Premier George S. Henry as provincial leader. Mr. Henry, it is presumed, does not think much of the idea.

There are rumors that Mr. Stevens may return to provincial politics in British Columbia. The cause to which he has declared that he has dedicated himself, however, calls for his remaining in the federal arena.

The status of several doubtful athletic clubs in Toronto that have managed to get beer licenses is being questioned. It should not be possible for organizations to enter into competition with legitimate hotels under false pretences.

The liquor toll-gate probe is only to concern itself with transactions up to the beginning of the current year, and Leopold Macaulay, former Minister of Highways, asks the pointed question as to why the investigation should not be brought up to date. The public will be inclined to echo, "Why not?"

Red sweaters and caps should be in demand at the present time with the deer hunting season scheduled to open on Monday.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

BRITAIN AND PROBLEM OF WAR

The calmness of a knowing nation, facing a possible calamity, is a mark of strength. No other nation in the world is giving as much time and exacting study to the issues that concern all nations as is Britain and British leaders. France is over-much concerned with affairs purely French. Germany would rejoice if the greater nations collapsed. Russia is looking primarily to her own interests. Japan is greedy with self-ambitions. The United States is occupied to such an extent with her own conditions, to even lift her eyes to contemplate what is going on in the rest of the world. Britain is the key to European affairs. Her far flung empire has evolved in her people world mindedness. To help make others safe she must make reasonably safe her own dominions.

Another modern war will be a contest between the man power of one nation arrayed against that of another. It will not be a battle between disciplined soldiers. The cannon and the bayonet will have little to do. The contest will be waged from airplanes. Explosives, destructive as the world cannot conceive, will be the missils. Battles fought hand to hand has been man's way of fighting. Battles fought from the air will be the pitiless devil's way. Such a war will be the devil's way to crash the Christian civilization. Do not for a moment think that the ingenuity of war-minded man alone will evolve the brutality of another war. There is a devil, and he knows what is transpiring, and what is planned by man. There has never a peace move been made by the nations that he has not undertaken to thwart. Into the mind of man he suggests continually the diabolical. He has more to say and to do with what the susceptible man thinks and does than we dream. The devil is the force behind war sentiment.

INDIA—MAHATMA GANDHI

Europe is full of Gordian Knots. But Europe is not the only part of the world stooping under Sisyphean labors. Mahatma Gandhi is attempting a dead lift. To crystallise at once in his disposition. Paul the great Apostle could begin and trust to Providence for results. Paul never resorted to fasting with the determination to last it out to the death if the people did not yield to his policy. Mahatma is not patient. Great things are seldom begun and finished in brief time. Patience is a winning virtue. Rashness betokens the wreck of worthy tasks.

Last mid-summer Gandhi completed a year dedicated to a campaign for the "Abolition of the Untouchables." In India there are some sixty millions of these outcasts. For centuries the Hinduism of India has rejected every attempt to bring these untouchables within the pale. They are as outside of the Hindu Temple privileges as are the colored people in some of the Southern United States. There are churches in the Southland in which the janitor is a negro. On Communion Sabbath the negro is not permitted to partake of the sacrament side by side with the white man. In the United States the social gulf is not as deep as it is in India.

In South India the Hindu system is most strongly entrenched. Just now in Canada and in the United States much is said and written about Codes. India has long been fettered with Codes. Think of the elaborateness. A paragraph or two from that Code will not be out of place. The pinch of the Code reminds the traveller of the Chinese shoe. The pinch is more painful. In India the pinch is a tyranny. Masons, carpenters, blacksmiths and leather workers pollute a caste Hindu at the distance of twenty-four feet. Thus begins our story about Hindue caste.

GREAT BRITAIN NO REFINEMENT IN AIR WAR

Not one grain of the humane will be discoverable in a war from the air. The last war was brutal. The next will as heartless as hell. No one will be spared by attackers. The babe at the breast will be destroyed as surely as the enemy soldier. Neither hospitals nor children's homes will be spared. Every trace of a humane civilization will be laid low. As ashes and ruins mark the sites of ancient Carthage and Babylon, so will ashes, uncooled, mark the sites of London and Paris and Berlin and New York. The prospect is too terrible to contemplate. Surely there is more of the good in the world, than the bad. In every well equipped laboratory in the world the keenest minds are searching for a method to adequately defend the attacked from air explosives. That method has not been discovered. Battleships are armoured with refined steel scales. Heads of soldiers are protected by steel helmets. But no defence has been discovered against air explosives. The whole world is as open to attack as is a nation without army or navy.

A Britisher no less eminent than Viscount Cecil has challenged the militarist with the statement that not more than one per cent of the people of Europe would vote for war. He goes on to state that the people who are for war, in making appeals for strengthening of offensive armaments, are sure to add: that Britain does not want war.

The United States has refused steadily to accept membership in the League of Nations. The bogy argument has been that membership might involve the nation in the quarrels of Europe, and possibly in another European War. The presence of the American representatives at Geneva as members of the League of Nations would strengthen world peace. They day is on the way.

A Thought

WORK

There is a cant about work as there is about most other human necessities. Call it the hateful thing. Shun it, if you will. Escape it, if you can. Then go a-seeking for endless leisure and perpetual pleasure. In the end, return from the quest more toil-worn than though you had never flung away the chains. The workman for the work's sake does not think too much about it. (It would not bear, the cynics mutter, such reflection.) He begins, continues, drops at the job, because the urge spurs and drives and will not be stayed. Nor is he always taking his mental and spiritual temperature to discover the reactions to his malady. The more it besets him, the more he enjoys it. In his own perversity lies his happiness. The sharper the attack the keener the emotional tension, which is both his stimulus and reward. Work, as most of us realize when we return to it after summer leisure, is more to be desired than pleasure. But in that first chilly glance, it does not look as though it were.—H. T. P.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE "FATHERS" VISITED TORONTO

On this date eighty years ago (November 3, 1864) the citizens of Toronto had their first glimpse of the Canada of to-day. Delegates from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Newfoundland who had been at the Quebec conference with delegates from the Province of Canada, for the first time saw Upper Canada, which was to them "the real west." Toronto was nothing new to the delegates from Lower Canada; they had been there on their legislative duties when the parliament met at Toronto, but it was a real novelty to the men from the sea, and in their journals of the time many compliments were paid to "the well-regulated town," destined to have a great future when union was assured.

The reception of the Fathers of Confederation did credit to Toronto. Eight thousand people gathered at the railway station with bands, and soldiers and police and hundreds of flaring torches to light the way to Queen's Hotel (on the site of which now stands the Royal Bank), where speeches were made. The crowd was disappointed because John A., favorite son of Upper Canada, was not there (he was detained at Quebec by a cold), but George Brown and McDougal were familiar, though Tupper from Nova Scotia and Tilley from New Brunswick were new. Tupper captured the crowd as he told them that with unity would come prosperity and a greater Canada which would soon reach the Pacific.

The next day was given to sight-seeing with the inevitable banquet in the evening. Citizens of Toronto in their hundreds listened to the aspirations and predictions of the men we are now proud to call the Fathers of Confederation. When Sir Charles Tupper was on his last visit to Canada he told me that he had never forgotten his first visit to Toronto. Leonard Tilley made a deep impression upon the Toronto folk who went home that night impressed with the wise men from the east, who were so soon to become Canadians. They did not foresee that Toronto would find a great market in the Maritimes or that the men and women from the seacoast would travel west and, like their kinsfolk of auld Scotia, hold down many of the best jobs in finance and commerce

NOT MUCH HOPE FOR CONSERVATIVES

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—It now transpires that Mr. Stevens exploded because of a party within the cabinet which was opposing his "probe." That however does not excuse Mr. Stevens. He could have withdrawn from Mr. Bennett's ranks and then cut loose but he chose to assume that he was the leader and not Mr. Bennett who is just as anxious for the probe as anybody and was the originator of it. Taken however, together with the trimming of the party against Henry as leader which all but the "humble followers" did long ago there is not much hope for the party but there is hope that out of the catastrophe will rise up a party with a policy looking more to the welfare of the people who do not know how to look after themselves.

J. H. Burnham.

Editor The Examiner,

Dear Sir:

Press reports of the Government's new plan to create a partnership of the municipalities with the brewery interests abound in titles such as "Sharing the profits" "A generous policy", "The municipalities get a slice", etc., but instead of the municipality getting a slice it must contribute a loaf to receive a crumb.

We read of civic officials in glee thinking they have struck a bonanza. Apart from its intended deception, it is amusing to see such a farce attempted and these men falling for the little sop the Government offers as a kind of eye wash to blur discernment.

The Premier's bombastic assertion that only wet municipalities can get this favor is the latest attempt at a political joke and makes us wonder how men in public life can act so absurd.

Dry constituencies may congratulate themselves that they are not eligible and are not required to lose over $100 to obtain $1. The Government revenue from the beverage rooms is based on a five per cent tax on the cost of the beer, they make a mystical reference to beverage room profits, but as it is their policy to make the price of beer as low as possible, and the hotel men say the fees make any profit problematic no dependence can be placed on revenue other than the authorities or license fees.

The Liquor Board figures that the minimum amount of purchases by the beverage rooms of the city for one year will be $182,500. A tax of 5% on this gives the Govment $9,125 revenue; they return 20% of this to the city, amounting to $1,825, but the total receipts of the beverage rooms will run from a minimum estimate of $255,500 to a maximum of $365,000.

Taking the lower estimate of $255,500 and dividing it by the rebate of $1825, shows that we must put $140 into the beverage room to get one dollar out. Surely this is contributing a loaf to get a crumb.

In addition to the financial folly of the scheme, the fact that most of this beverage room revenue comes from those who cannot afford to waste money and is a direct loss to the retail trade.

Can the retailers of this city stand a constant daily loss of from $350 to over $1,200, and three-fourths of this large amount going out of the city?

Another serious fact is that it will add to our relief load many times more than the amount returned by the Government.

It furnishes the main tap root for slum conditions, and surely we do not want them.

There are other very important phases with which we are familiar. The Premier boasts that he has taen the liquor question out of politics, but he has utterly failed to take politics out of the liquor question. We must protect ourselves.

Yours truly,

A. B. Cunningham.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

HANOVER, ONTARIO

Located on the boundary line between Grey and Bruce counties this town first was known as Buck's Crossing, for Adam Buck, the first known settler, who proved very hospitable to those who came his way. Later, the name was changed to Adamasville, in honor of J. P. Adams, who built the first mill.

Meanwhile a number of German families settled in the district. A man named Hasenyager, who came from Hanover, Germany, desired the settlement named for his native heath, while another family named Hahn wanted it named for their family name.

Thus out of the two desired the name Hanover was chosen, and somewhere between the two families the desire was carried out.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

"I'M INNOCENT"

I say to you, "I'm innocent!" and I look you straight in the eyes. Guilty people aren't supposed to be able to "look you straight in the eyes." They are supposed to look at you with eyes that water and shift and admit the guilt the tongue denies. But I look right at you and I say, "I'm innocent. I didn't do it. Somebody else did it. I was somewhere else at the time. I have a perfect alibi, and, of course, if you don't believe me, then you're not the friend I thought you were. You must believe I'm innocent!"

But of course I'm not really innocent. I'm guilty. I'm as guilty as can be. I did it, and I know that I did it. Nobody else did it but me. I don't know why I did it, but I did. . . Do YOU always know just why you do things? Have you always perfect control of yourself, of your actions? Are you always strong, always wise, always certain of what you are doing? Tell me that before you judge me too harshly, before you condemn me.

But why, if I am guilty, do I shout so loudly, with such a show of injured feelings, "I'm innocent?" Why don't I confess my guilt and get it over.

But I fear you will not understand. You understand innocence, but it is possible you may not understand guilt. You will help the innocent, but perhaps you will not help the guilty. I am not sure you will understand how a man can make a mistake, how he can know he is doing the wrong thing, and still do that thing, how he can go straight ahead on a road that leads he knows not where.

You believe in me when you know I am innocent. Could you believe in me, still, and give me your hand, even though I told you I was guilty? I would need more help then when I am guilty. It is so easy to help the innocent. They have the strength of their own guiltiness. Anybody can help them. But who has help for the guilty who do not know where or why they took the turning from innocence to guilt?

KEENE

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 31, the Ladies' Club of Keene, was entertained by Mrs. Harry Short, at the home of Mrs. Z. Renwick. As the ladies all came in costume the early part of the meeting was a merry Hallowe'en party. The main program, dealing with Famous Nurses was in charge of Mrs. A. Doris, and was exceptionally well prepared. In addition to the leading papers, short readings were given by Misses McCarthy, Drummond and Plunkett, and by Mrs. Brown, Wright, Houle and Bolin. Refreshments closed the meeting.

Mrs. Charles Eason of Toronto, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Eason.

Miss Margaret Herr visited her sister, Mrs. Harold Roache, a few days this week.

Mrs. Eric Kimball and Mrs. B. Spiers, are visiting friends in Campbellford this week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Campbell, of Canton, Ohio, are guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Roache.

When an automobile crossing the Tourmalet Pass in the Pyrenees of France plunged 350 feet down a ravine the four occupants escaped with slight bruises.

EGGS 32 TO 45 BUTTER 20-22

Plenty of Produce Offered on Farmers' Weekly Market.

SPIES $6.00 PER BARREL.

There was an overflow of produce on the farmers' market this morning. Upstairs and down was thronged with vendors and buyers in a fairly brisk buying session.

Up to a late hour, dairy produce was to be had on every side. Eggs had a long spread in price, all the way from 32 cents a dozen for pullets' sizes to 45 cents for the large eggs. The general quotation hovered around 34 cents a dozen.

Butter was 20 to 22 cents a pound, cream 30 cents a pint and chickens showed another wide range in price, from 14 to 20 cents a pound, with 16 cents as the popular quotation. Ducks were 17 to 20 cents a pound, geese 16 to 20 cents, and turkeys could be bought all the way from 18 to 23 cents a pound.

On the open market, apples were plentiful and of excellent quality. Spies sold at $1.75 to $2.25 a bushel and at $6 a barrel, Baldwins were $1 a bushel, and $4 a barrel, Golden Russets and Peewaukees $1.50 a bushel. Snows were 40 cents a peck.

Potatoes were stationary at a general price of 50 cents a bag, and were plentiful also.

Pears were 70 cents in large baskets; crabapples were 20 cents a basket; cabbages sold at 35 cents a dozen, with Savoy cabbages at a nickel a head; beets were 20 cents a peck and turnips 3 for a dime.

Brussels sprouts were 15 cents for 2 quarts, and Brussels greens, which occur when the sprouts have really sprouted in earnest, were 10 cents for a six-quart basket. According to the vendor, people are going for these in a big way.

Cider was 30 cents a gallon.

White honey sold at 14 cents a pound, and dark buckwheat 10 cents a pound.

A family of seven tiny cauliflowers in assorted sizes could be bought for 15 cents. Tomatoes were 10 cts. a quart box. Spinach was 30 cents a peck.

Springerl ferns, "take your pick," were 15 cents in little pots.

Lamb sold in front and hind quarters, at 11 and 15 and 14 and 15 cents a pound, at different stalls. Pork was priced at 12 and 14 cents a pound and beef at 8 and 10 cents by one man, and at 10 and 12 cents by another. Little pigs were $8 a pair and big live Plymouth Rock roosters were $1 apiece. Wood sold at $4.50 and $5 for mixed and at $9 and $10 a load, for hardwood.

The auctioneer reached a price of $65 for a horse this morning, and the owner withdrew the animal for a higher price. There were no bids or an automobile that came under the hammer.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

TORONTO, Nov. 3. (CP)—Distillery shares, Ford 'A' and the leading oil stocks traded in heavy volume at advancing prices today, winding up the week with the best Saturday business in more than a month. Bell Telephone at 127 was up 2½ to a new high mark for the year.

On a forecast that Hiram Walkers reports would be out Monday and would show a satisfactory earning, that issue was taken in quantity at an advance of more than a point to 26¾. Distillers Seagrams gained ⅝ to 13⅞ and Industrial Alcohol a ½ to 8¼.

Brewery stocks were unchanged. Ford A, with a gain of ½ to 23½, was a bright spot in the interlisted group. Nickel had a gain of ¼, and Brazilian ⅛.

TORONTO MINING

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—(CP)—Mining shares were buoyant in the closing session of the week, the golds with Noranda particularly carrying along the rally that developed on Thursday. Silver stocks were slow and mainly unchanged and basemetals also lacked interest.

God's Lake staged an active recovery from depressed tone exhibited on Thursday and Friday, closing at 2.05 for a net gain of 20 cents. Gunnar Gold also demonstrated a firmer tone on a small net advance to 89. Bralorne failed to hold a morning gain, closing 10 cents down at $13, while Hollinger, Teck Hughes, Wright Hargreaves and Pioneer were up by 10 to 20 cents each.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The stock market finished a week of slow, hesitant advances today with a little further unlift, concentrated chiefly in a few specialties. The final tone was firm, with gains of fractions to a point or more predominating. Transfers for the two hour session approximated 270,000 shares.

BACK ON THE JOB.

BATTLES WAGING ON MANY ISSUES

Fate of Well-Known American Figures Rests With Polling Next Tuesday.

By KEN S. CLARK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (C.P.)—The off-year election campaign is closing Monday with indications of a victory in Tuesday's elections for President Roosevelt and his newdealers in the House of Representatives and in the Senatorial contests. Interest largely centres in the margin of the prospective Democratic gain and in the fate of figures of national importance fighting bitter battles in half-a-dozen states.

All eyes were focussed on California where Upton Sinclair, the novelist radical, at first conceded a moderately good chance of becoming Governor on the Democratic ticket against Frank F. Merriman, Republican candidate, has latterly appeared to be losing ground falling a late endorsement from President Roosevelt. Sinclair is running on a radical platform called "EPIC"—End Poverty in California.

Considerable interest attached to the result of the Wisconsin elections where the political dynasty founded by the late Robert M. Lafollette, Progressive, is trying its fortunes. Senator Robert M. Lafollette, Jr., is running to succeed himself while his brother Philip again contends for the gubernatorial chair. Lafollette, formerly labelled Republican Progressive, has dropped the "Republican" and received the assistance of the Administration Senator from New York, Robert F. Wagner, Democrat.

Democratic hope for a victory here as well as in Pennsylvania where the redoubtable Senator Davir A. Reed, several times mentioned as Presidential timber, is attempting to retain his seat in opposition to Joseph F. Guffey, administration Democrat.

Michigan's favorite Republican son, Arthur H. Vandenberg, has been having a tough contest against Frank A. Picard, Roosevelt Democrat. Vandenberg who played a prominent part in the fight to ratify the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty with Canada, is standing for a second term.

A woman holds the spotlight in North Dakota's race for the governorship. Mrs. William Langer is seeking to occupy the chair from which her husband was deposed after he had been found guilty of misuse of federal relief funds. Mrs. Langer, Republican, opposes Thomas H. Moodie, Democrat.

The issue in New York State has partly to do with the strength of the so-called "new" Tammany, dominated by Postmaster-General James A. Farley. Herbert H. Lehman, the present Governor is contending for office as a Rooseveltian Democrat supported by the "new" Tammany and by the old "Al" Smith who has lately been inactive politically. His Republican opponent is Robert Moses.

Senator Dr. Royal S. Copeland, famous for wearing red carnations is in his button-hole and for opposing the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty, is the Democratic candidate for Senator against E Harold Cluett, manufacturer of shirts and Republican.

DENY RECOGNITION

SHANGHAI, Nov. 3 (CP-Havas)—Emphatic denial of the recent reports that the presence of British representatives in the Far East presaged British recognition of Manchoukuo or an Anglo-Japanese alliance was made to-day by Julian Piggott, secretary of the British Industrial Federation Mission in Japan.

"At no time either in Manchuria or Japan did Lord Francis Barnby (head of the mission) make a single political utterance," Piggott said.

30,000,000 VOTERS.

(By Cecil B. Dickson).

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—When President Roosevelt drops his ballot in the box next Tuesday, he will be one of 30,000,000 United States citizens from coast to coast who are registering their opinion of Congressional and State candidates and—in many cases—of the new deal.

POTATO PRICE WEAKER TO-DAY

District Producers Selling Below Fifty Cents for Quantity Lots.

SUPPLY PLENTIFUL.

The potato market as reflected locally this morning indicated a weakness that left producers wondering how long the price of fifty cents a bag would hold out.

Most of the producers had the fifty-cent label on their bags, but the market was weak, and more than one farmer was cutting the price to buyers who would take three bags or more.

Cavan, Manvers, and Northumberland growers were included in the selling line to-day, and the general reports coincided with the estimates of big domestic potato crop, with an abundant supply in the neighboring townships. One Manvers farmer said that a grower who tried to find an outlet at Lindsay had to shade his price under forty cents a bag, and even then couldn't get a buyer.

The Dominion Government inspector for this district was on the market this morning, and talked with most of the potato men about the grading of their potatoes in an effort to stimulate the price condition by offering only selects. With such favorable weather as to-day it was noticeable that purchasing was fairly heavy because the stock can be brought to market and offered to the public without any fear of frost.

Some consumers who are not averse to taking every advantage of price declines hesitate about trying to chisel the price of potatoes below the fifty-cent line, and have been content to put in a winter supply on the present price basis.

GREAT ARTISTS ARE PROMISED

Local Committee of Community Concert Association Has Wide Choice.

CAMPAIGN NEXT WEEK.

A meeting of the executive of the newly-formed Peterborough Community Concert Association was called last evening by Col. Ackerman, president, to make further arrangemets for the one-week campaign opening on Monday, November 12th.

It is the purpose of the Association to include all music-lovers of the whole community in the membership. With this end in view, a group of captains as nearly representative as possible of all the organizations in the city were selected to form groups, who will undertake to secure these memberships.

The series of three concerts to which membership in the Peterborough Community Concert Association entitles admission, will take place during the coming winter-season by world-renowned artists chosen by the local committee from eminent celebrities in the music world such as the Don Cossacks Russian Male Choir, Sigrid Onegin, Albert Spaulding, Elizabeth Rethberg, Richard Crooks, Edward Johnson, Gabrilowitsch, Platigorsky, the Hall Johnson Negro Choir, Ernest Hutcheson, the Barrerre Little Symphony, Bartlett & Robertson, two-piano team, and many others.

Other Canadian cities, Kitchener, Stratford, Hamilton, London, St. Catharines, have found these concerts an overwhelming success. In two of these places the membership has reached 1200. In Kitchener they have a waiting list of 100 applicants, as it is impossible to find an auditorium large enough to seat all the people who wish to attend the concerts.

Admission to these concerts in Peterborough is by membership only. Everyone is invited to become a member, but memberships must be secured during the week of the campaign beginning November 12, and definitely closing Saturday, November 17.

C.P.R. EARNINGS UP.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3 (C.P.).—An increase of $733,000 is shown in the earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for the week ended Oct. 31, 1934, over the same period last year. Totals were: 1934, $4,416,000; 1933, $3,683,000.

Cover Charge Halts 200 Psalm Singers On Local Option Drive On Night Clubs

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 3 (AP)—A cover charge proved an insurmountable obstacle to 200 pre-Millennial Baptists in their second "song raid" on the city's night clubs and other bright spots.

Hoping to make a surprise visit to one of the city's well-known clubs in the interests of local option, the singers marched to the entrance with their Bibles and Psalm books.

They were met with the curt announcement that the cover charge was 50 cents.

"They've been tipped off," the Rev. Mr. M. L. Moser, Little Rock, Ark., said. "We might as well sing a song and move on."

They did both.

One place was plunged in darkness when several "scouts" heralded the arrival of the Psalm singers. At a taxi-dance hall, the dancers moved over to a corner while the raiders sang.

After praying over the tables in a domino parlor, one member of the group said he believed they "Sowed seed that will bear fruit."

WINNIPEG FUTURES REGISTER LIGHT ADVANCES DURING WEEK

Traders Believe Further Restrictions Probable as Price Regulations Put Into Operation—"Pegs" End Three Weeks of Decline.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3.—(C.P.)— A week of sensational developments on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange was at an end to-day. Minimum price regulations were in operation and traders believed further restrictions were probable. Wheat futures prices at the opening to-day showed net advances of 1¼ to 1⅝ cents for the week.

In the first two days of "pegged" prices—December option at 75 cents and May at 80 cents—values advanced three to 3⅛ cents ending nearly three weeks of almost continual declines. The "Pegs" were established Nov. 1 by the Exchange Council and to-day the December future was 78⅛ and May at 83 cents.

The minimum price regulation was the second time in the history of the exchange such action had been taken, and was a result of recommendations of John I. McFarland, head of the government wheat agency, to the Federal Government. In August, 1936, prices were "pegged" after the collapse of a bull market.

In the event the market becomes stagnant and no buyers appear to purchase farmers' grain, the government agency will purchase these "hedges" at the minimum prices. However, there was no scarcity of buyers in the market Thursday and Friday and prices advanced buoyantly.

Mr. McFarland's charges of outside interests combining to drive prices down on the Winnipeg market were denied by the Exchange Council, which offered its full co-operation to the government for any investigation desired. Many traders, however, believed strict government regulation would follow shortly.

Nazi Claim Terrorists In Saar Front Ranks

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Nov. 3.—(A.P.)—Discipline in the face of French troops along the Saar frontier was demanded today of members of the Nazi "German front" in the Saar Basin by Jakob Pirro, their leader.

Pirro in an appeal and warning said: "Provocateurs are trying to smuggle themselves into our lines and are playing havoc with peace." His followers were exhorted by Pirro to obey his orders under threat of expulsion and submission of the cases to the prosecutor.

He offered a reward of 1,000 francs to those instrumental in convicting any terrorist smuggled into the German front.

TREASURED WORLD ATLAS 1817 REVEALS VERY LITTLE OF CANADA

Mrs. David Miller of Warsaw Proud Owner of Old Atlas.

AUSTRALIA UNKNOWN.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, November 3. — Even as recently as a century ago, Canada and Australia were more or less out-of-the-way spots in the minds of geographers and map makers in England. A treasured old world atlas, published in 1817, which has come down to Mrs. David Miller of Warsaw., is conspicuously lacking in detail when it comes to treatment of these two realms of His Majesty George IV.

As a measure of the progress which has been made in the field of geography in recent times, the work is of great interest. The student is struck with the remarkable fact that although the genus homo sapiens evolved between ten and fifteen thousand years ago, it remained for modern man in the last hundred years to delve into the mysteries of some of the earth's greatest land spaces.

Yellowed with Age

The atlas came into the possession of Mrs. Miller's grandfather, David Coleman, who was born in 1799, when he was a young man. He probably purchased it soon after it was published. About 185 it passed on to Mrs. Miller's father, and more recently came to Mrs. Miller's hands. It is yellowed with age and the edges of its leaves are somewhat worn, but on the whole, it is in good condition. The title page and the fifty three maps it contains, are beautifull steel engravings from original drawings.

Various types of old printing and script are found on the title page, which is embellished with considerable scroll work in the fashion of the day. The page reads: "A New General Atlas constructed from the latest authorities by A. Arrowsmith, hydrographer to the Prince Regent, exhibiting the boundaries and divisions, also the chains of mountains, and the geographical features of all the known countries in the world, comprehended in fifty-three maps from original drawings." The publishers' identification reads:—"Edinburgh, published, 1817, by A. Constable & Co., and Longman & Comp., London."

The maps are engraved on heavy paper, originally white, but now yellowed. They are numbered with Roman numerals, and at the foot of each map, the name of the map's author appears, along with those of the publisher and engraver. The lettering on the maps is so fine, where names are close, that a magnifying glass can be used on them to adavntage.

Bare of Names

The Old World areas, which were well known at the time are represented in such great detail as far as geographic and place names are concerned that maps of these sections are almost grey with names. Canada is almost bare of names. Even at that date, little was known of the country beyond the Maritime area, and the areas which are now southern Quebec and southern Ontario, Australia, labelled New Holland, is almost completely unmarked by names, with the exception of a few spots along the coasts. The United States is represented as consisting of those states west of the Mississippi River.

Apparently more was known about the geography of South America at the time the atlas was published, than North America. The South American countries are depicted in considerable detail. The map of Africa shows the Mountains of the Moon extending across the continent from east to west. The north of Africa is treated extensively, but the map would indicate that civilized geographers had not yet given much attention to the southern part of the great land mass.

HAVELOCK LETTER ROUSES PROTESTS

Kick to Provincial Official About Relief Officer Leaves Matter Up to Council.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 3 (Examiner Correspondence)—An effort by some local person to have Relief Officer John Kinnaird dismissed from office has caused great concern among the few relief recipients who were privileged to hear about a letter that allegedly was sent to Provincial Chairman of Relief Ellis in Toronto.

The Examiner learned from the same reliable source that a reply from the department in the city briefly said the matter of dismissal was entirely in the hands of the village council, who made the appointment more than a year ago.

Until now, there has never been a single complaint regarding the administration of village relief. There has, in fact, been a lot of highly-complimentary things said about Mr. Kinnaird's efficiency and tactfullness in successfully handling a difficult problem. The cost to the village each month shows that expenditures are being watched closely.

ONTARIO CODES NOT DISCUSSED

Hepburn States Roebuck Has Ideas, But They Are His Own, Not Cabinet's.

SYSTEM FAILURE IN U.S.

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP)—Proposals for industrial codes in Ontario have not been discussed by the cabinet, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said in an interview yesterday. He added that Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General and Minister of Labor, "Has some ideas but they haven't been discussed."

The premier said he thought it had been quite clear all along that Mr. Roebuck, in various addresses, had been expressing his own views and not those of the cabinet. No government policy has been made in this regard, he added, while he himself had never made any statement to the effect that a codes program was to be introduced at the coming legislative session.

"The matter will be discussed by cabinet," continued the premier, "and possibly by a caucus of the Liberal members. We are going to call a meeting of the members soon to discuss several matters. In any event, the code system is little understood by the people, and certainly they have proven a failure in the United States. That's admitted. Whenever Mr. Roebuck spoke on the matter he spoke for himself. Before we legislate anything of that sort we will discuss it in council and with the members."

Readiness to help labor was expressed by Mr. Hepburn who said the "greatest thing the government can do for labor is to cut down expenditures. After all, the unorganized people have to bear the brunt of all taxation."

SOUP AND PICKLES NIPPON BREAKFAST

Seaweed, Rice and Tea Also Served at Early Meal in Japan.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—(CP).—Life in a Japanese household begins at about five o'clock in the morning, an da typical breakfast consists of soupe, pickles, seaweed, rice and tea, said Miss Edith Parker in an address before the Alumnae Association of McGill University.

She traced the history of education in Japan, from the third century, when Chinese writing was introduced in the court schools. In the sixteenth century, schools were conducted by monks, and it was only after the revolution of 1870 that elementary education became compulsory. Today it is the pride of Japan that 99 per cent of her population is literate.

The silk and lacquer industries were among those described, and Miss Parker told of the damage done to the former by the introduction of rayon.

CLAIM IN SUIT ON DREW MUST BE FILED BY NOV. 10

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (C.P.)—After a brief argument before I. A. Hilliard, K.C., supreme master at Osgoode Hall here yesterday, Col. George A. Drew, former Ontario securities commission, won the decision that Donald A. Walkinshaw, brother-in-law and private secretary to Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck, Ontario Attorney General, must file by Nov. 10 his statement of claim in his $50,000 libel action against Col. Drew.

Col. Drew asked for an abridgement of the usual 30-day period allowed for filing statements of claim, contending he was handicapped in returning to practice of law by the action hanging over his head.

"This is no ordinary libel action," Col. Drew said as he opened his argument, "it arises out of a statement in a newspaper article."

Weddings

KEARNS—COURNEYA

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at eight o'clock this morning by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, at the Church of the Sacred Heart, when Frances Evelyn Courneya, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Courneya of Olive avenue, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Joseph Kearns, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John K s of Rogers street.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely long gown of sapphire blue velvet, made with a high neckline, long sleeves and a narrow cape extending over the shoulders. A simulated yoke was formed of silver beads.

Her slippers of blue faille were worn with flesh-colored hose, her gloves were of blue silk and her hat of blue belt was widened by a large circular veil that extended stiffly from the brim. She carried a bouquet of large bronze chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaid, Miss Genevieve Courneya, sister of the bride, wore a frock of wine-colored velvet, made with cowl neckline and three-quarter length sleeves trimmed with silver bands. Her faille slippers, silk gloves and little velvet hat, worn with a halo veil, were all in the same shade of wine color. Her bouquet was of bronze pompon 'mums.

Mr. John Holland was groomsman.

The wedding music was played by Mr. J. Armstrong, and an "Ave Maria" and other suitable hymns were sung during the progress of the Nuptial Mass, by Mrs. Herman LaPlante.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, who celebrate their own silver wedding anniversary to-day. Members of the immediate families, numbering about twenty-five, were present. Decorations of the table, centered by the bride's cake, were in pink and white flowers and candles.

Mr. and Mrs. Kearns left later by motor for a honeymoon trip to Kingston and Ottawa, the bride travelling in a swagger suit of flecked sand and brown tweed with a coon fur collar, a brown felt hat and brown accessories. On their return, they will live at 301 Stewart street.

The young people received many pretty gifts from a large circle of friends. The gift to the bridesmaid was a silver bracelet and to the best man a cigarette lighter.

Obituary

MRS. ANN ROBERTSON.

KEENE, Nov. 3.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— The death of Mrs. Ann Robertson occurred Friday afternoon at her home in the village after a lingering illness. The late Mrs. Robertson was a life-long resident of the district and at the time of her death was 85 years of age. Her husband predeceased her 42 years ago. She leaves to mourn the loss several nieces and nephews.

The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon from late residence in Keene at 2 o'clock, with interment in Keene cemetery. Rev. Leslie McLean, of Keene Presbyterian church, officiating.

WORK IS HALTED AT ROCK QUARRY

Employees at Plant East of Havelock Spent Busy Season—Night, Day Shifts.

NEW TYPE CRUSHED STONE.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—All work at the Ontario Rock Company's trap rock quarry, three miles east of the village, ceased yesterday until further orders are received. A busy summer was spent by the quarrymen, who worked night and day supplying crushed limestone for the surfacing work on the new highways. The plant hadn't had any demand for this type of crushed stone until this year. According to Mr. Charles V. Billie, of The Billie Construction Company, general contractors of Smith's Falls, the limestone proves every bit as good as the harder trap rock and packs more readily. The result being a surface very nearly as good as concrete a few years after the new road bed has settled.

About thirty men are finding work building a power line for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, to connect with the Hydro at Marmora village. It is understood a ten-year contract for power has been signed.

A large gang of men left here on the Ottawa express for Toronto on Thursday morning. They had been employed as linemen on the maintenance and replacement work being carried on by the C.P.R. telegraph department. Philip Greenly and Ronald Jack of town, former telegraph operators in the employ of the railway company, were the only two from the village on the job. The greater part of the work was being done near Ivanhoe.

CHURCH FIGHT MARS SERVICE

Bishop Refuses Admittance to Mayor, a Priest Who Defied Him.

LATTER WINS POINT.

ORAN, Algeria, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A fight in the cathedral yesterday interrupted a memorial service for the late Raymond Poincare, wartime President of France, and the assassinated Louis Barthou, French Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The fight occurred when the Abbe Lambert, a priest who is the mayor of Oran, forced his way into the church in defiance of the ecclestiastical authorities.

The archpriest of the cathedral, surrounded by a guard, barred the Abbe's entrance on the ground that he had accepted election as mayor without the permission of Bishop Leon Durand, his ecclesiastical superior.

The Abbe, who wore the official tri-color sash of a French mayor, demanded admission to the church "in the name of the law," and pushed his way into the cathedral with other municipal authorities after a fight at the door. The municipal officers placed themselves before the symbolical catafalque and the archpriest refused to conduct the service until he had made a formal protest to the French officials.

The service finally began one hour late, with the Abbe standing his ground near the catafalque.

FENELLA PUPILS HOLD MASQUERADE

Short Program of Addresses on Speaking Contest Follows Judging.

FENELLA, Nov. 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Fenella United Sunday School staged a very successful Hallowe'en masquerade social on Wednesday in the Community Hall, which was suitably decorated for the occasion. The judges were Mrs. L. W. Scott, Mrs. Ryan and Miss Hilda Taylor, Roseneath.

Rev. L. W. Scott acted as chairman for the evening. At the conclusion of the judging, a short program was rendered as follows: Duet, "What's a young boy made of," by Bernice McNaught and Merlin McNaught; public speaking contest: Kathleen Milne, subject, "Everyday Metal, Iron; M. Macklin, "Hudson Bay Railway"; solo, Mrs. L. M. Scott; address, Bernice McNaught, 'Mineral Fireman"; address, Eric Adams, Millar; instrumental solo by Miss G. Knox.

Kathleen Milne and Eric Adams were chosen to speak at Roseneath last night.

Refreshments were served at the close and a social hour enjoyed.

Aims To Preserve Lord's Day In Canada

J. Benedict of Toronto, representative for the Lord's Day Alliance, is in the city for a few days calling upon those who usually contribute towards this worthy cause.

The Lord's Day Alliance is a confederation of all the provincial alliances. Its object is to "preserve the Lord's Day in its integrity and to secure to the whole nation the right to its full enjoyment." It is financed through appeals to and budget allocations from the churches; solicitation of contributions chiefly by the secretaries; and bequests and personal contributions sent in without solicitation.

Those who are not called upon by Mr. Benedict may send their donations to the Alliance, 542 Confederation Life Building, Toronto.

Split-Up Threatened In Australia

Western Australian representatives, designated after residents of their state voted two to one for secession in a plebiscite, are in London seeking Parliament's approval of Western Australia's separation politically from Australian Commonwealth. Its geographic separation from the other states by 1,000 miles of wastelands, as shown in the map, is the reason. Pictured are a strip of the desert and the Australian capitol at Canberra, remote from Western Australia.

Costume For Street

Courtesy Good Housekeeping

Sketched is one of the more exotic street costumes of the season, designed by Alix of Paris.

It is given an entirely new look with its immense bishop sleeves gathered into big armholes with cartridge pleats at the top; its perfectly slim, straight skirt; its plain, high neck, both in front and back. And, most unique of all, its short, sleeveless beaver vest.

The dress is soft woolen, and with it is worn a brown felt beret.

Campbellford "Lit" Presents Short Play

CAMPBELLFORD, November 3 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Campbellford High School Literary Society held their first meeting of the season in the Assembly Hall on Friday afternoon, the Fifth Form having charge of the program, with President Donald Owens occupying the chair. Owen Hendy acted as critic. The first number a chorus, "School Days" and "Dear Old C. H.S." was followed by "News in Rhyme," sung by Don Owens and Sandy MacDonald ;selection, "I Had But Fifty Cents," by the Quinzy Quintette, Don Barnum Charlie Couch, Bernard Crossen Malcolm Malcolm McKenzie and Don Owens; musical selection, Arnold Bates.

A pretty little two-act play, "Sue Takes a Chance," was the feature of the afternoon's program, those taking part including Helen Coxwell, Eileen Hall, Lois Meyers, Lillian Thomas, Don Barnum, Arnold Bates, Charlie Couch, Bernard Crossen, Malcolm Mackenzie, and Don Owens. Between the acts Kay Wilson delighted the audience with piano selections The critic's report was decidedly favorable.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

MRS. H. HOWELL IS BIBLE CLASS HEAD

Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Elects Officers.

Mrs. H. Howell was elected as president of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church, held on Thursday in the parish hall. Other officers for the year will be: Mrs. H. Bassett, vice president; Mrs. J. Bacon (re-elected), secretary; Mrs. W. S. Hake (re-elected), treasurer.

At the meeting, the regular reports were read, and Mrs. W. McLarnon, convenor of the Entertainment committee, reported that all arrangements had been completed for the big whist drive to be held on Thursday, November 8th, to which the members of the 57th Rangers' Sergeants Mess and their ladies have been invited.

It was decided to have the annual meeting and banquet on December 6th. At the close, refreshments were served by Mrs. H. Bassett and her assistants.

and the body of Baby Andrey was lying nearby. It is thought Mrs. Campeau had snatched up her infant and had run into the front hallway in an attempt to escape from the burning building only to find her way cut off by the flames which swept up the only stairway.

The only exit from the apartment was a stairway at the rear leading down to a side door entrance at the ground floor. It was apparently to this stairway that the mother was attempting to make her escape when she was overcome.

Constable Injured

Constable Joseph Sanscartier was struck on the head with a ladder when he was assisting the firemen in their attempts to raise it to try a rescue. He suffered a severe scalp wound and was taken to hospital. Two stitches were needed to close the wound. His injury is not considered serious.

An inspection of the fire-swept home revealed that the flames had swept up through the flooring and the stairway at the back of the building. When the firemen arrived the fire had spread throughout the entire building and the firemen described it as a raging furnace of flame.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Roy, the latter a brother of Mrs. Campeau, explained they had been visiting the Campeau home last night. When they had left everything had appeared to be in order, but Mr. Roy recollected that there had been an odor of smoke in the house.

Neighbors Stunned.

Residents of the community who flocked from their beds when the alarm was first sounded were stunned at the tragedy which had befallen the little family.

As the bodies of husband, wife and their two infant children were removed from the fire-swept home, women in the crowd turned their heads away in sorrow and anguish. Many remarked that the little family had appeared so happy yesterday.

An inquest will be opened by Dr. Isabelle, coroner for Hull, later today.

The funeral of the four victims will be held on Monday.

SOPHIASBURG MAN HAS EYE REMOVED

George Gorsline Suffers Painful Injury as Switch Hits Face.

(Examiner Correspondence)

TWEED, Nov. 3.—George Gorsline, a farmer residing in Sophiasburg Township had an eye removed at Prince Edward County Hospital at Picton, after attempts to save it had failed.

On going outside, he picked up a switch to drive a cow out of the yard and while using it the switch broke, a piece hitting the eye. The operations was performed by Dr. C. A. Publow.

Stepping off a Toronto-Kingston bus, Mrs. Emma Johnson, 60-year-old resident of Shannonville, walked directly into the path of an automobile being driven west by K. N. Henry of Toronto at 7 p.m. on Thursday evening. Mrs. Johnson escaped with a fractured shoulder blade and severe head injuries. She was rushed to the General Hospital at Belleville by her son-in-law, K. Vivian of Shannonville. She is recovering satisfactorily.

Trent River

Mrs. Thos. J. Brown received the sad news Friday noon of the sudden death of her stepfather, Mr. John Hendren, at his home at Norwood. The late Mr. Hendren has not enjoyed good heatlh for some time, suffering from heart condition, although he planned to leave Saturday for Detroit, Mich., to spend the winter with his daughter, Mrs. Jas. Cousins (formerly Myrtle Hendren).

Miss Christina Waldie of Grafton, is a visitor wth her aunt, Mrs. John Sedgwick.

Mr. Will Holdcroft of the Holdcroft Construction Co., spent the past week at Kingston.

The cheese factory closed for the season Thursday.

Mr. R. W. Umphrey attended the public speaking contest at Conelly's school Thursday night and acted as one of the judges for the event.

Fleming school speaking contest was held Wednesday afternoon.

Trent River oratorical contest was hed Friday night, taking the place of the usual league program. The final championship contest will be held Friday, Nov. 16th, at Colborne.

In the Provincial championship judging competitions of boys and girls' club work, conducted recently at Guelph, with club teams from all parts of Ontario, the Northumberland team stood 16th, with 24 teams competing. Arthur H. Martin, local agricultural representative, accompanied the Northumberland boys to Guelph.

The Northumberland calf club was organized in 1933, each member starting with a calf. Each member to keep feed cost records, write an examination and exhibit his calf at a specified fair.

OTTAWA PARLEY GROWS REMOTE

Date to Suit Provinces Hard to Get—On B.N.A. Act Amendments.

NOT LIKELY THIS YEAR.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP)—A Dominion-Provincial Conference on amendments to the British North America Act during the present year now appears unlikely. Owing to the fact that it seemed almost impossible to arrive at a date for the conference which would suit all the provinces, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett has advised those particularly interested that it may not be held this year.

Legislatures in two of the provinces, Saskatchewan and Quebec, are scheduled to open before long, and the Dominion Parliament will probably assemble in January. Consequently the time in which the conference might take place is definitely restricted.

Amendments to the British North America Act, which would permit of the transfer of certain provincial powers to the Dominion, were on the agenda for discussion at the conference.

Ex-Service Men Are Planning Banquet

Sidney Whatley, president of the recently organized Ex-servicemen's Social and Welfare Club, reports that arrangements for the big Armistice reunion dinner to be held under auspices of the organization are progressing favorably. The dinner, to which all ex-servicemen of Peterborough and district are cordially invited is to be held in the Armouries on the evening of November 10, and application for tickets may be made to officers of the club.

Sale of tickets already gives organizers of the dinner the assurance that over 300 ex-servicemen will be present, Mr. Whatley intimated, to participate in a big reunion of ex-soldiers such as has not been seen in this city since 1918. The number attending the dinner will be of such large proportions, that the dinner will be held in the drill hall at the Armouries.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—(C. P.)— Samuel Toney at least knows where to stroll during the hunting season. While browsing about the grounds of the Mayview city hospital he was struck in the chest and stomach by shotgun slugs. He was rushed inside and placed in the ward with several other gunshot victims—but all the others were hunters.

"Tight buttoned"

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit ?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy . . . to save . . . to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels . . . prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes . . . to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

ENGLISH-U. S. AMITY HAS THRIVED IN SPITE OF EARLY OBSTACLES

Beckles Willson, Canadian Author, Gives Sketch in Lives of Envoys.

PRAISES AMBASSADOR

By Central Press Canadian

Confident faith in the "ultimate complete moral unity of the white race," as represented by Great Britain and the United States, forms the basis of the latest contribution to modern historical literature by the Canadian-born author of "If I Had Fifty Millions." The book is "Friendly Relations" (McClelland and Stewart), by Beckles Willson. It will be published next week.

Anglo-American diplomatic relations from 1791 to 1930 are covered in retrospect through the eyes of Britain's representatives to the land of stars and stripes. First in Philadelphia, and later in Washington, they view and interpret the changing scene. Their official reports, private letters and personal observations—together with a galaxy of documentary contributions of wives, friends, contemporary statesmen, diplomats and lesser dignitaries — are reproduced in quick succession garnished by a minimum number of qualifying observations of the author, to carry the reader through a century and a half of diplomatic progress.

The scope of Mr. Willson's book goes beyond the prominent political personages of the period. Sometimes their wives are described. English Envoy Francis Jackson seems to have taken a dislike to the wife of President Madison. "She is fat and forty, but not fair," he wrote. "She must, however, have been a comely person when she served out the liquor at the bar of her father's tavern in the state of Virginia."

The lot of the British minister was not always easy. Jackson was threatened with horse-whipping and tar-and-feathering. Altogether, his tenure of office was an unhappy one.

Discusses War of 1812

The war of 1812-14 provides ammunition for one of the author's few controversial discussions. Describing the British capture and destruction of Washington in 1814, an act intended as retaliation for the destruction of York, the Upper Canadian capital, the year before, Mr. Willson asks: "Is any event in American history so absurdly exaggerated? Some members of the older school of native historians have not hesitated to turn to the exploits of Alaric and Attila and the Romans in Carthage to find a parallel to the story of the 'wanton and atrocious burning of our noble capitol....' But there has been a good deal of rectification of this sweeping judgment since. As for the wine in the cellars of the White House, of which there was a large quantity, it was not drunk by the British at all, but 'was consumed by our own soldiers' (a quotation from a contemporary account)."

After the war, British Minister Charles Bagot had the opportunity of contributing much to United States fiscal policy. To offset forging of bank notes, he recommended the use of specially engraved plates developed by a friend of his. The recommendation was accepted, and the man who later was to be appointed governor-general of Canada had proved something more than a mere envoy.

The volume deals at length with the American civil war, the fight for the independence of Canada, the visit of King Edward VII as Prince of Wales to Canada and the United States and the Fenian raids.

In 1872 the British minister went house-hunting and finally secured a permanent residence for Great Britain's diplomats.

The routine business of the British embassy now involved Canadian questions, copyright, immigration law, passports, fishery rules, canal tolls, the liquor and arms trade and railroad law.

Some idea of the high calibre of the men chosen wherever possible by the British government to represent her in America is seen in the fact that at the first peace conference of the Hague in 1899, her minister to Washington, Lord Pauncefote, was chief British delegate.

Feeling toward Britain was improving. When Pauncefote died, his remains were returned to England on an American battleship, and the flag on the White House was lowered to half-mast, at the order of President Theodore Roosevelt.

Canada's Representative

The spirit of good-will grew—until now, the author points out, "thanks to the present British ambassador at Washington, Britain and America have presented a united front to the world in a time of crisis."

The relative importance to the British embassy of questions affecting Canada is stressed throughout the volume. But the British commonwealth of nations is no longer represented at Washington by an embassy alone, and the British ambassador is no longer the sole representative of the British sovereign. In this connection Mr. Willson cautions: "To co-operate on an equal responsibility with the ministers of Canada, South Africa and the Irish Free State may prove a task of the utmost delicacy and even of difficulty."

Fortunately, up to now, there has been only cordiality and mutual good-will.

The entire book, in retrospect, is a study in comparisons.

Author Canadian

Beckles Willson, from whose pen these comparisons flow, is well known to Canadians. Born in Montreal and educated n Kingston, he married a Colborne, Ontario, girl, later moved to England, and now resides in France. While on the staff of the London Daily Mail he wrote many feature articles on colonial subjects. He served in the war with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. Among his 25 or more outstanding published works, those best known to Canadians are: "The Hudson's Bay Company," "The Romance of Canada" and "The Life of Lord Strathcona." His "Friendly Relations," given to the world as he nears his 65th year, is another milestone in a succession of valuable literary contributions.

MRS. L. McCONKEY IS W.A. HOSTESS

Mrs. Wilfred Nichols Has Charge of Program at Bridgenorth Meeting.

Bridgenorth, Nov. 3.— (Examiner Correspondence.) — Selwyn W. A. met on Thursday at the home of Mrs. L. McConkey. Mrs. Wilfr d Nichols, the newly elected president, had charge of the meeting, and in her very efficient manner conducted the business of the day, which was largely routine. Mrs. McConkey served dainty refreshments to the ladies after the business had been transacted. This organization held a very nicely arranged afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Howard Sanderson, recently; fifty ladies were present and enjoyed the program and afternoon together. Mrs. (Rev.) Miller and Mrs. Preston, past president of the W. A., presided at the tea table.

Bridgenorth A sociation

Bridgenorth W. A. held their November meeting at the home of Mrs. Udy. Mrs. Pettersone, the president, was in charge. It was decided that the ladies would have a pot-luck supper, the end of November, to which the men of the congregation would also be invited.

Hallowe'en

Seventy-five young people gathered at Selwyn on Wednesday evening for their annual Hallowe'en party. A large number of these came from Bridgenorth and Fairview. The costumes showed much thought and preparation and the judges, Mr. and Mrs. A. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. W. Telford, found it difficult to decide which ones were really the best. The decision was finally given in favor of Miss Ann Franks as a Japanese lady; Mrs. K. Hardill, as a Chinese laundryman; Miss Opal Rosborough, as a witch, and Miss Daisy McIlmoyl as a fancy lady.

Miss Jean Fowler read a paper on the origin of Hallowe'en.

Much credit is due to Gladys McIlmoyle and her helpers for the efficient manner in which they carried through the program and prepared the refreshments. Selwyn Young People have purchased a piano for their use and this was used for the first time on Wednesday evening.

Lakefield News

The first annual rugby dance, held on Thursday night in the town hall, was a real success, although the crowd was not as large as had been hoped for. Wilson's orchestra was in attendance and furnished an excellent program. Dancing, both round and square, was popular, and the crowd, who were practically all of the younger set, had a very jolly time.

The Grove first team defeated the High school in a game of Rugby at The Grove on Thursday afternoon. The score showed that The Grove were superior in every way, including weight and skill. Wood and Dench starred for The Grove and H. Nicholls played a remarkably fine game for the High school.

Mr. Harry Stabler, of Toronto, is convalescing at his home in the village after a serious operation.

Miss Hazel Crawford is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mrs. and Miss Woodhouse have returned from a three weeks' visit to friends in Tweed.

Mr. John J. Charlton has secured a position in Walkerville.

Mrs. Charles Wear and sons, of Windsor, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Junkin.

Mrs. J. Gordon Mein and son, Gordon Erskine, of Toronto, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Erskine.

CAVAN

Mrs. Robert Swain returned to her home in Valentia on Thursday after spending a few days with her sister, Miss Frances Hunter.

Threshing is almost completed in Cavan Centre. Two machines have been at work during the past week. The grain is yielding well.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Millbrook

The Wide Awakes C. G. I. T. group met in regular session on Thursday, with the president, Beatrice McDowell, in the chair. Barbara Argue gave the current topic, and Helen Ellsworth was appointed for the next meeting. One poem, "To Be a Girl," was handed in for the group scrap-book, and one new member was received. The practice of supplying each member with a Purpose Card led to the motion to send for a fresh supply of these cards which bear the C. G. I. T. pledge.

Miss May O'Brian left on Thursday at noon for Buffalo where she will spend the winter with her cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Lugadin, and Miss Bessie O'Brian. Her home here is closed for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Yelland have moved this week into the house on King street formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Bonneville, who have gone to Peterborough for the present.

Miss Dorothy Burnham, of Peterborough, was the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham, on Friday.

Miss Folkard, investigator for the Mothers' Allowance Commission, was in the village on a professional visit this week, and called on Miss Beatrice Turner, B. A., the local member of the Durham County Board.

The pupils of the Continuation School are busy preparing the program for the annual commencement, which will take place some time early in December. A play will be one of the features of the program.

All the rooms of he public school had a Hallowe'en party on Wednesday after the recess period, with recitations, songs, and suitable games and contests, together with a treat of candy, apples, etc. The rooms were gay with Hallowe'en decorations in the usual color scheme of orange and black. The young folk of the community were somewhat hampered by the inclement weather on Hallowe'en night, but were out in small bands, dressed in fantastic costumes.

Miss M. E. Needham entertained at tea on Wednesday afternoon, the guest of honor being Mrs. C. W. Walsh, at present visiting in the village and countryside, and a practically life-long friend of Mrs. I. E. Needham, whose many friends were delighted to see her in good health for the occasion.

Miss Nellie Duncan, of Peterborough, recently spent a week with her sister, Mrs. William Wilkinson, and Mr. Wilkinson, returning home last week-end from her visit here.

Miss Jean Bothwell was elected secretary of the Y. P. S. of the Peterborough Presbyterian at the convention in Cobourg last week. Millbrook had eighteen delegates in attendance out of a total enrollment of twenty-five, and attained fourth place in the competition for the Mason cup.

Grace Presbyterian church is celebrating its anniversary occasion on Sunday, November 4, with Rev. W. G. Clarke, B.D., of Bowmanville, a speaker. St. Andrew's United church is withdrawing its evening service out of compliment to the special service being observed by a sister congregation.

Miss Jean Burnham is spending the week-end in Peterborough, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter, and Miss Myrtle Brock.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Sanders have moved into their home, having purchased the house on George Street, formerly belonging to the late Mrs. T. H. Bradley.

The Boneka Bible Class of St. Andrew's Sunday School, is holding a hot supper at the Waverly building on Saturday, November 3, beginning at 5 p.m.

YOUNG MEN URGED TO STUDY FINANCE

Leon Fraser Addresses Friday Night Supper Club.

Young men of today may well profit from the mistakes their fathers made, Leon Fraser of Toronto, well known to Peterborough as a former Chamber of Commerce executive here, told fifty members of the Friday Night Supper Club at the Y.M.C.A. last night. He urged them to learn enough about finance to know how to secure their savings investments against loss.

Pointing out that it is impossible for the young man engaged in other business and industrial pursuits to be at the same time a specialist in finance, he advocated strongly reliance on competent advice in financial matters. A great portion of the people wiped out financially during the present depression have themselves to blame. They considered themselves financial experts when in reality they were mere babes in the woods. They passed up sound investments for speculations and only now have learned their errors, he said.

Speaking of the opportunities for the young man in the business world today, Mr. Fraser spoke of the depression as time of opportunity. Once things have hit bottom and are on the way up, chances for young men open up quickly, he declared.

Express Opinions

Young men who think for themselves and young men who express their opinions, right or wrong, are the men who will make the most of their opportunities, he continued. Expression of opinions results in self-confidence gives the world a chance to apreciate the young man's capabilities if he has any. Remarking that the older generation is passing the business world into the hands of the younger generation at the present time in a very confused condition, he said it was a challenge for the young men to go out and see what they can do.

Teams to sell tickets for the approaching fall and winter series of University extension lectures which is to be sponsored by the Friday Night Supper Club were named. The team captains are Tom Allen, Bob Maybee, Jack Couper, Max Comstock, Harry Marsh, Jack Bradshaw, Ed. McDonald and Jim Rogers.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD—Where, oh where was the La Bennett sense of humor the other night at the Trocadero cafe?

The proudest of the Bennetts was a member of a party of celebrities including Wallace Beery. It was latish and Wallie, from somewhere or other, had secured a newspaper. He stared at a headline and then up at Connie.

Connie Bennett

"Say!" he exclaimed. "Did you see where those two French pilots bailed out of a plane and left the passengers up in the air?"

Whereupon, Connie, who perhaps owns stocks in French airlines, went right up in the air, too: Imagine such a thing taking place! And now what would happen to commercial flying in France.

All through the harangue, Wallie had been sitting a little dazed. Finally, he extended his arms.

"Hey, wait a minute," he interrupted. "That was just a little gag. Why don't you ask me what happened to the passengers?"

The whoop that went up was heard for eight tables.

IF YOU WISH to see what will undoubtedly be chosen as one of the ten best pictures of the year, hurry to the Capitol Theatre on Monday and relax in the lavender and old lace of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new film starring Norma Shearer.

The cast includes some of the greatest names of filmdom, headed by three winners of the Motion Picture Academy Award: Norman Shearer, Frederic March and Charles Laughton. The romantic team's beautiful presentation of an idyllic love story is all the more accentuated by the diabolical character Charles Laughton makes of the elder Barrett.

A SWEET CHILD, Shirley Temple, but at her door must be laid Hollywood's newest headache. The colony is overrun by proud mothers and their prodigies. On the "Sweet Music" set, Alice White told of one woman who actually tried to storm her house. The star was sitting down to dinner when a servant announced a lady outside who said she was Alice's first cousin. Although Alice knows all her relatives, she politely went to the door. The visitor still persisted. She said she was Alice's first cousin and she had come all the way from Youngstown, O., so that Alice could help get her youngster into pictures. The youngster was right there, of course, and willing to go through its tricks.

Alice White

After 10 minutes of questioning, the star finally got the woman to admit she had misrepresented their relationship. And after another 10 of good sound advice, she thinks she persuaded her to go back to Youngstown and give the kid a normal childhood.

AN ENTIRELY new film setting is introduced to the films in Paramount's "She Made Her Bed," a sprightly action romance, which opens Monday at Regent Theatre, with Richard Arlen and Sally Eilers heading the featured cast. The film, produced by Charles R. Rogers and directed by Ralph Murphy, also features Robert Armstrong, Grace Bradley, and Arlen's year-old son.

The film, taken from James M. Cain's famous American Mercury story "Baby in the Ice-Box," is a thrilling tale of a romance at one of those roadside tourist camps that dot every highway in California.

DID YOU KNOW—

That Hubert Prior Vallee got the nickname, "Rudy", in college days because of his admiration for Rudy Diedoett, the saxophone star?

BLONDE AND and glamorous Ann Sothern seems to grow upon one with each succeeding picture.

At any rate, whatever it is, "Blind Date," which opens at the Regent Theatre on Monday, is a delightfully entertaining picture, interspersed with laughs, thrills and heartaches.

Utterly unpretentious and thoroughly clean, it relates a story that is old, yet ever new and pulsating.

Ann Sothern is seen as "Kitty Taylor," sole support of an indolent and numerous family and heart throb of Paul Kelly as "Bill," rough but devotedly struggling mechanic.

So anxious is Bill to remedy the financial situation so that wedding bells may chime, that he neglects Kitty. In righteous indignation she finally accepts a "blind date," Neil Hamilton in the role of "Bob Hartwell," son of a department store magnate, is the date.

The result is mutual and growing interest between the two, and a stormy crash of Bill's hopes.

JOBLESS MOB IMPRISON RELIEF ADMINISTRATOR

LONG BRANCH, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP)—J. S. Tiffin, Relief Administrator, was held imprisoned in relief offices here yesterday by a crowd of several hundred relief recipients who laid siege to the place following an interview with the official.

The demonstration was similar to the one in East York last week, when 500 unemployed held James Malcolm imprisoned until they received assurance extra relief would be granted.

Long Branch jobless demanded stoves, mattresses and other bedding, clothing and extra food and declare their intention of remaining at the welfare depot until their wants are granted.

MIRACLES IN MANHATTAN

Chapters for the Orthodox—Don Marquis, (Doubleday Doran and Co., Toronto, 314 pages).

Notwithstanding the title of Don Marquis' latest work it is probable that a considerable number of people will decide that it is very unorthodox. He says in his introduction that "some people will be genuinely shocked and others will pretend to be shocked because they think being shocked the proper attitude to take." But actually he admits that he can't help being orthodox in his belief of miracles and also that he has a certain degree of sympathy for those who believe in a Personal God and a Personal Devil. It is with this in mind that he writes these hilariously humorous tales of the activities of Jehovah and Satan in modern New York.

There is more than a grain of truth underneath it all and satire is poured on a good many of the foibles of human nature and on some of our modern ideas of religion. There is the incident in which the Devil accompanies Mr. Pettigrew to church and during the service "nonchalantly and in an irreproachably polite manner" strangles the young lady in the pew in front of him. But when the minister remonstrates with Mr. Pettigrew the latter points out how the Devil could wipe out his fortune and how the church income would suffer accordingly. So the incident is hushed up by the police and newspapers.

It is impossible to mention all these stories with their irrespressible good humor. There is Miss Calkins who had a mind "like the operating room in a hospital" but who lost her reputation because the Devil put the dumb-waiter to her apartment out of business. There is the tale of Scipio, the trained flea who saved the world from the millenium—of Old Man Murtrie whom neither God nor the Devil wanted after death and who was let live until finally death spun a coin in front of all the interested parties including the terrified old man himself—of the dashing of Mrs. Walter Van Durden's social aspirations by her brother-in-law's open forgiveness of her past sins—and finally there is sparkling little playlet in which Faust sells his soul to the Devil in return for six mistresses and one Good Woman..

The tradition of Archy and Methitabel is well carried on in this very penetrating and original commentary of us all.

RANDOM NOTES

Among books shortly to be published, we understand, is H. V. Morton's "In the Steps of the Master." Having exhausted the possibilities, it seems, of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, he has now gone further afield and tells us of his travels in Palestine.... Halliday Sutherland has written a successor to "Archer of the Years" and has called it "A Time to Keep." We look forward to more fascinating reminicences .... Mr. Archibald Marshall whose "Nothing Hid" was reviewed in these colmns has recently died in England...."The Taking of the Gry" is the title of John Masefield's latest book. His precious "The Bird of Dawning" was described as "one of the most flawlessly written sea books of our generation."—New York Sun.

Several notable biographies and autobiographies have been published so far this year. The first volume of Philip Snowden's story of his own life will be important as much for its history of the Labor Party in England as for his view that Britain entered the war because of an agreement in spirit if not in treaties with France of which the people knew nothing. He utters a warning that Europe is headed for another 1914 catastrophe. Lloyd George has released the third volume of his war memoirs—a continuation of his story of those fateful years. Mr. H. G Wells, who has achieved fame as a writer and essayist as well as a scientist, historian and economist has published his "Experiment in Autobiography" and includes an intimate story of his life along with considerable comment on world affairs.

Oliver Cromwell has been the subject of two very opposing books of recent date. They are by John Buchan and Hilaire Belloc. The first of these, which will probably be considered the greatest of the author's works, is a picture of Cromwell as a sincere, religious man and very much concerned with his countries' welfare. That he made errors and blunders is admitted, but these were not made through any hope of personal betterment. Belloc, on the other hand, makes Cromwell out to be a scoundrel of the first degree and capable of the most despisable tricks on both friends and foes. However is would seem that he had little evidence to support this view of "The Great Commoner."

For one interested in modern China there is no lack of material. In addition of Peter Fleming's popular travels, there are "A Surgeon's China," by Albert Gervais; "Man's Fate," by Audre Malraux and "The Chinese Soviets" by Victor A. Yakhoutoff. It would appear that China has replaced Russia as the country most apealing to writers of world affairs at the moment.

NEIL McKINTY IS FIRST PRIZE WINNER IN HASTINGS CONTEST

Separate School Advances to County Oratorical Finals at Colborne.

MANY CONTESTANTS

HASTINGS, Nov. 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—Speaking before an audience that jammed Hastings Town Hall to the doors Master Neil McKinty, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McKinty and a pupil of Hastings Separate School, won the annual oratorical contest on Thursday night and the right to meet the best in the county at the finals, to be held in Colborne on November 16th.

A. S. Spooner, secretary of the local public school board and representative from here on the Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, acted as chairman. In a few brief remarks he pleaded with the large crowd to give the young orators a good reception. He then called upon the speakers to come to the front and draw for their position.

The following judges were appointed, all teachers from the district: Misses Graham, Miss M. Torpey, Miss R. Clarke, Miss Burgess, Miss Convey, and M. Rusaw. A. A. Martin, Public School Inspector, was unable to be present.

Robert Dawson, county president, also president of the Belleville district, which comprises seven counties, explained the rules to the judges. Each speaker was allowed seven minutes, and if they went over that, the judges were to use their own judgment. Mr. Dawson strongly advised the contestants to keep their addresses within the time, as it would mean considerable in case they entered the finals.

The program opened with a chorus, "Sisters of Milkmaid," by six girls of the Separate School accompanied by Miss H. Jones on the piano. Recitation, "The Terrible Melinda Green," by Miss Jessie Scriver.

Speaker Number One was Victor Scriver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Scriver, a pupil of the Public School who chose for his subject, "A Boat Trip from Hastings to Lake Simcoe." He gave a very clear description of the beauties as well as the hazards encountered on such a trip.

Solo, "Cattails," by Vincent Herrington, accompanied by Mrs. A. J. McKinty.

Speaker Number Two; Miss Betty Foley of the Separate School; her subject was the "Story of Anne of Green Gables." The youngster did remarkably well with a difficult subject.

Chorus, "Little Billie Bushytail," by four girls of the Junior room of the Public School, accompanied by Miss M. Pulford.

Speaker Number 3; Gus Faux, son of Mrs. William Faux, a pupil of the Separate School, spoke on the "Life of the Late Sir John A. MacDonald." In a clear voice the young orator carried his listeners along through the life of one of Canada's greatest statemen.

Piano Solo.—Aletha Buck.

Speaker Number Four; Elsie Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Nelson, a pupil of the Public School, spoke on "Rapid Transportation." The young lady, in a concise manner, explained the difference between the old way and the modern means of transportation.

Chorus, "Grandfather's Clock," by six girls from the Separate School accompanied by Miss H. Jones.

Speaker Number 5; Walter Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Edwards, who chose a subject dear to the heart of every boy, "My Camp Life Experience." He gave many an interesting experience boys enjoy while camping out.

Solo, Helen Daley, accompanied by Mrs. A. J. McKinty.

Speaker Number Six, Jimmie Mouncey, son of Mr. E. Mouncey, a pupil of the public school. He chose a rather difficult subject in "Beverly Nichols' Book on War." In veteran fashion the youngster dealt with his difficult subject in masterful fashion.

Speaker Number Seven; Mary MacDonald, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, a pupil of the Separate School, had as her subject "A Patchwork Quilt." She outlined some of the many memories that are brought back with the patches on these quilts.

Chorus, "The Cricket Band," by four girls of the Junior Room, accompanied by Miss M. Pulford.

"Granddad Was a Boy"

The last speaker, Neil McKinty, who won the championship, had as his prize winning subject, "When Granddad Was a Boy." The champion orator delivered a very interesting address on a conversation he had with his grandfather on the life of a boy in the olden days and the life of a modern boy.

While the judges were completing their papers, Rev. Father P. J. Kelley spoke a few words.

Father Kelley and Rev. S. H. Hill were appointed scrutineers; while they were out Rev. H. F. Battersby delivered a worthy address of warning to parents.

Before announcing the results, Rev. S. H. Hill spoke a few words and announced the winners as follows:

1—Neil McKinty.
2—Jimmie Mouncey.
3—Walter Edwards.

Mr. Robert Dawson presented the W. A. Fraser Cup to the champion. Councillor Doherty presented the Corporation Cup to the second prize winner, and Mr. A. B. Smith presented the Trustees' Cup to the third. The girls were presented with sweaters and the boys with windbreakers by Mr. A. S. Spooner.

Before the meeting closed, Mr. Dawson, who has done more for these public speaking contests than any man in Central Ontario, extended a cordial invitation to all to attend the annual association meeting and to send in resolutions.

The evening was brought to a close with the National Anthem.

HERE IS SEASON OF FOWL SUPPER

Feast of Plenty and Flow of Oratory Mark Annual Festivals.

By HAROLD J. FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CUMNOCK, Ont., Oct. 31 (C.P.)—In a little country church here was staged on event which has its parallel throughout rural Ontario every fall. Autumn in the farming districts of the province means fowl supper time and countless small churches yearly prepare their annual feasts.

It is not merely a church fete. It's a countryside institution—a tradition.

When Ontario's wooded farmlots change their green to crimson; when corn is stacked on fields dotted with yellow pumpkins; where there is a frosty tang in the air and mayoe some chill moonlight over seared fields fowl supper time is as sure as the season.

Then the people prepare for their annual celebration. There may be church anniversary services Sunday; the supper the following Monday or Tuesday. Meantime all is bustle. Innumerable pumpkin pies are baked. Choice geese and chickens pass from pen to roasting pan. The orchard's finest apples receive a thorough polishing. The successes of the pickling season are brought up from farmhouse cellars to embellish the groaning board.

As soon as the "chores have been done" the countryside flocks to the church. Men stand around to discuss crops and politics, women hurry to the basement for a night's hard work.

Plates of Plenty

There are no entrees or cocktails here; no soup and no side-dishes. The dinner starts immediately with a huge plate of fowl and vegetables. The girls do the serving; older women the kitchen duties. There are pumpkin pies with real whipped cream, lemon pies with genuine frosting, raspberry pies with "windmill' crusts, apple pies, raisin pies and every other kind. Then come cake and home-made bread, moistened by tea colored with rich cream. Verily a feast of plentiful.

After the supper there is a program in the auditorium. Generally the talent is local, with the district politicians and municipal officers taking the opportunity to greet the electorate. They labor over a story or two and sit down, confident of having once more catered to democracy's demands.

Usually all over by 11 p.m.—cars are warmed up and the good old driving mare taken from the church sheds. The homeward trek begins. The annual fowl supper is a matter of local history for another year.

Havelock

Mr. Marko Brdar, native of Zechoslovakia, and popular blacksmith at the Ontario Rock Company's plant, left for Toronto on Friday.

Mr. Fred Pollock has secured the position of caretaker at the Bank of Toronto.

Good progress is being made by Mrs. G. J. Todd in the erecting of a fine new cottage at Belmont Lake to replace the one destroyed by fire. Mrs. Todd has let the work by contract and expects to take up residence in December.

Mr. A. J. Peeling of Gilmour Street, Peterborough, and a former hardware merchant here, was a business visitor here on Thursday.

The many friends of Miss Dorothy Davidson, popular young Havelock girl, will regret to learn of her recent illness which necessitated her removal to St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough.

While walking on stilts last evening near his home on Mathison Street, Ted Yeo, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yeo, fell and had the misfortune to break his right arm. Dr. D. J. Holdcroft was summoned and reduced the fracture.

As a result of innocent playing and make-believe boxing, Grey Kemp, well-known Continuation School student, is going around with an ugly looking black eye. On his way home from school on Friday he was playing with Jack Mathison, who accidentally landed a haymaker on Grey's right optic.

Under the direction of H. C. Renaud, vocal teacher from Norwood, a Glee Club was organized in the Continuation School this week. A special study will be made of part singing and each pupil will be placed in his proper voice class when it has been determined. It was after hearing of the splendid work in Norwood and other schools of the district the step to provide additional musical tuition was taken.

Among the several deer hunting parties being planned from the village is a group going to Twin Lakes and Oak Lake district: Messrs. George Wilde, Andy Puffer, Chas. Ellis and Norris, Jr., Jack, Ted, Arnold and Henry Whitney, Jr.

Mr. S. W. Steenburgh, a Belmont boy who made good, arrived here on Friday from his home in Oakmount, Pa. He will spend a short holiday here with relatives at Belmont and Rockdale.

Touch Not Taste Not Handle Not

WHY the brown study?" teased Alec late one afternoon as he came into the living-room and found Clara curled up on a sofa, sitting very still and looking straight ahead at nothing in particular.

Clara laughed. "I was trying to get the meaning of the words my teacher gave me to-day to copy, 'Touch not, taste not, handle not.'"

Cousin Will looked suddenly very wise. "I think my father knows a story that will make that clear," he said. "Perhaps we can get him to tell it this evening."

Clara jumped up and clapped her hands. "Oh, a story! He will, I know," and it did not require very much urging after supper, when they were all gathered in the living-room, to persuade Uncle Edward to tell them a story which the Japanese call.

Shajo-Hi.

The Japanese make a kind of woollen cloth called "Shajo-hi" which they dye red. The color for this dye, story-tellers say, is obtained from a queer animal that can walk and talk, and that lives down in the bottom of the sea. It is not easy to get these animals to come up, for they are said to be very wise and clever and to know all about the way men try to catch them. There is one trap, however, that is said to catch them, and that is sake, the Japanese beer, made from rice.

The trappers put sake in large jars, place these in the meadows that border the sea, and put dippers beside the jars. They then take the grass growing around and without cutting it off shape it into the form of shoes and leave them on the shore. The men then hide in the grass to watch what happens.

The odour of the beer soon reaches the bottom of the seas, and presently one shajo says to another, "Sansuke shajo, isn't there some kind of a pleasant odour here? It smells like sake. Let us go up out of the water and see."

But the other shajo says, "Oh, no! We must not be so reckless as to go up out of the sea. It is only a trap of those men to get us to drink their sake so that we will get drunk and then they will catch us and kill us."

Then another shajo says. "It is all right to go up provided we do not drink any of the sake. It is much better to go there and smell of the sake than to be here and smell this disagreeable sea-weed."

All the shajo are pleased with this and exclaim, "why, of course, that is true. There surely can be any danger in just smelling of the sake. That will not make us drunk. Come, everybody."

So they go up out of the sea and tiptoe carefully to the sake jars. There they get the odour of the sake much stronger than they did down under the water and they like it so well they keep sniffing it until they are overcome with a desire to taste it.

Finally, one shajo will say, "Oh, I can't stand this mere smelling. Let us each take just one dipperful."

But another shajo says, "No, no, it would be too dangerous to drink sake out of the dippers, but simply to dip our fingers in and lick them off would be quite safe. Let us do that."

So they all put their fingers in the sake and lick them off, and walk around and round the jars doing it again and again and smacking their lips.

Soon one shapo will say to another, "Really this is not enough for me, just to keep licking sake from my fingers. If we only drink a little from the dippers and do not fill them full, we shall not get drunk."

All respond, "That's so! That's right."

So they all take up a little of the sake in the dippers and drink it and smack their lips harder than ever. Presently one will say, "Unless one fills up on sake and gets real drunk, there is no use in drinking it. Besides, there is nothing to show that the shajo who were formerly killed were caught because they were drunk. Why just look down at your feet and you can see what happened. These shoes were the traps. The former shajo were foolish enough to put their feet into these shoes that are all tied down, and go to dancing. We will not put on the shoes and then we can get drunk without danger."

By this time there is no one wise enough to utter a warning, so they all drink until they are drunk. Then one will say, "Oh, why not put on the shoes? If we do not dance and tumble over, there will be no danger in just slipping our feet into the shoes."

So they slip on the shoes and begin to feel very well pleased with themselves because they are wise enough not to get caught. They feel so pleased they began to sing, and as soon as they sing they want to dance to keep time with their singing.

"It will be safe to dance if we don't tumble down," they say. So they try to dance, with their feet in the shoes that are tied fast with the grass, and, of course, as they dance they tumble down and are easily caught.

"The Japanese have a proverb which this story illustrates," said Uncle Edward. "It is this: First the man takes a drink; then the drink takes a drink; then the drink takes the man."

"I see," added Clara. "I think I can write 'Touch not, taste not, handle not,' better to-morrow, now that I know what it means."

It is in beverages that alcohol is used most extensively. It has been suggested that, many thousands of years ago, at the beginning of the agricultural age, a primitive man crushed the juice out of some grapes, and going away for a few days, left it standing. On his return he drank the liquid, and discovered its drugging effect—that it enabled him to forget for a time all the hardships of his life. The excitement and throwing off of self-restraint produced by the drinking of this fermented liquid led to its use in ceremonies and festivals.

To-day science has found out some definite facts about the use of alcohol as a beverage. First of all, alcohol is too strong to be taken pure. It must be diluted with water or some other liquid. All drinks containing alcohol are called "intoxicating." This word means "poisonous." "Toxikon" is the poison wherewith the Greeks used to make their arrows more deadly. Intoxicating drinks come under three classes: wines, beers and spirits. "Fortified," wines are those which have distilled spirits added to them, thus increasing the amount of alcohol in them.

Water is regarded as the greatest beverage. Let us see if alcohol has any of the properties which give water this distinction. First of all, alcohol will burn, while water will not burn; again, water has no taste, but alcohol has a sharp burning taste. Alcohol hardens food by taking the water from it; water, on the other hand, softens food. The greatest difference, however, is in the fact that whereas water is a real thirst-quencher, alcohol actually creates thirst. We have seen that alcohol has a great tendency to absorb water from substances. It has this action on the tissues of the body. When the body loses water, thirst is created. And so alcohol is a thirst-producer.

Unfermented fruit juices have a very refreshing effect. They also possess valuable substances which are important for the smooth-working of the body. They have none of the injurious effects which are brought about by the alcohol in fermented liquids. When the juice is pressed out of the fruit it should be heated to the boiling-pint and sealed right away. It should not be allowed to stand uncovered lest yeast-germs get into it from the air.

We have plenty of refreshing, wholesome drinks. We know that alcohol does harm to our bodies. What basis then have we for drinking beverages containing it?

Baby clubs, so popular in England this winter, include tomatoes, sardines, herrings and tripe in the diet for the youngsters.

TRADE STANDING OF CANADA, U. S. NEEDS BOOSTING

Montreal Official Points to Fact Both Able to Make Pacts Abroad.

BUT FAIL AT HOME.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (CP)—Anomaly of Canada and the United States making trade pacts with far distant countries and yet apparently unable to reach a fair trade agreement between themselves was stressed here Friday by R. J. Magor, president of the Montreal Board of trade, before the annual meeting of the National Foreign Trade Council. Mr. Magor, who is also the vice-president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, is chairman of the special delegation of that organization to the meeting.

In efforts to improve trade conditions between Canada and the United States, said Mr. Magor, "we may profit by one experience and avoid the highly explosive and completely misleading word "reciprocity," and prevent our political friends, who are sometimes more dangerous than our enemies, from stirring up even the memories of 1911. The discussion then, as now, was supposed to have to do with trade, but it was difficult to confine the discussion in Canada to trade matters when friends of reciprocity in the United States claimed that 'Canadian annexation is the logical conclusion of reciprocity for Canada.'

Missing the Point

"On our side it was said by some that the choice lay between the Unior Jack or Old Glory. In such an atmosphere the fact we were aiming to increase trade between the two countries was lost sight of. If we want to make progress in putting into force a trade agreement, the discussions should be about trade."

Under existing conditions with Canada and the United States trading freely with other countries, it was difficult to understand why there was no trade agreement between the two countries particularly as the joint trade between them totalled over $23,000,000 during the last 30 years, Mr. Magor continued.

He declared, "Unless we are careful we both will have parcelled out all our commodities with other countries and there will be nothing left with which to trade. It would then be a case of there being no blessing left for Jacob, as it had already been conferred on Esau."

Bridgenorth

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sidey are visiting their son, Walter, at Amherstburg.

Mrs. George Bell was brought home on Tuesday, from Nicholls' Hospital.

Fairview services on Sunday are now: Sunday school at 1.30; public worship of God, at 2.30.

A dramatic group from St. James United, Peterborough, will present their play, "Plain Talk," in Fairview Church, Wednesday evening, November 14.

A Sunday school institute for Smith Township will be held in Bridgenorth church on Tuesday, November 13th. The afternoon session begins at 4 o'clock, with group discussions for officers and teachers. There will be a supper meeting with a discussion of practical ways and means of making our Sunday school work a success. The evening meeting is to be at 8. The purpose of the meeting is to help each officer and teacher of our Sunday schools to become more efficient in their duties. Questions and problems will have a large place on the program.

A bale of used clothing has been gathered for the needy of the West and North. This bale, considering the scarcity of used clothing, is both large and made up of very good warm things. Five new quilts are being sent. Two of these are from the Selwyn W.A., two from Bridgenorth, and one from "The Sunshine Broadcasters" Class of Fairview S. S.. The girls who attend this class met at the home of Misses Marjorie and Bertha Mahood, had a pot luck supper and quilted their quilt. Mrs. Harold Lewis is the teacher of this class.

Mr. Wilson Blewett is building a new house, near his sawmill, at Chemong Lake.

The ladies of Selwyn gathered at the church one day recently, oiled the floors, and made other much needed improvements.

The people of Selwyn, and the Young People especially, are reminded that commencing next Sunday, Nov. 4, a Bible Study Class will be conducted by the minister from 10 to 11.

Anniversary services at Bridgenorth, last Sunday evening was well attended. The choir's offering of music was well received. The sermon was delivered by Rev. J. G. McKee of Little Britain, a former minister of the Methodist church here.

Men's Club on Monday evening held their monthly Ladies' Nite; nearly 50 were in attendance.

Mr. McKee gave a splendid address on "One's Goal in Life." It contained both wit and wisdom.

The subject for discussion at the three Young Peoples' next week, is: "Why Fight?" "The History of War." The next four weeks will be given over to a discussion by our young people upon the subject of war—its causes, and how i may be prevented.

ENNISMORE

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Flood of Toronto, visited their daughter, Mrs. Harrington, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Murphy visited friends in Douro on Sunday.

Mr. D. J. McLean of Beaverton, made a trip through here recently.

4TH PETERBORO TROOP.
The 4th Peterboro Troop (Church of the Sacred Heart) was re-organized after about 3 years' delay of activities.

An introductory meeting was held last night in the basement of the church and 8 boys were received into the new troop, all keen and willing to do their best along scouting. Lively games were played and the aims of the organization were discussed and an outline of future activities were given by the boys

Michael Crough is acting scoutmaster with Rover Scout Ladislaus Dominik as assistant scoutmaster Meetings will be held in the basement of the church every Friday. The new troop is planning to have a hike in the very near future.

BRITISH ISRAEL MEETINGS START

John B. Christian of Toronto, Opens Series Lectures on "Divine Marriage."

The initial meeting of the Fall and Winter series of lectures given under auspices of Peterborough Branch of the British-Israel Federation, was held last evening when John B. Christian of Toronto addressed a local meeting on the subject of "The Divine Marriage."

Held in Paragon Hall, which has been reserved by the society for the entire season, the meeting was presided over by Howard Shackleton, the vice-president, while Thomas Smith, secretary, presided at the piano.

The chairman announced that in the near future, Mrs. G. E. Altree Coley, distinguished author and lecturer, is to visit the city. She was referred to as one of the leaders of British-Israel thought in the Dominion. She is a journalist by profession and in her special work of garden-writing has contributed to all leading magazines on the continent.

In his address Mr. Christian drew an analogy throughout between the human marriage ceremony and "the divine marriage" between God and the nations of the world.

The church, he said, was not the bride of Christ, but was the body of Christ. Christ as head of the Church was the bridegroom, which the nation Israel and all the other nations that would eventually come into Israel, was the bride. The translation, Mr. Christian stated, had been mistakenly called not so.

He indicated by the great Pyramid that the year 1947 was predicted to be the year in which the bride Israel would have become fully prepared as the bride of Christ. By that time, according to prophecy, he said, the nations would have realized their proper identity and would accordingly know whom they should serve. The present period of chaos through which the world was passing, he believed, to be due to a disregard of the divine laws.

The coming events to which he referred, were said by the speaker, to be of important significance to the whole world, but especially to the British Commonweath of Nations.

He argued that while Israel was rejected and punished as a nation-wife because of her unfaithfulness, "we are thankful to God to-night tmhat she is not to remain in that state." Israel would be prepared for the Divine marriage, Mr. Christian contended, just as soon as she readopted the laws of God and brought into the fold those who were willing to adopt those laws.

Obituary

MRS. JOHN WADE
The death occurred in the city yesterday of Elizabeth O'Neill, the beloved wife of John Wade of Lot 4, Concession 8, Hamilton Township at the age of 56 years. A native of Hamilton Township, she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Terrance O'Neill. Surviving are her sorrowing husband; two sons, Frank of Collingwood and Charles; and one daughter, Anna, both at home; also two sisters, Mrs. Doyle and Mrs. Charles McCabe in Western Canada, and five brothers, Terrance, James, Charles, Felix and John, all of Saskatchewan.

The funeral is to be held from the family residence, one mile south of Harwood on Monday morning, with a celebration of Requiem Mass at St. Mary's Church at nine o'clock. Interment at St. Michael's Cemetery, Cobourg.

MISS ELIZABETH STEELE
The death occurred on Friday of Elizabeth Steele, at 110 Simcoe street, in her 89th year. The deceased was a native of Glasgow, Scotland, and came to this country with her parents when a young woman. She had resided in this city for the past sixty years.

Remains are resting at Duffus Funeral Parlors until Monday, when services will be held at 3 p.m., followed by interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

Y.W.C.A. Campaign Meeting With Success

Reports on the Y.W.C.A. financial campaign are most encouraging. Several new subscriptions have been received and a number of increases, so that the canvassers are encouraged and are sincerely hoping the full objective will be reached. Many calls have been made by the collectors, but many reports have come in that the subscribers were not in. The campaign has therefore had to be extended another week. Subscriptions sent in to the Y.W.C.A. will be very much appreciated and will help the canvassers very much.

DAILY SHOOT.
Kay Blakley was winner of the daily shoot at George Street Rifle Range yesterday. He had a score of 114 out of a possible 120 points. Other high scorers were: M. Pearse, M. R. Harrison, W. A. Zeihr, B. Dorrington, S. Milligan.

FRUIT EXPORTS ARE IMPROVING

Canadian Apples Go to Seventeen Different Countries—163,437 Barrels in Year.

BLUEBERRIES POPULAR.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3. (CP).—Canada's export trade in fresh fruits is showing marked improvement this year, according to the Department of Trade and Commerce. The value of fresh fruit exported in the first half of the current fiscal year amounted to $916,060, an increase of $171,309 over the corresponding period last year.

Canada exported fresh apples to 17 different countries of the world and the total quantity shipped from April 1 to the end of September totalled 163,437 barrels, valued at $595,250 as compared with 141,434 barrels valued at $487,960 last year. The United Kingdom took the bulk of Canada's apples shipments with the British West Indies as a group coming in second place.

Belgium increased her imports of Canadian apples from 170 barrels to 12,323 barrels and the United States from 1,347 barrels to 4,017 barrels.

Apples to Egypt
The market for Canadian apples in Egypt was only developed last year when 252 barrels were imported in the first six months. This year, 1,996 barrels have already been shipped to that country. While most of Canada's exports of 2,819,927 pounds of blueberries this year to date went to the United States, small quantities were sent to Newfoundland and Bermuda. Similarly Hong Kong and Alaska took small shipments of fresh Canadian strawberries although the bulk of 174,754 pounds went to the United States. Exports of other berries amounted to 24,270 pounds.

Besides apples and berries, Canada exported other fresh fruit to the value of $132,035 as compared with $92,950 last year. While the United Kingdom took the bulk of such shipments smaller quantities went to Argentina, Brazil, Egypt, Hong Kong, Alaska, the British West Indies, Bermuda and the United States.

POPPY DAY
SATURDAY, NOV. 10th

As the time for our annual Poppy Day campaign draws near, we make one more appeal to you for your ready and generous help.

The need this year is greater than ever. Less work was obtainable throughout the year, consequently lots of our ex-service men find themselves in a more helpless condition than ever through being unable in lots of cases, to supply the bare necessities of life.

These men in 1914-1918 gave their all in defence of the ideals of the Empire, Justice, Liberty, love of Home and love of God. They suffered. They are now suffering more than the ordinary citizen through the depression, we must admit, because the war took out of them what ordinarily would have kept them more fit for many years to come.

Will you, in grateful acknowledgment of their service, give and give liberally to our Poppy Campaign, in order that we may be able to help them over the days of difficulty, which seem to be increasing every day.

As a result, may I say that these men, whether members of the Canadian Legion or not, are looking to the Legion to give leadership, and we will be judged by the measure of success we secure. They may criticize us, as they do, but they appreciate our value, and it is for us to see that we do not fail them.

The administration of the money entrusted to this Branch last year, has been well and ably performed. Not one cent has been misused and not one deserving ex-service man or family has been overlooked by the Legion and our ladies' Auxiliary.

Yours truly,

J. ABRAHAM, Chairman Poppy Committee.

DIDN'T KISS HER IN 19 YEARS IS CLAIM OF BARONET'S WIFE

Sir Edward Durand Loses Plea For Restitution of Conjugal Rights

THEY RARELY SPOKE

Lake Vyrnwy.—A baronet who, it was revealed by the judge, had lived with his wife for years without speaking to her save on business matters and had not kissed her since 1919, was the petitioner in a divorce court action.

He is Sir Edward Durand, a retired army officer, and he petitioned unsuccessfully for a decree for the restitution of conjugal rights against his wife, Lady (Vera Helen) Durand, nee Lucas-Tooth.

Lady Durand opposed the petition, alleging that she and her husband, separated by mutual agreement and, moreover, that she had reasonable ground for refusing to live with him, and that the petition was not presented with sincerity.

The marriage was at Holy Trinity church, Brompton, in July, 1913. The separation dated from March, 1932.

Giving judgment, Mr. Justice Langton said that from 1922 Sir Edward and Lady Durand lived a very singular existence. Sir Edward followed his country pursuits, mainly consisting of shooting and polo. His wife hunted and occupied herself with a farm, but of married life as generally understood there appeared to have been practically no trace.

"The evidence," Mr. Justice Langton went on, "is that they rarely spoke, not from any disinclination on the wife's part but because her husband did not think it worth while to address any observations to her.

"For ten years before they separated," said his lordship, "Sir Edward and Lady Durand had not been leading a married life in any real sense of the word at all. It was an empty husk of a married life, perhaps. They did live in the same house, ate their meals together, and were served by the same servants. Sir Edward said he had not kissed his wife for a good number of years; she said not since 1919."

The petition was dismissed with costs.

WOMAN MAYOR BANS SUNDAY CIRCUS SHOW

"Oxford Is Different," She Says, Also Objecting to Mae West Film

Oxford.—Miss L. S. Tawney, mayor of Oxford, has banned the Sunday exhibition of a circus menagerie.

She also suggested that a divine service to be held in the circus tent for the staff on Sunday should not take place.

The circus officials have decided to hold the service, but to bow to the ban on the menagerie.

Miss Tawney showed her disapproval of Mae West's film, "I'm No Angel," by refusing to attend the opening of a new cinema where it was being exhibited.

"There are no other places of amusement open in Oxford on Sunday," she said, "and I see no reason why the menagerie should be open."

When Miss Tawney was told that Sunday showing of the menagerie had taken place in other cities, including the cathedral towns of Norwich and Ipswich, and that the Bristol, London, and Whipsnade zoos, and the zoo three miles from Oxford were all open to the public on the Sabbath, she replied that "Oxford is different."

POLICE PUT STOP TO 'PIRATE' STATION

Dismantle Equipment of Mystery Broadcaster

Norwich. — The mystery broadcaster who allegedly has been entertaining mornings with a recital of gramophone records and music played with an American organ was caught by post-office officials.

He is G. H. Barker of Blackwell Ave., Norwich, a motor salesman.

The broadcast started at eleven o'clock and at eleven-thirty wireless engineers and a uniformed policeman drove up to Mr. Barker's house in the detector car and dismantled the apparatus, taking parts of it with them.

A post-office official said: "For the past month we have had our scouts out and each Sunday a direction finder van came down London."

Mr. Barker used to announce himself as "The old pirate broadcaster." He is a brother of the boy who was responsible some months ago for the mystery broadcasts.

"I am afraid the game is up now. I should like to have gone on, but I cannot," Mr. Barker told a reporter.

LORD WILLINGDON HAS OFFICE IN AEROPLANE

Manchester.—Probably the most luxurious aeroplane ever planned is nearing completion at the Avro works. It will be a limousine of the air, and will have many of the comforts of a first-class hotel.

The machine, a four-engined monoplane, is being built for the personal use of the viceroy of India, Lord Willingdon.

The cabin includes a drawing-room, dining-room, and an office in which Lord Willingdon will be able to deal with official matters while in flight. All will be furnished and decorated in exclusive styles.

The machine will have a maximum speed of 150 m.p.h., and a cruising speed of 127 m.p.h. On special journeys it will be able to fly 600 miles without refuelling.

SHE TRAINED CATTLE TO KNOCK FOR WATER

Octogenarian Always Wore Girlhood Bonnet

Hereford.—Miss Leah Berrow, an 80-year-old cattle breeder, who died at Landimore Farm, Clehonger, always wore a poke bonnet given to her as a girl; never spent one night away from her farm in her life; never rode in a train, and treated herself with old-fashioned remedies when ill.

She trained one of her cattle to bang on the door with an empty bucket when the herd needed water on Sundays.

CHOOSE SINGLE WOMEN FOR MATRIMONY BOARD

No Wives on Committee to Promote Happier Homes

London.—No married woman will sit on the committee set up by the home office to inquire into "the application of conciliation methods to matrimonial disputes."

One of the objects of this committee is to consider the desirability of appointing "marriage menders" to police courts.

Two women will sit on the committee of nine. One is a civil service "principal" attached to the home office; the other a prominent social worker. Both are unmarried.

Ten thousand separation orders were made by magistrates last year. The aim of the "marriage menders," if the committee decides to recommend their appointment, will be to lower this toll of matrimonial wreckage.

The home office plans to give Britain happier homes by keeping the marriage knot tied "by conciliation methods," it is stated.

"Dear me, no—of course not," protested an official when asked if there was any discrimination against married women. "Why should the home office be prejudiced against a woman merely because she is married? It simply amounts to this—no married woman happened to be chosen. That is all."

FREED OF MURDER BOY KISSES MOTHER

"Now I'll Be Getting Along," He Says

Wells.—Edward Macey, an 18-year-old farm laborer, was found "not guilty" and acquitted of the charge of murdering his employer's wife, at the Somerset assizes. The verdict was cheered by a great crowd that had gathered outside the court.

The jury were absent for an hour and a half. When they returned they said, in answer to the judge's question: "We find the prisoner 'not guilty'."

The clerk of assize asked them if they meant not guilty of murder. The foreman replied: "Not guilty of anything."

Macey left the dock at once. He kissed and embraced his mother, who had been waiting in a room below.

"Now I'll be getting along," he said.

BRITISH WELCOME GERMANS

Edinburgh.—Gunfire from the batteries of Edinburgh Castle welcomed the first German warship to enter the Firth of Forth since the high seas fleet surrendered. The guns boomed when the low outline of the Deutschland was sighted through the mist. The ship anchored in Leith Roads for a four-day visit.

RUN OVER BY TRAIN GIRLS SLIGHTLY HURT

Pull One Child From Under Last Coach, Other Between Rails

Frome. — A passenger train ran over two little girls and the whole length of it passed over them—without seriously injuring either.

The children had wandered on to the permanent way.

When the engine driver, George Bosley, saw them his train was rushing over the metals between Wells and Witham. They were only a few yards away.

He jammed on his brakes but could not stop the train until after had had run over both children.

One of the children was pulled out from under the last coach. The other was found lying on the permanent way further back along the line.

They were suffering only from bruises and shock.

Driver Bosley of Mary Rd., Wells, said afterwards: "I observed objects in between the rails and then noticed they were little children. I applied the brakes as quickly as possible and brought the train to a standstill. The front of the engine appeared to hit the children."

The children were two-year-old Barbara Haines and her three-year-old sister Betty, who live in a cottage at Witham Friary.

They were put on the train later and taken to Frome hospital where they were kept for the night.

MAN SAVED AFTER 24 HOURS IN HOLE

Rescuers Set Broken Leg 300 Feet Below Surface

Skipton. — Twenty-four hours after he had begun a descent of a pothole, a man who had broken his leg 300 feet below was brought to the surface.

Dr. Wilson of Settle and a rescue party had gone to his aid when his companions raised the alarm.

By the light of candles and torches playing on the walls of the cave in which the man lay the doctor set the broken leg. A stretcher was improvised and the difficult climb to the entrance was accomplished.

The man was Reginald Weetman, aged twenty-eight, of Compleston-lane, York. With friends from York he descended Gingling Hole on Foundations Fell, three miles above Settle—one of the most difficult potholes to descend in the Craven district of Yorkshire. When nearly 300 feet below the ground a boulder fell on Weetman, breaking his leg.

MAN OFFERS SELF ALIVE TO SCIENCE

Sufferer From Mystery Disease Is Turned Down

Llanllar.—H. E. Gibbin offers his living body for experiments by research workers.

He was a Chinese missionary who lived two years in a mud hut and contracted a mystery disease which no doctor could name; he was invalided home.

He worked ten years in Lingfield, Surrey, epileptic colony, then made his offer to Medical Research Council, thinking humanity would gain; it was refused

His offer is still open to other countries; meanwhile, Mr. Gibbin is to help Salvation Army in South Wales.

FATAL QUARREL AT CHESS

Bombay.—What is believed to be the first case of a fatal quarrel at chess occurred at Simla. Two cousins were playing peaceably until one claimed to have "queened" a pawn. The other denied it, and the two men came to blows. One received injuries from which he died.

These little porkers need not worry over the great English bacon problem—they've been selected by the girl as "all her very own". She is the daughter of a farmer at Staplehurst, Kent.

SEEKING ELUSIVE MOVIE FAME DOCTOR ABANDONS PRACTICE

One of Hundreds Who Apply For Work in Theatricals

VERY FEW LUCKY

London.—There is a tragic side to the big British film boom, writes Paul Holt, in the "Daily Express." Tales of fortunes and deeds of derring-do have inspired duke's daughter, cook's daughter, shopgirl and dairymaid to invade the theatrical quarters of the west end to seek a career on the films—sometimes with disastrous results.

There are 20,000 names registered in the books of the recognized west end film agents to-day. Less than one per cent. of that number are in regular film employment.

Less than one per cent. of that one per cent. have the remotest chance of ever being more than guinea-a-day film extras.

A guinea a day is good pay — if you get it every day.

Most film extras are content with a maximum of three days' work a week. And out of their guinea they have to pay: fares, agent's fee and lunch in studio canteen.

That leaves a rough total of $11 a week. Out of which they have to maintain a complete wardrobe of dress clothes—and probably an ailing mother at home.

Yet the lure of the films is so strong that nothing short of an act of parliament will put a stop to this trafficking in vanity.

London Lures Them

For instance, a Scottish doctor threw up a lucrative practice in Midlothian to come to London to seek a film career. He was earning $2,500 a year. In the past two months he has had eight days' employment in film studios. His income has dropped from $50 to $5 a week. Yet he still believes he has what it takes to be a film star.

Eric Goodhead, film agent, summed up the matter by saying: "I have 2,000 names on my books. Regularly, I can use a hundred people. In the past two years the applications for film work have increased to such an alarming extent that I am now forced to put the following questions to every one: 'Have you had any film or stage experience? Have you any money to see you through? Have you a job that you are thinking of giving up to do film work? Even then, I know that more than 50 per cent. of the people I am handling have no chance of ever getting regular work in films."

ATTENDANT 14 TIMES IS HERSELF MARRIED

London.—A girl who had been a bridesmaid at fourteen weddings was herself married at St. Mark's church, North Audley St.

She was Miss Marjorie Wickes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wickes, of Edenbridge, Kent. The bridegroom was G. R. Appleyard, one of the youngest members on the roll of the city companies.

"After so much practice I found it the easiest thing in the world to arrange for my own wedding," Miss Wickes said.

STARVING AMIDST GOLD

Warsaw.—A beggar found starving in a Lodz garret was taken to a hospital. Stuffed in the straw mattress on which he had been lying the police found 2,840 gold and silver coins. After the hospital expenses had been paid, an account at a bank was opened for the beggar with the rest of the money.

RESCUED TIGRESS

Madras, India.—Two fire engines and a dozen men worked for three hours to finally rescue a tigress which had escaped from the zoo and fallen into a water moat.

'ROBOT' COUNTS CARS NOTES TRAFFIC JAMS

Sightless Gadget Flashes Impressions to Signal-Control Centre

London.—An entirely new method of traffic control is to be adopted in the borough of St. Marylebone, involving the largest contract yet placed in this country for the supply of signals.

It has been approved by the minister of transport and it will cost nearly $200,000. Sixty per cent. of this will come out of the road fund.

The scheme includes the use of a new invention called the traffic integrator. It is believed to be the most human robot ever devised and its duty will be to note the pulsations of traffic with super-sensitive unseen eyes.

This automatic point policeman, tucked away in a mass of machinery below the traffic lights, will be specially on the watch for any tendency towards traffic jams.

Its decisions will be transmitted immediately to the automatic master controller of the traffic lights, so that adjustments to the time cycles can be made to ensure a right of way in accordance with the volume of vehicles on the roads.

Experts have been working on the invention for months, profiting by the weaknesses of other traffic control systemes.

They have had the ministry of transport behind them. The installation will be the first of its kind in the world.

It has been decided, as a beginning, to equip fifty-five road junctions with the new signals. Work on this will start at once.

CAR LAMPS LIGHT BRAVE SEA RESCUE

Hold Child's Head Above Waves Till Help Comes

Westcliff.—A four-year-old child, whose head his father and his uncle held just clear of the sea lashed by a sixty m.p.h. gale, was rescued by the light of motor car lamps.

They had been out with two friends in the yacht Sunbeam. They tried to land in two dinghies.

One dinghy capsized almost at once. The two men in it—Norman Nelmes and James Watson—made their way back to the yacht.

The other dinghy turned turtle halfway to the shore. Edward Hatchard held his four-year-old son David with one hand and grasped the keel of the upturned boat with the other.

His brother Louis supported the child on the other side.

Mr. Nelmes swam to the rescue. He dived, trying to pull off Mr. Hatchard's sea-boots. He tried to rescue the boy. When he failed, he swam back to the yacht.

The lifeboat was summoned. Before it arrived a local boatman named Davis got his boat launched and went to the rescue of the shouting trio he could not see.

Scores of motor cars, driven from their parking place to the edge of the sea wall, sent the rays of their head-lamps streaming over the heaving water.

Davis located the struggling victims in the glare, picked them up, and brought them ashore.

WORKS ON FARM AT 94

Has a Witty Tongue and Is Sociable Companion

North Sydney, N.S.—For 60 years he was employed in the shipbuilding industry in Cape Breton, and to-day Alexander Gunn, at the age of 94 years, goes about his daily chores on his farm at New Harris with the vigor of a man who might be a score or more years younger. He has lived a full and happy life, worked hard, raised a large family, and as he approaches the century mark, in full possession of his faculties, an intelligent mind and a witty tongue make him a companion for youth and old age.

FACTORY SITES ARE SCARCE AS REAL ESTATE BOOMING

Many Make Small Fortunes When Land Values Soar

INDUSTRIES MOVE

London.—Land prices are soaring. Industrial sites are becoming so scarce that soon manufacturers will be forced outside the ten-mile radius to seek accommodation. These facts, among the strongest supporting the optimists, are revealed in the October industrial property market report of Messrs. Chamberlain and Willows.

Small fortunes are being made by landowners who saw the trend of values a few years ago and waited for the present high prices.

Others who have benefited include farmers, speculators who bought large areas when the cost was low, and private residents.

One of the latest important deals was the sale of a large site at the junction of the Great West Rd. and Chiswick High Rd.

The price was $25,000 an acre. Ten years ago similar land was worth only a little more than a tenth of that sum.

Twelve acres in Tottenham purchased four years ago at $1,250 an acre have just been sold again for $7,500 an acre. Values are still rising. In six months' time similar land in Tottenham will cost more.

Six years ago a plot at Mitcham was bought for $1,250 an acre. Two years later it changed hands at $5,000 an acre. The owners have now received an offer of $8,750, but will not take it.

Land values at Acton have increased five times in the last few years, and in Western Ave. they have more than doubled the high prices of two years ago.

FIRE BRIGADE WAITS FOR BOAT TO DOCK

Notified by Wireless, Equipment Speeds to Wharf

London.—Firemen, warned by wireless, waited on a London wharf for a vessel to berth so that they could fight an outbreak in one of the holds.

More than a score of engines and a hundred men equipped with smoke helmets sped to Butler's wharf, Bermondsey, following an SOS from the 3,000-ton steamer Leopardi of Fiume.

The ship was due from Palermo with a valuable cargo, and it was learned that fire had broken out in number three hold.

The moment the vessel berthed firemen ran up the gangways and hose were slid slid over her side to pour water into the hold, which is immediately below the bridge.

When it was opened dense volumes of smoke poured out. The heat was so great that it was impossible to reach the seat of the fire at the bottom of the hold. The precautionary measure taken by the crew had saved the cargo from serious damage.

DOES 750,000 STITCHES DURING 2 YEARS' WORK

London.—Miss Crookshank, sister of Captain Harry Crookshank, the under-secretary of state for home affairs, stitched steadily for two years.

She presented the Dean of Lincoln with the result of her industry—a set of altar furnishings for the cathedral.

Miss Crookshank put nearly three-quarters of a million stitches into the furnishings.

FISHER LASSIES DON FUR WRAPS, BERETS

But Work in Oilskins and Knee-Boots

Yarmouth. — Twelve hundred fisher lassies from Scotland took Yarmouth by storm recently.

Five special trains, travelling through the night, carried them to the East Anglian town in preparation for the herring harvest.

In their fur coats, silk stockings and smart shoes and berets they provided a striking contrast to the fisher lassies of days gone by.

After their "specials" had arrived, another train pulled into Yarmouth. In it was their luggage — stout wooden chests holding their shawls, oilskins and knee-boots. These constitute their working outfits.

PRINCE CUTS INTO HILL TO BUILD OWN PALACE

Court Extravagance Prevents Maharajah From Ruling State

London.—The Viceroy of India has refused permission to the Maharajah of Alwar to visit his state, from which he was sent away following a rebellion two years ago.

A new set of British officials will shortly enter the principality to assist those who are already there to straighten its finances.

It had been hoped to right them in two years, but it has now been found that the reckless extravagance of years on the part of the court has sapped the state's wealth.

It has been discovered that in 1928 courtiers and dancing girls were drinking Imperial Tokay, 100 years old, bought from an Hungarian nobleman at $125 a bottle.

Another extravagance laid bare is that the whole side of a hill was blasted away to make room for a palace, and that as soon as the palace had been erected by a London firm, orders were given for it to be demolished and re-erected elsewhere.

The ruler had found that the site was not so congenial as he had expected.

The viceroy has now declared that his state must remain closed to the maharajah for an indefinite period.

But the maharajah's courts are functioning in his name, and officers and men of his state forces are still under oath of personal allegiance to him!

THE SAAR TO GERMANY BOASTS NAZI CALENDAR

Propagandists Circulate Forecast of Events Before Plebiscite

London.—Throughout the Saar territory Nazi propagandists are circulating a "plebiscite calendar."

At the top is a colored tag, in the national colors, which is changed daily to show the number of days before the plebiscite.

At the bottom is this cryptic sentence: "On January 10, 1935, the Saar returns to Germany!"

The actual plebiscite does not take place until January 13.

Printed on the calendar is a forecast of events preceding the plebiscite:—

January 10: The Winning Post.
January 11: Knox Out.
January 13: Voting.

Geoffrey Knox is the English president of the Governing Commission of the Saar.

WOMAN, 106, HAS LAST TOOTH OUT

Survives Extraction, Done Without Gas

Southampton.—Dentists hold no terror now for Miss Mary Ann Vaughan, Southampton's oldest inhabitant, who is in her 106th year.

One by one her teeth came out with increasing age. But one there was that remained a solitary diehard, not out for a century.

Recently it grew stubborn and ached terribly, so Miss Vaughan faced the dentist for the last time.

The dentist decided that it was unsafe to give her either gas or cocaine, but Miss Vaughan is made of sterner stuff than most.

"All right," she said, "take it out without."

And the dentist did, and Miss Vaughan is now in the best of spirits again, not at all perturbed by the loss of a last tooth.

MONK BECOMES VICAR

Appointment of Benedictine Divine Causes Surprise

London.—A Benedictine monk is to be the vicar of a church in the West End of London.

It was officially announced from Fulham Palace recently that the Rev. Dom Bernard Clements, O.S.B., has, with the consent of the community, been appointed vicar of All Saints, Margaret St., of which the Bishop of London is patron.

The appointment has caused surprise in ecclesiastical circles. All Saints is known as the "Cathedral of Anglo-Catholicism." Its clergy-house has been described as a "cradle of colonial bishops."

Father Clements (the Rev. William Dudley Clements) became a member of the Anglican Benedictine community after acting as curate at Friern Barnet and as chaplain in the navy.

STRANDED ON DERELICT SHIP MEN PLAY JAZZ, SHOOT RATS

"Hang on" Hoping to Get Wages Long Overdue

BOAT SLOWLY SINKS

London.—A British skipper and chief engineer stranded for 20 months with a derelict Chinese-owned steamer in the harbor of Amoy are still hanging on in the hope of getting the $12,000 due to each of them for wages.

The two men are Captain Philip H. Going and R. C. Pass, the chief engineer. With the ship's doctor and purser, both Filipinos, they have been for months alone on the S.S. Asia, a 4,000-ton Glasgow-built cargo steamer, owned by a bankrupt Chinese company.

At the end of 1932 the Asia moored in Amoy harbor and has not been to sea since. Gradually members of the crew left the ship, while fittings, brasswork, and at last even the lead pumps disappeared at night, to be sold ashore.

The loss of the bilge pumps led to a dangerous accumulation of water which cannot be pumped out. Three hundred tons of loose water have by now entered the hold. But the officers only hope of receiving any payment is in keeping the ship afloat.

One afternoon the officers went ashore to watch a football match. When they returned the Asia had a list of about 25 degrees.

Expecting to see her capsize at any moment, the skipper, chief engineer, doctor and purser, with the help of the last remaining three Chinese sailors, worked throughout the night shifting stone ballast in the water-filled hold.

"This being a Chinese ship in a Chinese port, the British can do nothing for us," writes Capt. Going. "I have no idea yet whom the court intends to recognize as owners of this ship, and I do not know how, even, or from whom we shall get the money due to us.

"I have been able to get some plain food from various sources, and we are not starving so far. I am keeping very well and cheerful, and not at all down-hearted, as our Chinese lawyer is in hopes of getting us some money, sooner or later."

The skipper had a dispute with the stewards and cooks, who left the vessel. The chief engineer, doctor and purser now do the cooking, taking it in turns to get up at 5 a.m. After meals the three wash up, and the captain sweeps up the mess-room and lays the table for the next meal.

The skipper pays a warm tribute to the British consul for his help.

The chief engineer formed an orchestra with home-made instruments. Mr. Cruz, the purser, is an accomplished violinist, while the doctor plays a banjo of sorts, and the engineer is jazz-drummer and vocalist.

BLACK CAT BRINGS WOE

Budapest.—The proverbially unlucky black cat brought disaster to the driver and three passengers in a car travelling at 70 miles an hour. Imra Hunyard was driving with two friends when the windshield of his car broke and a black cat flew in his face after dropping a sparrow from its mouth. The driver was badly scratched and bitten. The cat had evidently jumped after the sparrow and got hold of its prey at the moment when the windshield struck an overhanging branch.

GUILLOTINE AWAITS MURDERESS AGED 19

Evidence Shows Girl Danced While Parents Were Dying

Paris.—"You are condemned to have your head cut off in a public square of Paris clad in a shift down to your feet, which shall be bare, and a black hood shall cover your head."

With eyes bulging out of her head and her face as white as chalk, Violette Nozieres, the girl who poisoned her father, heard this terrible sentence condemning her to die the death of a parricide.

"I won't appeal! You are merciless!" she screeched. "I . . . mother!"

Her voice failed her. She pushed away the arm of the warder in the dock, and struck him in the face. Others closed in on her, and struggling, screaming wildly, the condemned girl was dragged from the court.

Thus ended the three-day trial of this nineteen-year-old girl found guilty of murdering her father and attempting to murder her mother.

Throughout the trial this once beautiful girl of many lovers had sat, her head buried in her hands.

She had to listen to a long line of witnesses, including her tragic widowed mother, who told the ghastly details of her crime—how she had put poison in her parents' coffee; then turned on the gas to disguise her deed; how she had spent the night in dancing with her boy friends while her parents were dying.

LAMB HAS TWO MOTHERS

Swellendam, S.A.—A lamb is being fed by two ewes on a farm in this district. One ewe lost her offspring and took on the role of joint mother for another lamb.

PRINCE WILL REIGN IF PEOPLE WANT HIM

Colombo. — "I will accept the throne only if the people want me," declares Prince Mohamed Ismail, brother of the dethroned Sultan of the Maldive Islands.

The prince, who is now awaiting a communication from the Maldives — the group is a dependency of Ceylon—declared that his object as sultan would be to restore peace, order, and good government.

Another claimant to the throne, Prince Emmad-ud-Din, a son of the former sultan, is also in Ceylon.

The ex-Sultan of the Maldives—"Lord of the Thousand Islands"—was dethroned on October 2 for "wilfully interfering with the administration of justice and for acting contrary to his vow to follow the constitution."

QUEEN LIVES UP TO NAME OF HER ISLES

Auckland.—Queen Salote, who is 6 feet, 3 inches tall and ruler of the Tonga, or Friendly Isles, has invited the Duke of Gloucester to visit her kingdom during his Australian tour. She is the only other queen in the British Empire. She has a live tortoise which was presented to her great-grandfather by Captain Cook the explorer.

The duke, however, will not be able to visit the little kingdom of 30,000 people. His engagements in Australia and New Zealand are too strenuous to be extended to Pacific islands.

So Queen Salote has decided to send her consort, Prince Tugi, to greet the duke at Auckland, where she herself was educated.

She was decorated last year with the insignia of Dame Grand Cross of the British Empire.

ENGLISH TREES FLOURISH AMONG TROPICAL VERDURE

Wool Kings Transplant Homeland Charm on Ranches

ALL ARE WELCOME

Melbourne.—Australia is a land of paradoxes. The Duke of Gloucester met with one on his centenary tour when he was entertained on some of the country's most renowned sheep ranches called "stations."

Eighty years ago Australia's wide-visioned pastoralists chartered their sailing ships and brought with them to a new-old country English traditions and customs, English possessions and—English trees.

These they planted when their homestead was a shanty and the acres they had "squatted" on were virgin bush waiting to be cleared. Thanks to their foresight, there have been created in the heart of isolation, with the nearest town twenty to a hundred miles away and the nearest neighbor sometimes as much, homes which combine the restful charm of an English manor house with the variety of Australian station life.

The "Ercildoune" homestead, where the royal visitor stayed, is sheltered by trees more than a hundred feet high and as old as the property, which dates from 1838, four years after the founding of Melbourne. The four acres of garden include an old-world English wall garden and a trout-filled lake. The spreading lawns at "Mawallock," the other Victorian station, which the duke also visited, overlook a great expanse of lake where the family holds boating and bathing parties during the summer.

There is one New South Wales home noted for its rose garden containing 146 varieties of blooms, the shady pergolas which are dotted about the terraced lawns and the rock garden and shrubberies; another for its willow and poplar lanes, its wooded bird sanctuary and the peacocks which strut along the herbaceous borders of the beautiful garden; still another for a lake stocked with every species of wild fowl; and a fourth for a forest planted with hundreds of English and foreign trees beneath which, in the appointed season, grow primrose and lilies of the valley and in the fields nearby cowslips.

There is an unwritten law in the Australian "bush" that every traveller be given a meal and bed, including the "swagman" or "sundowner" who tramps the country looking for work with his belongings in a "swag" on his back—and who is provided with a shakedown in the men's quarter or in a shed sometimes erected specially for the purpose. Unheralded guests are inevitable in a continent of distances, but always welcome. Australian hospitality is justly famed.

ALLEGE GIRL WED ONE OF OWN SEX

Johannesburg.—A South African girl who, it is alleged, "married" by special license, at the age of fifteen, a girl a year older than herself, has been found poisoned on a lonely farm in Northern Transvaal.

The discovery was made following a countrywide search. The police require her to answer allegations of cheque frauds.

She is Jacqueline Fine, aged 22. A detective found her huddled, unconscious, on a pile of sacking in a barn. She was wearing men's clothes.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Milliken of 253 Burnham Street are celebrating to-day the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. Last evening, in celebration of the event, about forty of their friends gathered at their home for a very jolly evening, and presented them with a silver tea service. A feature of the evening was a mock wedding ceremony, with the hosts as bride and bridegroom, Mr. J. J. Turner as officating clergyman, dressed appropriately for the occasion, and bridesmaid and best man in Mrs. V. Hamilton and Mr. L. M. Brooks. The bride wore a wine-colored gown and carried a effective bouquet of cauliflower. The wedding march was played by Mrs. L. M. Brooks, who also sang the wedding hymn, "Beloved, it is Morn." An old custom of having the minister present the couple with a picture was perpetuated by Mr. Turner, who hunted up an old photograph of the bride and bridegroom, taken during their honeymoon at Niagara Falls, and made the presentation with appropriate ceremonies. Later, refreshments were served from a table done in mauve and yellow and centered by a large wedding cake.

LARGER FIGURE

It is cut along very simple lines with the skirt forming a deep point at the back as well as the front, to suggest more length. Curved seaming minimizes any bulk that is apt to creep in about the hips. The scarf of the becoming neckine detracts from bodice breadth.

In canton crepe, wool crepe, metal threaded crepes, velvet, rayon novelties, etc., it is delightful and it's so easily made.

Style No. 2442 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39-inch material.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

There are two things which are of imperative importance in good housekeeping. The balance between them is slight. Each is of major significance. One is cleanliness, the other is orderliness. The sequence in which I put them shows that cleanliness leads, but only by a trifle. This is important to health of body. Orderliness isimportant for mental comfort and for making work easy. To keep a house clean is simplified by having it orderly. So each dovetails into the other.

* * * * * *

When one lives near the street, it is harder to keep a house immaculate than it used to be, and it is more difficult than to keep it clean on a side street. The size of a residence has much less to do with the labor of keeping it clean than is its location. It is true that there is more space to go over during cleaning when a house is large; but the amount of dust and dirt in a home has more to do with the work of keeping it clean than the space to cover in doing it.

* * * * * *

All homemakers who live in city apartments will agree that it is amazing how quickly the rooms get dirty. Dust seeps into them from streets below. From chimneys smoke and soot sifts down. The dwellings are far from large, yet to keep the places clean is no light task.

* * * * * *

It is to aid in this that orderliness is important as well as making a place more restful and peaceful. When articles are in their right places rooms are comparatively clear. It is not difficult to understand then, that it requires less labor to dust them or wipe them off. Moreover it will be discovered that fewer articles will usually be found necessary to housekeeping when the things are in correct array, or if the same number are required, they appear to be less because of their orderliness.

* * * * * *

The homemaker who would reduce her work and keep her home spic and span will learn to stress orderliness. It may take time to acquire the habit if one is not orderly by nature, but it is a habit which in the long run pays well to acquire as speedily as possible.

Mr. Fred Marshall, game warden for Peterborough county, was in Marmora on Thursday, visiting A. J. Shannon, recently appointed game warden for Hastings county, and giving the latter an insight into some of his duties.

The annual dance of Marmora L. O. L. No 319 was held in the town hall on Friday evening. Due to several other dances taking place in the vicinity the ame evening, the attendance was not so high as most years.

At the Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL.

"BRITISH AGENT"

In this picture, Leslie Howard plays an ambitious English diplomat who tries to prevent the onward march of the Soviet Government. As Stephen Locke, he is stationed in Russia when the Red Revolution breaks out, and Kay Francis, as Elena, playing opposite him, is secretary to Lenin and heart and soul involved in the Red uprising.

Although both act very well, they do not make a good team. The aristocratic Howard, with his fine, evanescent charm, cannot play up or down rather, to the down-to-earth standard of Kay Francis, whose long suit in pictures is a fashion of staring at her man and making her heavy lips just a little more noticeable. She needs someone a little more sensual than the restrained and artistic Leslie, and she hasn't the advantage in this feature of the fine feathers which help in other pictures to conceal her plebian type.

The story has plenty of action at most times, and is very interesting in the way it delineates the birth of an idea—the new Russian idea which is at present baffling the world. The picture goes better when it is entirely masculine. Without the lady, it would be entirely satisfactory, for the men are authentic people, the cast including the gum-chewing American, William Gargan, who, it is said, is a great buddy of Mr. Howard's off the screen.

Elena (Kay Francis), does her best to get Howard mixed up with the Soviet. When he finally is put on the spot and condemned to death, she does an about face, goes noble, and arrives to spend the last hours with him. But it isn't to be. Fate just naturally intervenes, and the audience is spared the horror of a firing party in the last sequence.

Movie gossip has it that Miss Francis wears long-sleeved gowns throughout this feature because of twenty-five stitches taken in her arm when she cut herself trying to break into her home after forgetting her key. The long-sleeved effect, however, goes better with the Russian atmosphere.

The program includes a delightsome Silly Symphony entitled "The Flying Mouse" in technicolor, and a Laurel and Hardy laught-fest called "Them Thar Hills."

The rotund Hardy and the sad-faced Laurel depart on a search for the simple life, owing to the former's attack of gout. They meet up with a reinforced well and a pretty lady whose husband isn't so pretty, and the fun starts in the characteristic manner associated with these two comedians.—Jeanette.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Standard Recipe for Cream Soup

Three tablespoons butter, one tablespoon minced onion, three tablespoons flour, three cups milk one teaspoont salt, pepper, one and one-half cups ground or strained cooked vegetables. Melt butter, add onion, and cook one minute. Stir in flour and seasoning and add milk gradually. Stir over fire until smooth and creamy. Have ready about one and one-half cups of ground or stained cooked vegetables. (Mixed vegetables may be used). Add to first mixture. Reheat and add more seasoning if necessary. A dash of nutmeg with pea soup, of cloves with tomato, of celery salt with potato, of paprika with corn, will improve the flavor. Minced parsley may be sprinkled on top. Preparation time, ten minutes. If freshly cooked vegetables are used, add the stock in which they have been cooked and reduce the milk in proportion. If tomatoes are used, add one teaspoon of sugar and one-fourth teaspoon of soda before combining with cream sauce.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

In using vitamins or adding them to the diet, it is well to realize that there are well established methods of testing the vitamin content of different substances. This is true, at least, of the two most important vitamins Vitamin C and Vitamin D — and as these should be added to the diet of infants and children, mothers and nurses should demand that the substance which they are using has been tested as to its vitamin content.

It is not necessary to worry about Vitamin C, because we are certain that that will be present in orange juice and tomato juice But so many products are on the market which claim to have Vitamin D in them, that the caution applies to this substance very definitely.

Vitamin D is measured in units. There is no chemical method of determining the amount of Vitamin D in food. The only present available test for Vitamin D potency is the use of living animals and is, therefore, called bioassay.

Young white rats are used in making bioassay for Vitamin D. Since Vitamin D is the calcifying vitamin, the first step is to induce low calcification or active rickets in the bones of the young rat. To do this, the mother rat is fed during pregnancy and lactation on a diet which contains very little Vitamin D Then when the young rats are from 21 to 25 days old they are weaned and fed on a rickets-producing diet for three weeks. At the end of this period severe rickets will have developed and the animals are ready for the test

The method almost universally used is the "line" test. This is made with the X-ray. In fully developed rickets the X-ray will show lack of calcification at the end of the long bones. If the substance which is being tested has Vitamin D present, a line of calcification, which throws a dark band on the X-ray where previously there was a diffuse lightness, indicates that Vitamin D is present, and that calcium is being deposited in the bones.

In using preparations of cod liver oil, halibut liver oil, salmon liver oil, viosterol, and especially irradiated milk, the manufacturers should be prepared to guarantee that the substance has a certain unit potency of Vitamin D.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

D. D. M.: "Is it true that hair dyes are harmful to health, and more specifically to hearing?"

Answer: Most hair dyes are not harmful. Occasionally a person is found whose skin is sensitive to the chemical in a hair dye and a dermatitis results. The only hair dye which is dangerous in itself is paraphenylene-diamine. It produces a beautiful shade of black, and is often the principal ingredient of the dyes which are advertised as walnut juice hair dye. The only way to avoid poisons in dyes is to have the manufacturer specify on his package what the dye contains.

Ladies Lay Plans For Fowl Supper and Bazaar.

CAVAN, Nov. 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Thursday afternoon the W. A. of Cavan United church met at the home of the president, Mrs. Jas. Douglas, with fourteen present.

The chief business was finishing the arrangements for their annual fowl supper, which will be held in the Community hall on Monday evening, November 12, and planning for the bazaar to be held in December.

Mrs. J. W. Perrin and Mrs. Leslie Pritchard were appointed to take charge of one table and Mrs. C. Carr and Mrs. A. B. Kennedy, of the other.

It was decided to purchase twenty-three geese in addition to the fowl donated by the members.

The hostess served an appetizing lunch, which added to the enjoyment of the usual half-hour devoted to a social time.

USES SAME OLD KIT

Janet Gaynor

BY GLADYS GLAD

After all these years, I am told, the lovely Janet Gaynor still clings to the same make-up kit she used during the filming of "Seventh Heaven." It really isn't a make-up kit at all, but a fishing tackle container filled with cosmetics. And as Janet explains it, if make-up doesn't come under the head of fishing tackle, what does?

Make-up certainly is a form of fishing tackle, when a lass is out angling for a man. And nowadays a girl has to be prepared for all occasions. She must be prepared to step from her office into a dimly-lighted night club or a bright ballroom. She must be ready to go from her schoolroom into the glaring daylight of a football field, or the dim seclusion of an afternoon tea. And she needs cosmetics to make her appear always at her best.

It is the wise lass who realizes this fact and is prepared for any event. If she's a housewife, of course, she hasn't much to worry about. For she has all the creams and cosmetics she needs right there at home. But if she's an office worker or a schoolgirl, she's handicapped. That is, she's handicapped unless she's smart. For if she's clever, she'll keep a beauty kit in her desk or locker. And then she'll be able to prepare herself for any event and upon even the shortest notice.

There's a young girl of my acquaintance who keeps such a beauty kit in her office, and she always sees to it that it is well stocked. It's not a lavish affair by any means. It consists merely of a cardboard box that is divided into little compartments. It contains small-sized duplicates of all the articles—the hand lotion, lipstick, powder, cleansing cream, rouge, eye cosmetics, soap, nail file, nail polish, cleansing tissues, etc., that she ordinarily uses at home. And it affords her almost all the advantages of home right there in her office.

I'd suggest that you follow this gal's exmaple, if you're a schoolgirl or an office worker. Keep a cosmetics kit in your desk or locker. You really can make one very cheaply. And with all your beauty aids right at hand, you'll be prepared to step out and knock 'em dead at any time at all.

NEW RELIGION GAINS GROUND

Teutonic Faith Movement Will Have Same Privileges as Protestants, Catholics.

BACKED BY HITLER.

(By Louis P. Lochner.)

BERLIN, November 3 (A.P.). — Germany's "Third Religion," a Teutonic faith movement, appears ready to-day to emerge, with the state and Der Fuehrer as objects of veneration.

The movement soon will be recognized as an incorporated society to have the same privileges and prerogatives enjoyed by the Catholic and Protestant churches according to a promise said to have been given by Reichsfuehrer Adolph Hitler to assembled party district leaders in Munich last Friday.

Hitler's momentous decision to draw the Nazi Party and the State authorities out of the church struggle was reported to have caused some consternation at first, as it was evidence to the party's leaders this would mean defeat for the German Christian group

To compensate for the disappointment, it was reliably reported Hitler promised the "Neo-Heathens"—represented by Dr Alfred Rosenberg, Rudolph Hess, Robert Ley, and Baldur von Schirach—that the Teutonic Faith Movement would also be recognized as a corporate body.

It was freely predicted by both Protestants and Catholics that many dyed-in-the-wool Nazis imbued with the teachings of Rosenberg will quit the Christian churches and join the new religion.

The new movement resembles Japanese Shintoism, in that Hitler, like the Japanese Emperor, and Germany, like Japan, would be objects of veneration.

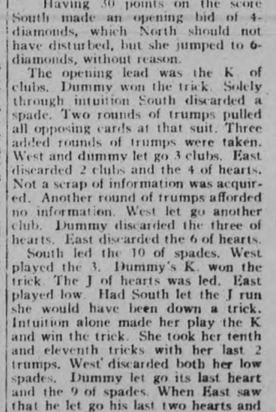
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

PLAYING INTUITIVELY

Many a contract can be won only by playing cards correctly through intuition, as was the case with this hand. The same player's intuitions may be acute on one day and obtuse at another time. I never have seen keener intuitions than South possessed uniformly.



Having 30 points on the score South made an opening bid of 4-diamonds, which North should not have disturbed, but she jumped to 6-diamonds, without reason.

The opening lead was the K of clubs. Dummy won the trick. Solely through intuition South discarded a spade. Two rounds of trumps pulled all opposing cards at that suit. Three added rounds of trumps were taken. West and dummy let go 3 clubs. East discarded 2 clubs and the 4 of hearts. Not a scrap of information was acquired. Another round of trumps afforded no information. West let go another club. Dummy discarded the three of hearts. East discarded the 6 of hearts.

South led the 10 of spades. West played the 3. Dummy's K won the trick. The J of hearts was led. East played low. Had South let the J run she would have been down a trick. Intuition alone made her play the K and win the trick. She took her tenth and eleventh tricks with her last 2 trumps. West discarded both her low spades. Dummy let go its last heart and the 9 of spades. When East saw that he let go his last two hearts and kept his Q-8 of spades, to prevent a grand slam contract was fulfilled. Not many players in East's position would have let go the ace of hearts, knowing that the declarer held a heart. Perhaps East and West both had intuitions. In any event, their play was perfect.

6-NO TRUMPS DOUBLED

South played the above hand at a contract of 6-no trumps doubled by East. South had bid both hearts and clubs. West had once bid spades. North had bid diamonds, then supported clubs. South jumped into 4-no trumps, which his partner raised to 6-no trumps. The opening lead was the Q of spades. Before Monday see how many tricks can be won against perfect defence.

HAWKS LIKELY LOSE PRIZED STANLEY CUP

New Champions Will Be Declared With Drastic Shake-up in Chicago Camp.

LOUGHLIN CONFIDENT.

Conny Smythe Depending on His Amateur Recruits to Regain Famous Mug.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—(C.P.)—Five days from the dawn of another hockey day, critical observers found the National League tightened up by off-season trades and sales, promising a race in both the Canadian and United States sections that will leave few of the contenders very far behind.

Pre-viewers, or some of them, have concluded the Stanley Cup champions, Chicago Black Hawks, have been so thoroughly riddled in the defensive machinery that a new champion is sure to take over the highest prize in the sport. Certainly no team has been taken apart so drastically as the Hawks.

New York Rangers and Boston Bruins, defintely on the downgrade last year, threaten to pull right back to 1933 heights, and Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings, N. H. L. title-holders, appear at least capable enough to make a great defence of the first pro hockey title Detroit ever won.

Toronto Maple Leafs and a renovated Montreal Maroon team, led by Tommy Gorman, may start as favorites in the Canadian section. Canadiens, however, will hardly be shaaken off easily, and there is no telling what New York Americans and St. Louis Eagles will produce.

Hopes Are High.

Hopes will be high all over the circuit when the opening takes place next Thursday. Here are outlined some of the major charges that have taken place since the hockey workshops closed up last spring.

Chicago Black Hawks—Manager Tommy Gorman, riding the crest of the Stanley Cup wave, has moved to Montreal Maroons, taking his ace defenceman, Lionel Conacher with him. Roger Jenkins, Conacher's partner, moved to Montreal Canadiens and the third member of a great defence system, Charlie Gardiner, died.

The new defence will feature Marty Burke from Canadiens with the veteran Lorne Chabot in goal. Howie Morenz, secured the deal with the Flying Frenchmen, heads the forward-line cast.

Detroit Red Wings — Manager Jack Adams has made few voluntary changes but the lost young Wilf Cude, sensational goalie who starred with the Wings in the 1934 playoffs. Either the veteran John Ross Roach or Norm Smith, a minor league star, will fill in Cude who was recalled by Canadiens. The forward-line changes are negligible.

New York Rangers—The widespread changes Lester Patrick talked of in the spring have not come off. Bill Cook may become a defenceman, Cecil Dillon replacing him on the first-string forward line beside Frank Boucher and Bun Cook and the ex-Moncton Hawk, Bert Connolly, may find a place, but otherwise there are few changes on the Ranger roster.

Boston Bruins — Frank Patrick, N.H.L. managing director last year, has charge of a team that will be strong if Eddie Shore makes the comeback most critics expect him to. Charlie Sands and Jack Shill have been secured from Toronto and the flashy Johnny Gagnon from Canadiens. It is a younger, fresher team with Harry Oliver and Alex Smith moved away to the Americans.

Toronto Maple Leafs. — If the most powerful force in hockey needed any strengthening, or if it didn't, mattered little to Conny Smythe who sold Defenceman Alex Levinsky to Rangers, Shill and Sands to Boston, and brought up an amateur forward line from St. Michael's College Juniors — Pep Kelly, Red Metz, and Art Jackson, a brother of Harvey. Bill (Flash) Hollett replaces Levinsky, and some of the regulars of a year ago may be missing, notably little Ken Doraty.

Montreal Canadiens. — With the dazzling Cude in goal and Jenkins to strengthen the defence, Canadiens appear stronger. The first-string front line includes Aurel Joliat, Pit Lepine, and Wildor Larochelle. Prominent among newcomers are Jack McGill and Nelson Crutchfield from McGill University's intercollegiate champions.

Montreal Maroons.—Tommy Gorman, fresh from his Stanley Cup triumph at Chicago, has charge of a team that may become Toronto's most feared foe. He has Lionel Conacher as a defence stalwart and better reserve forward line strength than the 1933-34 Maroons. His hopes rest on Charlie Mason, a rookie from Vancouver Lions and the flying kids from Moncton Hawks, Sammy McManus and Aubrey Webster, to provide scoring punch on a second line.

New York Americans.—Joe Simpson has done some trading, getting Alex Smith and Harry Oliver from Boston and the promising Sweeney Schriner from Syracuse of the International League. His veterans, Rabbit McVeigh, Normie Himes, Red Dutton, and Bill Brydge, are back, and "Bullet" Joe's chances are not regarded as too promising.

St. Louis Eagles. — Eddie Gerard, deposed by the Maroon front-office, has taken over the old Ottawa Senators, moved to St. Louis, and many observers believe the easy-going Eddie may work wonders with his young team. But it will be a wonder if the Eagles become real contenders.

CALGARY TIGERS TO OPERATE

Illness Forces John Heydler To Resign

NATIONAL BALL LEAGUE RULER FOR 16 YEARS

No Successor Named for Man Who Was One of Bulwarks for Major Pastime.

HEALTH UNDERMINED.

Branch Rickey, Ford Frick, Harvey Traband Named as Possible Heads.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP)—Weary and sick, John Harold Heydler, one of the bulwarks of baseball, unexpectedly resigned as President of the National League last night, so that he may get far from the cares and worries of the executive side, and back into the sun of the bleachers, while there is still time.

The 65-year-old executive shocked the Board of Directors of the league he has ruled since 1918 with the sudden announcement that poor health would force him to step down Dec. 11, close of baseball's fiscal year. His resignation was accepted with all the regret that could be put into words, and left the directors so stunned no one could hazard more than a guess as to a successor to be chosen here by the league owners next Thursday.

Possibilities for Position

Immediately the names of Branch Rickey, Vice-President and business manager of St. Louis Cardinals; Ford Frick, former newspaperman recently installed as director of publicity for the league, and Harvey Traband, for years Heydler's secretary, were brought forward as possibilities, but from no official sources.

From the attitude of the directors—Judge Emil E. Fuchs, Boston Braves; Charles A. Stoneham, New York Giants; William E. Benswanger, Pittsburgh Pirates, and John O. Seys, Chicago Cubs—it seemed likely that an honorary title at least, such as "President Emeritus" or "Counsellor" will be created for Heydler, and that the joint offices of Secretary-Treasurer and President, which Heydler held, will again be separated.

Health Undermined

A severe illness in 1933 undermined Heydler's health, and, though his move yesterday was not ordered by his doctors, it seemed to him the only thing to do under the circumstances.

"A year ago," he said, "I had to consider resigning because of my health. This past season, with its exciting finish and wild climax of the World Series, has left me so that a couple of times a week I get all shaky and on the verge of a breakdown. I think I've earned the right now to sit back and enjoy baseball again from a bleacher seat."

Heydler's story is that of modern baseball itself. Never a professional player, he went to Washington as a printer in the Bureau of Engraving in 1889, met, through his enthusiasm for baseball, Nicholas E. Young, President of the National League, and started an association with the game that covers forty-five years.

Once an Umpire

Heydler umpired games occasionally for Young, and May 31, 1895, was called out of the bleachers to handle a game between Pittsburg and Washington, when the regular umpire, Tom Lynch, became ill. Connie Mack was managing the Pirates.

Heydler became a sports writer, covered games for five years, paying his own way into the parks; started a syndicate, and was sports editor of the Washington Post in 1901, when the newly organized American League came into Washington. He was the first writer to have published a list of .300 hitters. He got the composing room to do it for him as a favor.

When Young became ill in 1903, and retired after eighteen years as President, the only reign longer than Heydler's total span of seventeen years, his successor, Harry Pulliam, made the young man his private secretary. In 1907 Heydler was named secretary-treasurer of the league, and when Pulliam died in 1909, he finished out the year as president.

Succeeded John K. Tener

Through the terms of two other Presidents, Tom Lynch from 1910 through 1913, and John K. Tener, from 1913 through 1913, John Heydler remained as secretary-treasurer. He was elected President, succeeding Tener, and in all was elected to two three-year and three four-year terms, the last one still with two years to go.

Although he served some of baseball's most troublesome periods, and kept the league on an even keel, he is proudest of his work in ironing out the difference between the minor and major leagues in 1920. The minors had broken relations with the majors, decided to go it alone. Heydler learned the Americ- a separate agreement that would a separate agreemnt that would have cut off the National circuit, might eventually have stifled it. He stepped in and forced a joint agreement that has lasted since then.

New Wingman To Work On Cook-Boucher Line

CECIL DILLON

FRED "BUN" COOK

Silver-haired Lester Patrick, master-minding still for New York Rangers, has dropped the veteran front liner, Bill Cook, back to the rearguard, turning the once brilliant winger into a defenceman. This move breaks up one of hockey's oustanding veteran lines, the Cook-Boucher-Cook trio. Frankie Boucher will be the first-string pivot and ranging alongside will be this pair of speedsters, Freddy 'Bun' Cook and Cecil Dillon. The new attacking combination will have to go some to equal the record set up by the former Blueshirt shock troops.

"Gunboats" Too Big

BUENOS AIRES, November 3 — Primo Carnera, 260-pound former heavyweight champion of the world, yesterday arrived by airplane for South American boxing bouts against Paulino Uzcudun and Victorio Campolo, and immediately got his feet wet.

The bulk of the big Italian was too much for the float on whic hhe disembarked from the plane, and it tilted dangerou ly to one side. Carnera scrambled to safety, but with his huge "dogs" dampened.

Ashore a group of Italian girls awaited him with flowers and speeches of welcome, and it was several minutes before he could get to his taxi, and then only with the aid of several policemen.

NELS STEWART SETS PRECEDENT IN EXHIBITION WITH CANUCKS

Scores Goal Two Minutes After Period Ends and Has it Count.

BRUINS WIN 2-1.

(By the Canadian Press)

Nels Stewart can boast today of being the first hockey player to score a goal more than two minutes after a period was ended and have it count. He pulled the stunt last night at Halifax when Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens played an exhibition game which Boston won 2-1.

No one appointed a timekeeper and the first period ran 37 minutes before the players began to think it was rather long and banged their sticks on the boards for a rest. The period had been over 17 minutes and the big Bostonian had scored since but the goal was counted.

Stewart earned that goal, flipping a backhander after parking in front of Wilf Cude for Joe Jerwa's pass, but the other Bruin goal was scored by Roger Jenkins, Canadien defenceman, who poked it in while trying to clear Charlie Sands' shot The former Toronto leaf got the credit it there was any.

This training season exhibition games have been more numerous than ever and have developed more feeling than National League players usually expend in games that mean nothing in the League standing.

Eddie Shore, star Boston rearguard, got out of hand in the game with Canadiens and chopped down Referee Spud Beazley with his stick. He had been ordered off with Jack McGill for fighting. Jean Pusie, who hasn't the badman background Shore has but is building up a reputation, was banished for exchanging blows with Roger Jenkins.

Lester Patrick thinks the preseason workouts with other teams are just what the doctor ordered. They have proved to be marvelous pre-season conditioning and are worth four or five ordinary games, he says.

Perhaps Lester likes them too because his New York Rangers have taken two of their three games with Montreal Maroons at Winnipeg and tied the third. They play again tonight.

The meeting of New York Americans and Buffalo Bisons at Oshawa was tame compared to the Bruin-Canadien affair. There were only three penalties in the tussle which was draw 2-2.

Chicago Black Hawks haven't had the benefit of clashes with other big league teams as they trained alone at Champaign, Ill., but Manager Clem Loughlin believes they will be ready to go when they open in St. Louis next Thursday.

Loughlin has been worried about his defense but feels now the pairs he had training will be adequate. He has Ernie take the load from Hope Lucas' combine.

We are informed that the Foresters have one of their men training for musketry at the Armouries, apparently expecting to put up a stiff battle for the Hope Cup.

St. John's are ambitious. This week shows all three teams from there in the first six. So had its beginning of the season.

WORLD RANSACKED FOR FILM "PROPS"

Everything From Real Railroad Trains to Live Insects on Hand.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (CP) — Skulls from Siam, canoes from the Congo, live insects from the tropics and fly swatters from the Canary Islands—these are some of the strange things for which filmdom has reached into the far corners of the earth in their determination to keep pictures realistic.

The property department has kept pace with other developments in the movies, until to-day there are literally millions of dollars invested in "things" which range from guns and goats to corsets and clavichords. An entire railroad train is the newest and biggest thing to arrive in Hollywood—just as a "prop." It is a streamline zephyr, which played a title role in a recent picture.

Grapes were out of season here while "Caravan" and "Cleopatra" were being made, so many crates of them were imported from South America. Imitation grapes wouldn't do. Inside Sportin' Dope— By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor—

Well, Mac, this is a kinda dull week in the sport world locally—even Hallowe'en not doing much to stir up excitement hereabouts. It ain't much like the old days when the boys used to cut loose and turn the town upside down, along with most of the Chic Sale's annexes. They ain't no lamp posts to hang gates on and no gates to speak of anyway, the kids go to the front door and beg for candy instead of swiping the taffy outa the back when it was set out to cool, and alongside the old-time celebration the modern style is slightly anemic, so to speak.

Our intermediate rugby gang, Mac, came through nicely last Sat. and forward passed them Bellevill e huskies righ outa the serious. But before we get to the battle itself, a few words of praise for the management for roping off the field and marking the gridiron. For the 1st time in many a moon it looked like a football game and not like a mob gathering round the scene of a traffic accident, and even though they was a frigid draft blowing down from Moosonee way, everybody enjoyed the affair except the folks from Belleville.

To be honest, Mac, for about ½ the distance it was no great shucks of a football exhibition. The boys on both teams semed to have the jitters and fumbled oftener than a bird from Aberdeen trying not to be in too great a hurry finding has bus fare. Half way home the teams was tied, we getting a touchdown on a nice toss over the Belleville goal line and then scoring a try when our Mister Magee figured the ball was dead on a attempted field goal, and only made a half-hearted gesture at catching the spheroid. In the last half, however, our lads went to town in a big way, and they finally win out 16 to 6, showing some smart football.

Up at Lindsay the same day our Collegiate seniors wasn't doing so well, for the big and fast Scugogers beat them 24 to 1 and rolled them right out of the picture for the season. Despatches from Lindsay sez they're looking for a provincial championship, but without sounding like sour-grapes, it might be whispered for the benefit of the Lindsay scribe that from what has been seen of championship high school teams in the past it'll take more than Lindsay showed up to now to bring home the bacon. They's some real tough teams in that serious, Mac, and they don't fool when they go into action.

Well, Mac, the pro hockey season gets under way next week. Who am I calling? Well, buddy, you're askin gme something there. The line-ups all round the circuit has been shook up so much that it looks like a wide-open race, and until the teams has been in action a few weeks it's going to be tough to pick a winner. Right now, however, it don't look to me like the Toronto Leaves should be made no favorites. The new kids from the St. Mike's junior champs should be a help, but it looked to me last season like some of the vets of the Smythe machine was beginning to slip, and once they start, Mac, they usually skid all the way. And it don't look like the Leaves has all the reinforcements they need to take care of the situation.

Anyway we'll soon know. Meanwhile take keer yourself.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Alex Connell Comes Back.

(By Harold McNamara, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

MONTREAL, Nov. 3 (CP)—When Montreal Maroons finished the 1933-34 National Hockey League season after being eliminated by Chicago Black Hawks in the play-downs, it was generally admitted they had one of the weakest defences in the league.

While their forwards were near the top of the league in scoring, they seemed to have forgotten that a wing man was also expected to check back and help out his defencemen—with the result that the Maroons had more goals scored on them than any other team.

It was with the intention of remedying these defects that Tommy Gorman came to the Maroon club as manager this year after winning the Stanley Cup with Chicago Black Hawks, a team not regarded with an even chance at the start of the season. And it was with this end in view that he immediately began pulling strings to bring with him from Chicago an ace defenceman, the defenceman who had himself been traded by Maroons but a year previously——Lionel Conacher.

Shields From Ottawa

Gorman did not stop at Conacher. He had had his eye on Allan Shields, of Ottawa, for some time and the first chance he got he sent Irving Frew, defenceman, and Norm Smith, goalie, to the St. Louis Eagles for the tall, fair-haired Senator. These two moves have changed the Maroon defence from one of the weakest to one of the strongest in the loop.

Besides Conacher and Shields, the big Red team will ice Marvin Wentworth, another former Chicagoan, who boasts that when he hits them "they stay hit.' Stew Edwards, bone-crushing former Detroit Red Wing, will be the fourth man to patrol the blue line. Then Gorman went after a goalkeeper. He obtained Alex Connell from Ottawa in exchange from Glenn Brydson — brought him out of retirement—and told him he would have to battle for his position with Dave Kerr, the youthful veteran. The battle is not yet decided.

Few changes have been made along the front rank—long admitted to hold scoring power. With Gorman's method of "forward checking"—the attack-defence he claims won the Stanley Cup for the Hawks—being brought into vogue, the Maroonment should rank high on offense.

Hoonley Smith, one of the cagiest centres in the league, master of the poke-check, perfect pivot man, will start off between his old linemates, Baldy Northcott, raw-boned, rangy, speedy, and Jimmy Ward, one of the most popular men ever to wear a Maroon uniform.

The second line gives nothing away to their elders. Russ Blinco, a sensation last year when he was brought up from Windsor Bulldogs midway through the season, will again hold down the middle position. Beside him he will have two of the league's fastest skaters, Dave Trottier on the left and Earl Robinson on the right.

Amateurs on Third Line

Maroons' third rank will be possibly the most closely watched line in the league. For on it are two members of Canada's finest amateur team, the Moncton Hawks, winners of the Allan Cup for two consecutive years, Aubrey Webster at right wing and Sammy McManus on the left flank.

Norman "Dutch" Gainor is trying a National Hockey League comeback after starring in the Northwestern League. The former Boston Bruin star, and Paul Haynes, who was near the top of the scoring column two seasons ago but fell off last year, will round out the Maroon list; Haynes probably working between the Moncton recruits.

Several promising young stars have been farmed out to Windsor Bulldogs, of the International League. These, including Defenceman Bill Mackenzie, Goalie Earl Robinson, and Wingmen Herb Cain and Gus Marker, may be recalled at any time during the season.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(By C. J. P.)

Things are pretty quiet these days in local sports. In fact, there's no outdoor game at all now except football, and that just once a week. Consequently, we were wondering just how the deuce to go about filling this column. And we got to wondering if the sports scribes of other years had as much grief. This naturally led up to a going-over of the files. We finally got clear back to fifty years ago—the autumun of 1844! Outside of battling in barrooms week days and a bit of buggy sparking on Sundays, there's wasn't a great deal of news of any kind, it seemed. Grandpop seemed to have his hands full doing twelve hours work a day and knocking over a few schooners before retiring, without much athletics.

• • • • • • •

There were some P.A.A.A. field sports late in October—showing that organized athletics date away back locally—and some bike races (these being the days when everyone aspired to a bicycle, some built for two, and "scorching" was a daring pastime). One item early in November of that year when we were very young indeed stated: "Port Hope has the start of Peterborough in one thing at least—an excellent polo club. An exhibition of this popular game between Port Hope and another club will be given in the Lansdowne rink on the afternoon and evening of Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 12." Well, fancy that—Port Hope no less!

• • • • • • •

And another one—though we doubt if this is sports—ran: "Tonight at the Grand Central Billiard Parlours will be played an exciting game of billiards between half a dozen parties, including the best players in town. The final contest for the pot or, rather, cup, will be best seven in twelve games." Don't you love that "pot or, rather, cup" crack? The same dignified old scalawags today would say shooting crap for dough or playing the ponies is terrible and certainly unthought of when they were young! Well, we decided to move up ten years to the Gay Nineties, so turned the files to October of '94.

• • • • • • •

Things were even deader that year in athletics, although Mr. T. A. S. Hay was busy directing work on the new cricket field and tennis section at Nicholls Park. And then, while the Central Fair was on, they had hoss races, first prize being $25, second $15 and third $10. In one race, Mr. Love's bronc Maud L won, Mr. Jones' Nettie Wood placed and Mr. Simpson's stepper Livery Boy showed in the money. They also staged a big rugby game between the Edison and the Lock Works. Sad to say, for the latter, Edison won by a 13-1 count. Here are the players, 15 to a side: J. Cluxton, Wilgar, Pomfret, H. A. Moore, Shaw, Dunsford, Bell, McIntosh, A. R. Lambe, Colyer, O. LePlante, V. McWilliams, L. Cluxton, A. Letellier, J. McDonough, G. Ahearn, J. Grady, Shepherd, Adams, W. A. Moore, Knowles, John McDonough, W. Heffernan, J. Hickey, W. McAuliffe, Jos. Picard, A. Weatherhead H. Choate and J. Johnston. But let's get out of the cobweb zone.

• • • • • • •

Irvin (Ace) Bailey is said to be the new coach of the West Toronto Juniors in the O.H.A. this winter. And he will be allowed to don skates again as long as he doesn't have a hockey stick in his hand. This is fine news as Irvin wouldn't be just satisfied to work at his business and then have to take his hockey as a fan. When down here a month ago, he intimated that he would be doing some scouting for the Leafs and might handle an amateur team this season. Good duck, Ace!

• • • • • • •

Before leaving for an O.H.A. committee meeting in Toronto yesterday, President Percy Bond had a few things to say about the importing of outside players by the Maritimes. The Ontario body is peeved at losing players this way and the C.A.H.A. is liable to demand that the Maritimes turned frankly professional. They were given permission some time back to do a bit of importing in order to get hockey under way, but now seem to have the idea they can continue. The main matter at last night's meeting was the consideration of some of the hockey clubs' plans to form regular clubs such as would come under the Liquor Commssion's idea of a club which might serve beer. Peterborough is not interested in this. At the present writing, we have been unable to learn what resulted from the meeting.

• • • • • • •

The town of Napanee is going to throw a big feed and presentation Tuesday to its two winning ball teams. O.B.A.A. officials will be invited and Prexy Max Swanston of the C.O.B.L. has his invite from the mayor. Ernie Gibbard and his players rate these honors for their fine showing this year. Incidentally, we are informed by the Belleville scrivener that one of the Petes' players will be wearing a Napanee uniform next season—but that's okay, maybe some some of the Naps will be prancing around Riverside next summer in the locals' apparel.

• • • • • • •

A reader sends in a suggestion in all seriousness that we should advocate a veterans' division for hockey players, similar to junior, intermediate and senior. The idea would be that pucksters over 30 years of age be placed in the vets' section, both for their own protection and that of the younger players. First thing, we'll be asked to boost an old age pension for hockeyists. We refuse to advocate any such thing on the grounds of this, that and half a dozen other reasons. Over a lengthy period, we have gathered together probably the finest collection of bags in the region, bags which we have been left holding at various times. We don't care to add any more at present, but would cheerfully sell our own. There must be enough to hold all the potatoes picked in Douro this year, with enough left over for half the turnip crop.

• • • • • • •

Up and down Sports' Rialto: Vancouver Sun says: "Andy Lytle, our ex-scribe, was all set to take Foster Hewitt's job and broadcast the Maple leaf hockey games but it all went phtttt" . . . . Quite a few men, prominent in local sports, have left to take part in the deer hunt . . . . Rumor persists of another boxing show locally in the near future . . . . Some of our Examiner bowlers boast they can get together a team that will take any in town . . . . A Peterborough puck team is expected to seek entry this winter in the Trent Valley League.

HERB CARDWELL AND McCLELLAN DECLARED RICE LAKE CHAMPIONS

Awards Follow Season of Keenest Rivalry in Aquatic Events.

PRESENT TROPHIES.

Herb. Cardwell of the Wallace Point Canoe Club and Pat McClellan an the Hiawatha Club were declared champions of the Rice Lake Aquatic Association's annual series of regattas as the long-awaited presentation of cups was made last night. The club trophy went to Wallace Point organization.

Announcement at the annual dance of the Wallace Point Canoe Club, the awards followed on a season of keenest rivalry. In taking the men's cup, Cardwell's point total was 97. Bill Taylor of the same club was a runner-up with 52 points and Frank Grey of Alderville a close third for the honours with 49 points. Drake Jopling, chief of the Chemong contingent which enjoyed such prominence in the earlier regattas of the series, failed to figure near the top although he was reported to be leading the field at one time in the series. The Chemong crew however, missed several of the later meets.

Pat McCleellan was hard pressed by Mrs. Herb. Cardwell in taking the ladies' cup. She led by one point with a total of 49 compared with Mrs. Cardwell's 48. Ruth Sutton of the Wallace Point Club was third in line with 29.

The club cup was awarded to Wallace Point on a total of 260 points. Second and third clubs were Hiawatha, 141 points, and Alderville, 98 points. Bewdley representatives secured 54 points, Serpent Mounds 15 and and Gore's Landing 7.

Points were given on the basis of 3 for a win, 2 for a second place and 1 for a third place.

EAGLE ATTACKS OFFICER WALKING ALONG SHORE

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 3 (AP)—The unusual case of a bald eagle attacking a man, tearing his clothing and knocking him from his feet was told yesterday by Conservation Commissioner Lithgow Osborne.

The bird, with a wing spread of five feet, attacked Patrolman Emery Brice as he was walking along the shore of the flow attached to the Amsterdam Water Works in Providence, Saratoga County.

After seizing the man's hat, the eagle clawed at his clothing, ripping his coat and shirt and slightly scratching his skin. The force of the bird's swoops was so great that Brice was knocked from his feet.

ANCIENT RIVALS TO CLASH AGAIN IN U.S. FOOTBALL

Princeton Against Harvard is Feature Clash in Intercollegiate.

AFTER YEARS ABSENCE.

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Two of the oldest of the east's classic football rivalries, Princeton against Harvard and Dartmouth against Yale, serve as garnishings for football's overflowing dish of big games to-day.

Other contests, including the Army-Illinois struggle between two of the nation's leading undefeated teams, and struggles for sectional titles in the various midwestern and southern groups and on the Pacific coast, form the main course.

The Harvard-Princeton game, marking the resumption of their old series after an eight-year lapse, also brings one of the few unbeaten and untied teams of major calibre into action. But the weakness Harvard has shown this season makes it look like an unequal contest—so much so that only about 40,000 fans are expected to turn out. Dartmouth also has a perfect record as it moves into the Yale bowl in an attempt to conquer a Yale team that has shown flashes of strength and the "jinx" that has kept the Indians from beating the Elis in 17 previous attempts.

Army and Illinois, on the records, appear closely matched with Texas Jack Buckler, Cadet ace, opposing Jack Benyon and Les Lindbergh of the Illinois. Helping to keep the centre of interest in the Midwest are the Michigan-Minnesota struggle for "th. little brown jug" and the Chicago-Purdue, Indiana-Iowa, and Northwestern-Wisconsin Western Conference clashes. Minnesota, Chicago and Illinois are ranked together at the top of the big ten.

SET 'EM UP!

Bowling Notes and Comment

By Reg. McClavey

Monday Night League at the K. of C. Alleys took off on their long schedule last Monday night and the scores were, as usual for these alleys, very high. Eight teams started in this league, very evenly matched, and some hectic battles may be expected as the season progresses. Results for the first night were: Gimblett 8 points, O'Heron 0; Anthony 8, Fitzgerald 0; Duffus 8, Giroux 0; Examiner 6, Lalonde 2. High scores for the night were: High three games, V. Anthony 197, 188, 369—754; Walsh,, 250, 256, 240—746; Kearnes, 239, 219, 256—714. High single game: Anthony, 369; Martin, 302.

C.G.E. Fractional Motors League shows a general tightening up in the standing and some nice scores were turned in. High three for the night was F. Jones, 263, 203, 255—721.

ooo

The Twelve-team Westclox Shop League will swing into action next Tuesday night at eight o'clock and, as there are a number of classy bowlers in this aggregation, some high scores will be rolled, and some tight battles for the points are certain.

ooo

Y.M.C.A. Senior League did not bowl a complete set-up this week as several of the teams asked for an open night on Hallowe'en.

ooo

City League started last night at Duffus' Alleys with eight teams bowling and the boys were certainly in rare form as the scores will indicate. Vince Anthony topped the pins for a high three of 831, rolling 256, 321, 254; Walt Crary hit 790 with 180, 336, 274; Mel Armitage crashed them for 788 with 227, 297, 264; Cremasco 704 with 285, 236, 183. Anthony,'s Bowlrites took all three games from C.G.E., hitting 1185, 1322, 1035 for a total of 3,542—high three total for the city so far this season. Canadiens took two games and total pins from Lawn Bowlers; Examiner took two from Lucky Seven and Westclox Supremes took two from Royals. This league draws a big gallery of fans and they usually see plenty of excitement.

ooo

Mr. Duffus has had several inquiries as to whether it would be possible to form a mixed league and anyone interested in such a league should get in touch with him immediately.

ooo

C.G.E. Shop League is developing some tight battles each week and the boys are rolling some nice games. Last night's high three was bowled by E. Montgomery with 223, 326, 192 for a total of 741.

ooo

Examiner League had a tough night this week. The weather seems to have the boys down. Harry Dugan was the only one of the big shots who was up to his usual form. Harry crashed the maples for a three game total of 740 with games of 224, 309, 207. Chuck Butcher hit a single of 292, but slipped in his other games. Results for the week resulted in Dugan's team replacing Roy Taylor in the lead and from now on there should be some tough battles between these crews. Complete results for the week were: Dugan 3 points, Zeihr 1; Swanson 3, Taylor 1; Gray 3, Dunkley 1; Cullen 3, Max Glover 1.

HEYDLER MAY STAY IN GAME, ADVISORY CAPACITY TO HEAD

Doubtful Whether Branch Rickey Would Leave Cardinals to Take Up Post.

NEED TWO OFFICIALS.

(By Alan Gould).

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (A.P.). — It appeared likely to-day that the National League's executive problems, suddenly created by the resignation of 65-year-old John Arnold Heydler as president because of ill-health, will be solved by the appointment of a dual leadership.

Heydler has held the combined offices of president and secretary-treasurer since he was elected to succeed John K. Tener as chief executive of the Senior Major League Baseball organization in 1918. He formally relinquished his responsibilities on Dec. 11, at the annual meeting in New York, but the club owners at a special meeting here next Thursday probably will decide to divide the two jobs again, meanwhile asking Heydler to retain his connection with the league in an advisory capacity, perhaps as "president emeritus."

Although there may be strong pressure among the magnates to elevate a practical, experienced baseball executive to the presidency, such a branch Rickey, the energetic business manager, and vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, it is possible they may decide to look no further than the present associates of Heydler in the league headquarters staff. It is doubtful, anyway, whether Rickey would consent to leave his present far-flung activities with the world champions, even if honored with a call to take the chief executive's chair.

The prospective combination, understood already to be under consideration, is to elevate Ford C. Frick, the league's public relations man, to the active presidency and elect Harvey Traband, for years Heydler's right hand assistant, to the post of secretary-treasurer.

Frick was engaged last winter as manager of the National League's Service Bureau. He is a former New York sports writer, and is well-known as a radio commentator. Traband has been closely identified with league affairs for the past ten years, and it is definitely known that he is slated for recognition, on Heydler's recommendation.

OSCAR KANSER TO HERSHEY.

GUELPH, Nov. 3.—Guelph is losing one of its outstanding young athletes with the decision of Oscar Kaiser to leave for Hershey, Penn., where he will play for Herb Mitchell's team in the Frontier League of the U. S. Amateur Hockey Association. Kaiser, who was counted on to star for Guelph intermediates this winter, has been an outstanding player for some years in both O.H.A. junior and intermediate company, and his brilliant play in the past two seasons has brought bids for his services from the Cleveland club and the Buffalo Bisons, both of which he declined.

Electric power and light rates throughout Mexico have been reduced.

BILL TOUHEY RELEASED.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—(C.P.)— Bill Touhey, left wing player, said last night he had received his unconditional release from St. Louis Eagles of the National Hockey League. Touhey had been practicing with the Eagles in their pre-season training here.

Touhey played professional with Stratford in the International League and later with Montreal Maroons before coming to Ottawa Senators, whose franchise has been transferred to St. Louis.

The Eighth Commandment

By NORMA HENDRICKS

CHAPTER 21

Tim ordered the driver to halt and stepped out. He paid the man and watched the cab turn around and go back the way it had come, the red taillight disappearing cheerfully around the corner.

Now that it was so late, Tim questioned his wisdom in dismissing it. He wondered if the man would remember him enough to recognize descriptions or pictures if he didn't return. Then he realized that it would make no difference if he did. No one would note any connection between the English House murder case and the foot of the hill leading into little Italy. Even Mrs. Reeves did not know the name of the man she had described to him.

On the other hand, to arrive with a witness at the place he wanted to enter would be bad policy. They would believe him distrustful, as indeed he was, and he'd never find the man he sought. His only hope was to appear so obviously alone and unaccompanied that they could not fear him.

With a shrug of his shoulders and a thought for his plan, he walked briskly ahead. He knew enough of the district to realize that there were two kinds of joints. The first type was for the tourists and those natives who wished to go outside their own homes for liquor. The region was honeycombed with them, restaurants where spaghetti was sold with Dago red, or the front parlors of every fat, black haired Italian woman who poured you either wine or beer which you drank while you stared at the wedding, christening and first communion pictures which lined the walls.

There were fewer of the other kind and not many outsiders were ever admitted to them. Outside they looked like respectable, rather dusty pool halls and cigar stores. But in the back rooms Tim knew the gang leaders of the region gathered and issued orders.

They were not, in the ordinary sense speakeasies although the gang could buy liquor in the back room. From time to time, principally during police raids which invariably followed gang killings, Tim had been inside each of them. He knew the two in which his man might be found. But first he decided to try his home. It was early, hardly past the dinner hour, and he might still be there.

Mounting the hill, he turned abruptly to the left into a street which crept up the incline diagonally. Before the fifth house from the corner he stopped and swung open the dirty gray picket gate. The house was like a hundred others of the well-to-do class in Little Italy. The yard was partly filled with carefully tended vines, potted plants, and small flower patches. The rest of the lawn had been paved over and the cement blocks were swept scrupulously clean.

Elaborate lace curtains hung at the windows and from behind one of them Tim saw a woman peering at him. He rang the bell and no one came. Then he tapped loudly on the glass. The woman who had looked out at him came sullenly to the door and opened it a few inches. She was shapelessly fat but her face still had a smooth, olive loveliness.

"What you want?" she muttered at him.

"Mr. Giovinni," smiled the reporter. "I am anxious to find him tonight. Will you tell him Mr. Blade is here? He'll remember me, I think."

He knew while he spoke that she would probably understand only every third word but he spoke loudly, as much for Mr. Giovinni's benefit, should he be inside, as for the woman's.

"Not here," she announced definitely and slammed the door in his face. Tim shrugged his shoulders. That probably meant Giovinni wasn't there. Not because she said so, but because Giovinni knew Tim and would have first tried to find out what the reporter wanted before he refused to talk.

He turned away, mentally choosing his next stop, deciding to take them as they came. The first was on the hill, just across from the corner where this street entered the main thoroughfare.

Giovinni would remember him, that much he knew. But whether Giovinni would choose to remember that Tim had saved his gang from being saddled with the still unsolved Scalozzi murders no one could know but Mr Giovinni.

He came back into the main street, narrow and steep, where children screamed at each other and darted out in front of moving cars and older boys stood on street corners to watch the passersby.

A few steps brought him to the door of a pool hall. The windows were dark and he couldn't tell, without obviously peeking, whether anyone was inside or not. It was still fairly light on the street, of course, for it was just eight o'clock. Maybe the owner was being economical of electricity in the front since the gang, if any of them were there, would be in the back.

Finally he stepped into the doorway and cautiously tried the lock. The door swung open and he passed in. It was easier to see now that he was inside. He walked toward the cigar-counter, staring watchfully at the plump Italian behind the counter.

"Package of Camels," he ordered and reached into his pocket for change. Though he was not in position to see it, he heard the door at the back open and close.

"Giovinni here yet?" he asked casually of the man behind the counter, tearing open the package and lighting a cigaret.

For answer the man leaned toward him with a burst of Italian, waving his arms angrily, his voice growing shrill. Tim found himself unable to distinguish even the curses.

Suddenly a voice cracked out at his ear, "Shut up." The plump man ceased abruptly. Tim had stiffened at the voice but he turned toward the speaker with an air of casualness. The man was a young fellow, about Tim's own age, with the lean, firm features of the younger generation—that much he could tell in the dusk.

"Understand him?" said the newcomer.

Tim shook his head.

"Boiled down what he says is that Giovinni don't come here any more and that nobody around here knows where he hangs out now."

Tim nodded. "Thanks, buddy," he said and started toward the door. The young fellow began talking rapidly to the man behind the counter in angry Italian. Halfway to the door Tim stopped, turned around suddenly and darted through the half gloom toward the door to the back room.

He threw the door open and the light from the store fell into the room. The place was empty. He heard a hard chuckle from the young fellow beside him. "Had to see for yourself, huh? Well, now that you've seen, beat it."

Feeling like several kinds of a fool, Tim went back into the street, the young Italian closing the door politely behind him. One more place to go and if he didn't find Giovinni there, he'd have to call in the police. And if the police came into it too soon, Giovinni wouldn't talk. Of that Tim felt certain.

Three blocks farther up the street, he stopped before another pool hall which looked much like the last one. The windows were as dusty, the propped-up tobacco signs as faded and soiled. But here the lights were on, and around a pool table at one side several men were playing. Tim could see the proprietor deep in conversation at the counter with a swarthy-faced Italian.

He had no intention of repeating the fiasco of the former place. He opened the door quietly, strode through the room and before anyone realized where he was going he had reached the door at back and flung it wide.

(To be continued.)

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, November 4

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of a very happy, interesting and geenrally progressive and profitable day in whatever avenue of vocation or avocation one may be disposed to apply himself. Despite a very small delay or disappointment all may be pleasantly and confidentially undertaken with flourishing conditions assured.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a pleasant and happy year, with all undertakings both business and private under flourishing and pleasant auspices. Especially does all pertaining to letters, publications, publicity and cultural matters thrive. Employment is also favored, probably bringing pleasant notice.

A child born on this day should be intellectual, shrewd, alert and energetic in many lines of endeavor and should have pleasant and progressive life.

For Monday, November 5

Monday's astrological forecast is a very interesting one, according to the lunar as well as mutual aspects of one of the most important planets. This should make for a settlement of real possessions or property, inheritances, lands, mining interests, agriculture, and any form of industry or labor. These should be discreetly managed with a view to the stabilization of the fortunes and the increased power of accumulated possessions. An elderly female may assist to this.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which their interests may center about their real or property possessions or possibly inheritances, in which probably an agreement with an elderly woman may figure to their benefit. Hard work and fidelity may achieve merited rewards.

A child born on this day should be studious, profound, earnest, dependable and industrious, possibly gaining through the good graces of an elderly woman.

QUINTUPLETS NORMAL

CALLANDER, Ont., Nov. 2. (CP) Concurrence in Dr. A. R. Dafoe's statement that the five-months and five day old Dionne sisters now have a normal expectancy of life was given to-day by his brother, Dr. W. A. Dafoe, senior demonstrator in obstetrics and gynaecology at the University of Toronto. The Toronto physician, a visitor here to-day, said the babies appeared to him to be extradordinarily healthy for prematurely born children.

RUSSIA RISEN TO TOP RANK IN AIR WORLD

Japan and Europe Look on Askance as Soviet Makes Tremendous Strides.

PLAYS VITAL ROLL

(By Central Press Canadian)

MOSCOW, Nov. 3—The amazing development of aviation in the Soviet Union during the past few years is attracting a close watch from military and civil air experts throughout the world.

In nine years, these authorities agree, Russia has risen to top rank in air power. Particularly concerned over this fact is Japan, which greatly fears this new power. Japan and Russia have not been on amicable terms for years, and foreign observers are almost unanimous in predicting an eventual war between the two nations.

Military observers of other countrie are also much interested, but their interest hinges closely upon an undisguised envy. And while they watch the growth of the Red air fleet, civilian flying also is increasing faster than in any other land on the globe.

Has Vital Role

The aeroplane plays a vital role in Russia because of the vastness of the nation. From the Baltic border to the Pacific maritime provinces stretch 5,000 miles of dense woods and uninhabited steppes. Even with the famed Trans-Siberian railway, travel is incredibly slow.

Established in 1925, more than 45 mail and passenger lines now criss-cross the Soviet republics with a combined distance of 40,000 miles. Tens of thousands of passengers and hundreds of tons of freight have been carried on the lines.

Soviet leaders have sought to make Russia's 160,000,000 citizens air-minded with an ingenuity almost fantastic. Daily the press hammers at the fear that on some future day the capitalist countries neighboring Russia will seek to destroy Communism, perhaps via the air. Thus, the press contends it behooves Russia to become supreme in aviation.

Fashioned After Nazi Clubs

Russia has aviation clubs fashioned after those of Nazi Germany. Millions of Russia's youth have been enrolled for flying instructions. There are score of gliding organizations and parachute jumping has become a national sport. It is not uncommon for a huge multi-motored aeroplane to serve as the jumping off place for 30 and more parachute daredevils in the skies.

Recently a demonstration to depict the efficiency of Soviet parachutes found live pigs, radios, typewriters and first aid kits somersaulting to the earth to the tune of parachuting musicians playing instruments.

One of the few countries to possess within its borders all material needed to fabricate aeroplanes, Soviet Russia has built many of its aeronautical manufacturing plants near the Ural mountains and at other centrally located spots, too far away for potential enemy bombers to fly.

In Heroic Roles

Soviet aviation, until recently escaping publicity, has figured in numerous sagas of heroism that have won the praise of the world. Using only 'planes, rescuers saved more than 100 castaways who had been shipwrecked on the ice floes off the Siberian coast.

Aeroplanes have been put into use by farmers. Planting often is done on the gigantic collective farms by experienced fliers, who sweep low over the miles of furrows, dropping seeds. Aeroplanes also are used to combat insect pests by spraying poisons over the ravaged regions.

One of the hugest land 'planes in the world, the Maxim Gorki, carries aboard a complete printing plant besides a passenger load of more than 40. The Geodetic committee has photographed tens of thousands of miles from the air. Forest fires are kept under control by air, and often contact between icebreakers and fish trawlers is maintained by the Soviet civil air fleet.

Soviet Made Tremendous Advances In Aviation

The amazing advance of civil and military aviation in Russia has started experts in Europe and Japan. In the layout is shown top, Soviet students at one of their many flying clubs throughout the nation. RIGHT a 'plane being used in seeding operations on a collective farm. Below, one of the gigantic new 'planes which recently surprised Austria when three of this type dropped in on Vienna.

58 APPEALS BEFORE COURT OF REVISION

Several Assessment Appeals Are Dealt With at First Sitting of Court.

Hearing of 58 appeals against assessment of property in the city opened last evening before the Court of Revision. It is the most appeals listed before the Court of Revision here in many years and much valuable property is involved in many of the cases.

Although the court sat for several hours last night only a slight beginning was made on the long list, all but a few of the cases being adjourned for future hearing.

Decisions handed down by the court last night were as follows; assessment of 207 Simcoe street, owned by Roland Bestard, reduced $200; assessment of W. W. Brown's property on Mark street confirmed; $300 reduced from assessment of 491 Homewood, owned by Margaret J. Franks, $250 reduction made in assessment of 182 Lock street, owned by S. A. Haggart estate; $150 reduction in one piece of property owned by Lillian Hurley; assessment of M. Mealey confirmed; $300 reduction in property at 465, 468, 470 Elm street, owned by M. Maycock.

Many of the cases were adjourned in order that the court can inspect the premises for which the assessment is disputed.

Membership of the court consists of W. F. Johnston, chairman, W. F. Morrow and Fred Finney.

SMITH INQUEST IS POSTPONED

HEARING NOV. 9.

MARMORA, Nov. 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—The inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of the late William Smith, who died on Wednesday from a self-inflicted gunshot wound was opened at Marmora town hall at 10 a.m. on Friday, before Coroner Dr. S. Eagleson of Madoc. The following were sworn in as jury: R. E. Bonter (foreman), T. Warren, P. Sopha, W. S. Wilde, G. Aunger, G. Forestell and H. Price.

No evidence was taken and, after the body had been viewed at Deloro, adjournment was made until 2 p.m., Friday, Nov. 9.

The funeral left the residence of his father, Mr. Harry Smith, Deloro, at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, proceeding to S. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, for service, after which interment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

When Miss Esther Toivene returned to her home in Helsingfors, Finland, after being crowned "Miss Europe" the welcoming crowd was so great that the augmented police force had difficulty in handling it.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

IRON OXIDE BELIEVED SECRET IN RUBY'S DEEP RED COLORING

Discovery Leads Cornell Chemists to Attempt Making Synthetic Gem.

OLD THEORY DROPPED.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

ITHACA, N.Y., Nov. 3 (AP) — Cornell university chemists are trying to make a new kind of synthetic ruby using iron for duplicating nature's deep shades of red.

The experiment was described today in "Science" the official journal of American non-commercial scientific progress. The report was made by William J. O'Leary, G. L. Royer and Jacob Papish, the latter head of the chemistry department.

Synthetic, or laboratory, rubies have been made for a long time, but all of them have owed their color to chromic oxide, a combination of oxygen and chromium.

Real rubies however contain appreciable amounts of iron. It has been suspected that the iron had something to do with their color.

The Cornell chemists first found out that the suspicion is apparently correct, and in doing so they solved the mystery of how nature seems to use the iron to produce color. They ground up a number of real rubies and analyzed them under the spectroscope.

This instrument revealed, down to fractions of a thousandth of a percent, just how much chromium and how much iron the real rubies contain. It showed that the real gems posses pure chromium, pure iron, chromic oxide and iron oxide. In all of them there was much more iron than chromium; also much more of the oxide of iron than of chromic-oxide.

It was not the metals themselves that appeared significant in coloring the real rubies, but the combination of oxygen with chromium or with iron that gave the color.

In the synthetic ruby now being made at Cornell the Iron oxide alone will be used for coloring.

MADRIGAL CHOIR HAS WITHDRAWN

Will not Take Part in Series of Community Concerts Being Planned.

SOME CRITICISM

The following letter has been received by The Examiner from Dorothy Allan Park, director of the Madrigal Singers in connection with that choir taking part in course of concerts planned for Peterborough.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir:

For the benefit of those interested in Community Concerts in Peterborough I wish to make the following statement:

It has been brought to my attention that there is a feeling that the participation of the chorus known as "The Madrigal Singers" in the course of concerts planned may mitigate against the success of the campaign.

The suggestion that we take part came from Miss Whetham, the Canadian manager for Community Concerts of New York, and the approval of the choir was given after a great deal of thought and discussion. The idea was to put my choir with a world famous artist, such as Salvi, the renowned harpist, with whom we appeared at Massey Hall, under the management of I. E. Suckling. Mr. Salvi asked Mr. Suckling at that time to try to arrange a coast to coast tour with Salvi and "The Madrigal Singers." It is impossible to get my singers released from their various positions for any length of time, so the scheme was abandoned.

The choir is unanimous in desiring to withdraw from taking part in the concerts, as it does not wish to stand in the way of the complete realization of the project. I blame myself for not realizing that a local organization, however excellent, if appearing on this course, would prejudice people against the plan for bringing famous artists to the city.

We would like to assure the executive and the citizens of Peterborough of our support and cooperation, as nothing would give us greater pleasure than to see a fine series of concerts, such as this effort will make possible, take place in Peterborough.

The only difference in the original plan is that "The Madrigal Singers" will take no part in the course of concerts except by their presence and support.

Thanking you for your valuable space,

DOROTHY ALLAN PARK.

BARD WAS JOLLY, SWEET TEMPERED

Dean Inge Gives His Opinion of Shakespeare and His Works.

LONDON, Nov. 3 (C.P.)—"What did Shakespeare do with the last five years of his life in retirement at Stratford-on-Avon? I wonder our friends have not suggested the obvious reason," said Dean Inge. "He wrote the works of Francis Bacon."

The Dean was speaking at a luncheon to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the Temple Edition of Shakespeare and to inaugurate the publication of the new edition.

Three hundred Shakespeareans, including many people famous in literature and the theatre, ate a meal as Shakespeare relished in the 1500's. Marigold flowers were among the ingredients of one dish —"hodgepodge."

Dean Inge said Shakespeare was a jolly man of the world with a thoroughly sweet and healthy nature. "Shakespeare was a typical middle-class Englishman in character," he said. "He bought the best country house in Stratford, and as soon as he could afford to do so retired to live there. I don't believe he unlocked his heart in any plays, or any other works; nor do I think he ever had any inkling of the glorious fate in store for him. As for the sonnets, I don't believe they contained any deep confessions. People don't sit down and write poetry when they are really very unhappy. As Coleridge once said: 'When a man is unhappy he writes d—— bad poetry.'"

Marathon Talkers In British House

LONDON, Nov. 3 (CP)—Aneurin Bevan, Labor M.P. for Ebbw Vale, whose engagement to Miss Jennie Lee, ex-Labor M.P. for North Lanark, has just been announced, has been the most talkative member of the House of Commons in recent months. According to the Parliamentary Gazette Mr. Bevan, from the beginning of the session in November 1933, to the summer adjournment in July, spoke 252 columns of Hansard.

Indeed the Labor Party hold the first four places in the record of talking, for Mr. Bevan is followed by David Grenfell (Gower Division of Glamorgan) with 248 columns, George Buchanan (Glasgow, Gorbals) 243 columns, and Sir Stafford Cripps, K.C., 233 columns.

They were followed by two Cabinet ministers, Walter Elliot, 232 columns, and Neville Chamberlain, 202 columns. Among the comparatively silent members were Stanley Baldwin, 63 columns, John Gilmour, 42, and Ramsay MacDonald, the Prime Minister, 39.

Geoffrey Mander (Lib., E. Wolverhampton) was easily the most inquisitive member, asking 417 questions.

U.S. 10-Cent Bill Is Owned By G. Gunsolus

Perhaps United States 10-cent bills aren't so rare after all. A recent despatch from British Columbia told of the existence of one in Vancouver. Immediately the possession of a second bill of the same issue was revealed in this city. And now the third is reported. The owner of the bill is Gordon Gunsolus, 562 Water street, a member of the P.C.I. senior rugby team. He received it some time ago from a relative in Cleveland and had thought of throwing it away on several occasions before learning from the newspapers of the rarity of the treasure.

The note bears the date 1864 and the signature of John Allison, a United States treasury official of that day. Its owner is now making inquiries among collectors of old coins and currency to see if it has any particular value.

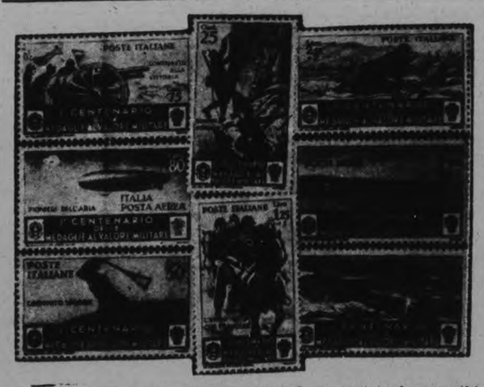
STAMP CORNER
By M. A. BESSEY



Italy, one of the worst offenders, so far as new issues of stamps are concerned, is still hard at it.

Their latest effort is composed of a series of postage as well as air mail stamps commemorating the centenary of the institution of the military medal for valor.

The postage set consists of eleven denominations, the air mail series of nine. Practically every imaginable phase of active modern warfare is represented and the sets are most attractive.

As is usual with Italian commemoratives, the stamps have been very finely reproduced in photogravure, the smaller details of the design clear and discernible, and the colors bright and attractive. A few of the designs are illustrated, above but the stamps themselves must be seen in their true colors to be really appreciated.

Ceylon's New Stamps

Following in the footsteps of most other countries Ceylon is to shortly issue as set of pictorial stamps to be released early next year.

Ivory Stamp Club

Although it is not the purpose of this column to introduce anything of a commercial nature, we feel justified in telling you just a little about the Ivory Stamp Club of the Air.

Earlier this year on an experimental try-out for 26 weeks over a single U.S. radio station, requests for membership in the club and free stamp albums averaged 10,000 per week. Over a quarter-million albums were given away.

Beginning October 1, the program has been extended to a coast-to-coast network consisting of 30 stations, one or more of which are bound to be within reach of your radio.

The broadcasts are conducted by Captain Tim Healy, whose radio personality goes far in making the undertaking a success. His knack of story-telling, as well as his own thrilling experiences during the war will more than hold the listener's interest during the broadcasts.

WBEN, Buffalo; WLW, Cincinnati; WTAM, Cleveland; WMAQ, Chicago; WWJ, Detroit; WEAF, New York; WGY, Schenectady; KOMO, Seattle.

WEEK-BY-WEEK

Saves Parking Fines

Ever find a traffic ticket on the windshield when you come out of the picture show? There will be less of that if motorists will accept the aid of a scientist who has come to their aid with an "electric eye" which carefully measures the amount of light and at sunset automatically switches on parking lights. It cannot be fooled by clouds and always keeps a few minutes ahead of darkness. The device, which was demonstrated at a recent conference of illumination experts, can also be applied to street lights and navigation signals.

Feather In Chevrolet's Cap

First choice of exhibit space at the 1935 New York automobile show, awarded annually to the motor car manufacturer with the largest dollar volume sales, again went to Chevrolet this year. The drawing for the 1935 automobile show represents the eighth consecutive year in which Chevrolet has won the coveted first choice of space at the Grand Central Palace.

The system of giving the pick of the show positions to the exhibitor having the largest sales was established when the shows were under the management of the N.A.C.C., now the Automobile Manufacturers' Association. The management of the 1935 show, the first to be held under the direction of the Automobile Merchants' Association of New York, continued the system as the fairest basis on which to allot space.

Present Speeds High Enough

The small average automobile has won a permanent place for itself. Its efficiency has been jumped enormously, and there is little likelihood that present speeds will be increased. This is "straight dope" from D. G. Ross, president of the Society of Automotive Engineers, who addressed the Toronto Branch of the S.A.E. recently. In the so-called small car, Mr. Ross pointed out, people with relatively tightened purse strings have found low initial cost and maintenance, and reliable service, to meet all their needs. Manufacturers could do a lot of things in the way of radical changes, but the people are not prepared to pay. And so the concentration on development of the small, high powered car. Price is a governing factor even in speeds, he said. An increase would mean a larger displacement engine, and consequently a heavier car all round, which would not be as marketable as a lighter and less costly car.

Sign of the Times

Surely a good index of automotive trade conditions generally, is the volume of sales of genuine parts and car accessories. Important, therefore, is the statement from R. N. Grainger, Parts and Service Manager of General Motors Products of Canada, Limited that sales of accessories have been mounting. September of this year, Mr. Grainger reports, was the biggest accessory month in the Company's history. It was the biggest month for parts and accessories combined, with one exception, since October of 1930.

"Service" With G.M. Trucks

With 90,000 miles of surfaced highways, Canada must be prepared to see a considerable proportion of the freight-buying business of the country shared with the railways by the motor transport companies. All the highway trucking outfits are not efficient, but many of them, on the contrary, give excellent service and are prospering. One of the most successful companies is Direct Transport Limited, of Toronto, which operates a fleet of 110 units in South Western Ontario. There is considerable romance in the story of how President George Rodanz built the business up from a single light truck to its present proportions. The secret of his success, says Mr. Rodanz, is "Service". First, he selected the right type of truck and had special jobs built. The whole fleet to-day is composed of General Motors Trucks. Mr. Rodanz adds new trucks regularly and emphasizes maintenance as a factor in good service to the public.

"Car of Cavaliers"

Recently, His Majesty, King Gustav V of Sweden, instructed his Court Constabulary to purchase the fourth unit of a fleet of Cadillacs which is owned and used personally by the King. The General Motors dealer in Stockholm had the pleasure of delivering a 1934 Cadillac V-8 to the first Equerry of the Court, thus making all the cars, detached for the personal use of His Majesty, exclusively Cadillacs. The latest addition is called, in Court terminology, a "Car of Cavaliers", meaning that it will be used principally by the aides-de-camp to the King and by the most prominent visitors to the Royal Palace.

CRITICS ARGUE OLD COMPOSERS

Ronald Declares German Has Proven Himself Superior to Sullivan.

"Merrier England" Revived.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (CP)— Lovers of light opera on the American side of the Atlantic who are now being entertained by the D'Oyly Carte Company will have a special interest in hearing of the revival here of "Merrie England."

It is many years since this delightful work of Basil Hood and Edward German has been presented, except by amateur companies. At the same time the music appears as often in band programs as that of any of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. The revival of "Merrie England" at the Prince's Theatre is proving an unqualified success.

Sir Arthur Sullivan used to name Edward German as his only possible successor in composing in the Savoy tradition. Unfortunately Edward German never encountered a collaborator who could produce a "book" of the kind which made W. S. Gilbert's librettos so memorable.

Sullivan worshippers are indignant when critics so eminent as Sir Landon Ronald are bold enough to declare that in orchestration, and even in fluency of melody, German has proved himself the superior of Sullivan. The present revival of "Merrie England" brings a renewal of the discussion upon the respective merits of these two masters of light opera.

According to a writer in The Manchester Guardian "German has been compared with Sullivan—apparently for no better reason than that he was invited to undertake the impossible task of carrying on the inimitable Savoy manner. Sullivan's music was inspired by two or three main sources: the Chapel Royal, the ballad of his period, and his own incomparable Irish wit.

"German is more operatic, despite his occasional overindulgence in his formula of the country dance; German's vocal melody is not as syllabic as Sullivan's; it takes a wider curve; the rhythm is not so square and the harmony is richer. He has not Sullivan's genius for parody; he sincerely emulates but never makes a burlesque of his models, for, of course, like any artist who is not crude, he at moments allows us to feel the influences that have given him his musical culture."

RECALL WAR WORK OF MRS. W. P. BULL

Death of Well-Known Host Brings Tribute From Soldiers.

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP)—Mrs. William Perkins Bull, wife of William Perkins Bull, K.C., who died at her home here was widely known for her work on behalf of the Canadian soldiers during the war. She served as Matron-in-Chief of the Perkins Bull Hospital for convalescent officers.

Mrs. Bull's kindness is still a subject of tribute wherever her former patients are found from coast to coast. Quite apart from her work as matron of the hospital founded by her husband, was her hospitality in her own home, in Putney Heath.

It has been said more soldiers were guests in that house than in all the other homes of Canadians living in England. From 10 to 40 Canadians on leave or on their way to France slept in that house every night. During the recent Canadian Corps Reunion here Mrs. Perkins Bull's thoughtfulness was told and retold. While the boys slept a fairy godmother went through their field-kits, laundered and repaired the contents, put in socks or handkerchiefs or even a few shillings. Nothing was said, but every boy knew it was Mrs. Perkins Bull.

Returned soldiers still remember the parties at Putney Heath. It was Mrs. Perkins Bull's custom to give a supper and a dance before each leave Canadian troop train left for France. Many ex-service men calling at her house in Toronto in recent years were received by her with that same quiet charm and gracious hospitality which made her beloved in the war days.

CAVAN

For those schools who take advantage of the government plan of serving hot lunch, the date to begin is November the first. One hot dish is served each day, to supplement the lunch brought from home, until the last of March.

The cup of hot soup, or helping of hot potatoes, is very beneficial in cold weather, particularly to the children who have a long walk to school.

The government returns the money spent on equipment, in two yearly payments and the money spent on supplies, each year.

The teacher receives a grant for the work involved in supervising the cooking and serving of the lunch.

Another benefit of the hot lunch, is that the children must sit down quietly to eat their lunch, instead of running around the school with a piece in their hands.

Many Institutes have helped in starting the hot lunches in schools in their districts. Other Institutes supply paper drinking cups, paper towels, paper serviettes and first aid kits in the interests of health.

Many schools who have had the hot lunch for years, would not like to do without it, while others because of the extra work will not try it at all.

S.S. No. 7, Cavan, has had the hot lunch served for at least thirteen consecutive years and are very much pleased with it.

Government railway receipts in Japan in three weeks of August were $5,760,000 above the corresponding period of last year.
